2. Then, as to whether or not any administrative inconvenience at present exists from the exclusion of Native Covenanted Civil Servants from the power of trying European British subjects in criminal charges, I think that Government is in a better position to judge on this question than any outsider; but if, when the District Magistracy of Jessore fell vacant, Government had to move the European Magistrate of Bogra to make room for Mr. Dutt or Mr. Badshah, whose turn for a district magistracy had arrived; or if, when in consequence of Mr. Gupta's being Sessions Judge of Beerbhoom, a European criminal has to be tried at Moorshedabad, I would reckon such cases as causing not only administrative, but public inconvenience.

Dated 20th April 1883.

From—NAWAB ABDUL LUTEEF, C.I.E., Deputy Magistrate of Sealdah,

To—The Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 11JJ., dated the 2nd instant, forwarding copy of a letter No. 1518J., dated the 27th ultimo, from the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Judicial Department, to your address, as well as a copy of the Bill No. 8 of 1883, being "A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects," and asking me to report, for the information of the local Government, my views in connection therewith. The matter is one of great importance and difficulty, and cannot require too much of thought and deliberation. I have made most of the time allotted for the reply, and I trust that any deficiencies in this report may be excused.

2. The principle of the Bill, I take it, is this: that the fitness of a Judge to exercise jurisdiction in criminal cases should be tried, not by his race, but by his personal qualifications. The Sovereign and the Parliament of the United Kingdom have oft declared their intention to remove all distinctions of race or creed in the matter of all offices under the British administration in India; and every rule or regulation which forbids a Native of India to exercise any portion of the duties of his office merely on account of his nationality is, in my humble view, an infringement of the spirit, if not the letter, of the said declarations of the highest authorities in this Empire.

3. It has been said that such anomalies are common enough in India, where various classes of the Native communities have peculiar and personal laws and privileges; but when all these Native privileges are summed up and analysed, it will, I submit, be plain that none of them entitles a Native to select the tribunal in which a case in which he is concerned should be tried. The personality of the Judge or Magistrate is a thing wholly out of the pale of Native privileges, and the so-called privileges are mostly the result of the declared policy of Government not to interfere with the religion or social customs of the people of this country which latter are again often intimately connected with their religion. Further, it will be found that few, if any, of these privileges are recognized in the criminal procedure, however much they might be in the civil procedure.

4. The change which the Bill proposes to introduce will affect only a small fraction of the privileges already possessed by European British subjects in criminal matters,—for instance, it would leave unaffected their right of appeal against every sentence, and their right to apply to the High Court for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which are very substantial advantages, from which the Natives of India are debarred, and of which the former is not enjoyed by European British subjects in any other country, inclusive of their own.

5. I believe there is no country whose laws and regulations would be deemed worthy of imitation, where the jurisdiction of Judges in civil or criminal cases is circumscribed by reason of their place of birth or their nationality. Such distinctions, I believe, are not recognised in the other colonies of the British Empire.

6. I may here be permitted to remark that, to a certain extent, the Bill under consideration only seeks to remove invidious distinctions of recent growth. Before 1869, Government had the power of appointing any person, whom they considered fit, as Justice of the Peace in the Mofussil. And every Justice of the Peace, of whatever nationality, had, by virtue of his office, jurisdiction to try European British subjects for petty offences, and to commit them to the High Court sessions for serious crimes. I myself have held the appointment of a Justice of the Peace for Bengal, Behar and Orissa, and, as such, I have tried at the Alipore Police Court European British subjects for many years. In 1869,* it was enacted that only Europeans or * Act II of 1869.

Covenanted Civil Servants should hold the appointment of Justice of the Peace in the Mofussil. The Native Members of the Covenanted Civil Service would still, however, have continued to be eligible for the appointment of Justice of the Peace, and the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such capacity, but for Act X of 1872, by which it was further enacted that only Europeans who were Justices of the Peace could try or commit European British subjects.

7. That Act, whilst it took away from the native members of the Covenanted Civil Service the eligibility for trying European British subjects in the official capacity of Justices of the Peace, increased the jurisdiction of certain European officers in the mofussil for the trial of European British subjects. It was admitted on all hands, at that time, that it was a great administrative inconvenience that European offenders in the mofussil could not be speedily and conveniently tried within a reasonable distance of time and space. "There is, no doubt," said Mr. Fitz-James Stephen,† "one way in which the present system is a great and real grievance to the natives. It extends practical impunity to English wrongdoers." "The difficulty," said Mr. Barrow Ellis, "attending the conviction, in the mofussil, of offenders, being European British subjects, was admitted to be a great evil, and the question was how to remove the evil without risk of injustice being done to those concerned." "The exigencies of the time," said Mr. W. Robinson, "clearly call for an extension of the jurisdiction of up-country Justices of the Peace in respect to the trial and punishment of European British offenders; and the Committee adopted this view." His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal (Sir George Campbell) remarked, during the course of the said Debate, that "he entirely acquiesced in the general view of the case which was put forward by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. As he truly stated, the real and practical evil was that, at present, Europeans in the mofussil committed petty offences with impunity. That had been found to be a practical evil, and these provisions were designed to meet that evil as far as it was possible to meet it."

† Vide Proceedings of the Legislative Council of India, dated 16th April 1872.

8. The number of Europeans in the country has increased since 1872, and I venture to think that administrative inconvenience of the same description is sure to be felt in districts or divisions of districts which might be under the charge of Native Sessions Judges or Magistrates, whether as members of the Covenanted Civil Service or as members of the Statutory Native Civil Service.

9. To transfer the particular class of cases to subordinate officers of European nationality would produce administrative inconvenience of another character. To declare a superior officer disqualified from performing a part of his official functions, and relegate the same to a subordinate officer on the ground of a mere distinction of race or nationality, would substantially lower the prestige of the superior officer in his own eyes and in the eyes of the people at large, and would be well calculated to disturb the discipline of the administration, and diminish his usefulness as a public servant.

10. The native members of the Covenanted Civil Service have so completely adopted the English habits of life and thought, that they may, for all practical purposes, be treated as European British subjects. Indeed the definition of the term "European British subject" in the Criminal Procedure Code is so artificial that the native members of the Covenanted Civil Service can, without any great stretch of ideas, be brought in within the spirit of that definition. To the mass of the native public, these gentlemen are not distinguishable from the class of European British subjects as defined in the Act; and the Executive and the Legislature should also, in my humble opinion, on the question of jurisdiction, treat them as such.

11. There remains the question of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Victoria, cap. 3. The members of that Service already suffer much in prestige and public estimation on account of the diminished salaries that they draw; and to exclude them as a class from exercising any jurisdiction over European British subjects would still more seriously diminish their prestige and usefulness. The Native Civil Service would in such case be hardly distinguishable, for many years to come, from the ordinary Subordinate Executive Service.

12. To retain the present race disqualifications would always hamper the Government in placing a Native of India in charge of a District as Magistrate, where there is no European Joint-Magistrate, or as Sessions Judge where there is no European Assistant Session Judge. The Native Members of the Covenanted Civil Service have, some of them, already attained rank as District Magistrate and Sessions Judge, and in time the members of the Native Civil Service are also expected to attain similar rank in the Service. The inconvenience, therefore, to the public administration will go on increasing, unless the race distinctions are removed.

13. I may be permitted to add, in conclusion, that, so far as my own official experience is concerned, I have exercised criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects, as a matter of right, in my capacity of Justice of the Peace for Bengal, Behar, and Orissa from 1852 to 1869, and in 1877, during my incumbency as Officiating Presidency Magistrate for the Northern Division of Calcutta. I have also, since 1872, as Police Magistrate in the Suburban Courts of Alipore and Sealdah, exercised criminal jurisdiction in numerous cases over European British subjects, where they have waived their privilege of being tried by a European Magistrate. I venture humbly to trust that, during the entire period of my long official career, no complaint has ever been made, much less substantiated, that there has been any failure of justice, in the case of any European sentenced by me, on account of his being tried by a Native Magistrate.

No. 710JG, dated 30th April 1883.

From—W. V. G. TAYLER, Esq., Magistrate of Nuddea,
To—The Commissioner of the Presidency Division.

With reference to your memorandum No. 11J.J., dated 2nd April 1883, forwarding a circular of the Bengal Government regarding the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code, I have the honor to forward the opinions of my Sub-divisional Officers, the Joint-Magistrate and senior Deputy Magistrate at the Sudder, which speak for themselves. The principle of the Bill is to remove an alleged anomaly and certain supposed administrative inconveniences that exist or hereafter are likely to exist. As regards the first, however, it seems to me that the proposed Bill, while removing such anomaly, retains various others which are of equal, if not of more importance. It vests native civilians with powers that Native Magistrates have hitherto never enjoyed, and which, in my opinion, they are not fitted for, while it debars, in future, Uncovenanted European Magistrates, a class of officers who are fitted for, and who I believe have proved themselves fit to be Justices of the Peace, from holding such powers. It, moreover, takes away a long-existing and deeply-cherished privilege of the European community, but in no way interferes with privileges and personal laws enjoyed by the Hindus and Mussulmen; and finally, the effect of such measures is certain to create a feeling of insecurity in the minds of the European communities, and thereby in all probability considerably affect the investment of European capital, and arouse feelings of race antagonism which cannot but be disastrous.

2. As regards the second point, I beg to state that, during the course of my long service no administrative inconvenience has ever been experienced, nor do I think such is likely to occur. District Magistrates, as a rule, never try original cases, except in small outlying stations, and even in such there could, I take it, be no difficulty in appointing at least an Uncovenanted European Deputy Magistrate with full powers, and with those of a Justice of the Peace. So far, then, from Native Civilians being kept out of the larger and more important stations, the effect would be, if any, quite the reverse. Committals of Europeans to the Sessions Court are of such very rare occurrence (I cannot call to mind one such during my service of 27 years) that I scarcely think that such need be taken into consideration.

3. I fully concur with Mr. Ritchie that the right of Europeans should be at least respected as far as to ensure them a fair trial by the best Judges procurable, but I differ from that officer in considering that Native Civilians who have passed in England should be vested with powers to try only ordinary European cases. If they are not competent to try all European cases, I think it would be a great political mistake to bring about the results above named merely for the sake of partially removing the anomaly.

4. The experience of Mr. Holmwood confirms that which I have from the first considered to be more than probable, viz., that Native Civilians in England are not likely to be introduced into good society, and even if now and then so introduced, that they could not spare time from their studies to become thoroughly acquainted with the social habits and customs of the people.

5. As regard other Native Civilians, I agree with Mr. Ritchie that there exists no reasonable grounds for supposing that they are competent for these powers, and I concur with Baboo Rakhal Das Mookerjee that there are many Deputy Magistrates of experience and tried ability, who ought with better reason to be so vested, and that, so long as the latter are considered unfit, as they apparently are, I fail to see on what grounds the former are considered to be qualified.

No. X, dated 23rd April 1883.

From—J. G. RITCHIE, Esq., Offg. Joint-Magistrate, Kishnaghur,
To—The Magistrate and Collector of Nuddea.

With reference to your memorandum No. 586JG, dated the 6th instant, forwarding a circular of the Bengal Government regarding the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code, I have the honour to submit the following statement of my views on the points noted in the circular.

2. In the first place as to the principle of the Bill. Ought the privilege claimed by the European British subject, to be tried by his own fellow-countrymen, to be respected or not? I think it ought to be respected just so far as this, that he ought to be assured of as fair a trial—a trial as much in accordance with the spirit of English law out in India—as he would get if he were tried at home.

Can we assure him of such a trial at the hands of the Native Magistrates included in the classes specified in section 1 of the Bill?

3. First come the members of the Covenanted Civil Service. These gentlemen have proved their superiority to the prejudices of their fellow-countrymen by breaking caste and going home; in England they have familiarised themselves with the practice and the spirit of English courts of law, and have become conversant with English manners and customs. On their return to this country they hold responsible positions in various districts, and in time are considered fit for promotion to the all-important posts of Magistrate-Collector and Sessions Judge. No stronger proof can be given of their character for probity and loyalty to English rule, and of the fact that they are thoroughly imbued with western as opposed to oriental ideas, than that the Executive Government should be ready to entrust them with the functions of the posts which I have mentioned. I think an Englishman would be as fairly tried by one of this class as he would be by his own countryman, and that, as a class, they are fit to be vested with the proposed jurisdiction at the discretion of the local Government.

4. In giving this opinion, I am thinking of the ordinary class of cases in which an European is likely to stand as accused. There are other cases of rare occurrence, where both parties are Europeans, in which it is imperative that the Judge should himself be an European British subject: such cases as indecent assault, assaults prompted by suspicion of a wife's fidelity, and matrimonial cases generally. There would be no difficulty in having these cases transferred to the file of the nearest European Magistrate, or a proviso might be inserted in the Bill, to the effect that cases in which both parties are European British subjects should not be tried by a Magistrate other than an European British subject himself, except with the consent of the parties.

5. It may be said that by making this exception I am proving too much, and that, if it is admitted that a Native Civilian is not sufficiently English in habit of thought to try all cases, he is not qualified to try any cases in which Europeans are accused. The experience of every European Magistrate in trying men of another race teaches him that with an ordinary knowledge of native habits and customs he can hope to do justice and give satisfaction to the parties in the great bulk of cases which arise out of the ordinary business of life, but that he is more or less in the dark in the exceptional cases which come before him, involving nice family and social questions. He is only too glad if he has the opportunity of handing over such cases to be tried by a co-religionist of the accused.

6. Coming next to the members of the newly-constituted Native Civil Service, I find none of the guarantees of fitness for trying European British subjects which exist in the case of Covenanted Civilians. They are nominated chiefly on the ground of birth, most of them have never left the country, nor have risen above caste prejudices; they have had no opportunity yet of proving their worth; their only experience of the administration of criminal justice is in the mofussil courts. I think it hardly possible for a Magistrate, bred up in the atmosphere of these courts—the constant scene of wholesale lying, reckless imputation of motives, subornation of perjury, chicanery, and vindictiveness,—to understand the true spirit of English criminal law. I think that as a class, therefore, members of the new Native Civil Service should not be rendered eligible for investment with powers to try European British subjects.

7. Turning from the principle of the Bill to the policy and expediency of making it law, I fear that the race feeling, so deplorable in some aspects, which animates the classes who are most likely to figure in the courts as accused, would prevent them from respecting the jurisdiction of Native Magistrates. As is well known, there is no European criminal class in the mofussil. The classes mentioned consist of (a) those of an inferior social position, such as railway employés, seamen, store-keepers; (b) planters and large employers of native labour. Every severe sentence passed by a Native Magistrate on a member of these classes would, I believe, raise a storm of that race feeling which it is so undesirable to stir up, and of obloquy against the unfortunate sentencing Magistrate, while the same sentence passed by an European would, if grumbled at a little, be acquiesced in. In other words, I think the occasional lawlessness of independent Europeans can be far better controlled by the authority of members of their own race, than by giving jurisdiction to natives of this country, and that the jurisdiction of the latter is open to the fatal objection that it would not command the respect of the accused.

8. Those who have been educated at our public schools, where the prefectorial system is in force, will understand the analogy when I say that, if the present Bill is passed, there is likely to prevail in places the same state of things which sometimes occurs when, by right of cleverness, a youthful and puny set of boys hold the position of præpositors or præfects. Their authority is defied by the big stupid fellows in the lower forms, who bully the little boys, disregard the punishments by which their youthful superiors attempt to re-assert their authority, and which have a tendency to be inordinately light or inordinately severe, and finally by open resistance cause the authority of the headmaster to be invoked.

9. Coming lastly to the question of administrative convenience. Looking back to the occasions on which I have had to try a European British subject, and considering what would have taken place if I had not been empowered as a Justice of the Peace, I can only recall two cases in which any administrative inconvenience would have resulted from the parties having to travel to a more distant court. In each case they would have had to travel about 20 more miles each way.

Dated 23th April 1883.

From—BAHOO TABINI KUMAR GHOSE, Deputy Magistrate of Nuddea,
To—The Magistrate of Nuddea.

With reference to your memorandum No. 586JG, dated the 6th instant, and subsequent reminder, I have the honor to submit the following opinion on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill.

2. The principle of the Bill, viz., the removal of judicial disqualification based merely on race distinction, is one in consonance with the declared liberal policy of Government.

3. Natives who are thought fit to be appointed to the high office of a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate may be presumed to be fit to try European British subjects. Section 2 of the Bill, therefore, appears to be appropriate.

4. As regards the other native officers mentioned in section 1 of the Bill, the investment of them with the power to try European British subjects is left to the discretion of the Executive Government, and thus there is little risk of that power being conferred on incompetent officers.

5. As to the question whether any administrative inconvenience at present arises, or is likely to arise in future, from the exclusion of Native Covenanted Civilians from the power of trying European British subjects, I do not venture to express any opinion.

No. 242G, dated 12th April 1883.

From—P. G. MELITUS, Esq., Assistant Magistrate of Kushtea,
To—The Magistrate of Nuddea.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your memorandum No. 586JG, asking for an expression of my opinion on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The object of the Bill is to remove the alleged administrative inconvenience felt, or likely to be felt, from the exclusion of Native District Magistrates and Sessions Judges from the power of trying European British subjects on criminal charges.

There are two questions on which my opinion is asked—

1. Is any administrative difficulty felt, or likely to be felt, under the present system?
2. Is the principle of the Bill good?

The second question, in my opinion, depends on the first: the negative of the first carries with it the negative of the second.

The Bill is prospective. There are at present only two or three native officers in Bengal who are in a position to be District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, but it is said that in a few years the number will increase, and then the inconvenience will be felt.

There is a certain amount of inconvenience arising from the fact that all Magistrates of sub-divisions are not empowered to try European British subjects; but as European officers may be, and as a matter of fact always are, appointed to districts and sub-divisions where charges against Europeans are likely to be at all numerous, the inconvenience is slight. The Bill, moreover, does not propose to remove this. The argument that Native Civilians are, under the present law, shut out from the advanced districts into which European capital has been introduced, does not support the principle of the Bill. These districts are sought after by European officers on account of the society; but a native finds society wherever he goes, and it seems to me that no supposed benefit to the few native officers concerned would be sufficient grounds for a material alteration like this in the law.

I do not see what difficulty can arise from the fact of a Native District Magistrate being unable to try European British subjects. A District Magistrate is not, as a rule, a judicial officer: in fact it is my experience that he tries as few cases as he possibly can. The Joint or other European officer under him would be fully able to deal with all the charges against Europeans. It is said that there are many districts in which there is no Joint-Magistrate; but these are chiefly the backward districts in which there are no non-official Europeans or very few, and where there is small likelihood of European British subjects being charged with criminal offences.

With respect to Sessions Judges, the case is different, and I admit that some little inconvenience might be felt by seekers after justice if a large proportion of Sessions Judges were natives. As the law at present stands, some inconvenience is felt from the fact that a Sessions Judge's powers over European British subjects are limited to one year's imprisonment, and in serious cases the parties are put to the trouble and expense of going to the High Court. But charges of this kind against Europeans in the mofussil are, I believe, very rare, and hence the inconvenience is slight. I do not think that any serious additional inconvenience would be experienced if Native Sessions Judges remain excluded from jurisdiction over European British subjects, because—

First.—A Sessions Judge, who is himself an European British subject, could easily be appointed to districts where there are many Europeans.

Secondly.—The number of cases triable by a Court of Sessions, that is, which cannot be punished with three months' imprisonment, and which do not require a heavier penalty than one year's imprisonment, must necessarily be few. The vast majority of charges against Europeans are of trifling offences, which can be disposed of by a Justice of the Peace.

Thirdly.—Except in the Sudder Sub-division and the parts adjacent to it, it does not follow that the parties would be put to any greater trouble or expense in going to the next district than to the sudder station of their own district. The people of Kushtea think far less of going to Pubna than to Kishnaghur; the people of the Ranaghat would find it no hardship to go to Alipore; the people of Culna can more easily get to Kishnaghur than to Burdwan; and endless other instances might be given. Means of communication are easy now-a-days, at least in Bengal, and railways are being rapidly introduced into the backward parts, into Eastern Bengal and Assam. Facilities for locomotion will be considerably increased by the time that any large number of natives get to be Sessions Judges. Thus—

- (1). There is very little administrative inconvenience in the law as it at present stands.
- (2). The inconvenience is not likely to increase to any serious extent in the future so as to warrant a change in the law in the face of the strong feeling against it.

No doubt public feeling has been misled by the prevailing excitement. The general idea, so far as we can judge from its expression, seems to be that the new powers are to be conferred on all Native Magistrates, and not only on Native Civilians. But there is this much justification for the present agitation, that the Bill proposes to give these powers to the members of the Native Civil Service who are men of the same class, qualifications, and disqualifications as the native members of the Subordinate Services.

There seems to me an essential difference between the native members of the Covenanted and Statutory Civil Services. The former class have been to England, gone through a course of European training, and mixed more or less in European society in England and at the stations to which they have been posted out here; so that they may fairly be supposed to have thrown off native prejudices, and to have acquired some knowledge of the habits and customs of Europeans. But there is no guarantee that members of the Native Civil Service will be free from the influence of native feelings and prejudices, or will have anything in common with European thoughts and feelings, so that they would not be in a position to form a correct opinion of the conduct and actions of Europeans.

The principal classes of Europeans outside cantonments likely to be affected by the Bill, are (1) planters, (2) steamer captains, railway servants, &c., (3) loafers. Leaving out of consideration the last class, with whom a Native Magistrate would probably be far more lenient than an European, we find that planters and railway servants have unanimously expressed their disapproval of the Bill. And I agree with them in thinking that a Native Magistrate would be an unsafe judge of their actions. Native feeling is stronger against planters, who have generally some sort of dispute with neighbouring zemindars and ryots, and I think there is danger of a Native Magistrate with the very best intentions, but ignorant of the ways and habits of Europeans, being misled by the prevailing prejudice against them. As to railway servants, &c., they are a class with whom the educated native can have no possible community of feeling. A Native Magistrate with native habits and ideas would, I think, be hard put to fathom the thoughts and ways of the British guard or driver or skipper.

The other portions of the Bill need no comment. The above remarks apply to Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces. A Cantonment Magistrate would naturally always be an European British subject.

I am thus of opinion (1) that the Bill is unnecessary; (2) that if it is to become law its operation, so far as regards natives, should be limited to members of the Covenanted Civil Service only.

No. 105, dated 27th April 1883.

From—H. HOLMWOOD, Esq., C. S., Assistant Magistrate of Meherpore.
To—The Magistrate of Nuddea.

With reference to your No. 586J.G., dated 6th instant, I have the honour to report as follows.

2. I regard the proposed amendment in the Code of Criminal Procedure with alarm and distrust.

The various arguments against it have been so clearly enunciated by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Sir James Fitz-James Stephen, Sir Louis Jackson, Mr. Evans, Mr. Miller, and others, that it would be presumption in me to reiterate them in my own language. It is sufficient for me to state here that every European and many Natives in my sub-division fully agree with me that those arguments are unanswerable; and as I have seen no attempt to answer them anywhere, I conclude that is the general opinion.

3. With regard to the proposed change as it affects my own sub-division and personal experience, I have the honour to add as follows.

I have spoken with many of the European inhabitants of this district, who consist of clergymen of the Church Missionary Society and zemindars, and their opinion is unanimously against the Bill. The younger men among them are already seriously thinking of leaving this country and trying a new career in Canada or Australia. The older face the proposed change with steady and calm opposition, as likely to imperil the Empire and their own livelihood. The missionaries, after full consultation with the people, report that the general body of the public prefer a European to a Native Magistrate even in the trial of Natives, and that they regard this Bill, not as an act of justice to the Native members of the Civil Service, but as a personal blow at the status and privileges of an Englishman. My own experience bears this out. Not only have I received constant applications to try cases myself when they have been referred to Native Magistrates, but objections have, on several occasions, been made to the trial of cases by the Bench in which I personally preside.

These applications have been based on a fear of the miscarriage of justice, and I have uniformly rejected them as derogatory to the authority by which such benches were set up; but the existence of the feeling of mistrust among the people cannot be doubted.

With regard to administrative inconvenience none exists. There are numbers of available European officers, and Deputy Magistrates are excluded in the proposed change. This sub-division, too, has always been under the authority of a European Magistrate for political reasons, and it could never be safe to put it into the hands of a Native Magistrate, however honourable and upright. There is such an utter disregard for truth, and such power of combination to bring false cases in this sub-division, that the few Europeans in the place would be utterly unable to stand against a succession of such cases, unless the Magistrate was one who understood European motives and feelings intimately. I have been trained with some of the gentlemen who represent the Native Civil Service in India, as also with some of the unsuccessful candidates, and I can confidently state that they do not, and cannot, understand the moral standpoint of Europeans with regard to questions of insult, provocation, and the like, but above all with regard to women. I have seen a native gentleman of the Service bring a European female of inferior rank—in fact a shop-girl—into the English law courts when he came to report cases, and show surprise that his English companions objected to associate with her on terms of equality. A Bayswater lodging-house and an occasional visit to an English theatre or music hall is not the best school for studying the morality and social characteristics of Englishmen; and as to Englishwomen, it must be laid down once for all that with the exception of a certain class, they are as a sealed book to the young candidate visiting England from this country. I admit that Indian noblemen and orators visiting England are admitted superficially to good English society; but in my experience, the candidates for the Civil Service of India are invariably relegated to Bayswater lodging-houses, and see nothing but the worst side of London life. I have seen many native gentlemen, who have never been in England in their lives, much more capable of appreciating English character and entering into English views than the gentlemen who have gone to England merely to read for the Indian Civil Services.

It may without exaggeration be stated that where an English candidate works eight hours a day, a native will work 16, and those who have seen the indefatigable perseverance of the native candidates at their books—a perseverance which is absolutely necessary to their success, owing to the examination being carried on in a foreign tongue—will readily admit that they can have had little or no time to study English character and morality.

I have enlarged on this topic, because it has fallen within my own observation and experience.

The argument of the injustice done to the native members of the Service, as also that of administrative inconvenience, has been so thoroughly canvassed elsewhere that I do not further enlarge upon it, except to state that, in my opinion, the trial of a fellow-creature is a heavy responsibility and not a privilege, and that all those who seek it as a privilege show themselves, by that very act, incapable of judicial impartiality. Every prisoner has a right to the best Judge procurable, and it cannot be pretended that Native Civilians are as good judges of the motives of European actions as Europeans, and even were they as good judges, the fact that the European public object to their jurisdiction is enough to weaken their hands, bias their minds, and render them inferior to a court in which the prisoner has perfect confidence.

No. 313, dated 12th April 1883.

From—BABOO RAKHAL DAS MUKHERJI, Deputy Magistrate of Chooadanga,

To—The Magistrate of Nuddea.

With reference to your memorandum No. 586 J.G., dated the 6th instant, endorsed on the Government letter No. 1518 J. of the 27th ultimo, on the subject of the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects on the part of the Native Magistrates who are members of the Covenanted Civil Service, and of other officers, I have the honour to state that the principle of the Bill published by the Government of India appears to aim at the removal of the invidious distinction between the European and Native Magistrates, who are equally members of the Civil Service, as well as to remove the anomaly that, while natives are invested with highest judicial powers and functions, and admitted into the Covenanted Civil Service, they should still be held disqualified from being Justices of the Peace, or of exercising jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the presidency towns, where they at present exercise that jurisdiction. This principle is, no doubt, a laudable one; but I humbly submit whether all members of the Covenanted Civil Service, excepting, perhaps, one or two only, or the members of the Native Civil Service, constituted under the rules passed by the Government of India lately, would be competent enough to exercise jurisdiction over the Europeans in the interior, where too many cases would be instituted if once a door is opened for such institutions. The Indian Native Civil Servants are, as a body, all junior to many Deputy Magistrates in the line, and are less experienced also. If the latter are considered incompetent to try European British subjects, how much more force can be added to the argument that the former are necessarily incompetent to take up the trial. The subject, however, is a very large and important one, and it would be presumptuous on my part to offer any opinion or advance any argument or discussion on the principle of the Bill. This I must leave to far abler and superior hands.

With regard to the second question asked by the Government, I beg leave to state that no practical difficulty or administrative inconvenience whatever has arisen or been felt, or likely to be felt in the future, by not investing the native Magistrates with the powers in question. In the face of such large agitation against the Bill, which touches upon the long-existing privilege of European gentlemen of being tried by their own countrymen only, I see no reason whatever to pass the Bill into law, especially as, under its provisions, a very few persons only would be invested with the powers. This number of Magistrates would be so small, taking the whole interior outside the presidency town, that they would not be at all missed in the reckoning of magisterial officers for the trial of offenders. During my long service in the present line for nearly twenty-three years, I did not find a single case in any district, wherever I went, in which inconvenience or difficulty was experienced from paucity of competent Magistrates to try a European British subject. The matter may therefore be left alone for the present. There is no need whatever, in order to invest five or six officers only, throughout the Province of Bengal, with the necessary powers, to pass a law against the opposition of as many thousands, or even more.

No. 339, dated 19th April 1883.

From—BABU RAM CHURN BOSE, Sub-Divisional Officer, Ranaghat,
To—The Magistrate of Nuddea.

With reference to your memorandum No. 586 J.G., dated 6th instant, I beg to state for your information that, so far as regards the removal of an anomaly in the Code, the amendment proposed is desirable.

Gradually, as native covenanted officers rise in grades, and obtain charge of districts as Magistrates, administrative inconvenience is likely to arise.

I am unable to state as to whether or not the alteration proposed is presently expedient.

Note on the Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill by C. C. STEVENS, Esq., Offg. Magistrate, 24-Purganas, dated 30th April 1883.

The Government of India "has decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code at once, and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinctions."

At this somewhat advanced stage, the public are taken into the confidence of Government, and Government servants are consulted and invited to express their opinions. The subject to be dealt with would be difficult and delicate under any circumstances; it is especially so when the writer feels that he is not assisting in the formation of a judgment, but confirming or contending against a judgment already formed. Unfortunately I feel it my duty to take the latter part. I will give my reasons briefly, and I trust that, in nothing which I may say I shall be deemed to show any want of respect towards those above me, who are already committed to opinions differing from mine.

The Bill, prepared in accordance with the policy disclosed in the Statement of Objects and Reasons (from which I began by making a quotation), would level race distinctions in three ways—

First, it would confer a jurisdiction (not at this time possessed) over European British subjects upon selected natives who are—(a) members of the Covenanted Civil Service; (b) members of the Native Civil Service, constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3; (c)* Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces.

* I take no account of the fact that natives might, if the Bill were to pass into law, be eligible as Cantonment Magistrates to try British subjects; for it is obvious that only British officers should be made Cantonment Magistrates: nevertheless, it must be remembered that a Cantonment Magistrate is subordinate to the Magistrate of the district, who could always (whether he be a Native or a European) withdraw a case from his file, and place it on his own.

Secondly, it would confer that jurisdiction, as a matter of course, on all native Sessions Judges and District Magistrates.

Thirdly, it would deprive Government of the power which it now has of appointing as a Justice of the Peace any European British subject who either is not an official or is unofficial, but is not (a) a Covenanted Civil Servant,

(b) an Assistant Commissioner in a Non-Regulation Province, or (c) a Cantonment Magistrate.

On the first and second of these points, I think the alterations suggested are at least premature; and on the third point I regard the proposed changes as entirely wrong and unjustifiable.

It will, I trust, be needless for me to repudiate any sympathy with the harsh, not to say cruel, expressions of race feeling which have been uttered in the course of the public discussions. I consider them to be as impolitic as they are ungenerous. No one could serve for 20 years among the people engaged in attempting to administer justice or to improve their material condition, without feeling the strongest desire for the advancement of their race; but I maintain that these sentiments are perfectly compatible with due caution, and with respect to the interests and opinions of our own countrymen. It is idle to say that only those are true friends of the natives who will assert their fitness for complete political equality with Englishmen. It is neither right nor wise to endow them with qualities and capabilities which they do not possess, or to be blind to their defects—defects which arise in the main from causes which they cannot control.

It is worthy of note that the framers of the Bill have admitted in the clearest terms their opinion of the unfitness of native officers generally to try European British subjects; for they do not propose to confer jurisdiction on any uncovenanted native officer, however able, judicious, experienced and competent he may be. That there may be no race distinctions, the Government refuses to allow jurisdiction to European officers of a class which has hitherto had it; and private English gentlemen may not be made Justices of the Peace, because the Government cannot utilize native gentlemen in that manner! When I say that no native uncovenanted officer is to have jurisdiction, I refer to the Regulation Provinces; for according to the Bill, a man, unfit as a Deputy Magistrate to try Europeans in a Regulation District, is fit to try them as an Assistant Commissioner in a Non-Regulation District, where he is more likely to be thrown on his own resources, and less liable to be controlled by public opinion!

The Government, then, by excluding the great body of uncovenanted officers, has admitted the general unfitness of the natives for the powers to be conferred by the Bill; and it is, it seems to me, incumbent on the advocates of the measure to show that there are strong reasons for making the distinction in favour of particular classes: for this distinction will be the cause of severe jealousies and heart-burnings among the classes shut out, and the existence of such feelings as these will be an evil of no small magnitude, sufficient to outweigh, it may be, even considerable advantages.

It is now necessary to see why it is inexpedient to confer jurisdiction of the kind contemplated on the native officers generally. It is inexpedient, partly because they have not the necessary qualifications, and partly because they will not command the confidence of the class to be brought into their power. To do justice, something more than a wish to do justice is necessary; and it is cruelty to send an accused person, especially if he be innocent, to be tried by a court in which he has no faith. For a man to sit equitably in judgment over another, it is requisite that he shall be capable of understanding his motives and the springs of his action; he must be able to test the truth of evidence by his own knowledge of the customs and modes of thought of the class to which the accused belongs. Such knowledge is to be gained, not to any great extent from books, but by the habit of daily life. Now the natives of this country differ from us widely in religion, manners, tastes and sentiments, and especially in domestic life; as yet they have mixed with us so little that they are not able to comprehend and allow for those differences. I wish strongly to urge as a disqualification the ignorance of English domestic life, for it appears to me impossible that a person, not well informed in this respect, could do justice in a difficult case to an Englishman. It would be astonishing indeed if, notwithstanding these disadvantages, a native Magistrate should desire to undertake the trial of European cases! And, as a fact, I know very well that the Native Deputy Magistrates have at present no such desire.

The retort is obvious that, if this be true of natives trying Europeans, it is equally true of Europeans trying natives; and this retort is not without reason. I myself (and I am sure every other European Magistrate has had similar experience) has very frequently felt the enormous disadvantage of the want of a thorough knowledge of the manners and customs of the people, and I cannot confidently say that ignorance has never led me into injustice. Every European Magistrate must feel this; and I know that in practice an attempt is made to select native Magistrates for the trial of cases involving minute knowledge of native habits. But our case as regards natives is different from that of native Magistrates as regards Europeans. Say what we will, and disguise it as we may, the English are dominant in India; and though individual natives may rise to high positions by their talents and virtues, English officers must, for a long time to come, form the backbone of our administration; and however much we may now and then be at fault, through ignorance or even prejudice, the frequency with which English Magistrates are asked to take up cases themselves, or to refer them to their English subordinates, shows that the people on the whole have confidence in them.

That Europeans have not the same confidence in native officers as a class is due, partly to the defects in the latter, which I have pointed out, and partly to defects in the former themselves. If we, who spend our lives among the people and come into contact with them in so many ways, know but little of their manners and feelings, what can be expected of the unofficial Europeans generally, especially of those of the lower classes, such as are most likely to be affected by this Bill? Race feeling and race prejudices are much stronger among them than with us, and misunderstandings are far more likely to occur in their case than in ours. It is impossible to ignore these feelings and to legislate as if they had no existence.

There is another point which I think is not to be lost sight of, and that is that race feeling is by no means confined to the Europeans. Comparatively little, certainly not unreasonably much, of it exists among the old school of natives in Bengal; but it is impossible not to see that it is very openly, and sometimes offensively, displayed by the younger men. Whenever a case occurs in which a native is on one side and a European is on the other, this feeling appears to be aroused. I could without difficulty name many instances, but I will take one of the latest—the Patna case—in which a European officer was fiercely and unanimously assailed by writers of a certain class for doing his duty in the cause of law and order, which were defied by a contumacious native. The strongest language was used while the case was pending, and no means were left untried of inducing the Government to abandon the officer to the agitators. Had a native Magistrate been in charge of the district, and supported his subordinates, as it was his duty in this instance to do, no words would have been too strong to express the anger of his countrymen. I know, from my own experience, how painful an agitation of this kind can be to a European officer whose study it has been to be a friend of his people; but a European officer can resist such pressure. Is it likely to be so with a native? The pressure will be ten times harder for him, for he will be aware that, if his decision be in favour of the Englishman, he will be regarded as a traitor to his country, and will be told so in no measured language. I do not mean to say that I consider these agitators to be necessarily dishonest, but I do say that an impulsive spirit of partisanship is one extremely common in Bengal, and that until the leaders of native thought show themselves less imbued with it, and more sober and just, they are not the people to have jurisdiction over the lives and liberties of their alien conquerors.

Whether these are the reasons which have led the Government to abstain from giving the jurisdiction to the great body of the native Magistrates, I do not know; they seem to me to be cogent enough to justify the policy.

And now I come to the exceptional classes provided for by the Bill. I have already pointed out that there is even less reason for giving the powers to Assistant Commissioners than to Deputy Magistrates. There remain the ordinary covenanted civilians and the statutory civilians. I cannot imagine what real distinction in their favour there is between these latter gentlemen and the Deputy Magistrates, except in name and in the opportunities which even the worst of them will have of rising to higher rank. Unlike the covenanted officers, these men have made no sacrifices, have displayed no energy, have had no opportunity of studying English life and manners, and there is not the slightest guarantee even of their intellectual ability. I have had some means of forming an estimate, for I have had as my assistants two of the covenanted officers and an equal number of the statutory civilians. I do not wish to go out of my way to write harshly of the latter; I will only say that they are not, and never will, or can be comparable to the former. I look upon the appointment of these statutory civilians as a deliberate sacrifice of efficiency to the policy of ensuring that a certain number of natives shall hold appointments in the Civil Service. While I gladly welcome to the Service those natives who have struggled for their appointments, and have gained them by merit, I do not think that the responsibility of governing large tracts of country in accordance with English ideas should ever be made over to men whose only notions of those ideas are to be gathered from a superficial acquaintance with books, and from the very slight social intercourse with Englishmen which is available to them here.

I do not wish to disparage these men needlessly; but I do not hesitate to say that they will not, with rare exceptions, command the respect of their subordinates, whether covenanted or uncovenanted, native or European. If this be so, what confidence can we expect the unofficial European community to have in them? So far as fitness to have jurisdiction over Europeans is concerned, I regard them as less fit, rather than as more fit, than the Deputy Magistrates. In no respect better, they are likely to be worse in one important particular. Educated under unfavourable influences, without knowledge or experience of the world, not subjected to that wholesome discipline which an English school-boy receives from his fellows as well as from his masters, the young man of good family finds himself suddenly raised to the rank of an Indian civilian. If arrogance be sometimes laid to the charge of those who have enjoyed the advantage of a better training, what is to be expected of the statutory civilian? It would be scarcely in human nature that he should not be inflated with a sense of his own importance and dignity; and this, I think, will be admitted to be a very unsuitable frame of mind for a native officer engaged in the peculiarly delicate task of investigating a difficult case against a European, perhaps ignorant and prejudiced, and possessed in a high degree of the pride of race! A grave scandal would be certain in such a case.

It may be said that I am now arguing against the statutory service rather than against the Bill; I am arguing against both, and I have no hesitation in saying that, if it is thought necessary that all native civilians shall be eligible to try Europeans, the system under which native civilians are appointed and trained in this country ought to be abolished, or greatly modified.

I now come to the case of the covenanted officers appointed in the ordinary way. They stand on a very different footing from the class just dealt with. They have shown energy and enterprise; they have proved their ability and attainments; they are men who would, if they had never left this country, in all probability have attained positions of power and influence; they have spent some three or four years in England; they have mixed in English society, and have measured their strength against that of young Englishmen of their own age. It must be their own fault if they have not acquired some insight into the motives and character of Englishmen, and if their experiences have not increased the breadth of their views of life. So far as these men are personally concerned, I should not object to give them some jurisdiction over Europeans, at any rate by the time they became Judges or District Magistrates; but there are considerations which, in my judgment, ought to make the Legislature hesitate in conferring it.

In the first place, I consider that the present state of feeling among that class of educated natives which controls the press is such that it is not desirable now to extend the jurisdiction of any native over Europeans. I have already alluded to the wild and passionate spirit of partisanship—a marked characteristic of the ordinary Bengali. It leads to "dola doli" in almost every village in Bengal, and is now being applied to politics. The very notion of fair play is unknown; the party man is perhaps not consciously unjust, but it seems not to occur to him that his opponent is entitled to justice. A native gentleman, who is inclined to be fair and moderate, does not like to expose himself to the torrents of abuse which would be poured on him in the event of his taking the unpopular side. I will give a single example:—It will be remembered that, immediately after the European meeting at the Town Hall to discuss this Bill, a brief memorial was submitted, urging the Viceroy to proceed with it. This memorial was signed by a few representative men, and, among other statements made in it, was one to the effect that it was quite a mistake to suppose that the natives do not care about the Bill. I had some little conversation on the subject with one of these representative gentlemen, and he assured me that this was not a mistake, and that few natives really do care about the Bill. I have not the least doubt that this gentleman was imparting his real opinions to me, for the Bill could not but be distasteful to him personally; and I believe that, holding these opinions, he attached his signature to the memorial simply because he could not face the invectives which would be hurled at his head by the indiscriminating patriots of the press. I do not think it would be right to expose our native covenanted civilians to risks of this sort. In any case of interest between a native and a European, the native Magistrate or Judge would be in a position of great difficulty. If he decided for the native, unless the case were very clear, his impartiality would be suspected by the European; if he decided for the European, he would be execrated and burned in effigy by his more patriotic countrymen.

Probably some modification of this state of things may be looked for in course of time, and I think I may say that, in one newspaper at least, I have observed a growing disposition to be moderate and fair; but until the educated classes generally can learn self-restraint, I would not give any native in the mofussil criminal jurisdiction over Europeans.

The next point is, that I doubt whether even the covenanted civilians would generally command the confidence of Europeans. They would probably deserve it to a greater extent than they would have it, but this would not alter the fact. The prejudices of natives are regarded, and allowance is made for them whenever it is possible to do so; why should nothing be yielded to the prejudices of Europeans? I need go no further into this consideration, but I think it entitled to great weight.

A third difficulty is, that to make a distinction between the covenanted civilian and the statutory civilian, or the Uncovenanted Deputy Magistrate, would probably lead to much heart-burning and jealousy. So long as the present broad distinction, founded on obvious and, as I think, sound reasons, is maintained between officers who are European British subjects and those who are not, there is no ground for this unpleasant feeling. The native covenanted officer may feel it an anomaly that he has not the powers, in this one respect, which are wielded by his European comrade; but the Deputy Magistrate (perhaps a grey-headed officer who, by distinguished service, has raised himself to be a Member of the Legislative Council) has not the mortification of seeing powers denied to him, but given to the young Magistrate in the covenanted service, or to the statutory civilian, his inferior, perhaps, in every useful quality.

For these reasons, I think it better not to change the law even in favour of the covenanted officers. But I cannot see that there is any reason why those officers should consider themselves aggrieved. It is not a privilege of the Judge that he has power to try prisoners, but it is a right of the prisoner to be tried by a court in which he has confidence. In the case of jurymen, this principle is acknowledged in the right of challenge. But besides, as Mr. Carstairs points out in the note which I am submitting with this, the position of a native District Magistrate or Judge implies great power and influence over his fellow-countrymen. A District Magistrate and his large executive powers are necessary, because they enable a large tract of country to be governed by a comparatively small number of officers. No Englishman in England, or in any of the colonies, has equal power over an equal number of Englishmen.

It now remains to consider one of the main arguments which have been brought forward in support of the Bill, namely, that it will have the effect of preventing administrative inconvenience. It must be remembered at the outset that the classes of officers to whom it is proposed to give jurisdiction over European British subjects have it now in all cases in which the European British subjects do not claim their privilege, and the cases in which it is waived are not a few. It is better sometimes to be set at liberty at once than to appeal to Cæsar. In cases of minor importance, obviously it is to the interest of the accused rather to run the risk of a small, or even moderate fine, than to incur the court expense and annoyance of being tried in some distant place; and if the courts of native Magistrates gain in the estimation of European British subjects, the more frequently will European British subjects be content to be tried by them. The more fit the courts are to exercise this jurisdiction, the less practical inconvenience will result from not formally bestowing it on them. If the native courts show themselves just and fair and competent, the privilege of a British subject will be simply a check on them, to be exercised only on extraordinary occasions. Up to this time no case has ever arisen within my experience, in which inconvenience has arisen from the working of the present law. Probably some cases of slight inconvenience have actually occurred—possibly in number one-fifth-hundredth part of the cases in which inconvenience has arisen from second class Magistrates being in charge of sub-divisions.

And now let us take another view of the Bill as it affects the convenience of the administration.

In the early part of this note I showed that the equality of race, which is the aim of the * Note.—I am taking into account only the Justices of the Peace of Bengal, Behar, and, Orissa who are resident in the mofussil. If we also have regard to the list of Justices of the Peace stationed in Calcutta or on furlough, or employed under other Governments, we shall find 67 more gentlemen now Justices of the Peace, who could not be made so if this Bill becomes law. In the case of those, however, who are under other Governments, obviously no present inconvenience would result in Bengal, and officers stationed in Calcutta could be made Magistrates for Calcutta only; but those who are on furlough are of course available to Government.

Bill, is to be affected, not only by giving jurisdiction to natives, which they have not now, but also by taking away from Government the power of conferring jurisdiction on Europeans of classes which now possess it. On an examination of the Bengal Civil List for April, I find* 23 European Deputy Magistrates, and 14 other European gentlemen, neither Deputy Magistrates nor covenanted civilians, exercising the powers of a Justice of the Peace in the mofussil. Perfect equality will not be attained till these 37 gentlemen die out or retire, for their powers are reserved by the Bill. But still it is worthy of note that, under the present law, the Government commands the services of 37 Justices of the Peace of European race, who, under the proposed law, could never have been invested with the necessary powers. Can it be said, then, that the gain in administrative convenience, on which stress is laid by so many advocates of the Bill, is so marked as they appear to believe it?

Upon the whole, I think that the Bill should not pass; the want of it has not been felt by the Government or by the people at large; far from adding to the resources of Government, it in truth seriously diminishes them; it is an assertion of an equality and a similarity which have no existence as yet; it does good to no one, while it has done infinite harm by forcing the two races into an injurious contest.

But it is said that, even granting that the introduction of the Bill was an error, it would be wrong now to abandon it, as this would be a concession to clamour. I can see no force in this argument. It seems to come to this—that, had the measure been less open to objection, less decidedly obnoxious to the community affected, than it is, the Legislature might have abstained from passing it; but since it has roused that community to a high state of excitement and indignation, it must now be maintained with obstinate perseverance. A strong Government is not to be just and wise, because it is afraid of being thought weak! I do not sympathize with the violent and resentful phrases which have been used in the course of the discussion; but I do think that they afford no reason for ignoring the powerful feelings which have given rise to their use.

It has been said by the head of the Government that this measure is to be final. No one presumes to question the absolute sincerity of this assertion; but I cannot avoid the belief that the Europeans, as well as the natives, are right in thinking that the Legislature can never stop here. If the Bill pass, the next step must be to extend to Deputy Magistrates the jurisdiction now proposed to be given to statutory civilians, and there are other distinctions in the Procedure Code which will certainly be attacked. The more advanced native politicians openly accept this as a “small instalment of their rights”—“a step in the right direction.” It is because of the universal disbelief in the finality of the measure that the European community is so deeply moved.

Friends as well as opponents of the Bill point to the small immediate practical effect which it will have if it become law.

The former are astonished at the vehemence with which the harmless proposal to soothe the feelings of a few officers is met; the latter say: “If this be all your purpose, why should you disturb the whole country to attain an advantage so trifling?” But they see and know that the principle which the Bill is designed to illustrate is of far wider application, and they believe that the Government, in accepting it as their supreme guide, are entering on a policy which is dangerous because it is premature.

I have not thought it necessary to call for expressions of opinion. I have, however, had some conversation with not a few gentlemen, both European and native, my subordinates and others. The Europeans, official and unofficial, are unanimously opposed to the Bill; I have not heard a single voice in its favour. Some of the natives would wish to see it passed, but several gentlemen of experience and authority have informed me that they have no such desire. Naturally they are not disposed to attach much weight to the argument that native officers are unfit to try Europeans; but they think that the measure has been introduced somewhat too soon, and that the good which it is likely to accomplish is small in comparison with the great mischief occasioned by the fierce and angry discussions to which it has given rise.

Though I have not called for opinions, Mr. Carstairs, the late Joint-Magistrate, in anticipation of such a call, recorded a note, which he left with me on his departure on furlough, and at his request I now submit it. There are points in it deserving consideration.

---

Note on the proposed amendment of the Criminal Procedure Act by R. CARSTAIRS, Esq., Officiating Joint-Magistrate, Alipur, dated the 31st March 1883.

Being about to proceed on furlough, and understanding that the opinions of officials are to be called for on this subject, I leave the following notes.

2. Before entering into the merits of the Bill, I will shortly discuss the question—"To what is it likely to lead?"

3. When this Government goes away, as it will within a year or two, its successors will not be bound by its pledges. A question re-opened once may be re-opened again. The scope of the Bill is, for administrative convenience, to give certain courts, not now possessing it, power to try European British subjects. The only qualification for this power is to be personal fitness, the additional qualification now existing, that the person trying should himself be a European British subject, being removed. To confer the power is to declare personal fitness; to withhold it will therefore be a sentence of unfitness, or a slur.

4. It is a slur upon Mr. Behari Lal Gupta that he has not this power (out of Calcutta), while I have it. When he gets it, the slur will be passed on to Nawab Abdul Latif. If he gets it, some one almost as good will feel the slur. Wherever the line reaches, there will be a pressure to pass it on the part of those next below it, and no good reason for stopping short of any particular person. Men begin to covet honours within their reach; much more wish to escape a slur if it is possible. Administrative convenience will demand extension of the power. Personal feelings of the disqualified will also demand it. I see no stopping place short of all courts.

5. To proceed to the merits, the first question is "Should Europeans be put in the power of any but Europeans?"

Our position in this country; the claims of each of us, even the meanest, as a member of a free nation; and the importance of keeping up our prestige, surely in themselves ought to settle the question. But apart from that, there are the following considerations:—Inside the few square miles that constitute our presidency towns, the young European, on arrival, finds advisers, society, public opinion, courts, counsel, witnesses, and friends at his door. The natives he sees have abundant evidence of our power in soldiers, cannon, ships, wealth, intellect, daily before their eyes. Public opinion is master.

6. But take the mofussil. The young Europeans who come out as mechanics, drivers and guards, assistants in tea-gardens and indigo factories, traders and agents, year by year, are scattered over the country, not knowing the country, and not understanding; intolerant of native customs and thoughts, for there is much to get accustomed to; home-sick, inexperienced, unused to the climate, consequential as fresh arrivals generally are. Is it fair to leave such a man in lonely places, without money, friends, or advisers, to be brought up in custody of a native policeman before a Native Magistrate, in presence of a native crowd, to be deposed against by native witnesses? A man can stand up against anything so positive as hatred or treachery, and a sensation can be got up about these, but there are the half-smiles, possibly real pity, imperceptible sneers, shoulder-shrugging. He half understands, and not half understood, seeing insults even where none are meant, as can well be seen, very easily be exasperated beyond bearing. His opponents would draw him on to insult the court. He would be only too ready to fall into the trap. It would be a very refined, subtle and intense form of the noble game of Bull-baiting. The presence of a European presiding in the court has no doubt prevented much of this—both the baiting and the irritation under it. How long would it take to get over the consequences of one desperate act, attributed rightly or wrongly, to the absence of a European on the Bench? Europeans will no more become accustomed to being tried by natives than eels to getting skinned, for it will always be a new experience to one who has not gone through the process. Even a certificate of fitness given by Government will not extort awe towards the court from the European, and no one will deny the very serious risk of ugly scenes. No one can calculate the effect of even one such scene.

7. The next question is—"Are our courts fit?"

In England, as in all countries, there was at first a struggle for power. It ended in that great combination of all the powers, the British public, which made our laws. They are, in fact, the public will expressed, and are enforced by the British public itself, not only through its officers, but directly by its own influence.

In India there was also the struggle for power, but here the local will was suppressed by the imposition of a greater power, viz., the British Government. The use to which power is put in all barbarous countries is to spoil. In this country open loot was suppressed, and the appetite for plunder had to be satisfied by intrigue. Intrigue guides forces, and so intrigue was brought to bear on that greatest of all forces in this country, the British Government. The Government has made over most of its power to be wielded by the law courts. So on the law courts a strong current of intrigue has been turned. Its weapons are perjury and forgery; and with these every one among the natives arms himself as naturally as men of old in our country did with sword and buckler. Men too good to lie themselves will often freely employ others to lie for them. Perjury is so common that it can seldom be punished. That is, there is no material with which to prove it perjury. It appears then, to say the least of it, that our courts, unaided by public opinion, which is the strongest bulwark of justice in England, and being made in a barbarous country the arena of struggles which naturally would be fought out on the field, are in a very different position from the courts in England.

8. It is not necessary to preach the harsh doctrine that natives of this country are so very wicked, and will never be any better. They are still in the barbarous stage when plunder is considered more honourable than worth, and it is to be hoped they will get past it. Intrigue, and not violence, marks that stage. Of the artificial nature of our advanced laws and procedure in this country, no stronger proof can be found than the jealousy with which Government reserves all real power for its own paid servants, desiring at least to preserve some guarantee for the purity of those who administer justice. It is as much as to say that no native can be trusted to administer justice even to natives, unless it is made worth his while, and unless he is removed from all the temptations which beset a man not severed from all local interests. Europeans might well say that they distrust the classes from whom native officers are drawn, and do not believe in the purging effects of office. Dangers from perjury, forgery and intrigue are serious enough already. Natives did not make our laws; our courts are not a device of natives. Our rules of evidence do not commend themselves to natives. Natives generally, of however great wealth and high position, are not allowed to administer our laws to natives. Our courts are not scattered over the country, within easy reach of every one, but are rather like garrisons of justice in a hostile country, and they have been set up, maintained and strengthened by Europeans. This it is that has gained them the confidence of European British subjects.

9. The court presided over by a native, foreign to the laws and those who made them, will not be the same thing to the Europeans; and the sensitiveness of the presiding officer will not get rid of their distrust. They will, right or wrong, feel it necessary to resort to corruption, (not necessarily of the officer himself), to perjury and forgery. Some will leave the country, some will be ruined, and some will be like an energetic native of whom I heard it said: "He is crooked, because they will not allow him to be straight." It is in the interest of no one more than of the natives themselves and the Government that Europeans should be kept out of the intrigues around them; for when a European turns blackguard, he is a big blackguard. It would be a bad thing to drive out men of high character, and to substitute for them adventurers with none. When, on behalf of myself, my family and friends, I protest against the proposed change as being likely to promote this undesirable end, I do not think that I shall lose the confidence of my native friends. They at least understand.

10. I come now to a very delicate question, that of the fitness of natives for the powers. It has been pretty well shown that Europeans have not the same confidence in natives as they have in their own countrymen; and before this is put down to petulance, it would be well to see whether there are no solid reasons for the distrust. In my opinion solid reasons exist. In the following remarks I intend to speak of Bengalis only whom I know. I will also speak of them as a whole and not as individuals. If the bulk can be judged by the sample, much more surely can the sample be judged by the bulk.

12. The first objection is the difference of religion. Our law undoubtedly owes to the Christian religion the following fundamental principles:—

- (1) Brotherhood of man.
- (2) Absolute standard of right and wrong.
- (3) Humility and openness to reason.
- (4) Protection for the weak.

The law was made by our ancestors. Rightly or wrongly, Europeans in this country believe that there is more chance of the spirit of our law existing in the descendants, brothers and sons of those who made and maintain it, than in the descendants, brothers and sons of those who have never been able to imagine such laws, and do not even to the present time show that their minds have been taken hold of by these laws. Legality without righteousness is the body without the soul, and that is what Europeans fear they will get.

13. The next objection is the constitutional timidity of the race which is to furnish these new rulers. The Bengalis, as a race, cannot stand up without being protected even against one another. We Europeans are their chief guardians, and they supplement us by means of up-country durwans. They are strong upon the stronger side; but we have no faith in their steadfastness in a time of utter need. We cannot trust them to help us when, in a time of utter need, we have no one else to depend on. Now that time may come to any European man or woman at any time. Not so much treachery as just weakness is to be feared. I do not say all Europeans are strong and all Bengalis weak; but here are we their masters, and we are so because we are stronger. Do Bengalis try to make a reputation for courage by daring deeds? It is a jest against them that they shun "dangerous departments." Sola is not teak. It is no slur on sola to say it has not all the qualities of teak.

14. The third objection is that they are not trusted by one another. Some of them have blamed severely a few reckless epithets applied to them in the heat of oratory. With those epithets I have no sympathy, but the worst of them is not nearly so bad as natives of respectable position are frequently found to use against other respectable natives. All that they say may not be true, but where there is smoke there is fire. It is not to be wondered at if Europeans take natives at their own estimate. If their statements are all false, what is to be thought of the respectable natives that make them?

15. The fourth objection is that the European Magistrate can perform extra-judicial functions, which a native cannot. He keeps up a healthy tone in European opinion, which, and not the terror of the law, is the chief check at present on European crime. He can also bring direct influence to bear on his young, lonely and inexperienced countrymen, by giving them timely cautions, and making them feel they are watched by a friendly eye. It would be a poor exchange to substitute fear for free obedience in dealing with Europeans, and I am not at all sure that it would be found to work. I have had practical experience of the two methods.

16. It is obviously advisable to go as little as possible into this delicate question of race qualification. I think I have said enough.

17. I have carefully avoided, in all I have said, any allusion to the subject of official qualifications for posts under Government. That question is not directly involved. But in case it be attempted, as it has been, to stop my mouth and cut away the ground from under me, by saying that if natives are fit to be District Magistrates they are fit to try Europeans—if I am forced to admit them fit for both or unfit for both,—then I deny that they are fit for either. Giving a native power to try Europeans is not to make him fit, and, if he is not fit, would be to increase, and not diminish, the number of anomalies.

18. The position that no native is fit to be a District Magistrate can be maintained without casting any slur on individuals. The very essence of the system under which the District Magistrate exists is that it is worked by foreigners. No Englishman in England would be allowed over his countrymen such power as the District Magistrate possesses over natives in this country. It is not an invidious thing to say that no native should thus be put on the neck of millions of his countrymen. It would be invidious to his countrymen to say that he should. Considering the race from which they spring, to put natives in this position would be what the poet call as "delivering the tasks of might to weakness."

19. What, then, it may be asked, becomes of the Queen's Proclamation? How are natives to be advanced? I would very humbly submit that the true way of complying with the spirit of this Proclamation is not to pick out a native here and there, thrust him into a position which is only possible so long as he is cut off from all local ties and interests, and turn in the wrong direction—an impossible direction for all but a very few—the ambition and strivings of his neighbours. The true way of answering the Proclamation is by developing schemes of Local Self-Government, by which all the people may be drawn onwards together, and organized under their own leaders for their own work. Surely, if in free England public ambition is satisfied with a seat in a Town Council, a seat on a School Board or District Road Board, or, at the very most (leaving out legislative honours), on a country Board, it is putting mad dreams into the heads of natives to suffer them to look on as their rights such posts as would be equivalent to that of Governor of half of Scotland, or over a third of Ireland. But in speaking of Local Self-Government schemes, I must be permitted to say that there is equal danger, in these, of a few being detached from impatience of slow progress, and advanced prematurely.

20. In my anxiety to avoid all personal criticism, I have passed over one point which has been raised, viz., that natives who have been to England, at least, must understand the English thoroughly. As to that, I would only submit the following considerations:—

- (a).—The native goes to England after his boyhood is over.
- (b).—Stays for two or three years only.
- (c).—Leaves it while still a youth.
- (d).—Spends his time there in hard study.
- (e).—Probably meets with reserve in society, as an Englishman does here.
- (f).—Europeans come out here in early manhood and settle for life.
- (g).—There work and their duty is to learn the people and their ways.
- (h).—Yet native writers and orators say they do not understand the natives.

I am not inclined to admit in our native fellow-subjects greater insight into character, anxiety to learn, or candour, than are in ourselves. If natives are to be suffered with applause to deny our knowledge of natives, then we are quite justified in saying that they know nothing about Europeans, or at most have that "little knowledge" which is a "dangerous thing."

21. A word about the practical difficulties and I have done. Europeans have every interest in waiving their rights whenever there is no strong reason for claiming them. As a matter of fact, they often do waive their right. If there is any doubt about the legality of this it should be removed.

In many other cases it would be little more inconvenience to send the parties to the nearest European officer, than, as must now be done in every case, European or native, to some centre which may be distant from their homes. Where the British Government has ventured to leave so enormous a tract, as is implied in such inconvenience being very great, without a British officer, then in case of need, such an officer might be specially deputed to try the case. The cost and inconvenience would not be nearly so great as the Abyssinian Expedition, which is understood to have been undertaken in much the same interests. The individual European does not care for general principles, but looks at how they touch himself, and we have a prejudice that no one can look after a Briton so well as a Briton—certainly not a Bengali, who, we cannot but feel, is resting on our shoulders. There are plenty of Bengalis for them to look after.

No. 674 J. D., dated 21st May 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Secretary to Government of Bengal,
To—The Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter No. 651 J. D., dated the 18th instant, I am directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, copy of a letter*
* No. 11A, dated the 10th May 1883, and enclosure. from the Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, reporting on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

No. 11Ct., dated 10th May 1883.

From—E. E. LOWIS, Esq., Commissioner of the Chittagong Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

With reference to your letter No. 1518J., dated 27th March last, I have the honour to submit the following report on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure. I have obtained the written opinions of some officials; those of others addressed have not reached me. I have also been at some pains to ascertain the sentiments of the non-official natives in Chittagong; and I may add that, with but slight exception, I cannot discover the existence of any sympathy with the principles of the Bill, or any favourable feelings regarding it. The feeling of the Mahomedans is certainly adverse to the Bill, and the sentiments of those with whom I have conversed on the subject coincide very much with those expressed by Moulvie Delawar Hossein, B.A., Deputy Magistrate, in charge of the Brahmanbaria sub-division, a copy of whose letter I enclose.

2. The principle of the amendment is that it is expedient to do away with the old privilege enjoyed by Europeans of being tried by men of their own nation, and in place of that to substitute trial by natives. This is not indeed avowed as either an object or reason for the introduction of this measure; but this is in fact what it tends to, for it would be in the highest degree anomalous to entrust the duty of trying Europeans to a certain class of natives, to the exclusion of others; for I hold that the residence for a year or two in England cannot, and does not, undo the teaching of early years, or alter in any way the character which has been formed during the first 18 or 20 years of a man's existence. As a Mahomedan of the old school once remarked to me, knowledge of English does not make any one a hakim; and I feel, and the feeling is shared, I know, by others, that there is many a Deputy Magistrate of the old school, unacquainted with English, by whom I would rather be tried, if need were, than by one brought up in sympathy with the class, who support by their writings, and find an exponent of their views in the columns of the vernacular press of Bengal, with whom it is a point of honour to traduce and vilify any European, simply because he is a European.

3. Trial by their own countrymen has always by Europeans been considered in this country not only a privilege, but as a positive safeguard against false charges; and as an accused has within certain limits a right to elect by whom he is to be tried, this privilege, which has been enjoyed in some shape by every Englishman from the time of King John, is not one to be lightly set aside, and is a matter in which the persons most concerned have a right to be heard.

4. I am far from saying that trial by their own countrymen is a privilege which must be secured to Europeans at all risks; but I do hold that the right is one not to be set aside except for good and substantial reasons; it is not to be interfered with on mere theoretical grounds; and practically I fail to see any reason for the proposed change. The people at large do not in any way consider it a grievance that hakims should be tried by hakims; in their view this is only right and proper. Even amongst the more advanced of the educated natives such a proposal was never broached until this unhappy discussion raised it into a party-cry; and certainly among Europeans, though the right was not often very rigidly insisted on, there was certainly no cry for a change.

5. Even on grounds of administrative inconvenience change could not be urged as necessary, looking to the small number of covenanted civilians who can, in the course of the next ten or twelve years, become Magistrates or Judges.

It is very rarely that a case occurs which necessitates the trial of a European by the District Judge. Almost all cases are triable by Magistrates or the High Court. In such cases no difficulty could arise, for in all districts where Europeans are to be found, there is, besides the Magistrate of the district, a Joint-Magistrate, or first class covenanted assistant, and both could not be natives; while, as to cases triable by the Sessions Judge, they are extremely rare, and the contingency of such a case arising in a district where there is only a native Judge is so remote that it is hardly worth considering.

6. The above are some of the reasons why the Bill need not have been introduced; but there are also positive objections to it, first and foremost of which is the strong feeling against it which has been manifested by the Europeans themselves. Those who are most interested in the matter, who from actual experience, and not on mere theoretical grounds, are convinced of the necessity for the retention of the privilege, must surely be entitled to some voice in the matter; and the universal and remarkable unanimity of European opinion on this subject cannot be lightly set aside as mere moonshine. Another objection is that a native is often not so competent to try a case as a European, simply because he has not made himself acquainted with the ways of thought or manner of life of the accused, and therefore cannot be a fair judge of his motives or springs of action.

7. In this connection I quote what the Magistrate of Chittagong says in his report—

“The changes proposed in the Bill would in practice chiefly affect cases in which sailors and soldiers are concerned. These and the railway servants and the other members of the lower classes of British race who are occasionally found in this country, furnish nearly the whole of the cases which arise or are likely to arise. European residents generally are very rarely under trial. In Chittagong there are a good many cases amongst the sailors. If the time should come when there will be no European Magistrate in the district to try these cases, then an administrative difficulty would arise; but I do not think the native covenanted officers would in any way be fitted to try such cases properly. This is not in the least for want of competence, but because it is difficult even for an educated Englishman, very often, to make himself understood or to understand these rough and humorous persons. I have had an English-speaking Bengali pleader conducting such a case, and I am very certain that he did not understand, from beginning to end, what it was about, what the witnesses meant, nor what connection the defence had with the question asked. It is no slur on a native officer that an English University education has still not opened to him all the depths of English thought. The cases against Europeans which arise in practice always require a little experience of a practical kind—high education and mental qualifications are of no use in comparison. A Deputy Magistrate, European or Native, who had served for a year or two as a sailor or as a soldier himself, would always be infinitely more capable of doing justice on British subjects in practice than the highest and best European Covenanted Civilian who had no such experience.

“An administrative difficulty arose once. Mr. H. W. Barber, a Eurasian officer of long experience as a Magistrate and nominally qualified as a Justice of the Peace, had to decide a case. He lengthened the proceedings by simple inability to understand them, until the crew of the ship were in a state of little else than mutiny. The Master, who could get nothing done, committed suicide, and the owners had very considerable difficulty in getting the ship away.

“Sir Ashley Eden passed an order in this case that the District Magistrate must always try these cases in future in absence of a competent Joint-Magistrate. It would be no sign of incompetence for a Bengali officer to get into the same difficulties as Mr. Barber got into. This I mention as an illustration. My argument is that the trial of European British subjects is quite special work, and difficulties must arise in performing it if the Magistrate has not personal knowledge of special kind.”

8. To my mind another objection to passing the Bill is the cry that has been raised in the native press in favour of it. The privilege of trying Europeans, so eagerly sought and emphatically demanded, does not carry with it any emolument or gain in any shape, and no good reason why this privilege should be prized has been given. The clamour raised, therefore, seems to me significant; it may be the result of mere vanity, but to foster that feeling seems at the present day hardly necessary.

9. I have given thus briefly the most prominent objection to a Bill in favour of which there seems to be nothing practical or tangible; but I cannot conclude without expressing my regret that an occasion for the discussion of this subject should ever have arisen at all, for it has roused a very bitter race spirit, and re-opened a sore which, ever since the Mutiny, has been gradually healing over. This spirit is plainly enough visible in the newspapers, native and European, and is not confined to public writing, for I have lately in private heard more ill-feeling expressed by Europeans against natives than I remember to have heard since 1857-58. That an opportunity should have been afforded to raise this discussion was unfortunate; but still more so, that the wordy strife should rage for the next four or five months, embittering feelings in some cases already bitter enough; every succeeding week only widening the breach and rendering future amicable relations between the two races less possible.

10. That the European section have been sincere in their objection from the first is evident, while the contrary view has been adopted by the Vernacular Press, I would hope rather through a spirit of opposition, than from any real desire to gain for natives the privilege and pleasure of trying Europeans. Be that as it may, the question has now become a party one, and whether the Bill be passed or not, dissatisfaction must be created.

•

No. 104, dated

April 1883.

From—MOULVI DULAWAR HOSAIN AHAMED, Deputy Magistrate of Brahmanberia,
To—The Magistrate of Tipperah.

With reference to your memorandum No. 806, dated the 19th instant, I have the honour to report.

1. I have been asked to give my opinion on two points—as regards the principle of the Bill and as regards any administrative inconvenience which might occur if it were not passed.

2. I suppose Europeans will continue to form the majority of the Covenanted and to form a part of the Uncovenanted Service, and therefore, in reference to the second point, I do not think any administrative inconvenience will occur, such as to make it necessary that the Jurisdiction Bill should be passed at the present time.

3. In reference to the principle of the Bill, the Statement of Objects and Reasons says that the Bill has been brought forward to remove an anomaly. In the first place, it seeks to remove the anomaly by depriving those Europeans who belong to the Uncovenanted Service of a power which they have had, thus creating an invidious distinction, and putting a stigma which they do not deserve. A direct lowering of the ruling race is certain to be followed by a lower estimation of their strength by the ruled races, and therefore the Bill would in the future be injurious both to the ruled and the ruling races in India.

4. The second question is whether the removal of the anomaly complained of will not give rise to a greater anomaly. The distinction between an Indian and a European is a broad and well-marked one; it is a distinction based on colour, dress, language, religion, political position, domestic customs, and social manners. But in removing the distinction between European and native civilians an invidious distinction will be created between two Indians. I do not think so much of a three years' residence in England as to believe it enables a man to become morally or even intellectually superior to him whose education and training are otherwise the same. I think the attempt to remove one anomaly will create another which, being less defensible, would be more pointed.

5. I do not wish to give any opinion in regard to the confidence possessed by the native professional classes; but I know that the Muhammadans of Calcutta (if no other classes) prefer to engage the services of European attorneys and solicitors to conduct their law business.

6. The next question is whether the time has arrived. Though the tendency of civilization is to remove anomalies, everything must have its proper time. I do not think the time has arrived to remove the anomaly complained of. It is no sense of right or morality, but the strength of the British Government, which keeps the various nations of India from flying at each other's throats. Now, what is it that gives this strength? It is certainly not the few soldiers, whose united numbers are no more than a drop in the ocean. It is the national prestige of the English race which is the strength of the Government of India, and which prevents internecine bloodshed among the various races.

7. This prestige must be maintained not only to preserve order and security, but also to enable the various peoples of India to approach each other in character and habits, and thus to become fused into a united whole. I have no doubt that the prestige of the English Government will be weakened if Europeans should be tried by native Magistrates and Judges.

8. It has become the fashion in these days to parade the cry of India for the Indians; but at present there are no people called Indians, and it would be the highest achievement of the English genius for Government, if the vague and shadowy idea now called up by the word Indian should hereafter become tangible and definite; if the Bengalis, the Hindustanese and the Panjabese, the Mahrattas, the Telegus, and the Tamels, should become consolidated into one or two distinct nationalities. To enable it to accomplish this grand task, the Government must continue to own the prestige due to the remembrance of Clive and Hastings, the fearlessness with which Englishmen faced the mutiny of 1857, and the judgment which keeps semi-barbarous chiefs in check. If the Bill should be passed, this prestige will be assuredly weakened long before the proper time, and the grand idea of radical statesmen—the idea of educating a race of Indians—must be indefinitely postponed.

9. My countrymen will think me a traitor to my country's cause, but true patriotism looks to the future remote rather than to the immediate present. The true patriot should not be carried away by a false claim of equality—a claim which has no foundation in fact. Power and liberty are two very different things. Instead of claiming to try a European on a criminal charge, my countrymen should claim the right of habeas corpus to be extended to them. Instead of claiming the possession of a questionable power, they ought to claim the redress of a great and real hardship.

10. I do not think that the right asked for should be conceded at present in express terms. Time, which smooths down so many inequalities, will do in this, as in other cases, what is wanted. Europeans have hitherto been in the habit of waiving their right of being tried by their own countrymen, and if the Bill had not been brought forward, the practice would have gone on gradually increasing. For some time to come the excitement that has been raised, and the passions that have been roused, will lead Englishmen to claim the right of trial by their own countrymen. But I am certain that, when their feelings have soothed down into a calmer mood, the practice of waiving their claim will be revived, and growing more and more prevalent, a silent change will gradually be effected, without kindling any angry feelings.

The Bill is herewith returned.

No. 851J. D., dated 30th May, 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Secretary to Government, Bengal,
To—The Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter No. 674J.-D., dated the 21st instant, I am directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, copies of a letter* from the Commissioner of the Orissa Division, reporting on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

* No. 264, dated the 22nd May 1883, and enclosures.

No. 264, dated 22nd May 1883.

From—A. SMITH, Esq., Commissioner of the Orissa Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

With reference to your No. 1518J, of the 27th March last, Mr. Grant, Magistrate of Balasore, Mr. Jones, Magistrate of Cuttaek, and Mr. Godfrey, who was temporarily Magistrate of Pooree, have given opinions adverse to the Bill. Mr. Gupta, who succeeded Mr. Godfrey as Magistrate of Pooree, writes in its favour. Mr. Grant has submitted opinions from Mr. Apjohn, Executive Engineer, Mr. Coldren, an American Missionary, and Koomar Baikuntha Nath Dé, a Native gentleman of Balasore.

2. Mr. Apjohn is strongly opposed to the Bill. Koomar Baikuntha Nath Dé is strongly in favour of it. Mr. Coldren mentions that he found a large proportion of the leading members of the Christian community not in favour of having Native gentlemen to try Europeans. He gives his own opinion to the effect that if Native Magistrates have passed all the requirements of Government to entitle them to administer the functions of their office, there is no reason why they should not be granted the privilege of trying Europeans, especially as there is an appeal to a higher court in the case of any seeming injustice.

3. In this country, where false complaints are a common method of wreaking malice, and Europeans, from their position, are not unfrequently the objects of such malice, European British subjects have always attached much value to the privilege of trial by their countrymen, and have, I believe, rightly regarded the privilege as one that secured them safety from no fancied dangers.

4. I arrived in this country in December 1856, and was then thrown somewhat largely into the society of a non-official portion of the European community. The proposal to subject Europeans to the ordinary criminal court on a much larger scale than is now contemplated had well nigh filled the minds of the community with dismay. The Mutiny followed. Jurisdiction not conferred by the Government was exercised over European British subjects at Bareilly and elsewhere. While these events were in progress, I was posted, as Assistant Magistrate, to a district that was then, as now, conspicuous as an indigo-planting district, and I have still a vivid recollection of the feeling of thankfulness with which, amid the horrors and dangers of that terrible time, it was felt that the obnoxious proposal was at an end.

5. When the Mutiny was over, and the ordinary business of the country could be again attended to, the first Criminal Procedure Bill was passed. Whether it was that the incidents of the terrible period that had just been passed satisfied Government that the proposals were fraught with real danger to its European subjects, or whether it felt that it would be an ungrateful return to the men who, in the crisis, had rallied round it, albeit they did so in self-preservation, it is impossible to say; but the obnoxious clauses formed no part of the law.

6. Nearly a quarter of a century has passed since the Mutiny, and under a strong and peaceful administration the country has advanced and prospered. The Government, I presume, hoped that the old feelings had died away, and that the small measure now proposed would be accepted without opposition. It is impossible not to sympathize with the motives that have led to the introduction of the Bill, but at the same time it is impossible not to regret that it has been introduced. I have felt the same regret with regard to other measures of the present administration. The discussion regarding the Arms Act, the Vernacular Press Act, and the State Prisoners' clauses in the original draft of the existing Code of Criminal Procedure are all cases in point; they are all matters it was undesirable to agitate. From the extracts copied in the Calcutta papers, it is evident that the action with regard to the vernacular press is already producing very undesirable results, and a future Government may, at a season of difficulty and trial, have to undo what has been done. The Government of India by England is an alien Government. However anxiously we may direct our efforts to the welfare of our subjects, this fact should never be forgotten. However sincerely and however successfully we may work for their advancement, there are so many interests opposed to us that we may be very certain we should not be long here if we let our swords get rusty or our powder damp.

7. I have said that I regret much that this Bill was introduced. It has exasperated, to an extent unknown since the Mutiny, the race feeling between the European and the Native that was largely dying away. The measure is required by no administrative necessity. The only reason for it is one of sentiment. It hurts the feelings of the Native members of the Civil Service that they cannot try European British subjects. I should sympathize with anything that may be felt by these gentlemen as in any measure a disparagement; but I will explain presently why I do not think that on this point they need be sensitive. Even, however, if they had reason to be sensitive, I should still consider that the reasons against the measure are sufficiently strong to render it inexpedient to proceed with it.

8. The objections which the European community take to the Bill may be briefly summarised—

1st.—That Native Magistrates, by reason of ignorance of European social habits, customs and usages, are not well fitted to judge of the probability of European motives and actions; and that, if they are to be tried by them, there is danger that they will be unjustly dealt with even if the Magistrate is anxious to judge and act rightly.

2nd.—That a Native Magistrate, by reason of race prejudice, may be even unconsciously biassed in dealing with a European's case; and that, by reason of his mixing with Native society—hostile, it may be, to their European neighbours—and hearing hostile accounts, they are also likely to be unduly influenced; and 3rd.—That if the Government passes the present Bill, it will not be possible for it to avoid further and more extensive legislation.

9. To the first of these arguments it appears to me that there is no answer. In the third it appears to me that there is much force. Even in the second I am not prepared to say that there is not some weight. It is but a few years ago that a mixed Commission of high European officers and Native gentlemen of very high rank sat to try the Chief of a Native State on the charge of attempting to poison his European resident. The European officers were all in favour of a conviction, and the Natives were all in favour of acquittal. It is but a few days ago that a Bench of the High Court of European Judges, and one Native Judge, sat to try a Native gentleman, formerly a member of the Civil Service, who had maliciously compared one of the European Judges of the Court to Scroggs and Jeffreys. The Native Judge dissented from the sentence passed by his European colleagues. It may be that the difference of race had nothing to do with the difference in these judgments; but the European community, when considering whether it will consent to be judged in criminal matters by Native Judges, may not unreasonably think that such cases show that, in matters affecting them, European and Native Judges do at times take different views. I have been brought into intimate personal relations with only two of the Native Civil Service—Baboo Romesh Chunder Dutt and Baboo Krishno Gobind Gupta—and I can confidently affirm of either of these gentlemen that, should it ever fall to them to have to try a European, they would bring to the task the same anxious desire to do their duty strictly and rightly, which marks all their other work. I think, however, the European community may fairly reply to an argument of this sort, that Surendronath Banerji was once a member of the Civil Service, and might in the ordinary course have come to exercise jurisdiction.

10. As to the plea of administrative inconvenience arising from the want of the Bill, I can only say that there is not now any such inconvenience, and that I cannot see that there will be any within any reasonably near period. When it arises, if it ever does arise, it can be dealt with. So far from the Bill removing any inconvenience, it will, it appears to me, create inconvenience. The Bill deliberately withdraws from the Government the power given by * W. R. Ricketts, Bhudruck.

J. S. Davidson, Cuttack.
W. C. Taylor, Khorda.
J. C. Williamson, Pooree.
† K. G. Gupta, Pooree.

section 22, Act X of 1882, and section 3, Act II of 1869, of appointing European British subjects to be Justices of the Peace. In this way four* European Deputy Magistrates, who can now try European British subjects, would cease to be able to try them, and in lieu of these four, one† Native would be empowered. It would also disable Government from appointing Europeans other than those in section 1 of the draft Bill, to be Justices of the Peace. I think that at places like Chandbally and False Point, it may at times be advisable to give such powers to non-official Europeans. In this way, also, the Bill, if passed, would produce inconvenience. It would of course be possible to alter the Bill in this respect, without altering the distinguishing feature of the Bill, namely, the giving power to Native Magistrates to try European British subjects.

11. There is one local point to which I should advert. In his speech on the Bill, the Commander-in-Chief, speaking of the bearing of the Bill with reference to military people, said it was not intended to appoint natives to be Cantonment Magistrates. In the cantonment of Cuttack the Joint-Magistrate, and in his absence the Magistrate of the district, exercises the judicial powers of the Cantonment Magistrate. If, therefore, either of these officers should be a native, he would, as Cantonment Magistrate, under the Bill, exercise the jurisdiction which His Excellency appeared unwilling to concede.

12. I enclose copies of the letters of Messrs. Grant and Apjohn, Mr. Gupta's letter, which also gives Mr. Godfrey's opinion, and Koomar Baikuntha Nath De's letter.

13. Mr. Gupta says it seems to him that the principle involved is not that of subjecting Europeans to the jurisdiction of the natives, but that of removing such disqualifications of the judiciary as are based on the accident of birth and race. It is, I presume, with a view to obviate complaint of the continuance of disqualifications of this nature that European Subordinate Magistrates are no longer to be Justices of the Peace, because it would be unsymmetrical were they to have the powers, and native Magistrates were not. I have already said that on the ground of administrative convenience, it appears to me that it is not advisable to take the powers away from European Deputy Magistrates. Mr. Gupta further says that if the Government were professedly despotic, no one could have questioned its consistency if it thought fit to perpetuate distinctions of race, creed and color; but having practically declared more than once that fitness should be the only test, it is perhaps too late to question the principle of the Bill. I have, in paragraph 9 above, said that the objection taken on the score of fitness is, in my opinion, not to be rebutted; but apart from this, the promise that fitness should be the only test was never unreservedly made. It was only said that the test was to be applied as far as may be, and this is a very important qualification. We have not as yet had a native Commander-in-Chief, nor are our regiments of European troops officered by natives. There are difficulties in the way that cannot yet be overcome.

14. That Mr. Gupta is right in thinking that the European opposition to the Bill is partly dictated by race feeling, there is of course no room to doubt. It is equally certain that race feeling has a good deal to do with the natives' urgency for the Bill, now that it has been put before them. It is desired not because of the effect it will have on the one or two officers it will affect, but because it will be in some sort a humiliation of the European community. This is an aspect of the case that is not altogether pleasant either to contemplate or discuss.

15. The Bill having been introduced, and the evil caused by its introduction having been done, it becomes a question whether it is well to proceed with the Bill or to withdraw it. The advice which, after careful consideration, I give to the Government is to withdraw the Bill. I do not believe that the passing of the Bill would in any way tend to allay the irritated and exasperated feeling to which it has given rise. On the contrary, I regard it as certain that the passing of the Bill would be followed by native demands for further concessions, and further irritation. Mr. Evans called attention to the possible effect on the public mind, had the unfortunate case of Mr. Meares, which it fell to me to try, been tried by a native officer. In that case my judgment was confirmed by the High Court. I will suggest for consideration what the feeling would have been had the case of Mary Donnelly, tried by the Magistrate of Howrah for the re-use of a used postage stamp, in which the sentence of imprisonment was reversed by the High Court, been tried by a native Magistrate.

No. A, dated 14th May, 1883.

From—T. J. C. GRANT, Esq., Magistrate of Balasore.

To—The Commissioner of the Orissa Division, Cuttack.

In reply to your No. 193, dated 7th April 1883, I have the honour to write as follows:—

2. Mr. Beadon has consulted the Executive Engineer (Mr. J. Apjohn) in order to ascertain the feeling of the English residents of the district, and the Kumar Bykanth De for the feelings of the native residents, and the Reverend Mr. Coldren (an American missionary) for those of the Native Christian community. I send you copies of their replies. It is very striking and noteworthy that though Mr. Coldren, their pastor, is in favour of the Bill, the Native Christians are opposed to it.

3. As to the question whether any administrative inconvenience at present arises from the exclusion of native Covenanted Civilians from the power of trying European British subjects, I have no hesitation in replying in the negative. The native view of the case boldly asserts that such inconvenience has arisen; but totally failing to show a single instance of it, is obliged to content itself with remarking that there have been two cases brought against Europeans in Balasore, and that the then Magistrate of the district might possibly have been a native. That this is all they can say is, I think, quite decisive on this particular point. Nor am I of opinion that there is any prospect of such inconvenience arising in the future from the given cause. I think so not only because of the great rarity of cases against Europeans, but because I do not see that their occurrence would cause the slightest inconvenience to anybody. The native argument here is that wherever the Magistrate of the district is a native, the present law leaves the English practically free of all law, because their prosecution would be troublesome and costly to a prohibitive degree. I need not say that this is certainly not the fact. It would neither be difficult nor costly to try an European committing an offence in Balasore, and most assuredly no European who lays himself open to the law need have the slightest hope that he will escape prosecution at the hands of a native because of the difficulty or expense. Moreover it is taken for granted, not only in the native opinion I enclose, but in all the arguments for the Bill that I have ever seen, that if the District Magistrate is not empowered to try Europeans, no one in the district can try them. But this is transparently fallacious and erroneous. Whether the law passes or not, it would be, in my opinion, at once impolitic and dangerous to the State, as well as manifestly unfair to any European who might chance to be in trouble, to leave any district without so much as one European Justice of the Peace, who need not of course be the Magistrate of the district. That any district in which there is a sufficient number of Europeans to render charges against them a matter of fairly frequent occurrence should be left without any Justice of the Peace, would be so gross an instance of maladministration, that I cannot believe it possible. Such a disregard of the dangers to which Europeans are known to be subject, in a country where they are not liked, and in which conspiracy and perjury are rampant, and where a false charge is the ordinary weapon of offence, would be a grave public scandal, which, if it ever occurred, could be remedied by a stroke of the pen.

4. As for sessions cases, I would point out that there certainly is no difficulty whatever in having them tried. I cannot understand how anybody can have been found to urge, as fatal to the existing law, the astonishing objection that on some few occasions it may be necessary to require the parties in a sessions case to take a railway journey of a few hours; for any inconvenience that can be so incurred must be absolutely insignificant in itself, and must become completely obscured and imperceptible when placed against the other alternative of subjecting the accused to trial in a court that he sincerely mistrusts, and in which the whole of the ruling class in India, who are his fellow-countrymen, will never believe that he has been justly condemned.

5. I am the more astonished at the immense stress laid upon this singularly inefficient argument, because it is applied in so very one-sided a way.

* Pooree.

I have just left a district* in which no sessions trial at all has ever been held for very many years—a district in which everybody concerned in a sessions case is required and compelled to proceed to the next district, without any help from a railway, over a route that is always long, and very often difficult. This is an arrangement that has affected natives only, but has passed wholly unchallenged by natives or by anybody else, and it is an arrangement made, on the grounds of the public interest, by the Government which now argues, when an Englishman only is concerned, that he must in his own interests pocket his prejudices and his national pride, and submit himself to the jurisdiction of a court in which he has much less than no confidence, because he will thereby be saved from a railway journey (perhaps in the hot season) to the next district.

6. In fact the argument that the amended law confers benefits on the European is mere futility. The Europeans alone can be, or can have the right to be, the judges of that; and if they think, as they most certainly do think, that it is not a benefit to them, why, then, to them it is none. "There is nothing good or bad, but thinking makes it so." If an Englishman lying under a criminal charge prefers to have a fair trial, plus a journey, rather than a trial that he believes (rightly or wrongly) will be before a court prejudiced against him, minus a journey, then it is futile to argue that it is a benefit to compel him to the latter alternative; and moreover the thing is as wrong as the argument is futile, and is also as unwise and impolitic as it is wrong. You will see that the letter of the native advocates of the Bill uses the argument in another form copied from the Debate on the Bill. The case is put that the master of a ship might want to bring some of his English crew before a court, and find no court in the place. The captain would have most just cause of complaint against the Government, which either neglected or refused to appoint a Justice of the Peace in any port frequented by British seamen. But that simple and easy remedy (which avoids the very serious administrative inconveniences that would most assuredly result from the trial of a rough English crew before a native court) is not sought to be applied. The course proposed, instead, is to deprive the captain and his crew, against their wills, of their existing legal privileges, and to tell the captain that he may (if he dares) try his case in a court in which neither he as accuser, nor his crew as accused, have any confidence; and must himself submit to be tried there whenever his serang or tindal may bring a true or false charge against him, and then while the captain is protesting in loud anger and unmistakeable dismay that this last state is infinitely worse than the first, the advocates of the Bill are not ashamed to declare that the benefit done to the captain is an important argument in favour of the Bill.

7. Then there is the "stigma" argument. It is claimed that it is a "stigma" upon the native Magistrate that he is not allowed to try an Englishman. The natives now inform us that, to them, stigmas consequent merely on the accident of birth are abhorrent and intolerable; but what an amazing statement is this from the great body of the natives of this country? Surely their sense of honour must be greatly tickled while they urge this hitherto unsuspected national characteristic of theirs as rendering the amended Code imperative, and surely their laughter amongst themselves must be heightened by some feeling of contempt at the success of their plea. The fact is that the great body of the natives have the very highest reverence for, and social belief in, the advantages of stigmas attaching to the accident of birth. They would fight and die in their defence while themselves labouring under them, and we could not more surely alienate them from our rule than by endeavouring (for we should never succeed) to remove them by legislation. They not only place all Europeans under the most contemptuous stigmas merely on account of their race, but they subject themselves to similar stigmas and to social or civil disqualifications, of the severest kind, all dependent on the mere accident of birth. The fact is that it is the exact reverse of the truth that the natives cannot tolerate such disqualifications, while it is the exact truth that they never mean to forego them when they themselves are concerned. It is the natives, and not we, who have raised our race as an absolute and impenetrable barrier between us and them; it is the natives who, in spite of precept and example, continue to weigh down their fellow-countrymen and co-religionists with heavier and still heavier chains of caste contempt, restrictions, and disqualifications, the lower we go down in the social scale. And the natives fully intend to maintain this terrible and evil system of birth disabilities both against us and against their own countrymen. What they really want is that they shall share equally in every privilege of the European, while admitting the European to no single one of the privileges peculiar to the natives. They wish to see the meanest native put on the same footing as the European, while that native is left in the bondage he was born to as regards his fellow-countrymen. They want to see power accreting in native hands, while it is diminishing in those of Englishmen. They want to take all they can get, and mean to give nothing in return. In their land the Eastern and Western worlds have met, and co-existence is possible only if there be much of forbearance, much patient putting up with "stigmas," much compromise and give and take. The foolish, and in its nature impossible, wish of the natives is that the Western world should give up being the Western world, and conform wholly to the unchanged East; and they will adopt just so much of the passwords of Western civilization as will suit their purpose, and no more. Disqualification by reason of birth is intolerable just so far as it may leave a fanciful and insignificant "stigma" on the native; but nevertheless his birth must for ever disqualify the European from even social association with the native, and must continue, to the end of time, to hamper, degrade, and make life hard and difficult to the great masses of the natives themselves. It is conspicuously certain that this is all that the natives want or will endure to have. They know better than to put the proposition in all its naked grossness; but under a false assumption of a liberality hateful to their religious feelings and social habits, they are adroitly using the cry of the "equality of races" to effect their purpose. Nor will they allow Government to effect anything more. Their own caste restrictions and disqualifications must be left untouched at our peril.

8. Nor can I say that this lopsided view of the doctrine of equality of races is confined to the natives. The one plea for this change of law which is serious, respectable, and strong, is that it wipes out a race disqualification. It is urged here and in England, by the advocates of the Bill, that it is nothing but a part of a fixed and settled policy to abolish race distinctions; but I see no signs save of a fixed and settled policy to make them. The Government has long been resolved to act as regard the natives, on the principle that one man is as good as another; but in more recent days it has gone further, and has put into action the Irish addition to that sentiment—"and a good deal better too." I am most firmly convinced of the truth that it is wrong of the State to make unnecessary race distinctions. I have no doubt whatever that they are politically dangerous as well as unjust. I hold that the only constitutional and statesmanlike course for the Government of this country to adopt is to throw all offices of Government open to all Her Majesty's subjects, on equal terms, without distinction of race, color or creed, simply letting the best and fittest man win. It is for this reason that I view with serious alarm the manifest intention of Government to show favour and preference to the natives, as natives, not merely by the admitting them through doors specially opened for their races only, but also by actually disqualifying men of English birth. The Englishman can enter the Civil Service only by open competition; but this sole entrance is narrowed by the throwing open of another door for natives only, from which every Englishman is barred by reason of his race. There are many appointments much coveted by Englishmen (especially those whose permanent home is in India), which are in the gift of the various Governments in India; but an order is issued from England which leaves those Governments unhampered in the bestowal of those appointments on natives, but prohibits their being given (with a very few exceptions, just "for the present") to any Englishman because of his birth, without the express sanction of the Secretary of State. At the very same time that this Bill is put forth on the avowed plea that it wipes out a race disqualification (at that very same moment of all others!) the Government issues an order establishing a race disqualification for Englishmen (even for Eurasians) in the matter of admissions to Roorkee College. And the cry from England becomes daily more imperative for the greater employment of the native (which is the further disqualification of the European by reason of his birth), while the acquiescent response from India becomes more and more willing. All this may possibly be very right. I know well how very difficult the subject is. I know that Her Majesty's subjects in India are all (whether of pure or mixed race) over-weighted (by the fact of their residence here) in the race with competitors trained in England, and I think it simply just that, for them all (and not merely for some of them) the weights should be adjusted so as to make the race fair. I think that where it is proper to make appointments in India by selection, it is right that selection should be made in accordance with the fitness of the candidates in the first place, and also with some reference to the numerical proportion of the various races in the second; but certainly never by the actual exclusion of any. I am not in the least afraid that in a race in India, under the simple condition of a fair field and no favour, the native candidate will not hold his own against the world. I see no reason whatever for protecting him by making a contemptuous race distinction in his favour, as if it was hopeless to expect him to win on his merits; and if that were hopeless, I should not go out of my way to employ a cheap and bad servant, and at the same time alienate the only class that maintains us in the country. But at the same time it is not for me to judge, and I most readily acquiesce in the decision of the responsible Government whose duty it is to decide, and who decide to handicap and disqualify the Englishman. They have strong arguments on their side, and I neither deny that they may be right, nor will I do otherwise than loyally accept their decision. But it will not do for a Government thus working to urge that they have no choice but to act on an eternally true principle that there must be no such thing as race disqualification. I have admitted that race distinctions may be necessary. No man who is more than a library student of the art of government would ever be misled by any sounding phrase about the equality of races. The difference between races is a fact, and will not vanish, like a ghost, at the utterance of a formula. Only the French philosophe statesman of the Revolution (or the equally inexperienced and unpractised patriot of India) would ever hope that where Western civilization is grafted upon that of the East, everything can be smooth and homogeneous at the line of union. The practical statesman knows that there must be rough scars and nodosities, and the Government acts upon its knowledge that certain race distinctions, even certain race disqualifications, there must be from the nature of the case. I want no further concession than that. Once admit that circumstances may justify race disqualifications, and the extinction of such a disqualification is no longer a sufficient justification in itself for the proposed Bill. It becomes absolutely necessary to show, also, that the extinction is justifiable and necessary, and it becomes allowable to argue that it is neither.

9. But I have looked in vain for any justification whatever beyond the bare assertion of that ad captandum formula on which Government does not, and indeed cannot consistently act. The smallness of the bone of contention is admitted. That no necessity for any action in the matter has as yet arisen cannot be denied. Any possible necessity in the future can be best and most completely met by the simple plan of having that proper supply of European Justices (who need not be District Magistrates) which justice and the due protection of our fellow-countrymen in the mofussil imperatively demands, and which our position in a country whose people do not like us, and who would willingly get rid of us, necessitates as an essential precaution. It confers absolutely no benefit whatever upon the natives, and in fact the whole justification comes absolutely to nothing more than the removal of a purely sentimental grievance from the native members of the Civil Service. On the other hand, its immediate effect is to plant a grievance (purely sentimental if you will) in the minds of all classes of the English in India. The bare proposal has given rise to a fierce and excessively dangerous contest of races. For 25 years there has been a steady rapprochement between the English and the natives, a degree of cordiality, of closer intercourse, of mutual respect and of toleration for one another's feelings and prejudices, that no one who was in India during the mutinies ever dared to hope for. All the way made has been lost; it will be a generation before the ground we had made up will be recovered. The natives love us no more than before, and have real hopes that we are in the humour to be agitated and argued out of the country; and the Government has completely isolated itself by now alienating the whole of the English race in India. It really seems to me insensate conduct to persist in such a course as this for no better reason than that it will enable the native members of the Civil Service to boast that they, too, have what they unfortunately call the "privilege" of trying Europeans.

10. The true way, and the only real way, of impartially avoiding invidious and unjust race distinctions, is for the Government to show, whenever it is not positively wrong to do otherwise, an equal respect for the strong sentiments and prejudices of all alike—to show that tender respect for the national ideas of the English that has always been shown towards those of the natives. Where we have the nations of the East and of the West living together, it is not possible, any more than it is desirable, to have a symmetrical legislation—a sort of legal bed of Procrustes in which divers nations can be brought to fit only after they have been painfully hacked about into the same lengths. It is impractical and pedantic to attempt to bring about anything of the kind, as well as unrighteous and fatally impolitic. The truly impartial Government, that really sees the evil of making race distinctions, will not compel one race to give up its most cherished national sentiments in order to remove a purely sentimental grievance from a few members of the other race. It would have been a proper answer to make to Mr. Gupta that he and his fellows must respect the strong English sentiment upon the matter, just as the English, in their turn, have always been required to yield their ideas of right and propriety in favour of strong native sentiment, when (in either case) nothing more than a sentimental wrong at most is done to others—that the natives, with their invincibly strong prejudices and exclusiveness on the subject of the privileges of birth, cannot possibly claim any right to the abolition of a single English prejudice on the same subject (if it must be called a prejudice) as to which the English are as tenacious as the natives themselves—that it was at once the moral and the political duty of the Government to consider the natural sentiments and will of the English as they do those of the native subjects of the Government, for that it would be as wrong morally and as dangerous politically to force the English to give up a privilege (neither wrong in itself nor injurious to others) merely at the will of the natives, as it would be to abolish polygamy in India, because the English think it religiously sinful and socially mischievous—that it is the duty of English and native alike to waive many points (even important points, sometimes even matters of right and wrong) in favour of the sincere national and religious and social prejudices of each other—and that it was the duty of Government, as a wholly impartial Government not favouring one race more than another, to see that each race left all the others in the full enjoyment of their national rights and privileges, to tolerate them all alike, and above all things to refrain from itself taking any part whatever with one race, possessing special privileges, to deprive any other race of theirs. When the natives really have assimilated the truth of the equality of all peoples, no one will object to their present demand. But Government is not acting rightly or impartially in according to it when it is asked for without any conviction or sincerity, merely in order to secure an invidious triumph over the alien race who rule them.

11. Indeed it seems to me that the principle on which this Bill is based pledges Government to a line of action that it cannot take, does not desire to take, and ought not to take. In the case of the English, the Government proposes to deprive them, against their will, of a legal privilege which is very especially the pride of Englishmen. This forcible deprivation of their privileges invariably excites Englishmen to the most dangerous degree, and is a method of government abandoned at home by the most backward of Tories, and denounced as simply criminal by all liberal politicians. But in India the Government is ready to accept all the consequences of the act, and to run counter to all the teachings of liberal Government (in the case of those who alone are convinced of the truth of those teachings), because they think they must treat a kind of copy-book apothegm as if it was a revelation of the Deity, that must be worked out to its disastrous but logical conclusion. The truth is that it is not possible to boil down all righteous conduct of affairs into apothegms, and that the too numerous attempts to do so (from the days of the "greatest happiness principle" down to those of the "force no remedy" principle) have invariably landed practical politics in confusion. These apothegms, like proverbs, as false in some cases as they are true in others, and are generally balanced off by some other and contrary maxim. The English are told that, in spite of their refusal to consent, and braving the consequences of their great anger, they are to be deprived of their privilege of being tried before an Englishman, because the natives would like to try them, and there must be no more race distinctions in our laws and courts. Will the Government go straight on to the end of this line? All native ladies and a great many native noblemen are by law exempted from attendance in our courts—a privilege peculiarly one of birth and race, from which every Englishman whatever, even the Prince of Wales or the Viceroy himself, is debarred! It causes at least as much trouble and expense as the trial of an Englishman before an Englishman, and jeopardizes justice by preventing important witnesses from being subjected to examination in open court. Will the Government abolish this national privilege of the natives on account of administrative convenience and the eternal truth that all race distinctions must be banished from our laws and courts? Most certainly, and most rightly, not. If it be argued that the matter is but a trifling matter in itself, doing wrong to no one, and causing no material inconvenience to any one, I acquiesce, but ask for the same consideration towards the English, and for the same reasons in their case. If the argument be couched (as in fact it is) in the terms in which I have said Mr. Gupta ought to have been answered, then I say that an impartial Government that recognizes the duty of making no race distinctions must deal with the English in the same way. But it is not only in insignificant matters, involving sentiment only, and working no ill to any one, that the Government will, and must refrain from all meddling with the national and social habits of the natives. The Government which is willing forcibly to wrest a cherished harmless privilege from the English, at any risk whatever, even though the bare proposal has swept away the work of 25 years of peace and reconciliation, even at the cost of raising a deadly, perhaps fatal, race animosity, of alienating all its English subjects, and of raising hopes in all its native subjects that at last they may get rid of our Government, will be in a bad position indeed if it allows (merely because of its tenderness for the native susceptibilities) the continuance of some native laws that are a great deal worse than merely morally wrong. At the present moment the law allows a Kulin Brahmin, in even his old age, to marry as many hundred infant females as he and their parents choose. Will the Government interfere to protect these helpless infants? They will all become infant widows and be condemned, against nature, to a life of celibacy. Will the Government protect these children from this cruel and unnatural wrong? In time some of them will become mothers, and under pressure of that abominable law which we permit, and of the cruel society whose law it is, they will extend the effects from themselves, and murder their infants. Will the Government, to prevent this form of infanticide, hesitate to punish, under a stern law, the women whom they have done nothing to protect in their helpless infancy from the cruel law of which their crime is but a natural consequence? The Government will simply do nothing of the kind. It will decline in any way to interfere in this or other cases of evil, and it will give plenty of reasons, why it is not right for Government to interfere with the native law of marriage (even when it works cruelty and crime like this), and not proper to incur the violent exasperation of its native subjects. I by no means say that the Government are not quite right in their abstinence, and in waiting for native advance in social and political knowledge in order that they may have native co-operation in redressing even such evils as this. But if such questions of right as this can be righteously laid on one side, for the present, where natives are concerned—if the Government, in fact, can, in spite of what is plainly right, swallow this enormous native camel, what is the meaning of their straining at the very tiny English gnat which does no wrong and hurts nobody? If they do not mind setting Europeans and natives at deadly feud, and running the hazard of rebellion and bloodshed to secure mere symmetry where the English prejudice is concerned, how shall the Government be excused for refusing to encounter the same risks where it is a highly important question of protecting children from a virtual deprivation of their civil rights, of saving native women from an unnatural and cruel existence, of putting down that form of infanticide which is rendered most prevalent by the Government's acquiescence in the native law of abolishing that class of criminal which is most discreditable to every Government, viz., the criminal with whom all good people sympathise. The fact of the matter is that practical statesmen cannot work out dogmatic maxims to their logical conclusion, and that even the plainest right must be left out of action when people are not yet fit to perceive it to be right, and when its enforcement would bring about chaos instead of advance. When the advocates of the Bill have proved that the English privilege is an anomaly, and that their Bill is clearly right in principle, they have proved very little indeed in its favour. The privilege does no perceptible harm, its abolition does no perceptible good to any one; but the Bill to abolish it has already, in the mere form of a proposal, been the greatest misfortune that has occurred in India since the mutinies. Less reason has induced, and does still induce, the Government to acquiesce in immeasurably greater anomalies, and even in gigantic wrong.

12. And truly it is an extraordinary thing to think of the enormous force of argument that is supposed to lie in that word "anomaly." "Why" (it is triumphantly urged) "the thing is an anomaly," and then the unfortunate other party to the controversy is supposed to have before him only two courses—either to prove that it is not an anomaly, or to yield absolutely. What sort of mind is it, I wonder, that is so instantly enfeebled by the sound of the word "anomaly?" Are we all of the intellectual calibre of the fish-wife who was routed by the word parallel pipedon? As I said before, here in India the swift current of Western civilization has come tumbling into the stagnant basin of Eastern civilization, and who in his senses supposes that there can be freedom from anomalies? Who is there, that is capable of forming intelligent hopes for India, that does not hope for many and many anomalies? Before I am asked to be afraid or ashamed of an anomaly, I must be convinced that it is not one of which I ought to be proud; for (strange as it may seem) there are plenty of anomalies in this country which are essentially right, and which ought to be proudly maintained, as well as a few which wise people are sorry to see. I know of nothing in all history that is a finer and prouder anomaly than the position of the Englishman in India. He is a member of a liberty-loving race, who has come here with the full determination to drag an effete people out of the depths into which slavish institutions and habits have sunk them. And because free institutions cannot be as yet extended to those whom he delights to call his fellow-subjects, he himself cheerfully and contentedly has divested himself, one after another, of the special and peculiar privileges of freedom which he and his fathers have slowly won; which he believes in as he believes in nothing else; which he prizes, and is justly proud of, as he prizes and is proud of nothing else; and for which he would fight and die rather than yield them up to force. He has resigned all his rights to take a part in the Government; he does not even look for any representative among his rulers; he submits to laws that he has had no voice in the making of, and of which he disapproves; he submits to taxation that he has not been asked to consent to, and which he thinks excessive and wrong in principle; he even allows himself to be sent to prison as a criminal for what, in his own country, is not even a misdemeanour; and whilst he has given up things in all directions till he has left himself, though a free-born Englishman, even much less a member of the State, much less an influence in the Government, than a French citizen under the second Empire, he has never asked in return that the natives shall give up so much as a single one of the many privileges which are peculiar to themselves. Such a people, capable of such noble self-restraint and self-abnegation, deserve more consideration than they meet with in return from the natives, and less contumely than they receive from their fellow countrymen at home—from that section of the English community which most loudly proclaim their love of freedom. It is such a people as this that an English newspaper (radical) publicly proposes to "crush." It is of such a people as this that a distinguished politician and minister (republican and radical) said, in a speech that has an unpleasantly servile and courtier-like twang, that he greatly approved of the Prince's visit to India, because the English there would have an opportunity of learning how to behave themselves properly. It is such a people, too, that the Government now insists on depriving of the plain and just privilege of every man accused of a crime—of being tried by his peers, in a court in which he has confidence; who are told by their Government that their sincere (I do not at all say their well-grounded) mistrust of those courts shall receive not the slightest consideration; that their wishes on the subject shall be put aside; and that they shall have their legal privileges wrested from them in spite of themselves, not because it does any harm to any human being, but because the natives, who have never given up anything, are anxious to see the English, who have voluntarily resigned so much, compelled to give up more. I must say that I think the treatment of the English in India in this matter by their Government is such an anomaly as should never have occurred, and as may lead to a most dangerous state of exasperation and desperation if persisted in. At all events, I am sure that in the present exasperated state of all men's minds, English and native alike, it would be simply inviting an outbreak to press the matter. If the Bill is passed in the present temper of people, I do not believe that fair trials will be possible, and I do fully believe that there will be unseemly and violent collisions between the races. There is no saying into how large a conflagration a very little flame may now be at any moment fanned, and to pass the Bill for some long time to come would be to incur a degree of danger that the Bill cannot possibly justify.

Dated 23rd April, 1883.

From—KUMAR BAIKUNTHIA NATH DE,

To—The Magistrate of Balasore.

With reference to your memorandum No. 522, dated the 11th instant, asking for an expression of opinion of the native gentlemen of the district on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, I have the honour to state that I called a meeting which was attended by a large number (over 300) of native gentlemen who, one and all, voted in favour of the amendment. I submit below the purport of the resolutions arrived at. Actual inconvenience has, in the opinion of the meeting, arisen from the exclusion of Native Covenanted Civilians from the power of trying European British subjects on criminal charges. The meeting wishes to show, by one or two instances, the way in which the existing Criminal Procedure Code affects this district. Some days ago, a charge was brought against a British-born subject attached to the Coast Canal. That gentleman was found guilty and fined. Had the offence been committed during the incumbency of Mr. Dutta, the complainants would have suffered much. They might have been prevented from bringing any charge at all against the gentleman in question on account of the additional trouble and expense they would have been put to for the trial of the case by some British-born subject. It would thus appear that the European offenders of the district would enjoy to some extent immunity from the operation of the criminal law, should the District Magistrate happen to be a native. That the same remark applies to other districts of Bengal similarly circumstanced is a fact which hardly needs pointing out. In the ordinary course of things, the Native Civilians would become Magistrates of some districts, and the people of those districts would suffer simply through this anomaly in the law. Besides the inconvenience to the Native community, there are other disadvantages arising from the existing law, which it will not be out of place to dwell on here. In the month of January last the Magistrate of this district had to try some sailors who had acted against the orders of their captain. To what trouble the captain would have been put had Mr. Dutta been here? We might multiply instances; but those mentioned above will be sufficient.

2. The principle of equality in the eye of the law has been already recognized in the bestowal of the power by which Native Moonsifs and Subordinate Judges try cases in which British-born subjects are interested, and not a single case has been found, or can be found, in which failure of justice was ever alleged to have taken place. If Native Judges can be trusted to administer the civil laws, the meeting sees no reason why those Natives who have won their way into the Civil Service by exceptional energies and abilities, should not be entrusted with the administration of criminal justice as regards Europeans.

3. The Presidency Magistrates, be they Europeans or Natives, have the power to try British-born subjects on criminal charges; why should not then Magistrates, if they happen to be Natives, have the same power while in the mofussil?

The law as it now stands makes it necessary for the Government to confine Native Civilians to backward districts, such as the swamps of Backergunge, &c. This the meeting thinks is against the declaration in 1858 of Her Majesty.

In conclusion, the meeting urges once more the necessity of the amendment.

No. 1052, dated 16th April, 1883.

From—J. W. ARJOHN, Esq., Executive Engineer of the Balasore Division,
To—The Magistrate of Balasore.

In reply to your No. 527 of the 12th instant, requesting an expression of opinion from me on the proposed amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, I have the honour to give it as follows:—

As an officer of the Public Works Department, I think that the amendment, if passed, would cause much inconvenience in the event of a Native Civilian being sent to a district in which European subordinates were employed, as these men now find it hard to hold their own against the petty persecutions of persons who they have made their enemies often through the faithful discharge of their duty, and, however fair a Native Magistrate might be, the common people would not believe in his impartiality, and the Englishman having lost prestige, would be regarded as fair game by all budmashes.

As a loyal European British subject, I most respectfully but earnestly protest against the subjection of the hitherto ruling race to the criminal jurisdiction of one which, however intellectually able, is, through hereditary want of physical and moral courage, unfit to have it.

As a husband and father, I protest against my wife and daughter being made subject to polygamists and men who from training are utterly incapable of understanding Western ideas of the status of women; and I regret the personal inconvenience I shall be put to in being obliged for the future to keep my family in England whenever serving in a district where a Native would have jurisdiction over them.

Dated 18th April, 1883.

From—REV. M. J. COLDBEN, American Mission, Balasore,
To—The Magistrate of Balasore.

In reply to your memorandum No. 523, dated 11th April, 1883, I have the honour to state that I have made enquiry as to the opinion of the Christian community, and find a large majority of the leading members not in favour of having Native gentlemen try Europeans.

As to myself, I beg to state that if the Native Magistrate has passed all the requirements of Government to entitle him to administer the functions of that office, I see no reason why he should not be granted the privilege of trying Europeans, especially as in case of any seeming injustice there is an appeal to the higher Court.

No. 319, dated 26th April, 1883.

From—K. G. GUPTA, Esq., Officiating Magistrate of Pooree,
To—The Commissioner of Orissa, Cuttack.

With reference to your endorsement No. 192, dated the 7th instant, asking for an expression of my opinion on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, I beg to say that, considering the position of us Native Civilians in respect to this Bill, and having regard to the language that has been publicly held towards us, I should have preferred to keep silent; but Mr. Godfrey, the Sub-divisional Officer of Khorda, has, while in charge of this office, left a note on the Bill, and, as I happen to disagree with him, I cannot send it up without a few remarks of my own.

2. Mr. Godfrey says:—"The principle involved—that of subjecting Europeans to the criminal jurisdiction of natives of this country—is to a certain extent a novel one, and before it is generally introduced, the community whom it affects have a right to be consulted. A great deal has been written on the subject, and there is very little to be urged that is new. The voice of the European community has declared loudly against it, and in my opinion with good reason. I further believe that the introduction of the Bill is, under present circumstances, most impolitic.

"Neither can I see the necessity that exists for the measure; the number of Native Civilian officers who would come within its scope for many years is small. There are many districts in Bengal where the contingency of having to try a European for an offence very rarely occurs, and to such districts Native Civilians may without objection be deputed. I very earnestly hope that the proposed measure will be withdrawn at once."

3. It seems to me that the principle involved is not that of subjecting Europeans to the jurisdiction of natives of this country, but that of removing such disqualifications of the judiciary as are based on the accident of birth and race. Now this latter principle is by no means a new one, having been affirmed by Parliament many years since, and carried out to a considerable extent by the Government of India. The Bill is only the outcome of an extended application of that principle.

4. The indignation shown by the non-official European community against the Bill does not in any way affect its merits. No one likes to give up a privilege without a struggle; but race prejudice, I am afraid, has to account for a great deal of the present agitation.

5. Were the Government of India professedly despotic, no one could have questioned its consistency if it thought fit to perpetuate distinctions of race, creed and colour. But having practically declared, as it has done more than once, that fitness should be the only test of qualification, it is perhaps too late to question the principle of the Bill.

As for administrative inconvenience, this is very much a matter of opinion, and it would be difficult to say what amount of inconvenience would justify legislation. By careful selection and special arrangements, much of the inconvenience may be obviated; but still it scarcely adds to the prestige of a district officer to have withheld from him powers which his subordinates may, under certain circumstances, possess. The number of Native Civilians is at present small; but it is scarcely fair to them that they should be excluded from nearly all the best districts simply by reason of their birth.

---

No. 879 J. D., dated 31st May, 1883.

From—W. D. BLYTH, Esq., Under-Secretary to Government, Bengal,

To—The Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter No. 851 J.D., dated the 30th instant, I am directed to forward, for the information of the Government of India, copies of a demi-official letter* from the Commissioner of Patna, submitting the opinions of certain Native officers and gentlemen of that division on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

---

Dated 24th May, 1883.

Demi-official from—F. M. HALLIDAY, Esq., Commissioner of the Patna Division,

To—The Private Secretary to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

Mr. Thompson asked me to send copies of the opinions of the Native gentlemen here who have been consulted with regard to the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, and I enclose them for the Lieutenant-Governor's perusal.

I send also Grierson's letter to me, forwarding the written opinion of the leading non-official gentlemen of Patna City.

---

Dated 23rd May, 1883.

Demi-official from—G. A. GRIERSON, Esq., Collector of Patna,

To—The Commissioner of the Patna Division.

In addition to the written opinions of Natives concerning the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, which I forwarded to you with my report, I had also the opportunity of consulting the leaders of the Native non-official community on the subject. As already reported, they were to a man against the Bill.

You expressed to me, the other day, a desire to get the written opinions of these gentlemen, and I enclose them herewith.

Kuar Sukh Raj Bahadoor and Ray Jay Kishen are the leaders of the Hindu community here, and Nawab Sayyad Wilayat Ali Khan, C.I.E., is well known as the leader of the Mahomedans of this part of the world. The opinions of these gentlemen may therefore be taken as that of the mass of the Behar community.

Dated 22nd May 1883.

From—KUAR SUKH RAJ, BAHADOOR,
To—The Collector of Patna.

We are, as we have said before, of opinion that, for certain reasons, we do not like the Ilbert Bill to be passed into law.

Dated 22nd May 1883.

From—RAY JAY KISHEN,
To—The Magistrate of Patna.

Having been asked to give my independent opinion on the "Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill," I have the honour to state that as the said Bill is not calculated to secure any substantial advantages or emoluments to the natives in general, with the exception of gratifying the vanity of a few native civilians, by empowering them to try Europeans; and, moreover, as it would create race feeling, jealousy, animosity and hatred between the races that have hitherto lived in peace and amity with each other, it is unnecessary and should not be passed.

Dated 23rd May 1883.

From—NAWAR SAYYAD WILAYAT ALI KHAN, C.I.E.,
To—The Collector of Patna.

Adverting to your demi-official letter of the 21st instant, requesting me to give my opinion on the Ilbert Bill, I beg to say that, as far as I have gone through the histories, I have always found the conquerors thinking themselves superior than the conquered. In my opinion the British will be heart-broken and will always remain fully against the natives if the Bill will be turned into Act; and as the mutual affection between the conquerors and the conquered, which is being increased, has not come to limits of perfection, and as the unsatisfactory remarks are being brought forward by the conquerors, I am quite sure the passing of the Bill into Act will place a great dissatisfaction between the conquerors and the conquered.

BABOO JADUB CHUNDRA GHOSE, Deputy Magistrate and Collector, Sarun—highly approves of the principle of the Bill, and also considers the amendment necessary to prevent future administrative inconvenience, and the anomaly of a superior officer being excluded from a jurisdiction which may be possessed by one of his subordinates.

BABOO RAM ANUGRA NARAIN SINGH, Deputy Magistrate and Collector, Sarun—approves of the principle of the Bill, and considers that, though every native civilian may not be qualified to try Europeans, they should, as a class, be eligible for selection by the local Government, and that there are sufficient safeguards to prevent any miscarriage of justice. He thinks that no administrative inconvenience has yet arisen, but such might arise in the future if the law were not amended.

MOULVIE AZHURAL HUQ, Deputy Magistrate, Sarun—is in favour of the proposed amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code.

We, the undersigned native Magistrates of Durbhunga, have the honour to submit the following report on the Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill now pending in the India Council, in compliance with your order of the 13th instant, and with reference to Government of Bengal letter No. 1518, dated 27th ultimo.

2. Opinion has been invited on three points, namely—(1) the principle of the Bill; (2) any administrative inconvenience already felt for want of jurisdiction in native civilians over British European subjects; and (3) any such inconvenience likely to arise in future. We shall briefly dwell on these points in the same order in which they have been mentioned.

3. We beg to express our fullest sympathy with, and appreciation of, the object of the Bill, and its abstract principle is not likely to be questioned by any section of the Indian community. Apprehensions may be entertained regarding the practical result of the change in the present state of the Indian society. In our opinion such apprehensions are only imaginary, as they are not based on experience and sound reasoning. As covenanted native officers alone are to be vested with additional powers, the only matter for consideration is whether they are fully qualified to exercise them. To this subject we beg to devote the following two paragraphs.

4. No question has been raised that we are aware of regarding the general acquirements and legal knowledge of the native covenanted officers. Most of them have entered the service by open competition, and Government is responsible for the qualifications of those appointed under the nomination system. Exception can only be taken on the ground of unfamiliarity of the natives with the English mode of life and thinking, which is an important condition for the proper understanding of a case in which a European is concerned. We submit that such a familiarity is tolerably acquired by native covenanted officers by study of English literature from infancy, by contact with the Anglo-Indians, and by visits to England; while they have an advantage over European Judges, in that they can better understand the surroundings of a case occurring in India.

5. Anticipated partiality of native officials towards their own countrymen may be another ground of objection to their being vested with powers over Europeans. The past experience of the character of native officials removes all doubts on this point. Natives have hitherto tried civil suits instituted by or against Europeans. They have also tried criminal cases in which Europeans are prosecutors, or their servants in a representative character stand accused. No display of partiality has ever been reported in respect to the trial of such cases. If any party in a criminal case enlists the sympathy of the court, it is the accused; and when a native in the prisoner's dock, standing in fear of punishment, cannot draw the sympathy of a native Judge, there is not the least chance of his doing so when he comes forward as a prosecutor. The fact is that party-feeling and race-antagonism is foreign to the spirit of the Indians.

6. According to our information, the Britons do not enjoy the privilege of being tried by their own countrymen in the civilized countries of Europe and America, nor in the presidency towns of India. They do so in other parts of the world where the laws of the land are materially different from those of the United Kingdom, and the law officers beyond the control of the British Government. In India the case is not similar. Here the criminal law has been framed in imitation of the English law, and the law officers are appointed by the British Government, and they hold their appointments subject to the approbation of the said Government. We know that the idea of appearing as an accused before native Judges is rather revolting to the present state of feeling in the Anglo-Indian society; but we trust this feeling will wear out in course of time, if the Bill is actually passed.

7. No inconvenience has been felt in this district for want of jurisdiction of native civilians over Europeans, for the simple reason that there are no such officers in Durbhunga. Mr. Brojendro Nath Dé and Kumar Rameshur Singh were posted for a time to the sudder station, where there were also European covenanted officers who tried all cases of this kind. Moreover, there have hitherto been so few criminal cases against Europeans in the Durbhunga district that they could be decided by European Magistrates without the assistance of native officers.

8. The state of things described in the last paragraph cannot continue for long if events are allowed to take their course. Under the existing rules, 20 per cent. of the appointments in the Covenanted Service will be gradually filled up by natives under the nomination system, and many besides will enter the Service by open competition. These officers will in ordinary course of promotion be placed in independent charge of sub-divisions, districts and sessions divisions. Inconvenience will then be felt if any restriction be imposed on their jurisdiction. On the other hand, European population in India is steadily increasing. Proportionately with the increase of population, cases against Europeans must also increase. In time such cases will be so numerous that the staff of European officials in many districts will not be able to decide them with due regard to their other duties. This increase of European population in India is beneficial both to India and England, and should by all means be encouraged. India wants capital to develop its resources, and its people force of character so necessary for progress. Englishmen in India can import capital and set an example of steady business habits. England has more money and more men than she can advantageously utilize within her maritime boundaries, and India opens to her a new field of enterprise.

NASSIRUDDIN.

GOWHUR ALI.

No. 4 B, dated 24th April 1883.

From—SYED MOHAMED, Deputy Magistrate, Mozufferpore,
To—The Magistrate of Mozufferpore.

With reference to your memorandum No. 714, dated 4th instant, forwarding a copy of the Government circular No. 1518 J., dated 27th ultimo, and asking my opinion on the proposed Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, as far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction by native Magistrates over European British subjects, I have the honour to submit as follows.

This subject has been so fully and carefully discussed from different points of view, and is still being so warmly discussed by eminent administrators and high authorities, both here and in England, and so many arguments have been advanced by its supporters and opponents, that I consider it perfectly needless to advance a single argument in support of my own humble views on the subject, which is that the Bill is a perfectly just and equitable measure, and I believe there is a consensus of opinion among all educated natives on this point throughout India. I look upon this legislation as a natural outcome of the fundamental policy of the British Government in India, and that it shall be perfectly harmless in its effects when passed into law. It is quite clear, from the facts stated by Dr. Hunter in his speech, to which I am obliged to make a reference, that administrative inconvenience has arisen, and that much inconvenience will surely arise in future, as the number of native covenanted civilians would increase in the service, and in course of time they would come to be placed in large numbers in charge of districts and sub-divisions. The mass of population looks upon it, as upon all other legislative measures, with indifference, as they are incapable of understanding such measures.

MOULVI ABDUL JUBBAR.—The principle of the proposed amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code is generous. It aims at equalizing the powers of all Civil Servants employed in the administration of law and justice in India, and who have all been admitted into the Civil Service on proof of merit and ability. It will be a standing slur on the position of the native civilians if they are, on the ground of nationality, excluded from the exercise of functions which may be discharged by their subordinates. Native officers, inferior in position to the Civil Servants, have for many years tried Europeans in the presidency-towns, and no complaint has ever been seriously made that they have abused their power. It cannot be gainsaid that if native civilians, when they attain the grades of District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, are excluded from trying European British subjects for offences committed within their territorial jurisdictions much inconvenience to parties and witnesses will arise, and in many cases failure of justice will occur. The trouble and inconvenience of a journey to a long distance from home will induce many to avoid the necessity of being called as witnesses in cases in which Europeans may be on their trial. As to the impartiality and immaculateness of native officers invested with powers to do justice between man and man, there can be no difference of honest opinion. There may be one or two men whose good faith may be questioned in particular instances; but, generally speaking, native officers are as spotless as their superiors in office. This is not only my individual opinion, but in expressing it I simply echo the verdict of all intelligent natives. As regards the ability of native officers, I beg to say that the English of their judgment may not be equal to that of a European; but as a judge of facts a native endowed with the ordinary share of human intelligence will admittedly be equal, if not superior, to a well-informed European officer. A native officer may want a knowledge of the habits, customs and ideas of the Europeans; but undoubtedly he is better qualified to sift native evidence adduced in favour of or against a European offender. It is not true that native officers will be prone to receive or unable to detect false accusations against Europeans. Nevertheless, I would not advise the passing of the Bill. There is a general and strong opposition against it. The ground of this outcry is that the Bill contemplates to deprive the European British subjects of their special privilege to be tried by their own countrymen. It is a fact that in the mofussil Europeans have been long tried by Europeans, and I think some administrative inconvenience should be allowed to exist rather than that the special privilege of a nation should be interfered with. Moreover, an ill-feeling between the natives and Europeans, which the Bill, if passed into law, is likely to create, will be prejudicial to the interests of the country, which at present depends upon the nations of the West, and for material and intellectual advancement.

BABOO DINOBUNDHOO GANGOOLY, Junior Government Pleader.—I, and those natives whom I have been able to consult, agree in thinking that the Bill is sound in principle.

With regard to the administrative difficulty, I beg to submit that, as no covenanted native civilian had been placed in this district as Sessions Judge, no administrative difficulty has hitherto been felt.

MOULVI KHODA BUX KHAN, Senior Government Pleader.—The change proposed in the Civil Procedure Code does not in any way affect the native public one way or the other. It is certainly not intended, and it cannot practically attribute any moral or social advancement to the different communities living all over the country. The change is simply intended for a very few native gentlemen who are members of the Covenanted Service, and whether they are empowered to try the European British-born subjects or not is a question which would not go to touch any other than those who are to be thus tried by the native civilian. The general public, as far as I think and know of their circumstances, are quite indifferent to this change.

2. The number of the native civilians is so small that there can hardly be any administrative inconvenience at present. A native civilian can conveniently commit a European British-born subject to another court held by an Englishman in the very district where the offence is committed, or commit him to the Calcutta High Court for trial without causing much inconvenience to the persons concerned with the case, as, by the construction of the railway lines, travelling is so very easy.

3. The particular community concerned with the change claim their right of being tried by their own countrymen, and perhaps this is the only privilege granted to the English people and unless there be some great administrative inconvenience, the change at present is quite uncalled for. Natives have privileges as well, and, under the custom of the country, they are respected by law and by the courts of justice; and I would therefore submit that such privilege should not be done away with without grave and cogent reasons for doing so, which are wanting at present.

BABOO NOBIN CHUNDER SEN, Deputy Magistrate of Behar.—I have never been placed in charge of any sub-division where cases requiring the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subject were likely to occur; the native Deputy Magistrates, on account of their legal disqualification to try such cases, and its consequent administrative inconvenience, being excluded from the charge of such sub-division. Nor have I otherwise come across any such case in places where I have served. I am therefore not in a position to express any opinion, based on my personal knowledge or experience, on the principle of the Bill in question, involving such a grave question of Imperial policy. As for general arguments for or against it, they have been publicly expressed in so many quarters, and with so much greater force and ability than I could command, that it would be useless for me to recapitulate them, as they cannot be unknown to you.

No. 896 J.D., dated 2nd June 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter No. 879 J.D., dated the 31st ultimo, I am directed to forward, for the information of the Government of India, copies of a further letter* from the Commissioner of Burdwan, communicating the opinion of Mr. E. V. Westmacott, the Officiating Magistrate of Howrah, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

* No. 254, dated the 29th May 1883, and enclosure.

No. 254, dated 29th May 1883.

From—J. BEAMES, Esq., Commissioner of the Burdwan Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department.

In continuation of this office No. 204 of the 7th instant, I have the honour to submit copy of a letter No. 851 of the 15th idem, from Mr. E. V. Westmacott, Officiating Magistrate of Howrah, containing his opinion on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure. Mr. Westmacott joined this division only on the 4th instant, and could not therefore submit his report earlier.

No. 851, dated 15th May 1883.

From—E. V. WESTMACOTT, Esq., Magistrate of Howrah,

To—The Commissioner of the Burdwan Division.

With reference to the order conveyed in your No. 50 of the 4th April 1883, I observe that my predecessor, Mr. Collier, has already submitted a report, with the terms of which I have no reason to disagree; but in reading much of the matter published with respect to the Criminal Jurisdiction Bill, I have observed in certain quarters a tendency to represent the opposition to the Bill as being on the part of those Europeans only who are not in the service of Government, and to deduce from the fact that officials have not joined in any public movement against the Bill, the conclusion, which I believe to be quite erroneous, that Government officials are in favour of the measure for giving certain native officials jurisdiction over Europeans, and for taking away such jurisdiction from a number of European Deputy Magistrates.

Although I have felt that it might not befit my position under Government to take part in recent proceedings, I must protest very strongly against any assumption that I am in favour of the Bill. In common with almost every official with whose opinion I am acquainted, I object to the proposed measure as much as any European not in the public service can object.

Even if I thought the measure unobjectionable in principle, I should hold that nothing but the very strongest necessity would justify it, arousing as it does, on the part of those whom it is proposed to deprive of the right of being tried by men of their own nation, bitterness of feeling both against the Government and against the natives on whom it is proposed to confer jurisdiction over them. There is a general feeling among Europeans that they are betrayed by the Government to which they have been thoroughly loyal, and to which they feel that they have a right to look for the maintenance of their valued privileges, of which the one which it is now proposed to take away is not one of the least. As regards the natives, Europeans who have hitherto been content to do business with them without taking notice of points of moral or social conduct in which they differ, have been suddenly and sharply roused to analyse the feeling which leads them to dislike being subjected to the jurisdiction of native courts, and have been led to bring prominently forward the faults they perceive, or think that they perceive, in native character; and this hostile criticism has irritated those natives who understand it into recrimination, and the utterance of sentiments hostile to Europeans. During more than twenty years' service in India, I have never known such bitterness of feeling between Europeans and the educated Baboos of Bengal, and such disaffection among Europeans towards the Government, as has been aroused within the last few weeks by the proposed measure; and even if there were reasons for passing such a measure, very much stronger than I believe there are, I should think they could hardly be strong enough to justify the risk of causing such widespread irritation.

It is stated that very few native Magistrates or Judges would be vested with jurisdiction over Europeans by the proposed measure, and further that it is not intended to proceed further in the same direction. Natives, however, have declared in their public utterances that they look on the measure only as an instalment of wider concessions to be made to them, and Europeans also suspect that such is the case. Although the present Government may honestly intend to go no further, they cannot bind their successors. If it be once conceded that a few young men who have spent a short time in England are qualified to try Europeans on criminal charges, it will be difficult to deny the qualifications of grey-headed Deputy Magistrates, who have for many years exercised judicial powers under the guidance and supervision of British officers. Neither natives nor Europeans believe that the proposed measure can be passed without further measures of a similar character following in logical sequence.

I am unable to see that the administration of the country would be rendered in any degree easier by the passing of the measure; on the contrary, I foresee the possibility of very serious administrative difficulties arising from the irritation which would be caused by the condemnation of a European, especially of a European female, by a native tribunal. I do not say that I believe a native would not try a European justly, but I do say that native tribunals would not enjoy that confidence on the part of Europeans which is enjoyed by British Magistrates. It is notorious that people of the country do not trust the native courts as they do those presided over by British Magistrates, and if this is so, it is not strange that Europeans should share the feeling. The only advantage which I think can possibly arise from the proposed measure is the gratification of the self-love of certain native officials who consider themselves placed in a position inferior to British officers of equal rank, because they are not allowed to try European British subjects on criminal charges. I do not think this advantage sufficient to outweigh the evil which the proposed measure is already causing.

I have heard of several cases in which Europeans have been obliged to appear before native courts of justice as witnesses or otherwise, and in which the presiding officer has caused them unnecessary humiliation and inconvenience, evidently with the purpose of exalting himself in the eyes of his own countrymen. The appellate courts, and the general supervision of superior authority, may prevent any miscarriage of justice in the actual decision of suits, but are quite unable to prevent the petty annoyance, unconnected with the actual decision, which may be inflicted by a judicial officer, and which experience has shown that native judicial officers, especially the younger among them, are prone to inflict on Europeans. In the case of European women, such annoyance might be almost unbearable, and it appears that Europeans have more reason to object to native tribunals on these grounds than with a view to actual decisions.

I am unable to draw any distinction between natives who have been to England and those who have not, as I have not observed any special variation from the ordinary native character on the part of the former. It is not, however, my wish to discuss the fitness or unfitness of native officials for the exercise of the powers which it is proposed to confer upon them. I think it quite enough to urge the impolicy of pressing a measure which has caused such widespread irritation among European British subjects in India against both the Government and their native fellow-subjects, as I regret to observe to have been aroused within the last few weeks.

No. 1232 J—D., dated the 22nd June 1883.

From—F. B. PEACOCK, Esq., Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Judicial, Political, and Appt. Depts.,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

I am directed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to submit his opinion upon the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code, to which his attention was called in your letter No. 25 C, dated the 17th March last. On receipt of that letter a circular was issued to Commissioners of Divisions, inviting an expression of their views upon the subject, after consulting selected officers interested in the measure, and qualified to express an opinion upon it. Copies of the replies received have already been forwarded from time to time for the information of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council. This is the first time that an opportunity has been offered to the Bengal Government and its officers to report upon the Bill; and though the Lieutenant-Governor has little doubt that the impassioned controversy which has arisen since the intention to legislate was declared has strongly influenced opinions on both sides of the question, the fact remains that the general result, as gathered from the replies received, is, both in the number and weight of judgment, decidedly against the principle and policy of the proposal. It appears that, excluding the Judges of the High Court in Calcutta, whose reply has been submitted direct to the Government of India, there were 79 officers in Lower Bengal whose reports appear in the published replies, and form as fair an analysis of these reports as can be made; the result is that, while 20 gentlemen approve of the principle of the Bill, and would recommend its enactment, there are 59 who are either entirely against it, or who, accepting the soundness of the theory upon which the Bill is based, object for one reason or another to its being passed into law. Of the 20 writers in favour of the measure, 19 are natives and one (Mr. Coldron) is a gentleman connected with the American Mission in the district of Balasore. All but one of the 19 natives are in the public service, and include the two Covenanted Civilians, now officiating as Magistrates and Collectors in charge of districts. The others, with two exceptions, one of whom is a Government Pleader are Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors in Government employ. Mr. Coldren, to whom reference has been made, is an American; and though in his brief remarks he recorded his personal support of the Bill, he adds that from enquiries made he finds that a large majority of the leading members of the Christian community under him are not in favour of having native gentlemen to try Europeans. Out of the 59 gentlemen opposed to the proposed legislation, it will be sufficient to notice that the list comprises the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, all the Commissioners of Divisions, all the district officers and Judges who were consulted, and includes Mr. Badshah, the Covenanted Native Civilian in charge of the sub-division of Goalundo, nine native officers of Government, eight of whom are in the Uncovenanted Service (most of them being Deputy Magistrates), and one a Government Pleader, besides three native gentlemen in independent positions unconnected with Government employment. Besides these, it is evident that several other gentlemen, whose replies have not been forwarded, had expressed opinions unfavourable to the Bill, and that the non-official European community is unanimously opposed to it. If the Lieutenant-Governor had had any doubts regarding the necessity or the policy of the contemplated legislation before, he must say that they would have been entirely removed by the great weight and numerical superiority of the earnest arguments now adduced in condemnation of the Bill; and he has only, therefore, to say that the opposition which he has consistently maintained to the introduction of the measure from its first submission to the Executive Council of the Government of India in 1881 has only been confirmed and strengthened by the later developments of the discussion.

2. Before referring to the grounds upon which this opposition, in which Mr. Rivers Thompson regrets to find himself at variance with His Excellency the Governor General in Council, is based, I am directed to notice some points in the Bill which demand consideration. If the Bill, as it has been circulated for opinion, is passed—(1) all Native Sessions Judges and Magistrates of Districts will, by virtue of their office, be empowered to exercise the same jurisdiction over European British subjects as now belongs to European officials in the same positions; and (2) any Native Magistrate of the first class who is a Covenanted or Statutory Civilian, or who is an Assistant Commissioner in a Non-Regulation Province, or a Cantonment Magistrate, may be invested, at the discretion of Government, with similar powers. Hitherto the Government has widely exercised the power of appointing as Justices of the Peace many Europeans, who, not being in the Government service, do not come within any of the classes above mentioned, and a great administrative convenience has been thereby secured. The withdrawal of this power, even if vested interests are saved, will, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, operate to the detriment of the administration of justice, because it may very well happen that in many places, such as the minor sea-ports, out-of-the-way sub-divisions, and, occasionally, at railway stations, the services of an Honorary (European) Magistrate would secure all that was requisite, when neither Covenanted nor Statutory Civilians were available for the duty. This omission of course might be easily remedied; but if it is remedied by the reservation of such powers in the hands of Government as now obtain, it is obvious that one principle upon which the Bill is based will be compromised, and the limitation of the grant of such judicial powers to European British subjects alone could not be defended. As the Lieutenant-Governor understands, however, the Government of India is not prepared to go to the extent of conferring such powers upon natives generally.

3. Again, in the matter of cantonments, the observations of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, speaking with the authority of Government in the Debate of the 9th March last, seem to show that there was no intention of conferring the office of a Cantonment Magistrate upon natives. It is not readily intelligible why, if race distinctions in judicial offices are untenable, such distinctions should be entertained in favour of the military, and not of the civil population of the country; but assuming that the decision is final (and the Lieutenant-Governor is clearly of opinion that the decision is a right one), clause (d), section 1 of the Bill will have to be amended. But in this connection it is necessary to direct attention to paragraph 11 of the report received from the Commissioner of Orissa, where he points out that in Cuttack the Joint-Magistrate, or, in his absence, the Magistrate of the district, exercises the judicial powers of the Cantonment Magistrate, and "if either of these officers should be a native, he would, as Cantonment Magistrate, under the Bill exercise the jurisdiction which His Excellency appeared unwilling to concede." However, supposing the Bill to be modified as suggested, the difficulty, though involving an anomaly, might be met by the executive arrangement of never appointing a Native Covenanted Civilian to the magistracy or joint-magistracy of Cuttack.

4. The Bill, as it proposes to enlarge the powers of Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces, does not affect any of the districts under the Bengal Administration, and the Lieutenant-Governor may leave it to others to deal with this clause. He would only remark that it very often happens that an Assistant Commissioner is a native, in no respects different from the Deputy Magistrates of the Regulation Province, and with but a tithe of the experience which the older Deputy Magistrates possess in the administration of the criminal law. If the Deputy Magistrate is not to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects, there is a much more forcible reason why the Native Assistant Commissioner should not have such a power. The case as regards the Statutory Civilians seems stronger still; and the Lieutenant-Governor is constrained to refer more at length to the question as it concerns the officers appointed under 33 Vic., Cap. 3, because his own judgment is here entirely in accord with that of the great majority of those who have commented upon and condemned the proposal. The system under which natives of India are thus admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service of the country has been in force for three or four years. Altogether, up to the present moment, six gentlemen have obtained appointments to the Covenanted Civil Service under the Statute, and all of them are still Assistants to Magistrates and Collectors, and four only out of the six have passed the preliminary departmental examinations which qualify them for promotion. It may be accepted, then, as certain that it will take at least seven or eight more years before any of these officers will be in a position to enjoy the dignity of an Officiating Magistrate and Collector of a district. The chances of advancement to a Sessions Judgeship are even more remote. On the ground, then, of any immediate necessity for legislation on their behalf, even if the principle of the Bill be affirmed, no cause whatever can be shown. But this is only a very small part of the question. The system itself is in an early and experimental stage of its operation; and if it is to be continued, which the Lieutenant-Governor considers is likely to evoke discussion very soon (because any system of nomination is objectionable, and, as against Europeans and Eurasians in India, one of the worst of anomalies based on purely birth and race distinctions), it has not yet justified, and probably never will justify, the conclusion that the men so selected and admitted to a great service will be competent for other than subordinate positions in it. This is the common testimony, with a few exceptions, of all the reports upon the Bill. It is quite truly represented that these nominated officers, chosen very often more for their social connections than for any other qualifications, have given no guarantees of ability and character which should place them in the same category as the officers who have faced the difficulties and disabilities of a voyage across the seas, and have, by open competition in England, won their place in the Civil Service. What the Commissioner of the Presidency Division says upon this part of the subject is quite true: "The officers of the Native Civil Service come from the same classes as those from which the Uncovenanted Service is recruited. They have the same race feelings as those of their brethren of the latter service; and, save that they are not so experienced or so hard-working, there is no difference, as regards race qualification or disqualification, between a Deputy Magistrate and a member of the Native Civil Service under the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3." There is no magic in the words "Covenanted Service," which should be able to transform young men, taken from the same ranks as the general run of the Subordinate Executive Service, into superior beings fitted for posts of high responsibility. If anything is gained by a temporary sojourn of some three years in England, which is claimed for the Covenanted Native Civilian who enters the service by competition, the advantage is wholly wanting in the case of the statutory officers. There can be no kind of assurance that in their case they will be free from native thoughts and native prejudices; and ignorance of the ways and habits of Europeans is a distinct disqualification for dealing with criminal prosecutions against Europeans. The Lieutenant-Governor would ask attention to the forcible remarks made by the Magistrate and Collector of the 24-Pergunnahs upon this point. Mr. C. C. Stevens, the officer in question, has had twenty years' experience in many districts in Bengal. His whole career has been marked with an intelligent desire for the promotion of native interests. He has had under him in his district work Native Civilians of both classes, and his report throughout expresses that sense of regret which every one must share with him at having to deal with a question of such invidious delicacy for such a cause as this Bill represents. Yet, the fact is apparent, not from his report only, but from the reports of many other competent officers (and in this native opinion seems to be almost as decided as European), that there is an essential difference between these two classes of Native Civilians; and that, if the large body of uncovenanted officers are to be excluded from having jurisdiction in cases against Europeans, on the ground of unfitness, the disability extends with greater force to those of the Covenanted Service who enter it by nomination in India.

5. The Lieutenant-Governor is quite willing to recognise that the case of competition Native Civilians stands on a different footing. They have made sacrifices to secure the honourable positions which they hold, and they are sacrifices of a kind which Englishmen, of all people in the world, are best able to appreciate. They have abandoned caste, they have surrendered religious feelings, they have broken family ties, and set themselves against the devout sentiments and doctrines of their ancient creeds. The sentiments may not be so strong now as it was 15 or 20 years ago; but apart from the religious aspect of the case, the expense incurred in such an undertaking, and the risks of a long sea voyage (exaggerated in its perils to every native mind) to a foreign country, where they must live as strangers, and encounter, in the competition for the prize they are seeking, a large body of English youth who have enjoyed the advantage of the highest training and education—all these circumstances justify a claim to consideration on the part of the Government. There is weight, too, in the argument, which finds a place in many of the papers, that with the attainment of the status of a district officer, whether he be European or Native, there should be no distinction on the ground of nationality in the powers and privileges to be exercised. As an abstract proposition the Lieutenant-Governor assents to this; and, indeed, with much which Mr. Justice Romesh Chunder Mitter advances in his minute of the 25th May 1883, the Lieutenant-Governor would be willing to agree, if the premise could be accepted that to administrators and statesmen the policy of the measure was irrelevant and a matter of indifference. The learned Judge carefully excludes himself, as a judicial officer, from all such considerations in the opening paragraph of his memorandum; but it can scarcely be conceded that we are in India simply to make our laws symmetrical and to redress the sentimental grievances of an infinitesimal minority. They are high-sounding phrases which have appeared very frequently in the discussions upon this controverted measure, which talk of the abolition of "race distinctions" judicially, and the suppression of what one officer has called the enormous force of argument that is supposed to lie in the word "anomaly." But it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor that time at least has shown, if not the arguments of the opponents of the Bill, that the attempt to remove a single petty anomaly, which injures no one, reveals only the innumerable anomalies with which our whole position as the dominant power in India is surrounded; and that the Bill itself exposes that, so far from race disqualifications in judicial administration being abolished, this very evil becomes very greatly intensified and accentuated by the exclusion from the power, which it is proposed to assign to a few, of a large body of equally competent and meritorious public servants. The fact is that, with whatever sincerity finality may be pleaded, finality in such legislation is impossible, if once the principle is yielded; and the Lieutenant-Governor is inclined to suspect that very much of the vehemence of the agitation on both sides of the dispute arises from the knowledge that such is the case. The single question, then, is whether the time has come for the concession of the principle in any form and subject to any modifications of the Bill; and for the reasons to be immediately given, the Lieutenant-Governor is certainly of opinion that it has not.

6. It has been put forward, not so much from any concession to popular sentiment in the matter as from the necessities of the case, that, with the abandonment of much which now appears in the Bill as regards Cantonment Magistrates, Assistant Commissioners and Statutory Civilians, the power to try European British subjects should be extended only to the Covenanted Native Civilians who have entered the service by competition; and that the power should be restricted to such officers as District Magistrates and District Judges by virtue of their office. In presence of the extreme animosities which the question has excited, this seems rather a small object to be attained, and the descent from the original proposal suggests something of the trivial results of great efforts. In the first place, it may be noticed that such an issue would prospectively affect just nine individuals in India, and most of these at a distant period. Immediately, it would confer a privilege (if so it may be called) upon three native gentlemen—two in Lower Bengal and one in Bombay—and if legislation is justifiable only where a clear case is made out for recourse to it, the condition seems hardly to be fulfilled in this instance. But the objection seems to be valid still further, because of the two native gentlemen whom the Lieutenant-Governor has had recently the pleasure of appointing to districts, one at least will, in all probability, be relieved of his charge, in the course of next cold season, by the return from furlough of senior officers; and the Bill, by the time it became law, would affect only the one native Civilian in the Bombay Presidency, and possibly one in Bengal. It cannot be pretended, then, that there is any urgency for the legislation; nor in the constitution of the office of the Magistrate and Collector of a district in Bengal is there any necessity for it. It may be asserted beyond contradiction that from the beginning of the year to the end a Magistrate of a district rarely, if ever, thinks of dealing with criminal cases. He has the full power to do so; but his avocations are so numerous and his responsibilities so various in the general supervision of district administration, and in the particular charge which he retains in his own hands in connection with revenue and fiscal matters, that he would never have the leisure to attend to work on the magisterial side, and, as a consequence, the whole of this falls, by a necessary division of labour, and in the regular course of procedure, to the Joint-Magistrate of the district and his native subordinates in that line. Mr. Romesh Chunder Dutt is now officiating as Magistrate and Collector of the Backergunge district. The Lieutenant-Governor ventures to say that, with the extremely heavy revenue work of that district, he has no time, and probably has no inclination, to touch any work in the criminal courts; and if any case arose there in which a European was involved, the parties would not be put, as Mr. Romesh Chunder Dutt asserts, to "the hardship and inconvenience of travelling to a different district," but would find, in the European Joint-Magistrate on the spot, an officer not only competent to deal with the case, but one who, in the ordinary course of business, would have to deal with it without the necessity of any interference from his superior. This is not always the case: there are some districts in Bengal where Joint-Magistrates are not permanently stationed, but in such places not unfrequently there are European officers of the Uncovenanted Service, who, as the law now stands, can exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects. The arguments based on "administrative inconvenience" is utterly untenable in the present constitution of the Civil Service; and if it is untenable in Bengal, where six out of the nine Native Covenanted Civilians are employed, it can scarcely affect any other administration in the country. The consensus of opinion received from different provinces is very much invalidated by the fact that there is not a single member of the Native Covenanted Service, who has entered it by competition, in Madras, the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Burma, Assam, Sindh, or Coorg. There are two such officers in the Bombay Presidency; one, a very junior officer, under the Government of the North-Western Provinces; and six in Lower Bengal. There is scarcely an exception in the support given to the irrelevancy of the "administrative inconvenience" theory among all the reports from local officers. At the present moment there are 45 districts under the Bengal Government. At the same time there are two Native Civilians for whom, as Magistrates in charge of districts, immediate provision has to be made; and the contingency may arise of a third being appointed in the course of next year to a Civil and Sessions Judgeship. Executive arrangements will, it is obvious, quite easily provide, without detriment to the public interests or to the personal claims of these native officers, either that they should be in charge of districts where there are no Europeans, or, as regards the Magistrates, that they should be in charge of districts where the presence of a European Joint-Magistrate, or of a European Deputy Magistrate with full powers, would prevent any kind of inconvenience. Even if the time ever arrives when one-sixth of the magistracy of this Province is in the hands of Natives—though that is quite a different thing from one-sixth of the covenanted appointments being filled by natives, and is in itself very improbable—there could be no difficulty in carrying on the administration of criminal justice without any change in the law; but as a question of very remote concern, it is scarcely necessary to dwell upon the requirements of very distant circumstances.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor would have been glad if he could have stopped here. He is ready to admit that if everything which he has already urged against the Bill was conceded, but the competency of a Native Magistrate to exercise jurisdiction in European cases was admitted, the proposal for the present modification of the Criminal Procedure Code would render the position of the advocates of the Bill not unassailable, because many political considerations would still affect the issue, but much stronger than it is now. But the question has to be met whether the legislation contemplated is justified by the fitness of the native judiciary for the powers which it is proposed to confer upon them, and in the Lieutenant-Governor's judgment the answer must be in the negative. He comes here to that part in the discussion which, as contained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill, represents the aim of it to be to secure the fair and impartial administration of justice, and to the observations of the Hon'ble Member who introduced the Bill that these particular cases against Europeans were in India admittedly few and exceptionally troublesome. Now the Lieutenant-Governor has little sympathy with that section of the opponents of the measure which represents the possibility of unrighteous judgments leading to severe and unjustifiable sentences at the hands of Native Magistrates, who are supposed to be a corrupt body, biassed against the European. If bias there might be in critical cases, there is little justification for any apprehensions from excessive punishments. If we have taught the natives anything, we have taught them to respect the purity of judicial administration, and, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, in these days of railways and telegraphs no wilful injustice could occur in the remotest corners of the country without being at once brought to light and remedied. Apart, however, from the main objection, which the Lieutenant-Governor will presently advert to, there are other drawbacks which must be noticed. The surroundings of a mofussil Magistrate's court are not exactly the surroundings of a court at Westminster, or of the High Court in Calcutta. An Englishman, much more an Englishwoman, summoned to such a court (frequently, as evidence shows, on a false charge) has to undergo many indignities which a European officer can at once control and check, but which, in a court presided over by a native, find free course amidst a sympathetic audience. There is no exaggeration in this, as most persons who have had to deal with such cases can testify; and the absolute distrust which the European in the interior has of such courts arises not so much from any positive want of confidence in the Magistrate, if left to himself, as from the atmosphere of perjury, forgery and intrigue which is about him and around him. Beyond this, however, the Lieutenant-Governor is bound to say that there is a much greater risk of the failure of justice from a want of nerve in the native to deal in the presence of public excitement with the kind of "troublesome cases" to which these papers refer. The experience of every officer in the country will supply illustrations in which this independent force of character has been found wanting in the natives, and the reports before Government show innumerable cases in which a constitutional timidity has led natives to shirk duty because it is difficult. In judicial trials it is a much easier thing to acquit, when the acquittal terminates all enquiry and disposes of a serious embarrassment, than to convict and punish in complicated cases against the resolute determination of a violent Englishman, backed by a strong local opinion in his favour. The Lieutenant-Governor would ask if any head of an administration in India would place a native officer in independent charge of a frontier district. A Bengali in such a position at any rate might know all our criminal codes by heart, and be animated by the strictest desire to apply the law of evidence, and yet would certainly fail if a crisis impended from any sudden irruption of frontier tribes. In the recent discussions about Appellate Benches, one of the earliest, and, as it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor, the simplest methods suggested for limiting petty appeals was to constitute at capital stations a bench composed of the European and First Subordinate Judge to finally dispose of all such cases, and yet the objection came from the most competent judges of native character—the natives themselves—that on such a tribunal the Native Judge could exercise no independence. A good deal has recently been heard of Local self-Government schemes, in which the presence or absence of the Magistrate of the district as President of the Committee is considered a very material point; but the argument on which the natives' objection is based is that the presence of even a single official on a Committee would stop discussion, would paralyse the action of the native members, and would imperil the object for which the scheme has been introduced. There is probably much more than this dislike of control which repudiates the co-operation of English officers in the prosecution of a great reform; but, taking their own admissions, there can, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, be scarcely a stronger argument for the unfitness of natives to carry on such a measure alone than the incapacity which they allege in the presence of the European. These may not all be exactly apposite illustrations to the position of a Magistrate discharging judicial functions; but they indicate what many passages in the reports before Government describe, and what any practical experience of the country confirms, that the quality of courage, whether moral or physical, is not among the virtues of the people with whom we have to deal in Bengal. The disqualification referred to is further evidenced by the notorious fact, common to every district, that even native litigants in emergent and difficult cases will ask for the trial of their suits by an English tribunal. It can scarcely be a matter of surprise that what is an object of distrust to the natives themselves should be an object of distrust to Europeans.

8. The Government of India will scarcely need a more convincing proof of the unqualified repugnance which the European community throughout India entertain towards this Bill than the general reprobation of it which public opinion in various forms has expressed. The strong feelings which the measure has evoked have, it is to be regretted, found not unfrequent expression in unnecessary bitterness and hostility towards Government. The Lieutenant-Governor would fain hope that this excess of feeling in this matter will not influence the judgment which is to decide the fate of the Bill. If he urges himself its withdrawal, it is in the conviction that it is not necessary for the judicial work of the country, and that it takes away a privilege, which Englishmen in India very highly value. In asking for the retention of that privilege, they ask only for what has been theirs since British courts of criminal judicature were established in the country, and they ask it in no derogation of the claims of the natives who, on their own side, enjoy privileges which, if the question of an impartial administration of justice is concerned, affect it much more seriously than the concession in favour of some half dozen Native Magistrates. The political issues are of course of much wider consequence. "The very bad thing about the Bill is its principle"—the principle, that is, that by a stroke of the pen we are to establish equality, ignoring race distinctions, among a people who themselves repudiate the idea in their intercourse with each other with the utmost scorn and aversion. Our thoughts are not their thoughts, nor are their ways our ways; and it has been quite justly pointed out that as long as there is such a wide divergence between Englishmen and Natives, as regards moral standards, social customs and political status, any attempt to remove judicial disqualifications must be as dangerous as it is premature. They will not be removed, at least, by legislative enactment. "Naturam expellas furcā, tamen usque recurret." It will recur in hostility and scandals and contentions, whenever a serious case arises in which Englishmen are involved before native courts; and the result must be continuous agitation. Be it privilege or prejudice which the Englishman asserts here, there can be no question that amongst them the bare proposal to withdraw it has excited a fiercer and more perilous conflict of races than was witnessed after the mutiny of 1857; and so the work of 26 years, in which every true Englishman and Native has welcomed the growth of a stronger mutual regard and toleration for each other, and in which a spirit of charity and forbearance was winning its way to a better understanding of each other's wants, has to be begun over again. It is the Lieutenant-Governor's hope that the work may be accelerated by the abandonment of a measure which should never have been introduced, for its very abandonment will contribute, more than anything else, to the right union between all classes of Her Majesty's subjects in India, in advancing, through the social reforms which are before us, our common interests in this great Empire.

---

No. 4402, dated 28th June 1883.

From—C. GONNE, Esq., Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, -
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Dept.

In continuation of my letter No. 4005, dated the 14th instant, I am directed to transmit, for the information of the Government of India, copy of a supplementary opinion forwarded by the Honourable the Advocate General, Bombay, on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

---

Opinion by the HON'BLE J. MARRIOTT, Advocate General, Bombay, on the Ilbert Bill,—No. 43, dated 10th June 1883.

In continuation of my No. 31 of 1883 I beg to say that I think it inexpedient that the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, should in its original or in any modified form become law.

The objects and reasons for the Bill state the Government of India has decided to remove from the Code any judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinction.

I think this very race distinction (which cannot be removed by any legislative enactment) is the very reason why the Bill should not be passed.

The position of Englishmen in India differs in toto from their position in any Christian country in which they may settle—in a Christian country they would intermingle with and form a part of the society in which they dwell. But in India the Englishman dwells apart from the Natives by whom he is surrounded, and this is attributable not to the character of Englishmen but to the immiscible character of the Native. His religion, customs, thoughts, ideas, character, and above all his caste prejudices prevent his mixing with Europeans. The following passage from the celebrated Judgment of Lord Stowell in the case of the Indian Chief is as applicable now as when it was delivered in 1801:—"In the East from the oldest times an immiscible character has been kept up—foreigners are not admitted into the general body, and among the society of the nation they continue strangers and sojourners as all their fathers were. Doris amara suam non intermiscuit undam."

In no sense do Natives in this country form the friends, associates or equals of Englishmen, and it is I believe in fact to that feeling that the universal condemnation of, and antipathy to the Bill by the whole English non-official community is and justly to be ascribed. Every Englishman carries about with him the feeling that it is his birthright to be tried by his peers, a right given to him by Magna Charta. "Nullus liber homo capiat vel imprisonetur.....aut aliquo modo destruatur nec super eum ibimus nec super eum mittemus nisi per legale iudicium parium suorum vel per legem terræ." The Englishman feels that if tried by a Native he will not be tried for "legale iudicium parium suorum."

By Act IX of 1874, Section 30, the Viceregal Legislature deprived vagrants who were European British subjects of their privileges as such as a badge of disgrace. At the instance of one man the Viceregal Legislature is now asked to deprive the thousands of Englishmen now in India of these same privileges.

There is also the belief that an Englishman if tried by a Native Judge up-country away from his friends without European legal assistance and without a vigilant European Press might not have justice done him. After 20 years' professional experience in this country and in a presidency-town, I regret to say I consider that belief well-founded.

My No. 31 was written in answer to a request that I would state my opinion on the proposed modification of the Bill, consequently I did not then give my opinion on the merits.

---

No. 2822—161, dated 30th June 1883.

From—A. H. L. FRASER, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In reference to your letter No. 163, dated 26th January 1882, calling for opinions on the Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill, I am directed to forward copy of a note recorded by Sir John Morris, and to say that Mr. Jones will submit his opinion within two days from this date.

---

Note by J. H. MORRIS, Esq., Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,—dated 23rd April 1883.

In April 1882, my opinion was asked on a proposal to relieve Native members of the covenanted civil service of such restrictions on their powers as are imposed by Chapter XXXIII of the new Code of Criminal Procedure. I stated in reply (vide my Secretary's letter No. 1694—86, dated 15th May last) that the proposal had my approval. The grounds on which this view was based were two—

1. That these Native members of the covenanted service had been admitted after an examination conducted in London and designed to prove their European education and enlightenment; and (2) that the Government of Bengal, which is most interested in this question, had advocated the proposal.

2. I am still of opinion that there is nothing to urge theoretically against the proposal then under discussion; and I can hardly believe that, had that proposal alone been introduced into the Code, there would have been any serious objection or opposition. But the circumstances of the case have now entirely altered, and I cannot see my way to approve of the Bill now circulated for criticism.

3. In the first place, the scope of the measure is materially enlarged. To the Native members of the covenanted service are added (1) the members of the statutory Native service, who are appointed without a European training, and (2) Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation Provinces. To these two classes I should be averse to entrust the powers proposed until I had more clear proof of their ability to exercise them.

4. In the second place, His Honour the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has, if I am not mistaken, expressed his inability to see any administrative necessity for the introduction of this measure, and his grave doubt as to the propriety of entrusting such powers as it contemplates to Native officers. This statement from the head of the Government most affected very materially modifies the position of the question.

5. The very strong, and sometimes deplorably violent, agitation against the Bill on the part of Europeans would seem now to make it impossible to introduce any change in the law at present. It would be better, therefore, in my opinion, to withdraw the Bill for the present, than to legislate on the basis even of the original proposal.

6. I record these views because I am about to leave the province, and I think it right to leave my views on record for the information of my successor, the more especially as I had recorded them a year ago, and have had to take up what may appear at first sight a different attitude now.

No. 1577, Confidential, dated 13th June 1883.

From—C. G. MASTER, Esq., Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

I am now directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, copy of the opinions of the Honourable the Advocate General, certain selected district officers and Native gentlemen, on the provisions of the Bill,* which accompanied your letter of the 17th March last, No. 23-C.

* To amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, with Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The High Court has not yet furnished its opinion.

2. The present Bill, His Excellency in Council remarks, goes beyond the change that was proposed by the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, about which the Government of Madras was consulted, and which that Government approved (the two Civil Members of Council dissenting), as expressed in my letter and its enclosures under date 8th June last year. To withdraw the Bill altogether, in deference to the opposition it has evoked in certain quarters, would, in the judgment of His Excellency in Council, be a grave political error; but he is of opinion that jurisdiction over European British subjects should be entrusted only to Covenanted Native Civilians, i. e., those who enter the service after a competitive examination conducted in England.

3. I am to enclose a Minute recorded by the Right Honourable the Governor and one by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

Dated 9th April 1883.

From—RAJA SIR T. MADAVA ROW, K.C.S.I.,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

Adverting to G. O. dated 2nd instant, No. 937, Judicial, I have the honour to annex a memorandum briefly expressing my opinion on the Bill, therein alluded to, to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure in respect of jurisdiction over European British subjects, and to request you will be good enough to submit the same to His Excellency the Governor in Council.

MEMORANDUM.

As I have been asked to submit to Government my opinion on the provisions of the "Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects," I beg to offer a few brief observations.

2. The principle of the Bill appears to be perfectly sound. It is the duty of every liberal-minded and far-seeing Statesman to do in his generation what may be in his power towards the removal or reduction of invidious inequalities based merely on race distinctions.

3. Moreover, I have no hesitation in avowing my belief that the Natives of India, whom the Bill proposes to invest with jurisdiction over European British subjects, will be found fairly qualified to exercise the same. The administration of justice will not suffer at their hands.

4. It is therefore much to be regretted that the Bill has met with so much opposition from the European community in general.

5. Howmuchsoever that opposition is to be regretted, it cannot be disregarded or made light of in the deliberations of practical Statesmanship.

6. I do not think it would be the wisest course to pass the Bill, while that opposition continues to its present extent and in its present intensity. I would not incur the risk of such widespread irritation and recurring embarrassments in the Empire, as would outweigh the good which the proposed law has in view.

7. I would rather wait until the prevailing misconceptions and exaggerated views pass away, and until, at least, the more intellectual and influential portion of the European community come to feel that the Bill only gives effect to a right principle, or that it is at least harmless.

8. In the exercise of prudence in administering a vast and complex Empire, and maintaining harmony between heterogeneous interests, a Government has sometimes to pause, even in the pursuit of just or benevolent objects. It is only real firmness to be able to pause when it is desirable to do so.

9. It is to be earnestly hoped that the Native community will brook any necessary delay with loyal patience, and that the European community will gradually relax their opposition and reconsider the whole question in a more dispassionate spirit.

Dated 10th April 1883.

From—The Hon'ble P. O'SULLIVAN, Advocate General, Madras.

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the Order of Government, Judicial Department, dated the 2nd April 1883, and a copy of the Bill referred to therein to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European subjects with Statement of Objects and Reasons.

2. My opinion upon the Bill is that it would, if passed, remove an anomaly which ought not to be permitted to exist longer than the circumstances of the country demand; that the tendency of legislation must be to limit, and ultimately to remove, distinctions founded upon race in relation to the administration of justice; but that the time has not yet come to give the jurisdiction provided for in the Bill to the extent contemplated. I think it would have been as well not to have raised the question at all at present, seeing that the new Code of Criminal Procedure only came into force in the beginning of this year, though, whenever the Code comes to be recast, the question is one which will require to be dealt with in some way and in the direction taken by the Bill. Since, however, the question has been raised, and a Bill introduced, I think the prudent course to take would be to restrict the powers conferred by the Bill to Class (a) in Section 1, viz., Members of the Covenanted Civil Service. This class would consist of men whose training, experience, and character would, in all probability, enable them to exercise the jurisdiction in a manner likely to be generally acceptable to the public. In time the class may be enlarged with the same results. But it seems to me to be inexpedient to invest classes of officers with criminal jurisdiction in whose knowledge and impartiality persons charged before them would not have confidence. It is to be borne in mind that Magistrates in the Mofussil, at least in this part of India, are at liberty to try criminal cases whenever they are (within their districts) engaged in the performance of their revenue or other duties, and that cases are sometimes tried in remote and comparatively inaccessible places. There is no public, and the person charged would frequently find it difficult to get a competent person to defend or advise him. If some of the officers and attendants of the Court, not always scrupulous persons, wished to throw impediments in the way of the accused person, or to favour one of the parties, they would have many opportunities of doing so without much risk of detection. These difficulties would be aggravated in the case of a European having an imperfect knowledge, or no knowledge, of the language of the district. In cases before Magistrates in the Presidency Towns and Sessions Judges, the proceedings are conducted in open Court, and are subject to the influence of such public opinion as there is available.

3. In this country criminal charges are frequently brought and supported by false evidence. The evidence is sometimes wholly false, but more frequently exaggerated, and few cases are free from falsehood. It happens, too, that a case, true in itself, is supported by the testimony of witnesses who have no actual knowledge of the facts to which they depose, and some of whom would not give evidence if they did not believe that the case was substantially a true one. A true case may be discredited by reason of the falsehoods which are almost certain to be detected in it. In civil cases there is nearly always some documentary evidence, but, as a general rule, such evidence cannot be expected in criminal cases. The result is that false charges may be treated as proved, and true charges dismissed. I know of no more difficult task than to administer criminal justice in this country, and it is therefore not surprising if (as I believe to be the fact) this is the function of Government which has hitherto been least perfectly discharged.

4. I do not think the objection to giving Native Magistrates jurisdiction over European British subjects is founded so much upon a belief in their want of impartiality as with their want of sympathy with the European and want of knowledge of his ways and habits. It would be apprehended that false charges would increase, inasmuch as false charges and false evidence would not, speaking generally, produce so much disapprobation in the mind of a Native as of a European Magistrate, and that the Native Magistrate would not take action as effectively as the European Magistrate would with a view to prevent a repetition of such charges. Then, the ministerial (especially the inferior) officers of a Court have various powers of injury and annoyance in the case of suitors in the Courts in which they are employed. Native suitors frequently think the prudent course, with regard to such persons, is to "purchase peace." I believe many of them are only too anxious to make the purchase from any one who is supposed to have any portion of the commodity for sale. Europeans, however, especially those who have not had much experience of the country, would not be likely to do this, and would be thereby at some disadvantage.

5. The expediency of the present Bill depends upon the question of time. I suppose few would assert that it would have been advisable to have given this jurisdiction forty years ago, whilst on the other hand, few will maintain that the time for giving it can never come. I think the time will come for giving to Natives of India almost every power which is given to Englishmen; that education and the power and right to manage their own affairs will tend to put down false speaking and false swearing, and corruption in its various forms, and that people will perceive the injury and insecurity caused by such vices. There are very many natives who are as free from these vices as any other persons of any race, and I believe the number will rapidly increase. Without at all adopting views founded upon distinctions of race, I think the practical objections to the Bill rest upon a substantial foundation.

No. 2152, dated 10th April 1883.

From—H. E. STOKES, Esq., Acting District Magistrate, Tanjore,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour, with reference to G. O., 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial Department, to state that, in my opinion, Mr. Ilbert's Bill will probably prove innocuous, but is altogether unnecessary.

Dated 14th April 1883.

From—P. P. HUTCHINS, Esq., On Special Duty, Ootacamund,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the Honourable Mr. Ilbert's Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, forwarded for my opinion with G.O., 2nd April 1883, No. 937.

2. In all probability, worked with the discretion which Government might be expected to exercise, the practical result of the proposed changes would have been very slight. Very few native officials would have been made Justices of the Peace, and still fewer sent to districts where it is likely that Europeans would have been brought before them. But if so, the very necessity for this case becomes an argument against the Bill, while, if it is denied that such caution is necessary or would be exercised, then I should certainly be opposed to the Bill altogether. In my opinion the time has not come, if it ever will come, at which English settlers in the mofussil can, with safety to themselves or to the country, be deprived of their right to be tried by their own countrymen.

3. The reasons against the Bill have been stated so frequently and so forcibly by Mr. Justice Stephen and others, that I will not inflict their repetition on the Government. My opinion in brief is that the practical outcome of the Bill will be either nil or mischievous, and that therefore it should not be proceeded with.

No. 58, dated 16th April 1883.

From—F. BRANDT, Esq., District Magistrate, Nilgiris,
To The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour to submit the following remarks on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, copy of which Bill was sent to me with G.O., dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial.

1. I do not think that it has been shown that, as a matter of administrative necessity, the proposed alteration in the law is urgently called for at the present time.

2. It may become so in time, if and when a considerable proportion of the Members of the Covenanted Civil Service and Civil Service constituted under 33 Victoria, Chapter 3, being Natives of India, occupy the position of Sessions Judges and District Magistrates: this is not so at present, and sufficient for the day are the necessities thereof.

3. As to the anomaly, there are many anomalies inherent in the position which the ruling power occupies in this country, and I do not think that that which is now selected for removal as such is of such importance as to justify the measure now proposed. Nor do I think that the removal of this will satisfy those who consider other race distinctions to be anomalies, but will rather incite them to ask for further and even more sweeping changes.

4. Those who are now asked for their opinion on the subject have a great advantage over others who were called upon to pronounce on the measure before it had been encountered by the fierce opposition which it has elicited.

5. Whatever opinion I might have formed in the first instance—and I can honestly say that I never saw the necessity for the change, and was surprised that so important a measure should have been brought forward so very soon after the new Criminal Procedure Code had come into force—I am decidedly of opinion that, viewed in the light thrown upon the subject by discussions at public meetings and in newspapers of the first class, both English and Indian, the proposal should be withdrawn for some years to come at all events.

6. No one can regret more than I do the acerbity which has been displayed in some quarters in discussing the question; and there have been not unfrequently unjust aspersions thrown out and unfairness displayed in argument, but I am satisfied that the apprehensions entertained by independent Europeans settled and interested in this country are in general sincere, and being so are not lightly to be disregarded for the sake of introducing greater uniformity into a Criminal Code framed with reference to a very exceptional state of society and Government.

No. 102, dated 18th April 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COLONEL T. WELDON, Chief Presidency Magistrate, Madras,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour, in reply to the Orders of Government, dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937 (Judicial), calling for an expression of opinion in regard to the proposed amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, to state that, in my humble opinion, no practical inconvenience is at all likely to result from a continuance of the privilege now enjoyed by European British subjects of trial only by persons of their own race and nationality.

2. The fact that in the presidency-towns this privilege has ceased to exist has apparently been regarded as an all-sufficient reason for abolishing the special jurisdiction generally. So far as Madras is concerned, the appointment of Natives to be Justices of the Peace, authorised to try European British subjects, is of comparatively recent date. My experience in the presidency-town and in the mofussil has not been favourable to an extension of the experiment,

3. As a matter of legislative symmetry there seems to be no logical reason why any First Class Magistrate, or even Second or Third Class Magistrate, should be excluded from the exercise, in all cases, of all the judicial powers appertaining to his grade. It may be assumed that District Magistrates and Sessions Judges will not be selected solely or mainly on account of their anticipated fitness to deal with the occasional cases in which European British subjects may be accused of offences.

4. I think there must surely be some stronger foundation than mere sentiment for the unanimous cry of alarm on the part of those whom the proposed measure principally affects, and, unless this consensus of opinion is to be ignored, some concession should be made to allay the bitter feeling that has been aroused. It is, I submit, most noteworthy that the non-official portion of the community should be roused as it is, for it is that portion which is in the best position to give an independent opinion as to the probable effect of the desired amendment of the law.

No. 1223, dated 25th April 1883.

From—J. G. HORSEFALL, Esq., District Magistrate, Ganjam,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour to submit my opinion upon the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. I am bound to confess that the Bill has met with very general opposition from the European residents in India, but this appears to me to have arisen mainly from a misapprehension of the scope of its provisions and the change that will be thereby effected in the existing law.

3. Now that natives are admitted into the Civil Service, and will, in course of time, form a fair proportion of the officers by whom the administration of the country is to be carried on, I am of opinion that the powers sought to be conferred by the Bill must necessarily be granted, at least, in a modified form.

4. I would accordingly strike out Section 1, retaining Section 2, and limiting the extension to District Magistrates and Session Judges only.

5. This will ensure an officer having had considerable experience before he is invested with the special powers, and will remove most of the objections that have been urged against the Bill.

Dated 2nd May 1883.

From—F. W. EMERY, Esq., Chairman, Madras Trades Association,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of G.O. No. 937 of 2nd ultimo.

2. I am desired by this Association to state that so much has been urged in opposition to the new Criminal Procedure Bill that it seems scarcely possible to advance any argument in opposition to the same that has not already been considered; but, at the same time, we are glad of an opportunity of stating that we cordially endorse most of the objections raised against the Bill. Our position as Tradesmen necessarily brings us in contact with all classes of the community. We, therefore, possess peculiar facilities for gauging public opinion, and we unhesitatingly assert that, certainly, in this Presidency the alleged "consensus of opinion" in favour of the Bill does not exist. The Europeans, almost to a man, strenuously oppose the measure, whilst the natives—the intelligent natives—treat the question with the most absolute and almost unprecedented indifference, in fact, many of the latter—Barristers and other professional men—have particularly requested permission to attach their signatures to the Madras petition against the Bill. It appears to this Association—and the objections are urged with all deference—that the measure has been prompted by sentiment, introduced without due and proper consideration, with an entire disregard to the interests or feelings of the people most affected, and that it exhibits a want of information on the subject with which it deals, altogether too serious to contemplate.

3. Mr. Ilbert's apology for the Bill "to remove an anomaly" appears to us insufficient justification for the measure; but, even granting the supposed anomaly, we contend that the rights claimed by Europeans are less than the privileges accorded to natives in this country. It is impossible to enter even the High Court in the presidency-towns, to sit with Native Jurors, and not feel astonishment at the ease with which their minds are swayed, either by the summing up of the Judge, the arguments of counsel or the remarks of brother jurymen, whilst it is palpable to the most casual observer that a large proportion of evidence tendered by native witnesses is of a most thoroughly unreliable and unsatisfactory character. This is essentially the case where Europeans are concerned; the two races have scarcely an opinion in common, and we respectfully submit that natives are not competent to sift evidence, more particularly as regards Europeans, and that it will be prejudicial to the best interests of the country to invest Native Magistrates with the same judicial authority as Europeans. Happily our experience of Motussil Courts, presided over by Native Magistrates, is not great, but, limited as such experience is, we are justified in supporting the popular verdict that, in many of these Courts,* bribery and the manufacture of false evidence appear to be essential elements to the administration of "justice."

No. 1631, dated 7th May 1883.

From—U. A. GALTON, Esq., Acting District Magistrate of Malabar,
To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras

With reference to G.O., dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial, referring for the opinion of certain selected officers a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I have the honour to forward copy of a memorandum on the subject recorded by Mr. Logan before leaving the district, and the replies of the representative bodies* consulted by him (in original).

* Chamber of Commerce, Tellicherry.
Ditto ditto, Cochin.
Wynaad Planters' Association.
European community of Calicut.

Memorandum on the Ilbert Bill for amending the Code of Criminal Procedure by W. LOGAN, Esq., Collector of Calicut,—dated 27th April 1883.

If the opinion of the European community is, as I anticipate, unanimously opposed to the Bill, then I think that the Bill should not be pressed. To pass it would, in the first place, be to alienate the good-will of, and to convey a rebuff to, the European community, thereby giving rise to deep-rooted dissatisfaction, the evil consequences of which would be out of all proportion to the administrative advantages to be secured.

2. On the merits of the Bill itself I can add but little to the views which are so ably expressed by the two representative bodies* whose opinions have been received up to date. Those opinions ought to carry great weight as being the opinions of men who see a good deal more than officials do behind the scenes (so to speak).

* Malabar Chamber of Commerce.
Cochin ditto.

3. So far as I have been able to judge, there is no extensive prejudice among Europeans against the admission of Natives into the ranks of the Covenanted Civil Service. On the contrary all enlightened men are unanimous in thinking that the policy of Government on this point is the only practicable policy. Any other would be suicidal, for it would be inconsistent with the great progress made lately in native education and with the growth of a native public opinion. In so far therefore as the Europeans in Malabar are concerned, I am, I believe, justified in stating that an opinion which is prevalent and which has received the high sanction of His Excellency the Viceroy himself—viz., that this agitation against the Bill is really an agitation against the native community having any but a subordinate interest in the administration of their own country—is, as a matter of fact, erroneous and requires, as such, to be distinctly repudiated.

4. A non-official European—and there are hundreds of them in Malabar engaged in commerce, in planting, and in mining—submits almost with complacency to loss of property brought about by hard swearing in the Civil Courts, knowing that he can either recover it on appeal, or at the worst have to write it off to profit and loss in business; but to be deprived (even for a short time) of liberty by hard swearing trenches upon one of the most sacred birth-rights of Englishmen. The remarks of the Chairman of the Cochin Chamber of Commerce on this point deserve, I think, very grave consideration.

5. The fact is that the native community is only now, after a century of British rule, beginning to realise to any extent that they are, through the happy chance of British intervention in their affairs, the inheritors of that freedom which was won with the blood of Englishmen long before England was known in Eastern seas. This freedom has so far filtered but slowly downwards, and has hardly yet had any effect on the ignorant masses. Until the idea of it is engrained in the character of coolies and of those who are still practically slaves, no Englishman's liberty will be safe, unless he can rely on having, as his Judges in criminal matters, men of his own nationality. For it is undoubtedly a fact that all classes of natives, but practically the lower orders, dare not even yet, after a century of British rule and British freedom, do what they would, or say what they think or know. Their actions and their words are adapted to the views of those who have power over them, and they swear black is white with supreme complacency when their own or their superior's interests require it of them. To put the matter in few words, they are still, as a body, unfitted to be the guardians either of their own or of other people's liberty.

6. The progress made already gives sure promise of a still more rapid advance hereafter, but to propose to legislate as if, at the present day, Native ideas and English ideas, in regard to this fundamental privilege were one and the same, betrays ignorance of the relative position of the two communities, and can only lead to race jealousy and strife. It will be time enough to propose to put Englishmen and Natives on a footing of equality in this respect when the Native prefers being tried by his own countrymen to being tried by foreigners. And any one who has had practical experience of district work will say at once, notwithstanding all the steady progress made of recent years, that that time has, as matter of fact, not yet arrived.

7. I think the Bill should be withdrawn.

Dated 20th April, 1883.

From—F. FLETCHER, Esq., Honorary Secretary, Chamber of Commerce Malabar,
To—The Collector of Malabar.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1240-E., dated 9th instant, requesting the views of the Chamber of Commerce here on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. In reply, I have to state that the Chamber view the so-called "amendment" with alarm, and consider it a dangerous innovation.

3. The general arguments against the Bill have been so fully entered into in the newspapers that the Members of this Chamber do not propose to occupy your time with a needless repetition of them, but at the same time would like to express the following views:—

- (1) In their opinion natives of this country cannot become fit Judges of Europeans, since their early training, their customs, and their habits of thought, &c., are utterly different from those of Europeans. Coupled to this are their strong race prejudices and their known weakness in the matter of bribes, &c.
- (2) There is not sufficient community of feeling and of ideas to admit of the European and the Native being placed on the same level, and while it may be advisable not to obtrude this fact of European superiority over the Natives, yet it is an undoubted fact and one which, in such matters as that now under consideration, must be recognised.
- (3) That though the Native Members of the Covenanted Civil Service would probably be less disqualified than many others to exercise such powers, still they would retain their nature, and the fact of their being Civilians could not alter this.
- (4) A Native Member of the Covenanted Civil Service, from his education and qualifications, may expect, and, certainly does hope, to be treated socially on an equality with Europeans, while practically this will never be the case.

Feeling that he is shut out from the society of Europeans, he would be very apt to act in a prejudiced manner if any member of that community were brought before him.

- (5) Few in number as the Europeans are, scattered over the country and, in very many cases, isolated in wild districts, where large gangs of labour are kept in order merely by the recognised superior moral influence of the Europeans, the Chamber consider it most essential that they should be guarded by special rights and privileges, and their position, as members of the dominant race, be made such that they shall be treated with proper respect and consideration.

It is, undoubtedly, the fact of the Englishman's hitherto occupying such a position amongst the native population of this country that has preserved him from robbery and insult, and caused his little home to be universally respected.

- (6) Should the Bill ever be passed (which the Members of this Chamber fervently trust may never be the case), they think that it will rapidly destroy the planting and similar industries in India.

That prestige which enables the Englishman to hold his own in this country would at once be lost, and his position become untenable. This would deter them from settling in India and bringing their capital here and developing the country's latent resources.

- (7) In conclusion, the Chamber feel that were the Bill passed, it would be admitting the thin edge of the wedge, which would ere long, in spite of European opposition, without much difficulty be driven home.

Dated 19th April 1883.

From—W. N. BLACK, Esq., Honorary Secretary, Chamber of Commerce, Cochin,
To—The District Magistrate of Malabar.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 1240-E. of 9th instant, asking for an expression of opinion of this Chamber as regards the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, as far as relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. In reply, I am instructed to inform you that a meeting was held on the 8th ultimo under the auspices of the Chamber to consider this subject, and as the resolutions then passed embody the unanimous views of this Chamber, I enclose a copy of proceedings for your information.

Proceedings of a Meeting held at the Club on the 8th March 1883, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce to consider the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert's Bill.

There were present—Messrs. Brunton, Sealy, Oughterson, Grieve, Wright, Cavenish, Sparrow, Highton, and Black.

Mr. Brunton, who was elected to take the chair, opened the proceedings with the following remarks :—

Gentlemen,—I do not think that I need say much respecting the object of our meeting. So much has been said and so well by others and published in the newspapers, which, I take it for granted, all of you have read, that there is little or nothing to be added.

In conversation with those who uphold Mr. Ilbert's Bill, I have been told that to be consistent I ought to object to the power now held by Native Judges of trying civil cases, in which the property of Europeans, to any amount, is subject to the decision of those Judges, and at the first blush there appears to be some reason in this, but on looking deeper it will be seen that there is no comparison between civil and criminal jurisdiction. An unfortunate European up-country has a civil case, through the perjury of witnesses, decided against him, he can appeal at once and get a hearing before his own countrymen and can be reinstated in his original position, or even, if unsuccessful in obtaining justice, loses at most so much property or so many rupees; but if he be brought up on a criminal charge, falsely brought against him, and supported by perjury, and he be imprisoned even for a day, no power on earth can wipe out the stain which will rest on his name to his dying day, although his sentence be afterwards annulled and his character cleared. The stigma of being an ex-convict or jail-bird can never be effaced.

If all anomalies are to be swept away and the prejudices of different races or castes are to be ignored, what a task is before Mr. Ilbert! What greater anomaly could there be, for instance, than a Mussulman Judge sentencing an Englishman for bigamy, when he, the Judge, has four lawful wives at home? The Englishman's rule is successful, because he shuts his eyes to anomalies and allows for the prejudices of his neighbours, whether they be sentimental or otherwise, so that they do not inflict injuries on others. Call our objection to this Bill a prejudice, sentimental or otherwise, the fact remains that we object in the strongest manner to any legislation which may even lead to unprotected countrymen of ours in Mofussil stations being left in criminal charges to the tender mercies of any but our own countrymen.

I think that the present agitation and indignation raised throughout the country in the breasts of Englishmen against this most uncalled-for attempt to cancel our most prized privileges will convince the Government that it has made a mistake.

Let the natives of this country show us, by, say, half a century of honorable, upright, impartial conduct in the high positions to which they have been already raised, that we have no good reason for fearing to entrust our liberty in their hands, and then it will be time to ask us to abandon our prejudices.

Other gentlemen spoke in a similar strain, all condemning most heartily this purposed violation of our national rights.

The following propositions were then put and unanimously carried :—

First.—That the following resolution, passed at a meeting held at the Madras Chamber of Commerce on 23rd February, be adopted :—

That, in the opinion of this meeting, the alteration in the law proposed by Government in the Bill entitled, "A Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects" demands the concerted opposition of the European community throughout British India, as being an unnecessary sacrifice to ideal legislation of our highly-prized right, and as likely to seriously check the introduction of European capital into India.

Second.—That this meeting agrees to give its best support to the efforts of the Committee formed in Madras for the purpose of opposing the passing of the Hon. Mr. Ilbert's most objectionable and unnecessary Bill.

Third.—That to defray any necessary expenses for the above purpose, it undertakes to subscribe to the fund opened in Madras.

Dated 6th May 1883.

From—G. L. YONGE, Esq., Honorary Secretary, Wynaad Planters' Association, To—The District Magistrate, Malabar.

I have the honour to own receipt of your letter of the 9th ultimo, calling for an expression of opinion on the part of the Association on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. I am directed by the Association to say that they view with the greatest alarm the proposed alteration in the law, an alteration, they think, at once most dangerous and uncalled for, and, on behalf of the great body of European settlers in this district, they most emphatically enter their protest against it.

3. The Association deplors the harm that has already been done by the bare proposal of such a change in the law, and they most earnestly hope that the Government will listen to the almost unanimous expression of alarm and disapproval that has shown itself throughout the non-official European element in India, and will withdraw the obnoxious measure.

4. That the country is not ripe for such a radical measure is, the Association ventures to assert, proved by the language used throughout India by the Vernacular Press. Already the opinions of those who are hostile to the Bill have been stigmatised as "the senseless clamour of an ignorant rabble," and already the Native Press ventures to talk of an India "united from the Himalayas to Cape Comorin with a national flag and a national ruler."

5. The Association has no hesitation in saying that, since the mutiny, nothing has occurred heretofore so calculated to disturb the social relations between the Europeans and Natives as this proposed change in the Criminal Procedure Code, a disturbance which, were the proposal withdrawn tomorrow, will take some years to settle down again.

6. The Association is unable to understand the reasons for the proposed change which, it appears to them, will only tend to gratify the self-conceit of a few hitherto unknown Native Magistrates, and the Association deprecate a concession which will please such a limited few, and which, at the same time, most justly alarms and aggrieves the great body of European residents in India who are developing the resources of the country to an extent which, directly and indirectly, promotes the welfare and prosperity now and in the future of every subject in Her Majesty's Indian Empire.

Dated 24th April 1883.

From—The European Community of Calicut,
To—The Collector of Malabar.

In compliance with the request contained in your communication, No. 1240, dated the 9th instant, addressed to Mr. T. J. Ferguson, we have the honour to lay before you, in a very brief and general form, our views with reference to that portion of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure (now commonly known as Mr. Ilbert's Bill), by which it is proposed to extend jurisdiction over European British subjects to Native Magistrates.

2. We are most strongly opposed to any such alteration of the law; we consider such a change not only uncalled for, but calculated to lead to the very worst results politically and socially.

3. The extension of jurisdiction to Native Magistrates over European subjects is, so far as we know, uncalled for except by a few Native Magistrates, to gratify whose vanity it is proposed to sacrifice a privilege most highly prized by Europeans in the East. We respect the religious and social privileges and customs of our native fellow-subjects, and it has heretofore been the policy of the ruling power to see that such privileges and social observances were preserved to the men of different races and creeds who inhabit this continent.

4. We most emphatically object to the prospect which the passing of this ill-advised Bill affords as and our children of having to appear to answer criminal charges before a Magistrate who, however well educated he might be, would still be ignorant of our customs, and quite unable to form a true and unprejudiced opinion of many cases in which Europeans might have to appear.

5. The reservations and safeguards pointed out in your communication in no way alter our views, or reconcile us to the proposed change. We hold that native gentlemen are unsuited to occupy, in a district such as Malabar, the appointments now filled by Covenanted European Civilians, and to invest Native Magistrates of any class with criminal jurisdiction over European subjects will, in our opinion, lead to most disastrous results.

6. Many of us have been residents in this district for a long period; we have lived on good and friendly terms with our native neighbours; we have joined them in their endeavours to promote the advancement and welfare of the district; we have appeared before them and bowed to their decisions in the various Civil Courts in which they sit; but we protest on our own behalf and more especially on behalf of our numerous fellow-countrymen and countrywomen who are settled in remote parts of the Mofussil, away from the controlling influence of the Press or of public opinion; we protest on their behalf against the proposed alteration in the law; and we do not believe that the intelligent, educated, and well-meaning portion of the native community will respect us less for defending ourselves against this attempt to deprive us of our time-honored privilege.

No. 9, dated 7th May 1883.

From—H. WIGRAM, Esq., District and Sessions Judge, Coimbatore,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour to reply to G. O. dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial.

I am clearly of opinion that the proposed legislation was unnecessary, and that the natives, as a body, would have been quite content to let matters be as they were if the question had not been raised.

As, however, the Bill has been introduced, the only practical question is whether it ought to be proceeded with or abandoned.

2. I cannot but regard the objections raised by the European non-official community as mostly, if not wholly, sentimental. I do not apprehend that any injustice would occur from entrusting selected natives with criminal jurisdiction over Europeans.

The late Mr. Ratnavelu Chetty of the Madras Civil Service was, without exception, one of the best Magistrates with whom I have come in contact, and was perfectly qualified to deal with any criminal charge that might be preferred by European against European, or by Native against European.

3. At the same time sentimental objections cannot be wholly disregarded. It may be a bad policy to give way to groundless agitation, but it is a worse policy to alienate the sympathies of the non-official European population for the sake of an idea which will certainly benefit no one, and may possibly, in rare instances, prejudice individuals. I think, therefore, that the proposed legislation should be abandoned.

4. If, however, administrative, inconvenience is really likely to result from a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate not having jurisdiction over Europeans, I think that legislation should be confined to making Sessions Judges and District Magistrates ex-officio Justices of the Peace.

This might be done by simply adding to Section 25 of the Criminal Procedure Code a clause that, notwithstanding anything contained in Section 22, all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates are ex-officio Justices of the Peace within and for the whole of the territories administered by the Local Government under which they are serving.

From—H. ST. A. GOODRICH, Esq., District Magistrate, Vizagapatam,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour to reply to the reference contained in G. O. No. 937, dated 2nd instant.

2. The question appears to be whether it be expedient that the rulers of this Empire should resolve that men of the race who founded and maintain the Empire shall no longer be exempt from trial before Magistrates chosen from among the subject races.

3. The theoretical aspect of the question has been fully discussed elsewhere: I confine myself to the practical.

4. The Native Civilian, selected by competition, had enjoyed a glimpse at European life, and was a man of industry and of acute and disciplined intellect, though his social standing in his own nation was not guaranteed. It is perhaps expected that the present system of selection will give us a man of higher position amongst his countrymen.

5. Take the district I have lately administered. Mr. Ch. Venkata Jaga Rau may, at any moment, be sent there as Senior Assistant Magistrate. A criminal charge against Mr. F. Minchin would fall to be disposed in Mr. Jaga Rau's Court. (I prefer a particular to a general illustration, and do not in the slightest degree reflect on the character of either of the gentlemen named.) The Government will readily understand that circumstances might easily arise disposing persons to bring false charges against the one, and to bring very powerful pressure to bear upon the other. It is not expedient that these risks be run without cause.

6. The European British subject has, I believe, confidence in the class of Magistrates who now exercise jurisdiction over him: it is certain that he has not confidence in the class (Covenanted Civilians, natives of India) before whom he may be tried if the proposed alteration in the law be effected.

7. It seems to me certain that no administrative difficulty and no inconvenience to individuals worthy of consideration can arise from the maintenance of the privilege which the European British subject enjoys.

8. I believe that the natives of India speak the truth when they deplore the existence of the gulf which total diversity of manners and morals causes; that they would, with the best intentions, be found incompetent to estimate the probable truth of charges made against European British subjects, and to appreciate the motives which may have determined their course of action under known or conjectured circumstances.

9. The small but noisy class of Hindus which hailed the proposed measure as a boon to the native is in no sense representative.

10. It is a noble endeavour to unite the natives of India to the race which governs them by granting the fullest liberty to every subject of the Empire, but the conferring upon a few of the official class power to try Englishmen will not greatly gratify the Hindus at large.

11. The natives of India regard the official class taken from their midst with reserved respect, and, speaking generally, that class has not gained the most intimate confidence of Englishmen, whilst losing much of its countrymen's sympathy.

12. I have read most of the speeches and writings in advocacy of the change proposed, and remain convinced that it is profoundly mischievous.

Dated 12th May 1883.

From—The HONOURABLE HUMAYUN JAH, BAHADUR, C.I.E.,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

With reference to G. O. dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial, I have the honour to submit that, subject to certain reservations already indicated by His Excellency the Viceroy in his observations made in the Legislative Council, I do not see any objection to extend the jurisdiction of certain Native Magistrates of tried ability and experience posted in the districts, and of a grade similar to that of the Presidency Magistrates and upwards, the number of whom in each Presidency will not be large. I therefore generally agree with the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure. The changes contemplated thereby are the necessary consequence of the enlightened policy of administration pursued in India by the successive Viceroys, supported by Secretaries of State, and such eminent statesmen who cause some improvement for the good to evolve out of every step they take in swaying the destiny of the people and consolidating this mighty and glorious Empire. The principle of the measure thus commends itself to maintain emphatically, and its subject-matter, in my humble opinion, has reached such a stage that passing of the Bill, under consideration, into law cannot be delayed any longer.

Dated 12th May 1883.

From—The HONOURABLE RAJA G. N. GAJAPATEE ROW,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

In obedience to the orders of Government dated 2nd April last, No. 937, I have the honour to forward herewith my opinion on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

Memorandum.

I have considered over the Jurisdiction Bill in all its bearings.

As the subject has been so fully discussed, both in and out of the Governor General's Legislative Council, I think it is redundant on my part to enter into any discussion about it. In point of justice, fairness and impartiality, I am of opinion that the native members of the Covenanted Civil Service are quite competent to judge European British subjects as in the definition given by the Honourable Mr. Ilbert.

The training which they have received in England, the influence of the press and bar they have experienced there, and superior decisions they have come in contact with, and also private English opinion of the cases out of Court they have studied, give them not only a high proficiency, but sufficient self-respect to themselves to arrive at a correct judgment in trying European British subjects, whether cases arise from among themselves or between them and the natives. At present, practically, Native Presidency Magistrates, whose training must be acknowledged as inferior in calibre to that of Covenanted Native Civil Servants, are deciding cases, in which European British subjects are involved, with credit and efficiency. Although the press and public opinion are much stronger in the Presidency towns than in the Mofussil, the very deficiency of the same in country towns will ensure, in my opinion, a greater care and caution in a Mofussil Native Covenanted Civil Servant in deciding such cases with better judgment and impartiality, for his reputation will have to be protected from the ken of a superior authority, High Court and Government, also from the press of the Presidency, to which mofussil representations are sure to be made on the subject.

When it is thought natives are competent to judge impartially and efficiently in civil cases between Europeans and Natives and Europeans themselves, it is an anomaly to suppose that Native Covenanted Civil Servants are not competent to try and decide criminal cases between European British subjects and Natives or European British subjects themselves as in the definition above-named.

I am not in favour of giving the jurisdiction to Native Civil Servants created under statutory laws, at least for the present.

Dated 13th May 1883.

From—The HONOURABLE T. RAMA ROW,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour to submit the following in connection with the Code of Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill, in compliance with the proceedings of Government, dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial.

2. If it had been proposed in the aforesaid Bill to empower all Magistrates, of whatever grade, with jurisdiction to try European British subjects, I would have no hesitation to emphatically assert that it is most inadvisable and even dangerous. It is too well-known that the lower magistracy exercise their powers—powers which affect the personal liberty of the subject—in a most arbitrary and very lax manner. But inasmuch as the Bill introduces no such sweeping reform, I think I am bound to give my opinion in favour of a legislative measure which removes an anomaly, and which has been rightly called the logical outcome of the admission of natives into the ranks of the Civil Service.

3. The one very great objection which has been raised against this Bill, and the only one which I mean to refute as groundless, is that natives—be they Covenanted Civilians or Civilians under statutory laws—are incapable of understanding the European, his modes of thought, his feelings under circumstances far different to, and greatly varied than those to which natives are familiar, that in consequence of such incapacity he becomes unfit to give the European proper justice, as the Native Judge cannot ascertain his motives. If those that put forth this argument had given instances of this incapacity in Native Judges in recent times, I should have accepted meekly the strictures which are thus gratuitously offered to natives, but I am afraid it is not easy to do so. When Native Presidency Magistrates, who are men who have risen from the lower grades of the judicial service, and who do not possess (always allowing exceptions) the special qualifications with which Native Civil Servants are credited, are thought competent to try European British subjects, and even to sentence them to the punishment of whipping, why not Native Civil Servants—Covenanted and Statutory—exercise the simpler and inferior powers with which the Bill provides them.

4. I do not for a moment believe that the opponents of this Bill entertain any but the most honourable opinion of the respectability, the impartiality, and the fairness of the Native Civil Service or of those native gentlemen who have passed in England. So that the whole question resolves into one single factor: are the Native Civilians competent to try European British subjects? All that I wish to say is: "give them the chance and watch carefully how they use it." Even the slightest misapplication of these powers cannot fail to be detected by Government and by the zealous eyes of the European community. Our Native High Court Judges and our Presidency Magistrates have given no room for you to entertain any but the highest opinion of their competence and of their fairness and impartiality.

5. There is only one more point which I wish to notice. A Munsif of the lowest grade is competent to decide civil cases between European and Native as between themselves. Are not civil matters infinitely more complicated and more difficult to unravel than criminal cases? It has not been hitherto anywhere said that Munsifs do not exercise their powers properly, and that in disputes between Europeans, or in which a European is a party, the presiding Judge acts in a reprehensible manner. Has there been anything to justify a similar agitation of the European community at the time when natives were empowered with civil jurisdiction over European British subjects.

6. If this Bill becomes law, there is one anomaly the less in the law of India, and it gives Government a claim to ask the natives to give up some of their privileges too which stand in the way of a completely uniform and even system of laws.

Dated 14th May 1883.

From—E. F. WEBSTER, Esq., C.S.,

To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of G. O., 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial, in which I am requested to submit my opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. There are in this Presidency no Assistant Commissioners, and I do not suppose there is any present intention to provide natives of India with employment as Judges of Small Cause Courts; the question, therefore, which has been referred to me may be stated thus:—

Is there good reason to believe that the present exigencies of the public service require that the same jurisdiction which is now exercised by certain Justices of the Peace over European British subjects should be exercised by the native members of the Covenanted Civil Service falling under classes (a) and (b)?

3. With respect to Madras requirements, I am not aware that any administrative difficulty has as yet been felt or is likely to arise from the want of Native Magistrates or Judges endowed with powers to try European British subjects. Nor is there at the present moment a single member of the Covenanted Civil Service who is a native of India, falling under class (a), while of those native gentlemen who, under the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3, have recently been admitted into the service as probationers, only two have yet succeeded in qualifying themselves for permanent employment. Several years must, therefore, elapse before these officers can possibly exercise the jurisdiction contemplated by the Bill. The truth appears to be that the question, at all events so far as it affects Madras administration, is entirely a speculative one, without the smallest claim to be discussed as lying within the region of practical politics.

4. In some other parts of India, however, this is very far from being the case, since there are in Bengal, as I understand, and perhaps elsewhere, native members of the Covenanted Civil Service, who, if only they had happened to be European British subjects, would, by reason of the high official positions to which they have been advanced by Government, be empowered to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects, but who are precluded from this solely because of their place of birth or descent; and the question is, whether the disqualification under which these gentlemen are placed ought not to be removed by the Legislature with as little delay as possible.

5. In discussing this point it will be convenient to begin by describing the position of a European British subject in this country as regards his subjection to the Civil and Criminal Courts exercising jurisdiction outside the Presidency towns, the extent of punishment to which he is liable in such Courts, and the special privilege and protection to which the law entitles him.

6. It will then be easy to understand the precise nature and extent of the proposed changes, and to come to some understanding as to whether they are reasonable in themselves, and such as are urgently required in the interests of the public service.

7. First, then, as to the position of a European British subject with respect to the Civil Courts in the Mofussil.

8. Before the year 1837 Europeans were entitled to bring their civil causes before the Supreme Courts in the Presidency towns, but by an Act passed in that year (commonly known as the Black Act) all such causes were transferred from the Supreme Courts to the Courts of the East India Company, and ever since that time these Courts have continued to exercise such jurisdiction. In paragraph 10 of the last edition of the Civil Procedure Code, the principles of the Act of 1837 are reaffirmed in the following words :—"No person shall, by reason of his descent or place of birth, be in any civil proceeding exempted from the jurisdiction of the Courts." Now, just as no person is exempted from the jurisdiction of these Courts, so is no person disqualified from exercising civil jurisdiction, by reason of his place of birth or descent, and the consequence is that, as the law stands, a Native Judge might in a civil suit issue a warrant for the arrest of a European British subject in case of his non-attendance as a witness, might send him to jail for debt, might punish him for contempt of Court, or give judgment against him in a suit for fraud or libel.

9. Next as to the position of a European British subject with respect to Criminal Courts in the interior. A Magistrate, who is a European British subject, a Justice of the Peace, and a Magistrate of the first class, may sentence a European British subject to three months' imprisonment or to 1,000 rupees fine, or to both, while a Sessions Judge, being a European British subject, can sentence such an offender to a year's imprisonment, or to fine, or to both ; but if the trial be before an Assistant Sessions Judge, he must have held that office for at least three years, and must have been specially empowered by Government to try European British subjects.

10. Every European British subject brought to trial has, moreover, certain privileges especially reserved to him and others of his nationality, but which do not apply to the natives of the country. Thus, for example, he may claim to be tried by jury or assessors, as the case may be ; he may appeal to the High Court or Court of Session against every sentence of fine or imprisonment, however small, and from which there is no right of appeal in ordinary cases ; and, if detained in custody, he can apply to the High Court for an order directing the person detaining him to bring him before the High Court.

11. Such then, briefly put, is the judicial position of the European British subject in India. He is, and has been for very nearly half a century, as completely subject to the control of Native Civil Judges as any native of the land, while, as regards his liability to the Criminal Courts, he has the special privilege of carrying an appeal to the High Court in every case, no matter how trifling, and the right of applying to the same Court for his immediate release, if confined.

12. Now, all that the present Bill proposes to do is this : to alter the rule which relates to the race qualification of the Judge who is empowered to try European British subjects, but to leave untouched the privileges mentioned above, and the limitation on the sentences which may be inflicted by the Judge.

13. To my humble judgment it appears that the proposed change is but the necessary outcome of the declared policy of the Crown and Parliament, that natives of India shall be more and more largely admitted into the Covenanted Civil Service, and judging from the history of the past, I am unable to regard the provisions of the Bill as likely to prove serious to the European community, all of whom (many of them, no doubt, quite unconsciously) have for many years continued to live and to thrive too under a system of civil law such as that described above.

14. Whether the proposed change be urgently required in parts of India lying outside the borders of this Presidency, and whether, in such regions, there are native officers qualified by position and proved ability to exercise this special and limited criminal jurisdiction over Europeans, I have no means of knowing, and upon these questions, therefore, I do not propose to hazard an opinion ; but if the Government be satisfied that the interests of the Empire require that such powers should be conferred on certain selected Native members of the Civil Service in Bengal and elsewhere, then I venture to express a hope that they will not suffer themselves to be deterred from carrying into law a Bill which they believe to be just and necessary, simply because it has called forth (greatly as this is to be deplored) wide-spread and strenuous opposition on the part of the European community.

15. The history of the year 1837 shows that the European public of that day were at least as bitterly opposed to the transfer of civil jurisdiction from the Supreme to the Mofussil Courts, as a large and influential body of them now are to the present Bill, and that in those days ruin to the country and the utter destruction of European enterprise in India was confidently predicted as the inevitable result of the Bill becoming law.

16. There was again much the same kind of opposition in the year 1849 to a proposal to empower European Magistrates in the Mofussil to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects, and a Bill introduced with that object was in consequence withdrawn, but only to be again introduced and to pass into law in the year 1872. In 1874 an Englishman was sentenced in Jessore to a term of imprisonment for committing a serious assault on a native of India. Upon this there arose a perfect storm of indignation on the part of the Europeans ; an appeal was carried to the High Court ; the Chief Justice (Sir R. Couch) was admonished to do his duty by his countrymen ; all the evils which had been predicted of the Black Act were again predicted ; capital, it was said, would be driven out of the country ; the English would be ruined, and so on ; but as men's passions cooled more reasonable opinions prevailed, and now the Act has been worked for upwards of twelve years to the entire satisfaction of everybody.

17. Seeing then how unreasonable were the apprehensions on very similar occasions in the past, may we not reasonably believe that much of the present outcry is no better founded?

No. 224, dated 14th May 1883.

From—J. F. PRICE, Esq., Magistrate of the Chingleput District,

To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

I have the honour to reply to the Proceedings of Government, Judicial Department, No. 937, dated 2nd ultimo.

2. Theoretically, there is nothing that can be alleged against the Bill. I must say though that I do not think that the members of the Civil Service admitted in India—a class to which I suppose that Extra Assistant Commissioners also belong—are equal, or are ever likely to be equal, to those who have entered it by competition in England. I am the only officer in this Presidency who has had the privilege of having natives of both denominations under him. I carefully watched them, and I have no doubt that my view is correct. The former of the classes mentioned see the European in India alone, and have, practically, little, if any, knowledge of him, or definite ideas of his ways, thoughts, feelings, or manners. I am afraid that if power to deal with Europeans be given to these officials, they would, even supposing that they were not swayed by considerations of any sort, err either on the score of leniency or of severity.

3. I admit that if the experiment is ever to be made now is the most fitting time, and I admit also that the number of European British subjects likely to be affected by the proposed change of the law cannot at present be very large, but I consider the introduction of the Act, even if altered so as to include Covenanted Civil Servants who have come out from England alone, very undesirable and impolitic.

4. Had the Europeans and natives of India, to use the stock word, “fused” or shown any real inclination to fuse, the case might be different, but I believe that I am not in any way outside the truth in saying that there is not the slightest genuine tendency in that direction; that, on the contrary, the two races have been for years steadily floating apart, and that there is not the good feeling between them which existed even when I first entered the service. We are different from them in everything—in creed, manners, customs, and thought, and whatever may be the theories on the subject, our position in the country, of the nature of which there cannot be much doubt, is such that it can never make our relations other than they are, though they may be for a time glossed over with a coating of varnish. The natives can never adopt our lines in their integrity, and we can never take to theirs. It is not for me to pretend to account for the state of feeling to which I have alluded: that it exists is, I believe, an acknowledged fact, and, as far as I have seen, it is stronger as regards the non-official than the official class; the reason which I have heard assigned for this being that the latter is a man in power, and that it is dangerous and undesirable to cross him. That the passing of the Act will cause great exasperation amongst Europeans throughout the country is, I think, pretty clearly proved by what has appeared in the public prints. I have not taken sufficient interest in the matter to read everything, and in what I have read there has been what I should call a good deal of rubbish, but it appears to me that there are two causes which have brought about the uproar which has occurred, viz., (1) a state of feeling between the European and Native very far different from what was supposed by those in authority to exist, which has been smouldering for a considerable period, and which has now, on the application of the match, burst out into a flame which will not be readily extinguished; (2) a strong distrust of the integrity of native officials. By the latter expression I do not mean to convey that there is distrust as to actual honesty in the ordinary sense of the term. What I allude to is the feeling that with the European Magistrate no consideration is likely to be successfully brought to bear, whilst with the native there are causes which must, to an almost absolute certainty, affect him. Caste prejudices, fear of the occult influence which is often brought to bear upon an official who will not act in accordance with the opinions, wishes, or views of natives in power, and dread of native opinion, are amongst these. The natives themselves show their appreciation of a difference between their own countrymen and the Englishmen by the way in which they so constantly beg to have their cases decided by the latter.

5. I must say that my faith in the fairness and integrity of natives of the higher classes, and from which recruits for the Civil Service must be drawn, has been very grievously shaken by my experiences of the last two years. What these experiences have been it is needless for me to mention, as they are before Government. Knowing what I do, and official though I am, I would, in honest truth, far rather be tried by a European than by a Native. I can realize pretty clearly what the feelings of a non-official on the subject must be.

6. It may be said that I am prejudiced by what I have gone through. I do not think that I am. I have my own views as regards the admission of natives into the Civil Service, but whatever these may be I have not ventilated them, and I have certainly done my duty by the young native officers who have been under me. It is exceedingly improbable that I shall ever get into a scrape likely to bring me before a Magistrate; my time of service in India is rapidly approaching its close, and I hope to be able to go as soon it terminates. I have no relations in the country, and none of them are ever likely to come to it, and I shall never, even at the utmost, myself see anything more than the beginning of the effects of the Act if it is passed. I have, therefore, no ground for personal feeling in the matter. Government have asked my opinion, and though I would have preferred not being consulted on the subject, I deem it my duty, however it may be received, to say honestly what I think.

7. I consider it highly impolitic to introduce a measure the effect of which upon the relations between the Englishman and the Native of India will, whatever may be hoped, inevitably be to induce a state of feeling which can only end in trouble, and that of a serious character.

No. 1516, dated 16th May 1883.

From—H. P. GORDON, Esq., District Magistrate of Bellary,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government of Madras.

I have the honour to reply to G. O. of 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial.

2. I am of opinion that it is undesirable to extend to Native Magistrates or Judges in the Mofussil jurisdiction over European British subjects, as defined in the Criminal Procedure Code (Section 4, u), but I think that that definition is unnecessarily wide, and includes many persons, for whose exemption from the ordinary tribunals there is no sufficient reason.

3. My main ground of objection to the proposed measure is that Native Magistrates are not competent to estimate the motives of the conduct of a class, which, as I would limit it, is actuated by habits, by a code of morals, and by social sanctions widely differing from those prevalent among natives.

4. This objection, in my opinion, applies with equal force to the cases of all classes of Europeans, to that of the rough, illiterate, and possibly brutal loafer, as to that of the woman of refinement and culture, a product of civilization of which even educated natives must at present have an inadequate apprehension. But the cruelty of subjection to an incompetent Court would, of course, be much greater in the latter case.

5. It may be urged that the same ground of natural incompetence may be advanced as a reason for not giving Europeans jurisdiction over natives. I admit the validity of that objection to a large extent, and should do so without reserve were it not that the natural incompetence in this respect of Europeans is counterpoised by the great advantages they as Judges enjoy, in the absence of ties to the native population, which would be likely to warp their judgment, and in their incorruptibility, the result mainly of their subjection to a different public opinion. That these qualifications are considered of great value by those who come before our Courts is, I think, proved by the avidity with which the tribunal of a European Magistrate is sought. I have never known a case in which an application for transfer of a case to a European Magistrate was opposed, save on grounds quite disconnected from the character of the tribunal, while applications for transfer of cases to the files of European Magistrates on the ground that justice cannot be elsewhere expected are very common, and would be still more so if they were not almost always rejected.

6. It may be presumed that the class of natives who would now be selected as Justices of the Peace would not be liable to the imputation of corruption. I do not object to their employment on that ground, and the mention of the matter is merely incidental to my argument in justification of a European tribunal for charges against natives.

7. Nor do I mean to imply that Native Magistrates would necessarily be biassed against Europeans. I think in many cases they would be influenced unduly in their favour, for strength of moral fibre is less frequent among them than among picked Europeans.

8. No doubt native gentlemen who may pass into the Covenanted Civil Service by competition in England would have some opportunities of acquiring a knowledge of the habits of thought and manners of Europeans, but there is no single officer of this character in the service at present, and it may be presumed, regard being had to the facilities for entering the service without examination offered by the rules made under the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3, that the number of native candidates at the examination in London will be in future less than before.

9. Theoretically, the most desirable arrangement would be that natives should be tried by natives, and Europeans by Europeans, but I think I have shown that the trial of natives in this manner would not be entirely satisfactory to them. On the other hand, I have never heard it imputed that, in the Mofussil, Europeans met with partial treatment at the hands of European Magistrates. On the contrary, the notion that European Magistrates are sometimes unduly severe on their compatriots is not of infrequent occurrence, and in their anxiety to avoid the imputation of partiality, it is possible that they are at times biassed in this direction.

10. While, then, it may be inexpedient to confine the trial of natives to the best natural tribunal, no reason appears to exist for the transfer of cases against Europeans from a natural tribunal, which is satisfactory to them and which has not hitherto been objected to by others to another less naturally competent, in which they have no confidence.

11. It appears to me that the confidence of a class which, though small in numbers, possesses an intelligence and importance out of all proportion to its numbers, in the Courts to which it is made subject, cannot wisely be treated with indifference by the Government, and that very strong grounds of expediency (and these do not appear to me to exist) should be alleged in support of the substitution of less satisfactory tribunals.

12. It is, I think, matter of notoriety that, until this Bill was proposed, no objection was ever heard in this Presidency to the exemption in criminal matters of Europeans from the Native Courts. If this be so, the change can hardly have been desired by any considerable class of the population. I would ask if, in the numerous petitions which have been presented to successive Governors of this Presidency, in all parts of the country, this matter was ever brought forward as a grievance?

13. It is said that the exemption is a case of anomalous privilege. This ground has been so well worn that it may well be left untouched by me. It is no doubt a privilege to be tried "by one's peers," but it is strange that in a country where class privileges recognised by law abound, it should be sought to withdraw a privilege, which harms no one, from a class, on which the Government must for a long time to come rely for the administration of the country, and for the development of its resources.

14. The administrative convenience of the proposed measure as it affects this Presidency is less than at first sight would appear.

15. At present there is no native officer in the Civil Service who entered by competition, and it is unlikely that the number of such will ever be considerable. It cannot be so for a long time to come. As to the Native Civil Service the class from which it was intended by the Government of India that this service should be filled can hardly be said to exist in this Presidency.

It is presumed that Government would not invest with powers of a Justice of Peace officers who were not conversant with the manners of Europeans, and had not lived upon terms approaching to social equality with them. If this be granted, it would seem that it will be long before the Native Civil Service will be able to supply any number of gentlemen qualified to try Europeans.

There are at present but three members of the Native Civil Service.

16. Much of the apprehended inconvenience could be avoided by care in the posting of officers. I may instance the present state of this district in illustration of my meaning. The town of Bellary contains a very considerable population of European British subjects, including a large garrison. It is the terminus of one Railway line and the starting point of another now under construction. It is therefore a place where the services of a European Assistant are necessary so long as the law stands as it does. At present I have no European Assistant, the District Munsif, who is a European British subject, having been, as a special case, invested with the powers of a Justice of Peace and First class Magistrate. But there are many districts supplied with a European Assistant in which charges against European British subjects are likely to be less frequent than here.

17. In a question of this sort opportuneness is a matter of importance. Such a change in the law as is proposed should, in my opinion, work satisfactorily only where there is considerable social fusion between the races. Such fusion does not now exist here, and the carrying of this Bill is not likely, I think, to further its expansion. For a considerable time to come it would I am sure retard it.

18. The Bill confines Government in its selection to certain classes. I would note that its provisions would preclude an arrangement which has been here found convenient, and under which the District Munsif (a European British subject) has been invested with powers as a Magistrate and Justice of Peace.

It would seem unadvisable to limit the extent to which Government may appoint European British subjects to try members of their own class.

19. I have referred at the commencement of this letter to the definition of a European British subject in the Criminal Procedure Code. That definition includes as grandchildren of Europeans many persons who have little claim to such distinctive habits and modes of thought as require in this country a special tribunal for the trial of their possessor. Such persons have been born in the country and have lived from their earliest years among natives, from whom they are often distinguishable by little else than dress. It seems to me that such persons may fairly be made amenable to the Courts of the Native Magistracy which is competent to deal with them, and that, if this were done, the number of cases against European British subjects would be so small as to reduce the administrative inconvenience in the provision of a special tribunal to a minimum.

20. I would exclude from the definition all grandchildren of Europeans, who might have been from their birth domiciled and educated in India.

Dated 1st June 1883.

From—The HONOURABLE A. SASHIAH SASTRI, C.S.I.,

To—The Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras.

In obedience to G. O. dated 2nd April 1883, No. 937, Judicial Department, I have the honour to submit the following observations on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects. In doing so I beg that the delay which has unavoidably occurred may be overlooked.

2. The vicissitudes of the English power in this country have been many, and have from time to time necessitated abnormal arrangements for the administration of justice, civil and criminal, where European British subjects were concerned. These arrangements from their very nature could not and have not lasted immutably for ever.

3. In less than two centuries and three quarters, which is but a short space in the history of empires, commercial factories became Presidency towns, Presidency towns grew into Presidency kingdoms, and Presidency kingdoms became in their turn component parts of a vast united empire under one Empress. The judicial machinery for the trial of European British subjects underwent corresponding changes. By the Charters of 1661 and 1669 the Governors with their Councils of Madras, Bengal, and Bombay were constituted Courts of "Oyer and Terminer," and their jurisdictions were fixed by the Charters of 1726 and 1753. These Governors' Courts gave way to the Supreme Court at Fort William in 1774 and Recorders' Courts in Madras and Bombay in 1797, extending the jurisdiction over all British subjects in all the Provinces. These two last gave place to the Supreme Court in 1801 at Madras and in 1823 in Bombay. As new territories were acquired by the Company, the jurisdiction of these Courts was enlarged. To provide for offences committed by British subjects at a distance, Justices of Peace were appointed at first by the Governor General and afterwards by the several Governors and Lieutenant-Governors from among the covenanted servants of the East India Company or other British inhabitants. The jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts passed to the present High Courts in 1862, 1865 and 1866, under Statutes of Parliament, and natives were declared eligible to the Benches of those Courts. Under these statutory changes, procedure also has changed from time to time. Thus in 1812, Zillah Magistrates were empowered to fine up to Rs. 500, and imprison up to two months. In 1857, four Bills were brought into the Legislative Council with a sweeping clause rendering European British subjects liable to be tried by any Magisterial tribunal of the country without distinction. This clause, however, was rejected by a majority in the Council. The mutiny came in 1859, and the subject was dropped. Act XXV of 1861 left the jurisdiction untouched. Mr. Stephen's Bill of 1870-71, which passed as Act X of 1872, extended the jurisdiction of British Magistrates and British Sessions Judges while leaving the disqualification of natives to try European British subjects untouched. This was followed by an amending Act in 1874. The question again came under discussion once more, and the law of Criminal Procedure was finally remodelled as Act X of 1882, still leaving native disqualification to try European British subjects untouched.

4. During all these momentous changes, it cannot be denied that some privileges were lost at each step. But the most substantial privileges of the European British subjects have remained and still remain unchanged and constitute a most invidious distinction between the European British and native subjects—(a) a right of appeal from the lightest possible sentence of a Magistrate to the Session Judge or to the High Court, and from the latter to the High Court, is still reserved; (b) right of being tried by the High Court for all offences, for which one year's imprisonment is not considered adequate is still reserved; (c) right to be tried by a jury composed of his own countrymen to the extent of one-half is still reserved; (d) that palladium of the Englishman's liberty—to wit the Habeas Corpus Act—is still reserved to him.

5. All the change that is contemplated by the Bill of February 1883, now under consideration, is that, where the posts of District Magistrate and of Sessions Judge are held by covenanted natives, such natives shall not by the mere reason of their race be debarred from exercising the jurisdiction over European British subjects, which their European brethren of the covenanted service exercise over them by virtue of their office.

6. It has been argued with some spaciousness that throughout all the changes in the matter of jurisdiction, the right of being tried by their own countrymen was left untouched; and so long as that was so they did not care to complain. But is it altogether so? Was not the appointment of natives as Justices of the Peace in the Presidency towns so long ago as 40 years and then again that of natives to the Bench of the High Courts constituted under Royal Charter, direct invasions of this right? If they were, have they been attended with any disastrous consequence, such as are foreboded on the present occasion? What disasters have befallen in the adjoining colony of Ceylon where the natives of the island are not debarred from exercising criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects.

7. Special privileges originating under special circumstances and calculated to meet a given state of things must give way to the ordinary privileges of a citizen when the special circumstances which justified them have passed away. Common laws, common Courts, common jurisdiction, common procedure, common liberties, and common rights are but the legitimate outcome of common allegiance to one sovereign. The proposal involved in the present Bill is but one more step towards the consolidation of the Empire, and that consolidation will not be complete till the perfect equality of all in the eye of the law is asserted and enforced, or, in other words, till Article 8, Chapter I of the proposed Bill of 1857 finds its appropriate place in the Procedure Law of the land. That article was "no person whatever shall, by reason of place of birth or by reason of descent, be in any criminal proceeding whatever excepted from the jurisdiction of any of the Criminal Courts;" and Mr. Peacock (afterwards Sir Barnes Peacock) thus spoke on the subject: "This article would invest the Courts of the country with jurisdiction over European British subjects. To him it appeared to be correct in principle, for he could not understand upon what ground it could be contended that any one class of persons should be exempt from the jurisdiction of those Courts. No Frenchman or German or Armenian or East Indian was exempt from their jurisdiction. European British subjects alone enjoyed that privilege; and the Council was aware that there were many cases in which, on account of the extreme inconvenience, expense and delay which must necessarily be caused by committing defendants for trial to the Supreme Courts for offences committed in distant parts of the country, offenders were frequently allowed to go unpunished. The inconvenience was not con-finer to prosecutors. It extended also to the witnesses, who were frequently interested in the proceedings. The article to which he referred would bring an offender, whatever his place of birth or whatever his descent, under the jurisdiction of the Courts within the local limits of which his offence might be committed." This summum bonum of impartial legislation may not be attainable quite yet, but it must be attained one day, and that cannot be very far; and when that time arrives I would not deprive the European British subject of his special privileges, but would legislate that his privilege in the matter of appeals and in the matter of the Habeas Corpus Act be extended to all Her Majesty's subjects; for liberty of person is as dear to the native as it is to the Englishman, and there is no reason whatever why it should be held more sacred or be more jealously guarded in the one case than in the other.

8. The knell of all exclusive race privileges has been unmistakeably sounded from time to time. It was sounded in 1833 when the British nation in Parliament assembled, most solemnly declared that every subject of Her Majesty may rise to the highest offices in the State without distinction of colour, caste or creed. It was tolled again about 1834, when all European British subjects were declared liable to the ordinary Civil jurisdiction of the Company's Courts of every grade. It was again sounded when natives were appointed Justices of the Peace in all the Presidency towns, and later on when the Benches of the highest Courts in the land were thrown open to the natives, and again unmistakeably when the Civil Service was practically thrown open, both by competition and by nomination, to the natives of the country. The policy of the British Parliament has ever been onward, founded as it has ever been on that keen sense of equal laws, equal justice, and equal rights which is the real corner-stone of the British constitution—a constitution which stands so pre-eminently high in the estimate of the world. The voice of that august body never faltered when questions of such momentous interest came before it. Not all the "fulmen brutum" has made that body swerve to the right or to the left, and the whole of the civilized world has not failed to read written over the portal of that assembly "Ficti iustitia, real cetum."

9. In matters criminal, the present position of the Englishmen in the mofussil, if truth must be told, is almost one of immunity from prosecution, for the prosecution of a European British subject is at present very heavily handicapped by the immense sacrifice of time and convenience to the prosecuting natives as well as to the witnesses. It is a notorious fact that in remote and unpeopled parts of the country, whither British enterprise and capital take them, they, not unoften, take the law into their own hands and frustrate all attempts to bring them to punishment. While the Englishman has no objection to take the law of a native in criminal matters at the hands of a Native Magistrate, why should he shrink from the manly test of submitting to it himself when it comes to the native's turn to take the law of him? In civil matters the law makes no distinction between the European British subject and the native, and both have been freely taking the law of each other before the lowest Courts as well as the highest Courts without any disaster befalling either. Why, then, should there be in criminal matters any distinction? The substantive criminal law being the same for both, why should there be any distinction of race in the dispensers of justice to one of them?

10. I have carefully studied the petition of protest and have searched in vain for a solid argument against the proposed alteration of jurisdiction. In place of argument, I find that that worst of prejudices—viz., race-prejudice—is substituted. The logic of prejudice will listen to no reason, and it was most painful to me to observe that the civilizing influence of a century have done so little to bring nearer together in sympathy the two races (originally of the same stock) whom Providence has placed side by side on the same soil as common subjects of one and the same sovereign. Is not even this feeble ground of race-feeling cut away from under their feet when it is remembered that the definition of a British subject is a very comprehensive one, and which virtually excludes none born in Her Majesty's colonies—a Hottentot, a Negro, a Singalese, a Mayori, a Canadian; anybody in Her Majesty's colonies might attain to the status of a British subject and be legally qualified to try a European British subject in India. Is a Hindu gentleman—nay, an Aryan brother—less worthy than any of the above?

11. Again, has not the character of the personnel of the Civil Service itself changed very much since the competition system? That service is no longer the close preserve of gentlemen, members of certain families almost hereditarily succeeding one another. It is now open to the son of the common hangman as it is to the scion of a noble family, and, in the ordinary course of things, the former might possibly preside at the latter's trial. Why should it then hurt the feelings of an Englishman to be tried by a scion of the Zamorin or the Maharaja of Benares? It would indeed be a very strange commentary on the advance of civilization in India and of English education in particular, if it be declared that the best of natives—the very cream of the intellectual aristocracy of India—who had received the best education available in the country and had gone to finish it in the English Universities—who had successfully competed with the children of England on her own soil and in her own schools—and competed again at the examinations for the service, obtained their covenants and come back to their country—saturated with English feelings and English thoughts and English loyalty—and, after returning, have served from the bottom-rung of the ladder and risen, after 18 or 20 years of spotless service, to the bench of a Magistrate or Sessions Judge;—if men such as these are declared unfit to have the very limited criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects which their brethren of the service (it may be of inferior natural attainments or aptitude) are considered by virtue of their birth eligible to exercise. If it be said that the European civil servant qualifies himself by learning the languages, customs and manners of the natives to try the natives, why cannot the Native Civilian, who has mastered the language, customs, and manners of the Europeans to a much greater degree, be assumed to be equally fit to try the Europeans—safeguarded as the latter will still be by so many privileges already alluded to?

12. If all the arguments of the protest amount to no more than a prejudice arising from race-feeling—a mere antipathy of colour—a mere dislike engendered by habit and false notions—what were the results when such blind prejudices were brought face to face with reason and stern justice? Let history tell. How much money and blood did England spend in the emancipation of the Negroes who were not the less hated on account of their colour? Was not the great American war of the Confederate States against the federals waged, so regardless of life or money, to declare the coloured man an equal in the eye of the law to the white man? Is not the United States of America, perhaps the greatest and the most powerful empire on earth, an example where all nationalities are absorbed and moulded into one great nation for purposes of Government, and all men, be he Scotch, Irish, Swiss, French, German or Spanish or Negro or Chinaman, live in peace under equal laws administered without reference to race or colour?

13. Far from apprehending any disaster to non-official Englishmen or British enterprise in India from the passing of the Bill, I am in hopes that it will have the effect of placing the administration of justice on a higher pedestal than at present; that it will be a mark of that confidence on Her Majesty's native subject which it is impossible to deny to him after the solemn declaration of 1883, and of the Queen's Proclamation of 1858, and that it will be of a piece with that general policy of the British administration which has been the characteristic of it from the very beginning. I am also in hopes that in a few years, when the agitation caused by unthinking men driven into phrenzy for the moment shall have subsided, that the benefits of the proposed measure will be realized and acknowledged by the very class who now so vehemently oppose it—who, I trust, will find that they are saved a world of trouble, inconvenience and expense, when they find a Native Magistrate at their very door as competent to dispose of criminal charges laid against them as one of their own countrymen at a distance;—and in some cases, one much more absolutely unbiassed than one of their countrymen when, as often happens, European society is split up in factions from the influence of which neither the European Magistrate nor the European Sessions Judge could possibly keep aloof. I set much store on this feature of the question, and have no hesitation in saying that whatever occasional failure of justice might arise from the ignorance of the Native Magistrate of the customs and manners of Englishmen and Englishwomen, such failure will be more than compensated by his perfectly neutral attitude.

14. For these reasons I am deliberately of opinion that the Bill should pass into law.

Minute by the Right Hon'ble M. E. GRANT DUFF, President, dated 31st May 1883.

I do not believe that the passing into law of Mr. Ilbert's much-abused Bill would cause one anna of British capital to be removed from India,—nay I feel persuaded that five years hence the whole opposition to it would be forgotten, and that everything would go on as it has done for years.

2. What is meant by such phrases as those used by Mr. Logan about alienating the goodwill of the European community? How could the European community remain permanently alienated from that Government whose existence and overwhelming strength alone make the presence of the European community in this country possible?

3. I agree with Mr. Stokes in considering that the much-discussed measure is perfectly "innocuous." Half the clamour raised against it has proceeded from persons who do not know the law under which they are living, and who will read with surprise Mr. Webster's clear and telling exposition of that law.

4. It does not follow, however, that because a Bill is innocuous it ought to be passed.

5. To withdraw it altogether would be, as it seems to me, a grave political error,—one of the gravest that has been made in the domestic politics of India for many years. To do so would be to give up to irresponsible people the government of a country, which should remain where the law has placed it, in the hands of the Viceroy and his Council under the general superintendence of the Secretary of State and his Council.

6. When, however, this and other Governments were consulted a year ago, they were not consulted about what has since been known as "Mr. Ilbert's Bill," but about a very different proposition.

7. Why should not the change be confined, as was proposed at that time, to Covenanted Native Civilians only?

8. I dare say the Government of India had very good reasons for enlarging the scope of the suggested change; but these reasons cannot have been such as to demand urgency.

9. Would it not be wise to be satisfied with extending the proposed privileges to Covenanted Native Civilians? It is idle to maintain that they have not had far greater advantages than the nominated Native Civilians. In process of time we shall see whether the former are, as many think they will be, far superior in efficiency to the latter, or whether, on the other hand, these show themselves the equals of their more highly educated brethren.

10. Alors comme alors! This is not a country in which it is well to take very long views. Let us make those changes based upon our experience here and elsewhere, which, we feel persuaded, will produce pretty soon good effects, and let us give all reasonable satisfaction to the reasonable wishes of the people as brought before us by their authoritative spokesmen, up and down the land; but let us not be led to move at all quicker than we otherwise should, with a view to anticipate demands which may some day be made, and which it will be for our successors to grant or refuse.

11. I have no sympathy nor, indeed, any toleration for the distinction which I see drawn in one of the papers read above between what is theoretically right and practically right. If a thing is practically wrong, it must be theoretically wrong,—the theory being based usually on imperfectly apprehended facts.

12. I hold, however, that we have sufficient facts at our command to be certain that the Covenanted Native Civilian will not abuse the powers to be entrusted to them, if the view which was taken by the majority of the Madras Government, in May 1882, finds favour with the Viceroy and his advisers. My personal impression is that the further changes suggested would do no sort of harm, but I should prefer to see one step made at a time.

13. I shall especially rejoice if this view is generally supported by my honourable colleagues, as I hope it may be, and if it enables the Madras Government to give, as it happily usually does give, after full discussion, an unanimous opinion.

Minute by His Excellency SIR FRED. ROBERTS, Commander-in-Chief, dated 14th June 1883.

When the opinion of local Governments was asked a year ago, as to the advisability of amending the Criminal Procedure Code, I concurred in the views expressed by His Excellency the Governor, that "it is perhaps a pity that a question was raised just now which affects so few people, but I see no answer to the claim of Mr. Gupta, which is logically defensible."

"Very soon, if not immediately, the Covenanted Civilian of native birth must be put on precisely the same footing as his European colleague."

2. It seemed to me to be a logical sequence to the acts of former Governments; and that it would be as unreasonable to deny to Native gentlemen of the Covenanted Civil Service the full privileges enjoyed by their British colleagues, as it would be to bestow on a Native of India a Lieutenant's or Captain's Commission in Her Majesty's Indian Forces, and then to refuse him the right of commanding a mixed detachment of British and Native troops.

3. I had no intention of extending the concession to any but the few gentlemen (six or seven) who had qualified themselves by competition in England for the Civil Service of India; but I ought to have added at the time how opposed I had always been to the admission of Natives either to the Covenanted Civil Service, or to an equality with the Commissioned Officers of Her Majesty's Army.

4. By opening the Covenanted Civil Service to Natives, I felt that we were placing them in positions for which they are not yet fitted, morally or socially, however well they may be so by education; and that we were giving them power which some of their own countrymen and the European population of India, almost to a man, doubt their being able to exercise wisely and impartially.

5. As, however, no restrictions as to the offices which they could, or could not fill, were imposed when Native gentlemen were invited to enter the Covenanted Civil Service, those who have competed successfully for that service ought not now, in my opinion, to be denied appointments or authority, which they might reasonably have hoped for, when they determined upon adopting that service as a career. But with the exception of the six or seven Native gentlemen above alluded to, I would confine the Covenanted Civil Service to Europeans, at any rate, for the present.

6. The salaries of the several grades of the Covenanted Civil Service were purposely fixed at high rates, in order to attract a superior class of well educated English gentlemen to India. It is quite unnecessary to offer the same inducements to Native gentlemen. To them service in India has no disadvantages, while those conversant with the relative expenses of a European and Native official's life in this country will at once see how disproportionately large the pay of the Native Covenanted Civilian is. Taking into consideration the different conditions of life, we may safely estimate the income of the Indian Member of the Covenanted Civil Service as at least double that of his European confrère.

7. By an Act of Parliament, passed in 1870, to give "additional facilities for the employment of Natives in the Civil Service of India," a certain number of Native gentlemen can be annually nominated to this service by local Governments, subject to the approval of the Government of India.

8. This, I submit, meets all that is now required.

9. These nominees belong to what might appropriately be termed the "Local Civil Service," and the scope of their employment might justly be limited to such offices as may be determined by the Government of India and the Secretary of State.

10. From this Local Civil Service any man who had proved himself exceptionally qualified might, with advantage, be chosen for positions of high trust and responsibility, without in any way admitting the rights of other members to similar preferment.

But so long as the Covenanted Civil Service is open to Natives, we must expect that those who enter it will not be satisfied if treated differently from their European colleagues, and that as they become eligible, by length of service, for the higher appointments, difficulties will arise, of a nature even more embarrassing, perhaps, than the one we have now to deal with.

Indeed, the time is probably not so far distant when we shall have some clever and ambitious Native Member of the Civil Service being pushed forward as a candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal, the Punjab or the North-Western Provinces.

11. I am aware that many leading Statesmen at Home hold very different opinions, and consider that the Natives of this country should be placed on an equality with Europeans as regards their eligibility for employment, and be given their fair share of the higher appointments. There is, no doubt, much to be said in support of these views. Education has spread so rapidly during the last quarter of a century, and a certain class of Natives have proved themselves such apt scholars, that it would be difficult to convince any one, ignorant of the habits and customs of Native life in India, why they should not take their places in any service or department for which they may have been able to compete successfully. I quite feel this, and I fully agree that Natives should be gradually educated to take some active part in public affairs.

12. But there is a dangerous side to the question.

13. It is not to be expected that any class would be content with managing local Boards and small Municipalities. As they are encouraged to take their share in such minor responsibilities, they will, in time, claim a place and a voice in the government of the country. In theory it seems impossible to object to this; but to those who have Indian experience, the time seems far distant when Natives can be safely trusted with such power. Englishmen unacquainted with India and the Indians, and who are in favour of political and popular education, do not seem to give such matters a thought. Their anxiety apparently is to divest themselves of power, and to hand it over to a people who are not yet fit to be entrusted with it. This cannot but be detrimental to the interests of both England and India, and will certainly cause us to be despised by the very people we have conquered for not understanding how to govern them; with the result, perhaps, that we may have some day to fight for what we now possess.

14. It is a mistake to suppose that race-antagonism, which reached such a pitch during the mutiny, has been gradually disappearing, as is often asserted. In the Army this may be the case, but there, the constant intercourse of the European officers with their men, and the sharing of dangers and hardships in common, have brought about a mutual feeling of goodwill, which goes far to lessen the natural distrust of the two races towards each other. This combination of camaraderie and respect will, no doubt, last so long as nothing occurs to excite the religious, or, in some future time, the political feelings of the soldiery.

In out-of-the-way districts, where civilisation is still in its infancy, there is, to a certain extent, this same kindly feeling between Europeans and Natives, and the latter are much more inclined to accept the authority of the governing race than they are in the large centres of educational enlightenment.

15. This effect of education is unfortunate, but inevitable, and with results so momentous, it surely behoves Government not to adopt a too progressive policy, without first feeling its way carefully and cautiously.

16. It must not be thought from this that I am against the education of Natives. Far from it. This must necessarily come to pass, and no one is more alive than I am to the great benefits which education will eventually bestow upon the people of this country. My great desire is that we should accurately appreciate the results of this education, and be careful not to attribute to Natives imaginary qualities, because they are capable of passing a difficult examination at an English University.

Minute by the HONOURABLE H. E. SULLIVAN, dated 12th June 1883.

Every word of the Minute recorded by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has my entire concurrence.

No. 1169, dated 3rd July 1883.

From—J. R. REID, Esq., Secretary to the Government, N.-W. Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

I am directed to acknowledge receipt of your letter No. 26 C., dated 17th March 1883, forwarding copies of the papers noted on the margin, and to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner on the provisions of the Bill, together with the opinions of the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court, Allahabad, and of some other persons consulted on the subject.

2. The Bill is intended to amend sections 22, 25, 443, 444, 450, and part of 459 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882), and its effect upon the existing law would appear to be as follows:—

(1) As section 22 of the Code of Criminal Procedure now stands, the Government can appoint any European British subject, official or non-official, and if official, of any branch of the Government service, to be a Justice of the Peace for its territories. Under the law as amended by the Bill, the primary qualification for investment with powers of a Justice of the Peace would no longer be one of nationality and race descent, but would become purely official within certain branches of the public service: that is, no one could be appointed a Justice of the Peace who was not a Magistrate of the first class, and was not—

- (a) a member of the Covenanted Civil Service, or
- (b) a member of the Native Civil Service constituted under 33 Vic., cap. 3, or
- (c) an Assistant Commissioner in a non-regulation province, or
- (d) a Cantonment Magistrate; and no non-official person, or member of any service under the Government other than those specified above, could be appointed a Justice of the Peace.

- (2) Under section 25, as amended, all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates would become Justices of the Peace for the territories administered by the Local Government under which they are serving.
- (3) It is proposed to alter section 443, so that any Magistrate of the first class, who is also a Justice of the Peace, would be competent to try European British subjects; and the effect of this alteration, taken with the addition proposed to section 25 and with section 446, would be that a District Magistrate, whether an European or a Native, would be empowered to try European British subjects, and on conviction to sentence them to not more than three months' imprisonment, or to fine of not more than Rs. 1,000, or to both.
- (4) While Sessions Judges, whether European or Native, would become, under section 25 as amended, competent to try and sentence European British subjects, Assistant Sessions Judges, whether European or Native, would, under section 444 as amended, not be competent to do so until they had held office for three years and had been specially empowered by the Local Government.
- (5) Section 450 and part of section 459 are proposed for repeal, because by the preceding amendments all Sessions Judges, whether European or Native, would, in virtue of office, be Justices of the Peace, and the disability of Native Magistrates and Sessions Judges to exercise the powers of a Justice of the Peace would be removed.

3. The object of these amendments, as stated by the Government of India, is to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the presidency towns of British India in such a way as to remove, at once and completely, from the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act X of 1882) every judicial disqualification based merely upon race distinctions. The Lieutenant-Governor, in submitting his views upon this proposition, desires that he may be understood to be treating the various points involved only as they relate to the North-Western Provinces and Oudh. The determination of them by the Government of India may depend materially upon considerations of a general character, and upon the circumstances, political and administrative, of the different provinces of British India; and Sir Alfred Lyall would wish only to offer an opinion upon the expediency or necessity of introducing the Bill's provision into the provinces under his administration.

4. I am to say, then, that the Lieutenant-Governor does not think it expedient, in these provinces, to throw open to Native Magistrates the jurisdiction over European British subjects to the extent that would be permissible under the Bill. The four classes of persons specified in section 1 of the Bill include, taken together, very nearly the total number of the civil officers (excluding the subordinate executive services) in these provinces. According to the constitution of the judicial service, there is in each district only a limited staff of officers at any time available for disposing of the important criminal work of the provinces. It follows that very junior officers must occasionally be invested with the powers of a first class Magistrate, their integrity and energy and the supervision of the superior courts being accepted as security for the proper exercise of these powers. The proposed magisterial qualification of eligibility for appointment to be a Justice of the Peace, namely, that the officer to be appointed must be a Magistrate of the first class, is therefore a very variable test of special fitness to exercise that jurisdiction. It is true that the qualification is a preliminary one only, and that the Local Government may select, from among the Magistrates possessing it, those only whom it thinks fit for appointment under section 1 of the Bill. But the Lieutenant-Governor now doubts whether there is sufficient stability or security in this discretionary power; since the correspondence and discussions that have taken place regarding the Bill have elicited great diversity of opinion, and it is not impossible that the Local Government might, at different times, have widely different views as to the proper standard of personal fitness, and as to the various considerations unavoidably and indisputably connected in all countries with marked distinctions of race. Seeing, then, that the broader and more attractive any principle is in its abstract form, the greater is the need for prudence in its application, the Lieutenant-Governor would now advise, in this instance, that the Legislature lay down a less flexible rule than that provided in the Bill, and limit more definitely the application of a principle which, reaching very far, may easily touch feelings and prepossessions that cannot be ignored.

5. In regard, moreover, to the last of the four classes named in section 1, it is understood that any person, without restriction as to service or class, military or civil, who is invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the first class within a cantonment, becomes the Cantonment Magistrate. If this be so, then not only for the reasons stated above, but also because Cantonment Magistrates are particularly intended to exercise authority over soldiers and others subject more or less to the rules and customs of military discipline, and are in constant relation with military commandants, the Lieutenant-Governor would not advise any change of law that might permit full jurisdiction in cantonments to be given to others beside European British subjects. And as both Cantonment Magistrates and Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation provinces can be appointed by the simple order of the Executive Government, their status differs in this respect from that of persons appointed to the Civil Service, which is created and defined by statutes.

6. For the reasons, then, set out in the preceding paragraphs, Sir Alfred Lyall would recommend the entire omission of section 1 from the Bill.

7. Section 2 of the Bill proposes to make all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates, in virtue of office, Justices of the Peace. With regard to this provision, I am now to explain the reasons why, after careful deliberation, the Lieutenant-Governor adheres to the opinion stated in the last paragraph of my letter No. 692, dated 27th May 1882, to the effect that the powers of Justice of the Peace might be conferred upon every Native officer, whether a member of the Covenanted Civil Service, or a commissioned civil officer in a non-regulation province, who may be appointed to be a Magistrate of a district. In the first place, the appointment of a Native officer, except on temporary occasions, to be Magistrate of a district, would, at least in these provinces, be a substantial recognition of his trustworthiness, capacity, and strength of character. For the District Magistrate, who in these provinces is also the Collector, is the chief executive officer holding large powers and acting under serious responsibilities within a very considerable tract of country. He commands all the executive, police, and revenue officers in the district; and he is the controller of, and to a certain extent the appellate authority over, the magisterial courts of the district. Being thus one of the main springs of the whole public administration, the District Magistrate is a member of the most important grade in the whole executive service of the Government in these provinces. It was probably with advertence to this fact that one of the non-official European gentlemen consulted regarding the Bill answered that if a Native Civilian was appointed Magistrate and Collector, it would make no appreciable difference to him whether or not that officer was a Justice of the Peace. Whenever, therefore, a Native Civilian shall have been promoted to a position of such trust and influence, it will be both reasonable and expedient to confer upon him the full attributes of his office. For since he is responsible for keeping order within his territorial jurisdiction, and for maintaining the authority of the Government and the law, not only should he be able to deal with persons of every class and condition, but it would be inconsistent and unwise so to limit his power that he should not be able to use it against an European, even in cases of sudden emergency in which he might have to exert his authority personally in preserving the peace by punishing disorder. These reasons for giving full jurisdiction to District Magistrates are at any rate clear, and of public concern. Moreover, District Magistrates are necessarily so limited in number, that the full extent to which, by including them among Justices of the Peace, the jurisdiction could be extended, would be plainly understood and clearly circumscribed, and would not fluctuate with changes of opinion as to the fitness of particular Native officers or classes of officers. Further, the principle of arming District Magistrates with exceptional powers has been the mainstay of our executive system from a very early date. At a time when ordinary jurisdiction over European British subjects was jealously reserved to the Supreme Courts at the presidency towns, the Statute of 53, George III, cap. 155, empowered the District Magistrate as such (whether or not a Justice of the Peace) to try charges against an European British subject of certain offences committed against Natives of India, and to pass sentence upon him. In fact, it is believed that investment with the powers of a Justice of the Peace was not essential to the exercise of the powers conferred under the statute until, for the first time, a proviso to that effect was introduced without discussion into Act XXV of 1861. It is, perhaps, true that up to 1832, when the Statute 3 and 4, William IV, cap. 85, was passed, no Native could have held the office of District Magistrate; but the point is now mentioned to support the argument that the investment of the District Magistrate as such with authority of a special kind has, if not always, still from a very early period of our administration, been admitted as essential to local administration.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor therefore supports the proposal to amend the law so as to make all District Magistrates, in virtue of office, Justices of the Peace. In the correspondence with which this discussion began, it was proposed by the Bengal Government to give full jurisdiction at least to Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service who shall have attained the position of District Magistrate or Sessions Judge. And in a Minute by a majority of the High Court of these provinces it is said that to this extent an amendment of the law is not opposed by the Judges, although the Minute objects altogether to clauses (b), (c), and (d) of section 1. The Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, as has been already explained, is that the appointment to a District Magistracy should be taken as the necessary verification of personal fitness to exercise the special jurisdiction. And from this point of view he would not draw a distinction between members of the Covenanted Civil Service and members of the Native Civil Service constituted under Statute 33, Vic., cap. 3. It may be true, although it has yet to be proved, that the former are likely, by reason of their training in England, to be better fitted than the latter to exercise the powers of Justice of the Peace. But this would be one of the points to be taken into account in appointing Native Civilians to be District Magistrates; since, whether they were members of the Covenanted Civil Service or of the Statutory Native Civil Service, their personal fitness to exercise all the functions of the appointment would have to be considered. It may also be observed that the Statute 33, Vic., cap. 10, pledges the Government to confer appointments ordinarily reserved for the Covenanted Civil Service only upon Natives of India of proved merit and ability, under rules that may from time to time be varied; so that in the case of persons employed under this Statute the selection for higher office must always be based strictly upon fitness and efficiency.

9. The foregoing arguments in favour of the proposal to invest District Magistrates, in virtue of office, with jurisdiction as Justices of the Peace, do not, however, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, apply to the proposed investment of Sessions Judges, in virtue of office, with similar powers. Every offence is ordinarily triable only within the district where it occurred; and as the charge must go in the first instance before some Magistrate, there are executive reasons why the District Magistrate should not be debarred from receiving, and according to law disposing of, any charge of an offence cognisable within his jurisdiction. But a committal for trial before a Sessions Judge involves few, if any, considerations of urgency or executive expediency; while it is usually as easy to arrange for the trial being held before the Judge of one district as before that of another. The object of interposing in 1872 the jurisdiction of the Sessions Court between the Magistrate and the High Court was to save the expense, delay, and general disadvantages of sending Europeans from remote districts for trial to the High Court. This is a consideration which is certainly rather losing than gaining force as communications improve; and at any rate there will always be a sufficient number of European Judges in different districts of these provinces to prevent serious inconvenience of this kind. Moreover, under the existing law in regard to the trial and punishment of European British subjects by the Court of Session, the Judge not only possesses jurisdiction stretching over a very wide range of offences, and has power to pass a sentence that may be very severe to an European, but he can also decide whether the accused shall or shall not be sent to be tried by the High Court with a jury. In these provinces trials before Sessions Judges could rarely (except in the few larger stations) be held with a jury; while if procedure by jury were, as a rule, introduced for the trial of Englishmen, Native Judges might be embarrassed. On the whole, therefore, the Lieutenant-Governor does not think that the anomaly of making a distinction in this respect, between European and Native Judges, furnishes a sufficient reason for changing the law, in order to give Native Judges the special jurisdiction over European British subjects.

10. In the final sentence of my letter No. 692, dated 27th May 1882, the specific recommendation of the Lieutenant-Governor was made in the following words:—

“In short, although the Lieutenant-Governor would not, for the present, advise that a Native Covenanted Civilian should be invested (save in very special cases) with the powers of a Justice of the Peace until he has been appointed, temporarily or permanently, to be a Magistrate of a district, he would confer the powers of a Justice of the Peace on every Native officer, whether a member of the Covenanted Civil Service or a commissioned civil officer in a non-regulation province, who may be appointed to be a Magistrate of a district.”

Sir Alfred Lyall would now amend this recommendation by striking out the clause

* (Save in very special cases.) enclosed in the parenthesis;* and he does not now advise, as was suggested in an earlier part of the confidential letter of the 27th

May 1882, that a Native Civilian, temporarily appointed to be a District Magistrate, should retain his powers as a Justice of the Peace on reversion to a subordinate post. He would attach the exercise of jurisdiction as Justice of the Peace to the office of District Magistrate, as a necessary or intrinsic function of the office itself, not of the individual who might hold it; and he would make no other substantive alteration in the law. He would retain the power, now held by the Local Government, of appointing, when reasons for it are shown, any European British subject, official or non-official, to be a Justice of the Peace. For, there can be little doubt that in certain localities and circumstances it may be advisable, if not necessary, in the interests of the natives of the country themselves, that the Government should have the power of conferring upon European British Magistrates, official or non-official, powers to deal promptly with their own countrymen. If, however, the Government of India are of opinion, upon a more general survey of the bearings of the question throughout India, that Sessions Judges ought to have jurisdiction as Justices of the Peace, the Lieutenant-Governor would advise that, upon the analogy of the proviso in section 4 of the Bill, the Local Government should be vested with discretion to confer, for special reasons, the jurisdiction upon Native Sessions Judges who shall have held office for a period stated. To this arrangement, indeed, for the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, there would be no objection whatever; but in these provinces the Sessions Judges are often officers whose standing in the service is not higher than that of the District Magistrates, and it becomes sometimes necessary to appoint, for short intervals, a junior officer.

11. In the correspondence submitted with this letter, it is more than once observed that the question of altering the present law regarding jurisdiction over European British subjects is in no way urgent. With this observation, so far as it relates to these provinces, the Lieutenant-Governor feels bound to say that he concurs. From one of the Minutes recorded by the Judges of the High Court it appears that during the past ten years the average annual number of charges against European British subjects has been 81. Of these cases by far the greatest number have occurred in the more important districts, in or near large stations, where European Magistrates and Sessions Judges are always to be found, and where, for general administrative reasons, the offices of Magistrate and Sessions Judge are not at all likely to pass out of the hands of European British officers. There are at present few European British subjects residing in the outlying districts, at a distance from the principal towns and lines of communication; nor is there any near prospect of their number increasing in parts of the country beyond easy reach and supervision from the principal centres. On the other hand, the Native Civilians now in these provinces are very few. In Oudh, there is one Native Assistant Commissioner not belonging to the Civil Service, and two Native Civilians appointed in 1880 and 1881 under the Statute 33 Vic. In the North-Western Provinces, there are two officers appointed in 1880 and 1881, under that Statute, and one Civilian who entered the service by competition in 1876. It may be assumed that, even if the Bill were to pass unaltered, the Government of India would expect that before the powers of a justice of Peace were conferred upon any officer of the classes made eligible, his general capacity and judgment as a Magistrate of the first class would be tested by some years' probation in that class. It follows that under any circumstances not more than one or two of the gentlemen just referred to would be soon eligible as Justices of the Peace. And even if the proportion of Native Civilians annually attached to this administration be in future augmented, the number of those who could be appointed Justices of the Peace must nevertheless for a long period to come be exceedingly small.

12. On the other hand, the English community in the North-Western Provinces has shown, since the Bill was published, a natural desire that criminal charges against them should, as heretofore, be enquired into and tried by English judicial officers. To this arrangement no demur, so far as the Lieutenant-Governor can ascertain, is made by the Natives of these provinces at large. It is true that some leading Native gentlemen, whose views and feelings carry much weight and merit much consideration, distinctly support the principle of removing class differences and race disqualifications, and would wish to see Native officers relieved from any such disability. But Sir Alfred Lyall nevertheless believes that all Native gentlemen possessing judgment, ripe experience, and real knowledge of these provinces would advise great care in selecting Native officers for the exercise of what must inevitably be, in many cases, a difficult and peculiar jurisdiction.

13. In these circumstances, the question of extending to Native Magistrates the power of Justice of the Peace cannot be said to press upon this administration. But whenever the Government of India determine that it must be settled (and now that the question has been formally taken up it ought to be settled), the Lieutenant-Governor would certainly give the jurisdiction to all District Magistrates, and he believes that this amendment of the present law would fulfil all reasonable expectations and answer all practical purposes.

No. 2309, dated 8th June 1883.

From—S. HARVEY JAMES, Esq., Registrar, High Court of Judicature, N.-W. Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Government, N.-W. Provinces and Oudh.

Referring to your No. 628, dated the 6th April last, in the Judicial (Criminal) Department, on the subject of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I am directed to submit Minutes recorded by the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Oldfield, and a joint Minute recorded by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Straight, Mr. Justice Brodhurst, and Mr. Justice Tyrrell.

Minute recorded by the HON'BLE SIR R. STUART, Chief Justice,—dated 7th June 1883.

There are many considerations germane to the question raised by this Bill, and to the legal policy relating to it, which I could have gone into with satisfaction to my own mind; but the pressure and urgency of other work has been such as to leave me without sufficient time or leisure for a full explanation of my views. I shall therefore confine myself to a few remarks on the more material points of the Bill.

I share in the regret so generally felt, and I believe with thorough and entire honesty on the part of those who have given expression to the feeling, that the Bill was introduced so hastily, unexpectedly on the part of the European community, and without any general demand on the part of the Natives of the country. Nor have I been able to discover in the discussion of the Bill in the Legislative Council, as published in the Gazette of India, the explanation of any adequate reason for it. It was said that the proposal was to substitute for the disqualification arising from race, a qualification depending on tried personal fitness, and section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code, which provides that "no person shall, by reason of his descent or place of birth, be in any civil proceeding exempted from the jurisdiction of any of the Courts," has been referred to as justifying the contention that the Criminal Procedure shall be brought into harmony with the Civil. But this is a view of the matter which appears to me to ignore the real and serious considerations that have to be faced. Civil law and its procedure operate, of necessity, in a manner which is indifferent to personal extraction or race, and there is nothing to colour facts and motives, and the facts being ascertained, the law takes effect civilly, without necessity touching character, feeling or sentiment: the property or right claimed is determined, and there is an end to the dispute, and the disappointment of the unsuccessful party is the only moral consequence that can ensue. But the administration of the criminal law in India ought to be regarded in a different light, appealing as it does to considerations relating to idiosyncrasy, temper, and temperament, moral appreciation of crime, consciousness of guilt or innocence, social degradation as the consequences of proved guilt, and the strange difference in this respect between the moral sense of the European and that of the Natives. All these are very delicate considerations, and it is not easy to appreciate the opinion that they could be safely handled even by the most highly-educated Native Magistrate in trying a European for an imputed offence against the criminal law.

As to Native officers of "tried personal fitness," I have some difficulty in understanding how this fitness is to be ascertained. No doubt if the Native gentlemen whom it is proposed to substitute for European have successfully gone through the training necessary for the Indian Civil Service, and have had some experience of European society, the experiment proposed might, perhaps, be made without any serious disturbance to existing social relations in this country; and I have no doubt that there are many Native gentlemen who could be safely entrusted with the performance of any duty, criminal as well as civil. I am acquainted with one Native officer in these provinces whose service and conduct during the few years he has been among us has been marked not only by fair ability, but by discretion and good sense; and after a time at least I should not fear to confide to him the trial of Europeans for offences against the Penal Code. This gentleman, however, although officially serving in, is not a Native of, these provinces, but is a member of the highly respectable and intelligent Parsee community, and I observe he has been lately called to the English Bar.

There is, however, one peculiarity of the Native mind which ought not to be kept out of view, and that is, so far as my experience in these provinces goes, their incapacity for the investigation of facts irrespective of any consideration whatever but their truth, purely and simply. Nor can they weigh evidence; in fact, they seem to me utterly incapable of understanding what evidence is; and as I remarked lately in a civil suit (first appeal No. 143 of 1880, dated 4th July 1881), where the depositions had been shamefully taken in the subordinate Native Court, the logical development of a witness's knowledge of facts is a thing utterly unknown, if it is indeed not impervious, to the Native mind. I know Native lawyers, who are not only highly respectable gentlemen, but who, in the exercise of their profession, are not only very acute in the apprehension and application of a legal principle, and indeed extremely able in legal argument generally, but yet who cannot apparently bring their minds to the consideration of disputed facts simply as such, and this of course may have a very serious bearing on the question whether Native officers could generally be relied on to faithfully administer the criminal law where a European is the accused person. As a singular instance of the bent of the Native mind to disregard, or at least to fail to apprehend, plain facts clearly standing out before them on distinct evidence, I may be allowed to refer to the celebrated Baroda case, where the Commissioners appointed to try the Gaekwar were equally divided, the Native Commissioners being for acquitting and the Europeans for convicting. The Native Commissioners, including so very intelligent a person as Sir Dinkar Rao, were all men of the highest rank, and were content to offer a general opinion in favour of the Gaekwar, without the least attempt to support their view of the case by any examination of the evidence; while the European Commissioners, all men of high distinction and experience in public affairs, with Sir Richard Couch, the late Chief Justice of Bengal, at their head, went fully into the merits of the case as spoken to by the witnesses, and showed the guilt of the accused by an irresistible demonstration of facts. The Government of India, however, under these circumstances refrained from recording any opinion of its own on the evidence and proceedings before the Commission, but by proclamation announced a conclusion which was only intelligible on a belief of the Gaekwar's guilt and a knowledge of his gross misconduct for a series of years, and declared his deposition from the sovereignty of the Baroda State, and that he and his issue were precluded from all rights, honours, and privileges thereto pertaining. Indeed it is impossible to understand the view taken of the Gaekwar's conduct by the Native Commissioners, excepting on the idea that the Gaekwar's rank, status, and position were such as to be incapable of being affected by the depositions of the witnesses who were examined, many of whom being persons by whose statements Natives of rank are not accustomed to be influenced. It might have been different if, instead of such witnesses, persons in a social position nearer to that of the Native Commissioners themselves had given evidence to the same effect; and this just shows the danger of confiding to Native officers the decision of questions touching the liberty and reputation of Englishmen and other Europeans, and which depend on the appreciation of evidence of facts, irrespective of the status of the witnesses who speak to them. The one thing is to secure the exclusion of bias and feeling, and that a trial should be in all respects fair.

To revert to the Bill under consideration, I would advise that Native officers to be appointed under it should be selected from class (a) in section 1; and it occurs that in important cases, in which the punishment might exceed twelve months, a Native Magistrate should not be allowed to proceed with any preliminary enquiry with a view to commitment, or to the trial of a European without notice to the High Court, in the form of an application by the prosecutor, to show cause why the enquiry should not go on before the Native Magistrate, whose warrant, however, should in the first instance be sufficient for the safe custody or bail of the accused European. Such a proceeding as this, along with the remedy afforded by section 456, Act X of 1882, might meet every possible miscarriage of the law, and afford every reasonable protection to Europeans who stand accused before Native Magistrates.

If the Bill is allowed to pass, I hope the change it makes in criminal procedure will be carried out with the greatest possible caution, and every care taken in the appointment of Native officers under it to select the men who may be presumed to be the best fitted for the performance of such new duties.

Minute recorded by the HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE OLDFIELD,—dated 5th June 1883.

The remarks I have to offer must be considered to be confined to the Bill so far as it affects the North-Western Provinces, and I am bound to say that I can find no immediate necessity for its introduction into these provinces, either on the ground that there has been a demand on the part of the native community for a measure to empower natives of this country as Justices of the Peace and Magistrates to deal with offences committed by European British subjects, or because the staff of Magistrates who may be empowered under the law as it stands to deal with such offences is inadequate for the purpose.

I fully appreciate the desirability of removing, so far as possible, invidious race distinctions; but I think the introduction of the Bill at the present time is to be regretted, seeing that there was no urgent need for it, and in view of the strong opposition to which it has given rise—an opposition which is undoubtedly based, however erroneously, on an honest conviction of its injurious tendency.

At the same time I am decidedly of opinion that the opponents of the Bill have greatly exaggerated the mischievous consequences likely to arise from the Bill, and I am persuaded that the Bill may safely be passed in a modified form without any evil result. I would recommend that jurisdiction over European British subjects should not be given to Native Magistrates of the classes (b) and (c) in section 1 of the Bill, and that Native Magistrates should not be employed as Cantonment Magistrates, and I would confine the jurisdiction over the European British subjects to native members of the Covenanted Civil Service only.

I think a measure of this sort, particularly under existing circumstances, cannot be introduced with too great caution, and it will be best to confine the exercise of powers under it, in the first instance, to natives who are members of the Covenanted Civil Service, and who, by their education, residence in England, and intercourse with Europeans, may confidently be expected to exercise their powers fairly and satisfactorily.

Minute recorded by the HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE STRAIGHT, MR. JUSTICE BRODHURST, and MR. JUSTICE TYRRELL,—dated 2nd May 1883.

We are invited by Government to give expression to our opinions upon the provisions of the "Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects." As a preliminary observation, and speaking with reference to these provinces alone, it seems to us matter for regret that we were not asked at an earlier stage, and before the measure was introduced into the Council, as to whether any pressing necessity existed in this part of India for any such change in the law as that which is now proposed. Had any enquiries been addressed to us, we could have shown what we now have to point out, that there are no circumstances, either of administrative or judicial inconvenience, existing within the jurisdiction of this Court necessitating legislation. At the present moment there is only one Native Covenanted Civilian in the North-West to whom clause (a) of section 1 of the Bill applies, and he is a Joint-Magistrate of the 2nd grade; and with regard to clause (b) of section 1, we have only two young native gentlemen, nominated under 33 Victoria, cap. 111, acting as Assistant Magistrates. As to clause (c) there is not a single Native Cantonment Magistrate in the provinces, nor do we think it would be at all desirable that any native should be appointed to such a post. Then as to the number of European British subjects coming before the Criminal Courts, we find that during the last ten years, 817 in all have been tried by the Sessions Judges, District Magistrates and Magistrates of the first class; and that in twelve districts out of thirty-seven, namely Azamgarh, Hamirpur, Lalitpur, Jalaun, Etah, Manipuri, Pilibhit, Budaun, Bijnor, Tarai, Garhwal, and Bulandshahr, there has not been a single case. Towards the total we have mentioned, the Allahabad district contributes 235, Agra 100, Cawnpur 75, Meerut 40, including the military stations of these several towns; and many of the offences comprehended relating to breaches of Cantonment rules and regulations; while Dehra Dun gives 121, Saharanpur 43, and Mirzapur 43. We are unaware that any unusual difficulty or inconvenience ever arose in connection with the disposal of this annual average of 81 cases against European British subjects; no complaint of anything of the kind is on record; and, as far as we can see, there is no probability of its occurring.

It will thus be seen that in these provinces no reasons of public convenience called for the introduction of this Bill, nor was there any personal grievance crying for redress, and the anomaly upon which so much stress has been laid in justification of the measure had never obtruded itself in any way. The existence of English Courts in India is in itself an anomaly; but we doubt if any one could be found bold enough to propose their extinction merely upon that ground; and if absolute uniformity is to be the guiding principle of legislation in this country, we should at once abolish the distinction that protects a native gentleman of rank, or a pardah-nashin woman, from appearing in Court, when a European male or female can claim no such exemption.

We have said this much, because in a matter that has provoked such a display of strong feeling—a great deal of which, by the way, appear to us exceedingly exaggerated and undignified—we think we are bound to adopt the somewhat unusual course of expressing in no uncertain terms our views as to the inexpediency of, and absence of necessity for, the introduction of this Bill, at any rate so far as these provinces are concerned. We have not been able to ascertain that there was any demand or any agitation for such a change in the law, except of course on the part of the one gentleman who seems to have made the first move in the matter, until it was suggested by the appearance of the Bill itself; and we most emphatically say that there was not, and is not, any pressing need or necessity for it. Whatever another twenty years may effect, by an increase in the numbers of native gentlemen qualifying for the Covenanted or nominated to the Indian Civil Service, the alteration now proposed might well have been left to the future for settlement, when a substantial grievance clamoured for removal. We cannot, of course, venture to speak with reference to the circumstances of Lower Bengal and the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, which will no doubt be fully dealt with by the Minutes of the several High Courts interested, for there are many matters relating to Lower Bengal, for example, of which in these provinces we can have no direct knowledge or experience. In passing, however, we think it right to say that we have no sympathy whatever with much of the language that has been used in the course of the bitter controversy that this Bill has aroused with regard to native magisterial officers; and we think it is scarcely calculated to serve the cause of its opponents, with those who wish to give the question a calm and impartial consideration. Seeing that under the law the Native Magistrates are entrusted with the power of trying their fellow-countrymen for many offences, it is neither complimentary nor creditable to our system of criminal justice to speak of them in a manner that implies they are intellectually and morally unfit to exercise any such jurisdiction at all. At the same time from our experience we feel bound to remark that, while the Native Subordinate Judges and Munsifs of these provinces, with few exceptions, exhibit a peculiar taste for and facility in, dealing with the questions of law which are raised in civil suits, we cannot say save in some rare instances, that we have found such of the work of our Native Magistrates as has passed under our notice to be equally happily done. There is no disguising the fact that many of the latter especially do not appreciate or understand the rules of evidence, and that they do not value the importance of recording depositions with strict care and accuracy. In justice to our Native Magistrates, however, it should be observed that their duties are of a mixed kind, and that much of their time has to be devoted to Revenue work as Deputy Collectors—a class of business in no way calculated to improve their knowledge of criminal law or practice. Without unreasonably depreciating them, we cannot say that we think these gentlemen, either by training, experience or knowledge of the manners and habits of Europeans, fitted to hold enquiry into or trial of cases in which European British subjects are in the position of accused persons. In this way, and to this extent only, can we coincide in the remarks that have been made upon the subject to which we have been more immediately referring.

So much has been said and written about the Bill now before us, that were we to discuss the various arguments for and against it, we should only be recapitulating what has already been urged on one side or the other. In the angry and impassioned war of words that the introduction of this measure has precipitated, it is not altogether easy to preserve that calmness and impartiality which is so essential in dealing with a question of this kind upon its true merits. We have already indicated in plain terms our opinion that the Bill is not wanted; but on the assumption that it may be persevered with, we have given its provisions our best attention, and think it right at once clearly and in distinct terms to state that we object altogether to the proposals contained in clauses (b), (c), and (d) of section 1 of the Bill. We think, however, without going the length of asserting that Native gentlemen who have passed into the Covenanted Civil Service, and who have reached the position of Sessions Judge or Magistrate of a district, to be “more English in thought and feeling than Englishmen themselves,” as described by an exuberant supporter of the measure during the debate in Council, that they may fairly be said, from the incidents of their training, experience and necessary length of service, to have given pledges of their capacity and competency to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects. To this extent, and this extent only, we do not oppose an amendment of the law. But, while going so far, we wish most emphatically to declare that if this concession is granted, it should only be made with the plain and positive intimation that it is in no way to be regarded as a precedent or basis for future agitation in the direction of the other proposals contained in the Bill.

No. 990, dated 8th May 1883.

From—H. J. SPARKS, Esq., C.S., Judicial Commissioner, Oudh,

To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 629, dated the 6th ultimo, forwarding, for my opinion, a copy of a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure as far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. Should the Bill become law, it is not likely to affect this province for some time to come. There is at present no Native gentleman holding the post of District Magistrate or Sessions Judge, and it is improbable that His Honour would immediately appoint to be Justices of the Peace officers so junior as the Native gentlemen who are now serving in Oudh as Assistant Commissioners. It may be owing to this that the Bill has caused little excitement here.

3. I have spoken on the subject to various persons, and find that European British subjects of all classes are opposed to the Bill. Natives generally appear to take little interest in the matter in which they are not personally concerned. One gentleman has told me that he thought there was no necessity for any change in the law: another that as Natives are now for the first time being placed in charge of districts, it would be as well to wait and see how they acquit themselves as such before altering the law: a third considered the Bill premature; but as the principle of doing away with race distinctions is good, he would be glad to see it passed. Some few of the more advanced and discontented school now see a sentimental grievance in the present law, and are in favour of the present measure. Some gentlemen have expressed regret that the Bill has been brought in, as it has given rise to an unfriendly feeling between the Native and the European. The views of the Native Magistracy generally were, I believe, truly expressed by a very shrewd and practical Native judicial officer, who told me that personally he should be very sorry to be appointed a Justice of the Peace.

4. In my own opinion the District Magistrate should be ex-officio a Justice of the Peace. He is responsible for the peace of his district, and should have full powers. In the interests of European British subjects also, it is desirable that there should be at least one officer in every district competent to dispose at once of any complaints that may be brought against them. The remaining provisions of the Bill appear to me unnecessary, and they would, I believe, have a bad effect. Although all men may be equal in the eye of the law, there is no doubt that, as a matter of fact, Englishmen do not regard Natives as their equals; and were it not for this feeling, we should probably not be here. When considering the probable results of the proposed measure, the existence of this feeling must not be lost sight of. In the case of a timid Magistrate, this assumed superiority might often lead to an improper acquittal; in the case of a vain one, it might cause undue severity. In no case would it be conducive to the dignity of our Courts, or to the temperate and impartial administration of justice. I am therefore of opinion that it would be a mistake to appoint any Native officer, except the District Magistrate, to be a Justice of the Peace.

5. It also seems to me unwise to throw away the power of appointing to be Justices of the Peace any European British subjects other than those specified in the first section of the Bill. The present policy of the Government is to appoint no Uncovenanted European Magistrate, and the race of European Deputy Collectors and Extra Assistant Commissioners is gradually dying out. But a time may come when the Government will be glad to avail itself again of the services of this useful class. Looking to the possibility of a change of policy in this respect, I would retain power to appoint to be Justices of the Peace such European British subjects as the Government may think fit.

6. I have said that in my opinion every District Magistrate should be ex-officio a Justice of the Peace; but though in theory I think there can be no doubt that he should be one, the present time does not appear to be favourable for a change in the existing law. As far as I am aware, no practical inconvenience has hitherto been experienced. I have not heard that any European British subjects have been detained for an exceptionally long period owing to there being no officer in the district competent to dispose of the complaint against them. Nor do I know of any case in which a Native complainant was prevented from prosecuting a European British subject for a similar reason. For some years to come there will be no difficulty in posting an English Assistant Magistrate to each of the few districts in which the District Magistrate may be a Native. There is therefore no immediate necessity for any alteration in the law, and it would be inexpedient to pass a most unpopular Act until it has been shown that the present law does really occasion inconvenience.

7. The Bill has unfortunately given rise to so much angry feeling that I trust I may be excused if I do not confine my remarks to the Bill itself, but express a hope that it may be withdrawn. My reasons for this are, that the provisions of the Bill are most obnoxious to the persons whom it will concern—the European British subjects; while they do no practical good to any other section of the community. I have heard it said that the Government is placed in this dilemma. If the Bill be withdrawn, it will look as if this were done in deference to views that have been expressed in a most unbecoming if not in a menacing manner, and that this will be a bad precedent for all seditious agitators. On the other hand, if the Bill become law, the feelings of a small, but important and influential, body of the community will be estranged. It appears to me that there is no question as to the correct course to adopt. If, as I believe, no practical difficulties have shewn an alteration in the law to be necessary, it would be a mistake to pass an Act which is regarded as an injury by the people whom it concerns simply that the Government may vindicate its dignity, or, in other words, show that it is not afraid. The Government of India is, I submit, too strong to shrink from doing what is right lest it should be thought to have given way to disrespectful clamour. The Government of India might no doubt prove its power by passing the measure in spite of all opposition; but I am convinced that the more dignified—and looking to the possible results of the measure—the wiser policy would be to withdraw the Bill in deference to the opinion of those whose interests will be affected by it, without attaching undue weight to the intemperate manner in which that opinion has been expressed.

No. 26—XIII, dated 7th May 1883.

From—ELLIOT COLVIN, Esq., C.S., Commissioner, Meerut Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

In answer to your No. 630, dated 6th ultimo, Judicial (Criminal) Department, I have the honour to state that there appears to be no object in delaying my answer to the 1st of June, the latest date allowed. Opinions held by different classes are so strong and fixed, that there is no probability of any early change taking place.

2. The mass of the Native population are ignorant of the Bill: this element is one which has to be considered only so far as it can be worked on by agitators; and the religious leaders who have most influence with them have little or no sympathy with the Natives who are advocates of the measure.

3. These consist almost entirely of men who have been educated in our English colleges—clerks, pleaders, schoolmasters, junior officials: in short the men who have been semi-Europeanised by an English education are all strongly in favour of the Bill.

4. This advocacy is based partly on the ideas of liberty and equality derived from their education, and partly on the idea that the Bill places a seal on a policy of which they are strong partisans.

5. The weapon of this section of the community is the Press. Its chief opponent is that part of the Native community educated according to Oriental ideas, and which infinitely prefers being governed by Europeans, to being associated in Government with their fellow-countrymen, whose opinions and views they utterly distrust, and whom they consider to be perverts.

6. As yet the European, especially the European official, has held the scales between the two sections; but the semi-Europeanised section knows that with the Native Press to aid him, he will have gained a vast step by anything which lowers the influence of the European.

7. Unfortunately an impression is prevalent that the Government and Executive officers are not in agreement. The origin of this is, that while Government stated the consensus of opinion is in favour of the Bill, it is very rare indeed to hear any English official approve of it.

8. The Native community educated in the Oriental method do not want the Bill; they look with the greatest jealousy and distrust on the men of the new school, and are afraid of any measure which may increase their influence. The Deputy Magistrates point out the fact that they always try to get a case in which an Englishman is in any way concerned tried by an English officer; and officers of experience foresee that though to be able to try Europeans may be an honour, still the evil results and inconveniences arising would far counterbalance and practically prevent the exercise of the power.

9. The unanimity among all the non-official (English) classes is wonderful in the condemnation of the Bill. Most people who have an opportunity of feeling the pulse of their countrymen must have foreseen the outcry which was certain to be raised; but probably few anticipated the stubborn, unyielding character of the opposition which would be raised. In the present state of feeling it is useless to suggest a compromise.

10. Among the officials the Bill finds no favour. So far as this part of India is concerned it is looked on as premature. The bitterness of feeling which has been roused is deplored, while the absence of any immediate necessity for such a measure is admitted. No officer whom I have consulted suggests any modification or compromise. The feeling among the officials may, I think, be characterised as one of sincere regret and an earnest desire that the matter may be shelved as it most decently can.

No 106—XIII-167, dated 12th May 1883.

From—J. C. ROBERTSON, Esq., Commissioner, Rohilkhand Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

In reply to G. O. No. 631, dated 6th April 1883, Judicial (Criminal) Department, I have the honour to remark that, although I was originally of opinion that members of the Covenanted Civil Service (irrespective of the fact as to whether they were European British subjects) and members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules made under 33 Victoria, cap. III, might be appointed Justices of the Peace, subsequent events have caused me to modify that opinion, for it is impossible to ignore the agitation which has been caused amongst the non-official English section of the community.

2. As is natural in cases when men's minds are excited, a great deal has been said on both sides which had better have been left unsaid; but the fact remains that the opposition of non-official Europeans to the proposed Bill is unanimous and intense. On the other hand, I (speaking from the opinions of Native gentlemen of standing and respectability) am convinced that there is no general wish for its introduction; and that, so far as this part of the country is concerned, they would willingly leave matters in statu quo, and are not in the least desirous of any such change as is contemplated by the Bill.

3. Looking at the agitation which has been caused, and at the fact that every English member of the Covenanted Civil Service is not necessarily a Justice of the Peace, I consider that the present Bill is uncalled for, and will, if passed, produce results which are much to be deprecated, without causing any real benefit to any one.

4. In one point only it might be advisable to make a change, viz., although it is not likely to happen in these provinces for some years, the time will come when members of the Native Civil Service will be eligible for the appointment of Magistrate of the district; and should such an appointment take place, administrative difficulties might arise unless the Magistrate was invested with powers of a Justice of the Peace, for it might easily happen that there would be no other officer in the district qualified to exercise such powers. I therefore think that it might be advisable to alter the law so as to make every Magistrate of the district ex-officio a Justice of the Peace; but I would go no further. I imagine that there would not be much opposition to this compromise, for as an English gentleman, a planter residing in this division, remarked to me, granted the fact that the Magistrate and Collector of the district was a Native Civilian, it would make no appreciable difference to him whether that officer was or was not a Justice of the Peace.

5. In conclusion, I have given this matter my best attention, as I cannot forget that, when consulted demi-officially by you on the subject, I expressed an opinion decidedly more favourable to the proposals contained in the Bill than that which I have now given, and can only say that the strong opposition on one side, combined with entire indifference on the other, which has since come to my notice has shown me that I was mistaken.

No. 3150—276, dated 29th May 1883.

From—A. J. LAWRENCE, Esq., Officiating Commissioner, Allahabad Division,

To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

As desired in your No. 632 of 6th April, I have consulted directly with many Europeans and Natives, and indirectly, i.e., through Messrs. Barstow, Mellor, and Benson, on the subject of the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code, 1882. Briefly, I may say that while all Europeans and Eurasians are against the Bill in any form or shape, few native gentlemen other than Bengali Babus and Cashmeri Pandits desire it or think it advisable. Some, no doubt, who had never previously known of the disqualification, nor had not in any way felt the necessity of a change, would now be averse to its being abandoned, as they look upon it as a race question, and make no secret of a desire for a victory over Europeans.

2. The latter now say but little, as they consider that all has been said that can be, and that the question will really be settled by Parliament, or at any rate in England. But that they think the less of it, or the better of themselves for having made a surrender in 1872, without which the present move would have been impossible, I do not believe. But the Europeans then recognised that grave administrative difficulties existed, that miscarriages of justice were frequent, and they gave way. They do not now believe, and speaking as Magistrate for twelve years of such districts as Benares, Etawah, and Agra, I agree with them that administrative difficulties or miscarriages of justice require any further surrender of keenly-valued privileges.

3. Government is not required to, and should not, anticipate the wants of the country. And as the Magistrate of Fatehpur says "all the injury (if any) which the Bill may do will fall upon the Europeans. It appears to me that it is the views of Europeans alone which required to be carefully considered and weighed, especially the views of that class, viz., the non-official, whose interests are most likely to be affected. Now no one can deny that the whole body of non-official Europeans look on the Bill with consternation. Is the Government prepared to say that it is certain that the fears which the European community in general has so freely expressed are utterly groundless, and that the classes of natives to whom the Bill proposes to give the powers of a Justice of the Peace are in every way fitted to exercise those powers? This is, I think, the test by which the Bill must be judged, and by it I think the Bill stands condemned. I believe every word of what the Hon'ble Mr. Thomas said (Gazette of India, 21st April 1883) to be true; and that if natives are given the power of summoning Europeans (and especially European women) before a Native Magistrate, then they will use that power for the purpose of extortion and annoyance, and a very real terror will be added to the life of a European in the mufassil, which may at any moment lead to disastrous consequences."

4. In England no Magistrate can sentence an offender to an imprisonment of longer than six months, and in doubtful cases the option of a trial by jury at Sessions is nearly always given; but here the new Bill will, without affording the protection which trial by jury affords, authorise Native Judges to imprison European British subjects up to twelve months. A safeguard, which the English nation has always enjoyed, is thrown aside, and Europeans can hardly be expected to acquiesce in this loss without vehement protests.

5. It may be that when local self-government has accustomed the latter to see their native brethren taking a more prominent part in municipal and other small jurisdictions, and exercising impartially an authority to which all classes have to submit, they may accept such a Bill as is now proposed. But it is one thing to be subject to an alien in matters of taxation and municipal rights, and it is another to know that your personal liberty, and more especially that of your wives and daughters, is at their mercy. And Europeans do not believe that any Natives, with their widely different ideas in regard to almost every social and religious matter, their caste prejudices, their ignorance of the manners and customs of the Europeans, and of the motives which guide them, are competent to give them a fair trial.

6. Supporters of the Bill say :—It is to so few we propose to give this power. But is it so? Once a local Governor, who approves of the Bill, is empowered to invest Assistant Commissioners under the proposed Act, will he not consider himself bound to do so? Will not Native Magistrates of all classes sooner or later be invested with similar powers? In common, I believe with many experienced officers, I fear that such Magistrates will not prove independent, and that they will not always use their powers without fear or favour. It is, I believe, well known that native suitors often wish to have their cases tried by an European Magistrate rather than by a countryman.

7. The social and intellectual distance between Europeans and Natives in all things is so great—a distance which their religion extends rather than lessens—that few natives acquire an intimate knowledge of the private life and habits of thought of an European.

Perhaps those who have been for some years in England, the few regular Native Civilians, may be sufficiently versed in the ways of the lower, as well as of the better class of Europeans, as to be qualified to sit as their Judges; but ordinary natives, or young men of family nominated to the Civil Service, should not in my judgment be empowered as the Bill proposes.

8. I have said nothing of the sentiment which the Bill under discussion ignores, or of the proposed amendment of section 22 of the Criminal Procedure Code, whereby the powers of the local Government to invest non-official European British subjects with powers over British subjects is withdrawn. I can only conclude this is an oversight.

9. So much has elsewhere been said that I have been purposely brief; but having consulted many persons, I should counsel that the proposed powers be extended only to those Native competition Civilians who, as District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, should be ex-officio Justices of the Peace.

10. The Bill can hardly be abandoned entirely, but the smaller change the better prospect there is of good government, and of the continuance of cordial relations between the Anglo-Indian and Native-born subjects of the Queen.

Dated 23rd April 1883.

From—KUNWAR HARNAM SINGH AHLUWALIA, Lucknow,

To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

In reply to your letter of the 10th instant, I beg to say that I am very thankful to Sir Alfred Lyall for inviting my opinion on the Native Jurisdiction Bill. I cannot but feel deeply interested in all that concerns the welfare of Indians; and therefore, availing myself of this opportunity, I would premise, firstly, that by assuming the title of Empress of India, Her Majesty has extended to us the privilege of considering ourselves as fellow-subjects with Englishmen; and, secondly, by giving us a liberal education, Government has befitted us for high responsibilities, which we expect to be entrusted with to a greater extent every day, according as we are found to deserve them more and more. The policy of Government has therefore been to avail itself of the services of Natives more largely than was the case some years back, not only as a generous concession to the claims of the children of the soil, but also as rendered necessary (1) on economical and (2) on political grounds. The Covenanted Civil Service has accordingly been thrown open to Native gentlemen, many of whom have already found admission into it; and since Government has gone thus far, every sensible man will admit that it should not long withhold from them the powers and privileges granted to their fellow-officers. A change must be made sooner or later, on the ground of administrative convenience, as also for the reasons given above. The anomalous case of a Native Presidency Magistrate is well known. A Native Civilian is tolerated as a Presidency Magistrate, but has not hitherto been permitted to go to the mufassil with those powers, in the exercise of which he has afforded satisfaction to the Local Government as well as the public. Outside the presidency-town a Native Magistrate cannot so much as commit for trial a European. It being, however, necessary for Government, in pursuance of its declared policy, to employ Natives extensively in the judicial service, in course of time a very large number of outstations will have Native judicial officers; so the question is, how can justice be administered to all Her Majesty's subjects without Native officers possessing criminal jurisdiction over European criminals? I presume Europeans have hitherto enjoyed immunity for many a crime, owing merely to the inconvenience attending an attempt to bring them to justice. The rural and illiterate classes of Natives (who form the majority of the population of India) have therefore been accustomed to think that English law is solely intended to punish them, and not a law-breaking Englishman. They are surely mistaken, and yet Government might pay more regard to the quiet resignation of these its ignorant subjects, labouring under a mistaken sense of injustice, for which they fancy there is no remedy, than to the angry and senseless ebullitions of a privileged class who ought to know better. To me, therefore, it does not appear inexpedient to modify the existing law, and remove the disqualification which Native Civilians are subject to, because of the invidious race distinction that has hitherto been allowed to exist, as also owing perhaps to the supposed unfitness of Natives to try Englishmen even in the most trivial cases of infringement of law by the latter, whom no Native is believed to be capable of thoroughly understanding and doing justice to. The distinction in law between European and Native officers, so far at least as the administration of justice is concerned, should be done away with; and this amendment should, as His Excellency is of opinion, be passed at once, rather than some years hence. As very few Natives would obtain power under it, it would be easier to watch the working of it now than when (under the system introduced by Lord Lytton in 1879, and to which the measure proposed by Lord Ripon is but a corollary) Covenanted Civilians become more numerous.

Of course it is urged by those who are not in sympathy with the contemplated action of Government, that there being no sufficient safeguards against the miscarriage of justice, Natives cannot be trusted with powers over European British subjects out of the presidency-towns. Admitting this to be a fact, and granting that education, inter-communication, the supervision of High Courts, and other circumstances will not exercise any salutary restraint whatever, I would crave for consideration whether the objection does not apply with almost equal force to English Civilians in out-stations, and whether it has ever been allowed to be a bar to their investment with powers over Native British subjects? Taking also for granted that Natives do not understand Europeans sufficiently well to do justice to them, I ask again, do Europeans understand us so thoroughly as always to be able to do justice to us? These and other such objections that the majority of the non-official Englishmen in India are blindly raising against the wise and liberal policy of the present Government are simply suicidal.

Englishmen claim, and that justly, that their personal law should be respected; and so they are in all civil matters. We cannot grudge them their law of marriage, of inheritance, or their trial by jury. The question merely is, by whom shall the ordinary criminal law be administered, as a correspondent of the Pioneer very well puts it? If by Natives as well as Europeans, are the former nearly as competent as the latter? I believe sufficient care is taken in the selection of officers, whether they be Englishmen or Natives, for the Covenanted Service, and the subsequent training that they receive satisfies Government as to their fitness for judicial responsibilities. The personal qualifications that ought to entitle properly educated Natives to exercise the same powers as their fellow officials generally, and to deal satisfactorily with cases in which Europeans are involved particularly, can be no other than fact, judgment, uniform uprightness, honesty, and moral courage; and whether Native Civilians possess them in a measure sufficient for the proper discharge of judicial duties, I believe Local Governments are in a better position to judge than irresponsible non-official Englishmen and Eurasians, who do not seem disposed to believe that Natives possess these virtues. As for legal and other training, I suppose Native Civilians receive enough of it during the period in which they qualify for the Service in England, and say the first five years that they exercise their judicial functions in their own country.

The proposed amendment is meeting with violent opposition from all quarters of India. Even Eurasians, and those whose European names alone seem to justify their preposterous demonstrations, have made common cause with Englishmen. But Government need not be apprehensive of anything serious resulting from this storm in a teapot. However, so far as Englishmen are concerned, the opposition presented is certainly very natural, as the proposed amendment apparently assails a privilege hitherto enjoyed by them. Yet I wish they had fought so hard on the side of reason, instead of mere sentiment. We are the more sorry for it as the amendment in question will keep up for some time the unfriendliness that it has unfortunately created between Englishmen and Natives. We shall bitterly feel it in our daily intercourse with them, but we also strongly hope that all excitement and ill-feeling, not originating in anything to perpetuate them long, will subside of themselves sooner or later, and give place to cordiality to the extent permitted by the relations in which the two races stand to each other.

It will therefore be a pity, as also a great mistake, if the Bill be eventually withdrawn. It deserves to be successful over all opposition; and we fervently trust that India may yet heartily congratulate the noble Ruler, and those associated with him, through whose instrumentality this great change in the administration of the country will be effected.

In conclusion, I beg you will understand that all I have said is in reference to those Natives only who return from England after successfully competing there for the Civil Service. If the Bill is passed, it will, of course, be for all Native Civilians; but since Government will proceed with the greatest caution in putting it to the test of experiment, I trust that Native gentlemen of the "Indian Civil Service," if entrusted with the proposed powers at all, will be exceptionally few for some years to come.

No. 2940-165, dated 6th July 1883.

From—A. H. L. FRASER, Esq., C.S., Offg. Secy. to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

I am directed, in continuation of my letter No. 2822-161, dated 30th ultimo, to submit

From the Registrar, Judicial Commissioner's Court, Central Provinces, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 1134, dated 14th June 1883.

From the Officiating Commissioner, Jubbulpore Division, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 1682, dated 4th April 1883.

From the Officiating Commissioner, Chhattisgarh Division, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 2293, dated 9th April 1883.

From the Commissioner, Nerbudda Division, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 1563, dated 25th April 1883.

From the Officiating Commissioner, Nagpur Division, to the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 3184, dated 4th June 1883.

the correspondence noted in the margin, and also a Memorandum in which the Chief Commissioner has recorded his views on the Criminal Jurisdiction Bill. Mr. Jones has not thought it necessary to submit the opinions of Deputy Commissioners, but I am to mention that non-official European opinion is almost entirely adverse to the Bill.

This was, Mr. Jones thinks, only to be expected. The non-official European is but little acquainted with the considerations by which the Government of India is influenced in connection with this matter, and unless public opinion among Europeans is somewhat systematically educated, there is but little chance that the present opposition to the Bill will disappear. He would therefore venture to urge that the leaders of the European community should be taken as much as possible into the confidence of Government. With their help a compromise, which may not be altogether unsatisfactory, may, he thinks, still be arrived at.

No. 1134, dated 14th June 1883.

From—The Registrar, Judicial Commissioner's Court, Central Provinces,
To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

In reply to your endorsement No. 1246-68, dated 29th of March 1883, forwarding a copy of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1852, I am directed to communicate the following remarks.

2. No administrative necessity for the measure has arisen in these Provinces, inasmuch as there is in the Commission only one probationary member of the Native Civil Service, and no native member of the Covenanted Civil Service. For the same reason there can be no objection, so far as regards these Provinces, to the Bill on the ground that it will be prejudicial to the administration of justice.

3. I am, however, to say that if there were in the Commission native gentlemen qualified under the Bill for appointment to the office of Justice of the Peace, the Officiating Judicial Commissioner does not think that the Bill, if passed, would injuriously affect the administration of justice, or the safety of European British subjects. The Local Government would not appoint any native gentleman to be a Justice of the Peace unless he were fully competent to perform the duties of the office. There can be no question that Magistrates possessing the qualifications required by the Bill are, so far as legal knowledge is concerned, fully competent to try European British subjects. Those officers on whose discretion, judgment and impartiality the Local Government could not rely, would not, it is to be presumed, be appointed Justices of the Peace. So also with regard to the section of the Bill which confers the power of a Justice of the Peace on persons holding the office of District Magistrate and Sessions Judge, the Legislature may fairly assume that incompetent persons will not be appointed to such important offices. Moreover, it cannot be denied that an officer who is competent to exercise the powers of a District Magistrate or of a Sessions Judge is competent to exercise the limited jurisdiction conferred on those officers with respect to European British subjects.

4. There are, however, two objections to the measure, namely, first, that a native gentleman is not so good a judge as a European in a case in which a European is accused; and secondly, that European British subjects entertain a very strong opinion that a native gentleman is not competent to try them. From a judicial point of view, it is desirable that an accused person should be tried by the best tribunal possible, and by one in which both he and the class to which he belongs place confidence. It is, Sir James Stephen says, (Criminal Law of England, page 206), hardly less important that the decision in a criminal case should be believed to be just than that it should actually be just. Acting on this principle, the Legislature has reserved to the chartered High Courts, the Chief Court of the Punjab, and the Recorder of Rangoon, all the powers of a High Court with reference to European British subjects. Unless, therefore, there is an administrative necessity for the change, the Officiating Judicial Commissioner would not recommend that jurisdiction over European British subjects be given to a class of courts which European British subjects believe, rightly or wrongly, to be incompetent to give them justice. This opinion is given on a consideration only of the judicial administrative requirements of the Central Provinces. Mr. Crosthwaite does not think that he is called on to give any opinion as to the political questions raised in connection with the Bill, or as to the claims of native members of the Civil Service to the exercise of the powers conferred on English members of that service.

5. If, however, it is considered necessary, in view of the requirements of other Provinces, or for other reasons, to pass the Bill, the Officiating Judicial Commissioner does not anticipate that, so far as the judicial administration is concerned, any difficulty will be caused in these Provinces by its provisions if hereafter there are Native Magistrates who are Justices of the Peace. For some years the District Magistrate will always be a European British subject, and it will be easy for him to try all cases which in his opinion are such as, either owing to the nature of the charges or the fact of the parties and witnesses being Europeans, should be tried by a European British subject. By the time that native gentlemen rise in these Provinces to be Sessions Judges and District Magistrates, the question of their competency or incompetency to try European British subjects will have been decided and will be beyond controversy.

No. 1682, dated 4th April 1883.

From—MAJOR-GENL. E. M. PLAYFAIR, Officiating Commissioner, Jubbulpur Division,
To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

In reply to your No. 1246-68, dated 29th ultimo, I have the honour to state that although I consider a good deal of the feeling excited by the proposed introduction of the measure to be now legislated for is sentimental, still there is a certain amount of reason and justice against the Bill in question.

2. The Bill proposes to give certain classes of Native Magistrates up-country the powers, in respect of jurisdiction over Europeans, which the Presidency Magistrates now exercise. But in my opinion there is a wide difference between the surrounding circumstances of the two. In the Presidency towns there is strong public opinion brought to bear on all the acts of the Magistracy, which undoubtedly serves as a protection to Europeans who are subject to the jurisdiction of these Magistrates, and thus ensures fair play. On the contrary, in a very large proportion of up-country areas, there is no such "public opinion" and therefore no similar protection.

3. Again, the Presidency Magistrates, from their training and education and from constant association with Europeans, are able to understand the feelings, habits and customs of this latter class, and are therefore fitted to gauge the probabilities of any case in which Europeans are concerned almost, if not altogether, as well as Europeans themselves. There is also in the presidency-towns less chance of false accusations and false swearing, which is notorious in up-country.

4. It seems advisable to let well alone. The proposed change, so far as we have been able to learn, has been initiated at the instance of a small section of the native official community, and has not been forced on the attention of Government by any strong consensus of opinion. The opposition to the proposed legislation on the part of the non-official Europeans of India has been so marked that any attempt to persist in carrying out the measure can only tend to keep up, or rather to revive, the feelings of class animosity which had to a great extent died out since the days of the mutiny, and this of itself is a strong reason why the measure, not being actually necessary now, should be allowed to drop.

No. 2293, dated 9th April 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COL. H. C. E. WARD, Officiating Commissioner, Chhattisgarh Division,
To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

I have the honour to acknowledge copy of the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, received under your endorsement No. 1246-68 of date 29th ultimo, calling for an expression of my opinion.

2. I would beg to submit that, in my humble opinion, the amendments proposed are not necessary, and it is not expedient that they should become law at the present time. My reasons I will give in detail immediately, but I would first ask to be allowed to point out that I am in no way averse to the principles on which the Native Civil Service has been founded, or to the theory of conferring high powers on selected natives; rather the contrary; I have always advocated both, and I see no reason whatever why well-educated natives should not be able administrators.

3. My objection to the proposed amendments to the Criminal Procedure Code are these—

I. I note that in the Statement of Objects and Reasons it is urged that "it was thought anomalous that while natives of India were admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace and to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the presidency-towns."

This appears to be the real argument in favour of the Bill; and I would urge that it is insufficient. It is not worthwhile to excite the feelings of the whole European non-official community for the sole purpose of getting rid of an anomaly in a country like this where our whole rule is an anomaly, and where we meet with many equal, if not greater, anomalies at every turn.

If we begin by removing a much-cherished privilege of the Europeans simply because it is an anomaly, we must be prepared to meet counter-agitations on the part of the Europeans to bring about the withdrawal of the many privileges the natives have under our rule, notably the immunity from personal attendance in Court of ladies of rank and purdah-nashin women.

Is it not an anomaly that this privilege is extended to natives only, while English ladies of the highest rank have no such immunity from appearance?

II. The agitation that this proposal to change the law has given rise to throughout India has shown that, were this Bill to become law, there would be danger of collision between the Europeans and Natives. We can hardly expect to see the lower class European accept with equanimity the sentence of a Native Judge, and I should never be surprised to hear of the Native Judge being assaulted by the European whom he had sentenced.

I can speak from my own experience of my having had to protect my own Native subordinates from the violence of low class Europeans in petty civil cases. Their feelings would be harder to restrain in a criminal trial.

To my mind I would far sooner see the anomaly retained than occasion given for a grave scandal, which would only serve to increase the present race antipathy and the unfortunate feeling of antagonism between European and Native which recent events have now proved to exist.

III. Where the European feels so strongly, it seems to me a matter deserving the gravest consideration whether the end to be gained is proportionate to the means, i.e., is the benefit anticipated from these amendments proportionate to the injury they will cause by increasing the feelings of animosity that are now known to exist between the European and Native?

The mere prospect of this change in the law has shown how deep-rooted a feeling of race antipathy and mutual distrust there unfortunately is.

I fear that if these amendments become law, this feeling will not be diminished, but will be increased, and every case tried under the new law will give rise to a stronger outburst of feeling and increase the strain on the relationship between the two classes.

It is true the English are naturally law-abiding, but here the feeling is so strong that I question whether they will accept patiently the proposed change in the law.

IV. I believe that the case of a European lady having to be arraigned before a Native Judge for trial in a criminal case would be looked upon as an outrage to the feelings of the European community, and it seems to me that it is quite possible that this feeling of outrage may easily give rise to serious complications and scandals, which, in my opinion, it would be surely well to avoid if the object of the Bill has not some much more emergent object than that stated in the Preamble.

It is now well known how strong this feeling of distrust and antagonism between the majority of the European community and the natives is, and if considered in the view of the possibility of the ladies of their families having to appear for trial in the Courts of Native Judges, it can hardly, I think, be looked upon as unnatural: rather the contrary, it seems to me to deserve careful consideration.

V. I think there is room for doubt whether this proposed change will be altogether acceptable to the Native Judges. As a matter of prestige they will doubtless hail with satisfaction a concession which may raise a few of their number to a position of superiority over the non-official European, but when the Act comes to be applied personally to themselves, I think it will be seen that the Native Judge will be in no haste to avail himself of his powers, as he cannot but feel that they will have to be exercised at a certain risk to himself.

4. I have endeavoured to show that, in my opinion, the advantage to be gained by the proposed amendment in the law does not counterbalance its disadvantages. If, however, the change is considered absolutely necessary, I would suggest that it should be tentative: let the European criminal have the option of being tried by the Native Justice of the Peace or a European Judge. This would meet the necessities of petty cases in districts where there were only native officials: to save himself the trouble of a long journey the European might elect to be tried by a Native.

5. I am aware that the number of Native Judges on whom it is proposed to confer criminal jurisdiction over Europeans is small, but this number will increase yearly, and it is intended that the men selected for this service shall be of high intelligence and superior ability, but it is not, I think, in the lack of intelligence or ability that the Native will be found wanting, but in the absence of a knowledge of European character, and the manners and customs of the lower classes of Europeans. At present the Native has no feeling in common or sympathy with the European, and without this it will hardly be possible for him to judge the European fairly.

There are few questions on which the thoughts of the two would not move in diametrically opposite grooves.

While, therefore, I am quite ready to admit that it is an undoubted anomaly to entrust the native member of the Civil Service with the powers of a District Judge, and to withhold from him jurisdiction over European offenders, I would submit that, in my opinion, the disadvantages of removing the anomaly are infinitely greater than the advantages which this removal is proposed to bring.

6. In conclusion, I would ask to be excused for speaking so plainly on this subject. The task is a difficult one, seeing that a different opinion has been given by so many in high authority, but it seems to me that this is an occasion where Government has a right to expect that each individual should speak plainly the views he holds on a matter of such vital importance both to the State and the people.

The Chief Commissioner knows that I have now been associated for more than 20 years with members of the Native Magistracy, and that I have constantly placed on record my high opinion of the value of their services. He will not therefore, I trust, think that I am in any way prejudiced against the Native Civilian as a class, for this is not the case.

It has seemed to me that the proposal to amend the law is one that will be far from improving the relationship between the Europeans and Natives, and I have therefore considered it my duty to say so.

No. 1563, dated 25th April 1883.

From—J. W. CHISHOLM, Esq., Commissioner, Nerbudda Division,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

In reply to your endorsement No. 1246-68, dated 29th ultimo, I only offer an opinion on the Bill for amending the Code of Criminal Procedure in the matter of jurisdiction over European British subjects in so far as it seems necessary, or otherwise, in the present circumstances of these provinces. There are those whose experience makes them more qualified to speak for other parts of India, and I do not think that on a question of this kind the whole country can be treated, except in theory, on exactly the same platform.

2. In my opinion the feeling of European British subjects in this country, in favour of being tried by European British subjects, is neither unnatural nor unreasonable. I should hope that in time this feeling will disappear, when the races know each other better, and are thrown more closely together. As yet, after more than a century of our rule, the admission must be regretfully made, that the races, as a whole, do not understand or sympathise with each other. The great body of the Natives look upon Europeans as a rough, harsh, and overbearing race, while the mass of Europeans look upon Natives as cunning, unscrupulous and false. Extreme types of character are thus ignorantly taken as representative of each race, and hence arises at times much bitterness and misunderstanding.

3. Among Englishmen the official is the only class much thrown among natives, and I think that most officials of any standing are in full sympathy with them. I question, however, if natives generally reciprocate this sympathy, even toward the official class, and this is owing to the barrier of caste, which, however disguised, forces them to regard the European as impure. It is quite exceptional natives who understand and appreciate Europeans as such, and this being the case I do not think that they should be given at present jurisdiction over Europeans. The fact is, they credit them with being strong-handed and oppressive, and their prejudices, which are still strong, scarcely qualify them to be impartial. There is thus ground for the European objection to being tried by a Native Judge who often from not understanding him would be liable to give ready credence to charges against him.

4. I would, therefore, only advocate jurisdiction over Europeans being given to natives where an administrative necessity existed for conferring such powers. In these provinces there is absolutely no such necessity, and the provisions of the proposed Bill would only make it possible to confer such powers at present in the Central Provinces on two Native Assistant Commissioners, neither of whom, with many good qualities, possess any real knowledge of Europeans, not having been thrown among them. In the future, doubtless, the necessity may arise when natives more largely fill the higher appointments, but if the future has to be provided for now, the best provision, in my opinion, for the law to make would be to give jurisdiction over Europeans to every Magistrate or Deputy Commissioner in charge of a district, and to every Sessions Judge in virtue of the office held and regardless of race.

No. 3184, dated 4th June 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COL. M. P. RICKETTS, Officiating Commissioner, Nagpur Division,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

In reply to your endorsement No. 1246-68, dated 29th March, asking for an expression of my opinion on a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I have the honour to state that, before submitting my reply, I thought it advisable to consult all the District Officers of the division with the view of ascertaining, as far as possible, the feelings of those European British subjects who might be affected by the Bill.

2. I have not yet received any reply from the Deputy Commissioner, Balaghat, but all the other District Officers report that, with very few exceptions, European British subjects are strongly opposed to the Bill.

The Deputy Commissioner, Nagpur, condemns the Bill as wanting in the three elements of

- (1) Administrative necessity;
- (2) Finality;
- (3) Efficient and impartial administration of justice.

The Deputy Commissioner, Chanda, opposes the Bill on the ground that, if passed, it would seriously impair the supremacy of English rule.

The Deputy Commissioner, Wardha, professing himself to be an advanced radical, considers the Bill to be in advance of the wants of the time.

The Deputy Commissioner, Bhandara, is personally in favour of the Bill, but even he considers "the bar of European Extra Assistant Commissioners and European Honorary Magistrates of sufficient magisterial experience from investment with the powers of a Justice of the Peace to be quite indefensible." He also proposes certain modifications, and thinks that a knowledge of English should be an indispensable qualification for every Justice of the Peace.

3. I forward the reports of all District Officers in original, so that the opinion of those officers may be read in their own words.

4. I proceed now to give my own views.

The Statement of Objects and Reasons sets forth that "it was thought anomalous that while natives of India were admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace and to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the presidency-towns;" and "the Government of India has accordingly decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code at once and completely every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinction."

The Honourable Mr. Ilbert also in moving the Bill is reported to have said—

"We propose to substitute for the disqualification arising from race a qualification depending on tried fitness."

"We propose to say that a very small number of specially selected Native Magistrates may exercise that limited and qualified jurisdiction which can at present be exercised only by persons who fall within the extremely arbitrary and technical definition of European British subjects."

5. Now to carry out this object, the first amendment proposed is to repeal the last clause of section 22, Act X of 1852, whereby European British subjects can, if considered fit, be appointed to be Justices of the Peace, and to substitute the appointment of—

- (a) Members of the Covenanted Civil Service;
- (b) Members of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3;
- (c) Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces; or
- (d) Cantonment Magistrates.

I fail to see on what ground, either of justice or administrative convenience, an amendment of this kind can be defended. It is also distinctly opposed to the statement of the mover of the Bill, that the future qualification of a Justice of the Peace is to be one of "tried fitness."

European British subjects are to be disqualified in future, not because of unfitness, but because they do not happen to be in one of the four favoured classes above mentioned which are supposed to be specially fit. And yet none of these classes have yet been tried, while there are many European British subjects not falling within those classes who have been tried and found competent.

Why should the results of past experience be set aside and Government be limited in its selection of Justices of the Peace to four particular classes, when experience has proved that outside those classes there are many European British subjects fit to be made Justices.

6. I agree also with the Deputy Commissioner, Bhandara, that if a native is to be made a Justice of the Peace, it is indispensably necessary that he should have a knowledge of English. I think too that a distinction must be made between—

- (a) Members of the Covenanted Civil Service; and
- (b) Members of the Native Civil Service constituted under the Statute 33 Vic., Cap. 3.

Whatever claim the former may have to the same rights of jurisdiction as their European confreres in the same service, no such claim can be asserted for the latter on account of the totally different character both of their appointment and examination. In both cases the guarantee of fitness is not the same, and both classes ought not to be placed on the same footing as regards jurisdiction over European British subjects.

7. There is no reason, as far as I can judge, for supposing that justice would be furthered, or parties convenience, by jurisdiction over European British subjects being given to the four classes specified in the proposed amendment of section 22. I think, therefore, that the amendment is quite unnecessary and should not be passed.

8. The next proposal is to amend section 25 so as to make all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates "ex-officio" Justices of the Peace, and to repeal so much of section 443 as limits jurisdiction over European British subjects outside the presidency-towns to Magistrates who are themselves European British subjects, and to repeal a similar provision of section 444 and of section 450 with regard to Sessions Judge, and also a portion of section 459.

These provisions of the law at present bar all natives outside presidency-towns from trying European British subjects. I think, however, that in the case of natives who are considered fit to be Magistrates of Districts and Sessions Judges, the bar might be withdrawn on certain conditions, but I would not have all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates (European or Native) to be "ex-officio" Justices of the Peace.

9. I agree in the following opinion expressed by Sir A Lyall:—

"The interests of the European British subjects and of the administration would be sufficiently provided for if the present restriction, under which no one who is not himself an European British subject, has jurisdiction over an European British subject, being removed, power be left with the Local Government to appoint Justices of the Peace those Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service who have proved their fitness to exercise the jurisdiction. The Local Government would then apply the test of personal fitness to each particular case for Native as well as for European members of the Covenanted Civil Service."

10. The appointment then of a Native to be a Justice of the Peace would not depend upon his holding a particular appointment, but upon the question of personal fitness, to be determined by the Local Government; and I would limit such cases to those natives only who are Sessions Judges or Assistant Sessions Judges of three years, or Magistrates of Districts.

The time has not come, I think, when it is necessary for the better administration of the country that all natives who happen to be in any of the four classes specified in the amendment to section 22, or who are Sessions Judges and Magistrates of Districts, should be vested with jurisdiction over European British subjects independently of proved fitness.

11. The changes contemplated by Government have greatly exasperated the European population, and it seems to me that Government should show some respect and sympathy to such opposition, and refrain from change, unless the change can be shown to be demanded by the common weal. But no such proof is forthcoming. No change seems necessary on the ground of administrative inconvenience, for to my mind the present jurisdiction over European British subjects might continue many years without any detriment to Government.

12. If, however, it be considered necessary to allow Natives to be made Justices of the Peace, then the safest way of doing so is not to withdraw the privilege hitherto enjoyed by British subjects of being made Justices of the Peace, but to extend the same privilege to natives on proof of personal fitness determined by the Local Government, but to limit it, in the first instance, to those who hold the office of Magistrate of the District or Sessions Judge, or Assistant Sessions Judge of three years' standing, and who are acquainted with English.

Opinion on the Criminal Jurisdiction Bill by W. B. JONES, Esq., Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.

The question which this Bill raises is troublesome, both on account of the passions which it excites, and on account of the absolute difficulty of arriving at a satisfactory conclusion regarding it. The latter difficulty has, I believe, received too little attention. My belief is that, if we could refer it to some absolutely impartial tribunal, that tribunal would find it most difficult to draw the line between the conflicting claims of the European and Native. Justice herself would scarcely know how to hold the scales. Yet a clear perception of the difficulty of the problem would do much to mitigate passion. The question is disputed between Europeans on one hand, and educated natives (the mass of educated natives know and care nothing about the matter) on the other; and the latter are as able, and very many of them as willing, as Europeans to see both sides of the argument, and doing this to acquit their opponents of that which chiefly embitters controversy, viz., the suspicion of conscious unfairness, or at least of a more or less wilful shutting of the eyes to unwelcome arguments. Of course there are amongst us those who would obstinately and blindly resist any concession to natives as a thing objectionable per se, but of such persons Government will not, and cannot take account, nor indeed will their feelings greatly influence the tide of general European opinion.

2. Assuming then that the effectual and impartial administration of justice is the object at which we aim, we must admit at once that à priori it is desirable that cases in which Europeans are the accused should be triable by either European or Native Magistrates, just as cases in which Europeans are complainants already are. To make them triable by Judges of one class only not only seems unfair, but, has a tendency to produce actual and positive injustice. A law which should provide that in every case in which a Brahmin might be the accused and a man of another caste the accuser, the Judge should be a Brahmin, would be condemned by every one. And we must remember too that, as all history shows, a legal disability has a tendency to create or intensify the race difference which it marks. The principle that no class should as such be excluded from the judicial office in cases between it and any other class is one that all must accept.

3. But this great principle is subject to the proviso that persons fit for the judicial office are to be found and that the fittest persons should be appointed. In the case supposed in the preceding paragraph, Brahmins might be the only people able to read and write, and might on this account, and with manifest propriety, monopolise the judicial office. The exercise of judicial power is not one of the natural rights of man. All that can be claimed is that the preference of one person over another should be based on considerations of fitness, and not on race disability. It is here that the English case, though at first sight weak, is in reality strong. That the law should exclude natives altogether looks at first sight utterly indefensible, but in truth, and with some exceptions, the general effect of the law is to secure the appointment of the fittest Judges.

4. That the European is generally fitter than the Native to try cases in which Europeans are accused appears to me to be abundantly clear. Of the total number of such cases, a large proportion consists of cases in which a European is the accuser as well as accused, and here clearly the European is the fitter person. As I have said, no one has a natural right to try other people, and no native has the smallest right to feel aggrieved because such cases are not entrusted to him.

Turning to those cases in which the accuser is a native, I think that the Judge should usually and preferentially be a European, for the plain reason that we know so much more about natives than they do about us. The English Magistrate is a man who has come to spend his whole working life in India; the Native Magistrate is at the best one who has spent two or three years at College in England. Owing to caste restrictions and to the native custom of secluding women, the two races are debarred from that intimate association with one another which would make either thoroughly competent to try the other. But the separation is not the work of the European, and at all events the mere fact that he lives from 25 to 35 years among natives and, though not in the eye of the law domiciled here, makes India his home for the best part of his life, gives him an advantage over even the Native Civilian who has obtained his place by competition in England.

5. The Honourable members who argued against the Bill in Council appear to me to have been led somewhat astray owing to their having thought too exclusively of the accused person. Picturing to themselves the position of a solitary European wrongly accused, they rather overlooked the fact that the effectual and impartial administration of justice is attained by a system which secures justice as between complainant and accused or between society and accused, and not by the system which affords a maximum of security to the accused. The conviction of an innocent man is the worst of all judicial crimes, but the acquittal of a guilty man comes next to it, and believing that the gentlemen to whom I have referred have thought almost exclusively of the first danger I am not able to press their argument as far as they do. If we are to think merely of the interests of the accused, then the argument in favour of his being tried by a European is overwhelmingly strong, but if while providing all reasonable security against the conviction of innocent persons we make it our chief aim that justice be done in the case, and this is what the effectual and impartial administration of justice means, then the argument becomes much weaker. But granting this, I am still compelled to admit what they greatly insisted on, that the European in this country is exposed to the danger of false accusation to a great extent and is very helpless against it, and that this fact affords some additional reason for the privilege which the law now confers upon him.

6. The logical issue of the struggle between the principle that race distinctions are to be condemned, and the principle that the fittest Judge—in the present case ordinarily the European—is to be preferred, is, that the disability now imposed by law on natives should be removed, and that it should be left to the Government to select fit persons who would usually be Europeans. Government would usually select Europeans just as (to take an illustration), although Civilians are eligible, it almost invariably selects Military officers for the post of Cantonment Magistrate.

But while feeling is so excited, it cannot be hoped that Europeans will trust Government in this matter. They may consent to surrender some of their existing privileges, but they will certainly demand that those which they are permitted to retain be secured to them (as at present) by law. They will not leave the selection of fit persons to the judgment of the Government of the day. Some other solution of the difficulty must, therefore, be looked for.

7. It appears from the Bill that, in the opinion of the Government of India—

- (1) all District Magistrates and Sessions Judges may be regarded as fit persons ;
- (2) that fit persons may be selected from among officers exercising the full powers of a Magistrate belonging to—

The Covenanted Civil Service,
The Statutory Native Civil Service,
Assistant Commissioners in Non-Regulation Provinces, Cantonment Magistrates.

In the first of the above proposals I entirely concur. I would claim this concession as a mere matter of justice to Native Civilians. As the Honourable Sir S. Bayley said, it is a necessary corollary to their admission to the service. But apart from this the proposal would have my entire support. In the case of those whom it will include we shall have the assurance that most of them have been educated in England, that all know English thoroughly and are men of experience, judicial and other. Government does not entrust every one with the charge of a district or the duties of Sessions Judge, and it would be a monstrous thing to allow a European to say that a man occupying such a position should not be trusted to try him.

8. And in the case of District Magistrate and Sessions Judge, the argument based upon considerations of administrative convenience is, as Sir Ashley Eden showed, immensely strong. I am far from being inclined to make too much of this argument. I would not abrogate a privilege so highly valued by Englishmen in order to make administration convenient. In the opinion which I formerly submitted, I was careful to say that the question of the privileges of the European British subject was one with a long history behind it, and not one to be decided by reference to considerations of convenience. But certainly, when we have such strong reason to believe that District Magistrates and Sessions Judges would be fit persons to try Europeans, the fact that if they are not allowed to try them the greatest inconvenience will result ought to be taken into consideration.

9. To the second of the proposals made in the Bill I am strongly opposed. I of course would trust Government to select only fit persons, and I would be the last to say that numbers of fit persons are not to be found among the classes indicated. I have the pleasure of knowing numbers of Native officers in whose capacity and rectitude of purpose I could place implicit confidence. But I am not sure that Government is well advised in making just at this time that demand on the confidence of the non-official classes which this proposal makes; I am unwilling to see Government limit itself in its selection of Native Justices of the Peace to an infinitesimally small number of persons, and I altogether deprecate the idea that Government, to secure uniformity in its treatment of the two classes, should deprive itself of the services of all the non-official class. This proposal has had great effect in weighing down the Bill, and anxious as I am that justice should be done to Native Civilians, I would almost rather see the Bill abandoned than that, being passed, it should place such a grave slight on all classes of the European community outside the ranks of the Service to which I belong.

10. The question then is, shall Government limit itself to the first of the two proposals mentioned above, or shall it, going further, seek to secure the ends at which the second proposal aimed in some other way. In favour of the former alternative there is the consideration that it confines the remedy to the immediate evil, and, professing simply to do justice to Native Civilians, raises no general question of principle, and does not, as the second clearly does, open the way to further agitation. It will be for the Government of India to decide this point; but in case decision should be in favour of the second alternative, I would suggest, as a possible means of attaining the end in view, that we might supplement the provision regarding Magistrates and Sessions Judges by enacting—

- (1) That cities with a European population exceeding a certain number should, for the purpose now in hand, be regarded as presidency-towns;
- (2) That Government should take power to appoint any one, European or Native, Justice of the Peace, but that cases in which a European British subject being the accused, a native might be the complainant, should be heard by a Bench consisting of one European and one Native Justice of the Peace, difference of opinion, whether as to finding or sentence, being referable to the Magistrate of the District.

I do not altogether like the second proposal. A mixed tribunal almost suggests antagonism; but guarded as it will be by the proviso that in cases of difference of opinion the Magistrate of the district may be called in, it would not, I think, work badly.

If these proposals should meet with acceptance, the "solitary" European will have all reasonable security, for he can be tried only by the Magistrate of the district, who will usually be a European and always a fit person to try him (vide paras. 7 and 8), or by a Bench on which an Englishman will sit, and in which the Magistrate of the district, usually an Englishman, will be in fact President. And the European inhabitant of great cities, who (to use the words of the Honourable Mr. Evans) sees about him "the power and influence of the European community, the blaze of publicity, the press, the bar, and (sometimes) the presence and power of the High Court," can scarcely object to be treated like his countrymen in Calcutta, Bombay or Madras. And the native cannot object to proposals which sweep away all race disabilities.

11. My predecessor, Sir J. Morris, has advised that the Bill should altogether be abandoned. I cannot concur in this: whatever happens, Government is bound to proceed with the Bill to the extent of allowing Native Civilians, who have attained the rank of Magistrate of the district or Sessions Judge, to exercise the same power as European Civilians.

12. I cannot conclude this Note without saying that I feel most strongly the importance of taking notice of cases in which natives being complainants, European tribunals fail to do their duty. I referred to this point in my former opinion. The native press make much of it; and although they exaggerate greatly, I am unable to say that their feelings on the point are unnatural or altogether without foundation. We are as much interested as natives—I might even say much more interested—in seeing that violent attacks by Europeans on natives are adequately punished.

13. On reading over what I have written, I am sensible that I have said much that at first sight might have gone without saying. My reason for this has been that it is possible that this with other opinions will be made public, and that I have been anxious that it should be evident to all who may read it that I have endeavoured to take a fair and impartial view of the question in issue.

No. 4652, dated 9th July 1883.

From—C. GONNE, Esq., Chief Secretary to the Government, of Bombay,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of the papers forwarded with my letter No. 4026, dated the 15th ultimo, I am directed to transmit herewith, for submission to the Government of India, copies of the opinions marginally noted received from the Agents, Great Indian Peninsula, Bombay, Baroda and Central India, and Southern Mahratta Railway Companies, and from the Manager, Bhavnagar-Gondal Railway, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company,
No. 5364, dated 30th May 1883.

Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, No. 3105, dated 11th May, and No. 3964, dated 18th June 1883.

Agent, Southern Mahratta Railway Company,
No. 1971, dated 19th June 1883.

Manager, Bhavnagar-Gondal Railway Company,
No. 1254, dated 26th May 1883.

No. 5364, dated 30th May 1883.

From—G. A. BARNET, Esq., Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company,
To—The Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay.

In reply to Government Resolution No. 609 of the 11th April, calling for a report on the proposed Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, I feel very doubtful if the time has yet arrived for the introduction of such a sweeping change in the administration of criminal law, and I greatly fear it will be productive of far more injustice than can possibly be compensated for by the removal of the supposed anomaly which has given rise to the Bill; and I earnestly hope that the objections to the proposed amendment of the law as set forth in the memorial of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce (of which I am a member) to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General may add a little strength to the appeals that have been made by other representative bodies in India, and induce the Government to postpone for the present further consideration of the measure.

No. 3105, dated 11th May 1883.

From—T. W. WOOD, Esq., Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company,
To—The Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay.

With reference to Bombay Government Resolution No. 609, dated 11th April, I have the honour to state that, in my personal opinion, the amendments proposed by the Government of India to be introduced in the Code of Criminal Procedure, with a view to "remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race-distinctions," are consistent with the general course of Indian legislation for the past 25 years, and, though brought forward now at an unfortunate moment, embody a just principle, the operation of which could not be much longer consistently withheld in its application to those Native Magistrates who have qualified for the positions of Sessions Judge or District Magistrate under the rules laid down by Government itself and shown their fitness to exercise the powers attached to those positions.

2. I would suggest, however, the substitution of "five years" for "three years," in the amended draft of section 414 of the Code embodied in section 4 of the Amendment Bill, as the period within which no Assistant Sessions Judge shall exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects; the longer period affording greater security for the display of trustworthy qualities in the individual officer, and furnishing Government with fuller opportunities of judging of his character and ability, before entrusting him specially with that jurisdiction. The powers reserved to Local Governments in this latter respect will, I do not doubt, be exercised with discretion, but, in extending the jurisdiction of selected Native Magistrates over Europeans in this country, it seems to me desirable that strong guarantees of their personal fitness for the wise exercise of the power to be entrusted to them should be insisted upon.

No. 3964, dated 18th June 1883.

From—T. W. WOOD, Esq., Agent, Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company,
To—The Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay.

In reply to your letter of the 15th instant, No. 2269, I have the honour to state that, so far as I can judge, the effect of the alteration in the law contemplated by the Criminal Jurisdiction Amendment Bill now under consideration will, in the districts traversed by this Company's Railway, be hardly perceptible for at any rate many years to come, even if the Bill should be passed in its present form.

2. It may, however, be fairly presumed that the crucial examination and public criticism on all sides that the Bill has undergone will ensure such safeguards being introduced in its final form as will provide every reasonable security and protection for the just rights of such Europeans as may come under its operation.

3. The opinions I have submitted to Government on the subject are those that my personal judgment leads me to form. As regards the views on the measure held by the European employes of this Company, I have no data on which to reply to your enquiry, except the fact, which I think indicates the absence of any strong feeling amongst them on the matter, that no representation from them on the subject has been made to me. In the early days of the public discussion of the measure, the Traffic Manager brought to me a letter he had received from the Traffic Manager of the East Indian Railway, enquiring what the members of this Company's service intended to do in the matter; but, on my declining to sanction the fostering of any similar agitation on this Railway to that carried through on the East Indian line, the matter went no further. If a spontaneous movement had taken place amongst the European employes on this Railway in opposition to the Bill, I should have felt it my duty to represent the facts to Government.

No. 1971, dated 19th June 1883.

From—G. M. STEWART, Esq., Agent, Southern Mahratta Railway Company, Limited,
To—The Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay.

In response to Government Resolution No. 609 of 1883, I have the honour to record my opinion on the subject of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure as affecting the interests which I represent.

I am not aware that the proposal to extend the judicial powers of Native Magistrates over British-born subjects has excited any great alarm amongst the employes of this Company, but this I attribute very much to the fact that, under existing circumstances, the amendment would, for the present, be inoperative in the districts traversed by this Railway, and also to the fact that as yet there are comparatively few individuals in the permanent service of the Company who would be personally affected by the proposed change in the law.

I believe, however, that the general feeling of the European section of the Company's staff is decidedly adverse to the measure.

For my own part, I should deplore the amendment as a step in a dangerous direction, which would certainly excite agitation for, and probably be followed by, further concessions, and I should dread the effect of any measure which would give mamlatdars or subordinate Native officials increased authority over Railway employes.

I think it is much to be regretted that the Bill was ever introduced at all. By giving rise to an unfortunate feeling between sections of Her Majesty's subjects, it has already done harm which cannot now be remedied; and, in my humble opinion, the object in view is not of sufficient importance to make it desirable that the Bill should be passed, in spite of the widespread and deep-rooted opposition that has become manifest.

I cannot see any real necessity for such a change in the law. So long as special rights and privileges are reserved for Natives and due consideration is shown for their religious and social prejudices, I do not think it is unreasonable that Europeans should have the privilege of being tried by their own countrymen.

So far as mental attainments are concerned, I have no doubt that there are many Natives of India who are fully competent to exercise jurisdiction over Europeans; but I do not think that any argument in favour of judicial equality is complete without taking into consideration questions of feeling and the prejudices due to race-distinctions.

While Natives refuse to associate with Europeans on terms of social equality, and while their domestic habits and ideas are such as to stand in the way of personal sympathy, I can see nothing anomalous in the judicial disqualification imposed by the existing Code of Criminal Procedure.

As I have been invited to express my opinion, I have no hesitation in saying that I think the Bill is ill-timed and premature, if not altogether uncalled for, and I hope that further discussion on the subject may be averted by the withdrawal of the measure.

No. 1254, dated 26th May 1883.

From—H. DANGERFIELD, Esq., Manager and Engineer-in-Chief, Bhavnagar-Gondal Railway.
To—The Consulting Engineer for Railways, Bombay.

With reference to Bombay Government Resolution No. 609, dated 11th April 1883, and this office letter No. 910, dated 14th April, and your reply No. 792, dated 21st April 1883, I have the honour to state that I think, as so much has been written about Mr. Ilbert's Bill "to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects," I had better simply report that, as far as I have been able to gauge the feeling of the European British employes of the Bhavnagar-Gondal Railway, the objects of the proposed Bill are utterly distasteful to them.

2. I feel certain, if individual opinion was asked for, not a single man would dissent from the opinion reported in the foregoing paragraph.

Dated 14th May, 1883.

From—G. M. BARTON, Esq., Secretary, Indian Tea Association,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.

By desire of the General Committee of the Indian Tea Association, I have this day forwarded to you, by parcel post, 12 copies of the Report of a public meeting held at Silchar on the 21st ultimo, and I am to request that you will be good enough to place the proceedings before His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council.

Report of a Public Meeting held at Silchar to protest against Mr. Ilbert's Bill.

(Reprinted from the Englishman of May 2nd.)

In response to a special invitation addressed to the whole of the non-official European community of the Cachar District, a large number of their body met on the 21st April, 1883, in order to discuss the provisions of Mr. Ilbert's Criminal Code Amendment Bill.

There were present at the meeting—Messrs. D. S. Mackintosh, C. W. Griffith, A. S. Anderson, F. W. Piows, E. C. Showers, M. J. Balfour, E. T. Pearce, A. J. Preston, H. E. Sanderson, G. Gray, H. C. Sproull, A. Quillet, H. R. Blakeney, R. B. Doake, F. H. Malet, M. Bigge, T. Dykes, J. Paton, H. W. Morris, Dr. MacLaughlin, R. H. Halford, W. H. Chambers, M. Muller, M. Aitchison, E. J. Jones, R. H. Macdonald, F. R. Jones, S. Dible, J. Dowie, J. R. Ross, H. Weir, C. McLean, D. Fraser, P. J. Macdonald, J. Stirtan, R. Spicer, J. Grierson, E. Livermore, A. J. Reid, R. H. Farquhar, C. A. Eglinton, J. Green, G. E. Noad, W. C. Noad, C. J. Bell, R. Thomson, S. M. Fasson, J. Sidey, J. O. Bowhile, A. K. Trotter, R. F. Balkwill, A. R. MacKellar, C. T. Macrae, H. Grant, E. L. Edgar, J. W. Feltwell, J. J. Morison, M. G. Jukes, A. Stewart, C. Menzies, D. M. McLeod, J. H. M. Borrett, A. A. Bull, R. S. Elliot, G. Penny, Hon'ble R. R. Tyrwhitt, Dr. Dundee, J. Murray, R. J. R. Mackenzie, W. T. Smith, G. M. Loch, G. S. Rice, C. Lawrence, A. Spicer, K. H. Mullens, J. Inglis, A. S. Penny, J. F. Piffard, R. G. Craigie, L. Rodwell, S. D. Jackson, C. T. Pargiter, E. Beatson, J. Horne, H. Mackenzie, W. T. Cathcart, E. F. Skinner, J. Schaleh, C. Williams, T. Keswick, A. R. Tawney, J. Grieg, A. Odling, G. S. W. Peter, G. A. Smith, C. S. Walliker, F. G. Stewart, C. H. Wright, A. Cooper, W. J. Temple, F. F. Clerihew, J. Peter, R. Wylie, J. McAnley, R. White, J. B. Doake, J. F. Playfair, D. Ferguson, H. A. Thornton, W. Black, and J. Hutcheson; and there were present by their proxy, Wm. Aitchison, Messrs. A. M. Bulteel, Dr. Fraser, J. Peddie, A. D. Brown, Dr. Jones, T. Smeal, H. B. Beglar, G. R. Nicholls, W. Henderson, J. G. Blair, E. G. Greenhill, A. Milne, J. Speid, T. Blair, G. C. Balfour, E. Rawlins, Hector Mackenzie, J. B. Atkins, A. M. Chalmers, W. Stiefelhagen, A. J. Judge, D. A. Laing, J. B. Lawrie, J. E. E. Corstorphine, H. B. Tater; by their proxy, D. S. Mackintosh, Messrs. Gordon Fraser, and D. J. Lewin; by his proxy, J. Hutcheson, Mr. W. T. Shave; by his proxy, Dr. MacLaughlin, Mr. Fred. Forbes; by his proxy, A. J. Preston, Mr. D. P. Thomson; by his proxy, M. Bigge, Mr. W. L. Clark; by their proxy, R. B. Doake, Messrs. P. E. Thriepland and T. G. Stroke; by their proxy, P. J. Macdonald, Messrs. C. H. Moore, G. R. Geale, C. E. Pickford, and Dr. Cowen; by his proxy, J. Stirtan, Mr. J. A. Thompson; by his proxy, E. Livermore, Mr. C. McArthur; by his proxy, C. J. Bell, Mr. H. D. A. Allies; by their proxy, M. Muller, Messrs. E. S. Cornish, and A. Raddiffe; by his proxy, A. Stewart, Mr. J. Wilson; by his proxy, C. Menzies, Messrs. W. Macnab, R. H. Talbot, and J. S. Guise; by their proxy, D. M. McLeod, Messrs. D. P. H. Douglas, and W. M. Munro; by their proxy, R. S. Elliot, Messrs. J. Mellwraith, and H. Chamney; by his proxy, G. M. Louch, Mr. R. A. Clarke; by his proxy, C. Lawrence, Mr. A. Harper; by his proxy, A. S. Penny, Mr. A. S. Muspratt; by his proxy, L. Rodwell, Mr. A. L. Bradford, by their proxy, S. D. Jackson, Messrs. G. B. MacKellar, C. G. Cockburn, and J. W. S. D. Clark; by his proxy, E. L. Edgar, Mr. T. Towers; by their proxy, E. F. Skinner, Messrs. A. E. Butler, Dr. Reid, A. Osborn, D. McWha, and A. B. Woodroffe; by his proxy, J. Grieg, Mr. J. C. Allen; by their proxy, C. S. Walliker, Messrs. P. A. Campbell, and F. T. Mackenzie; by his proxy, R. Wylie, Mr. H. A. Blockman; by their proxy, J. Peter, Messrs. F. Barter, J. R. H. Lawrie, E. A. Sissmore, T. R. Lawson, and J. Innes; by their proxy, R. White, Messrs. H. E. Crawford, Dr. Smyth, W. J. Butler, C. E. Jackson, and C. Hurst; by their proxy, G. F. Playfair, Messrs. R. Mackintosh, J. M. Barry, and H. Playfair; and by his proxy, D. Ferguson, Mr. J. Downer. The total number of the non-official adult male European population of Cachar is 194, and it will be seen from the above list of names that out of this number 111 were present personally at the meeting, and 81 by proxy, leaving only 2 unrepresented. The officials who attend the meeting were:—Mr. J. Knox Wight, the Deputy Commissioner of Cachar, Mr. W. W. Daly, Superintendent of Police, Dr. Monteath, Mr. Barker, Mr. J. A. Brown, and Captain Angelo.

It was proposed by Mr. A. Stewart, seconded by Mr. C. Menzies, and carried unanimously, that Mr. Aitchison take the chair.

The Chairman then, in opening the proceedings, said:—Gentlemen, I thank you for the honour you have conferred on me in electing me to the chair on such an important occasion.

It gives me much pleasure to see such a large number of our community met here in response to the invitation which I issued on the 9th instant. And perhaps it might be well to explain how it comes about that this meeting has not taken place very much earlier and at the time when meetings were being hurriedly called together in every corner, I may say, of this vast empire, to protest against the passing of Mr. Ilbert's Bill, which he introduced into the Viceregal Council for the purpose of the so-called amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code. You are aware that there is an elected body to represent Planters in this district in the General Committee and Sub-Committee of the Cachar branch of the Indian Tea Association. That body generally deals with all questions relating both to the direct and indirect interests of the industry, and it is found sufficient to cope with the ordinary questions which arise from time to time; and therefore, generally speaking, and happily, there is no necessity for calling together such a meeting as this. But this question being so extremely exceptional and striking so vitally at the liberty of every individual of our community, whether members of the Tea Association or not, this meeting became an urgent and unavoidable necessity. I had been pressed from various directions, and for weeks past, to call a meeting, and I will now go on to show how it has been postponed.

At a meeting of the General Committee of the Tea Association, held on 14th February last, a proposal was made by Mr. A. Spicer, and unanimously and warmly supported, that we forward to Government our strongest protest against the passing of Mr. Ilbert's Criminal Procedure Bill. Now it may surprise some of you to tell you that this was the first movement made against the Bill by any body of men in any of the planting districts; at least, it was the first, so far I can learn from the newspaper reports of meetings and other sources of information. When Mr. Spicer's proposal was made, it was thought best to get a memorial also drawn up, petitioning Government to withdraw the Bill, and to get that memorial drawn up in Calcutta by a qualified man. We were then aware that time was of consequence, and in order to expedite matters it was agreed to canvas the district, through our Sub-Committees, and get all the signatures procurable, to be in readiness for appending to the memorial as soon as it arrived. But to do even this there was not time, and a telegram came to Mr. Bell, our Association Secretary, saying that we must get up a meeting at once if we did not wish to have the Bill passed. Two or three days after receipt of that telegram there happened to be rather an unusually large meeting of Planters in Silehar, but Mr. Bell, being ill at the time, sent the telegram and other papers in to me and requested me to hold a meeting, if possible, of those present in the station that day. So the meeting was held, and shortly after another small meeting was hurriedly called and held in Hailakandi Sub-division. But it was never intended that nothing further should be done; for from that day it was clearly seen that the whole European community must be called together, as the more the question was looked at and considered, the more vital did we see would be the effects of such a serious curtailment of our inherited liberty. The sole reason, therefore, for this meeting being put back until now is that we could get no certainty as to the time the memorial would be forthcoming. News was constantly being received that the memorial was coming, but it never came and has not to this day. But I dare say if the members of the General Committee who were present at that meeting of the 14th February had had the least suspicion that the memorial would have been so long delayed, they would have arranged amongst themselves to have had it drawn up. This then brings us to the present. However, I do not think there is much to regret in our meeting having been postponed until now, for we certainly are in a better position to show our strength to Government than we were six weeks ago, before we had much discussed the question, and got it explained and help up to the light of reason, in all possible phases, by the ablest men in India, as well as by such men as Sir Fitz James Stephen, Sir Louis Jackson, Mr. Seton-Karr, and other old and experienced Indians now living at home. And although we may be able to contribute hardly an item of additional argument to the brilliant and overwhelming reasoning that has been brought to bear on the question at issue, yet it is our duty to meet as we have done now, and do all we can to show Government that time only adds to our strength in vigorously opposing the Bill, which we all look on as a dangerous infringement of our cherished and unalienable rights, and which we solemnly believe, if passed, will result in disaster and the worst of consequence to all Europeans in India, but especially to those living in the mofussil, to their industries, and to that of tea-planting in particular. Time must not blunt us in our opposition to such a dangerous measure, but it must give us only renewed strength and power to combat the threatened evil, and we must not think of rest until the Bill is withdrawn; and until that much-desired object is attained every legitimate means must be lifted up and hurled against it. I would now merely add that I call upon you all to do your utmost to support me in this onerous position, and let us have this meeting as quietly and orderly conducted as possible. And although I would not desire to restrain any one from freely discussing the question before us, still I would fain hope that no one will be carried away into using intemperate language, which might make it appear to Government that we are taking up a menacing position which no good Government could possibly tolerate. For I know well that our loyalty cannot be challenged and is second to none in India, and I also know that it is far from any one's intention here to show anything like a spirit of menace. But we want calmly and firmly to show forth to Government and the public that our rights are now seriously in danger. We solemnly believe, if the present policy is pursued to the end, the ties that were being slowly woven between Native and European, and which have already become weakened, must snap asunder, and nothing but an explosion and bloodshed can bring back the position for their possible re-union. With these few remarks I now beg leave to call upon Mr. Skinner to move the first Resolution.

During the delivery of the above address the chairman was frequently cheered, and he sat down amidst loud and prolonged applause.

On rising, Mr. Skinner, who was met with enthusiastic cheers, said:—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—I beg to put for your acceptance the following proposal:—“This meeting strongly objects to the proposed change in the Criminal Procedure Code.”

There has been no substantial failure of justice to call for a change in the existing law, which has worked smoothly hitherto, and given confidence to call without entailing any practical inconvenience upon the administration. This we know on the authority of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in which Province the Europeans mainly reside. The Chairman has explained to you the reason of the delay in calling the present meeting. If those who have accused us of coolness to the proposed change were present at this meeting, they would soon alter their opinion. (Loud cheers.) Considering the great distance many of us have had to come, and the difficulties that have stood in the way, the mere fact of our presence here to-day should be sufficient to show Government, how strongly we feel on this, to us, most important subject. (Great applause.) We know on the very highest authority, as you have just heard from the Chairman, that this proposed change is unnecessary. This statement is applied to the whole of India, but, knowing as we do this district, we go further, and assert that, for Cachar, the proposed change cannot but prove most injurious, for it will greatly tend to place every European at the mercy of the Native. With the exception of a few natives in the district, it cannot be denied, we are hated by them. Indeed, are we not often insulted by them on the public road, and do we not know of instances of base charges having been made against Europeans without there being the slightest foundation for them? Government now proposes to enable the Natives to lay criminal charges against Europeans before a Native Judge. What reason does it give for this sudden change? Does the Government prove any strong necessity for this change, or does it attempt to show that it is on account of the universally expressed wishes of the Natives? I think not; indeed, I feel sure the Native thinks it but natural that we should insist on being tried by a European. The proposed change may not affect Cachar just now, but, as soon as a Native Judge is appointed to this district, unjust criminal charges against Europeans are bound to be common, for the Native will soon change his present mode of revenge for the more hurtful one. If we consider what the encouragement of a Native Judge would be in a district like this, surrounded by only Natives, it is easy to foresee what the result would be. For is bribery unknown in this district and have Natives ceased to employ it? No, it is still rampant and made use of at the first opportunity. Gentlemen, I call upon you to make a stand against this iniquitous change, and to join as one man in our protest. (Great cheering.)

Mr. E. L. Edgar, in seconding the above Resolution, said:—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—Having been called upon to second this resolution, I take the opportunity of making a few remarks on our present situation. As a proprietor in this district and being moreover about to leave India for a time, I feel acutely the position managers will shortly be placed in. In a very short time the chief of a tea district will be the only European official in it; it will be officered by Baboo Civil Surgeons, Baboo Magistrates, and last, but to us of none the less importance, by Baboo Superintendents of Police. (Cheers.)

Now, although Cachar is comparatively thickly populated with planters, we have to consider the lot of those less fortunate in Assam Proper, and other parts. (Cheers.) Take as an example a well laid plot against a manager at even one of what we might call remote gardens in this district. How very awkward it would be for the manager if, after being drawn into hurting a Native, said Native were withdrawn to be further operated upon by his (the Native's) friends. The chief of the nearest police station (more than likely in the swim himself) investigates, the man or body, as the case may be, is sent, after suitable delay, to a Baboo Civil Surgeon, and after sufficient further delay has occurred, partly with the object of harassing accused, partly from the Native nature, but three-fourths with the object of baffling accused in any evidence in his favour, the case is called up before a Baboo Magistrate. The planter there stands arraigned on a charge many degrees beyond the true facts of the case, if not on a wrong charge altogether, and the whole onus, Baboo like, is put upon him alone, to clear himself the best way he can, his greatest difficulty being in his prolonged absence from the site of the occurrence, facts consequently being distorted, and for a specimen of the extraordinary reports Native Surgeons are capable of sending in, cide the Englishman of the 14th instant. Furthermore, what counsel have we at command in remote Tea districts? (I may say that all Tea districts are remote to counsel.) Why men who are only half educated, totally unpractical, and wholly without training, men who do not from one year's end to another travel two miles into the districts, and who consequently have no knowledge of the nature of things in them, and what is worse, will not exert themselves as counsel for the defence in any case brought by the powers that be, with the chief mooktear in the district opposed to them, prosecuting on behalf of Government, and who so continually exhibit the shallowness of their reasoning powers by putting the most idiotic questions alike to either side: also it will for ever be unknown to us what order of men the three aforesaid powers that will be, when at home and in dhooties, do not associate with. In fact our tenth-rate advocate of doubtful social degree, in whom we have had to confide, may, for the nonce, be patronized as a boon companion, with the object in view—a conviction.

The horizon has another aspect that readily presents itself to me; it is this. It being an accepted fact that there is a growing tendency to reduce the number of European officials of all degrees in the Tea districts, it will be simply impossible for those left to attend efficiently to garden and coolie inspection work as prescribed under Act I of 1882, more especially Section CXI (Local Labour Contracts);—who then are we to be favoured by? A Baboo on a neighing mare with foal at side, or a shop-keeping member of the Local Self-Government, both equally unpractical, to visit and report on our gardens, in fact on ourselves.

The remarks I have made, gentlemen, do not bear so directly on the burning question of granting increased powers to a class of men wholly ignorant of our estimate of the gulf between truth and falsehood, equity and justice. That I leave to others. As to the critical position into which we, as planters, are undoubtedly drifting, it is becoming daily more and more evident that our old coolies are getting out of hand, and what concerns us just as much in the present is, I submit, whether we shall remain masters, as well as managers, of estates, if to increased power to the few are added further appointments of the many. One or other, may be, we could survive, but not both. (Great cheering).

The Chairman then put the first Resolution to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously and with enthusiastic cheering.

The second Resolution, proposed by Mr. R. B. Doake, and seconded by Mr. James Peter, reads as follows:—"Considering how every individual class in this country has its own peculiar customs and privileges, which are religiously guarded and preserved to it, this meeting thinks that a native of India should have been the very last person to propose that the Europeans should be deprived of the right to be tried by their countrymen, without which there can be no security to them for either life or property, in this land, where the fabrication of false evidence is of every day occurrence for the gratification of extortion or revenge. And it is an undisputed fact that natives themselves, when convinced of the justice of their case, frequently make petition to have their cases transferred from a native to a European Judge." In proposing this Resolution Mr. Doake addressed the meeting as follows:—"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—I feel that it needs no words of mine to recommend this Resolution to this meeting. But there are one or two points in connection with it to which for a short time I would direct your attention.

And if you will allow me I do not think I can begin better than by explaining to you how it is that I who was for a time partially in favour of Mr. Ilbert's Bill, (Oh! Oh!) find myself standing here to-day to oppose it.

When I first saw the subject mooted, without paying much attention to it or knowing anything of what had gone before, I thought it seemed only fair that those men, who to some extent, at least, had thrown aside the prejudices of their race, had gone to England, had studied there for years and finally entered the Civil Service of India by successfully competing against Englishmen in a series of the most trying examinations, should not be debarred by reason of the colour of their skin from any privileges given to their fellow Civilians.

At the same time I felt strongly opposed to giving any privileges not hitherto held by them to those persons who, possessing perhaps neither the brains nor the inclination necessary to enable them to enter the service by the gateway of open competition, found themselves let into it through the back-door of favouritism without their ever leaving the country at all, and with all their prejudices and vices and superstitions thick upon them. (Cheers.)

But when I looked more deeply into the matter and studied all that could be said on both sides both for and against the Bill, I came to see that this was not a question of the rights or privileges of our native friends at all. That if the constitutional, and I trust inalienable, right of an Englishman prevented Mr. Gupta, or any other gentleman not a British-born subject commissioned by Her Majesty for the purpose, from the privilege or pleasure of trying him for criminal offences, they had no cause of complaint whatever, for they were robbed of nothing that they hitherto possessed, nor was anything being kept back from them to which they were entitled. (Applause.)

For no man, no matter what his race or colour may be, has any inherent right to sit in judgment on his fellow-men. This is a duty imposed by the Crown upon some of its servants for the benefit of its subjects and the convenience of the administration. And if the Government for any reason should deem it fit to confer this duty upon any one of its servants and not to confer it on another who may be in all respects equally worthy, no one has any reason to complain, unless it can be shown that some failure of justice or inconvenience to the State is the result. (Hear, hear, and loud applause.)

In this matter there is therefore involved no question of the rights or privileges of Mr. Gupta or any other native of India, whether in the service or out of the service, but there is at stake the right of a Briton in British territory to be judged by his own countrymen, and Government has no claim to deprive us of this ancient and dearly preserved privilege unless it can be proved to us, not that the feelings of a few, no doubt very worthy persons, may be hurt, but that grave inconvenience has arisen to the State through the present law, or that the cause of justice has suffered, and this 'they cannot show.' (Great cheering.)

No defender of the proposed change has advocated it because otherwise culprits may escape justice, and as for the expense 'or inconvenience arising to the State' I make bold to say, Sir, that Mr. Hope's special private carriage has cost the State more than Mr. Ilbert's Bill, if passed, would save it in the next seven years (Tremendous and prolonged cheering); while as for the inconvenience that may arise some fifty, or thirty, or even ten years hence, there are many things in the present law which may cause the Government inconvenience some twenty or thirty years hence; but it is good advice not to cross a bridge till you come to it (cheers and laughter), and wise statesmanship consists neither in the expunging of harmless anomalies from the statute book nor yet in legislating for the anticipated inconveniences of a future generation, but in giving justice to the present population, for this purpose seeking out and carefully removing those grievances which now oppress the people, due regard being had for the rights of all. (Cheers.)

But, Sir, it is with some surprise that I find native gentlemen of education and position, such as Baboo Kristodas Pal and the Syed Ahmed Khan, who may be said to represent the privileged class of India, advocating the taking away of this privilege from Englishmen because they consider it an anomaly. It is a trite saying that people who live in glass-houses should not throw stones, and have these gentlemen not considered that a Government which holds so slightly the privileges of its own countrymen, may, if encouraged, be even less careful of their privileges which have hitherto been guarded even at the cost of grave wrongs being done to the people? (Applause.)

There is, for instance, the privilege of their women not appearing in open Court, but giving their evidence even in the gravest cases from a closed in palki or from behind a purdah.

Now, no one will deny that this concession to prejudice may result, nay often has resulted, in grave failure of justice, for by it the Magistrate is deprived of the advantage of observing the demeanour of the witness, and you all know how important this is. Many of us even among our own coolies have, I am sure, dozens of times known that a witness was speaking falsely when we could not have told it by merely hearing his voice without watching his face. (Cheers.) But this is a special privilege of the women of the upper classes, which no one has yet proposed to sweep away. Then there is the anomaly of a Government, the nominee of a people whose boast it is that all are equal before the law, telling some of these men that their rank is too high to admit of their appearing in our Courts at all. If we are to ride a tilt against anomalies why should this ridiculous one not be knocked over? (Loud applause.) Again we have polygamy, which is peculiarly obnoxious to the feelings of the British nation. Why should this remain, or why should our Government permit to the Bengali what it denies to the Englishman? Slavery for a time existed in India, but it was against the conscience of the British people, so the Government put that down. Why therefore should it allow this grossest form of domestic slavery to continue? (Applause.)

But more repugnant, perhaps to our feelings than even polygamy is infant marriage, with its sequel, child widowhood. Why should this remain, or why should the Government be a party to a perpetual bondage of these poor women, whose sole sin it is that the boys to whom they were betrothed died when they were yet children? (Hear, hear.)

Our conscience in these matters is strained, but hitherto we have refrained from action, making allowance for the vices and superstitions which the people have inherited from an ignorant ancestry. Shall we continue to do so any longer? I say rather let these gentlemen themselves cast out from their own eyes the beams which now degrade an ancient civilization, and then they may see clearly if any mote need removing from ours. (Loud cheers.)

In the administration of justice it is essential both that the magistracy be upright and that the people have confidence not only in their purity but also in their ability to deal out impartial justice between man and man, and no judge should have his powers extended to men of other nationalities, unless it can be clearly seen that he has gained the confidence of his own. But in this country the contrary is notoriously the case. It is an undisputed fact that the natives do not believe in either the purity or the judgment of their own magistrates, that, rightly or wrongly, they believe them to be open to bribery and other personal influences, and that they are not to be trusted at all times to administer justice without favour, and it is an every day occurrence for them to petition to have their cases removed from the hearing of their own countrymen into the courts presided over by Europeans. For whatever else they may think of us, they believe this, that we try to act rightly and that our magistrates are not only incorrupt but above allowing any outside matter to influence their decisions. (Great applause and cheers.)

For this unbelief in the integrity of their countrymen they may have no grounds. Their magistrates may be most honest and impartial, and may always dispense strict justice. Corruption may be unknown in their courts. Their very police may be above bribery. But Sir, the people don't believe it, and seeing that this is the case, seeing that their own people don't trust them, why should we be asked to put our necks in their noose? (Vociferous cheers.) No Sir, I say let them first gain the confidence of their own people and let them show by deeds as well as words that they are worthy of ours. Let them emancipate and educate their women, who are now so downtrodden. Let them raise up those inferior castes whom they now so oppress. Let them abolish from their midst those vices which now so sully the land. In a word, Sir, let them love liberty and do the right, and then we shall forego this privilege of being judged by our countrymen, for we shall need it no longer. (Applause.)

In conclusion I wish to say that I have faith in the strong conscientious desire of Lord Ripon to act rightly between all races and classes of men in India. And he has promised us that he will give the fullest weight and his most careful consideration to any arguments we may bring before him, I therefore appeal to him to put aside from his mind all the false and irrelevant issues that have been raised, and to try this matter upon the one issue by which, as I have shown, it ought to stand or to fall. (Applause.)

Is the present administrative inconvenience so great and the chance of future wrong so little that Government ought now to deprive their British subjects in India of this privilege which they value so highly, the constitutional right to be judged by their own countrymen? (Cheers.)

If he will answer this question and this only according to his belief, we will acquiesce in the reply, but if our cause be decided on this issue alone I have no fear of the result. (Mr. Doake sat down amidst the most vociferous cheering.)

Mr. Peter, in seconding this Resolution, said :

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—In seconding the Resolution proposed by Mr. Doake, I have a few remarks to offer which I trust will not be out of place. Since ever India became a part of the British Empire, we are all well aware with what a jealous eye the Government has watched over everything affecting native caste, and with what severity any infringement of caste prejudice has been visited, and this more especially since the mutiny in 1857, the origin of which it is needless for me to remind you of, but which was to a great extent inflamed by a so-called infringement of caste. To what a powerful extent the native mind can be influenced, for good, or for evil, in anything appertaining to this, the memorable time I have above mentioned is a standing monument; and the ringleaders of the mutiny well knew the powerful engine they had set in motion when they insinuated injury to caste, and it is needless for me to recapitulate the result; but when we consider that, with such an example before them, Government persists in forcing upon us a Bill which is calculated to offend not only European, but also native prejudices, is it any wonder that we are indignant and protest against it? (Hear, hear and cheers.) That a native of India should be the person to propose it, still further surprises us. Were the higher class of natives found to any number brought up and educated so as to be able to pass the Civil Service examinations, then we should not be so much surprised, but if the records of the Government Colleges and Universities are of any value, we find the larger proportion of natives belong to by no means the highest caste, but are very often Kayats, Kahars and sometimes Chamars, and we ask how would the high caste Brahmin feel at sentence being passed on him by a Bhunya or a Chamar? The only test at present required for the Civil Service is an educational one; and our contention is that under these circumstances the Amendment Bill is likely to infringe native caste prejudices, and it may be that Government, in pandering to a few, may alienate the feelings of millions of its subjects and raise a storm which it will find difficult to allay (applause), for we must not forget that the high caste native does not lose his contempt for his low caste brother because he has been educated to Government service. In addition to this the records of the Mofussil Courts teem with cases showing the utter incapacity of the natives, as they at any rate are now, for dealing with European cases, and the cases of Stephen, and still more lately of Briscoe, are fresh in our memories as witnesses of it. (Loud cheers.) The mischief that has been done by Government in thus endeavouring to force upon the community at large a measure they detest, is incalculable, and has opened up old sores that were getting headed over, and has caused in many instances hasty language to be used which will rankle for many a day, and has given rise to a general feeling of distrust which did not exist before. (Applause.) The Commander-in-Chief, in 1872, said that he was jealous of the liberty of the European British subject in India because he laboured under great disadvantages. In places where Europeans are numerous, there is a chance that there may be European witnesses; but in remote places there is every probability that he may be at the mercy of native witnesses. Gentlemen, I ask what has been done to change matters since then, and could there be a greater authority, or one under whose eye there was more varied experience to quote from, than the leader of thousands of European troops scattered over every portion of the Empire? (Cheers.) And I cannot conclude better than by quoting what Sir James Colville said in 1857 to the Indian Council: "The Council should consider that the feeling of British subjects who expressed so much alarm at being made liable to the jurisdiction of the mofussil tribunals in criminal matters, was not so much that of men who felt that persons of any races who committed such crimes as theft or the like would not be fairly tried; but it was a well-grounded apprehension of being subjected to those false charges of violence and attempts at violence with which, in regard to natives, the past history of the mofussil courts was so rife, and which constantly arose out of disputes respecting possession of land." (Applause.)

Further on he says: "It did seem to him, therefore, that it would be rash to submit charges of affray for trial to a Magistrate who was interested in preserving the peace of the district, and who in exercising his police duties must necessarily be in danger of acquiring some degree of bias against or in favour of particular persons within his jurisdiction." Gentlemen, again I ask you if Sir James Colville dreaded this of one native against another in 1857, how can we expect race prejudices to have died out, and what justice can we look for after the violent expressions some of the so-called educated Bengalees have lately used when expressing their sentiments about us, and whom the Government wish to elevate to a status of equality with us and deprive us of a right inherited since the days of the Magna Charta? (Great and repeated cheers met the speaker at the conclusion of this address.)

This second Resolution having been put to the meeting by the Chairman, it was carried unanimously.

Mr. A. Spicer then stood up and said :—

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—The Resolution that I have the honour to propose for your acceptance is as follows :—

“The avowed policy of the Government being to encourage the influx of European capital, so necessary for developing the great natural resources of this country, which, owing to poverty; the inhabitants, who rely mainly upon agriculture, are quite unable to achieve by themselves, the Bill introduced by Mr. Ilbert must do infinite harm, by not only deterring the introduction of fresh capital, but having also the tendency to drive existing industries out of the country, as in all cases foreign capital insists upon having European supervision whose liberty is now for the first time being jeopardised.”

In other words, it is the commercial or business aspect of this Bill on which I am about to make a few remarks, not only as it refers to our industry, but to that of every other industry carried on and managed by Europeans in this country. The only safe way of examining this Bill in these aspects seems to me to be to argue from the known and assured experience of the past to the future. In all the enterprises carried on by European capital in this country, whether silk, tea, or indigo manufactures, or railways, we find that capitalists have only subscribed their capital when it has been entrusted to and managed by men of their own or a European race. I do not think that any one will question this point; and that being the case, what are we to think of a Government which, whilst avowing its wish to attract European capital, yet seeks to pass this Bill, which will render insecure the lives and liberty of the men to whom the capitalist entrusts the management of these industries. Security, a certain interest, perfect confidence in the stability of the Government, are the first considerations to a capitalist. Tea, silk, and indigo seem to be almost on a par in these respects, the shorter the crop season the greater the danger from this Bill. Consider for a minute how the whole results of a year's working might be jeopardised by arrest at a critical time of the manager and assistant of a tea garden on a false charge, by order of an unscrupulous Native Magistrate, entrusted with the powers proposed to be conferred on such by this Bill. Such considerations cannot but deter any one from investing in these enterprises; yet, although Government wish to attract European capital, they are mad enough to attempt to pass this Bill. (Loud cheers.) The European merchants in Calcutta have a great chance in their hands at this time. Let them refuse to tender for the Public Works loan now announced, and thus show to the Government that, having lost faith in its fair and upright dealing as regards Europeans in this country, they will entrust no more of their capital to it. But can we do nothing to support our birth-rights, not privileges—that is the wrong word? The North Lakhimpore Planters have, I see from the papers, announced to the Chief Commissioner their intention to have nothing to do with the Local Government Board, if their rights are to be interfered with by Mr. Ilbert's Bill. I am sorry that they have not given the Government a little more time for repentance. (Great cheering.) I would have preferred to have seen them waiting and watchful, but quite as determined, till next August or September, to allow the Government to withdraw the Bill of its own accord, but the Chief Commissioner seems to be anxious to precipitate matters, and has announced, I understand, that the customary allowance made for the improvement of the district will be withdrawn unless these recalcitrant planters consent to sit on the Local Government Board, thus punishing the whole district for what may be the fault of the few. (Applause.) Verily this is most unjust. (Cheers.) I call upon you all, planters of Cachar, to support your comrades in Assam, and if the Chief Commissioner attempts to carry out his threat, that you will do the same thing and let it be known at once that you are equally determined and will allow no consideration to deter you and leave the Government and the Natives to stew together in their own juices. (Vociferous and excited cheering, and voices shouting, “We will, We will.”) Hitherto the non-official Europeans have been looked upon and have to a certain extent considered themselves as an unacknowledged but not the least valuable part and parcel of the Government, but if this Bill is passed, all that is at an end, and the Europeans must look for nothing but what they can extort from the fears of the Government. (Hear, hear.)

Another reason for not passing this Bill, but I am afraid I am departing from the Resolution committed to me, is that it is against the practice and principles of this same British Government. In every eastern country in which Europeans are engaged in commerce with the natives of the soil, Government has invariably protected and fostered British commerce by insisting upon fair and equitable Courts, ruled or presided over by their Consuls or Judges specially appointed by them, or in other words, Europeans are tried by European Judges. I need only refer to the action of our Government in Egypt, China, and Japan to prove this. In Japan only a few months ago, in reply to a request that the interior of Japan should be opened to the foreigners, the Mikado's Government is reported to have said that they were willing to open the country to foreign commerce, if the Europeans would give up their rights to have their disputes with Natives of the soil referred to the Consular Courts. This, I need hardly say, the Europeans declined to agree to on the plea that native Courts are notoriously corrupt, and that in cases between Natives and Europeans, a Native Judge would side with his countrymen. In what, I ask, are the natives of this country superior to the Japanese. Is it in truthfulness? Are perjury and buying witnesses never to be seen here? Are false cases unknown in the Courts of India? No, to the disgrace of this country (and to a certain extent to the Government), I cannot find one single equality in which the Natives here are superior to the Japanese. (Applause and cheers.) Such being the case, to what are we to attribute the action of the Government in seeking to place Europeans, Eurasians, and their wives and families, under Native Magistrates? Is it to be attributed to a false philanthropy, or to ignorance of the Natives of this country that is absolutely criminal. The Viceroy, and his mouthpiece, Mr. Ilbert, may be in ignorance, having only been a short time in this country; but what are we to think of the highly placed and still more highly paid official members of Council, who are reckless of consequences to others, knowing, as they must, that if this Bill passes, it will place the lives, liberties, and property of their countrymen at the mercy of a cringing and deceitful race? (Applause and cheers). From these considerations I draw the conclusion that if this Bill passes, there will be no security for the capitalist, and he had better look elsewhere for the employment of his capital. (Loud and prolonged applause.)

Mr. C. J. Bell, in a few appropriate remarks, begged leave to second Mr. A. Spicer in proposing the above Resolution.

The Chairman then put the Resolution to the meeting and found it unanimously and heartily carried.

Mr. C. Menzies, after an able and eloquent speech, proposed the next Resolution, which reads:—

“It should never be forgotten that one of the mainstays of British supremacy is the belief, almost universal, that impartial justice is dealt out to all alike; but this condition will no longer be continued, for the Europeans declare, with one voice, they can have no confidence in the proposed new tribunals, and their decisions will never be accepted. The danger involved in this state of affairs can readily be perceived, and surely the accused ought to have a voice as to the tribunals by which he is to be tried.”

Mr. E. Livermore seconded this Resolution in the following speech, during which he was frequently cheered and applauded.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—The Resolution before the meeting draws attention to the jeopardy in which British supremacy in India will be placed, should the Government persist in its ill-advised policy by passing Mr. Ilbert's Bill, in the teeth of an opposition such as no Indian Government has hitherto experienced. That one of the mainstays of British supremacy in this land is the impartiality with which justice is administered to all alike, irrespective of class or creed, is an undoubted fact, and the consequence of this is seen in the high respect which Natives have for our courts of law, and the ready way in which they appeal to those courts for redress in cases of injury or wrong suffered. But though we can readily admit that Natives have learnt to appreciate that impartial justice which is ever meted out to them at the hands of the representatives of law and order, we cannot allow that they are yet morally capable of understanding what true justice is. They have no inborn sense of fairness, they fail to see why right should prevail and bribery and corruption have no influence with their Judges. Until this dark moral defect is eradicated, they can never be fitted to sit in judgment on Britons, whose sense of justice has in the course of ages almost grown into an instinct. It is in no vaunting spirit that, at a crisis such as this one, Briton may well claim that his countrymen are endowed with an innate sense which is not the mushroom growth of one generation, but during a gradual descent for many generations past has from primitive ideas of justice developed into that high moral sense of which I speak. On the other hand, a native of India, though belonging to a land which was old in history a thousand years before Great Britain had emerged from barbarism, has descended from a race whose mistaken ideas of morality have made no advance towards improvement for successive centuries, and even now, when years of European rule might have been expected to have elevated the moral tone of the nation to some slight extent, very little improvement is noticeable, and lies and deceit are the daily experience of all Europeans who have much intercourse with natives. It is not in the nature of things that this moral defect can be counteracted by simply cramming an individual native with more or less useful knowledge. Though he may combine in himself all the learning of the wisest men of the age, he cannot change his nature, nor can we, whom our paternal government is seeking to subject to his authority, forget what blood flows in his veins.

It is thus, Sir, that we have to declare to-day, and that with no uncertain voice, that we can have no confidence in the proposed new tribunals, because we can have none in those natives who are to preside over them; in fact we doubt the integrity and have no confidence in the impartiality of our would-be native Judges, and in so far as this is the case, we feel with bitter sorrow, that the hitherto impartial administration of justice in this land is at stake, and with it the supremacy of British rule in India. Further, we can never accept the decisions of the natives, as they have little or no knowledge of our habits and our motives of action. They are not our equals, and the fact of this agitation shows that they neither have, nor desire to have, any sympathy with us.

If, in the course of years, the gradual education of the people of India shall have raised the masses to a higher moral status than they now occupy, it may be then time to examine whether their devotion and loyalty to the British rule will fit them for rights more nearly approaching to those of Englishmen, but until that time comes, the Government are doing no good to natives, and do much harm to Europeans, by even proposing to concede to the former powers which they are in no way prepared to yield for the benefit of the realm. That there are other mightier reasons why Europeans should not be subject to the jurisdiction of native Judges we must all feel, but it is quite in accordance with the fitness of things, that a Government which has so little acquaintance with the wishes and feelings of the various races it governs, as to mistake the clamour of a few educated Baboos and native editors, for the demands of 250 millions of people, and contemptuously ignore the passionate and heart-felt protest of ninety-nine per cent. of its European subjects, should be so blind to the teachings of the past, as to deliberately place in the hands of a subject race so dangerous a weapon as judicial authority, which at any time may be turned against their rulers.

It is deeply to be regretted, now that the insatiable ambition of a certain class of the native community is making itself apparent, that at the time when native Magistrates in Presidency towns were granted the power now demanded for their brethren in the mofussil, the concession of these powers was not more strenuously opposed. Even if the European opposition had not succeeded, it would have shown the Government of the day what English opinion on the subject was, and it would have had the effect of teaching the native population what the line of demarcation was, over which they might not step, in their search for their imaginary rights. That little or no harm has come of granting those powers to native Presidency Magistrates, is more due to the fact that in each Presidency town there is a powerful and watchful English press, and a large European community, than any inherent qualities in the Judges themselves. The absence of these opportunities for criticism from most mofussil courts is one of the strongest reasons against this measure, and would inevitably heighten that suspicion with which we can do but little help looking upon all native doings, especially where legal proceedings are concerned.

With the one exception of the powers granted to native Presidency Magistrates over Europeans some years ago, this proposed Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill is the first time, since the establishment of the British constitution on its present firm basis, that the absolute right of a Briton to be tried by his own countrymen alone has been called into question, and hitherto this right has been held as inviolable in every colony of Her Majesty's vast dominions as in England.

Englishmen cannot but feel that the Government of India are acting in an unconstitutional manner in endeavouring to take this sacred privilege from us. It is a matter of the deepest import to all Europeans, but especially to those who have yet a long career before them in the Indian mofussil, that the absolute purity of the justice administered in the mofussil courts shall be guaranteed in the future as it has been in the past, but no such guarantee can be accepted by us, who will come under the power of these courts, that does not re-affirm the inalienable right of Britons to be tried by their own countrymen.

What conclusion can we come to, taking the strange action of the Government with regard to this Bill into consideration, but that it is wilfully callous to the true interests of England in the East, or worse fault still for a Government, absolutely ignorant of what those interests are. Our remedy must be to oppose with all our strength this deliberate attack on British supremacy in India, and if the Bill pass, to anticipate the inevitable result of the retrograde policy of a Radical Government by joining en masse those volunteer corps which the Government itself acknowledges are necessary, that, when the broad and statesmanlike policy under which we are suffering shall have worked out its natural result, we shall be able to assist the powers that be with our services, when in the hour of danger the material increase of the standing army in India will have become an absolute necessity.

The above Resolution was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously, and with cheers.

Mr. S. D. Jackson in a short but telling speech proposed the next Resolution, which reads:—

This meeting cannot accept as either satisfactory or convincing the reason given by Government for introducing the change, or do they believe in the finality of the present policy. The present Government is not able to bind its successors, and if the abolition of anomalies be the end in view, it is quite impossible that things can stand where they are. India was won by conquest, and the fact that after the lapse of over a century the country is still held, and its 250 millions of inhabitants are governed by a mere handful of Europeans, incontestably shows both the justice of their rule and the great prestige in which the English name is held. That such a Government should preach the perfect equality of the races, or should do anything to lower the prestige of the Europeans, out of a hankering after theoretical symmetry (in the administration of the law) must appear to all nothing less than a political blunder of the most serious kind which may involve consequences that all will deeply rue.

This Resolution being duly and well seconded by Mr. P. S. Mackintosh, it was put to the Meeting by the Chairman and carried unanimously.

In a few appropriate words Mr. R. White then proposed the following Resolution:—

That our warmest thanks be tendered to the European community of Calcutta for the able and unselfish help they are giving to their countrymen in the mofussil in opposing the proposed alteration in the Criminal Procedure Code, and especially to all those who supported and sympathized with the meeting held there on 28th February, 1883.

This Resolution was duly seconded by Mr. C. S. Walliker, and, on being put to the Meeting by the Chairman, it was carried unanimously with repeated and enthusiastic cheers.

Mr. A. Stewart then said:—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen.—In rising to propose the Resolution which has been assigned me, I do so with pleasure, as I feel sure you will be only too glad to concur with me. At this time, when we have had this obnoxious Bill thrust upon us where would we have been had it not been for our free and independent English Press, which has well vindicated its character as an honest and upright organ of public opinion? Foremost amongst the newspapers of India I beg leave to mention the Englishman as the one first to draw attention to the dangerous features of the proposed amendment (cheers); and, with one exception (groans for the Statesman), the remainder of the journals followed the course taken by it. I would now propose the following Resolution:—

“That our best thanks be tendered to the Englishman and other newspapers, for their able and manly opposition to the proposal to deprive us of our cherished and inalienable right of being tried by our countrymen.”

Dr. A. J. M. MacLaughlin seconded this Resolution and said:—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—I have much pleasure in seconding that Resolution. Every European, who has any interests in India, should be for ever grateful to the Englishman (a voice, “and the Statesman,” derisive cheers,) for the very able way that paper has been endeavouring to defend us in regard to this Bill. If only some of the home papers would take the matter up as warmly, and let our countrymen know clearly the exact nature of this Black Act, and the extent to which it will tend, if it become law, to jeopardize our liberty, I am sure there would be as strong a feeling evinced against it there, as is now shown by Englishmen in this country. (Cheers.)

Englishmen must, indeed, have changed very lately, if they will remain silent when they know that an attempt to crush us, their fellow-countrymen, is being made by those they have appointed to look after our interests and to be our rulers. Is it likely that they will allow us to be deprived of our liberty and our rights, merely to gratify the aspirations of a few natives, or allow us to be the subject of a mere experiment, which a few eccentric political theorists wish to make, when it is evident to the, I might say, whole European population of India, and to a large number of natives, that such an experiment must be attended with complete failure and end in insecurity of life and property? I should say certainly not, and for these reasons, it seems to me that what is now necessary to secure success in our cause is to ventilate this matter fully throughout the United Kingdom, through the assistance of the European and Anglo-Indian Defence Association, and let our friends and fellow-countrymen at home know the extent of injury to us, without any benefit to the natives, which the passing of this most unjust, unnecessary, unfortunate, and injurious Act would entail (Cheers).

The above resolution being put to the meeting it was carried unanimously, with cheers for the Englishman and groans for the Statesman.

Mr. A. Odling then rose and in effect said that he had much pleasure in proposing the next Resolution for he was sure it would commend itself to the meeting. And he would beg to draw their attention to what had been said in Calcutta and elsewhere that, besides subscribing funds, how much they could help our cause, if those who had relations or friends at home in influential positions, or members of Parliament, would keep on writing and stirring them up to agitate, and deeply interest themselves in our favour. And with these few remarks he would beg leave to propose the next Resolution—

“That we now open subscription lists in aid of the Europeans and Anglo-Indian Defence Association, and pledge ourselves to support this Association both with funds, and by every legitimate means in our power.”

Mr. H. G. A. Thornton seconded this Resolution, and on its being put to the meeting by the Chairman, it was carried unanimously, and with loud cheers.

The Chairman, in proposing the next Resolution, said:—

Gentlemen,—Before proposing the next Resolution I have a few remarks to make. I have listened with great pleasure to the able way in which the previous speakers have proposed, seconded, and supported the foregoing Resolutions. And there can be no doubt, I think, that such a large assemblage of the European community, so ably, unitedly, and determinedly setting forth their strongest protest against Mr. Ilbert's Bill, must have considerable weight when their proceedings are laid before the Government. It will be seen how keenly we feel that our good Government, to which we could not be more loyal (cheers), has so illiberally been trying, and trying in the dark, to deprive us of a cherished right, the possession and exercise of which are doing no one in India the slightest harm; but rather, in fact, doing India good. No further back than last September Government took a step in the right direction, and very liberally published that it thought the public should have greater opportunities and time given to discuss and study any Bills which were under the consideration of the Legislative Council. And this was with the avowed object to enable that Council to mould such Bills as much as possible in accordance with public reasonings and request. I have no doubt whatever that Government was sincere when it published that it thought the time had come when it should, to a much larger extent than hitherto, be guided by and take counsel from the community at large when making laws and regulations for them. And therefore I have the greater hope that this very objectionable and dangerous Bill will be withdrawn now, when it is clearly seen that there is the completest possible unanimity of voice against its being passed into law, amongst those it would so vitally and injuriously affect. The ablest men of our community in India are strongly opposed to it, and the more time there is given to discuss the Bill the more obnoxious and harmful it appears, and the stronger and more combined is the opposition to it. So that it cannot be hoped that the great outcry made against it is of a merely effervescent nature that time will calm down and make inert. No, I rejoice to say that this generation of Europeans in India has not yet been, either in mind or body, so enervated as to languidly and unconcernedly submit to a trampling down of its inherited and inalienable (whatever Mr. Ilbert may say to the contrary) rights as British subjects of their dearly loved Queen. (Cheers). I now beg to propose the following Resolution:—

That the proceedings of this meeting be submitted to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council through the Indian Tea Association of Calcutta, for his due and careful consideration, with the earnest hope that the proposed Bill for the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code may be withdrawn.

Mr. G. M. Lock stood up and after making a few appropriate remarks begged to second this Resolution. The Chairman then put it to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously and with great cheering.

Mr. H. Weir then in very eulogistic terms proposed a vote of thanks to the Chair, and this being warmly seconded by Mr. E. S. Elliot, it was carried amidst ringing cheers.

After the Chairman had returned his thanks to the meeting for this motion, he warmly thanked them for having supported him so well, and said the meeting could not have passed off more orderly or more successfully.

The National Anthem was then sung with the greatest enthusiasm. Before separating the Deputy Commissioner expressed a wish to address the meeting on the question of volunteers, as he was now the Commandant of the lately formed Cachar Corps, and that question had been brought up in Mr. Livermore's speech. But before taking up the question he said in effect that he had had the greatest pleasure in hearing the speeches that had been made, that he was extremely pleased with the tone that pervaded all the speeches, as well as all the members of the meeting; that he was sure if Lord Ripon himself had been present, he could not have objected to one single word that had been said, and that if all the meetings held throughout India had shown as much good temper and spoken as effectively, he believed the result would already have been different with regard to the Bill. The Meeting, after a few further remarks about the volunteers, then dispersed.

No. 709, dated 21st May 1883.

Endorsed by the Home Department.

Transferred to the Legislative Department for disposal.

No. 579—60, dated 7th July 1883.

From—MAJOR H. WALLIE, Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg.

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In compliance with your letter No. 31C., dated 17th March, 1883, I am directed by the

Mr. C. G. Plumer, Judicial Commissioner of Coorg.
Lient.-Col. W. Hill, Commissioner of Coorg.
Major H. M. S. Magrath, District Magistrate.
Mr. K. Ganapati, Subahdār of the Mercāra Taluq.
Mr. C. Soobiah, Assistant Commissioner.
Mr. N. Monappa, Subahdār of the Yedenalknad Taluq.
The Coorg Planters' Association.
Rev'd. H. A. Kaundinya.

Officiating Chief Commissioner to submit a note by Mr. Lyall containing an expression of his opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, together with copies of communications on the same subject from the gentlemen noted in the margin.

Note by Officiating Chief Commissioner, Coorg, dated 7th July 1883.

1. On receipt of the letter of the Government of India, Legislative Department, No. 31C., dated 17th March, 1883, calling for opinions on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the Judicial Commissioner and the Commissioner of Coorg were asked to give opinions on the Bill. Their replies have been received, and the Commissioner of Coorg has forwarded with his letter the opinions of the Coorg Planters' Association, of the District Magistrate, of three Native officials, and one Native clergyman.

2. The Judicial Commissioner supports the principle of the Bill, but would limit its operation. The Native clergyman and two of three Native officials support the Bill more or less entirely. The other four opinions are against the Bill.

3. Before expressing my own opinion, I must mention that, when I met Sir James Gordon at Madras, the day before he sailed for England, he said to me that he much regretted that he had not been able, owing to ill-health, to dispose of this reference. He added that he intended to write an opinion on his voyage home, and send it direct to Government; but that in case he was not able to carry out this intention, he begged me to mention, in disposing of the reference, that his opinion was strongly in favour of the withdrawal of the Bill.

4. A year ago, when I was serving as Financial Commissioner in the Panjāb, the Panjāb Government asked me to give an opinion on the question as then stated in the confidential letter (No. 7-592 of 28th April, 1882, and enclosure) of the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department. I replied briefly that it seemed necessary, on grounds of administrative convenience, to confer on Native Covenanted Civilians who may be appointed to hold the offices of District Magistrate and Sessions Judge the same jurisdiction over European British subjects as is exercised by European British subjects holding those offices, but that I did not recommend any further alteration of the existing law.

In giving "administrative convenience" as the reason I accepted for the change of law, I did not accurately describe the argument which most influenced me at the time.

I was aware that any change in the law which has hitherto excluded European British subjects from the jurisdiction of Native Criminal Judges would be objected to by the European community, and I did not consider that such objection would of itself be in any way unreasonable; but I thought that, as the policy of admitting a large number of Natives to the Covenanted Civil Service had been adopted by the Government, the particular risk to the European community involved in this change of the criminal law ought to be incurred along with other difficulties and risks to the British Government of India with which the policy is admittedly weighted. It seemed to me at the time that, if Native Deputy Commissioners and Sessions Judges could not be invested with such jurisdiction, the fact might be used to their injury as a reason for not appointing them to such posts; also that, in the case of Natives appointed District Magistrates, the want of such jurisdiction might injure their prestige and affect their power to control their districts successfully.

I regret to have to confess that, in the press of business, I wrote the opinion in question on a mere perusal of the papers then circulated to me. Those papers contained Mr. Gupta's extracts from the debate in the Legislative Council which occurred when a similar amendment of the law was proposed in 1872. His extracts were from speeches by the "ayes" only; since then I have read the speeches by the "noes." I have also read the petition to the House of Commons by the European and Anglo-Indian Defence Association, and many able letters which have appeared in India and English newspapers. I have also had opportunities of discussing the question with some officers of experience, Native and European, not only in the Panjáb, but also in several other provinces. Official opinion is not unanimous, but I am now still less inclined than at first to support an amendment of the law. I am, in fact, in favour of the entire withdrawal of the Bill.

5. The Statement of Objects and Reasons which accompanies the Bill gives no reason for legislation by the desirability of abolishing anomalies and disqualifications based upon race-distinctions. Many absurdities as well as anomalies have to be tolerated in India, and, as the race-disqualification does not prevent a man becoming a Judge, but only from trying a very small class of accused persons, it is not a disqualification of which the race can seriously complain. In respect to the grounds of my former opinion, I think, on reconsideration, that for a long time to come no serious administrative inconvenience is likely to result from the maintenance of the present law, and that the proposed alteration of it is, on the whole, more likely to hinder than to promote the present success of the policy of admitting Natives into the Covenanted Civil Service, and of appointing them to such posts as that of District Magistrates and Sessions Judges. I mean that the success of that policy (and I desire its success) might be seriously endangered by the occurrence, which is by no means improbable, of cases in which the Native Civilian Judge or Magistrate failed to do justice in the trial of Europeans under the influence either of timidity or race-feeling; and, secondly, I think that the Government would be oftener likely to hesitate to appoint a Native Civilian to be District Magistrate, because having jurisdiction over Europeans, he would probably have to exercise it, than because not having such jurisdiction, any case occurring would have to be transferred elsewhere for trial.

6. In the excited state of feeling caused by hard language used at public meetings and in newspaper articles, it is not very easy for Native gentlemen concerned to publicly express an opinion against the Bill; most of them feel that to deprecate the proposal made by the Government of India is to incur the imputation of ingratitude to the Government and of a want of self-confidence and patriotic feeling. But I believe that the great majority of the Native gentlemen now serving as members of the Covenanted Civil Service, or as Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation provinces, would on the whole prefer to see the Bill withdrawn.

In the case of Native gentlemen not immediately concerned who are in no present fear of having the responsibility of trying such cases put upon them, there is, I think, great divergence of opinion. The great majority of the younger English educated Native gentlemen, official or non-official, are, I think, at the present moment in favour of the Bill, and it is also supported (as any measure supposed to be unpalatable to Europeans will be) by those Native gentlemen, educated or uneducated, who are disaffected to the British Government or who feel a race-antipathy to the English. But in the Panjáb, where I had opportunities of conversing with Native gentry of various kinds, I came to the conclusion that a large number of sensible and well affected Native gentlemen were of opinion that the proposed change of the law was an unwise one. The great mass of the people are, I think, everywhere entirely uninterested in the question.

7. I hope I shall not be thought to have a low opinion of the Native Covenanted Civilian as Judges or Magistrates because I have written above of the probability of the occurrence of failures of justice if the criminal trial of Europeans in the mofussil is entrusted to them. I have, on the contrary, a high opinion of their judicial abilities, but it seems to me to be clear that the English Covenanted Civilian is in a position which makes it easier for him than for a Native to be an efficient and impartial Judge in criminal trials of Europeans.

When both parties are Europeans, it will be admitted that the Native Judge is at a great disadvantage in judging of the facts; when the accused is an Englishman and the prosecutor a Native, much race-feeling is frequently aroused. The English Civilian Judge before whom such cases come up is, no doubt, not insensible to race-feeling for his accused countryman, but, on the other hand, as a member of the ruling race, a generous determination to be just to the other races is easier than it would be if the position was reversed; and, moreover, there is a strong traditional feeling in the Indian Civil Service of its being the special duty of its members to be impartial in such cases, and to protect Natives from being oppressed. Again, in most of such cases the European defendant is a non-official, and the Indian Civilian Judge is sometimes apt to be prejudiced against such defendants by their bluntness of speech and comparative want of deference for the Court. The European population among which the Judge is living is scanty in number and changes rapidly; the Judge may leave the district any day, and will soon leave the country for good; he is, therefore, in a position to be but little afraid of unpopularity with the Europeans around him. My experience leads me to believe that these conflicting forces keep the English Civilian on the whole very impartial in the trial of such cases. It is well known that, in European non-official or military circles in India, the Civilian Judge is very commonly believed to be prejudiced in favour of the Natives in disposing of such cases. I myself believe that this is so far true that bias is as often shown in favour of the Native as of the non-official European. On the other hand, a Native Judge trying a criminal charge against a European about which race-feeling has been aroused is in a much more difficult position. He is generally by birth a man of the Native middle class, between which class and the non-official European a jealous sentiment is apt to exist. The country is his home, and he lives among the people, and is exposed by their customs and habits to outside pressure and solicitations of the strongest kind. The rough and independent bearing of the accused will often prejudice him, and the great distrust which the non-official European almost always displays of a Native Judge will be apt to annoy him. In fact, all the surrounding circumstances and all his natural sympathies are likely to bias him in favour of the prosecution, particularly if the prosecutor is a man of his own class or of good position in Native society. On the other hand, there is nothing to keep him straight except the fear of the disapproval of his English official superiors and his own conscience and firmness of character. Though I have a great respect for Native Judges, I am of opinion that the average conscientiousness and firmness of character of the educated English gentleman is, at present, much higher than that of the educated Native gentleman. The same comparison in favour of the Englishman may, I think, be made with many European races. This difference may very possibly be due to no inherent superiority of race; it may be simply the result of free political life, a pure form of religion, high education and high civilization maintained through a great number of generations. But, whatever the cause may be, I do not think the fact of the difference will be questioned by any impartial person of Indian experience.

8. For the above reasons, I hold that the English Judge or Magistrate in India is naturally better qualified to try cases in which Europeans are accused than the Native Judge or Magistrate. If this is admitted, and if no great administrative inconvenience is to be anticipated at present from leaving the law as it stands, then it seems to me that to make a change in defiance of the decided opinion and strong sentiment of the European community on the subject would be unjustifiable. I myself put little weight upon the argument that, if the Government gives way to the Europeans now, it will not be able to legislate against their wishes in other matters, or in this matter when another occasion arises. I believe that they have been from the first on the whole in the right in this case, and that it has only been the occasional manner of their opposition, not the opposition itself, which has deserved to be called blatant or unreasonable. I think that the non-official Europeans (those who live in the mofussil among the people in particular) are as alive to the progress of the times, and the necessity of gradual change in their relations with the Natives as any other class. I think that the indigo-planters of Bengal showed this not long ago in their dealings with the Bengal Government. When the Government has a good case for legislation, I believe the majority of non-official Europeans will be sensible enough to recognize the fact, even though the legislation be against their class-interests. The opposition then will be weak, and the Government will find itself amply strong enough to disregard it.

I do not think that any real political importance should be attached to the display of Native feeling on the question recently made in the newspapers and in speeches at public meetings. The feeling is shallow, and has been mainly aroused by the abusive language addressed on some occasions by the Europeans to the class of educated Natives and to a Government which those Natives know to be most benevolently disposed towards them. The real question is one of sentiment only as far as the Natives are concerned, and it is only a very small class which is interested in it. I do not intend to maintain that national or race sentiment should be disregarded in legislating for India—I hold the contrary opinion very decidedly; but the strong sentiment in this case is on the side which resists the proposed change, and which may be materially affected by it.

9. I believe the Bill to be based simply upon liberal and benevolent ideas; but, in studying its provisions (including those which merely to avoid the least appearance of preferring English to Native Magistrates, disqualify a number of competent European Magistrates who are not Covenanted Civilians), one might be forgiven for suspecting it to be the outcome of a very exaggerated idea of the sensitiveness of the Natives in respect to race-distinctions, and of an over-regard for such sensitiveness amounting to timidity. There is always some danger in India in any appearance of timidity. On the other hand, there will be no danger in disregarding the clamour which will be raised if the Bill is withdrawn by the particular classes of Natives who are now showing interest in it. It is impossible to conciliate by concessions those who are at heart radically hostile to the British Government; those who are content with progress under it will be indifferent to the fate of the Bill if they see the Government persevere in its general policy of admitting the Natives to high offices and of gradually entrusting to them larger municipal powers of self-government.

Memorandum by C. G. PLUMBER, Esq., Officiating Judicial Commissioner, Coorg, dated 8th May 1883.

One of the objections to the Bill is apparently founded on a misconception of its scope; it appears as if the great body of opponents think that, if the Bill be passed, any Magistrate of the first class will have jurisdiction to try European British subjects. But that is not so. Section 443 as amended would run thus—"No Magistrate, unless he is a Justice of the Peace and (except in the case of a Presidency Magistrate) unless he is a Magistrate of the first class, shall inquire into or try any charge against an European British subject." To have jurisdiction the Magistrate must be both a Justice of the Peace and Magistrate, first class, and the only persons who can be appointed Justices of the Peace under the provisions of section 22 as proposed to be amended are such Covenanted Civilian members of the Native Civil Service, Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation provinces or Cantonment Magistrates as are invested with powers of a Magistrate of the first class. Those persons, and those only, would be able, if the Bill were to pass, to enquire into or try a charge against an European British subject.

2. It does not follow necessarily that every one of the class of persons referred to in the proposed amendment of section 22 would be appointed a Justice of the Peace. The discretionary power of such appointment is left to the Governor General and to the several Governors; they might be trusted to use their discretion so that no one not in every way fit to discharge the duties of a Justice of the Peace should be appointed.

3. I quite agree that a person who is considered qualified to be a District Judge or District Magistrate is, or should be, ipso facto, qualified to discharge all the duties pertaining to those officers, and to try European British subjects. The Local Governments should not appoint any one to those appointments who is not so qualified.

4. The Bill is the logical outcome of what has gone before; it is part and parcel of the policy which has been for many years in vogue in British India; it is the logical sequence of the admission of Natives to the ranks of the Covenanted Civil Service. No objection was taken at that time by those who now object to this Bill: they knew, or might have known, perfectly well that the Covenanted Civilians were the real administrators of the country; they knew, or might have known, exactly what were the powers, executive and judicial, wielded by Covenanted Civilians; they must, one would have thought, have foreseen that, when Natives were once admitted to the Covenanted Civil Service, the time would not be far distant when it would be necessary to remove all restrictions from the enjoyment by them of all the privileges, and from the exercise by them of all the powers, vested in Civilians; but the class to which the great mass of the opponents of the present Bill belong—the non-official Europeans—were silent.

5. Silent, too, were they when Natives were made Presidency Magistrates, High Court Judges and even when a Native was made Acting Chief Justice in Bengal. Small blame, in the face of such apparently absolute acquiescence, is it to the official class that it was for the most part ignorant of the storm which this Bill would raise.

6. I cannot help thinking that some of the fears which this present Bill has raised are much exaggerated.

7. It seems to be assumed that, as soon as Native gentlemen are invested with the power to try Europeans in the mofussil, false charges of all sorts will pour in against Europeans, male and female, and that their lives and liberties will be endangered. Such fears appear to me to be groundless; they can have no force unless it be taken for granted that the Native Magistrate will conspire with the complainant in such cases.

8. And is it likely he would do so? What would the class of Natives who alone would be empowered to try such cases have in common with the persons who it is supposed will be the complainants; and, unless the Magistrate is in a conspiracy with the complainant, the accused, it seems to me, would be just as likely (to say the least) to get justice from a Native Magistrate as from a Magistrate who is a European British subject. The Native Magistrate, indeed, in my opinion, would be more likely to detect the falsity of the complaint if it were false than many of the young European Justices of the Peace who now have jurisdiction to try European British subjects. It may be that a Native Magistrate would be ignorant of the manners and customs, ways of thought and feeling of the accused; but, what is of much greater importance, he would be very well acquainted with the manners and customs, ways of thought and feeling of the complainant and his witnesses. My experience tells me that a Native Judge, as a rule, is excellently well able to appreciate the evidence of Native witnesses; and is it likely that a Native Magistrate trying a European would wilfully convict him of a false charge? To put it on no higher ground, he dare not do so; he knows that all his hopes of promotion depend on Europeans; he knows that the whisper of any injustice on his part against a European would lead to instant enquiry, and on detection to stern punishment. My own honest belief is that the very limited class of Natives whom by this Bill it is proposed to give discretion to the Local Government and Governor General to invest with jurisdiction over European British subjects may be trusted to exercise that jurisdiction impartially and without the slightest fear of any injustice being done to Europeans. That is my own honest, deliberate opinion, but, at the same time, I am not likely to be affected one way or other by the Bill, and the great mass of the non-official Europeans who are most interested in the Bill would appear to have a violent antipathy to its provisions. Such strong and practically unanimous feeling against the Bill as has been shown by the non-official Europeans cannot of course be lightly disregarded.

9. It is said that the non-official Europeans, the planters, &c., came out to India under a sort of guarantee from Government that they were to be amenable in criminal matters to the jurisdiction of European British Judges only. I have no doubt that those who put forward this plea fully believe in it; but I would like to know, as a matter of fact, how many planters, &c., before they came out to India ever made any enquiry on the point; and I would like to know further, supposing the enquiry to have been made and the reply to have been that they would be amenable to the jurisdiction of Native Magistrates, how many would have been deterred from going out to India. They came out to India, as we officials came out, because they were obliged to work for their livelihood, and India offered them a likely field for their labour; and, in my opinion, the passing of this Bill would have a very inappreciable effect in thinning the ranks of the non-official Europeans.

10. But, at the same time, as I have said, the strong feeling shown against the Bill should not be lightly put aside. I would not counsel the total abandonment of the Bill, because I honestly believe it to be a Bill embodying principles which must sooner or later be given effect to, and because I would not have the Government yield now to an agitation which it is clear it must face at some time.

11. It is possible that there is no immediate necessity for the Bill; it is possible that it would have been better not to have introduced it just now; feelings have been stirred up which all would have preferred to have allowed to lie dormant; but the Bill has been introduced; it is strictly, as I have said, part and parcel of the policy of the Government in India for several years past.

12. Unless that policy is to be reversed, sooner or later a similar Bill must be introduced. As the number of European officials decreases and the number of Native Magistrates and non-official Europeans increases, jurisdiction to try European British subjects must be given to Native Magistrates; and if this Bill is abandoned, another of similar import will have to be introduced, which will again give rise to agitation such as is now rampant. The first furious blast of the storm has now been encountered by the Government. There would be, in my opinion, a want of courage in quailing before the storm and abandoning the Bill, leaving a future Government to encounter over again the same opposition, with the disheartening precedent of the success attendant on the present agitation. While, however, I would not abandon the Bill altogether and expose the Government to the dangerous charge of having yielded to agitation, I would endeavour to meet, as far as possible, the objections raised. The principle of the Bill should, in my opinion, be insisted on, but in detail its operation might be limited. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, in the course of the debate in Council on the Bill, suggested a very fair compromise, namely to limit the jurisdiction to try Europeans to such Natives as are, or may become, Sessions Judges and District Magistrates. To carry this proposal out—

Section 1 of the Bill should be omitted.

Section 2 should stand as at present (it should be section 1).

For section 3 I would substitute the following:—

“In section 443, after the words ‘and a European British subject’, insert ‘or a District Magistrate and Sessions Judge.’”

For Section 4 I would substitute—“Any Judge presiding in a Court of Session may exercise jurisdiction over a European British subject, but an Assistant Sessions Judge shall not exercise such jurisdiction unless he is a European British subject and unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years.”

For section 5 substitute “section 450 is hereby repealed.”

Add fresh section—“After the words ‘European British subject’ in the last line of the second paragraph of section 459, add ‘or a District Magistrate or Sessions Judge.’”

A fresh section might also be added something to the following effect:—

“Any sentence of imprisonment passed on a European British subject by a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate who is not himself a European British subject shall, on the application of the person sentenced, be suspended pending an appeal.”

No. 81-40, dated 28th April 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COL. W. HILL, Commissioner, Coorg,

To—The Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your docket No. 2255-917 of the 30th March 1883, forwarding to me, for an expression of opinion, draft Bill for the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, and directing me to obtain and submit that also of the Coorg Planters Association and of others competent to give an opinion on the proposed measure.

2. In reply I beg to observe that the desire with which the Government is animated in removing such anomalies is honourable and just; but I regard the measure itself as being premature and impolitic: premature because, however much the whole moral tone of the natives of India who have had the benefit of an English education may have been elevated so as to justify their appointment to posts of responsibility and trust, the characteristics of the great body of the populace, especially those in up-country districts, with whom European planters are placed in immediate contact, has not altered so far as to warrant the abolition of distinctions of the nature proposed between European and Native; also the number of natives who have entered the Civil Service is so very few that their feelings may for the present be sufficiently consulted by their non-appointment to districts containing a large number of European proprietors of land. The exercise of jurisdiction over Europeans by the Assistant Commissioner, as provided in the Bill, is not needed, as there are two Justices of the Peace in Coorg, and his duties are confined chiefly to the disposal of civil cases and the charge of the district treasury.

3. The amendment of the Code appears to be impolitic, inasmuch as it deprives Europeans of the time-honoured privilege, which they prize, of being tried by their own countrymen, and the deprivation of which would unquestionably tend to lower them in the estimation of their native neighbours.

4. In Coorg, which has an European population of nearly 200, most of whom are engaged in the cultivation of coffee estates, the number of cases which come before the Justices of the Peace is very few. They consist mostly of petty complaints of ill-treatment made by servants against their European masters, and of mischief made by raiyats who have allowed their cattle to stray into coffee estates. In nearly every case the complaint is much over-stated. Consequently there exists in the minds of Europeans a strong feeling, as expressed in paragraph 4 of the letter from the Coorg Planters' Association, that the present restriction of powers acts as a protective measure against the institution of false cases which, if trumped up against them, could not easily be rebutted owing to their isolated position. Not only would the disgrace of being dragged before the Courts be much felt by gentlemen of standing and position, but they apprehend that their authority over their workmen would by such means be so much weakened as to affect their chances of success in the enterprise in which their capital is embarked. Mingling, as they do, freely with the native population, and having ample opportunity of judging of their character, such apprehensions must be well founded, and are, in my opinion, deserving of the fullest consideration on the part of the Legislature. Their allegation as to the untrustworthiness of a great portion of the evidence tendered by natives is fully borne out by the daily experience of the Courts; and, as urged, Native Magistrates might occasionally feel difficulty in disposing of cases between Europeans owing to their want of knowledge of their habits and modes of thought. The following cases, which have actually occurred under existing arrangements, may be quoted as illustrative of the evils which they apprehend as likely to be augmented:—Lately the coolies of an estate in South Coorg, led by their maistries (gangmen), made an attack upon the European superintendent, and, in order to mislead the authorities, had recourse to the ordinary native stratagem of being the first to lodge a complaint. The European Magistrate dismissed it as false and punished the ringleaders severely, which had an excellent effect in checking a recurrence of similar attacks. In a case of forgery tried at the last Sessions, a determined effort was made by the production of false witnesses to show that an East Indian, who had served 14 years as a superintendent, and who enjoyed the confidence of his employer, had betrayed his trust by authorizing the accused to make use of his name. In a case in which an English lady was the complainant and Europeans were parties, a desirable compromise was effected; whereas, had the Magistrate been a native, the lady would in all probability have refrained from seeking the aid of the Court.

5. I would further urge the desirability of the early withdrawal of the Bill, on the ground that the agitation which it has caused has already been productive of ill-effects in promoting race antagonism, which is especially to be deprecated in a Province like Coorg, where it is essential, for good government and the development of the resources of the country, that friendly relations should subsist between the large number of European planters and their native neighbours, and between the former as employers and the large bodies of coolies who are employed.

6. Copies of letters received from Major Magrath, the District Magistrate, and Mr. Ganapati, Subhadar of the Mercara Taluq, opposing the Bill, and from Mr. C. Soobiah, Assistant Commissioner, Mr. Monappa, Subhadar of the Yedenalknad Taluq, and the Revd. H. A. Kaundinya, in favor of it, are attached, as well as copy of the letter from the Coorg Planters' Association already referred to.

No. 44—12, dated 11th April 1883.

From—MAJOR H. M. S. MAGRATH, District Magistrate, Coorg.

To—The Commissioner of Coorg.

With reference to your docket No. 18—4, dated 4th April 1883, forwarding for opinion a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I have the honour to state that I consider the change proposed in the law undesirable on political grounds: it is a privilege of Englishmen to be tried by their peers from ancient times. The Bill has been, and if passed into law will be, mischievous in its results, and tend to increase race antagonism, which it is most desirable to avoid in our Indian Empire; and further, no desire or wish on the part of the Native populations of India has ever been apparently put forward for the change proposed by the Bill. They naturally consider it to be a rightful privilege of Englishmen to be tried by their countrymen, quite as much as many privileges which they (the Natives of India) enjoy under our

For the foregoing reasons I consider it unadvisable to pass the Bill, which is a piece of sentimental legislation, into law.

From—MR. K. GANAPATI, Subahdar, Mercara Taluq.

To—The Commissioner of Coorg.

In acknowledging the receipt of your docket No. 22—16 of the 4th April 1883, I have the honour to submit the following.

I am of opinion that the Bill, however desirable it may be to remove an existing anomaly, will prove in the end very mischievous and create a serious ill-feeling between Natives and Europeans.

As far as my experience goes, I think the amendment is really unnecessary, the time not having come for an Act so liberal in its provisions. Matters now go on well, and no demand has been made for the change by the community at large. As it is, I feel that Native officials have no reason to complain, as we are empowered to dispose of civil cases in which Europeans appear before us; and it will do us no real good if we are called upon to perform the invidious task of punishing Europeans, while it will endanger the kindly feeling which should subsist between the European and the Natives of the country, and which I have endeavoured throughout my long official career to promote.

I must not be misunderstood in my opposition to the Bill. I am proud to say that pure Natives of India have proved themselves, both morally and socially, capable of filling with credit some of the highest and most responsible posts in India, and there is no doubt that there are many others who would do justice to their appointments as Magistrates. What I mean is that the Bill is uncalled for, and has been thrust upon the Europeans contrary to their wishes, and is therefore certainly to be deprecated.

Dated 22nd April, 1883.

From—G. R. EVANS, Esq., Honorary Secretary, Coorg Planters' Association,

To—The Commissioner of Coorg.

I have the honour, on behalf of this Association, to acknowledge the receipt of your docket No. 19—5, dated 4th instant, enclosing a copy of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction of Natives over European subjects, and asking for an expression of our opinion on the same for transmission to the Chief Commissioner of Coorg.

2. The large and influential meetings held at Ammatti in the south, and here at Mercara in the north, were unanimous in their protest against the injustice of this Bill, and there is hardly a European, I believe, in the Province who has not signed the Madras memorial protesting against it.

3. Our reasons for the same were given at length in the speeches made at the meeting and printed in the Madras Mail of 2nd instant:—

(1) We are of opinion that this Bill, which we consider is unnecessary and uncalled for by either Natives or Europeans, and which the Government have unwisely proposed for the sake of two or three Bengal Native gentlemen, will deprive us of the only right and privilege which we Europeans in India enjoy, and would place our lives and liberties at the mercy of Native Magistrates, who are almost totally ignorant of our ways and habits of life.

(2) There is hardly a single class amongst the Natives of India that has not some particular custom or right preserved to it by law; and why are we to be deprived of the only one that we as Europeans possess, and which we maintain has far more reason for its continuation, at least for many years, than any the Natives have?

(3) There is not another colony or foreign station where Europeans are domiciled that does not maintain its right to have all European subjects tried by their own countrymen, and will not permit their being handed over to Native Courts; and we protest against this just and reasonable law being abolished in our case.

(4) Here in this Province, where there are so many Europeans, this Act, if passed, would bear particularly hard. So long as there is an European Judge who knows our ways and habits, and can sift carefully the false evidence brought forward, the Natives are careful about bringing forward false accusations; but with a Native Judge a fellow countryman to appear before, all this would be changed, and false charges would be multiplied a hundred-fold.

For every little petty spite or trivial blow, supported by any number of false witnesses, we should be had up, and, with only a Native Magistrate to Judge between us, we maintain that our liberties, and perhaps our lives, would often be falsely sworn away.

(5) This Act, if passed, will, we feel assured, be most prejudicial to the good feeling which at present exists between the two classes, and will be the death-blow to the welfare and prosperity of the Province.

Hitherto, although living in a foreign land, we have felt that we were sure of a fair and impartial trial, but with this taken from us, there will be few who care to choose this country for their home when there are so many other lands where an Englishman, though an alien, may yet feel that he has this much-prized privilege of being tried by his countrymen still preserved to him.

4. We beg, in conclusion, to thank the late Acting Chief Commissioner of Coorg for his earnest and manly protest on behalf of this Province against this proposed Bill, and we trust that Sir James Gordon will also continue to urge on our behalf the inexpediency of this Bill, which is unanimously condemned by the whole Province.

No. 10, dated 17th April, 1883.

From—MR. C. SOOBIAH, Assistant Commissioner, and MR. N. MONAPPA, Subahdār, Yedonalknad Taluq,

To—The Commissioner of Coorg.

We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your docket No. 20—6 of the 4th April, 1883, and its enclosure.

We have very carefully considered the provisions of the Bill with Statement of Objects and Reasons, and we beg to submit that the Bill does by its provisions no doubt remove an existing anomaly, and that, all things considered, it is such a measure as should be passed into law.

We cannot see any objection to the Bill, and we cannot conceive what legal and valid reasons can be possibly adduced against the amendment proposed to be effected thereby.

Europeans and Natives of every class and creed are, without distinction of class or race, all equally subjects of Her Majesty the Empress of India.

Under a liberal Government, Natives have qualified themselves to be considered eligible to fill most responsible positions. Indeed, Natives have long been appointed to seats on the Bench of the High Courts in the several Presidencies, and of late they have also been considered eligible for appointments in the much-coveted and jealously-guarded Covenanted Civil Service in India. And further, there are numerous Natives who are called to the Bar, and others who fill most responsible offices under the Government in all parts of India.

In the Presidency towns, Natives as Magistrates have jurisdiction over European British subjects, and hitherto no objection has been urged or exception taken to such powers being exercised by such Native Magistrates.

We are, therefore, of opinion that the Bill should be passed into law, for the Government of India and the several Local Governments in the Judicial Departments would have the remedy, if any, in their own hands in the conferment of the powers on Native Magistrates. We assume that only such Magistrates who are duly qualified as Magistrates empowered as is contemplated by the provisions of the Bill now before the Legislative Council of India. (Sic.)

Dated 17th April, 1883.

From—REV. H. A. KATNDINYA,

To—Commissioner of Coorg.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 4th of April, together with a copy of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, &c., forwarded to me for my opinion.

At a time when almost all British-born subjects of Her Majesty the Empress of India consider it their duty to protest against the amendment, it is not a pleasant thing to be found among those that are constrained to approve of the measure. Having been educated in Europe and having married a German, all my children also receiving instruction and education in Europe, I can, though a pure native of India, fully enter into the feelings and understand the fears and apprehensions of my European fellow-subjects. On the other hand, I must not forget that mere sentimentality ought not to be allowed to override calm thought and the demands of justice and equity.

There are, according to the amendment, four classes on whom the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects is to be conferred. It is my humble opinion that no exception can be taken to the first, second, and fourth of them; but I doubt whether all the Assistant Commissioners are up to the mark. If, on the other hand, those Assistant Commissioners only are considered eligible for the exercise of the proposed jurisdiction that have been recommended thereto by the Commissioners of such districts, no inconvenience or injustice need be feared.

One thing strikes me as peculiarly anomalous. The Kaffirs and Zulus at the Cape Colony, the Maoris of New Zealand, the Negroes of other Colonies, are to be looked upon as British-born subjects, while the people of British India are not to be considered as such. Any British-born Maori, Kaffir or Negro, may any day become a Judge or Magistrate in India, and exercise such jurisdiction not only over the people of India, but also over all European-born subjects, while such a British-born subject himself must not be under the jurisdiction of a Judge or Magistrate of the first class, if a native of India, though the latter may be a first class nobleman. I here allude to the law as it stands, though in practice this may not happen for a long time yet.

Under the wise laws introduced into India by the British Government, under the vigilant and prudent control exercised by the higher over the lower Courts, and with the great strides made in education and in the development of administrative capacities, it may now be truly said of the higher grades of educated Natives of India that they can honourably stand comparison with men of European nationalities of similar grades and standing.

But one thing must not be overlooked. The state of morality certainly stands lower in India than in England. I would, therefore, raise my voice and say to our rulers — festina lente; let only those have this authority bestowed on them who are really fit for the work.

No. 749, dated 9th July 1883.

From—W. M. YOUNG, Esq., Secretary to Government, Punjab and its Dependencies,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

With reference to your letter No. 27C., dated 17th March, I am desired to submit the opinions on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, which have been received from the officers, gentlemen, and societies noted below, together with a minute on the same by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. I am at the same time to forward copies of the opinions which were received by the Lieutenant-Governor with reference to the proposals contained in the letter of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 7, dated 28th April 1882, which by an inadvertence were not submitted with my confidential letter No. 703, dated 5th August 1882, to that Department.

2. The Bill and Statement received with your letter under reply were published in the Punjab Government Gazette in English in the issues of the 22nd and 29th March and 5th April respectively, and in Urdu in the issue of the vernacular Gazette of the 2nd April.

3. Should any further opinions on the Bill be received before the 15th of July, they will be duly communicated.

List of Opinions submitted.

Mr. Justice G. R. Elsmie.

Mr. Justice D. G. Barkley.

Colonel W. G. Davies, c.s.i., Officiating Financial Commissioner, Punjab.

J. D. Tremlett, Esquire, Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Delhi Division.

Lieut.-Col. L. J. H. Grey, c.s.i., Commissioner and Superintendent, Hissar Division.

J. W. Maenabb, Esquire, Commissioner and Superintendent, Umballa Division.

Colonel Gordon Young, Commissioner and Superintendent, Jullundur Division.

Colonel C. A. McMahon, Commissioner and Superintendent, Amritsar Division.

Colonel C. C. Minchin, Commissioner and Superintendent, Lahore Division.

H. E. Perkins, Esquire, Commissioner and Superintendent, Rawalpindi Division.

Colonel E. P. Gordon, Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division.

E. O'Brien, Esquire, Deputy Commissioner, Mooltan.

Major R. Bartholomew, Deputy Commissioner, Jhang.

Major C. McNeil, Deputy Commissioner, Montgomery.

C. E. Gladstone, Esquire, Deputy Commissioner, Muzaffargarh.

Lieut.-Col. E. L. Ommanney, Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Derajat Division.

F. W. R. Fryer, Esquire, Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan.

S. S. Thorburn, Esquire, Officiating Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ismail Khan.

H. C. T. Robinson, Esquire, Officiating Deputy Commissioner, Bannu.

The Honorary Secretary to the Planters' Association, Kangra Valley.

Sardar Atar Singh, c.i.e., Chief of Bhadaur.

Sardar Bikrama Singh, Ahluwalia.

Agha Kalbi Abid, Khan Bahadur, Honorary Assistant Commissioner, Amritsar.

Haji Khan Muhammad Shah, Khan Bahadur, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar.

Pandit Ram Narain, Secretary to the Indian Association, Lahore.

Anjuman-i-Islamiya, Amritsar.

Sri Gobind Singh Sabha Association, Lahore.

Anjuman-i-Mufid-i-Am, Kasur.

Minute by SIR CHARLES AITCHISON, K.C.S.I., Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and its Dependencies, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, dated 9th June, 1882.

In replying to the Government of India about the European Jurisdiction Bill, the opinions originally received, which should have formed enclosures of the Punjab Government letter No. 703, dated the 5th August 1882, should be forwarded, as well as those received in answer to the later reference.

2. As was to be expected, opinions have been much influenced by the violent agitation which followed the introduction of the Bill and the strong opposition it has evoked from the European community. These circumstances have necessarily become important factors in the question, and have removed it to a platform altogether different from that on which it was originally discussed. The race antipathies which have unfortunately been aroused have transformed a measure of administrative convenience into a burning political question, of which the withdrawal of the Bill affords no solution, and which must now be settled on its merits, on a view of the whole situation as it is, and as in its present and future bearings it affects the European and Native community alike.

3. There appear to me to be at least three conditions essential to such a settlement :—

- (1) That the Legislature shall recognise no disqualification for office on grounds only of race, religion or colour ;
- (2) That the Legislature shall impose reasonable checks on the action of the Executive Government, and provide sufficient guarantees that judicial powers over European British subjects shall not be conferred on persons whose qualifications have not been thoroughly tested ;
- (3) That the question be settled once for all on a basis which shall, as far as can be foreseen, prevent the recurrence of lamentable controversies and dangerous agitations.

4. In the course of the last few months it has, I fear, become only too evident that the first of these conditions will be unacceptable to many of our countrymen in India. But however high race feeling may run, this question, as seems to me, has been settled for us by the Parliament of England. In the statute passed in 1833 for the better government of India (3 and 4 William IV, Chapter 85, Section 87), it is enacted that “no native of the said territories, nor any natural born subject of His Majesty therein, shall, by reason only of his religion, place of birth, descent, colour, or any of them, be disabled from holding any place, office or employment under the said Company.” This statute is maintained in force by Section 64 of the Statute 21 and 22 Victoria, Chapter 106, which transferred the Government of India to the Crown ; and I presume the Parliament of England would as soon think of repealing the Catholic Emancipation Act as of reimposing on the natives of India disabilities which were abolished fifty years ago.

5. It has been urged, indeed, by high authority that, in a country where all kinds of personal laws prevail and are prized by those to whom they apply, there is no reason to single out for discontinuance a privilege to which Englishmen attach the highest importance. This is true enough as the statement of a general proposition ; but, in its application to the particular question under consideration, the objection seems to me to ignore cardinal distinctions between various kinds of personal laws and privileges. So long as society exists there must of course be personal laws and privileges. These cannot be abolished, without the destruction of family life, of social order, and of government itself. But there are personal laws and privileges which can be enjoyed without imposing general disabilities and incapacities upon the political status of others ; and there are personal laws and privileges the fundamental idea of which necessarily involves the imposition of such incapacities and disabilities. To the one class belong, among other laws and privileges, those which have their foundation in social peculiarities ; such as, for example, the exemption of native women of rank from appearance in the Civil Courts, of which we have lately heard so much in connection with the Bill ; special laws of marriage ; inheritance ; and so forth. To the same class belong the special provisions of the law relating to the punishments that may be inflicted on Europeans in this country and their right of appeal. The abolition of privileges of this kind may become unavoidable, from change of circumstances and in the course of social and political progress. But there is a general disposition to leave them alone. Occasionally, indeed, they are even now deliberately created. To the other class belong monopolies, sectarian tests, political privileges which depend on religious or political opinion, or on race or place of birth, and the like. To laws and privileges of this kind, which cannot be enjoyed without imposing political disabilities on other sections of the community, the spirit of our laws, both in England and in India, is opposed ; and the history of legislation in both countries is a history of their gradual abolition.

6. Again, an argument has been drawn against the principles of the Bill from the status of Christians in some Muhammadan and heathen countries, where they enjoy the privilege of being tried by consular tribunals. But this argument overlooks the essential reason of the thing. In the countries referred to, the laws and procedure are ordinarily interwoven with the established religion and social habits of the people ; and it is the vital and ineradicable difference between those laws and ours, and not any difference of race, that necessitates a departure from the ordinary jurisdiction.* British Consular Courts, however, are not always presided over by European British subjects, and there is nothing to prevent a native of India from being Consul. For similar reasons we claim for Englishmen certain ex-territorial rights in the Native States of India ; but this claim is occasionally relaxed when sufficient guarantees are given for the good administration of justice.

The reason for the privilege in both cases lies, not in race, but in the nature of the laws administered, the procedure followed and the punishments, sometimes barbarous, inflicted by the courts of the Native governments. The disqualification of Native Judges in British India also belongs, in its origin, to a time when Natives and Europeans were under radically different laws ; but now the laws and procedure are substantially the same for all, so that the essential reason of the disqualification ceases to be applicable.

7. But whatever force, greater or less, may be in these and similar objections on the score of race, the principle involved in the question has passed beyond the stage of discussion. For, as already observed, Parliament has in its wisdom decided that neither religion, nor race, nor colour nor place of birth,* shall of itself be a disqualification for office.

* See Phillimore's International Law, I. 362.

No doubt, in the course of legislation in India, the Imperial law has occasionally been forgotten, and provisions inconsistent with it have been allowed a place in Indian enactments. Such inadvertences may or may not escape unchallenged; but, when once a distinct issue has been raised in respect to them, it may be questioned whether it is competent to the Indian Legislature either to import into its laws or to retain on its Statute Book a disqualification which the Parliament of England has forbidden.

The Bill under consideration fulfils this condition and recognises no such disqualification.

8. The second condition I have noted raises the whole question of personal fitness and the means by which it is to be tested. The Royal Proclamation of 1858 declares it to be Her Majesty's will that, "so far as may be, Our Subjects, of whatever Race or Creed, be freely and impartially admitted to Offices in Our Service, the Duties of which they may be qualified by their Education, Ability and Integrity duly to discharge." While the outcry for privilege in respect of race, colour and creed deserves, and will I hope receive, no consideration whatsoever, it is impossible not to feel the deepest sympathy with the fears and anxieties of the European community lest powers should be given to persons who are not qualified to exercise them properly. Whether those fears and anxieties are well founded or not, they are thoroughly genuine and sincere, and should command the deepest respect. European British subjects are entitled to demand from the Legislature reasonable guarantees against the evils they anticipate.

9. The objections brought against the Bill in this respect seem to me to err chiefly in confusing the question of individual fitness with the question of race. Probably even the most thorough-going supporter of the Bill would admit that Englishmen as a class are better qualified to be judges of their countrymen than Natives are; and that in their case individual fitness may often be assumed when in the case of the Native it would have to be thoroughly tested. Conversely, in some departments of the administration, Europeans are rightly subjected to tests from which Natives are exempt. But the objections which have been taken to the Bill go far beyond a statement of that kind. Incapacities—moral, intellectual and social—are broadly attributed to Natives, on general grounds sometimes true, sometimes more or less plausible, occasionally entirely false; and it is inferred that all Natives fall under these disqualifications. For my own part, I take it to be not seriously disputable, and I sincerely believe, that most people who consider the matter dispassionately would admit that the gradations of individual capacity and incapacity for the exercise of the powers in question are not less complete and distinguishable among Natives than among Europeans; that there are Natives as competent to exercise judicial powers over European British subjects as any Englishman: and that the question is not to be summarily settled on the assumption of fitness or unfitness inherent in race.

10. The true, practical problem (and it is under present circumstances one of grave and anxious concern), is how to find sufficient and satisfactory tests of individual fitness in respect of education, ability and integrity. In the letter of the Punjab Government, No. 703, dated 5th August 1882, it was assumed that the Executive Government, which has really no interests distinct from those of its European subjects when properly understood, might be trusted, in this as in many other matters of not less importance, to discharge its functions with discretion; and that no one—whether European or Native—would ever be appointed a Justice of the Peace or a Magistrate of the 1st Class, or a Sessions Judge, who did not possess the requisite qualifications. Now, however, in view of the anxiety which recent discussions have evoked, it is plain that, before public confidence can be hoped for, legal checks must be imposed and statutory guarantees must be given that the persons to be invested with powers over European British subjects are duly qualified.

11. What those checks and guarantees should be is a question on which there is room for infinite variety of opinion. As already observed, however, it is not necessary they should be the same in the case of Europeans and of Natives; and, in the case of Natives, I do not suppose that any reasonable objections can be taken to those checks and guarantees at least which are provided in Section 2 of the Bill. It would require exceptionally strong arguments and evidence to produce a rational conviction that educated Natives who have risen to the position of Magistrate and Sessions Judge, who must therefore have exercised high judicial and administrative functions for many years, and who, by virtue of their office, have European officers and gentlemen under their orders, are unfit to be entrusted with judicial powers over European British subjects in such cases as Magistrates and Sessions Judges are ordinarily competent to try. It seems to me that no higher or more effective guarantees for intelligence and integrity can rationally be demanded or could possibly be supplied.

12. Probably, however, it is chiefly in respect to officers of lower standing than District Magistrates that real difficulty is felt; and here I do not think that the provisions of Section 1 of the Bill are satisfactory. That section introduces a purely service qualification which, whatever may be its value as a criterion of intellectual and moral fitness, operates as an exclusive test to disqualify, by a merely accidental distinction, whole classes who may be duly qualified in all essential respects. Such an arbitrary distinction is, in my opinion, open to all the objections of race disqualification, without any of its justifications.

* How largely the status of European British subjects depends on mere place of birth may be seen from the following illustration. A Parsee merchant has three sons, one born in Bombay, one at the Cape of Good Hope, the third in London. The family return to Bombay, where all three are educated. The third son, and his children and children's children, born in Bombay, are European British subjects, and may be made Justices of the Peace. So with the second son, though he has never been in Europe. The eldest is a native, and he and his descendants are disqualified.

13. It would, I am inclined to think, be more satisfactory to adopt, with respect to persons who are not European British subjects, some practical test of fitness, such as that which is afforded by the conscientious and efficient discharge of high judicial functions for a given time. Such a principle has already been accepted in determining the qualifications necessary for sundry high judicial offices; and it might, I think, be applied with advantage in the present case. I would therefore venture to suggest that, in place of Section I of the Bill, a section should be substituted to provide that the Governor-General in Council and Local Governments may appoint to be Justices of the Peace such persons as they think fit, who—

- (1) being European British subjects are invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the 1st class;
- (2) being British subjects other than European British subjects:
  - (a) have exercised the powers of a Magistrate of the 1st class for not less than five (or seven) years;
  - (b) are reported by the High Court of the Province to have exercised those powers satisfactorily; and
  - (c) satisfy such other conditions (including a thorough knowledge of English) as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, prescribe by rules made in that behalf.

14. The proposal to require the High Court to certify the judicial fitness of certain officers, before conferring on them the powers of a Justice of the Peace, might perhaps be considered as throwing on the High Court duties of an invidious kind. But it is in reality nothing more than the actual practice at present followed, at least in the Punjab, in conferring powers under the Criminal Procedure Code. Appointments to purely judicial offices under the Criminal Procedure Code are generally regulated by the recommendation of the Chief Court; and special powers under Section 30 of the Code, the powers detailed in Schedule IV., the powers of a Justice of the Peace, and the like, are never conferred upon any officer except on a report of the Chief Court that he is fit to exercise them.

15. As an additional guarantee and satisfaction to the European community, the jury system might, perhaps, be extended to the trial of all important cases affecting European British subjects. But there are several obvious objections to such a proposal. The question, indeed, belongs to quite a different category from the principle of the Bill, and no special remarks seem called for either in respect to it or to the other sections of the Bill, which appear to depend more or less on Sections 1 and 2.

16. Whatever be the form the Bill may finally assume, and whatever the view taken of this proposed modification or of that, I sincerely trust that the settlement arrived at will be a lasting one. If the question be decided on narrow grounds of prejudice or race disqualification, it is certain again and again to recur, each time probably with race animosities intensified. It is too much, perhaps, to hope that any settlement whatsoever can be effected without further ebullition of race antipathies. But the course which may be adopted will be satisfactory in the degree in which it may be calculated to prevent the re-awakening of such feelings in future; that is, in my opinion, in proportion as it excludes arbitrary disabilities of race, or class, or section of service, and imposes tests of individual fitness and qualification.

---

Opinion of Mr. Justice G. R. ELSMIE, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

I have little to add to the opinion given by me on the 31st May 1882, when this subject was first raised. I beg to refer to that opinion.

1. So far as the Punjab is concerned, I think I may safely say that no necessity whatever has as yet arisen for making the proposed changes in the law. We have no Native Civilian appointed by competition. We have one Native Assistant Commissioner, Muhammad Hayat Khan, C.S.I., who is not a member of the Civil Service. We have also four young officers appointed within the last two or three years, under the provisions of Chapter 3, Statute 33, Victoria. It will be a long time, presumably, before any of these officers is appointed to be a Magistrate of the District or a Sessions Judge.

2. From a Punjab standpoint, therefore, I should much prefer to wait till we see what style of work these officers turn out, and how they conduct themselves generally, before we make such an important change in the law.

3. As far as other provinces are concerned, their local officers are in a better position than I am to say whether the necessity for a change has arisen or not. I confess I still adhere to the view that all Magistrates of Districts should have equal powers. I think the prestige and authority of Magistrates of Districts should not be lowered, and if Natives are to be appointed to be Magistrates of Districts, I would not deny them the powers proposed to be granted. But this view is based on administrative grounds only, and I have no sympathy at present with the proposal so far as it is founded on a desire to remove so-called anomalies, or to remove disabilities from individual officers, or from a class of officers.

5. I still think that no practical inconvenience whatever is likely to be felt from withholding these powers from Native Sessions Judges.

6. On the general question of the agitation which has been caused throughout India, it is difficult to remain altogether silent, though perhaps opinions are hardly required on this point. Much of the excitement is probably due to an exaggerated idea of the practical effect of the proposed alterations. Nevertheless, the antipathy of non-official, and even of official Europeans, to such a measure, is not unnatural.

7. All persons acquainted with the administration of criminal justice in India are painfully aware how prone the more ignorant portion of the Native community is to bring false charges against persons to whom they bear a grudge, and to add to true charges against guilty persons false charges against the friends and relatives of those persons. False evidence is easily procured, as we all know, and as counsel daily tell us when arguing criminal appeals. In a country where these things prevail, is it to be wondered at if the European community fears the consequences of the removal of a single safeguard? Rightly or wrongly, European Judges are more trusted by their countrymen and even by Indians, than Native Judges.

8. Allegations, true or false, are very commonly made against the trustworthiness of Native Judges, and, in the Punjab, applications are by no means uncommon, by which the Superior Courts are moved to transfer criminal cases from Native to European Courts. I do not know that I have ever heard of an application for a converse transfer, viz., from a European to a Native Court.

9. Under these circumstances, it seems natural enough that, until the European community has had fuller opportunity of judging of the qualifications of the new Native Civilians, the proposed change should be met with strong and perhaps unreasoning opposition. Such changes must probably be eventually accepted. This is the view held by an ex-Punjab official of very high standing, and of great experience, now in England; but that gentleman, in writing to me some months ago, said he regarded the measure as at present premature, as a "child born out of due time."

---

Opinion of Mr. Justice D. G. BARKLEY, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,—dated 25th April 1883.

I doubt the advisability of repealing the last clause of Section 22 of the Code and substituting a new clause. Under the law as it stands, non-officials, if they are European British subjects, may be appointed Justices of the Peace, and Extra Assistant Commissioners, when European British subjects, have frequently been so appointed. The clause proposed to be substituted would render this impossible for the future, and it is not desirable, for the purpose of rendering a small number of persons who cannot now be appointed Justices of the Peace, eligible for that office to narrow the field from which selections can at present be made. One result of this method being adopted is to extend the apparent scope of the legislation now proposed, as was shewn by the discussion which took place in the Legislative Council about Cantonment Magistrates; and much of the excitement to which the Bill has given rise was probably due to an exaggerated notion having been formed of the extent of the changes proposed. It would probably meet all present requirements to add to the power now given by Section 22, power to appoint members of the Covenanted Civil Service, not being European British subjects, who are invested with the powers of a Magistrate of the 1st class, and who are of not less than seven years' standing in the service.

It can scarcely be necessary to deal with the case of members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules under Statute 33 Viet., C. 3, until the Criminal Procedure Code next comes under revision, as few of this class are as yet more than probationers, and there has been little opportunity of judging of their fitness for such powers.

What I would propose is, to go back to Section 2 of Act II of 1869, with such additional precautions as are rendered necessary by the extended jurisdiction given to Justices of the Peace who are also first class magistrates by the Criminal Procedure Code of 1872, and by the jealousy which, regret it as we may, is certain to be felt for many years to come of the exercise of criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects by natives of India, unless their qualifications and impartiality are above suspicion.

The proposed addition to Section 25 I do not think open to any reasonable objection, and had it stood alone, it would probably not have provoked any serious opposition. As the time has come when natives of India, who are Covenanted Civilians, have attained, or are about to attain, the position of Sessions Judges and District Magistrates, I would not advocate any compromise as to this part of the Bill. The Sessions Judge would try with a jury or assessors, and a European British subject could claim a mixed jury, or set of assessors under Section 451, as a European, not being a European British subject, or an American could do under Section 460, while the sentence which the Sessions Judge could pass would be much less in the one case than in the other.

Nothing in the remainder of the Bill calls for any comment.

It is perhaps scarcely within my province to refer to the agitation to which the Bill has given rise, but it is not at present possible to put it altogether out of sight in discussing the provisions of the Bill, and I may therefore be excused for suggesting that, as the changes proposed will chiefly affect the European community in Bengal and Assam, many of whom reside far from the head-quarters of districts, and as the speeches of the Hon'ble Mr. Evans and Sir Steuart Bayley in the Legislative Council shew that much of the opposition to the Bill is due to a not altogether unfounded fear that, in Bengal at least, it would expose Europeans in such positions to the danger of being brought before Native Magistrates on false charges, prompted by unscrupulous and wealthy enemies, the Bill should be carefully revised with a view to remove all reasonable apprehensions of this nature, and to make it clear that what is proposed is not to remove anomalies, in connection with the criminal jurisdiction now exercised over European British subjects, many of which the Bill, as framed, will not touch, but to make such changes in the law as are either now required, or are certain to be required at no distant date, by considerations of administrative convenience, and as can be made without impairing the confidence now entertained in the administration of justice. If this were made clear, much of the present opposition to the Bill would, I believe, be disarmed. Any changes that are resolved upon should, of course, be widely circulated in order to give those interested in the subject an opportunity of expressing their views, before legislation is attempted.

No. 609, dated 14th May, 1883.

From—F. C. CHANNING, Esq., Senior Secretary to Financial Commissioner, Punjab,

To—The Under-Secretary to Government of Punjab.

I am directed to reply to your letter No. 346, dated 27th March, in which you ask for the opinion of the Financial Commissioner on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure.

2. On the general question whether Natives belonging to the Covenanted Civil Service should be empowered to exercise jurisdiction over European British subjects, as raised by Sir Ashley Eden last year, Colonel Davies has already expressed a favourable opinion in reply to the inquiry addressed to him as Commissioner of the Jullundur Division (see his letter No. 1088 of 22nd May 1882). His grounds for holding this opinion were pretty much the same as those put forward by the supporters of this Bill in the recent discussion in the Legislative Council. It is unnecessary for Colonel Davies to re-state these at any length. They will be found very fully and forcibly set forth in the speeches of the Hon'ble Mr. Quinton and the Hon'ble Mr. Hunter. The main ground on which the proposed change in the law is based is the administrative inconvenience that will result from the continuance of the present restriction on the powers of Native Covenanted Civilian, many of whom are now arriving at the positions of Magistrates of Districts and Sessions Judges.

The question is one of practical politics; there are, so far as Colonel Davies can see, no rights involved in its decision, and it should be therefore decided on grounds of expediency alone.

3. As to the Bill itself, the question Colonel Davies thinks is whether it does not go beyond the necessities of the case, and, for the sake of asserting a broad principle, is not likely to cause some practical inconvenience.

In the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill, it is explained that the Government of India has decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code at once and completely every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race distinctions. With reference to this, Colonel Davies would point out that this object is partly secured by taking away from Local Governments the power they have hitherto had, and have largely availed themselves of, of appointing the European members of the Uncovenanted Civil Service to the office of Justice of the Peace. He refers to the Extra Assistant Commissioners of the Punjab, and the Deputy Magistrates of the North-Western Provinces and Bengal. This was a very useful power, and it is very doubtful if, for the sake of symmetry alone, it should have been taken away. In this Province, and probably in the other Provinces named above, this change in the law will cause practical inconvenience in the future.

4. The next question is whether the Bill does not go too far in the opposite direction, and whether the object in view would not be sufficiently obtained by so amending Section 25 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as to make all Sessions Judges and District Magistrates ex-officio Justices of the Peace. There is no doubt, Colonel Davies thinks, that so far as the administrative difficulty is concerned, a change in the law to this extent would remove it completely for many years to come; and in the face of the strong opposition made by the European community in this country to the proposed changes in the law, it seems unwise to go any further than is immediately necessary.

5. The claim that the proposed changes will lead to the non-efficient administration of justice, is one that cannot, Colonel Davies thinks, be sustained. In the Punjab certainly, and probably throughout India, the general level of judicial ability is, and will for many years be, much higher among the European than among the Native Magistrates, and the number of the latter whom the Bill would invest with powers over European British subjects is, and must for many years to come be, very small. There are no Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service in this province, and only four appointments have, as yet, been made to the Native Civil Service under the statutory rules. In regard to these latter the objection might fairly be urged that their knowledge of the habits and mode of thinking and acting of Europeans is not so intimate as to enable them "to put themselves in the place of the accused," and thus be fully competent to judge of the probability or improbability of his having committed the offence with which he is charged.

6. For these reasons Colonel Davies is of opinion that the Bill, in aiming at symmetry, unnecessarily deprives the Government of the services of a class of men who are peculiarly fitted to try Europeans; and, on the other hand, proposes to give this power to a class who are not so well fitted for this work. On the whole, he thinks that the only change that need now be made in the law is the one he has suggested above—that which is made by Section 2 of this Bill. An alteration of the law to this extent he considers to be absolutely necessary; apart from administrative inconvenience it would, for obvious reasons, be quite intolerable if the Native Magistrate of the District or Sessions Judge were not to have powers which were possessed by men serving under his orders.

No. 1014, dated 20th April, 1883.

From—J. D. TREMLETT, Esq., Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Delhi Division,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

In reply to your No. 846, dated 27th March 1883, calling for a report on the Bill for amending the Criminal Procedure Code, I have the honour to submit the following remarks.

2. The public press has lately been so saturated with writing on the matter, that I can say nothing which will not have come under your notice already, and my observations will, therefore, only have so much value as showing the impression all this agitation of the question has made on my own mind, and I think, I may assume, I belong to a very large class of Anglo-Indian officials, whose great desire is that the Government may be conducted on such lines as will best promote the dignity and security of the Queen's rule in India. Believing, as I do, in the maxim that "righteousness exalteth a nation," if I considered the Bill called for in the interests of fairness and justice towards Her Majesty's Native subjects, I should, I presume, regard it desirable in the true interests of the Crown to persevere, trusting that, in the long run, all sides would come round to see the desirability and honesty of the measure.

3. To the best of my judgment, however, the Bill, if it have any effect at all, will injure the European community by changing the personnel of the Courts having jurisdiction for the worse, instead of for the better, while conferring on the Native community at large absolutely no advantage at all. I consider it will injure the European community, because the most that can be said for the Native officials on whom it is proposed to confer this jurisdiction is, that it may be hoped or anticipated, that they will display the patient fairness and love of justice with which the long growth of Christianity and British national life has animated nearly every English Judge and Magistrate. But, surely, it is not wise to risk depraving the character of a tribunal by adding to its number members who can only be hoped not to be inferior to those already comprised in it, especially when what is known of the class from which these new members are to come scarcely favours the probability of their possessing these particular excellencies. If it could be said that, owing to the scarcity of European Magistrates, unless Native ones were qualified, there would be a difficulty in repressing crime by Europeans, it would be different; but if this time ever comes at all, it is not likely to be in our lifetime, and the next generation can, and will, I suppose, legislate for themselves. It is, I believe, the experience of all controlling Courts that Natives themselves constantly wish their cases withdrawn from Native Judges and sent to European ones, and never, so far as I know, the other way: thus showing clearly their opinion of the relative worth of the two classes of officers: especially is this the case in race matters. How seldom does a Hindu think he will get fair unbiased justice from a Muhammadan officer in any point in which Hindus and Muhammadans are opposed to each other as such, and vice versa? While the Anglo-Bengali press has shown the animosity against Europeans which animates the class from which, unfortunately, most Native Civilians come, is not less than that which divides Hindus and Mussulmans. For my own part, did the Bill restrict the powers proposed to be given to Sikh or frontier Muhammadan gentlemen, I do not think the evil would be nearly so great; but it seems to me that it is to be over-sanguine to anticipate that Natives of India at large, just because they have spent a few years in England, or belong to distinguished families, may be trusted to judge Europeans fairly and dispassionately as English Magistrates at least strive to do.

4. As to the claims of the Bill as removing anomalies, were it true that the passing of this Act left absolutely no difference between one class and another, it would certainly have the not inconsiderable merit of finality. But the very Act leaves the European triable still only by a limited number of Courts, and those mostly with more limited powers than they possess over Natives; so that the privilege of the prisoner to be tried only by special Courts would remain just as before, and it would only be the privilege of the official to sit in that Court which would be modified. But it seems to me public servants are employed, not out of regard to their own feelings, but for the discharge of such duties as the Government thinks they are most fitted for; and Native officials, I think, may be employed more usefully by their employers than in being set to try foreigners. I do not think, too, we ought to lose sight of the risk of scenes occurring in Court very discreditably to us as rulers, should European roughs be brought before Native officers from the Lower Provinces.

5. Holding, therefore, as I do, that the Bill is not called for in the interests of justice, it seems to me highly unwise to persevere with it in face of the bitter opposition it has met with from the European community in all parts of India. Even assuming they are prejudiced and mistaken, their feelings are entitled to attention. Races cannot suddenly be made equal by legislation, and mistaken attempts to do so are certain to stir up that very race animosity and ill-will which it is most desirable, in the interests of Europeans and Natives alike, should abate and gradually die out.

No. 76, dated 16th April, 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COLONEL L. J. H. GREY, C.S.I., Commissioner and Superintendent, Hissar Division,
To—The Officiating Under-Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

Your No. 346, dated 27th March 1883, calls for my opinion on the question of the exercise of jurisdiction by Native Magistrates over European British subjects.

2. I am averse to the proposal, on the grounds stated in a recent letter to the Times by Sir FitzJames Stephen, which are doubtless sufficiently notorious not to require recapitulation.

3. The course I should recommend is that suggested by the Anjuman-i-Punjab in its issues of the 7th, 14th and 21st March, viz., that an accused person, whether a Native of the United Kingdom or of India, should have the right to claim trial by a Judge of his own country.

No. 200, dated 14th April, 1883.

From—J. W. MACNABB, Esq., Commissioner and Superintendent, Umballa Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 346, dated 27th ultimo.

2. There can be, I think, no doubt that the great majority of the Muhammadans in Hindustan would be glad if the English left the country.

3. So also would the Sikhs as a body. Kuka-ism is a standing witness of this feeling. The hope of a Khalsa Raj is what attracts to Kuka-ism and binds the converts together.

4. A similar feeling doubtless exists wherever in Hindustan there are strong nationalities.

5. The restless classes are distinctly disloyal all over the country. It is not that they want a larger share in managing their own affairs;—they want to get rid of us altogether.

6. To judge from the native newspapers, a large class of those who read them must be disloyal also.

7. The money-lenders and shop-keepers I believe to be loyal from self-interest.

8. So are the more intelligent of minor chiefs, who fear their stronger neighbours.

9. The facts being, to the best of my belief, as above stated, it seems to me quite wrong to ignore the further fact that we are conquerors in a conquered country—placed here by Providence for the good of that country; but none the less bound to maintain ourselves in the country till it is made clear to us that we are doing evil to the country, and not only so, but that that evil is greater than the good to the British nation at large.

10. And we can only maintain ourselves in the country, for the next 50 years at least, by acting as conquerors always have to do,—by acting as a ruling race, maintaining the prestige of the same, and keeping the executive strictly in our own hands.

11. I always deplored greatly the opening of the Covenanted Civil Service to Natives, and I maintain that having made this one great mistake is not the least ground for making the second mistake of making Natives Justices of the Peace, merely because it is the logical sequence of the first mistake.

12. I think there is great benefit to be derived from nominating Natives to the Civil Service, or giving them commissions in the army, provided it be formally laid down and thoroughly understood that they are never to hold charge of Districts or Divisions, or to command regiments.

13. When it comes to their turn for such office, let them retire if they dislike staying, or look for promotion in the judicial line only.

14. Some few may be fitted for High Court Judges; sitting on the same Bench with English Judges, who should be in a large majority, will keep them honest; but I very much doubt for many a year to come, if any but a few exceptional Natives are fit to sit alone as Sessions Judges. I am sure their fellow-countrymen will not think so.

15. If the Natives prefer, as we know they do, to have their cases sent to the court of the youngest "sahib" six months out from England, to having them tried by grey-bearded Native Judicial Assistants, can we suppose that the people of the country will have the same confidence in a Native Sessions Judge as in an English one?

16. But to return to the more immediate question, and to look at it from a different point of view, I do not believe that there has been the slightest desire on the part of the Magistrates of the Punjab to have the powers of a Justice of the Peace. Such an idea would never enter into their heads: many of them would distinctly shrink from the responsibility of using such powers.

17. The dignity of the title, however, would have great attractions, and pressure and importunity would always be at work to extend the numbers of those selected for the honour.

18. Further, I think, that men would eventually get the power to whom it would be distinctly dangerous to entrust it in out-lying parts of the country.

19. Even with men of the best intentions, the feeling of caste is very strong (one sees it frequently in cases where Brahmins are concerned). It is not easy even for the educated European gentleman to hold the balance in an utterly dispassionate manner. A desire to be impartial often leads to injustice to men of one's own race.

20. If this is so, how much more difficult for the unaccustomed Native, surrounded by Native opinion, which is his life, or, if of a weak disposition, fearful of his European superiors, to be absolutely impartial in trying an accused who is, and whom he feels to be, however our legislation may deny it, of a ruling as well as an alien race.

21. Holding the above views, I have no hesitation in recording my opinion against giving Natives criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects.

No. 867, dated 19th April, 1883.

From—COLONEL G. GORDON YOUNG, Commissioner and Superintendent, Jullundur Division,

To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

In reply to your No. 346, dated 27th March, enclosing, for opinion, a copy of a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, I have the honour to remark that, had this question been put three months ago before the excitement arose on this subject, I might have been disposed to concur in the reasons given for amending the Code as logical and sufficient; and it is possible, I think, that I should not have foreseen that the grant of the powers proposed to be conferred on a very small and select number of civil servants at the present moment would be likely to call forth the strong feeling and animosities which have been displayed since the introduction of the Bill into Council.

2. But, in regarding the legislation proposed now, I think it is impossible to overlook what has passed, or to ignore the spirit it has evoked; nor am I prepared to say that the spirit of antagonism to the Bill has not in my opinion a certain measure of reason in it.

3. I will not attempt to repeat or to epitomise what has been said over and over again by the Press, or at meetings of indignant Englishmen, and which has often, in the heat of the moment, exceeded all legitimate bounds; but content myself with saying that I think no sufficient reason has been adduced for introducing the measure. I do not think our Native fellow-subjects desired the concessions proposed, or felt they had any grievance on the score of absence of jurisdiction over European British subjects; though now that it has, so to speak, been offered them, and the vernacular press have taken up the question as a burning one, on the one hand indicating it as a wrong that the jurisdiction has not hitherto been conferred, while on the other it has been declared at indignation meetings that Natives are not fit to exercise such powers,—they are no doubt beginning to desire what the non-official English community have shown themselves as greatly opposed to. This may be human nature, but it is not an argument for granting the powers proposed.

4. A very intelligent Native Judge to whom I spoke on the subject assured me that he and his confrères were very averse from having anything to do with even civil cases in which Europeans are mixed up; as, whatever decision was come to, one class or the other would always impute unworthy motives: the European, if worsted, thinking he had been dealt with unfairly because the Judge was a Native; while, if the contrary were the result, the Natives would certainly consider the Judge had given way to fear of European displeasure and its possible influence on his own prospects.

5. In criminal cases there will always be a double risk of this feeling affecting the mind of the Native Judge, and in most cases there will be danger of his passing inadequate sentences.

6. Nor can I think there is any immediate probability of the efficiency of the administration being impaired, for want of a sufficient number of Justices of the Peace who are European British subjects to deal with cases in which their countrymen may be involved in the Criminal Court.

7. In my opinion, then, though the objections which have been put forward have been overstated, and the argument that it is an anomaly that while natives of India are held competent to discharge the highest judicial functions, they should not be permitted to exercise jurisdiction on the criminal side over Europeans, is difficult to meet or to deny, except by arguments founded on sentiments and race prejudices, I consider the proposed legislation to have been a mistake, and deplore that it was ever projected.

8. I do not understand that my opinion is invited on the delicate and difficult question of whether, on grounds of general policy, any modifications are desirable tending to allay the feeling of irritation which the Bill has produced; but I may perhaps be allowed to state that, in my humble judgment, the proposal I have somewhere seen, that the right might be conceded to Europeans to claim to be tried by one of their own countrymen, if they desired, is worth consideration, and would go far towards reconciling both parties in what has now become a really formidably acrimonious dispute.

From—COLONEL C. A. McMAHON, Commissioner and Superintendent, Amritsar Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 316, dated the 27th March.

2. When the Draft Bill was originally sent to me for an opinion, under cover of your No. 441, dated the 12th May 1882, my reply was to the effect that, looking at the matter from a purely theoretical point of view, I saw "no reason why a native of India who, by his education and personal qualifications, had been considered a suitable person for appointment to the Covenanted Civil Service, should not be invested with all the magisterial powers with which an English member of the Covenanted Civil Service, holding a similar official position, would be invested."

3. I went on to point out that I did not think the members of the Punjab Uncovenanted Service were prepared for any alteration of the existing rule. "There are some," I added, "who, were they invested with jurisdiction over Europeans, would, with the idea of courting popularity, be unduly lenient in cases of Europeans; and there are others who might be glad of the opportunity of being harsh and severe where Europeans were concerned."

4. The latter element, which undoubtedly exists, and in some quarters where Government might perhaps least expect to find it, is the side of the question which has taken so powerful a hold on the non-official English residents in the country, in connection with the known proneness of Natives to institute, or to instigate the institution of, false suits and prosecutions against persons for whom they bear ill-will or spite.

5. It may be said that the proposed change in the law would not lead to any greater facilities for the institution of false and malicious complaints against Europeans than at present. Undoubtedly it would not do so at first; but if, hereafter, the investment of Native Magistrates with jurisdiction over Europeans became at all general, Natives would probably have as little hesitation in bringing, or in instigating the institution of false charges against Europeans as they at present have in bringing them against the natives of India, and the matter thus has a serious practical aspect from the non-official Englishman's point of view, and for Government, if we regard the ulterior political consequences.

6. I think it is desirable that Natives, when raised to the position of District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, should have the same power as Englishmen filling those offices; and I would therefore retain section 2 of the Bill; but, considering the agitation which is going on and the extreme undesirableness of aggravating the race prejudices which have increased so much since the subject has been under public discussion, I seriously advocate the omission of the provisions contained in section 1 from the Bill.

7. Probably this compromise would be accepted by all, and the heated feelings now prevailing would quiet down.

8. Were section 2 to become law, the principle contended for would be asserted, and its extension hereafter, if thought desirable, would be comparatively easy; whilst the provisions of section 2 are in themselves so reasonable that no great cry would be raised over them.

9. If the propriety of appointing natives of the country to the position of District Officers be admitted, it would be difficult to raise an objection to their being invested with the full powers of a Magistrate over all classes.

10. On the other hand, the provisions of section 1 are of doubtful expediency, and, at any rate, the benefits to be gained by their becoming law are not sufficiently great to make it worth while to incur the political inconveniences arising from the present agitation and the growth of race animosity.

11. Section 1, it must be remembered, embraces a number of men who have not been out of India, and who have little real knowledge of English character, and who, consequently, would be in a very bad position for estimating aright the probabilities of a case in which an Englishman is concerned. Having regard to the general character of Native evidence, a Magistrate has to qualify the evidence a good deal by the probabilities of the case, if he wishes to avoid doing great injustice in some cases.

12. It is this principle that lies at the root of our jury system. If we go back to the origin of that system, we find that men were summoned from the neighbourhood of the parties, not so much to come to a judgment on the evidence formally put before them as to bring their local knowledge to bear on the probabilities of the case.

13. This element will be wanting in Native Magistrates, especially in those who have not received an education in England. The state of morality in India is much lower than in England, and, as men judge of others by themselves, Natives believe readily imputations against Europeans that we ourselves would only credit on extremely strong evidence.

14. Another point seems to me deserving of consideration. In times of political excitement, it might be inconvenient to Government to find Englishmen here and there over the country "run in" before Native Magistrates on false charges of rape, abduction, and the like. Whatever the result of the trials might be, the general Native public would believe the charges to be true, and a prejudice against the ruling class would be created.

15. Our prestige and the knowledge that false charges against Europeans would be tried by English gentlemen, and might lead to unpleasant results to those who brought them, keep all such cases out of Court at present; but, were the number of Natives invested with jurisdiction over Europeans to become great, I am not sure that this immunity would continue.

No. 1175, dated 20th April, 1883.

From—COLONEL C. C. MINCHIN, Commissioner and Superintendent, Lahore Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

In acknowledging the receipt of your letter No. 346, dated 27th ultimo, forwarding, for opinion, copy of a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1882, I have the honour to state that in my opinion it is not so much the Bill as the Statement of Objects and Reasons which has given rise to the opposition to this measure, as there is but little in the Bill itself to object to.

2. In the abstract no one would object to the very reasonable proposal that Sessions Judges and District Magistrates should be ex-officio Justices of the Peace, or even that members of the Native Civil Service should be so appointed, any more than they object to a Parsee Magistrate trying members of the Salvation Army in Bombay.

3. But the use of the term "anomalous," and the statement "that the Government of India has decided to settle the question of jurisdiction over European British subjects in such a way as to remove from the Code at once and completely every judicial disqualification which is based on race distinction," was so framed as needlessly to provoke the fears of the entire European population throughout India.

4. If Mr. Ilbert had known how to gild his pill, the Bill would have been passed almost unnoticed; but in the face of the strong opposition that has been roused I think it would be wise to alter the Bill by striking out of the first section clause b—members of the Native Civil Service constituted by the rules under the Statute 33, Vic. Cap. 3—and amending the Statement of Objects and Reasons so as to represent the views of the Government without wounding the susceptibilities of so influential a section of the public, if it is not now too late.

No. 1554, dated 14th April, 1883.

From—H. E. PERKINS, Esq., Commissioner and Superintendent, Rawalpindi Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 346, dated 27th ultimo, requesting an expression of my opinion on the proposed Bill for amending the Code of Criminal Procedure.

2. It is difficult to add any new argument to the many which have been brought forward on one or the other side regarding this measure; but I fear I must express my agreement with the opponents of it. I think that the large majority of Natives do not desire it, and that, if passed, it will bring about unseemly scenes in Courts, and discreditable outbursts of wrath from the English loafer, who is the person chiefly likely in the Punjab to come before the Native Magistrates. I have seen such persons barely able to restrain their tempers even when fined, or otherwise dealt with, by an English Deputy Commissioner; and in the presence of a Native Magistrate they would certainly make no attempts to keep within bounds. I see not why we should run the risk of collision, when there is really no need to incur that risk.

3. It is unfortunately impossible to say that this is not a question of race against race. We should not have heard of it, unless a Native Member of the Viceroy's Legislative Council had stirred up the subject, and obtained a promise that it should be reconsidered. This reconsideration would not have taken place so soon as it has occurred, but for the memorandum written by a Native Civil Servant and forwarded by the late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. It is, and must essentially remain, a race question.

4. Another fallacy which I think needs exposure is, that only picked men will be entrusted with powers over English men and English women. I regret to demur to this proposition. The men who will be the first to receive the powers, if the Bill be passed, will be certainly those who have passed examinations, but I deny that they are truly picked men: many of them come from the lower orders of society, and are ignorant of true gentlemanly feeling, having all the disqualifications of European sycophants, and nouveau riches, without the counter-balancing knowledge of English life and feeling possessed by the humblest Englishman. I should not myself object to be tried by many a Native—e.g., Agha Kalbiabid, lately of Amritsar, Rai Bahadar Hukim Chand, or others who could be named. Their long official experience, coupled with a high natural tone of thought, would command always respect: but to take a smart youngster from a college, and in a couple of years to make him rule over Englishmen, will simply flatter that uninstructed pride which he already suffers from, and must, I think, end in political disaster.

5. I would wish to warn Government against the exasperation which must animate our Native friends if a number of them receive these powers only to have them withdrawn, and that they will have to be so withdrawn is, to my mind, quite certain, in no small number of instances, unless Magistrates of Districts contrive to outwit the law by keeping such "exceptionally difficult cases" as the Law Member admits them to be, in their own hands for many a year yet, till we have really succeeded in training our Native fellow-subjects into a less offensive style of thinking and writing than they now affect.

No. 537, dated 7th May, 1883.

From—COLONEL E. P. GURDON, Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 346 of the 27th March 1883, calling for opinion on the proposed amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code, Act X of 1882, as set forth in the Bill introduced into the Legislative Council by the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert.

2. Under the Bill in question, all Native Covenanted Civilians appointed by the competitive system in England, members of the new Native Civil Service appointed under 33 Victoria, cap. 3, Uncovenanted District Judges who may happen to be Natives, Native Uncovenanted Assistant Commissioners in the Non-Regulation Provinces, and Native Cantonment Magistrates, if any are hereafter appointed, will become eligible for appointment as Justices of the Peace.

3. The Bill, if passed into law, will also disqualify, on the other hand, all Europeans not of the Covenanted Civil Service of India, or who are not Assistant Commissioners or Cantonment Magistrates, from being eligible for the office of Justice of the Peace and from trying or committing for trial European British subjects.

4. The proposed Bill will no doubt remove some manifest anomalies and apparently unsymmetrical features in the present existing legislative enactment. The question, however, arises whether the removal of the apparent anomaly is actually necessary, required by the people themselves, and desirable both in a judicial and a political point of view; and in judging of this question the rights and interests of Her Majesty's European, equally with her Native, subjects must be borne in mind.

5. Hitherto the European British subjects' privileges or quasi-privileges have been most jealously protected.

Indeed, prior to the enactment of 53 George III, criminal acts on the part of European British subjects were cognizable alone by Her Majesty's Supreme Courts established by Royal Charter at the three presidency towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay.

As, however, our territories increased, such circumscribed powers were found obviously most inconvenient, if not fraught with actual injustice to the people of the country, who could not be expected for petty offences to undertake long and expensive journeys to the Presidency capitals.

Enactment 53 of George III enabled the appointment of Justices of the Peace from among the Covenanted Civil Service of India "or other British" inhabitants, and from that time to the present, in practice, all members of the Covenanted Civil Service, European Military Officers in Civil employ in the newly acquired, or so termed "Non-Regulation Provinces," and Uncovenanted Civil Officers, being themselves Europeans, have been generally appointed Justices of the Peace, wherever such officials have been considered necessary.

6. In addition to the above exclusion of the Native element "punct simple," from the classes from which Justices of the Peace (save and except in the presidency towns) could be selected, the European British subject has enjoyed other and important distinctive race privileges, e. g., in the Mofussil a Magistrate of the 1st class, himself a European British subject, can only sentence a European to three months' imprisonment or to a fine of 1,000 rupees, while the Sessions Judge's Court can only sentence a European to a year's imprisonment and fine.

The same officials, Magistrate of the 1st class and Sessions Judge, respectively, can, on the other hand, sentence a native of India to two years' imprisonment and fine and to transportation for life, including imprisonment for any term and fine, and may even, subject to confirmation by the High Court, sentence to the extreme penalty that the law permits.

7. The new Bill, while therefore removing an important anomaly in the shape of an unsymmetrical and "theoretically" unjust race distinction (proceeding on the generally approved and received axiom that "all men are equal before the law"), will not remove still greater anomalies, savouring far more largely of race privileges and distinctions, such as the inequality of punishments which can be meted out to the European and Native respectively, and which prima facie would seem to be far greater grievances to the Native community, naturally jealous of all favours or exceptions towards an alien and governing race.

8. We English are not here in India by the will or pleasure of the people of the country,—unpleasant though it may be to say so,—we virtually have acquired our territory by the sword, and hold it partly by that and partly by that prestige which the conquering race more or less must possess and retain, until the foundations of our power are sapped and destroyed either by internal treason and revolt, or by the action of a foreign power. This power and prestige necessarily carry with them certain privileges which cannot be abdicated without weakening the political, which is largely maintained by prestige and tradition rather than by actual force of arms.

9. The representatives of all conquering races have ever enjoyed some distinctive race or class privileges, as the governing power, especially where rule has been exercised over nations differing so essentially (taking them in an ethnical point of view) as regards moral character.

10. It is not strange or inconsistent, therefore, I think, that the European should retain certain privileges as belonging to the governing race.

11. As a Christian people we are distasteful to both Hindu and Muhammadan, and certainly cannot in any way be said to rule by the will and affections of the people. India has ever been held by conquerors more or less, and our rule is acquiesced in as yet because internal dissensions and want of power to combine prevents the people from turning us out; but to believe that our rule and presence among them is loved is a most absurd fallacy. We officials do not see the Natives in their true guise, nor can we gauge their real feelings, as they generally appear before us with more or less interested motives, and the large amount of flattery and sycophancy that one meets with requires to have a great deal of chaff separated from it before the real amount of loyalty can be gauged.

12. Then, again, there is the great and all powerful factor in the matter, difference of religion, which can never be set aside in judging of a Native's feeling towards us. There is the proud and unsympathetic nature of our race again which keeps us apart.

13. The fact of our belonging to the conquering race, or national peculiarities of character so diametrically opposite in every possible sense to the oriental temperament, added to differences of religion, all combine to prevent any real love for us or genuine heart loyalty, however much lip homage we may receive.

14. Holding the above opinions strongly, and having seen and mixed a great deal with Natives during some 31 years and more of varied experience throughout India, I cannot bring myself to look with unconcern on the proposed change in the Procedure Code.

15. The very great anxiety shown by the Native community for this favour about to be bestowed upon them makes one all the more suspicious that the privilege is valued more to be able to gratify race jealousy and to enable the Native to wipe off a long score of natural grievances, and vent their spite in lording it over the white man, rather than for the sake of an anomaly or deprivation of a "privilege," which ought not really to "benefit" the Native, unless to gratify spite.

16. Then, again, it has to be considered whether the Native, be he however well educated, can ever delicately and impartially administer justice towards the white man and the Christian, where his own fellow-countryman is the complaining party? Can he estimate fairly and appreciate all his motives and make allowances for peculiar idiosyncrasies?

17. True, there is the Appellate Sessions or High Court, as the case may be, not far distant, but an immense amount of injustice in the mean while might be done.

An Englishman's liberty is his birthright, and it may almost be held that it is the birthright of the European to be tried by his "peers" or his fellow-countrymen and co-religionists rather than by the Hindu and Muhammadan, from whom few Englishmen out of the narrow official pale would ever confidently look for strict and impartial justice, especially in a country where perjury and false evidence reigns so uncontrolled as it does in India.

18. To enable justice to be done to an European arraigned before a Criminal Court, his character and feelings, foibles, temptations, want of acquaintance with the language or with the manners of the people, require to be understood. A mere pass examination test, secured perhaps by a system of cramming, and two or three years' residence in Europe by natives of India, who must always remain foreigners to us, actuated as they are by religious and race prejudice, can hardly qualify them to judge delicate questions as to criminal intentions on the part of the white man and the Christian, especially where the Native Judge's fellow-countryman is the accusing party and the same Native Judge's fellow-countrymen, who so seldom even on oath speak the truth, the witnesses against the European.

19. There can be no doubt further that much European capital has been embarked in the country (such as tea planting, indigo factories, coffee planting, jute works, and numerous other industries) useful to both India and to England on the faith, and, almost it may be said implied, promise of protection by the laws and Government of the country.

20. An Englishman has always regarded it as his birthright to be tried by his own countrymen, and this feeling has been fostered by the Legislature throughout a long series of years, stretching back almost 90 years (I go back to 33 George III, Chapter 52). During this long series of years English capital and enterprise has slowly, but surely, been poured into the country. Railways traverse the length and breadth of the land, industries tending to develop largely the resources of the country have been set a-going and brought to success. All these works have brought about or produced a large non-official European community resident in the interior of the country and often far removed from English legal assistance, or from the eyes of the Press, which an Englishman also justly regards as one of the most able guardians of his liberty and right; to make over therefore large bodies of English settlers to the possible jurisdiction of non-Christian Judges and Magistrates being ex-officio Justices of the Peace, as proposed by the new Bill, would be, I think, a measure almost amounting to a breach of faith, or of that guarantee for protection virtually given by our very laws themselves in consideration for which an enormous amount of European capital and industrial enterprise has been sunk in the country.

22. Anomaly although it be, I maintain politically it is expedient, nay, I may almost say, imperatively necessary, for our political interests in India, that the privilege of being tried by his fellow-countrymen and co-religionists should be retained by European British subjects, and I feel confident that if a contrary course be pursued the consequences will be disastrous, set aside alone the amount of bad feeling that this measure has provoked almost to a degree that existed in 1857.

23. I beg to submit copies of opinion of all the Deputy Commissioners in this Division, who, it will be perceived, are all strongly against the Bill, and I would commend to attention especially Mr. Gladstone's letter which puts the whole case very forcibly and temperately.

24. Having been asked for my opinion, I trust I shall be pardoned for expressing myself according to my honest heart-left conviction.

---

No. 280, dated 17th April, 1883.

From—E. O'BRIEN, Esq., Deputy Commissioner, Mooltan,

To—The Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division.

In reply to your Circular 87, dated 13th April, I have the honour to say that I am entirely opposed to the principle of the Bill for the amendment of the Criminal Procedure. The arguments for and against the Bill have been so thoroughly discussed, that it is not necessary for me to give any general reason for my opinion.

2. As regards the parts of the Punjab which I know, I am convinced that there is no wish even among Natives for the proposed amendment, and that the powers if conferred would be irksome to the recipients. It is in the experience of every Punjab European officer, who distributes the daily judicial work, that numerous petitioners ask him to hear their cases himself rather than send them to a Native Magistrate, and if he does not hear them himself to send them to another sâhib.

Some of these applications doubtless arise from flattery, and some from a wish to remove the case from a local officer, such as a Tahsildâr, who knows the facts of the case too well to suit the applicant. Still by far the greater number come from the greater confidence in the European; and I do not think that a Punjabi would have more confidence in the Native Magistrate, because he came within any of the four classes to whom under the Bill powers can be given. I admit that European Judicial Officers often make mistakes from their ignorance of the people, still they have the confidence of the people in a manner which the Native officers have not.

---

No. 109, dated 19th April, 1883.

From—MAJOR R. BARTHOLOMEW, Deputy Commissioner, Jhang.

To—The Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division.

In reply to your No. 87 of 13th instant, I would beg to state that in my opinion the benefit to be derived from a change in the law would be infinitesimal, while the evil would be very great.

The European unofficial community have shewn clearly enough what they think of the change, and my sympathies have been from the first mention of the proposed change with them.

Europeans out here are a privileged race, the race which has conquered India, and to subject them in up-country stations, where Europeans are few, to Native Magistrates, would, in my opinion, lower the estimation in which our race is at present held by the Native population. I do not think that Native Judges have the sympathy with Europeans or the knowledge of their character and motives, which would make it safe, away from the great cities, to entrust them with the power of judging them, while that Native Judges should judge our ladies and women would be nothing less than a scandal.

The sole motive for the change seems to be the injured amour propre of Mr. Gupta, and others like him, and is certainly not sufficient to warrant a change in the law which is bitterly hated by the whole European community.

---

No. 253, dated 16th April, 1883.

From—MAJOR C. McNEIL, Deputy Commissioner, Montgomery.

To—The Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division.

In reply to his Circular No. 87, dated 13th instant, has the honour to give the opinion that the amendment referred to is one of the greatest mistakes the Government of India ever contemplated, indeed about the greatest it could contemplate. Even were it absolutely certain that the power would never be entrusted to any one not entirely fitted to exercise it, and were it also equally certain that it would never be abused by any one so entrusted with it, still it is a great political mistake to do anything which tends to increase the want of cordiality which exists between the two races on the one hand and to decrease the moral ascendancy of the European on the other. That there is no real good feeling between the races is certain, however little it may appear to the casual observer, and no one, who sees below the surface, can be ignorant of it, and the new amendment will not only intensify this ill-will enormously, but will greatly encourage the Natives to give it expression, while it will render the European quicker to retaliate.

If Government wishes to have to reconquer the country again, it could not well find a better way to begin going about it. Government and its advisers never see the Natives as they really are. They see nothing but obsequious sycophants: civil officers seldom see them in their real colours. Let Government enquire from non-official Europeans what the Native spirit really is towards Europeans, and it will soon cease to believe in the cant that is talked about Native loyalty. We hold the country by force and prestige, but chiefly by the latter, and unless we are ready to substitute force for prestige, it is simply suicidal to decrease that prestige, yet the proposed amendment is better calculated to decrease it than anything else which could be devised. But if the outcry which the proposal has raised among the non-official European population in India does not open the eyes of the Government to the madness of the contemplated measure, no advice will be of any avail. The proverb is a true one quem Deus.

No. 145, dated 26th April, 1883.

From—C. E. GLADSTONE, Esq., Deputy Commissioner, Muzaffargarh,
To—The Commissioner and Superintendent, Mooltan Division.

With reference to your Circular No. 87, dated 13th April 1883, I have the honour to reply that the only knowledge I have on the subject is that obtained by my stay in the Kangra District, from September 1881 till the end of May 1882. During that time I saw a great deal of the planters of the valley, in fact, contemplating a longer stay in the district, I made a point of learning all I could of them. My opinion is that the non-official Englishman must be accepted with all his faults, if English capital is to be induced to stay in the country, and that if Kangra is a specimen of the Punjab, it would be impracticable to act on Mr. Ilbert's Bill. Of course if English capital is not required, there would be no great objection to the planters being given to understand that they must submit or leave the country. But my opinion is that as long as the non-official Englishman is a fact that we must accept in the mofussil, the Bill is not practicable. My opinion about the non-official Englishmen in Kangra was that most of them were men who never came into a court at all, civil or criminal. There was a very small minority who were often in the civil courts, the reasons being various. In the cases of two of them I consider the reason probably was unjust treatment of the Natives by Europeans, in one or two more simple ignorance of Native habits which made a few planters victims to Native fraud, or made them listen to the fraudulent representations of an intriguing jamadar. These plantation jamadars were a great evil. I found that in the Kangra District, when at annexation it was declared that the people always spoke the truth, it was most common for the Natives to use fraud in their dealings with Englishmen, and if they could get a hot-tempered Englishman to deal with they seemed the better pleased. Some of the cases were disgraceful and showed that some of the Natives stuck at nothing in their disputes with Europeans. My experience as to the Native Courts, which often had to deal with cases where the civil interests of the planters were concerned, was that the conduct of the European planters towards the Native Courts was most improper. Their conduct was bullying and over-bearing, and being ignorant of law, they often offered as evidence what was not evidence at all. If it was not taken they were angry. The Native Magistrates hated European cases, and very often I am afraid gave such cases in favor of the planters to appease them. My opinion was that a European would have a much better chance of getting his suit in a Native Court than in an English one.

If criminal powers were given to Native Courts, the consequence would be disastrous. There are no European constables in Kangra District certainly to carry out orders of confinement, and though a planter would be mad to resist such an order emanating from a Native, I am not sure that he might not. Of course a planter might dispute with violence the order of an English Magistrate, but I do not think it likely. Their demeanour in European Courts was always, as far as I saw, correct, and as respectful as it was disrespectful in Native Courts. I should say that as far as such a small body of men could create a mutiny, there would be a mutiny in Kangra if a Native Magistrate sent a European planter to jail. This may be improper; but I think we must at present take the planters as what they are, not what we would wish them to be. There are two kinds of men whom we might expect to be endowed with powers under the Bill:—1st, the educated Bengali who has passed the open competition; 2nd, the Punjab Rais. For the educated Bengali the planter has a hearty contempt as one of a nation of cowards. Moreover, the Bengali Babu, though he has a certain amount of educational knowledge, has no knowledge of English manners and customs. It is not likely that he should have, for a passed candidate for the Indian Civil Service has no opportunity of getting into society by reason of his being a passed candidate. He must have friends of his own if he wants to see society. The Bengali Babu comes out knowing something about English literature, but nothing about the manners of Englishmen. I have noticed in Kangra that a hot-headed blundering Englishman gives so very injudicious an account of his case and appears so vindictive that at first sight one is inclined to be prejudiced against him.

Sir Walter Scott's Scotch Advocate declared that he often felt inclined to kick his clients downstairs, their own account of themselves made them appear so mean. But he said he found out that they were only angry and therefore unreasonable. A Magistrate not knowing English ways, and seeing before him on the one hand an Englishman intensely excited and making the worst of his case in consequence, and on the other hand a meek individual (who has probably been intensely insolent outside) with the air of a suffering martyr, would naturally become indignant at the idea of the brutal Saxon trampling on a poor inoffensive ryot; and yet it often turns out that the swaggering Englishman has simply been made a victim of by the meek villager, and I know as a fact that the villager who salaams to an official down to the ground cannot only cheat a non-official European, but be insolent to him to a degree outside the court. Of this a Bengali Babu would know nothing. He meets the Anglo-Indian's contempt with hatred, and however honestly he might wish to decide the case, he would certainly be biassed against the Englishman and give full weight to his indiscreet manner and utterances. As for the Punjab Raïs, my experience is that they would thoroughly dislike to have European cases made over to them. The experiment has as yet to be tried, I believe, of introducing Bengali Magistrates among the mainly Punjabi people. The Magistrates who would be invested would probably be Raïses. The Punjab Raïs, as far as I have seen, has a great respect for Englishmen, and I should greatly doubt whether an Englishman who richly deserved fining or imprisonment would ever get it. There are black sheep among English planters as I have seen, who are capable of every kind of meanness, and on whose statement I would not rely for a moment. The other planters would probably delight to see a European Magistrate punish such a one, but his punishment by a Bengali Babu would probably be resented by them as a body. This perhaps should not influence us, but then it does not appear what use there would be in trying a Bengali in the Punjab and raising the question. Further, there would be the real fear on the planters that a foreigner who did not understand them would convict them on what was really false evidence. The worst fear they would have would be that their wives might be dragged into court on a false charge before a foreigner who would not understand their ways. A proper-minded Englishwoman dislikes going into court as much as any pardah nashin can do, and should not be exposed to it, if possible. As present she is not much exposed to it; under the contemplated arrangement she would be. I think the Punjab Raïs would be as much annoyed at having an Englishwoman of respectability in court before him as an English Magistrate would be, and that he would consider it no privilege at all. Moreover, the Raïs would not be able, as an English Magistrate could do, to distinguish between a modest English lady and a masculine and over-bearing woman. They would to him be all Mem-Sahibs entitled to respect, whose word was beyond suspicion. Though he might be able to distinguish between an English gentleman of honourable feeling and an unworthy Englishman with good clothes, he would not be able to distinguish in the case of ladies. He has met gentlemen and pseudo-gentlemen: of ladies he knows nothing. It may be answered that if natives, and educated ones to boot, should not try English men and women, because of their ignorance of their ways and manners, a native should not be liable to be tried by an Englishman. I would reply that, in cases triable by a 1st class Magistrate, I would always allow a native to be tried by a Native Magistrate, if he wished it.

In conclusion, I would say that I doubt if legally an Englishman can be tried by a Native. It is his birthright to be tried by his peers. By coming to India he does not cease to be a subject of Her Majesty. It may be said that Englishmen should not have invested their capital in the country till they were assured that they would not be tried by natives. But their capital was often locked up in the country long before there was any idea of taking any such steps as is now contemplated, and that had the present Bill been foreseen, much capital would have been kept out of the country. It is the birthright of certain native ladies to be pardah nashins, of certain Râjas and others to be exempt from attendance in court; of Mussalmans to marry four wives. The Englishman does not ask that his wife should be considered pardah nashin; he does not object to go to court; and he does not want four wives. His birthright is to be tried by his peers. We do not interfere with birthright of the natives, and there is no reason to interfere with the birthright of the Englishmen. The natives have so many privileges of their own that to try to make everybody equal by taking away the Englishman's sole birthright, appears like giving to him that hath, by taking away from him that hath not even that he hath.

No. 231, dated 10th May 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COL. E. L. OMMANNEY, Offg. Commissioner and Supdt., Derajat Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

With reference to your letter No. 346, dated 27th March last, asking for my opinion

Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan, No. 338, dated 24th April 1883.
Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ismail Khan, No. 296, dated 2nd May 1883.
Deputy Commissioner, Bannu, No. O, dated 4th May 1883.

on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I have the honour to submit copies of letters on the subject from the Deputy Commissioners of this Division.

2. Considering the position occupied by us in this country, the barrier of caste and prejudice that prevents any real social intercourse between us and the various races in this land, and the low estimation in which the women of this country are held, I am of opinion that the proposed amendment is inexpedient, and there has been nothing advanced to show that any such change is necessary or was desired by the native community.

No. 338, dated 24th April 1883.

From—F. W. R. FRYER, Esq., Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan,
To—The Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Derajat Division.

With reference to your Circular No. 77, dated the 20th instant, asking my opinion on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, as far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I have the honour to state that I have conversed with the higher Native officials and other educated Natives of this district on the subject, and that whilst they approve the object with which the Bill was introduced, still they state that they see no advantage which will accrue to their countrymen, if allowed to try European British subjects for criminal offences, and they would sooner see the Bill abandoned than risk a break in the good relations which have always existed between Europeans and Natives in the Province to which they belong. The chiefs and people of this district view the introduction of the Bill with indifference. My own view coincides generally with that of the Native gentlemen as given above. I consider that the class for whose benefit the Bill is introduced will practically gain nothing by it, whilst the opposition that the Bill has aroused is so considerable that it is not worth while to excite so much discontent to gain so little.

No. 296, dated 2nd May 1883.

From—S. S. THORBURN, Esq., Offg. Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ismail Khan,
To—The Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Derajat Division.

I beg to return enclosures to your Circular No. 77, dated 20th ultimo, marginally noted, and to say that in my opinion Mr. Ilbert's Bill for amending

Under-Secretary to Government,
Punjab's No. 346, dated 27th March
1883, with a Bill to amend Criminal Procedure Code.

the Criminal Procedure Code, 1882, is both unnecessary and politically dangerous.

I do not think that the time has come, or is yet even within measureable distance, when European British subjects in up-country stations will believe that a Native Magistrate is capable of giving them a fair trial. This feeling alone ought, I think, to condemn the Bill.

That there is no necessity for it was, I think, demonstrated in the debate on the Bill published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India of April 21st, 1883, and that such a Bill is politically dangerous, is proved by the agitation which it has created throughout India.

I do not wish to say a word against the ability and impartiality of the Native Magistrates on whom it would confer jurisdiction over Englishmen, but I will say that it is probable that the strongest supporter of the measure, of a man of practical Indian experience, would, were he himself or one near and dear to him to be tried in an up-country station by a Native on a criminal charge of which he was innocent, feel a profound distrust in his judge and endeavour to have his case tried by a fellow-countryman.

No. O., dated 4th May 1883.

From—H. C. THORPE ROBINSON, Esq., Offg. Deputy Commissioner, Bannu,
To—The Officiating Commissioner and Superintendent, Derajat Division.

With reference to your Circular No. 77, dated 20th ultimo, and its enclosures, I have the honor to report as follows.

2. I consider the proposed amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, most unnecessary and likely to be injurious in more ways than one.

3. The object of the Procedure Code is to secure the efficient administration of justice. The class of Englishmen who come before the Criminal Courts in the mofussil consist in most cases of men like engine-drivers, soldiers, &c., who cannot talk good English, and most of whom use such provincialisms and slang and elliptical expressions that even European British subjects reared in Britain have some difficulty in understanding their whole meaning. I have felt this difficulty myself in my short experience, and am sure that even a few years' education in London, or any other large city in Britain, would not enable a Native of India to master our various provincial dialects sufficiently to do justice in many cases; and it is not desirable that justice should miscarry in any one case. The grievance would be particularly felt in the Punjab, where our Native Assistant Commissioners are men who have had no training whatever in England.

4. Again, we have to consider the violent animosity that there is against Englishmen as unbelievers in the heart of every true Musalman. I have little personal knowledge of Hindus and Parsis. It is perhaps possible that they could without danger be entrusted with power to arrest and try Englishmen, but I am quite certain that no such power ought to be confided to Musalmans, and yet, in working the proposed law, how could Musalmans be excluded? No such invidious distinction would be tolerated by them, and the fact of their exclusion would at once intensify the venom of class hatred and religious antipathy, which it should be our object to let slumber on until it expires through inertia and comæ.

5. But I hold that the exclusion of Musalmans is none the less necessary: many of them are as loyal as Musalmans can be, yet at a time of trial and mutiny such men could not resist the pressure of their surroundings. When their relations and friends were hounding them on, our Native Assistant Commissioners could not stand forward and disregard public opinion. Their properties, their families, "their all," would be at stake, and it would be impossible for them, however well educated and sensible, to stem the tide even if they wished to do so. Such a rising will take place only when our English garrisons are dangerously weak or when we have experienced heavy reverses; that such misfortunes may befall nations is, as history proves, not impossible, and we ought not to put into the hands of our subjects the formal power to cripple by sudden arrests at a critical time our scattered English representatives in the mofussil.

6. It may be said that I am imagining an impossible danger, but it is not so; I have resided for over six years in the Hazara and Peshawar Districts and have mixed with the people on terms of friendship and intimacy. I have thus learnt how the Musalmans as a body hate us, and how unceasing is the stream of seditious sympathy with the disaffected in Hindustan and in the independent States and tribes on our North-West Frontier.

A loyal Musalman in the Peshawar District is regarded by all his fanatical surroundings with antipathy; when he dies in our service, or as our pensioner, many a mullah will refuse to bury him; and a dying jagirdar will at times resign his allowances so as not to imperil his soul by dying as our dependant.

7. An Extra Assistant Commissioner, a Musalman, with whom I have had constant intercourse, is, I suppose, one of our most loyal subjects, but he has admitted to me that if a "jihad" were proclaimed, and if, owing to British weakness, he thought it would be successful, then he could not be on our side any longer, and that we should see him in the van of the attack. He likes and respects our power, and he hoped we shall never let ourselves get sufficiently weak to invite a successful Musalman rising; for he had large estates and family interests which, apart from his religion, would oblige him to declare for the winning side. Here were admissions made in private friendly intercourse, and an English critic might say that the judgment of a man of experience would secure him from being led to join a rising which could end only with disaster for the mutineers; but here I join issue with the critic. That Extra Assistant Commissioner's judgment is human and liable to error; he is a sound Musalman, and is as likely as others of his belief to be carried away by ardour for the glory of Islam at a season of religious revivalism. He would perhaps give us some underhand information or help, but that would of course depend on the temporary strength or weakness of his bigotry. Similar admissions have been made to me in private conversation by other loyal Musalmans who were not in service, and I urge that the existence of such a persuasion is a fact that cannot be safely ignored.

8. Of other reasons that occur to me I will mention one only, and that is the disastrous effect, not only on our national prestige, but also on our self-respect, that would result for allowing the enforced appearance of Englishwomen, our wives and sisters, before the Court of a Native Magistrate, either Hindu or Musalman. The subject is one from which my experience of native morality and modes of working spite makes my mind recoil.

9. To recapitulate, my arguments are (1), that the administration of justice to low-class European British subjects would be not bettered but weakened by giving the proposed powers to Indians, however well educated, who had only acquired scholastic English; (2), that the powers, if given to Hindus and Parsis, must also be given to Musalmans, and that in the hands of the latter they would form a means of administrative weakness and constitutional danger; (3), that to oblige our womenkind to appear before Criminal Courts presided over by natives would be a grave scandal.

10. The Bill could not be withdrawn now without causing a great outcry among certain classes who make themselves heard, but who form in fact an insignificant minority among the millions of this land. Still the majority of educated and reflecting natives would, I believe, be glad if the measure could be abandoned. The few whose opinions I have been able to enquire welcomed the Bill at first, but when they saw what violent animosities the discussion was raising, and how it threatened to break off the rapprochement that had been lately progressing so favourably between the races, they wished, and still wish, that the agitation and excitement could be smoothened without delay.

The best plan would, in my opinion, be to admit that mutual sympathy and knowledge are not yet sufficiently strong and ripe to warrant passing the Bill into law,—the newspapers, English and Native, both prove this every day.

The time has not come yet, and precipitation would be fatal.

Dated 3rd May 1883.

From—The Honorary Secretary to the Planters' Association, Kangra Valley,

To—The Under-Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

With reference to your No. 346, asking for our opinion on Mr. Ilbert's Bill, as sent by you to me, receipt of which I acknowledged on 24th ultimo, I have the honour to inform you that I read your letter at a general meeting of the Association yesterday, Wednesday, May 2nd, and am requested to inform you that the feeling of the meeting was a strong one against such proposed change, and that I should forward through you to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor the text of the protest as passed by a special meeting to consider the subject on Wednesday, March 21st, which has attached to it upwards of 70 signatures.

Text of Resolution passed at a Meeting specially called to discuss the matter on Wednesday, March 21st:—

“That this meeting records its strongest protest against any amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code which will invest natives with jurisdiction in criminal matters over British and European subjects.”

---

Dated 8th May 1883.

From—SARDAR ATAR SINGH, C.I.E., Chief of Bhadaur,

To—The Under-Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

In reply to your letter No. 346, dated 27th March 1883, forwarding for opinion a copy of the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction of native officers over European British subjects, I beg to state that I have very carefully read it, and also the opinions of the native and European gentlemen as they appear in newspapers.

2. The provisions of the Bill appear to be very proper, as the power is not to be conferred on native officers generally, but only on those select few whose fitness has been proved. But it is with great regret I notice that the matter has been placed in a very delicate position. Taking that into consideration, I would advise that the Bill may be allowed to stand over for a time, to enable the Government to judge how far the apprehensions now entertained are based on facts.

Even after that, when the Bill is passed, it should be provisionally for some time, to show how it suits practically.

---

Dated 10th May, 1882.

From—SARDAR BIKERAM SINGH, Ahluwalia,

To—The Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab.

In reply to your letter No. 346, dated the 27th March last, with which you sent me a copy of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, for my opinion, I have the honour to state that I have perused the Bill carefully, and do not find a single clause or sentence in it which needs amendment or alteration.

The proposed amendment of law does not introduce any abrupt change into the present system of legal administration. Since it is not the object to raise all Native Magistrates to the rank of Justices of the Peace, but such of them only who have stood the test of stiff examination, and have thus proved themselves to be possessed of merit, and who have satisfied the Government they serve under as to their fitness for the rank by serving long and faithfully, I cannot help regretting that the opponents of the Bill have produced so much agitation in the country, which is calculated to induce a breach of the good understanding which exists between the English and Native communities whom Providence has thrown together in social and political union, which union will increase in strength by the continuance of good feeling between them.

In my humble opinion, the apprehensions of the opponents are not well founded. Experience shows that the Native Judges of the High Courts and the Native Magistrates of the presidency towns have acquitted themselves honourably and ably of their responsibilities, and that the removal of the existing restrictions on the judicial powers of Native Magistrates, as regards trial of European British subjects, based as those restrictions are mainly on race distinctions, will in no way be inexpedient and injurious to the rights of the European British subjects. On the other hand, in a political point of view, the results will be most satisfactory: the Natives will be impressed with a sense of the broad policy and liberal intentions of the British Government towards them, when they find that it is willing to remove the invidious race distinction, and amicable feelings, respect for each other's thoughts and actions, and mutual sympathy will spread extensively between the ruling community and the subject classes.

Opinion of AGHA KALBI ABID, Khan Bahadur, Honorary Assistant Commissioner, Amritsar, on the Bill to Amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

On the question whether the natives of India who are admitted to the Civil Service and exercise highest powers be held incompetent outside the Presidency towns to try European British subjects, a disability based on race distinction, my opinion is against it.

To give natives such powers is to realize in practice that which is yet in words. Her Majesty's Proclamation of 1858 lays down that all subjects will be eligible to be appointed to offices to which their education and ability entitle them, without any distinction of race or creed.

It is strange that natives should pass through all ordeals and tests of education and hold high offices such as those of Civil and Sessions Judges, and yet be incompetent to try a European British subject.

When natives of India are competent by reason of their education and abilities to hold such offices, and there being no natural distinction between the two races, I do not see where the disability lies.

The distinction of conquerors and conquered is sufficiently maintained (to the advantage of the former) in other important matters. All high offices, Civil and Military, are reserved for them. They become Volunteers, and can keep arms under the Arms Act.

The proposed law is simply intended, by removing the disability existing under the Criminal Procedure Code, to cure the following defects:—(1), that a native may hold such a high office as that of a Civil and Sessions Judge and yet be incompetent to try a European; (2), a native should be incompetent to try a European while his subordinate may; (3), that a native in the Presidency towns may try a European, but not in the mofussil; (4), a native, by the existing state of the law, may pass a decree against a European affecting his property and person (he being as liable to arrest and imprisonment as any other), and yet the soundness of a Native Judge's judgment and honesty be doubted while passing a sentence on the criminal side similarly affecting his property and person.

The Government is bound to remove the above-mentioned defects which exist in the administration, a state of things against equity and equality, and thus remove one of the causes which keep the two races separated.

When Providence has decreed that two natives of different countries should meet, and in course of time form a mixed society, it is natural that one of them should concede some privileges to the other as a compensation for intruding upon the rights of the other. The British Government, a political name for the British nation, have, in making common and just laws, according to their own views (views which are in some cases based on their own national convictions), snatched from the natives the privileges of satti, baldan, human sacrifice, &c., and in some cases, as in that of exclusion from inheritance by reason of loss of caste, have also encroached upon our religious feelings.

Why then the so-called privilege of Europeans, "to be tried by their own peers," which strictly speaking applies only to England?

(The circumstances under which the privilege was obtained, viz., when the Saxons had lost their confidence in the Norman King and his hired judges, should not suffer in India.)

Europeans have the option to come to, and reside in, India for gain, and thereby subject themselves to the proposed jurisdiction of strangers just as ex necessitate they have to submit to the jurisdiction of Turks, Egyptians, Chinese, Japanese and natives of other countries of the world, where they happen to go for their gain. The jurisdiction of strangers is not forced upon them in their home (Great Britain), which may perhaps be against their privilege. In the present state of India the right of a free nation (natives of India also being a free people) to be tried by its own members cannot be conveniently observed. The right must undergo some modification, which it has already wholly undergone in the case of natives, and is intended very partially to be effected in the case of Europeans. This seems to have been the construction put upon the words which secure the privilege to Europeans when making them subject to the jurisdiction of strangers in Ceylon and other countries. If it is a necessity with Europeans that they should be tried by their own countrymen, the same necessity exists with stronger reasons in the case of natives that they should be tried by natives. A Judge should

The natives that are to be invested under the proposed law have received a high English education, and their sojourn in England has given them a knowledge of the manners and customs of Europeans and an insight into their character. Therefore the natives can also justly demand that they should be tried only by natives, a demand which, if conceded, will deprive Europeans of many lucrative posts, while the powers proposed to be conferred upon natives will put nothing substantial into their pockets.

I agree not only to the amendments proposed by the Bill, but also agree to the proposal of Sir Charles Aitchison, the Lieutenant-Governor, that all 1st class Magistrates should have the power of trying Europeans.

The introduction of different Departments—such as Revenue, Canal, Saltpetre and Customs—in the country necessitates the residence of Europeans in the mofussil. It will thus be necessary to keep Judges ready at hand competent to try a European on the spot, and not compel the complainant and witnesses, mostly natives, to go to a station where a Justice of the Peace resides. Such general investiture with power will tend not only to make the trial of those offences easy which a Justice of the Peace alone can try, but will indirectly lead to the suppression of crime.

---

Opinion of HAJI KHAN MUHAMMAD SHAH, Khan Bahadur, Honorary Magistrate, Amritsar, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882,—dated 6th May 1883.

I am in receipt of your letter dated 27th March 1883, giving cover to a copy of the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, and inviting my opinion thereon.

As far as possible, I have carefully gone through every section of the Bill, and have considered the grounds which have been advanced in support of, or against it, in the Legislative Council, and those advanced by newspapers and at public meetings held in the different towns in India. I have patiently deliberated upon the results which would ensue on the Bill being passed into law. For the reasons detailed below, I think that the amendment of that portion of the Criminal Procedure Code of 1882 which relates to jurisdiction over European British subjects is necessary and expedient according to the feelings of the people of the country, and on account of administrative necessity.

It is altogether opposed to the policy of the British Government that any law based on race distinction should be allowed to remain in force.

On looking over the legislative history of India, as connected with the judicial business, it appears that, previous to the year 1833, not only cases relating to inheritance and adoption, but all kinds of cases also, in which Hindus and Muhammadans were concerned, were decided according to the Hindu and Muhammadan laws, and that Maulvis and Pandits were invited to the Courts to expound the laws. Before that year no native held a judicial post. The civil and criminal cases in which Europeans were concerned were heard by Europeans only (who were Company's servants). In 1836, the Company desired to improve the form of their government in the mofussil, when they increased the powers of native Judges and conferred judicial posts on natives.

A law was then passed providing that no person whatever could on account of race, sect or religion be exempted from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts of the Company in civil suits. At that time Europeans raised a great clamour, and showed great opposition to the native Judges being vested with the powers for deciding civil suits in which Europeans were concerned, and they styled this Act by the name of "Black Act," i.e., the act of black men (natives).

The ground put forward against the Act was that it endangered European property and capital. But during the 50 years that have passed since this law came into force, no loss has ever occurred to European property and capital. On the contrary, they have received full justice from native Judges, as is clearly proved from the fact that in no civil suit in which Europeans were concerned has any complaint been ever made about the native Judges having done injustice to them.

The party opposed to the present Bill allege that there was no objection to the native Judges being invested with civil powers, as this involved only a property question, while in the case of criminal powers honour and reputation are at stake. As far as I can think, I am against this view. In civil cases too a person can at once be reduced to sheer poverty; can be punished with fine, &c., for disobedience of orders or contempt of Court; and in case of default of payment of the amount of a decree, the Judge can issue a warrant for his arrest, and can send him to jail as a civil prisoner.

When the native Judge has been considered, without consideration of race or creed, as qualified to decide civil suits impartially, it is not understood why he should be unable to decide petty criminal cases in which Europeans may be concerned.

Great changes have occurred in the procedure followed in deciding criminal suits since the last 50 years. At first no Magistrates (European or native), except those of the Judges of the Supreme Court, could punish Europeans. When the number of European residents of India increased, great inconvenience was felt in bringing European offenders charged with petty offences from the mofussil to the Supreme Court. In 1849, during the time of Lord Dalhousie, a Bill was drafted providing that Magistrates holding courts in the mofussil districts, or outside the Presidency towns, should be vested with the powers of Justices of the Peace; but as the Indian Penal Code had not yet been framed, the measure was, at the instance of Lord Dalhousie himself, postponed.

From this it is clearly evident that only a few years after the investment of Native Judges with powers for trying civil suits in which Europeans were concerned, the Government of India had proposed to invest them with criminal powers also. In 1872, when the question of amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code came on, the Legislative Council, with the majority of one vote only, decided that the Covenanted Civil Servants (provided they be Europeans) should be appointed Justices of the Peace outside the Presidency towns. But it is remarkable that the minority consisted of His Excellency the Governor General, His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, Sir Richard Temple, and other honourable and experienced gentlemen well acquainted with the state of the country and responsible Counsellors of the Empress of India, whose positive opinion was that Native Covenanted Civil Servants should also be made Justices of the Peace.

This amendment, which was looked upon by the high officers of Her Majesty's Government as opposed to the policy of Government, did, at the time, injustice to a few Native Covenanted Servants only. But during the succeeding ten years many other natives have been, and are being admitted to the Covenanted Service, and some of them have been raised to the posts of District Magistrate and Sessions Judge. It is therefore desirable for reasons of administrative necessity that such a distinction (which has had its origin in race feelings) should be done away with.

If a native be appointed a District Magistrate in a district, and a European commits an offence in that district, and though the offence be punishable by the District Magistrate, but the officer, being a native, be not able to try the case, the result would be that either the District Magistrate would have to transfer the case to the court of a subordinate European Magistrate possessing the powers of a Justice of the Peace, or that he would have to forward the case to the court of some other European Magistrate. In the first case, the procedure is disgraceful to the native District Magistrate, and he would experience a great loss in his influence and respect (which it is a duty of Government to preserve) in the eyes of the people of the district. In the second case, the European offender would be compelled to travel from one place to another under custody, to answer a petty charge, perhaps punishable with fine only.

The opponents of the Bill lay a great stress on the fact that, among other privileges, they are entitled to their being tried by officers of their own nationality. As far as I have been able to consider this matter, I do not think this view can be accepted. Had it been really a recognized birthright of Europeans, how could the Native Magistrates in the Presidency towns of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras have been invested with powers of sentencing Europeans to imprisonment, the term of which might extend to two years, including solitary confinement, to fine up to Rs. 1,000 in amount, and to whipping; and how could Native Judges in the High Court have unlimited powers of punishment over Europeans? In my opinion, such laws, which are based on race distinction, are relics of olden times, when the natives were generally devoid of high education and good training. At that time, indeed, it was as inexpedient to bestow powers on Native Judges, as it is now inexpedient, impolitic and unjust to withhold these powers from them.

In criminal cases, in which the complainant may be a European and the accused a native, the Native Magistrates have had jurisdiction for a long time past. During this period, evidently, no complaint has been made of any Native Magistrate having exercised any partiality on account of race feelings in such cases. Hence it can be hardly believed that they would exercise improper severity towards European offenders. Especially the classes of Magistrates, whom it is proposed to give jurisdiction (over European British subjects), subject to certain rules, are very trustworthy, they having received high education and good training and being men of experience. It is not expected that they would knowingly commit an illegal act. I, who have seen a good deal of the Sikh days, can make a just estimate of the many advantages that have accrued to this country from the British rule; and, in my opinion, the prosperity and well-being of the country depends on the existence and daily increase of friendly relations between the conquering and the conquered races. Had I the assurance that the legislative change likely to be brought about by the Bill would prove destructive to the progress of friendship between the two nations, I would surely have been altogether against the amendment; but my impressions are not such. I strongly believe that the more the race distinctions are (not?) made to interfere with the general legislation of the country, the more strongly would friendly feelings and sympathy be preserved intact between the conquerors and the conquered. On this ground I endorse every section of the Bill; nay, I cordially agree with the just opinion of the Hon'ble Sir C. Aitchison, Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab (who has observed) that every 1st Class Magistrate, be he a Covenanted or Uncovenanted Servant, whether a Native or European, should be appointed a Justice of the Peace, provided his qualifications, experience and impartiality are recognized by the Local Government.

Dated 19th May 1883.

From—PANDIT RAM NARAIN, Secretary to the Indian Association, Lahore,
To—The Secretary to Government, Punjab.

In reply to your letter No. 316, dated the 27th March 1883, I have the honour to forward the following opinion of the Indian Association on the Bill for the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

2. The Association purposely abstains from much comment on the principle of the Bill. It is scarcely necessary to say that they warmly approve of it, and consider that the heartfelt gratitude of the people of India is due to the government of His Excellency the Viceroy for the high-minded and statesman like proposal to remove the existing invidious distinction between native and European Criminal Judges. The Association only deem it proper to observe here that if the change is ever to be made, and the disqualification of native Judges removed, it is better to make a beginning now, so that the course of reform may be gradual and its action carefully watched, than to introduce a sweeping measure under the pressure of extreme necessity. The Association have no reason to think that the opposition to the Bill on the part of the Anglo-Indian community will be less bitter at any subsequent time than it is now. Indeed, the objections now put forward are directed against the very principle of the Bill, viz., the obliteration of all distinction between them and the natives of the country, and there can be no reasonable doubt that this measure, if it were to be dropped now, would meet with still more violent opposition when re-introduced on some future occasion under more pressing administrative necessity.

3. The Association are of opinion that the provisions of Section 1 of the Draft Bill are sufficient to meet the purpose of the amendment, viz., to remove from the Code at once, and completely, every judicial disqualification based merely on race distinctions (paragraph 2 of the Statement of Objects and Reasons). The effect of it will necessarily be to disqualify members of the Uncovenanted Service, European and native, from being made Justices of the Peace. Some European British subjects in that service are already Justices of the Peace; but it is apprehended that, under the saving provisions of Section 7, their existing power will not be affected. The disqualification will only be for the future. The Association regret this effect of the Bill on European Uncovenanted Magistrates, and they notice that this is made one of the grounds of objection to the Bill. But they are unable to see how an effective remedy can be provided under the existing circumstances. Bearing in mind the object of the Bill, the only remedy can be the insertion of an additional 5th clause in the first section making members of the Uncovenanted Service eligible as well. But, as this amendment would necessarily qualify natives as well as Europeans, therefore it is apprehended that this suggestion will not meet with the approval of the opponents of the Bill, but rather intensify their opposition.

4. With reference to this section, the Association would recommend the insertion of a proviso, to the effect that the Magistrates invested with jurisdiction to try European British subjects should possess a competent knowledge of English. It would be a rational grievance to an English, or Anglo-Indian, accused, if the Magistrate were quite unable to understand him or his English-speaking witnesses. This is now used as an argument against the Bill, and, being founded on reason, should, in the opinion of the Association, be effectually provided for. They consider that European prisoners are entitled to be placed on a footing of equality in this respect with native prisoners whose European Judges are expected to be conversant to some extent with their vernacular.

5. The Association would here, briefly, advert to the principal objections made against the Bill, notably in the memorial of the Anglo-Indian community. They are mainly these:—

- (1) That the natives of India are a heterogenous race with numerous personal rights and privileges founded on conquest, tradition and prescription, and that therefore the privileges claimed by European British subjects are neither anomalous nor unreasonable.
- (2) That natives know nothing of the inner life of Europeans, and their modes of thought and springs of actions, and are hence disqualified to sit in judgment over Europeans accused.
- (3) That the natives of India hold the female sex in utter contempt and keep them in a state of degradation, and hence it would be extremely humiliating for an Englishwoman to appear as a criminal at the bar of a native Court of Justice.
- (4) That the members of the Native Civil Service do not command the confidence of the European community.

6. The first argument simply ignores the tendency of all civilized communities to minimize the points of difference between their component sections, and to blend them into one harmonious whole. The past history of all European countries abounds in examples of the abolition of individual or class privileges for the benefit of the commonwealth; so do the records of British rule in India. Natives have had to surrender many of their cherished customs and rights because they were deemed incompatible with the existence of enlightened government in the country. The existence of class rights and privileges is generally an index of a low state of civilization, and by itself is not a thing desirable. What examples are quoted by the objectors are not in the least apposite. The Indian law recognises no exemption of natives of rank, and purda-nashin ladies, from appearance in Criminal Courts, and makes no distinction between them and the natives of the lowest class.

7. The second argument is a vague, general proposition, incapable, in the opinion of the Association, of being illustrated by concrete examples. It is really a bold assumption of the facts in issue. The memorialists, however, seem to forget that, in bringing it forward as a Ground of objection to the Bill, they pronounce a sentence of unfitness on the whole body of European Judicial officers. Europeans in India live in comparative publicity, and the Association think they would be justified in saying that in India natives come to know more of the ways of life and the manners and customs of Europeans than Europeans do of the natives. If the native is disqualified to judge the European on this ground, the Europeans would be doubly unfitted to judge the natives. As a matter of fact, however, most European Judges are found well able to decide cases affecting natives. A fortiori, there is every reason to believe that natives would be found at least equally efficient in European cases—an inference which is strengthened by Native Judges having been found competent to dispose of civil cases in which Europeans are concerned.

8. The third argument is absolutely unfounded on fact. The Association repudiate the imputation cast on the natives of India that they despise their females and ill-treat them. The Association are pained and surprised to see such an argument used at all. So far from the imputation being true, it is a matter of every-day experience that native purda-nashin ladies, if they ever have the misfortune to be dragged into a Criminal Court, are very considerably treated by native Magistrates; and there is really no reason whatever to suppose that their conduct would be different when an Englishwoman is brought up before them as an accused person. No complaints have yet been made against their behaviour in civil cases wherein European women have appeared before them either as witnesses or as parties to actions.

9. The last objection as to the personnel of the Native Civil Service does not require detailed comment; on this head the Association would content themselves with observing that Government may be trusted to secure the most competent officers for the service; and it is scarcely necessary to say that the local Governments will exercise their powers under Section 1 of the Bill with discretion, taking care to confer jurisdiction to try European British subjects on the most competent officers.

10. The opponents of the Bill have suggested that native civilians who are so qualified should be placed in charge of districts where no Europeans are to be found. The memorialists seem to be unconscious of the injustice this proposal entails on the native civilians, by banishing them perpetually, as a reward for their services, to such undesirable localities as are avoided by Europeans. The measure, moreover, is impracticable, as there is hardly a district in India where some Europeans do not reside; and even if there be any such now, it is against reason to reckon upon its so continuing in future, unless prohibition be imposed on Europeans against settling in districts placed under Native Civilians. The absurdity and unfairness of such a proposal need no further comment.

Opinion of the Anjuman-i-Islamiya, Amritsar, on a Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code, 18-2,—dated 15th May 1883.

This Association has most carefully considered the reasons advanced both for and against this Bill, and the members are unanimously of opinion that the provisions contained in the Code should be modified, as they are merely based on an invidious class distinction.

From the Statement of Objects and Reasons of this Bill as stated, it would appear that it is intended to remove the judicial disqualification of some Native Magistrates in criminal proceedings over European British subjects.

It is indeed unjust and anomalous that while natives of India are admitted to the Covenant Civil Service, and held competent to discharge the highest judicial duties, they should be deemed incompetent to be Justices of the Peace.

Though there are some upright, learned, just and experienced European gentlemen who are in favour of this Bill, yet a large majority of the European and Eurasian non-official community is opposed to it, and they allege that as some personal rights and privileges of natives are still protected by law, such as the exemption of ladies of distinction, and of some native gentlemen, specially allowed by Local Government, from personal appearance in Civil Courts, there is no reason why their privileges and rights should not likewise be protected. The Association most respectfully submit that this privilege, which is set forth as an example, is the only one recognized in the administration of some proceedings of the Civil law, and it involves no injury to, or entails no disability upon, any other class of Her Majesty's subjects.

Moreover, in the opinion of the Association, the argument upon which the opponents of the Bill seem to lay so much stress is altogether irrelevant, because the Bill does not propose to curtail any of the rights and privileges enjoyed by different classes of Her Majesty's subjects in this country; it only aims at removing the disqualification of a Judge or Magistrate, which is based merely on race distinction. For this one single privilege which is enjoyed by the natives of this country, there are many privileges enjoyed by the European British subjects in the administration of criminal law in India. The jurisdiction of Criminal Courts over a European British subject in awarding punishment is very limited. He can appeal against small sentences of fine or imprisonment, from which there is no right of appeal in ordinary cases. He may claim to be tried by a mixed jury, or a mixed set of assessors, being either Europeans or Americans, or both Europeans and Americans, whose decision is final.

The Association most respectfully submit that, to the best of their knowledge and belief, native officers have no special jurisdiction over their native fellow-subjects such as is conceded to their European brother officers over their countrymen; and therefore on an occasion like the present, when the object simply is to remove certain judicial disqualifications based on class distinctions from native officers of tried ability and integrity, it is unjust and out of place to draw arguments from the privileges respectively enjoyed by the Europeans and natives of this country.

It is unnecessary to give here the long list of those cherished rights of the natives which have been curtailed. The Association would rather beg to invite the attention of Government to the speech of the Hon'ble Dr. Hunter, who has very ably and minutely discussed the subject. There is, however, one important point which that Hon'ble gentleman seems to have overlooked. Formerly the Mahomedan law of evidence prevailed in all the Courts of Justice. But it has slowly and gradually been done away with, and a law founded on the principles of English jurisprudence has been introduced, which has totally infringed some of our best rights and privileges.

In 1836, when the Hon'ble East India Company ruled that no person should, by reason of place, birth, or descent, be in any civil proceedings exempted from any jurisdiction of any of the Company's Courts, and admitted natives to a large share of posts in the Civil administration, the Europeans resented the measure very much and protested against their being placed under the jurisdiction of the country tribunals, on the ground that their capital would not be safe. But their allegations have all proved unfounded.

The opponents of the Bill urge that civil jurisdiction is a different thing from a criminal one. The former affects property, and the latter both personal character and liberty. But, in the opinion of the Association, such is not the case. A Civil Court can give judgment against any person in a suit for fraud or libel; can send him to prison for debt; can punish him for contempt of court; and can issue a warrant for his arrest in case of his non-attendance as a witness. When the exercise of civil jurisdiction with all these powers by Native Judges over Europeans has not given rise to any injustice, it is unreasonable to suppose that they, especially those to whom the Bill proposes to invest with powers, and whose ability and integrity are admitted on all hands, will be swayed by race prejudices, when trying Europeans in criminal cases.

In all those cases in which Europeans have complaints against natives, they freely resort to Native Magistrates' Courts for redress, and, as far as the Association is aware, the Native Officers presiding at these Courts have not been swayed by any race prejudices. What ground then is there for apprehension that when trying charges brought by natives against Europeans they will be actuated by any such feelings?

The scope of this Bill is narrower than that of the one brought forward under Lord Dalhousie's Government in 1849, which provided that, outside the Presidency towns, all Magistrates of whatever class should be competent to pass all sentences, but that of death, on every British subject, and the measure was postponed only till the amending of the criminal law was effected by the Penal Code. From this it would appear to be evident that when Europeans were subjected to the civil jurisdiction of Native Courts, it was really in contemplation that this measure should at no distant date be followed by that of giving criminal jurisdiction to Native Magistrates over Europeans. In 1872, when the Criminal Procedure Code was under revision, this question came up for discussion before the Council, but was lost by a majority of only a single vote. It is, however, to be remembered that the minority consisted of the Governor General, the Commander-in-Chief, and all other high and responsible advisers of the Government of India, who were strongly of opinion that Native Magistrates, at least those of them who had been admitted to the Civil Service, should also be invested with the powers conferred upon their European brother officers. There have been great changes within the last 10 years; some of these native Civilians, who were then young and untried officers, have by their ability and integrity risen to the position of District Magistrates and Sessions Judges.

If, therefore, they are not invested with powers to try European British subjects, they will not, to all intents and purposes, be District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, and will of necessity have to be relegated to backward and out-of-the-way districts, where their abilities will not have full scope, and where, therefore, there will be no avenue to official distinction for them. They will thus be shut out from many of the large, important, healthy and coveted districts. It is asserted that the work of trying European subjects the Native Civilians can delegate to their European Assistants; but the Association beg leave to point out that the delegation of a work to his European subordinate, by a Native Magistrate, which by law he himself cannot take up, is certainly calculated to destroy his prestige and to discredit his office, and this cannot but have an injurious effect upon his position as the chief executive functionary of a district.

Her Imperial Majesty, on her assumption of the Government of India in 1858, issued a proclamation in which it is distinctly laid down that all classes of Her Majesty, of whatever race or creed, shall be freely admitted to all offices in her service, the duties of which they may be qualified by their education, ability and integrity to duly discharge. Such being the declared policy of Her Majesty's Government, and the fitness of the Native Civilians being proved to the satisfaction of all, their not being invested with jurisdiction over European subjects cannot be attributed to any other motives than those of race distinctions, which, as Sir Charles Aitchison has pointed out, are invidious and unnecessary.

Under these circumstances we not only give our adhesion to the provisions of the Bill, but would also recommend, as Sir Charles Aitchison has already done, that every first class Magistrate, whether European or Native, Covenanted or Uncovenanted, be appointed a Justice of the Peace at the discretion of the Local Government.

Opinion of the Sri Gobind Singh Sabha Association, Lahore, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

The Bill proposed to amend the Criminal Procedure Code in connection with the exercise of jurisdiction over the European British subjects, has marked a new era in the annals of Indian Legislature.

It has pulled down the thin curtain of race distinction long hung before between the two races (Europeans and Indians) and has, as if, brought the continent of India to lie side by side with the Islands of Great Britain.

Besides being so wonderful, it is also unprecedented in itself, for, in the histories of those nations that have subjugated this country, no such instance can be found whereby both the races (the conquerors and the conquered) might have been placed upon the same level with regard to their criminal jurisdiction.

The people of India are therefore greatly indebted to the British Government for this blessing and are fully alive to understand that the heaviest debt under which they are placed shall never be repaid by them or their posterity. The two illustrious names Lord Ripon and Sir Charles Aitchison, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., during whose time and by whose efforts such blessings were conferred, and such honour bestowed upon the people of this country, shall never be forgotten from off their minds, but shall always be remembered like sacred names of antiquity.

Although there may be some temporary agitation on the one side, and joy on the other, the ultimate result of this amendment would be to unite them both into one people living in harmony with each other, and looking upon themselves as real brethren descended from the same Anglo-Aryan forefathers, but differing only on account of long separation.

Need of such an amendment is acknowledged on all hands, although one party overlooking the great principle that "equality of both the races is always a good level for the basis of an empire" may, for their own private advantages, produce any argument they can to prove the untimely introduction or unnecessary of the measure.

As the Civil Service is thrown open to the natives, and as they already exercise criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects in the presidency towns, there seems no reason to make objection as to extend their powers beyond the limits of those towns.

But supposing the amendment be delayed for some years more, and then all at once may be introduced in its full vigour and power; it would not be so much beneficial then as now, when its introduction would, through its gradual progress, secure all advantages and produce desired-for results.

The Seikh National Association therefore beg to represent, on the part of the Seikhs in general, that they concur with the object of the Bill and agree with its several sections proposed.

The copy of the Nabha paper, in the original, is herewith appended for the information of Your Honour.

Opinion of the Anjuman-i-Musfid-i-Am, Kasur, on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill of 1882,—dated 28th May 1883.

This Anjuman has bestowed full consideration on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill of 1882, and has carefully looked into the question of amendment, and has considered the grounds advanced for or against the Bill.

The Anjuman humbly supports the amendment by which higher classes of Native Magistrates are to be vested with the powers of trying European offenders even outside the Presidency towns, and believes that this amendment is based on sound principles and good grounds.

2. The Anjuman would not repeat the common reasons and grounds which have hitherto been advanced, or are likely to be brought forward in support of the Bill, as it believes that the civilized Government, specially the present Government of the Punjab, has sufficient means to know such grounds and reasons. It is evident and clear that the administrative policy of the members of the British Government has always been founded on the principles of equity, justice, liberty, and humanity, which are the general principles of every civilized Government.

3. This Society does not repeat the common reasons in support of the Bill on several grounds—

(I).—These grounds have been duly stated by the originators of the Bill, and the enlightened Government has them in view.

(II).—Europeans, Eurasians and Natives are treated with full regard to the age they live in, and to their Native locality.

(III).—Limited privileges, which it was necessary to reserve for Europeans, owing to the existence of certain circumstances, were so reserved for them for a certain time, but when the time came for their abolition, they were cancelled.

It has been admitted by all Legislators that only that law can be true and just which is compatible with the laws of Nature. Hence it follows, that in the whole world, the law relating to the well-being and prosperity of mankind should be one and the same; and that such a law is the only one which can be depended upon for the true welfare and amelioration of the condition of the people. It should therefore be the first duty of every just law-giver that he should try to make laws compatible with the rules of Nature. Of course, it cannot be denied that while adopting and enforcing this good principle, he should not overlook the circumstances of time and place in framing laws. Local or special laws would certainly somewhat differ from the natural law; yet it is true that till the proper time arrives for adoption of the natural laws, the local or special laws should be obeyed. The enforcement of local or special laws, which may, at the first view, appear to be somewhat conflicting with the natural law, is but a right means of arriving at the period of adopting the natural law. Of course, it would be a mistake to consider temporary laws as permanent ones, or to confuse those of one kind with those of the other. Hence it follows, that as the natural laws are useful and worth obedience at all times, local or special laws should be thrown away when the time comes for their abolition. Sometimes people have been misled to consider temporary laws as permanent ones. The Anjuman is of opinion that no other error has given rise to so many political and moral evils than this mistaken idea. Evils which encroach on the morals of the people on their ever rejecting natural and permanent laws, are equally demoralizing when temporary laws are considered ever worthy of obedience. The true and natural law, which can be but one and the same for the whole of mankind, is like nourishing food, the use of which is indispensable for healthy people for the development and expansion of their bodily powers; while the temporary laws, which are framed in accordance with the circumstances of time and place, are like sparing diet and medicine (for the indisposed). As the use of substantial food and tonics is injurious to the sick, so the healthy person loses his strength and is rendered infirm by the use of medicines and sparing diet. As it is necessary for the sick to abstain from the use of substantial food, so is it necessary for the healthy person not to live upon sparing diet. Temporary laws are like sparing diet, the use of which should be given up as soon as people become able-bodied. It is true that sparing diet is meant to restore the weak to health, but the use of sparing diet is harmful to the healthy. It has been stated above that temporary laws are the means of arriving at the point when the permanent and natural laws should be adopted, and it is a great political mistake to consider these means as the object itself, i. e. the permanent and natural laws.

It is, therefore, the first duty of those versed in law to keep in view the minute difference which exists between the laws of the two kinds; and, while trying to confirm and establish the permanent and natural laws, they should be equally anxious for the repeal of the temporary laws at the proper time.

4. In the opinion of this Anjuman, the views advanced in the preceding paragraph entirely apply to the case of the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, the portion of the Code which it is proposed to amend being of the nature of temporary law.

Hence, when the policy of every civilized Government, and especially of the British Government in India, has been such as is described in the preceding paragraphs, it would be but superfluous to explain and detail the consequences resulting from those principles.

5. It would be useless to explain to Government itself the wise policy of Government, to which allusion has been made above. But it would not be devoid of some advantage to mention that ever since the establishment of the British rule in India, the laws of a temporary nature have always been amended. For example, under the Statute of 1853, all actions arising in India were removed from the jurisdiction of British Courts, then called Mayors' Courts. In 1782, the Governor General allowed special laws of the Natives to continue to govern cases in which Natives were concerned, and ordered that Maulvis and Pandits should be called to help Courts in expounding the laws in such cases. By the Regulation of 1782, the British Parliament did not only preserve in force the Hindu and Muhammadan laws relating to Wills and Inheritance, but also those relating to Contracts and other such transactions between the Natives. By this Regulation their private laws, by which the elders of the families were even authorized to punish offenders charged with murder, were allowed to remain in force, though such punishment might be considered illegal according to the principles of British laws. Many other privileges of this nature were allowed to Natives, but most of them were latterly amended with due discretion, while some still exist. Likewise privileges of a similar nature were conferred by law upon Europeans, which are not unknown to the Historians of Legislation; but these were also reduced in number by degrees. For instance, Native Judges could not at first hear civil suits in which Europeans were concerned, but they were eventually invested with powers to hear such cases by an Act of the Legislature, which Act was styled by the nick-name of "Black Act" in England. Subsequently, Native Magistrates were invested with powers to try Europeans in criminal cases within the Presidency towns. The question of granting them similar powers outside the Presidency towns is now under discussion. Personal privileges, which have been classed by the Anjuman under the head of "temporary laws," were granted to Europeans as well as to Natives; but they were reduced in number, or amended, when the time came for their reduction or amendment.

6. The history of the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill displays several grounds which have been adduced by the members of the British Government, and which very strongly support the views expressed in the preceding paragraphs. In the letter sent by Sir Ashley Eden, late Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to the address of His Excellency the Viceroy, in support of the present Bill, he clearly stated that the time had now arrived when all the Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service should be freed of all restrictions imposed upon their powers by Chapter XXXIII of the new Criminal Procedure Code. Many other high officers of the same class have given their opinions in favour of the Bill, from which it appears that the law requiring amendment is of the temporary nature, explained above. Especially the expression, "the time has now arrived," contained in Sir Ashley's letter, indicates that the law, which it is proposed to amend, is unquestionably of such a nature that its speedy amendment is necessary.

7. What has been said above amounts only to this, that it is unnecessary to give unimportant and summary reasons in support of the Bill, as it is a question which it is a duty of Government to attend to at once without any outside pressure. To make any hesitation in the amendment of this law is to disregard the true and natural law.

8. It is admitted on all hands that every enlightened Government has, for political reasons, to frame special and general, and temporary and permanent laws; and the grounds on which they are based, viz., those explained in the above paragraphs, are just and proper. But it would not be expedient for any enlightened and civilized Power to frame two kinds of laws for the people living under the same Government, merely for reasons of race distinctions, or for reasons other than those mentioned above.

It is admitted that a distinction should be maintained in laws for reasons of time and place; but the existence of such distinctions, merely for the sake of differences in race and creed, is not only productive of many terrible social dangers, but also gives rise to many political blunders.

The object of the establishment of a government is to secure peace and tranquillity to the public, and this object is only realized when the rulers and the ruled are satisfied with each other. The absence of uniformity and impartiality in laws framed by Government causes extreme discontent and engenders differences, which prove disadvantageous to the country, to the people, and to the Government.

It is proved by history, that there is nothing more destructive of the welfare and prosperity of a country than the existence of improper differences between the rulers and the ruled. Progress in all things appertaining to the human kind depends on political tranquillity. The pleasures of life cannot be enjoyed without it.

Men, whether they are rulers or the ruled when living at one place and not observing the duties and obligations of sociality, cannot inherit political tranquillity and social pleasures.

Nature has united the two nations (Europeans and Natives) in a social relation in India. As union, unity and true love between the two nations increases, social and even political ties will be rendered stronger. Hence to frame any law from consideration of race distinctions only, is to break the social tie; and the absence of uniformity in Imperial laws is a terrible current for the stronghold of social union (between the two nations). There is nothing which so speedily and certainly creates social differences as distinctions in legislative enactments; and when the social ties existing between nations are once broken by such distinctions their pernicious effect does not disappear for centuries, even if all possible efforts be made to remove that effect. Had not the defunct Hindu and Muhammadan Governments in India committed this terrible mistake, they would not have been reduced to the miserable plight of non-existence; nor would improper prejudices of caste and religion have so much interfered with the social life of the people. The social pleasures of life are secured by being subject to one and the same laws and by living under the same Government. Hence, when the Criminal Law in its own nature requires to be amended, when strong reasons of justice, humanity and liberty are in favour of the amendment, and when its amendment is at the disposal of a benign and enlightened Government, which prizes the above-mentioned principles more than all other nations, and which was foremost in suppressing slavery in Europe and in introducing constitutional laws in its realms, under such conditions our only duty is to leave the question on its own merits in the hands of the Government and to respectfully wait for the result.

9. The Anjuman believes with great certainty that as the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill requires no arguments to support and to defend it, it is equally safe from the attacks of its opponents. The Anjuman, however, cannot but express its regret at the attitude taken by its opponents. The reason of this regret is not only that the opponents of the Bill have differed in opinion on such an important question, but also as such opposition engenders feelings which are destructive to the pleasures of social life in India.

What is taught by example produces a far greater effect than verbal instructions. It is universally admitted by the distinguished statesmen throughout the world that there is no human act or word which does not produce unlimited effect. The good and evil acts of mankind are always alive, and produce their result. Of course it is possible that we may not see those results. Even the most insignificant and undistinguished persons cannot say that their words and acts do not produce any effect whatever on any person. In this world no person is independent of social ties, all being fastened in one social chain, and being in need of help from one another. Every person considers that every one else commits more evils and less virtues than himself. The words and acts of our ancestors have had an effect upon us; and so our words and acts would have effect on the coming generations. Man is the fruit of the manipulations of many centuries. For thousands of years past the successive generations have depended for knowledge upon their predecessors, and the present generation would likewise magnetically impart the effect of its words and acts to their successors. The work of no person perishes; indeed it may happen that his body may become dust and fly in the air, and no trace of it may be found; but the evil or good acts would always take their effect. If man may ponder over this deep subject, he would know what a great responsibility devolves upon him. Upon such deliberations he is pleased at his virtuous acts and is terrified at the terrible consequences of evil actions. Mr. Babbage writes to the following effect:—"Every atom in this world retains the effect of man's virtues and evils; and would always continue to retain this effect. Air is a library in which every man's words are preserved in a written form."

All promises which have not been fulfilled, all harsh words which have been uttered, and all the insults which have been pronounced, exist in it. Not only the air, but the earth, sea, and all other things are histories of the actions and feelings of man. The modern sciences clearly shew that no movement ever perishes. The science of mechanics proves that there are thousands of witnesses to each act of murder. Whatever movement issues from the body of the murderer at the time when he commits the murder, i. e., the movement of his hand, would ever exist. In short, whatever we do, whatever we speak, whatever we see, and whatever we hear, all these have their effects, which go on spreading for ever. These effects do not only affect ourselves, but affect the whole nation. It is possible, however, that we may not perceive the way in which they affect us. Hence it is greatly necessary to set good examples; to entertain only such ideas as may be useful; to speak only such words as may produce good; and to do only such acts as may afford good examples to others.

10. It has been clearly proved in paragraph 9, and by the words of Mr. Babbage included in it, that the human acts have an imperishable effect which exist for ever, and that practical instruction is a better preceptor than verbal instruction, the former being far superior to the latter. We learn more by the eye than by the ear. What we see by the eyes has a far greater effect than what we merely hear by the ears, or read in books; for example takes a spontaneous effect on man without his desiring that effect. Sir Peter Lessley, who was a distinguished painter, says: "I do not possibly cast my eyes on bad paints, as by seeing them my pen imperceptibly learns to imitate to draw such paints." In short, man is affected by every sort of company imperceptibly.

The faculty of imitation naturally exists in every person; but the weak, the uneducated, and the children have greater susceptibility for it. A gentleman observes that children are like certain insects, which assume the colour of the tree they climb. Hence, what is learnt in childhood is mostly learnt by observation.

From these remarks it is evident that practical conduct is a great preceptor for human instruction. Although every human being possesses a faculty to imitate, yet the weak and infirm naturally are more apt to imitate the actions of the robust and the strong, as all the principles of sociality are based on this very law. Little children learn the habits, customs and morals of their parents, but not the parents of their children. In short, the conquered generally imitate the actions of the conquerors. "People follow the creed of their sovereigns" supports this natural principle.

11. The Anjuman expresses its regret at the attitude taken by the opponents (Europeans, who belong to the same nationality as the Government) of the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, for the reason that through their sincere fidelity the native subjects of the Government consider the authorities as occupying a superior position than their own parents, and that in consequence, like little children they take pride in imitating their actions.

The people belonging to the conquering nation, irrespective of the fact whether they are or are not connected with any departments of Government service, are considered as the ruling race, and their words and actions are not considered distinct from those of Government.

The Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, independently of the fact that it is founded on sound principles, is a Bill introduced by Government into the Legislative Council for consideration. Government itself is considering the expediency of bringing about a uniformity in the laws by removing defects in them. Government itself desires to free the courts of its loyal and able servants from certain disabilities. Under these circumstances, the opposition shown by Europeans against the Bill is in reality an opposition against Government itself, not against the Native subjects of the State.

12. The lesson which the Natives would take from such practical conduct of Europeans is evident; and the terrible social, nay political, dangers, which may be expected to arise from such lessons, are also evident. This Society has, for these considerations, been obliged to express its regret at the attitude taken by certain silly members of the civilised and enlightened European nation.

13. In conclusion, the Anjuman sincerely believes that the far-seeing Government of the Punjab, and the enlightened Government of India, and especially His Excellency Lord Ripon, would bestow due consideration upon the views herein expressed; and, while trying with due foresight to evade any possibility of the establishment of such a dangerous example, would assert that the opposition alluded to was not capable of producing any effect whatever, so that the Natives may not even entertain a thought of being affected by it in any way.

No. 1778, dated 6th June 1882.

From—G. W. RIVAZ, Esq. Registrar, Chief Court, Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

I am directed to submit the opinions asked for in your No. 441, dated 12th ultimo.

Memoranda by the Judges of the Chief Court of the Punjab on the proposal to invest Native Covenanted Civilians with powers to try European British subjects.

I concur in the views of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal as expressed in paragraph 3 of his Secretary's letter. A Native Covenanted Civilian who has attained the position of District Magistrate or Sessions Judge should, in my opinion, not be disqualified from exercising the same powers over European British subjects as are exercised by English Covenanted Civilians in the same position. And I would go further and declare that any Native Covenanted Civilian is eligible to be made a Justice of the Peace beyond the limits of the Presidency towns as if he were a European British subject, and when so made is competent to try European British subjects as if he were himself a European British subject.

J. W. SMYTH,
Judge.

29th May 1882.

It appears to me rather premature to alter a law which has just been passed on such an important point. I am willing to admit, however, that it would be very anomalous to appoint a Native Covenanted Civilian to the charge of a district, and to deny him jurisdiction over European British subjects. I think that serious practical difficulties might arise if such jurisdiction were not given. I would therefore amend the law to this extent, if it is in contemplation to appoint Natives to the charge of districts.

But I would not go further in the meanwhile. I do not think any practical difficulty is likely to arise for some time to come from not giving Native Sessions Judges powers to pass the high sentences on European British subjects contemplated by Section 449 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Cases of the kind are not very common, and I think no practical difficulty will arise from sending them to the nearest Sessions Judge who is qualified under the Act as it now stands. The course recommended by Mr. Justice Smyth is perhaps the logical sequence of the policy now in force regarding the employment of Natives in the Civil Service; but as I have had no practical experience of the result of the working of that policy, I am not yet prepared to say that every logical sequence of that policy must be accepted and acted upon. In a matter of this kind, I think it is well not to forget the saying 'festina lente.'

G. R. ELSMIE,
Judge.

31st May 1882.

I concur with Mr. Justice Smyth. The question would be one of the fitness of each individual proposed for appointment as Justice of the Peace to be invested with that office, and not one of the fitness of the members of a class, some of whom might be holding charge of a district or acting as a Sessions Judge. I can see no reason why an officer selected for appointment as Sessions Judge, who, in the case of Europeans not being European British subjects or Americans, could, on conviction of an offence, pass any sentence authorized by law, should not be given the same jurisdiction over European British subjects as other Sessions Judges.

D. G. BARKLEY,
Judge.

31st May 1882.

I would certainly alter the law so far as to permit Native Civilians who had risen to the post of District Magistrates or Sessions Judges to exercise all the powers over European British subjects as the European members of the same service holding the like appointments now exercise. But I would hesitate to recommend that all Native Civilians should be appointed Justices of the Peace. Selected members might be so appointed, but in the first instance I would confine the appointment to those Native Civilians who had not had less than ten years' service.

W. H. RATTIGAN,
Judge.

6th June 1882.

No. 561, dated 9th June 1882.

From—J. M. DOVE, Esq., Secretary to Financial Commissioner, Punjab,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 441, dated 12th May, forwarding, for opinion by Mr. Lyall, a copy of Government of India's No. 7—589, dated 28th April, on the question whether jurisdiction over European British subjects should be granted to Native Covenanted Civilians, or at least to such of them as have reached the position of District Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

2. In reply, I am to say that Mr. Lyall considers that it is decidedly necessary and advisable that Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service, who have attained the rank of District Magistrate or Sessions Judge, should be given jurisdiction over European British subjects. It may confidently be expected that they are fit to be entrusted with this power; and there are also strong administrative reasons for giving them such authority.

3. But he does not, on the whole, think it at present advisable to give other Native Covenanted Civilians the power. No administrative necessity for the measure is apparent, and though it is true that their jurisdiction would be contingent on their being appointed Justices of the Peace by some Local Government, yet, looking to the class of men who are likely for some time to come to be appointed in India as Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service, Mr. Lyall thinks that even with this safeguard the change is not desirable.

No. 1487, dated 22nd May 1882.

From—COLONEL C. A. McMAHON, Commissioner and Superintendent, Amritsar Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

Jurisdiction over European British subjects.

In reply to your No. 441 of the 12th instant, I have the honour to offer the following remarks.

2. I have never yet met a Native member of the Covenanted Civil Service, but, looking at the question raised in the correspondence forwarded with your letter under reply from a theoretical point of view, I see no reason why a native of India who, by his education and personal qualifications, has been considered a suitable person for appointment to the Covenanted Civil Service, should not be invested with all those magisterial powers with which an English member of the Covenanted Civil Service, holding a similar official position, would be invested. I think it would be creating an invidious distinction between the Native and English members of the Civil Service to proceed on the assumption that whereas the English Covenanted Civilians may be expected, as Magistrates and Judges, to impartially try all cases in which the Natives of India are concerned, the Native Covenanted Civilian cannot be expected to impartially try criminal cases in which Englishmen are concerned.

3. The above remarks must, however, be understood to apply to the members of the Covenanted Civil Service only, and not to the Native members of the Uncovenanted Civil Service generally. As far as the Uncovenanted Service of the Punjab is concerned, I do not think the members of it, as a body, are prepared for any alteration of the existing rule. There are some, I think, who, were they invested with jurisdiction over Europeans, would, with the idea of courting popularity, be unduly lenient in the case of Europeans; and there are others who might, I fear, be glad of the opportunity of being harsh and severe where an Englishman was concerned.

No. 1083, dated 22nd May 1882.

From—COLONEL W. G. DAVIES, C.S.I., Commissioner and Superintendent, Jullundur Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

I have the honour to furnish herewith the opinion called for in your endorsement No. 441 of 12th instant, forwarding copy of a letter and its enclosures from the Secretary to Government of India, Home Department, No. 7-589 of 28th April 1882.

2. The question referred for opinion is, whether the restriction placed by the Criminal Procedure Code on the powers of Native members of the Civil Service, whereby they are debarred from exercising the limited jurisdiction over Europeans given to members of their service, who are also European British subjects, should be removed or not.

3. I have carefully considered this question, and I am most distinctly of opinion that the restriction should be removed. I am unable to perceive any sound argument in favour of its retention, while there are many such in favour of its removal. The latter are to be found fully set forth in the letter from the Bengal Government, and its enclosures, which form part of the documents received with your endorsement under reply, and I have little to add to them.

4. The maintenance of the distinction in this respect between European and Native members of the Civil Service is invidious, and in time would lead to administrative inconvenience. It is invidious, because it undoubtedly casts a slur on a body of Native gentlemen which has been carefully selected and trained for judicial and administrative duties of a high order, and in effect imputes to its members the want of sufficient moral courage and impartiality to deal with Europeans charged with the pettiest offences for which the maximum punishment is three months' imprisonment or a fine. So stated, the imputation appears to me to have absurdity on the face of it, and, so far as experience of many years in the Presidency towns enables us to judge, it has been shown to be groundless. If educated Native gentlemen there can be safely trusted to try Europeans for petty offences, why should not the same class of men be relied on to exercise similar authority in the mofussil? Then as to administrative inconvenience, it is not difficult to foresee how this might arise, as the employment of Natives in the ranks of the Covenanted Civil Service increases, and they gradually rise to the higher judicial and administrative posts, if the restriction on their powers, which we have been considering, be continued. Instances of such inconvenience, and of the anomalous positions in which Native Covenanted Civilians might be placed by the maintenance of the restriction under discussion, are given in paragraph 3 of the letter from the Bengal Government referred to above.

5. Objections against giving to Native Civilian Judges and Magistrates the same jurisdiction over Europeans as that possessed by their European brethren had their origin in, and are still to some extent kept alive by, prejudice and pride of race. But these feelings, which were naturally very strong when we first established ourselves as a conquering race in this country, have been gradually losing much of their force as education has advanced and has diffused among the Natives of this country a knowledge of our language, and, through it, of Western arts and civilization, and is slowly promoting a closer intercourse between us Europeans and the better educated classes of the Native community; and the time seems to me to have arrived when we ought to remove from the Statute Book a provision like this, which rests only on the weak remains of an old class prejudice, which is likely to be administratively inconvenient, and which places an undeserved stigma on a class of men in our service who have a special claim to fair and generous treatment at our hands.

No. 86 C., dated 24th May 1882.

From—J. G. CORDERY, Esq., Commissioner and Superintendent, Peshawar Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

In reply to No. 441, dated 12th instant, I have the honour to state that I should be in favour of investing any native of the country, who was a Covenanted Civil Servant, and who had also risen to the post of a Magistrate of the district, or Sessions Judge, with the same jurisdiction over European British subjects as are conferred upon European Justices of the Peace.

2. In the face of a Civil officer who is a native of the country being raised to positions of such responsibility and trust in the administration as those involved in the charge of a district and of a Sessions Court, I conceive that no distinction between them and the European members of the same service, with regard to jurisdiction over Europeans, is any longer maintainable.

No. 301, dated 13th July 1883.

From—J. G. CORDERY, Esq., Resident, Haidarabad,
To—The Secy. to Govt. of India, Legislative Department.

In reply to your letter No. 33C. of the 17th March 1883, I have the honour to submit the opinions called for from the Commissioner and other officers of the Haidarabad Assigned Districts, concerning the proposed Bill for the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. The Bill as it now stands would allow to the Governor General in Council and Local Governments the power of conferring upon Native members of the covenanted civil service or upon Natives selected for the civil service under 33 Vic., cap. 3, or upon Native Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation provinces or upon Native Cantonment Magistrates the powers hitherto reserved to European British subjects as Justice of the Peace. These consist in hearing criminal charges brought against European British subjects and Americans, and in disposing of them according to the powers defined in sections 446-449 of the Code. The European would thus become liable to a sentence of three months' imprisonment and 1,000 rupees fine, or to be committed to the Court of Sessions or the High Court, by a Native Judge. By a further provision, section 450 is abrogated, and he would therefore be also liable to a sentence of one year and unlimited fine at the hands of a Native Sessions Judge; but in this last case, the aid of assessors, not less than half of whom must on his requisition be Europeans, would be required.

3. The Bill also limits the appointment of Justice of the Peace to certain classes, and thus has the effect of disenfranchising all European Extra Assistant Commissioners and others who have been hitherto not unfrequently gazetted to these functions. This has probably been done in order to place the Native Extra Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Collector in the same position as the European officer of the same grade in the service, both being equally disqualified.

4. The object of the Bill is stated to be the settlement of this particular "question of jurisdiction in such a way as to remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race-distinctions." I would express my full sympathy with this object so far as the distinctions alluded to are based on ignorant prejudice against blood, creed or colour. But, if differences that are the result of national characteristics, special training and varying opportunities for obtaining knowledge of particular subjects are included in the term, it is obvious that such disqualifications as may be held naturally to follow from these differences are recognized in the daily life of men all over the world, and that it is impossible to abolish them except on paper. It would be most unjust to ascribe the opposition which this proposal has encountered solely or even generally to any blind or unreasoning assertion of a race-superiority. It is due to a profound sense that, large as the acquirements of many Native gentlemen have become, our experience has not yet proved them to be endowed with the qualities most essential for the administration of criminal justice between European and European, or between Europeans on one side and Natives on the other.

5. The knowledge of law and subtlety in its application, and a colloquial command of the English tongue, are accomplishments in which many Indian Magistrates are acknowledged masters. But it is felt, and truly felt, that these are not the main requisites needed for the disposal of cases likely to be brought before them under the provisions of the new Bill. The qualities most necessary for this purpose are (1) a sufficient knowledge of the temper, habits and character of both the parties in the case; and (2) the possession of that nerve which comes from a feeling that the Judge possesses the confidence of both parties, and from holding a position which precludes any tendency either to arrogant self-assertion in one class of character or timidity in another.

6. It is hardly maintainable in argument that the Native gentlemen who are affected by this Bill can be gifted with the first of these attributes. It is no disparagement upon their ability to say this, because they cannot possibly have had any opportunity of gaining the only experience that could confer it. Cases are happily too few in the interior for the proposed jurisdiction ever to furnish them with the means for its acquirements. The only manner in which this objection can be met is that which I have seen adopted in a very temperate speech by Sir Jamsetji Jeejeebhoy at a Bombay meeting in favour of the Bill. He urged—and I have seen it elsewhere urged—that in this respect the Englishman before a Native Judge is not worse off than the Native before a European. But this comparison leaves wholly out of sight one most important distinction. The Englishman, both before and after these powers are granted to him, is devoting the best part of his life-time, and the whole of his working hours, towards the attainment of some degree of the requisite knowledge of the Native classes under his rule; whereas the Native officer will probably not have more than a dozen cases before him in his whole career by which he can be helped towards the attainment of the same knowledge of the European. In the Presidency-towns, where such offences are common, the Native Magistrate may perhaps gain the necessary knowledge with comparative ease, just as the Englishman gains it by his work in the interior. But there is no such practice to enable the Native Magistrate to acquire experience of the European in the Mufassal; and his previous training is not such as to supply the want.

7. As the degree of criminality attaching to an act is generally dependent on the intention or malice from which it has originated, I cannot wonder at the sensation which the proposal to place the power of drawing this inference in the hands of men who are ignorant of European character has caused in the European community.

8. Hardly less necessary than special knowledge is the possession of nerve in dealing with members of what is in fact, and must long appear, the dominant race in India to the Native mind. There is probably no officer of old standing in the civil service who has not at some short period in his career been compelled to incur severe odium from his own countrymen in dealing justice between influential Englishmen and Native complainants. Knowing little of Bengal proper, the arguments against the Bill, which are derived apparently from the chance of connivance on the part of the Judge, with false charges, speak to me with no force, nor do I believe that Native Justices of the Peace would err, except through ignorance, in the entertainment of such charges. But, in those parts of India which I have known, the risks and responsibility of dealing with criminal charges against Englishmen in India would have the strongest tendency to impair the soundness of their judgment.

9. The present agitation alone suffices to show how entirely destitute such officers would be of that power of inspiring confidence which is an essential condition of success in a Court of Justice. And, until it can be shown that this feeling is grounded on a false estimate of Native character in these two important points, or that this estimate is contradicted by our daily experience and by the probabilities of the case, I cannot think that the time has come for investing our Native officers with jurisdiction of this exceptional description.

10. How bitterly the withdrawal of what is deemed a British privilege will be resented is known to Government. If that privilege were based on nothing but the desire to uphold the prestige of the Englishman in the country, I should still hesitate to withdraw it, unless its revocation were demanded by administrative necessities, or by justice towards our Native subjects. But since, in the first place, I believe it to be founded on distinctions, not of race, but of aptitudes and qualifications resulting from the training and characteristics of different races; since, secondly, no practical inconvenience of any magnitude arises from its maintenance; and since, in the third place, no injustice to others (who were perfectly aware of the existing restriction when they entered their appointments) is involved, I can see no reason whatever for the introduction of the change.

11. It must be allowed, however, that the question of abandoning the Bill altogether, in the face of a public agitation against it, and as a piece of policy at the present moment, is beset with some difficulties. It is certain that to impose the Bill in its present shape on the English portion of the population would be a violation of the most ordinary principles of liberal government. They have pronounced their opinion unmistakeably against it, and the mass of the people is unconcerned and uninterested in the matter, which only affects a small class desirous of a theoretical equalization. On the other hand, it may be said that the Government of India should not take any course that gives them the aspect of yielding to demonstrations against their measures; and it may also be urged that the principle of ultimate and potential advancement of Natives to these powers is one of too much importance to be sacrificed even in appearance and for a time.

12. On the whole, the most straightforward course appears to me to be the best. If the Government of India is now convinced that they were misled into the belief that "the time had come" for the measure, a frank admission of this error, if coupled with a strong assertion that the truth of the principle was still amply recognized, and that the time would come for its embodiment in a legislative Act, would be more likely to conciliate both sides to the quarrel and to allay irritation than the enactment of any piece of prospective legislation, which would in itself be one of the worst of precedents and which would satisfy neither party.

No. 2934, dated 11th June 1883.

From—S. O. B. RIDSDALE, Esq., Commissioner, Haidarābād Assigned Districts,
To—The Secretary for Bīrār to Resident, Haidarābād.

I have the honour to submit my opinion on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1852, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, which was invited in your endorsement No. 165 of 4th April, and to enclose therewith the opinions of the Deputy Commissioners of Amraoti and Buldānā, whom I consulted on the matter.

2. I purposely delayed submitting my observations on an earlier date (as the Government of India do not require a reply till the 13th July), in order to give myself the fullest opportunity of careful deliberation on the measure which has given rise to so much acrimonious discussion, and to profit by such expressions of calmer public opinion as might be elicited after the violence which characterized the early stages of the discussion had somewhat subsided.

3. The arguments put forward in support of the Bill appear to me to be briefly the following :—

- (1) that it is expedient to remove the anomaly in the law which, while professing to treat all races and creeds impartially, excludes Europeans to a large extent from the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of the country;
- (2) that it is unfair to, and implies a slur on, the Native members of the covenanted civil service to prohibit them from exercising a jurisdiction which all the European members of the service, even when their juniors, are qualified to exercise;
- (3) that administrative inconvenience may be, and has been, experienced in consequence of this prohibition when Native Civilians are or may be appointed as Magistrates or Judges to districts where there are many Europeans.

4. Of these three arguments, the two first appear to me to be principally, if not wholly, of a theoretic or sentimental nature; the latter only has a practical bearing.

The first or "anomaly" argument is, to my mind, sufficiently disposed of by the circumstance that a large number of other anomalies or special privileges in regard to practical exemption from certain general provisions of the law are still maintained in and recognized by, the Code, which, if we regard only uniformity, would be as little defensible as the one now under discussion, and further that, even if the Code is amended as proposed, Europeans will still enjoy certain remaining privileges in regard to their treatment by Criminal Courts which are as anomalous as the particular privilege now proposed to be curtailed.

It appears to me to be obviously illogical to raise an objection to any specific exemption on the general ground of its being an anomaly, unless it be proposed simultaneously to abolish all distinctions and exemptions of all kinds and degrees.

5. The second or "want of confidence" argument does not appear to me to carry much weight or to bear very close investigation.

I am totally unable to see how the exemption of certain persons or classes from any particular tribunal can be held to be a grievance to that tribunal; neither can I see how a member of any service can say that a slur is cast upon him by the operation of rules which were in existence, and thoroughly well known, when he entered its ranks. Every Native who competed for an appointment in the Indian civil service was thoroughly aware that if he joined it he would not be competent to try Europeans except as a Presidency Magistrate or a High Court Judge.

Having accepted this condition, he cannot now complain of it as a grievance or as lowering him in the esteem of his fellow-countrymen. If he thought such a limitation a slur and an indignity, he need not have subjected himself to the reproach.

6. I am, moreover, quite unable to sympathize with the sentiment that, if under the present provisions of the law a Native Magistrate of a district shall be obliged to refer a charge against a European to the Joint Magistrate for trial, as being himself incompetent by his nationality to entertain it, he should consider himself placed thereby in a derogatory position. It appears to me that, as a matter of procedure prescribed by law, the selection of the tribunal before which any particular class of offender should be tried must be as much a matter of absolute indifference to the person administering that law as any other item of procedure prescribed therein.

7. The third argument based on "convenience of administration" is alone, in my opinion, worthy of consideration ; and although I do not think a sufficiently strong case has been made out to show that on this ground a change in the law is urgently and immediately required, still I think that it is manifest to any one taking a dispassionate view of the position that, by the admission of Natives into the covenanted civil service and their consequent rise therein to become Magistrates of districts and Sessions Judges, a change has clearly been brought about which must necessarily affect in an increasing degree the number of officials qualified to try offences by Europeans under the present law.

8. The question, therefore, which to my mind demanded a clear solution before any action towards amending the law could safely be recommended, was whether such an amount of administrative inconvenience had actually been felt hitherto, or was immediately to be apprehended, in regard to dealing with offences by Europeans, owing to such offences not being triable by Native officials, as to require some amendment of the law on this point.

9. I cannot find that the actual present existence of such a difficulty has been complained of, or represented by, any of the Local Governments, neither have any instances been adduced, as far as I can gather, in any of the speeches in support of this Bill establishing that such difficulty has been felt.

The two instances quoted, those of Messrs. Dutt and Tagore, do not seem to me to establish an administrative difficulty of much magnitude.

In the case of Mr. Dutt, it is urged that he could not be sent to Dacca as Magistrate, on account of the probable influx of Europeans consequent on the construction of the new railway in the neighbourhood.

And the case of Mr. Tagore is very similar, it being urged that, owing to the possible construction of a railway to the station where he is at present posted as Judge, cases may arise which he cannot deal with.

The administrative difficulty in each case is easily solved, as it was in the case of Mr. Dutt, by sending the officer in question to some other station. It has not been asserted, as far as I am aware, that any Local Government has not, at present at least, an abundant supply of qualified officers available for employment in places where offences by Europeans are likely to occur ; and I totally deny that Mr. Dutt has any inherent right to be sent to Dacca as Magistrate, or Mr. Tagore to remain as Judge at Kārwar, if it appears to the Local Government that their services can be more usefully employed elsewhere.

10. Still I admit that as more of the Natives now in the covenanted service attain these higher posts, the difficulty may occasionally, though rarely, arise. It seems, indeed, almost absolutely impossible for the difficulty to be felt anywhere except in Bengal, where six out of the total number of nine covenanted civilians now in the service are posted. There is only one such officer (a very junior one) in the North-West, and there are two in the Bombay Presidency. There are none anywhere else.

It seems, therefore, very questionable whether any measures of this kind are now required at all. I think, however, the circumstances fully justify a discussion of the alteration in the law, which it might be possible and advisable to introduce should the difficulty appear to warrant such alteration.

11. Some such alteration may indeed be advisable in the interests of Europeans themselves, as it would in some cases be conceivably a considerable hardship to a European charged with some petty offence to be sent off to a distant station with his witnesses when he might be quite willing that the charge should be disposed of by the resident Native Magistrate.

12. But in discussing such proposals I should attach the fullest weight to the fact that the present exemptions accorded by the law to Europeans in regard to their subjection to the Criminal Courts are esteemed by them, whether reasonably or not, as the most highly valued privileges and safeguards, and should hold that, unless some special reasons of the gravest political or administrative importance can be established for such a course, it would be altogether unfair, as well as impolitic, to curtail or interfere with them.

Moreover, I think it distinctly advisable on political grounds to retain, at any rate for the present, these exemptions and limitations as the special privilege of the ruling race.

13. In devising, therefore, any means of meeting the difficulty of dealing with offences by Europeans at places where there may be no resident official qualified for the purpose, I should be most careful to preserve the spirit of these privileges as far as practicable.

In this view I do not see that there could be much objection in allowing a Sessions Judge, when a Native, to preside over the trial of a European, provided that the jury or assessors consisted exclusively of Europeans, or if a mixed body of jurors or assessors were retained, then one or more European officers should be associated with the Native Judge on the bench.

Similarly, in cases of trial before a Magistrate, I would allow a bench to be formed, over which the Native Magistrate might preside, provided the majority of the bench consisted of Europeans.

And I would further, if circumstances did not admit of the formation of a jury, body of assessors or bench constituted as above, allow the European accused to have the option of waiving his privilege and accepting the unaided jurisdiction of the Native officer.

14. I do not at all proffer these suggestions as the best possible solution of the difficulty, but merely as indicating the direction in which, in my opinion, the law might with advantage be amended should circumstances be found to require it.

15. There is also, in my opinion, another serious defect in the present Bill, namely, that, while circumstances seem to indicate the necessity of providing more officials qualified to deal with European offenders, it rejects the services of that valuable class of experienced unconvicted officers who have been hitherto entrusted with the commission of the peace, and who have discharged their duties in that capacity, as far as I am aware, most satisfactorily.

16. Altogether, I think the Bill as at present drawn is open to many most serious objections, and should be withdrawn, a measure being substituted framed on the lines indicated above, if it be sufficiently shown that the "time has come" for such alteration of the law on the grounds of administrative convenience.

The storm of opposition which the Bill has excited is due, in my opinion, principally to its being based on theoretic and sentimental grounds, rather than on the necessities of practical administration. A reasonable measure framed only to provide for these necessities would, I have little doubt, meet with ready acceptance and approbation.

No. 1070, dated 2nd May 1883.

From—COLONEL R. C. MENZIES, Deputy Commissioner, Buldāná District,
To—The Commissioner, Haidarābād Assigned Districts.

I have the honour to return the papers, alluded to in your letter No. 1833, dated 12th April 1883, on the subject of the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects by Natives.

2. When I first had before me the proposal which this Bill embodies, it was in a very different shape. A Native gentleman of the civil service had brought to notice that there was an anomaly in his non-possession of the jurisdiction over European British subjects which pertained to the European members of his service. I expressed the opinion that there was an anomaly and that it should be remedied, or that an understanding should be arrived at under which Native members of the civil service should not hold office as Sessions Judges or District Magistrates. I was further of opinion that any experimental alteration of the law should apply alone to Native members of the civil service who had received a training in England.

3. I was scarcely prepared for the determination of the Government of India to remove from the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race-distinctions, and thereby withdraw from Europeans in India one of their most cherished privileges.

4. I was not prepared to be told that to withdraw this privilege would be an amendment of the Code in so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over Europeans. I cannot admit that the Bill will improve the existing law in any particular. I am convinced that, if it becomes law, it will work serious mischief.

5. In the course of a service in India which has now extended over a third of a century, and which has for by far the greater part been spent in the performance of civil duties, I have never heard a Native Magistrate complain that the law did not give him jurisdiction over Europeans. I will go further and assert that I have never heard of a Native Magistrate so complaining until Mr. Gupta brought himself to notice in that way.

6. I am nauseated with the arguments pro and con. the Bill contained in speeches and newspaper articles. I wish to add none to those which were so ably laid before the Council of the Governor General of India by official and non-official gentlemen who take the same view of the Bill as I do.

7. I consider the Bill unnecessary, and a great mistake. It has already worked incalculable mischief; it has set race against race; it will take years to undo what has been done. We shall have Europeans running atilt against every exclusive privilege held by Natives; the peace of the country will be disturbed.

8. Is it not rather an anomaly to ask the European to submit to the jurisdiction of Native Magistrates when we all know that the Hindu hates to be tried by the Muhammadan (or vice versa) if his accuser is of the same race as the Magistrate; and when we all know that this hatred is begotten of a distrust that the Magistrate will be strong enough to do justice, although a just decision may give offence to the local community of his own race. It is not enough in India to be just; one must be believed to be just at all risks. Is it not well known that District Magistrates are constantly asked to transfer cases to their own files from those of Native Magistrates for reasons which are not flattering to those Magistrates? Do District Magistrates never receive from Native gentlemen, who are special or honorary Magistrates, requests to be spared the trial of particular cases lest they should incur the enmity of the accused or accuser, or a caste? Do Natives ever place implicit confidence in one another? Is there not that wretched word "adawut" perpetually being rung in our ears? Is it not freely used to account for a decision which a Native judicial officer may rightly have made, and which some of his caste may not approve of? Is the Native Magistrate strong enough to face all this in a quiet place in the Mufassal, where he has no backers in the shape of counsel, or newspaper editors or an educated Native public to take his part? The pettiest magisterial case in which a European may be involved will become a question taken up by a whole caste, and, if the Magistrate belongs to that caste, no one will believe in the honesty of the decision he may give. There are disqualifications for certain judicial duties which legislation cannot remove, though it may be good policy to ignore their existence when arguing on this Bill. It has been said that this Bill is a final measure; does any European forget that Governments are not bound by the declared policy of preceding Governments? Is not this Bill now looked on generally as the introduction of the thin end of the wedge?

9. I humbly hope that the Viceroy, who has committed himself to no decided opinion as yet, will, when he receives the opinions of those who have been consulted, see his way to the withdrawal of the Bill, and thus restore quiet to India, though I fear that to do this will be a work of time.

No. 266, dated 27th April, 1883.

From—MAJOR R. BULLOCK, Esq., Deputy Commissioner, Amraoti District,
To—The Commissioner, Haidarābād Assigned Districts.

With reference to your No. 1833, dated 12th April, I have the honour to state that I believe that I have already expressed my opinion on the subject referred to.

2. My opinion was, I think, that I could see no objection to Native members of the co-venanted civil service being appointed Justices of the Peace, nor in the abstract do I see any such objection now; but the recent agitation which has taken place has, I think, raised the question whether it is worth while to make the alteration proposed in the law in the face of such a very strong opposition as has been developed.

3. It has been admitted, I think, by very high authorities that there is a real danger for Europeans living alone in remote districts and parts of districts of having their cases tried by persons not conversant with their modes of life, and cases might often occur where a Native Magistrate would have to try a European for an offence against a European, in which case the danger of the Judge misunderstanding the case would be greater than in cases between Europeans and Natives.

4. Altogether, I am inclined to doubt the policy of making the alteration.

No. 1871, dated 20th June 1883.

From—COLONEL J. G. BELL, Judicial Commissioner, Haidarābād Assigned Districts,
To—The Secretary for Birar to Resident, Haidarābād.

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 166 J., dated the 4th April last, and to report as follows.

2. I have been absent from India while the discussion in regard to this Bill has been going on, and since my return I have not been able to ascertain the feelings of the non-official European British subjects in Berar on the contemplated legislation. There are, however, compared with other parts in India, very few Europeans in Birar, and a portion of these only are British subjects. I am therefore only able to give my own personal thoughts on the subject for what they may be thought worth.

3. The object of the proposed Bill is (1) to remedy an admitted anomaly, and (2) to remove an invidious distinction which might cause practical inconvenience in the administration of justice.

4. In regard to the first point, it is true that there is an anomaly; but is this the only anomaly in our rule in India? Is not our presence here at all, a mere handful of foreigners ruling millions of the Natives of India, an anomaly which we cannot account for and cannot remedy? And as we are here, is it to be wondered at that our countrymen, whose lot is cast in the East not as rulers but dwellers under our Government, should wish to be tried by their own countrymen and not by Natives?

5. I have in the course of my long service had opportunities of hearing the opinions of Europeans (British and others), as well as of Natives, on the administration of justice by both European and Native Judges. I am bound to say that I have heard remarks not altogether complimentary to the European, but I have never heard but one desire on the part of European merchants; and that is, that any criminal cases in which they might be concerned might be tried by the British Magistrates. Similarly, I have been requested, not once nor twice, but frequently, by Natives to transfer cases, civil and criminal, from Courts presided over by Natives to Courts in which justice was administered by European officers. Asked the reason for their application, the usual reply has been that they can trust the European officer to do his best, and what he honestly believes to be right and proper; though, with all the difficulties with which he is surrounded as a foreigner, differing in creed and colour from the Natives, it must, I think, be admitted that many errors are committed; still, the Natives have confidence in the European, which they have not in the Native officials.

6. I hope it will not be considered that these are my sentiments. I am merely stating sentiments expressed to me by Natives. I am not considering whether the Natives have good grounds for their sentiments, or whether they have made their statements to me merely with a view to flattering me as an official set in authority over them. I do not forget either that the Native officials, the subject of the above remarks, were not of the enlightened class which it is proposed to invest with jurisdiction over European British-born subjects.

If, however, the Natives have this preference for trial by Europeans, can we be astonished at the excitement which has been aroused among the European British-born population which may be located in various outlying stations of British India at the bare prospect of being tried by Natives, however distinguished a position these may hold in the civil service of India?

7. I do not mean to say that this agitation on the part of Europeans is altogether reasonable, but it is evidently very real, and, as such, is worthy of very careful consideration before it is determined to subject British European-born subjects to the jurisdiction of Native Magistrates. I have seen it stated that the number of Natives who would be qualified to exercise the jurisdiction which it is proposed to confer on them would for many years to come be extremely limited; and this is no doubt true. But if, as I believe it to be, the excitement is very real, it must be the principle involved in the proposed measure which has aroused it, and nothing else.

8. As to any practical inconvenience which may be felt from leaving matters as they are, I would ask whether in past years since Act X of 1872 became law, any practical inconvenience has ever been experienced from the existing state of things. I have never heard that it has, and, if so, why legislate to remedy what may be, and is, an undoubted anomaly, but which in every-day life does not interfere with the comfort and well-being of the Native population generally. Section 445 of Act X of 1882 provides, I think, for the disposal of any complaints made by Natives against Europeans in which immediate action is necessary.

My locum tenens called for the opinions of certain officers which I forward in original.

My opinion is that, if Government can find any way of receding from the position it has taken up in regard to the Bill, it would be advisable, at all events for a time, to abstain from proceeding with the Bill.

No. 581C.D., dated 21st April 1883.

From—LIEUT.-COLONEL J. FITZGERALD, Deputy Commissioner, Akola District,

To—The Judicial Commissioner, Haidarabad Assigned Districts.

I have been requested to record my opinion on the Bill for the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure of 1882, &c., and, in reply, have the honour to state as follows.

2. The general opinion among the Europeans of this district is very strongly against the Bill.

3. Few of those with whom I have talked over the subject have thought over the matter carefully; nevertheless, their opinions against the Bill are very strong, and all the more difficult to convince or argue with, because their objections to it are unreasonable.

4. Analysing, however, their feelings for them, it seems to them that the English Government are giving up, point after point, without a proportionate improvement on the part of the people of India as a whole to understand or appreciate, much less benefit by, what has been already conceded to them.

5. Such hurried concessions they consider dangerous to our rule, and I am not prepared to say that they are wrong.

6. This feeling of fear as to the result of such concessions naturally cannot be understood either by the English people or Parliament; therefore, the idea prevails that referring such a question to Parliament was but a farce, as the Government of India could almost as a certainty count on the result.

7. Unless the British Government is prepared to eat its words and gainsay its promises, such a Bill as the present must sooner or later be introduced, and it was most unfortunate that the advisers of Government did not subject the Bill to public criticism before bringing it before the Council.

8. The Bill can still be introduced and passed, provided a clause be appended that it is not to become law in any particular province or district unless made specially applicable by a notification in the Gazette of India.

9. I think, further, that Native Magistrates, before being invested with powers of Justice of the Peace, should have experience given them by acting for one or more years as Police Magistrates of the Presidency-towns.

10. Such experience would show them the style of offence which the British subject is most likely to commit.

11. The present Bill proves but too clearly that the Government of India have in this instance wholly misapprehended public feeling, and lost touch, as it were, not only of the peoples of India but also of their own countrymen.

12. I recommend that the Bill be persevered in and passed, but that it be left to Local Governments to make it applicable to portions of their territory as they may consider it advisable.

13. In conclusion, I would urge the necessity which exists for going slower than at present.

If our system of government were adopted by several European nations, as Spain, &c., revolutions would be the result. What, then, can we expect from the Natives of Hindustan, the bulk of whom know nothing and are careless for our liberal laws and institutions.

No. 1465, dated 23rd April, 1883.

From—COLONEL D. W. LAUGHTON, Deputy Commissioner, Basim District,
To—The Judicial Commissioner, Haidarabad Assigned Districts.

In reply to your endorsement No. 1197, dated 17th April 1883, I beg to observe that the object of the Bill appears to be to introduce certain changes in order to reduce certain anomalies in the law. The Natives enjoy many privileges which would not be accorded to Europeans. A Native lady of a certain class would be exempted from appearance in Court as a witness, whereas her European sister, of whatever rank, would not enjoy a similar privilege. Some time ago a Magistrate considered that it was absolutely necessary for the ends of justice that a Native lady should appear and be examined as a witness, but the High Court overruled the Magistrate's order, and directed that the Native lady should be examined by commission (vide case in matter of petition of Hurro Soondery Chowdrain, Indian Law Reports, Calcutta series, Volume IV, page 20).

2. It is necessary that a Native soldier be tried by a first-class Magistrate, however petty his offence may be.

3. These and such like anomalies do exist, and it is not considered desirable to remove them.

4. Taking the Natives generally, the great majority do not consider it a matter of pride to be considered British subjects, and there can be no doubt that there is still a great gulf between the races. It should, in my opinion, be the object of Government to reduce this gulf and minimise all tendencies to antagonism. The proposed Bill appears to be rather widening this gulf and exciting this antagonism; and, under the circumstances, it would appear advisable to postpone the passing of the proposed amendment, and after due consideration, I am inclined to agree with Mr. Howell's views on this subject as published in the papers. As quoted by him—"The privilege as to jurisdiction is the privilege of the prisoner, not the privilege of the Judge. The European had an objection to be tried by the Native. Considering the position in which he stood, the question was, whether you would put him in a position in which he did not at present stand. You placed no slight upon the Native by saying that he could only try a man of his own race. What was there against the feelings of the Native in saying that? Why should any one feel a slight because he was told that this particular man was to be tried in a particular way? On the other hand, it was a feeling, and not an unnatural one, that a man should wish to be tried by his own countrymen."

5. I do not ever remember an application having been made by a Native to transfer a case from a Court presided over by a European to one presided over by a Native; but I have known of applications by Natives to get cases transferred from Courts presided over by Natives to Courts presided over by Europeans.

6. Under the present Code, section 445, provision is made for emergencies, and any Native Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence committed by any European British subject in any case in which he could take cognizance of a like offence committed by another person, the process to be returnable before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to enquire into or try the case. Consequently, no inconvenience is likely to occur even after an increase in the number of members of the Civil Service who may be Natives of India. Some of these may have been educated in England and might be cultivated gentlemen and quite worthy of the powers in question; still, as it is likely to increase race antagonism if these powers are so granted, it appears hardly advisable at present to remove this particular race distinction.

7. At present, as stated above, there is no reason why a Native should look upon this distinction as a slight; but, if the Bill is passed, there would sure to be urgent appeals on the part of European accused to get cases transferred from Courts presided over by Native Magistrates, and this would the raise a slight.

8. It appears to me ~~last~~ it would be much wiser to allow a little time for the European public to become accustomed to the Native Magistrates who will enter the service after a thorough European education, and who will probably have become accustomed to European modes of thought, and show themselves to be cultivated gentlemen with undoubted principles of honour. It is probable that after a time the intense prejudice which clearly exists will wear away, and later on it will be easier to clear away not only this but other race distinctions.

9. If, however, it should be considered absolutely necessary to pass the Bill, I certainly agree with Colonel Menzies, Deputy Commissioner, Buldana, that "the experiment should be made under restricted conditions, and the exercise of jurisdiction over Europeans confined to Native civilians who have been trained in England."

No. 819-108, dated 25th April 1883.

From—A. ELLIOT, Esq., Officiating Deputy Commissioner, Wun District,
To—The Judicial Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

I have the honour, in accordance with your endorsement No. 1199 of 17th April 1883, to forward my opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. It has been said in favour of the Bill that its object is to do away with an anomaly. Yet, of all the privileges which European British subjects possess, the limitations on the sentences which may be inflicted by the Judge, the right to trial by a mixed jury or by mixed assessors, all the special rights of appeal, have been left untouched, whilst the privilege of being tried by a European British subject is alone attacked. And why? Has it ever been found that this privilege has caused any failure of justice? Has there been any outcry against the injustice or inexpediency of this privilege? Has any necessity been shewn for altering the law on this point? Not at all; but because one Native has risen to the rank of Judge in the Bengal Civil Service, and he does not like to feel that he has no criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects whilst his equals in the service have the power. For one man who has, and on the chance of four or five other Natives in the Civil Service reaching, the same position; from a mistaken sentiment of justice and equality; to please the platform cry of India for the Indians; to acquire a cheap popularity with the Natives, the most ancient and most highly-prized privilege of the ruling race is to be taken away.

3. Again, it is urged in favour of the Bill that Presidency Magistrates, whether Natives of India or not, can try and commit for trial any European British subject, and, if Native Magistrates are fit to exercise such powers in the Presidency towns, then they are equally fit to exercise them in the Mofussil. But the circumstances of the two cases are not similar. In the Presidency-towns, public opinion and the reports of cases in the daily papers are safeguards. An accused can always find European professional assistance, and an appeal or interim application to the High Court can be made at once, and, above all, there are proper and suitable buildings for European prisoners; whereas in the Mofussil, an English lady or gentleman might suffer imprisonment in a common Native jail for many days, perhaps weeks, before an appeal could be carried to the High Court, heard and the orders of the High Court brought back. Meantime, the prisoner may have died, and, if only injured in health and reputation, what compensation can he get?

4. Again, it has been said in favour of the Bill that no person is exempt from the jurisdiction of a Civil Court presided over by a Native Judge by reason of his being a European British subject. Why therefore should a European British subject be exempt from the jurisdiction of Native Judges' Criminal Courts? But here again the comparison is not fair; because, whatever the judgment of the Civil Court may be, execution can be stayed pending appeal, and, even during the continuance of the suit, the personal liberty of the subject is not affected. It is a very different matter for the European British subject whether his personal liberty is in question, or whether it is only his pocket and purse which are likely to suffer.

5. I do not say that there are not many Native Judges from whom a European British subject would receive justice; but no Native criminal tribunal does command the confidence of the non-official Europeans in this country.

False evidence is so easily obtained, and false complaints are so common, that the safeguard provided by the privilege which it is proposed to take away is not so much a privilege as a necessity.

6. I consider that if the proposed amendment be passed, the greatest injury to English interests in India will be caused, and most lamentable results will arise. There is no necessity whatever for the alteration, and, if the only object of the introduction of this Bill is to provide for the impartial and effectual administration of justice, the sooner it is withdrawn the better.

Dated 15th May, 1883.

From—R. D. HARE, Esq., Assistant Commissioner, Buldana,

To—The Judicial Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

With reference to your memorandum No. 1201 of the 17th ultimo, forwarding a copy of the Bill for the amendment of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and asking for an opinion on its provisions, I have the honour to state that I am of opinion that the Bill should not be proceeded with. It is not necessary for me to repeat again all the arguments that have so often been repeated by the opponents of the Bill; but, in a few words, I think that a measure so exceedingly unpopular with a large section of the community, as this one is, should not be passed except under pressure of necessity; and there seems to be no urgent necessity for the proposed alteration of the law at present, even on the score of administrative inconvenience.

Our Native fellow-subjects generally have not called out for the change; they are contented, I believe, with the present state of things as being the natural outcome of our position in the country; they see no anomalies in race-distinctions, and they prefer being tried by Europeans themselves, and I do not believe that they will feel any real gratitude for the extension of the jurisdiction over Europeans to Magistrates of Native race.

On the other hand, there is no question of the reality of the feelings of dislike and dismay with which the Bill has inspired the European community, and I believe there is reason for some of the fears they so freely express; for instance, that false accusations will be much more largely employed than before as weapons of offence against the lonely planter in the far Mofussil and will be harder to combat; and that, where liberty is supposed to be less secure, European capital and enterprise may possibly be to some extent diverted from the country, to its great loss.

There is, unfortunately, no doubt that the introduction of the Bill has done great harm in giving rise to bitter feelings of race-hostility, and there is every reason to fear that, if passed, it will do infinitely more in the same direction. And, this being the case, and the benefits expected for the Native community being so very small, and the disadvantages to the European community so great, I think, with deference, that it would be advisable and politic to abandon the Bill.

No. 1125, dated 17th July, 1883.

From—W. C. MACPHERSON, Esq., Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

I am directed to submit the accompanying memorial from the European residents of the Lakhimpur District against the passing of the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code.

Dated 4th July, 1883.

From—J. A. H. JACKSON, Esq., Joint Honourary Secretary, Indian Tea Association, Dibrugarh, To—The Deputy Commissioner, Dibrugarh.

I have the honour to request that you will kindly forward to the Chief Commissioner of Assam the enclosed petition (with original signatures attached) regarding the Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill.

Memorial of European British subjects of Dibrugarh, to the Chief Commissioner of Assam,— (dated 16th April, 1883).

The humble petition of Her Majesty's European subjects, residents of the Dibrugarh and neighbouring districts.

SHEWETH,—That at a public meeting held at Dibrugarh on the 21st February, 1883, to consider the amendment proposed by the Government of India to the Criminal Procedure Code as far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, the following resolution was carried unanimously :—

That this meeting indignantly protests against the most ancient privilege of a Briton being sacrificed merely for a political sentiment, and are strongly convinced that, especially in Assam, which differs greatly from other parts of India, both in being so isolated from the influence of public opinion, and owing everything to European enterprise and capital, such legislation as proposed will not only vitally injure European interests, but, by debarring future capitalists and alienating existing ones, will stop the progress of the province, and is even now aggravating, and will certainly revive, that antagonism and friction of races, which has of late years remained dormant.

That at a subsequent meeting held at Dibrugarh on the 26th March, 1883, both of which meetings were attended by a large majority of your memorialists, either personally or by proxies, it was unanimously decided that a statement of the opinions and feelings thereat expressed be submitted to the Chief Commissioner, and that he be memorialized to embody them in his final report to the Supreme Legislative Council on the said amendment, for the information of the Government of India, as being the mature and deliberate opinions of a community vitally interested in the welfare of the province of Assam.

It would be an act of supererogation to recapitulate here the numerous able and conclusive arguments advanced by many of the most eminent statesmen and lawyers of the day, both in England and in India, against this proposed Bill, or to do more than cordially acknowledge the strong and daily increasing expressions of sympathy now being generally given vent to from one end of England to the other with the opponents in India of this dangerous measure—the sympathy of those who will be the final judges of the policy of the Government.

Your memorialists at present desire only to submit a few of the more special claims which the province of Assam possesses over and above the rest of India, and which should entitle it to be excluded from the action of the proposed Bill :—

I.—The topography of Assam, with its vast extent of frontier, vividly displays the natural insecurity of the province. On the north, the south, the east, and even parts of the west, it is surrounded by hostile and warlike savage tribes.

The existing military force would be numerically inadequate to protect the province from either external feuds or internal disaffections, were it not for the assistance of an organized and efficient civil magistracy acting in concert with them, and supplying them with all possible information.

It is a matter for grave consideration whether, in a critical position, on which the lives of thousands might depend, a Native Magistrate, however efficient, would possess the confidence of his European coadjutors, and it is certain that he could not be endowed with a sense of that esprit de corps so strong amongst all Englishmen when placed in positions of danger in a foreign country.

II.—The isolated positions occupied by the planters of Assam render them quite helpless and defenceless, as compared even with the European inhabitants of sadr stations, against the insidious attacks of irresponsible and unscrupulous Natives, who would have countless opportunities offered them in the Court of a Native Magistrate for fabricating false charges; and thus be enabled to harass the existence, derogate from character, waste the time, and thus cause great pecuniary loss to the planters. The fabrication of false charges is a far from uncommon mode of revenge with Natives even under the present régime.

To an ordinary person, unaccustomed to life on a plantation, it is inconceivable what a very serious pecuniary loss can be entailed on a tea-plantation at certain periods of the year by the withdrawal of the manager even for a few days. This would be placed in the power of every coolie able to pay a few rupees, and thus gratify his spite by instituting a false case against his employer. There is no check to a recurrence of such cases, which might remain buried in oblivion, for there is no outlet to public opinion in Assam; the planting interests have no representatives with the Government; and a recent case has shown that, where a most serious injustice was committed by an incompetent Government official on a European, no redress was obtainable. It is a fallacy to argue that a Native gentleman would have acquired sufficient knowledge of European character and discernment to be capable of judging fairly in cases of this kind through having resided and studied for a few years in England, for "cælum, non animum mutant, qui trans mare currunt."

III.—In the minutes of the various Local Governments, issued in May, 1882, and in all the speeches and letters since published in favour of this Bill, it has been invariably admitted that it would be most regrettable and greatly to be deprecated should anything be done likely to lead to a revival of the race-prejudices and antagonistic feelings which have of late years been moribund. You, Sir, have forcibly expressed yourself on this point, and stated your belief that these feelings have abated since 1872. Such also was the opinion held by Sir Steuart Bayley; but he has since admitted that he had reckoned as dead feelings which were in reality only dormant.

Your memorialists are in duty compelled to bear witness to existing facts; and they reluctantly state that these feelings of race-antagonism have not only been revived, but are at present most bitter and intense, and daily increasing in a most deplorable manner. The cause is not difficult to discover. A feeling of insecurity has been created by the action of the Government, and these are but the natural consequences.

This province is held merely by the prestige enjoyed by the European inhabitants; the planters are virtually at the mercy of their coolies, leaving out of the question the aborigines; the few police in the districts, such as they are, are quite incapable of quelling even the smallest and most insignificant riots. It is by his prestige alone the planter keeps his labour-force docile, obedient and contented. Deprived of this, as he undoubtedly would be in the eyes of an ignorant and bigoted race were he to be tried by one of their own countrymen and on a footing with themselves, not only his safety, but that of his wife and family and property, is done away with. Your memorialists do not speak from sentimental theories, nor from even a casual or imperfect insight into Native character, but many of them from a lifelong intimacy with the daily habits, customs and feelings, both in times of contentment and in times of excitement, of their labour-population. It can be no cause for wonder that, under these circumstances, arousing, as they do, the strongest, deepest and most sacred feelings of humanity—for what is more sacred to a man than the safety of his own family?—that a firm and unalterable desire has been evinced to endeavour to uphold the existing law, and to enlist the sympathy and assistance of the Chief Commissioner on our behalf in so doing.

Your memorialists may state that they deprecate the action of those gentlemen who have refused to act in concert with the local self-government boards, and also the action of those volunteers who have stated their wish to lay down their arms, as only tending to increase existing dangers and embarrass the action of the Government.

IV.—Your memorialists, who are private investors of capital, shareholders and managers of tea-companies around Dibrugarh, alone represent a capital of 125 lakhs of rupees invested in this comparatively small extent of country, and which entail an annual influx and efflux of 30 lakhs of rupees.

And they are, on mature deliberation, most thoroughly convinced that, should the Amendment Bill be passed into law, the sense of insecurity to property thereby created will be of itself sufficient to prohibit any further investment of capital in the province.

Existing interests must be upheld and continued; but as no industry can remain stationary, and what does not progress must by nature's own laws retrocede, the inevitable conclusion is that the tea-industry of Assam will, with the lapse of years, gradually disappear. This opinion has not been formed rashly, nor without serious and anxious deliberations, by those who have themselves invested capital. It is not difficult to foresee what the result will be to the province and to the many thousands of labourers exported from lives of poverty and starvation in their own country to comparative wealth and ease here. Swamps, poverty and death will take the place of opulence, health and increasing population.

Such are a few of the more salient points which your memorialists wish to bring under your notice, and which show the special claims of Assam to be excluded from the action of the proposed Bill.

And your memorialists pray that you will represent these views to the Supreme Legislative Council of India.

And, as in duty bound, your memorialists will ever pray.

No. 1267, dated 19th July, 1883.

From—J. R. REID, Esq., Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of the letter from this office, No. 1169, dated 3rd July, 1883, I am directed to forward, for the information of His Excellency the Governor General in Council, the accompanying copy of a letter, No. <sup>5415</sup><sub>XIII</sub>, dated 7th July, 1883, from Mr. J. J. F. Lumsden, Officiating Commissioner of the Banáras Division, and of a letter No. 5124, dated 6th July, 1883, from Mr. W. Lane, Officiating Commissioner of Agra, submitting their opinions on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. I am to remark that, as paragraph 5 of Mr. Lumsden's letter, and paragraph 11 of Mr. Smith's letter, which forms an enclosure of the letter of the Agra Commissioner, take up a point not within the scope of the Bill, namely, the fitness of Natives to become District Magistrates, the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner doubt whether these letters merit publication.

No. <sup>5415</sup><sub>XIII</sub>, dated 7th July, 1883.

From—The Commissioner, Banáras Division.
To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 1090, dated 20th June, 1883, requesting an expression of my opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. I understand that what is wanted from me is simply a brief expression of my opinion, and not a detailed argument in support of that opinion. The subject has been so fully discussed that nothing can now be adduced in the shape of arguments, and I therefore propose to record my opinion without entering into any argumentative discussion of the grounds on which my opinion is based.

3. I am of opinion that the Bill was quite unnecessary. Its object, as set forth in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, is to remove from "the Code, at once and completely, every judicial disqualification which is based merely on race-distinctions." The scope of the Bill, however, is very limited, and it goes a very short way towards effacing race-distinctions. It goes far enough, however, to have excited the passionate opposition of the non-official European community, who see in it a source of present and future danger to their security and privilege in this country. There is, in my opinion, no object to be gained by subjecting Europeans to a jurisdiction which they detest in the absence of a valid political or administrative necessity for such a measure. I am distinctly of opinion that, until the present Bill was brought in, the inhabitants of these provinces took no interest in this matter, and had but the vaguest ideas of the rules under which European British subjects could be tried. Even now the mass of the population are utterly indifferent, and it is only a few noisy Bengalis and Native pleaders who profess any real anxiety to see the proposed alteration in the law carried out.

4. The points in the Bill to which I take serious exception are—

- (1). It withdraws the power to appoint any non-official European gentleman to the office of a Justice of the Peace.
- (2). It contemplates the appointment of Natives as District Magistrates and Justices of the Peace.
- (3). It draws no distinction between Natives who have resided for years in England and obtained admission to the Civil Service by open competition, and those Natives who have been appointed to the Civil Service by nomination in this country or who hold the appointment of Assistant Commissioners in non-regulation provinces.

5. If the district officer were a Native of this country, it would, no doubt, be incongruous that he should not be able to exercise powers which the law conferred on his European Joint or Assistant Magistrates, but it appears to me that there are the strongest administrative and political reasons for not appointing a Native of the country to the post of district officer. I say this, not merely with reference to the judicial powers of the district officer as Magistrate of the district, but with reference to his position as the local representative of Government in executive and administrative matters. Correspondence of a demi-official and confidential nature is frequently carried on between the Local Government and district officer, which could hardly be carried on with the same confidence were the latter officer a Native of this country. Apart even from times of political disquietude, occasions not unfrequently arise in which a Native District Magistrate would be a direct source of weakness to our administration; for instance, the cow-killing riots of a year or two ago, and the threatened collisions which have frequently occurred between the Mussalman and Hindu population in connection with the celebration of some of their religious festivals. Unless it is deliberately intended to surrender the country within a time which can be definitely fixed, it appears to me that the interests of the British rule in India are bound up with the maintenance of European officers as the local representatives of Government in executive and administrative matters.

6. I have nothing to say against the employment of Natives in judicial appointments, and, provided the law were altered so as to allow European British subjects to claim to be tried with a jury instead of assessors, I see no reasonable objection to conferring the powers which the Bill proposes to confer on all Sessions Judges. Beyond this, however, I would not go.

7. I claim, from my uniform conduct towards them since I entered the service, to be a true friend of the Natives of this country, and to be entirely free of all blind prejudice against them; at the same time, I must say I sympathize with the prejudice, if prejudice it be, which makes a European clamour to be tried by one of his own race. No Government official is in a position to fully enter into the feelings of the non-official European in connection with this subject, because the bulk of the Natives assume entirely different manners towards the latter class.

8. As far as I can gather, the non-official Europeans, here as elsewhere, are all strongly opposed to the Bill. Among the advanced Natives, no doubt many would like to see it passed, but this is by no means the unanimous opinion of even this class, while the mass of the Native community are utterly indifferent in the matter.

No. <sup>5124</sup>~~XV—44~~, dated 6th July 1883.

From—The Commissioner, Agra Division,

To—The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

I have the honour to reply to your No. 1089 of 20th June, in the Judicial (Criminal) Department, inviting opinion on the Criminal Jurisdiction Bill, the subject of so much discussion.

2. There seems an almost universal consensus of opinion in the Agra Division adverse to the proposed changes in the law. This view is shared by official and non-official Europeans alike, and to a great extent by Natives also.

The latter acknowledge that their race has not that moral courage and independence of character needed to preside efficiently in a Court where Europeans would be tried. As to the views held by Europeans, these have been so often expressed, and the inherent antipathy existing among them to be tried by a Native is so marked and thoroughly acknowledged, that the fact need not be more than alluded to.

3. Then there remains the expediency of the measure. On this point there is, again, but one opinion. Practically, there is at present no need for the change in the law.

4. Politically, the proposal has already led to the most deplorable results. The old race-animosities that had slumbered for so long, and the wounds that had almost healed, have again been revived and opened out. More harm has been done by the recent agitation than any amendment in the law could possibly compensate.

5. It would be better for all parties to abandon the measure. If it must be passed, then the only course I can suggest is, as proposed by some of the officers in this division, to add a clause reserving to European British subjects the option of being tried by their own countrymen. This would be no unreasonable provision, and would tend greatly to heal the existing soreness, should it be decided to go on with the proposed legislation. I forward the replies received from the Magistrates of Agra, Etah, Etawah and Farakhábád.

No. 818, dated 27th June, 1883.

From—The Magistrate of Agra,

To—The Commissioner, Agra Division.

I have the honour to reply to your reference No. <sup>4754</sup>~~XV—44~~ of the 23rd instant, on the subject of Mr. Ilbert's Bill. My opinion of this measure is that it is one which sooner or later must be passed. It will be absolutely necessary when one-sixth of the Civil Service are Natives of this country, a proportion which cannot be reached in these provinces for many years to come, and which will not probably be reached in Bengal for a good many years hence. It would, however, have been well to delay the measure till administrative necessities required that it should be passed. I cannot agree with much of the reasoning which has been advanced against the Bill, more especially with such an argument as that a Native of this country is disqualified to decide criminal charges brought against a European because he is, and must be, ignorant of the motives, habits and training of Europeans, all of which should (it is alleged) be taken into account. This, it seems to me, is a two-edged argument, which, if rigorously applied, would prevent Europeans trying Natives of Hindustan; for our ignorance of the motives, habits and training of 99 out of 100 Natives is a fact which cannot be denied. But, I apprehend, it is a matter of common experience that the cases in which a Magistrate or Judge is at a disadvantage because of ignorance of the motives, &c., of a criminal are rare. He has to judge on evidence as to facts in nine cases out of ten. Nor, in my opinion, has sufficient weight been attached to the extraordinary power of appeal given to Europeans, with which it is not intended to interfere. This is a very valuable privilege, and one which, theoretically at least, should take away much of what force there is in the contention above referred to.

2. I must admit, however, that public opinion, both Native and European, in Agra is entirely opposed to the passing of the Bill. The Native gentlemen whom I have conversed with on the subject, including Sir Dinkar Rao, Rai Muthradás, Pundit Kedarnath, and others very eminently qualified to give an opinion, oppose it on various grounds. They believe that the instances are very rare in which a Native Magistrate, however honest and anxious to do right, will have the courage to do so, and they admit of their countrymen generally that, when a European is charged with any offence, a number of considerations will undoubtedly be given heed to which should find no place in a Magistrate's estimate of evidence. They lay great stress on the very unfortunate outbreak of race-animosity which has followed the publication of the Bill, and which they very sincerely deprecate. They consider that the abolition of an administrative anomaly to soothe the amour propre of a few members of the civil service is most dearly bought at the expense of raising a storm of ill-will and animosity such as has not been heard of for a quarter of a century; it being a matter of indifference whether that ill-will and animosity is justly or unjustly aroused. I cordially agree with this latter contention.

3. The European opinion in Agra is, so far as I know, unanimous against the Bill, as it is believed, rightly or wrongly, that Europeans have no chance of getting justice at the hands of a Native Magistrate, greatly because the Magistrate cannot free himself from race-prejudices, and partly because (as I stated in the beginning of this letter) he is ignorant of European motives, habits and training. Stress is also laid on the alleged frequency of false accusations, and that the removal of the anomaly will discourage Europeans from coming to India and thereby prevent the increase of European capital here. It is still also considered right by some that a distinction should be made between the conquered and the conquering race, and that the removal is a political blunder. I am informed that nearly every non-official European in the district has signed the petition against the Bill.

4. I apprehend, however, that the Imperial Government is committed to the passing of the Bill; and the real question now is, how to reconcile the European community to its provisions without receding from the position taken up by Government. On this point the suggestion that an option should be given to a European charged with an offence to be tried either by a Native or a European Justice of the Peace seems to me worthy of grave consideration. If such a clause were added to the Bill, it would maintain the principle on which Government has taken its stand, and would remove the administrative anomaly, while it would retain the privilege theretofore enjoyed by Europeans on which they lay so great stress. The agitation and restlessness so prevalent now would subside, and we might hope that the discord which undoubtedly now exists will soon be forgotten.

---

No. 244, dated 27th June, 1883.

From —The Magistrate, Etah,

To—The Commissioner, Agra Division.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your No. <sup>4758</sup><sub>XV.44</sub>, dated 23rd instant, asking for an expression of opinion on the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Amendment Bill No. 8 of 1883, and in reply beg to submit the following remarks.

2. In my opinion, the Bill in its present form is open to very grave objections. The advantages to be gained from the proposed change in the law are trifling in comparison with the manifold evils and disadvantages that would result from it. If in this country the law were a "terror to evil-doers" only, the increased jurisdiction proposed to be given to Natives would practically be of little moment; but, as is well known, false complaints in a Court of justice are in this country the ordinary weapons used against an enemy. There is in Hindustani a word (pushtára) which denotes "stolen or contraband property put in the house of an enemy to get him into trouble." The fact that such a word exists in the language tells its own story. In a country like this, then, it is of vital importance to Europeans in the mufassal that, if brought before a Criminal Court, they should have one of their countrymen to try them, and not a Judge of another creed and race, who, however anxious to do justice, might, from his utter want of sympathy with our thoughts and feelings and his ignorance of English domestic life, be unable properly to appreciate the circumstances of the case.

Sections 451 and 460 of the existing Criminal Procedure Code give to the accused a certain discretion as to the tribunal which is to try him. Following these precedents, I would abolish that portion of the present law which provides that no Magistrate not himself a European British subject shall enquire into or try a case against a European British subject; but I would at the same time give the accused, if a European British subject, a right to claim that his case should be heard before a Judge of his own race.

In conclusion, I may add that all the Europeans in this district, official and non-official, with whom I have had an opportunity of discussing the matter, are strongly opposed to the Bill.

No. <sup>403</sup><sub>XV-507</sub>, dated 29th June, 1883.

From—The Magistrate, Etawah,

To—The Commissioner, Agra Division.

In compliance with the request contained in your endorsement No. <sup>4757</sup><sub>XV-11</sub>, dated 23rd instant, I have the honour to submit the following opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure.

2. The preamble starts with the words "it is expedient to amend the Code," &c. Had it been possible to foresee the intense opposition the proposed amendment would call forth and the great excitement it would cause throughout the length and breadth of India, I feel sure the gentleman whose name is subscribed to the Bill would be among the very first to assert that it is not expedient to propose the amendment of the law as it stood.

3. The only reason that I can see in the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill is that the present state of the law was "anomalous." Now, independently of all the trouble and ill-will and excitement caused by the proposed amendment of the law, it seems to me that this was no sufficient reason for proposing the change so soon after the law as it stands had been passed. There can be no doubt that this part of the Code of 1852 which it is now proposed to amend was passed after grave consideration and full discussion, and it seems to me to be the very worst possible policy to disturb the law passed under such circumstances so soon, and so soon to revive a question so "burning" which had been settled after such full and grave deliberation. One would naturally expect that such a troublesome matter would have remained at rest for a decade at least, or that something more than the feeling that the law so settled was anomalous, something more than the fancied sentimental grievance of one man, would be required before the work of amendment would be taken in hand.

4. So far as these provinces are concerned, I believe I am safe in asserting that the amendment is not in the least required. No case has arisen, so far as I know, or indeed is likely to arise for many years to come, in which the slightest inconvenience has been, or will be, felt from the present law. There are sufficient Justices of the Peace appointed under the present law in every district to try all the cases in which European British subjects are concerned, and no case has ever come to my knowledge in which inconvenience has been felt by any of the parties to such a case from the absence of a properly constituted Justice of the Peace which would have been obviated if a Native Magistrate had been invested with the powers of a Justice of the Peace.

5. The privilege is the privilege of the accused, and not of the Judge, but in this instance the amendment of the law is proposed in the interest of the Judge or would-be Judge.

6. That the privilege, anomalous though it may be, is one that is very strongly prized, this widespread agitation on the part of the European population of India generally proves clearly; and I think that some very much more cogent reason than any I can find in the Statement of Objects and Reasons should be advanced before such a highly prized-privilege is taken away. To people accustomed to the full glare of publicity which attends the proceedings of the Courts of the Calcutta Magistrates, where barristers are always in attendance, where members of the Press are on the spot, and where the High Court can be moved at an hour's notice to redress any real grievance, the outcry that has been raised against the proposed taking away of this privilege may appear ridiculous to some extent; but the surroundings of some, indeed most, of the Mufassal Magistrates' Courts are far different. Much injustice, which might have the most serious results in the case of Europeans, might be done, inadvertently or otherwise, which could not be remedied by appeal to higher authority till after the lapse of a considerable time, during which much mischief might be done. It is this feeling, or something similar to this, which has caused most of the intensely excited opposition to the Bill. I cannot help feeling that there is some foundation for this opposition.

7. But, besides considering the proposed change in the law as inexpedient because it is not required and altogether inopportune, I am opposed to the Bill because I do not believe those Natives whom it is proposed to invest with these powers are generally fit to exercise them. The differences in the modes of thought and daily action between Europeans and Natives are so great, and on no point greater than in connection with their respective treatment of women, that I do not think a Native could enter into the feelings of Europeans on this and many other points, or could understand the motives which prompt Europeans, to act sufficiently well as to be able to judge them correctly. Mistakes might be made in consequence of which the results would be disastrous in the extreme.

8. I have not been brought into contact with any of the Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service, and therefore do not feel so confident in speaking of this. I have had some experience of the members of the Native Civil Service. I do not hesitate to apply what I have said in the last paragraph in this instance. And I quite confidently assert it in connection with educated Native gentlemen generally with whom I have conversed frequently.

9. And I am equally certain that educated Native gentlemen, so far as I have had the opportunity of talking with them on the subject, are not only in my opinion unfit to be invested with powers to try Europeans, but also do not themselves wish to be invested with such powers. I asked one only yesterday. He did not acknowledge himself incompetent to try such cases, but he said there would be so much "trouble and bother" connected with it that he would much rather not have powers to try such cases. I do not think the majority of Native Magistrates would have much authority, or would much overawe the usual class of Europeans who would be likely to be brought up before the Courts. The result would often be unseemly wrangling and possible insult, which would have been avoided if the Magistrate had been an European.

10. Indeed, so strongly do I feel on this part of the subject that, even if the proposed Bill becomes law, and I had a subordinate Native Magistrate invested with the powers of a Justice of the Peace, I should not hesitate to exercise the power of transfer given to me as Magistrate of the district unless this part of the present law also is to be changed at the same time.

11. The time may come, and however much I think it is to be regretted and deprecated, I suppose when the Magistrate of the district will be a Native. In such case, when the man must have proved his fitness unmistakably, I think he should be invested with the powers of a Justice of the Peace after all precautions had been taken to ensure his fitness. And so far I would allow the change in the law contained in section 2 of the Bill to be effected. I would not say that Sessions Judges and District Magistrates are Justices of the Peace, but I would say that Sessions Judges and District Magistrates when Natives shall ordinarily be invested by the Local Government with the powers of a Justice of the Peace, leaving it to the Local Government to decide whether this shall be the case or not.

12. In conclusion, I give in brief my reasons for objecting to the proposed change in the law. First, because no sufficient cause has been shown for it; secondly, because it is not required, and is inopportune; thirdly, because the privilege to be taken away is very highly prized, and its being taken may possibly cause injustice; fourthly, because Natives generally and those whom it is proposed to invest with the new powers, are not competent to exercise them; and fifthly, because, so far as I know, Natives generally do not wish to be invested with jurisdiction over Europeans.

No. <sup>741</sup><sub>XV</sub>, dated 3rd July 1883.

From—the Magistrate, Farakhabād.

To—The Commissioner, Agra Division.

In reply to your No. <sup>4765</sup><sub>XV-44</sub>, dated 23rd instant, I have the honour to give my views on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. I think that the present is a most unfavourable time for introducing such a measure. Only eleven Natives of India had, up to the end of 1880, been admitted into the Covenanted Civil Service of the three presidencies after successfully passing the competitive examinations in London. One of them, after a brief career of three years, was found wanting in integrity and was dismissed from the service, and is now in jail for contempt of the Calcutta High Court. The remaining ten are serving, six in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, two in Bombay, one in Madras and one in these Provinces. Natives being now admitted to the Civil Service without passing an examination in England, it is a fair presumption that the number of those who enter after passing the examination will be even smaller than before; and the Native civilians of the future will consequently not have such qualifications as a few years residence in England may confer, and for the purpose of the question under discussion may be assumed to be less efficient. I have no list to show whether any successful Native competitors came out to this country in 1881 and 1882, but the absence of it is immaterial, as, if any have come out, they must have been studying in England before the promulgation of the new rules. Until, therefore, it is seen what effect the new rules have upon the appearance of Native candidates at the competitive examination, it will be, in my opinion, premature to make any change in the law. It is obviously useless to do so for the small number of men who have yet passed into the service; and if for the future the easier and less expensive mode of entry by nomination be preferred, it will not be worth while legislating for some years to come, until it be satisfactorily shown that the nominees are capable of exercising such powers. At present, the system has not been working long enough for a sound opinion to be formed as to their qualifications and abilities. They are few in number,—therefore, few Magistrates can speak of them from experience,—and they have not exercised full powers long enough for a fair opinion to be given about them. I have seen some of the cases disposed of by one who was attached to this district for a few months, but who left in less than a week after my arrival, and there was certainly much room for improvement. Until we have full assurance that the nominees are, as a class, decidedly superior in ability and integrity to the Deputy Magistrates, they should, in my opinion, be put upon the same footing; and, as it is not proposed to give Deputy Magistrates powers to try European British subjects, I consider that the nominated Native civilians should also not be empowered, at least for the present. It must be borne in mind that magisterial business is a Native officer's weak point. There are numbers of good Deputy Collectors in these provinces, but few good Magistrates among them, and no amount of experience gives them a facility of dealing with criminal business. The quality of the work is indifferent, and it takes long to dispose of, far longer than in English Magistrates' Courts; and delays are dangerous in criminal cases. If the nominated Native civilians prove that they really comprehend criminal law, that they are in fact far above the ordinary run of Deputy Magistrates and can approach somewhat closely to an average Joint Magistrate, then it will be quite time to take their case into consideration; and if the supply of Native passed candidates does not fall off, the question can be discussed upon better data than at present exist, and of a possible administrative inconvenience from the decrease in the number of European civilians. Apart from the small number of Natives who have passed the Civil Service examination, there is, in my opinion, no sufficient reason shown for granting them power to try European British subjects. For years to come a Native Magistrate of a district will always have a Joint Magistrate, and, unless the Magistrate be a particularly conceited man, proud of his newly attained power and anxious to exercise it (in which case there will be fear not only of an undue desire to convict, but also of an unduly heavy sentence being passed on conviction), he will also make over the trial of such cases to the Joint Magistrate, who as a rule tries most of them now; and so the grant of the power to him will really be only for the sake of soothing any possible feeling of injured vanity because the Joint Magistrate has more extensive jurisdiction than himself, and not for any administrative gain. And there will be probably found many Native Magistrates who will be not at all anxious to try Europeans, and will be only too thankful to make over the cases to a Joint Magistrate. A European will, moreover, always ask for his case to be tried by an English Magistrate; and, unless there is some very good ground for refusing the application (which can easily exist), the Native Magistrate could hardly do less than grant it. I think, therefore, the number of cases actually tried by a Native Magistrate will be infinitesimally small, and consequently that the extension of the jurisdiction over Europeans to them is not called for.

4. And it is still less necessary in the case of Sessions Judges.

More than three-fourths of the cases will be disposed of by Magistrates, and nearly the whole of the remainder, those relating to offences punishable with death or transportation for life, will be committed direct to the High Court; and of the few cases left, it must be assumed that there will be some which the Sessions Judge would pass on to the High Court without trial, on the ground that the offence appeared to demand a more severe sentence than he could inflict. So that the Sessions Judge's share of the trial of Europeans will be nominal. A return could easily be prepared showing the number of Europeans under trial since 1872, whose cases were (a) disposed of by the Justices of the Peace, (b) by the Sessions Judge, and (c) by the High Court, which would show at a glance how nominal the Sessions Judge's work is in this class of cases.

5. On administrative grounds I am of opinion that no change is called for; no inconvenience has arisen, and none is likely to arise for a long time to come; and I do not see any necessity to alter the law to soothe the injured feelings of one man, for, so far as I am aware, the other nine have not raised the question at all.

6. I have made no mention of appeals to the Court of Session from sentences passed by Justices of the Peace. The appeal lies, at the option of the appellant, either to the High Court or the Court of Session, and it may be assumed that the appeal would not be preferred to the latter Court when presided over by a Native.

7. The whole question of the amendment of the law appears to have arisen from Behari Lal Gupta's feeling aggrieved when he reverted from the post of Officiating Presidency Magistrate and could no longer try Europeans. If the Bill is passed in the modified form which has apparently found favour with many who could not support the Bill as it stands, will not this grievance be intensified, and at every reversion of a Native Civilian from the post of District Magistrate to that of Joint Magistrate will not the same cry be raised? The modified proposal appears to be objectionable on this ground alone.

8. Stress has been laid upon the fact that every Judge of the High Court is ex-officio a Justice of the Peace, whether he be a European British subject or not. True, but what deduction favourable to the Bill can be drawn from this? Has the Native Judge ever presided at the trial of a European? So far as I am aware, Barrister Judges invariably preside at the sessions. Has the Native Judge, sitting alone, ever heard an appeal preferred by a European?

9. No argument can be based on the fact that Native Magistrates try Europeans in the Presidency towns. There every case is reported for the papers; counsel can be readily engaged; the High Court is at hand, and prompt redress can be obtained for any injustice or error; the Magistrates are in the habit of associating freely with Europeans. In the districts there are no reporters, rarely any barristers, the High Court is at a distance, and we have yet to learn what the Magistrate's character will be.

10. In my opinion, there is no room for a compromise. The appointment of Sessions Judges and Magistrates of districts to be ex-officio Justices of the Peace appears quite unnecessary from an administrative point of view, and the appointment of Native Civilians under the new rules is premature; and if the concession is once made and proves to be a mistake, it will be extremely difficult to rectify it.

The law does not require amendment, and nothing but the entire withdrawal of the Bill will, in my opinion, be satisfactory.

11. I have not entered into the advisability of subjecting Europeans to the liability to be tried criminally by Native Magistrates and Judges. I think it will be a grave mistake to remove their present privilege of being tried by their own countrymen ; but, as, for the reasons I have already given, I think the Bill both unnecessary and inopportune, I will not discuss the subject further.

No. 282-12L, dated 16th July, 1883.

From—E. S. SYMES, Esq., C. S., Offg. Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma,
To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In submitting the opinions cited in the margin on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, the

- (1) Letter No. 71-7-3, dated 14th May 1883, from Commissioner of Arakan.
- (2) Letter No. 82-7-3, dated 21st May 1883, from Commissioner of Arakan.
- (3) Letter No. 974-458, dated 5th June 1883, from Commissioner of Tenasserim.
- (4) Letter No. 110-28, dated 20th June 1883, from Recorder of Rangoon.
- (5) Letter No. 158C., dated 20th June 1883, from Commissioner of Irrawaddy.
- (6) Letter No. 85-8, dated 20th June 1883, from Commissioner of Pegu.
- (7) Letter, dated 10th July 1883, from Secretary to Chamber of Commerce, Rangoon.

Chief Commissioner desires me to say that he would have preferred to leave the law unaltered. He does not think that any practical reason has been shown for changing the present law. No immediate administrative necessity exists. A desire for perfect equality and the abolition of all race distinctions is no doubt felt, and naturally felt, by the educated classes of India. But as the inequality or distinction in this case does not prejudice in any way those who have not the privilege, and as it was known that the privileged class, who are not only numerous but entitled to consideration out of all proportion to their numbers, objected very strongly to a change in the law, Mr. Crosthwaite regrets that the proposals embodied in the Bill have been made.

2. If the question concerned the province of British Burma only, the Chief Commissioner's advice now would be that the Bill should be dropped. There is no necessity for any change in the law here ; opinion, both official and non-official, is hostile to the proposed amendments ; and there is not any likelihood of practical effect being given to the law for a good many years to come.

3. But the case with regard to India is different. After giving the question long and careful consideration, the Chief Commissioner feels it his duty to advise the Government of India to proceed with the Bill. Having regard to the position taken up by the Government in proposing the Bill and to the character of the opposition, it appears to Mr. Crosthwaite that the best course is to proceed with the Bill, making such alterations as may be necessary to meet real and reasonable objections. This is the only course which will leave the Government in a position to put its foot firmly down and to refuse the demands which are sure to be made for further changes in the law.

4. While he regrets the introduction of the Bill, the Chief Commissioner is at the same time of opinion that few of the objections raised to the Bill have any substantial ground. He would certainly recommend its abandonment if he thought that his countrymen would be subjected to annoyance or injustice, or if he believed that European capital and enterprise would without reason be deterred from seeking investment in India. There is no reason for believing that a properly qualified Native gentleman sitting as a Magistrate will be more likely to be deceived by false complaints or more disposed to give a case against a European than an English Magistrate. So far as race prejudice is concerned, it could find a field quite as readily in the decision of civil as of criminal cases. It is impossible to bring against our Civil Judges a charge of allowing their sympathy with their own countrymen to warp their judgments. There is no reason for supposing that the result will be different in the administration of criminal justice.

5. At present and for a long time past every Magistrate has the same power to take cognizance of offences committed by European subjects as he has in the case of offences committed by persons of another class. He has power to issue process to compel attendance. It has not been found that this power, which might have been abused without incurring much responsibility, has in any way been misapplied. The whole agitation seems to proceed on the suppositions that the Government will appoint unfit persons to be Justices of the Peace, and that the persons appointed will be ready to abuse their authority. Experience justifies neither of these suppositions. Hitherto the Government has had power to appoint any European British subject, a field of selection quite wide enough to allow the appointment of unfit persons, but no complaints have, as far as is known, been made regarding the use of this power. So far as Native gentlemen have been entrusted with jurisdiction in cases in which Europeans are concerned, they have not been led away by race prejudices. Many Europeans who are not British subjects live scattered over the country, but they have not complained of ill-treatment at the hands of the Native magistracy.

6. There is no reason whatever for apprehending that the Government will abuse the power which it is now intended to give them. The executive Government will doubtless recognize the inexpediency of appointing a Native Magistrate to be Justice of the Peace in a district much frequented by European settlers.

7. One of the most valid objections brought against the Bill is that which refers to the disabilities which it imposes on the Government. The Government will no longer be able to appoint to be Justices of the Peace non-official Europeans or European members of the Un-covenanted Service. No doubt this may cause some inconvenience in the future. The inconvenience will however be much less than is represented, as all present Justices of the Peace are unaffected and the number of Europeans now appointed to the judicial branch of the Uncovenanted Civil Service is very limited. There is no way of meeting this objection and at the same time retaining the main principle of the Bill except by widening the terms of section 1. Power might be given to the Government to appoint any 1st class Magistrate to be Justice of the Peace; but in the present state of feeling any attempt to get over the difficulty in this way would be misconstrued. There is therefore no help for it. The inconvenience of excluding in future non-official Europeans and European members of the Uncovenanted Service who do not come under clause (c) of section 1 of the Bill must be accepted.

8. None of the alterations which have been publicly proposed as compromises that might render the Bill more acceptable to the class affected commend themselves to the Chief Commissioner's judgment. But he thinks that all reasonable objections on the score of danger to European British subjects might be met by adding to Section 1 a provision that no one should be appointed a Justice of the Peace who had not a thorough knowledge of English and did not habitually record his notes of evidence and his judgments in that language. We do not give large powers to any English Magistrate until we are satisfied that he has sufficient knowledge of the vernacular of his province, and it is only fair to exact a similar qualification from Magistrates who are to deal with European British subjects. Before a Magistrate is appointed to be a Justice of the Peace, the High Court might be required to certify that he possessed this necessary qualification. This is the only suggestion for the improvement of the Bill which Mr. Crosthwaite is able to make.

9. He believes and trusts that once the Bill is passed the agitation will subside, and that English good sense will perceive the unsubstantial basis on which much of the opposition has been raised.

No. 71-7—3, dated 14th May, 1883.

From—The Commissioner of the Arakan Division,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

In reply to your letter No. 158-2L., dated the 7th April 1883, in which I am asked to give my opinion on a Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, I have the honour to say that I am opposed to the Bill for the following reasons:—

- (1) because I think it unnecessary and uncalled for at the present time as a matter of administrative convenience or public necessity;
- (2) because it contemplates the surrender of a privilege or protective right which has long been cherished as the birthright of every European in the country, and confers at the same time no compensatory gain or advantage on the masses of the people of India;
- (3) because, although the object of the Bill is to remove from the Code every judicial disqualification which is based merely on "race distinctions," the means adopted to that end simply aim at levelling up the Native races to the status of Europeans, but do not in any way remove race distinctions notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary in the said Code: these race distinctions will continue to prevail and enter largely into every transaction of Native life, social, religious, and political;
- (4) because, on the other hand, to attempt to force on the people of India an equality of race which they do not seek as between themselves and their European conquerors is a levelling-down process which sinks the prestige of the European and involves a surrender of race superiority so essential to the continued maintenance of our rule and supremacy in British India;
- (5) because no assurance can possibly be given by the present Government that the proposed measure bears the stamp of finality: on the contrary, it seems like the furtherance of a policy which, if continued, must end in subverting the present order of things by destroying the foundation on which our rule in India has hitherto been based;
- (6) because this same proposed measure, whilst satisfying the aspirations only of a few English-speaking Bengali agitators, who in no way represent the masses of the millions of India, vitally and injuriously affects the rights, and dangerously offends the susceptibilities, of 99 per cent. of the European and Eurasian population of our Indian dominions;
- (7) because the passing of the proposed Bill is calculated to provoke feelings of antagonism which must destroy all sympathy between the two classes of our European and Native subjects and become a clog on the Administration by frightening away British capital, arresting commerce, and threatening the true interests of the State at large.

No. 82-7-3, dated 21st May, 1883.

From—The Commissioner of the Arakan Division,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

In continuation of my letter No. 71-7-3 of the 14th instant, I have the honour to say that I failed in that letter to make any mention of the views taken by European British subjects in this division on the Criminal Procedure Code Amendment Bill, because a public meeting of the European population had already been held at Akyab on the 15th March during my absence to discuss the provisions of that Bill, and because the proceedings of that meeting were published in the local press under date 19th March and a copy duly submitted to the local Government.

2. The meeting condemned the Bill and unanimously protested against its becoming law.

No. 974-458, dated 5th June, 1883.

From—The Commissioner of the Tenasserim Division,

To—The Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

With reference to your letter, Judicial, No. 158-2, dated the 7th April last, and its enclosure, I have the honour to report that almost the whole of the European British subjects of this division who are not Government officials are resident in the town of Moulmein; that on the 24th March 1883 a public meeting was held here (reported in the local paper of the 28th March, which is, I believe, filed in your office) to protest against the Bill; and that this meeting, while very numerous, was attended by persons of all sorts belonging to the class in question. Under these circumstances, I have not considered it either expedient or necessary to formally call for the opinion of any of the class but have thought it better to content myself with casually gathering such opinions in conversation from time to time as occasion arose, and I will therefore in the following remarks endeavour to embody these opinions with my own on the subject.

2. At the public meeting above referred to there was, as will be seen by the report, the same denunciation as elsewhere of the Bill though less violent; there was the same curious ignorance amongst the principal speakers of the provisions of the Bill which they denounced; and there was the same general distrust of the objects of the Bill and of its effects on the country. As regards this element of distrust or uneasiness, I gather that something is due to the mode in which the Bill was introduced. As has been remarked to me, the proposal came on the class affected as a complete surprise, showing a want of stability in our legislation and engendering a belief that without the slightest warning and quite unexpectedly the gravest changes might at any moment be introduced and passed in the Legislative Council, for it was known that an amended Criminal Procedure Code had been discussed fully for several years before, and this amended Code without a word of legislation on the subject treated by the present Bill had been in force but little over a month when this Bill was introduced. I may add that as neither in the draft Bill of 1879 nor in that which subsequently became law, both of which were fully discussed, was there any reference to the subject now at issue, I myself shared in the surprise referred to.

3. When divested of the mist of exaggeration by which it is enveloped, the real objection to the principle of the Bill is doubtless that it deprives the class in question of a privilege which they consider their birthright and hands them over in criminal cases to be dealt with by judicial authorities whose capacities for fairly judging them they profoundly mistrust. Rightly or wrongly they believe that they have inherited a right to be tried by their equals, by persons whose antecedents and education are at least not inferior to their own, and they consider that a very large proportion, if not the majority, of those who under the Bill might be invested with criminal powers over them will not and cannot possess this qualification. To the argument that for a good many years past such jurisdiction has been exercised irreproachably by the very class referred to in Calcutta and possibly elsewhere, the objectors reply that while the individual officers in these cases are quite exceptional instances, the jurisdiction they have exercised has been hedged in by safeguards which rendered it little liable to abuse but which do not exist at small stations; and further that any error committed in these cases could always be promptly remedied, whereas if a similar system were extended all over the country any such remedy could only be applied after perhaps grievous injustice had been done.

4. Having given the subject the most impartial consideration I can, and apart from the question of right which I do not feel competent to discuss, I am of opinion that there is some foundation for these objections. Perhaps the best test of their validity is to put the question to one's self, and for my own part I have no hesitation in saying that I would rather not be tried by a Native Magistrate or Judge on a criminal charge. I do not think this arises from any narrow prejudice about race but simply from a consideration of what I believe to be facts. The Native Magistrate or Judge may be far my superior in intellectual power and legal knowledge, but he will almost certainly be wanting in what I should consider of far greater importance and what would be possessed by a fellow-countryman of my own, i.e., the power so to speak of putting himself in my place and judging whether acts attributed to me were probable or not under the circumstances. I should feel that I was being tried by a man all whose ideas of conduct, morality, even of right and wrong, were fundamentally different from my own, and that, unless all recent observations as to evolution and heredity are hopelessly wrong, the gloss of a University or European education could not have at once eradicated a distinction fostered in countless past generations and connected with every early association in this. It is true that a similar objection may be raised to the trial of Natives by Europeans, but apart from numerous obvious considerations which weaken the force of such an argument, the existence of an unavoidable evil as regards one class can hardly be accepted as a sufficient reason for deliberately inflicting the same evil on another.

5. With regard to the success said to have attended the exercise by Natives of the jurisdiction in question in presidency towns, it appears to me that the objectors are right, and that however great that success, however eminent the services of the gentlemen referred to, they afford no sufficient guarantee that any similar success is to be expected by extending such jurisdiction all over the country as proposed by the Bill. In the one case a very limited number of gentlemen have been selected from the most advanced and civilized society in the country, and it is to be presumed that these selections have been made because, in the struggle for pre-eminence which always takes place in such society, they have shown themselves the fittest. After selection they have exercised the jurisdiction conferred on them in the face of public opinion, of detractors, rivals, or enemies, only too happy to pounce on and denounce any real or supposed error; while lastly, throughout their career they have had and have the advantage, of which it would be derogatory to them to suppose they have not occasionally availed themselves, of being able in difficult cases to avail themselves of the very best advice to be had in the country. In the other case, that under the Bill, the whole of the conditions as regards selection and the exercise of powers are totally different, and there seems nothing to prevent an officer being vested with the jurisdiction in question solely by reason of his seniority and because he has managed to fill without discredit at some possibly remote place any one of the appointments named in the Bill.

Finally, as regards the principle of the Bill, there can be no doubt that here as elsewhere it is most strongly and almost universally objected to by the class affected, and it has apparently evoked some feelings of race animosity from which hitherto we had been happily free.

6. If the principle of the Bill be adopted, I think the only objection to the provisions it contains is that it ties the hands of Government as to the appointment of Justices of the Peace in a manner which may prove inconvenient, as it takes away the power hitherto existing of appointing as such educated English gentlemen not in the service of Government; the services of such persons must have been occasionally extremely useful in dealing with petty crime committed by European British subjects, and is likely to become more so as the European element in the population increases. Finally, I would venture to remark that as a jury has always been believed to perform judicial functions, it would appear necessary, in order to attain the desired end, namely, "to remove from the Code at once and completely every judicial disqualification based merely on race distinctions," to include in the Bill a section repealing section 451 of the Code, which gives an accused person the option of excluding from the jury which is to try him a certain number of persons on purely "race distinctions."

No. 110-28, dated 20th June, 1883.

From—The Officiating Recorder of Rangoon,

To—The Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

In reply to your letter, Judicial Department, No. 159-2L., dated the 7th April 1883, I have the honour to say that I have read with great attention the speeches made in the Council of the Governor-General on the occasion of Mr. Ilbert's motion that the Bill on the provisions of which I am asked for my opinion be published in the Gazette, and after doing so I have the honour to say that my opinion entirely coincides with that expressed by the Honourable and learned Mr. Evans in his speech on that occasion.

No. 158C. dated 20th June, 1883.

From—The Commissioner of the Irrawaddy Division,

To—The Officiating Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

With reference to your letter No. 166-2L., dated the 19th May, I have the honour to state that, in my opinion, the introduction of the Bill to amend the Criminal Procedure Code relating to the exercise over European British subjects was ill-advised—firstly, because there was no real occasion for any change; secondly, because any measure affecting race distinctions and privileges tends to raise excitement and animosities which should be carefully avoided; and, thirdly, because the Bill in question fails to touch more than the merest fringe of the anomaly at which it is aimed.

2. While admitting that the outcry against the trifling and unimportant change introduced by the Bill has been senseless in the extreme in respect of the general principles and policy of the measure, I am disposed very much to share the views of Mr. Fitzjames Stephen as expressed in his well-known letter to the Times.

3. As matters stand at present it will perhaps be expedient to pass the Bill as it stands, a distinct promise being given that for the future there will be no attempt made to interfere with the privileges which remain to British subjects under the existing law.

No. 35-8, dated 28th June, 1883.

From—The Commissioner of the Pegu Division,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

With reference to your letter No. 158-2L., dated the 7th April 1883, calling for opinion on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, I have the honour to inform you that the opinions of a large number of European British subjects have been ascertained, and all, with only four or five exceptions, are violently opposed to the Bill, and of the district officers who have expressed their opinions, only one is in favour of it. The reasons given are those which have already appeared in various forms, and it is not necessary to state them again. They are chiefly to the effect that the proposed Bill will take away from European British subjects the cherished privilege of being tried by their own countrymen, that there is no necessity for the measure, and that it will tend to encourage false charges being brought against Europeans and render their position in the country intolerable.

As far as this province is concerned there is certainly at present no necessity for the proposed amendment, and it will probably be some years before any native of the province will be thought fit for the appointment of Justice of the Peace. At the same time, I am certainly not in favour of retaining the cherished privilege enjoyed by the European British subject of committing offences and giving every one concerned as much trouble as possible before he can be punished. In parts of India the necessity for some provision of the kind proposed has apparently arisen, so that there are grounds for making the amendment now, and the sooner it is settled, and as far as possible settled once for all, the better. The amendment, in my opinion, does not go far enough, and it is objectionable on that account, as before long further amendments will have to be made and all that has lately occurred in connection with the subject will have to be gone through again.

I think that the Governor-General in Council and local Governments may well be entrusted with the power of appointing any one to be a Justice of the Peace, and the only change I would make in section 22 is to substitute "persons" for "European British subjects." I would omit section 44 entirely, on the ground that if a person is considered fit to be an Assistant Sessions Judge he would probably be fit to be a Justice of the Peace. If not considered fit he would not be appointed, and there is nothing to be gained in requiring him to undergo a three years' probation before he can possibly be empowered.

The success of the proposed Bill will of course depend in a great measure upon the care taken to appoint only those who have shown themselves fitted to be entrusted with the powers of a Justice of the Peace.

Cases of misplaced confidence may of course occur; but they are likely to be rare, and I certainly do not anticipate that the results of the measure will be in any way disastrous to the European British subject. As to false charges, a Native Judge, or Magistrate of experience, will certainly be as capable of dealing with them as any European can be, and as far as a Burman Judge or Magistrate is concerned, I think it likely that he will be more inclined to treat the European leniently than to do him any injustice.

Dated 10th July, 1883.

From—The Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, Rangoon,

To—The Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, British Burma.

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your No. 159-2L., Judicial Department, dated the 7th April, asking the opinion of the Chamber of Commerce on the provisions of the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, so far as it relates to the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects.

2. In reply I am directed to inform you that the members of the Chamber entertain the same feelings against giving any Native jurisdiction in criminal matters over European British subjects as were expressed in the memorial sent to the Viceroy from the public of Rangoon some time ago.

3. In the opinion of the Chamber the proposed change is impolitic in the highest degree, and there is no practical reason or real urgency for withdrawing from Europeans the right of being tried by their own countrymen.

No. 1710 (Confidential), dated 27th June, 1883.

From—C. G. MASTER, Esq., Chief Secretary to the Government of Fort St. George,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter, dated 13th instant, No. 1577, I am directed to forward three copies of the opinions of the Honourable the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Kernan, Q.C., and Mr. Justice Kindersley, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.

No. 2068, dated 23rd June 1883.

From—The Registrar of the High Court of Judicature, Madras, Appellate Side,
To—The Chief Secretary to Government, Madras.

ABSTRACT.—Forwarding the opinions of the Honourable the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Kernan, Q.C., and Mr. Justice Kindersley, on the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882; and stating that no opinions have as yet been received from Mr. Justice Innes and Mr. Justice Muttusami Aiyar.

Opinions.

It has been suggested that in inviting the opinion of the Court on the provisions of the Bill, no more is expected of the Judges than that they should consider whether the Bill has been so drawn as to secure the objects exposed in the statement which accompanies it. But I apprehend that we are invited to acquaint the Government of India with our views on the expediency of the changes in the administration of criminal justice which the Bill, if it became law, would effect.

2. So much has the Bill been discussed in this country and in England, in the Legislature and in the Press, in Councils of Chambers of Commerce and at Public Meetings, that the arguments for and against its several provisions must be familiar to the Government; and little that is novel can be added to the discussion.

3. Notwithstanding the exceptional legislation for European British subjects, it cannot be contended that, as a matter of constitutional law, any race is recognised as dominant in British India. It is immaterial to speculate whether, having regard to the pretexts under which the territories of the Empire were acquired, it would have been consistent with justice to treat them as a conquered dependency. Faithful to its declared purpose, the British Nation resolved that the claim of the Crown to sovereignty in India should rest on a nobler title. The key-note of the policy of British administration was never more truly touched than by Sir James Stephen in the debate on the Marriage Act, 1872:—"The real foundation on which the British power in this country stands is neither Military Force, as some persons cynically assert (though certainly Military Force is an indispensable condition of our power), nor even that affectionate sympathy of the native populations, in which, according to a more amiable though not, I think, a truer view of the matter, some think our rule ought to rest. The real foundation of our rule will be found to be an inflexible adherence to broad principles of justice, common to all persons in all countries and all ages, and enforced with unflinching firmness in favor of, or against, every one who claims their benefit, or who presumes to violate them, no matter who he may be."

4. The aims of British administration in India are to secure the protection of life and property, the free development of trade and industry and liberty of conscience, and subser- viently thereto to assure to all classes of Her Majesty's subjects in India equal privileges of citizenship. The principle of the proposed measure in so far as it removes disqualification is not novel. It is a leading principle of the policy of British Indian Administration adopted by Parliament half a century ago and guaranteed to the people of India by the Royal Proclamation of 1858.

5. But while I recognise that the removal of the disqualification is in harmony with the principles of British Administration, I am not forgetful that the application of our policy has been necessarily gradual. We have had to educate a people whose moral tone has been impaired by long subjection to arbitrary power; and from whom, in their own interest, we have for a season been compelled to withhold a full measure of constitutional freedom. The question, then, which must attend every further concession of liberty is, whether or not the time has arrived, when it can be made without imperilling ends demanding the first consideration of Government, the preservation of the peace and the effectual and impartial administration of justice.

6. In the debate on the motion for the publication of the Bill, it was observed—"That the opposition to this Bill is, in reality, not so much an opposition to the particular measure as an opposition to the declared policy of Parliament about the admission of Natives to the Covenanted Civil Service."

With all deference, I am bound to express my doubt of the correctness of this opinion. The class directly affected by the introduction of Natives into its ranks is the Covenanted Civil Service. As a class, no men have, by public acts and private efforts, more loyally supported the national policy and encouraged their native fellow-subjects to prepare themselves for taking a share in Civil Administration. Of the unofficial class there are very many who have not fallen short of the official class in their endeavour to ameliorate the condition of the Natives and to promote higher education, though, as private men, their action is necessarily less conspicuous.

The opponents of the Bill entertain the opinion that a privilege, which they deem of importance to the peace of the Empire or a safe-guard to the liberty and property of their class, is to be sacrificed to what they regard as the sentimental grievance of a few Native public servants.

This apprehension has actuated the opposition to the Bill, and it is necessary to consider whether and to what extent it is well founded.

7. I may observe that I do not regard the grievance of the Native Civil Servants as sentimental in the sense that the injury is so trivial that the law should not take account of it. To declare every Native-born subject incompetent to exercise jurisdiction over a particular class of his fellow-subjects creates a feeling of inferiority hurtful to the development of those moral qualities in which we assert our Native fellow-subjects are deficient, and which we profess to desire they should regain. To prohibit a Magistrate from the exercise of a jurisdiction which is enjoyed by other officials of his class implies distrust either of his ability or of his honesty, and when the ground of disqualification is merely race, the grievance is felt to a greater or less extent by every member of the race who is sensitive of its dignity. The argument that the law, out of regard for Native sentiment, confers on Natives certain personal privilege, and that, for the like reason, it should respect the privilege of the European British subject is, I think, answered by the observation that the privileges conceded to the Natives do not exercise any injurious influence on Europeans.

Although it has not been experienced in Madras, the instances mentioned in the debate appear to me to prove an existing and increasing administrative difficulty, which justifies the Legislature in determining whether, and to what extent, the restriction on the exercise of jurisdiction by the Native Magistracy should be continued.

Unless it can be shown that the effectual administration of justice, or some consideration of hardly less importance requires the restriction, it ought not to be maintained.

8. The opponents of the Bill assert that such considerations exist. They contend—

- (1) that the Native Magistrate unacquainted with the habits and customs of Europeans, and it may be imperfectly acquainted with their language, is unable to arrive in the case of Europeans at a sound conclusion as to motive and intention which enter largely into the constitution of criminal offences;
- (2) that the Native Magistrate is almost unconsciously liable to influences which might at times pervert his judgment in the case of Europeans;
- (3) that the multiplication of tribunals will afford increased opportunities to the malicious to drag before a Criminal Court a European planter or agent at a time when his absence will entail serious injury to property to meet unfounded charges based on perjured evidence which, owing to the isolation of his position, it is difficult for him to rebut; and
- (4) that the possession of the privilege confers a prestige on the European British subjects, and indirectly on every person of European descent, which enables him to act with greater boldness in the repression of civil tumult and to command co-operation on the occasion of any catastrophe.

9. To deal with the first of these objections. That, to a certain extent, persons otherwise qualified to take part in the administration of justice may be unfit to try foreigners is recognised in the provisions of the Code, which allow to Europeans and Americans the option of being tried by mixed juries or sets of assessors; and it may be argued that it is only a legitimate extension of this principle to require that where the decision is left to a Magistrate or a Judge, a European or American should have a similar option to claim that such Magistrate or Judge should be a European or American.

It is one thing to presume that a number of jurors or assessors taken at random may be unfit to try a foreigner, and quite another to presume a like probability of unfitness in the case of a Magistrate or Judge whose constant business it is to investigate motives and ascertain intentions. The ground of the disqualification is unfitness by reason of ignorance on the part of the Judge of the language, habits of thought, and manners of the persons with whom he may have to deal. It should, therefore, attach to those officers only who are, for these reasons, presumably unfit to exercise jurisdiction. We do not presume such unfitness in the case of High Court Judges and Presidency Magistrates. I admit that in the case of the latter class the propinquity of the High Court, the influence of public opinion, and the publicity afforded by the Press renders error of judgment less probable and less dangerous than it would be in remote stations in the Mofussil. But the circumstances that no complaint has been made of their incapacity to administer justice to Europeans on the ground of race is an argument to which reference may fairly be made by the supporters of the Bill. It shows that a universal presumption against the fitness of Native Magistrates to exercise such jurisdiction would be unsound.

I am not aware that any complaint has been made of race incapacity in the Native Magistracy in the Mofussil in the case of foreigners who do not enjoy the privileges of European British subjects, and although these cases may be rare the jurisdiction has been exercised, I believe, with sufficient frequency to afford instances, if any could be produced.

Again, the determination of motive and intention are at times material in the adjudication of civil rights. During the 17 years that I have been a member of a High Court, I do not remember that on any occasion it has been alleged that a European British subject or any other person of foreign parentage has been prejudiced by reason of his nationality in the exercise by the Native judiciary of their civil judicial functions. In some instances, transfers have been applied for on the ground that the Native Judge was unacquainted with the language and the customs or personal law of the parties, and the High Court has allowed the validity of the grounds urged and acceded to the application.

It is important to notice what are the coercive or punitive powers which Natives as Civil Judges may, under the existing law, exercise in the case of European British subjects.

Any Civil Court to which the Civil Procedure Code applies (1) may prior to judgment hold a defendant to bail, and in default of bail, commit him to prison for six months, section 481; (2) may impose on a witness, whether a party to the suit or not, a fine of 500 rupees if he absconds or illegally refuses to produce a document or improperly departs from the court-house; (3) may in execution order the imprisonment of a defendant who fails to deliver moveable property specifically decreed or to return a wife, section 259, or who disobeys a decree for specific performance or disobeys an injunction, section 260; and (4) may in execution of decree order the arrest of a judgment-debtor and his detention in jail for six months.

A District Court and any other Court empowered under section 360 may sentence an insolvent debtor to imprisonment (of either description as defined in the Penal Code—G. C. Act,) for any of the offences mentioned in section 359. In the Madras Presidency all Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs were in 1877 empowered to exercise this jurisdiction.—G. O., October 17th, 1877, No. 2473, Judicial.

Furthermore, in regard to the marriages of British subjects a District Judge may pronounce a decree nisi annulling the marriage when the marriage has been celebrated in India, and a like decree for the dissolution of the marriage when the marriage has been solemnised or the marital offence has been committed in India. It will be remembered that Natives being members of the Covenanted Civil Service may be appointed District Judges.

Few cases present greater difficulties or call for the exercise by a Judge of a higher degree of discretion than cases in insolvency and matrimonial causes.

10. The second objection also proceeds on a presumption of personal incapacity in the Judge.

Independence and firmness are even more requisite for the due administration of criminal than of civil justice. And it must be admitted that in these qualities many, even intelligent and educated Natives, are at present deficient. It is admitted by their own countrymen. In a dissent appended to the report of the Madras Committee on Local Self-Government, signed by five out of the six Native members, is argued that, with the reservation to the Collector of a purely consultative voice, magisterial and police officers should be altogether excluded from the district and taluk boards, and the reason assigned is that "the people of this country are so timid that there is no possibility of their expressing their views freely when they see reason to think that such views may be opposed to the wishes of men in power."

It is fair to observe that the members of the boards would be generally gentlemen who have not received the training of Judges, and who would exercise functions provoking a sense of responsibility less actively than the functions of a Judge.

Admitting the defect in the natural character with which every official who has endeavoured to sound Native opinion must be familiar, I am bound to testify, that the instances have been rare in which I have seen reason to think the work of the Native judiciary has been marred by a want of independence. There are more grounds for apprehending a want of firmness; but, as Mr. Duthoit has observed, it is more probable that this would exhibit itself in favour than to the prejudice of Europeans.

The class of whom I speak have, for the most part, not enjoyed superior educational advantages. Of the classes on whom it is proposed to enforce jurisdiction, some members have been educated at English Universities and English Inns of Court, have lived in English families, and mixed in English society. So greatly have they been affected by these influences that their countrymen regard them more or less as aliens. Others have enjoyed educational privileges in this country of no mean order. The Educational Department has been fortunate in securing Professors of liberal culture and marked independence of character, who have moulded the characters of their pupils. In every presidency there are to be found officials educated under such influences who know well that frankness in the expression of opinion will secure them higher esteem than insincere politeness or servility, and who are actuated in the discharge of their duties by a keen sense of honour.

The wide circulation of an outspoken English Press has not been without its influence in the education of our Native officials, and the association with Europeans in higher judicial and administrative functions has resulted, and will result, in encouraging independence of thought.

Endeavouring to form a fair judgment between the sincere apprehensions of my countrymen on the one hand, and the qualifications of Natives on the other, I am constrained to express my conviction that there are classes of Natives to whom the exercise of jurisdiction over any class of their fellow subjects cannot be refused on the ground of fitness.

11. As to the third objection—

It cannot be denied that a considerable percentage of cases brought in the Criminal Courts are false or frivolous; and as instances of the means to which occasionally resort is had to gratify malice or revenge, I may mention two cases which came before me. In one a father with his own consent was put to death by his sons that they might bring a false charge of murder against their enemy. In another a mother was murdered by her son, who had asked but been refused her consent, in order that he might lay a charge of the crime against the agent of his landlord. A planter or agent may well take account of the risk he runs when he lives alone among Natives, of whom even those who are friendly to him may misunderstand his speech or misconceive his motives. An accused person always labours under the disadvantage that, unless the Magistrate to whom a complaint is made, at once detects that it is unfounded, process must issue and the attendance of the accused ordinarily be compelled. In some case the supposed indignity to which he has been subjected by appearing in Court will satisfy the malice of his accuser; in others he may find a mass of evidence produced against him sufficiently based on undeniable circumstances to make his defence difficult and involve a lengthy detention from his business.

It is not unreasonable that he should desire that the criminal jurisdiction to which he is subjected should be exercised by officers in whose ability and impartiality he has confidence, and that a multiplication of tribunals should not offer temptations to the malicious to use a criminal process as a weapon of offence against him.

I should be much moved by these considerations if I were not satisfied that the extent of the danger has been magnified; for few, if any, new tribunals will be established in the planting districts, and, with the modifications and safe guards, I shall presently mention, any substantial danger apprehended from the Legislative proposals may, I think, be avoided.

12. As to the fourth objection—

Although the policy to which I have referred should be pursued in all sincerity, it must be admitted that the European British subject is in this country a member of a dominant race, and that, for some time to come, he must, in the interest of all races, enjoy some of the distinction attaching to a dominant race. The privilege of the European British subject which the Bill assails is regarded as conferring prestige on the race and indirectly on all persons of European descent, and it has to be considered whether on the same ground on which other distinctions must be maintained, it is not expedient that this distinction also should be preserved.

The President of the Committee on Local Self-Government (Madras) states, in his dissent to the report, that since his first acquaintance with the country "there has been a gradual but certain decadence in the esteem of Natives for the European official," and he appears to regard this circumstance, as indeed it would be regarded by all who have at heart the interests of the Empire, with some apprehension. Others have asserted a like change of feeling towards unofficial Europeans.

There are well-known difficulties in gauging Native opinion, and it would be unsafe to form a conclusion as to the general attitude of the Natives from the language of the small number that profess to express Native opinion or come into frequent contact with Europeans. Changed circumstances have no doubt worked, and will work, changes in the grounds on which Native esteem is accorded to Europeans, official or unofficial. An intelligent fear may give place to intelligent appreciation; and the former feeling is more demonstrative in its expression of respect than the latter. When a nation is being educated to independence of thought, there will be found some who persuade themselves that an assumption of contempt for authority is the becoming utterance of a free citizen; when such men express their ideas in a foreign tongue, they select exaggerated and high-flown terms of which, in many cases, they are ignorant of the real import. Imperfect education encourages self-conceit without in all cases improving manners. I allow that the expression of race-antipathy is more outspoken, but I should hesitate to admit that less respect is now felt for Europeans by Natives than it was formerly on the grounds on which we desire to conciliate their esteem, viz., the conviction that we regard truth and desire to do justice.

13. However that may be, I recognise to the full the expediency of securing to Europeans whatever prestige can be fairly accorded to them. India has not yet made sufficient progress towards self-government that internal tranquillity and the safety of life and property can be secured without maintaining the prestige of the dominant race. In the desire to devote the revenues of the country to the development of its resources and to the education of the people, we have reduced to a minimum the force organised for the repression of disorder. When religious or sectarian animosity has disturbed the peace of a large town when an imperfectly civilised race has ravaged a country side, it has not unfrequently happened that troops or a sufficient body of police has not at once been available. Europeans, official and unofficial, sometimes ill-seconded by Native assistance, even of the official classes, have disregarded consideration of personal danger and checked or repressed tumult. It is the prestige of the race that has rescued these acts of bravery from the reproach of foolhardiness, and has restrained the excited mob from overwhelming the representatives of public order. In one sense every European in India is a member of the garrison, or, as I prefer to say, of a body which has assumed the duty of rescuing and preserving India from anarchy, and it would be impolitic, in the interest of all races, that the prestige of the European should be impaired.

14. I confess that this consideration would have induced me to hesitate to recommend the introduction of the Bill. It has, however, been introduced, and in order to avoid a recurrence of the excitement which, if it were now withdrawn, its re-introduction within a few years would occasion, it has to be considered, whether a modification of the proposal might not allay the apprehensions of those whose opposition to the measure proceeds on reasonable grounds.

My honourable colleague, Mr. Justice Kindersley, does not stand alone in objecting to the Bill on the ground that it is premature. There are many who do not question the principles of the Bill, who admit that a time may come when the Legislature need not hesitate to accept it. To my mind, there is much force in the argument that it is desirable to introduce the change proposed gradually; its gradual introduction will at first have little effect on the prestige of the European British subject, and that effect will be counterbalanced by other political advantages.

15. In so far as the Bill proposes to enlarge the class eligible for the exercise of jurisdiction over European British subjects, I believe there is no ground for apprehension that the jurisdiction would be improperly exercised by the Native members of the Covenanted Civil Service selected by competition.

I have had no sufficient experience of the members of the Statutory Civil Service to form an opinion of their fitness for the exercise of the jurisdiction, and the rules under which they are selected do not, I think, afford a sufficient guarantee of such fitness.

When these gentlemen show themselves qualified to undertake the responsible office of Sessions Judge or Magistrate of the district, a judgment may be formed of their fitness to exercise jurisdiction over European-British subjects.

16. As to Assistant Commissioners in the Non-Regulation Provinces and Cantonment Magistrates, I presume that the reason for specifying these classes was the repeal which the Bill proposes of so much of the existing law as confers on the Government a general power to appoint Europeans to be Justices of the Peace. I do not understand that it is proposed to appoint Natives to be Cantonment Magistrates. There are obvious reasons why it would be unadvisable to do so; and I consider that until a province of the Empire has made such progress that it can be brought under the general Regulations and Acts, the time has not arrived when jurisdiction over Europeans should be conferred on any Natives other than those who have entered the Civil Service by competition.

No one should be appointed a Justice of the Peace to exercise jurisdiction over Europeans in a Native State who is not a European British subject or Covenanted Civilian selected by competition. But it may be gathered from the opinions I have already expressed that I think there are Subordinate Judges and Deputy Collectors on whom the jurisdiction might safely be conferred to be exercised in the Regulation Provinces.

I am not aware on what ground, except that of uniformity, Europeans who do not belong to the classes mentioned in the Bill are to be rendered ineligible for the exercise of the jurisdiction. If fitness is, as I have throughout assumed it must be, regarded as the ground of qualification, the disqualification of this class is a contradiction of the principle of the Bill. Uniformity can be secured so far as is desirable by conceding the jurisdiction to such persons, European or Native, as are members of the Covenanted Civil Service selected by competition, or hold specified offices and subject to the restrictions I have mentioned to such persons, European or Native, as may be selected by the Government on the recommendation of the High Court. I propose this limitation on selection by the Executive, because I know it cannot always resist the urgency of local authorities to confer powers, and because it can, in many instances, have little direct knowledge of the gentlemen recommended for powers. On the other hand, the greater number of the persons whom it would be desirable to select would be officers of whose judicial capacity the Judges of the High Court would have had experience.

My proposals amount to this: that in cantonments jurisdiction over European British subjects should be conferable only on European British subjects: that in Non-Regulation Provinces it should be conferable only on European British subjects and Covenanted Civilians selected by competition; and that in Regulation Provinces, it should also be conferable on such Europeans and Natives as may be selected by the Government on the recommendation of the High Court.

17. In order to allay whatever apprehension is seriously entertained to the fitness of the officers on whom jurisdiction would be conferred, I have considered whether it might not be desirable to give to every European British subject the same option in respect of the presiding Judge or Magistrate as he at present enjoys to a qualified extent in respect of jurors and assessors. I have come to the conclusion that it would be unbecoming to the dignity of the judicial office that this option should rest with those who are subject to the jurisdiction; and that a safeguard reasonably sufficient might be provided by rendering more effectual a provision of the existing Code. The 526th section, Code of Criminal Procedure, enacts that whenever it is made to appear that a fair and impartial inquiry cannot be had in any Criminal Court, or that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, the High Court may transfer a case to another Court or to itself. I would authorize the High Court to make the transfer if it is made to appear "that it is expedient for the ends of justice." And I would supply a defect in the Code by directing that in any case in which prior to the commencement of the hearing the Government, the complainant, or the accused shall notify to the Court its or his intention to make an application under section 526, the Court shall adjourn the hearing for such reasonable time as may be required to enable an application to be made and an order obtained thereon.

18. Lastly, in the districts in which planting is principally carried out, there are now settled retired officers of the Army or Civil Service and other men of education and means who would in England be selected as Justices of the Peace. So far as it is possible, magisterial powers should be conferred on these gentlemen to be exercised by them as members of benches and ordinarily under the presidency of a European executive officer of the district or a member of the Covenanted Civil Service selected by competition.

With the modifications and limitations indicated, I believe little valid objection could be taken to the proposed alteration of the law.

It is stated in "Objects and Reasons" that the Government have "decided to remove every disqualification which is based merely on race distinction." I presume, therefore, that the draft Bill is sent to the Judges to ask their opinion only on the question whether the proposed Bill will accomplish the object decided on.

In this view, I think the proposed Bill is legally suitable to the purpose of Government.

J. KERNAN.

21st April 1883.

My opinion about this Bill is that it has been introduced too soon. I hope that in a few years the Natives will have made so much progress that they may safely be entrusted with jurisdiction over European British subjects. At present, I do not think that the time has come for the change.

J. R. KINDERSLEY.

21st April 1883.

No. 286-12L., dated 16th July, 1883.

From—E. S. SYMES, Esq., Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter No. 282-12L., dated 16th instant, I am directed to submit, in original, a memorial addressed by a considerable number of the European and Eurasian residents in this Province to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, praying that the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure may not be proceeded with.

To His Excellency the Most Hon'ble the Marquis of Ripon, K.G., P.C., G.M.S.I., Viceroy and Governor General of India.

Memorial of European British subjects of British Burma.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—We, the undersigned inhabitants of Rangoon and other places in British Burma, beg most respectfully to present to Your Excellency the following petition:—

Your petitioners, as European British subjects, are by birth entitled to the privileges contained in the great charters of English liberty, the most cherished of which is the right to be tried by their peers.

Your petitioners, or their fathers before them, have left the comforts of their own country, and carrying their lives in their hands, through battle, mutiny and disease, for the honour of their country's name, have assisted to establish and maintain the Empire of Her Majesty in India, which is the greatest of her possessions.

Your petitioners are pained beyond expression to find that the Government of India now seeks to enact a law empowering men of an alien race—men whose feeling towards your petitioners are necessarily embittered by the very acts by which Her Majesty became the ruler of this land—to sit in judgment and pass sentence upon them.

Your Excellency is well aware that all Eastern nations attach the greatest importance to the outward display of respect which they demand for their women, whatever their condition or caste; and the Government of India has acquiesced in exempting Native women of certain classes from appearing in Civil Courts of Justice before European or other Judges. Yet now it is proposed to expose English women, who have been brought up in honour and held in deserved respect, to the risk of legal processes before Native Judges in cases which may be instigated by Natives actuated by most unworthy motives.

Your petitioners feel that the proposed alteration would be particularly inexpedient in British Burma. This Province has but very recently been subjected to British rule; and, although that rule has been attended with the happiest consequences to the mass of the population, there still remains amongst them a strong tendency to sympathize with the lawlessness at Mandalay; and your petitioners are fain to believe that any hasty transfer of power to the Natives of this Province might lead to disastrous consequences in times of political trouble in any other part of the Empire.

Your petitioners submit that the Imperial requirements of the time call for no alteration in the present law of Criminal Procedure such as the Bill before Your Excellency in Council aims at, and which your petitioners pray may not be proceeded with.

And shall ever pray, &c.

Dated 28th July, 1883.

Office Memo.—By the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy.

Transferred for disposal to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Legislative Department.

Dated 25th July, 1883.

From—KHUSHIE RAM, Secretary, Native Association, Kalka,

To—The Private Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India.

I most humbly and respectfully beg to submit herewith the enclosed memorial on behalf of the inhabitants of Kalka and its vicinities, praying for a consideration in the famous Mr. Ilbert's Bill introduced into His Excellency's Legislative Council on the 19th February last, for the purpose of amending certain grave defects existing in the Code of Criminal Procedure at present in force in this country, and beg your Honour will, with an eye of mercy, present the said memorial to His Excellency the Viceroy for His Excellency's favourable consideration and support.

And, in duty bound, I, your Lordship's obedient and humble servant, will ever pray.

Dated 25th July, 1883.

To His Excellency the Most Noble GEORGE FREDERICK SAMUEL ROBINSON, MARQUIS OF RIPON, K.G., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., Viceroy and Governor General of India.

Memorial of the inhabitants of Kalka.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP,—The humble memorial of the inhabitants of Kalka and its vicinities most respectfully sheweth—

That your memorialists observe with much satisfaction the Bill introduced into Your Excellency's Legislative Council, on the 19th February last, for the purpose of amending certain grave defects existing in the Code of Criminal Procedure at present in force in this country. These defects had been for many years past the subject of very considerable complaints, which found formal and pointed expression in Your Excellency's Legislative Council in March 1882, when the present Code was passed, and when an amendment having the same object as the present Bill was brought before the Council, and withdrawn only upon a promise given that the subject would receive early and more careful consideration than could be bestowed on it at that time.

2. Your memorialists beg at the very outset to disclaim any desire for the removal of any privileges enjoyed and really valued by any particular class of Her Majesty's subjects, when those privileges are such as involve no injury to any other class. But your memorialists hold that the privilege continued to British-born subjects of Her Majesty under the present Code of Criminal Procedure is one which, besides being singular as the only class-privilege recognised in the administration of the criminal law, does involve injury, and very serious injury, to other classes of Her Majesty's subjects in this country; and they further hold that the curtailment of that privilege as attempted in the Bill now under discussion is in its extent the slightest that could be looked upon as at all meeting the circumstances of the case.

3. The administrative inconveniences which have been occasioned by the maintenance of the privilege in question; the inconvenience, not to say injustice, which parties to and witnesses in criminal proceedings in which European British subjects are the accused persons are put to in consequence of that privilege; the mark of inferiority which it implies on one gradually increasing class of officers in Her Majesty's service, and the occasional injustice which must be expected to occur in the distribution of the various administrative districts to those officers if the said privilege is maintained untouched; all these are considerations which, taken together, ought, your memorialists submit, to strongly weigh with the British Government in India, having regard to the policy of that Government as often authoritatively declared, and nowhere in better or more forcible language than in the great Proclamation of 1858, in which Her Most Gracious Majesty used the following memorable words:—

“We hold ourselves bound to the Natives of our Indian territories by the same obligations of duty which bind us to all our other subjects, and those obligations, by the blessing of Almighty God, we shall faithfully and conscientiously fulfil.” And again, “it is our earnest desire.....to administer its Government for the benefit of all our subjects resident therein. In their prosperity will be our strength, in their contentment our security, and in their gratitude our best reward. And may the God of all Power grant unto us and to those in authority under us strength to carry out these our wishes for the good of our people.”

4. Your memorialists gladly admit that the principles above referred to have in a general way, and to some extent, practically guided the Government of our country, and the history of British Indian administration in the past exhibits a constant, if somewhat slow, progress of equalising the status before the law of all classes of Her Majesty's subjects. Your memorialists accordingly consider the Bill in question as the only one short step in the direction in which British policy in this country has uniformly progressed. And they can therefore only deplore the spirit of partisanship which the Bill has roused in a section of Her Majesty's subjects. But they cannot help feeling that that spirit has not been roused by this Bill alone, and that behind that spirit lies a strong antagonism to the whole policy of the present Government of India—a policy which, your memorialists submit, is not only just and beneficent in itself, but is also in consonance with, and is the proper outcome of, principles which have been laid down for upwards of half a century by successive Parliaments, Secretaries of State for India, and the Government of India, and, above all, calculated to promote the best interests of both England and India.

5. Your memorialists maintain that, when the principle is once admitted that the Natives of this country ought to be appointed in gradually increasing number to posts in the service of Her Majesty, which in their ordinary functions include the trial of offences committed by European subjects, a very strong case is made out for such legislation as is attempted in this Bill. It is the duty of the statesman to provide in due season for an adaptation of the whole administrative machinery to that principle before an overwhelming number of cases actually arise in which such adaptation may be specifically required.

6. Your memorialists would crave leave to say a few words upon certain specified points made in connection with this subject.

7. The existence of this anomalous and invidious distinction which the Bill seeks to remove is sought to be justified by the assumed incapacity of Native Magistrates to deal with cases in which British-born subjects are concerned. The grounds alleged for this assumption are—(1) that Native Magistrates are likely to be swayed by race-prejudices; (2) that they are not sufficiently acquainted with European manners and customs; (3) that much perjury prevails in India; (4) that false and trumped-up charges are often brought against innocent parties; (5) that the aid of experienced counsel cannot be had in the mufassal.

8. First, as to race-prejudices, it must be remembered that the Magistrates who are to be entrusted with jurisdiction over Europeans will of necessity be tried and trusted servants of Government, who have gone through years of training, and who have by their qualification attained high positions, such as those of District Magistrates or Sessions Judges. The other persons who are eligible for these extended powers are those Covenanted Civil Servants, Assistant Commissioners, or Cantonment Magistrates only who have been especially selected by Government to be Justices of the Peace.

9. Your memorialists would respectfully submit that it is impossible to suppose that any one of these Magistrates, most of whom must necessarily have been educated in England, and have thus come into social contact with Europeans, could entertain any hostile prejudices against the English people. Surely the blessings of English rule—which no one appreciates better than the educated Natives of India—are calculated to produce not a feeling of hostility, not a feeling of prejudice against the English people, but rather a feeling of respect, gratitude, and admiration. The idea, therefore, of wilful injustice must, your memorialists submit, be dismissed as a gross and unjustifiable libel, unfair alike to the English Government in India and to the Native Magistrates.

10. Wilful injustice being thus out of the question, is there any reasonable ground for supposing that Native Magistrates are more likely to be unconsciously swayed by race-prejudices than their European colleagues? In considering this question one must not forget the high training the Magistrates in question must have received before they are entrusted with the powers proposed to be given under the Bill, nor the fact that Hindu Magistrates try every day questions in which Hindus, Parsis, and Mussalmans may be opposed to each other, and vice versa. Now, it has never been alleged that Hindu, Mussalman, or Parsi Magistrates unjustly convict persons belonging to a different race or creed from their own. Then, why should it be supposed that these Magistrates would be unjustly influenced by race-prejudices in the case of Europeans only?

11. As to want of acquaintance with European manners and customs, your memorialists submit that this is not true in the case of Natives who have been educated in England or even those who have received a high English education in this country, and who have for years mixed with Europeans in their own country and in India on a footing of equality and friendship. On the contrary, your memorialists would submit that Covenanted Native Civil Servants are likely to be better acquainted with European manners and customs than many European Magistrates are, and can generally be, with the habits and customs of the Natives of this country.

12. In regard to perjury and false and trumped-up charges, and the absence of counsel, surely experienced Native Magistrates are as well able to deal with these difficulties as their European colleagues, or rather more from their intimate knowledge of Natives. These difficulties are not alleged to be confined to European cases only, but to occur in all cases. But, if the Magistrates are able to detect perjury and to discover trumped-up charges, even in the absence of counsel, when levelled against the Natives of this country, surely they would be equally able to detect them when they have to try cases in which Europeans are concerned.

13. And your memorialists submit that the multiplication of railways and the telegraph has made it easy for parties to engage counsel, or to communicate readily with the Government or the High Courts, which could not have been done in former times; while the High Courts in India have now been invested with the ample powers to transfer cases on all occasions where such a step may seem desirable. If, then, these Magistrates are admittedly competent to administer justice to the millions of India, it can hardly be seriously argued that they are unfit to deal with the few cases in which Europeans are concerned. Your memorialists cannot believe that Natives are more governed by race-prejudices than Europeans. They think that quite the contrary is the fact.

14. Under these circumstances, your memorialists would respectfully ask whether it is just, dignified, or politic to have one set of scales for administering justice to the Natives of this country and quite another for Europeans; whether our Courts are good enough for trying questions of life and death for the 200 millions of Her Majesty's Indian subjects, but not fit to try even the most trivial questions in regard to Englishmen; and whether the present exceptional and anomalous provisions of the law are not calculated to lead the Natives of this country to believe that they are intended more to screen European offenders than to secure impartial justice?

15. Lastly, your memorialists emphatically deny the gross misrepresentation that the Natives of this country care nothing for this Bill. They, on the contrary, assert that they are keenly and deeply interested in it. They have watched, and will continue to watch, its fate with the most intense anxiety. In the opinion of your memorialists, the principle involved in this Bill is of the most vital importance to their interest and welfare. The question really is, whether the Natives of this country—no matter what their qualifications, their learning, their experience and their services in the cause of their country may be—are always to be treated as an inferior race of men; whether that inferiority is constantly to be marked by invidious and galling distinction? And this question, as already indicated, has now to be considered as part of the still larger question—whether India is to be governed upon the righteous principles which were announced by Her Most Gracious Majesty, and have guided Your Excellency's enlightened policy, or upon those of the opponents of this Bill?

And, in duty bound, we, Your Lordship's obedient and humble subjects, will ever pray.

No. 6, dated 10th August, 1883.

From—GANESH PANDURANG AGTERY, Vice-President, and RAGHUNATH PANDURANG KARANDIKAR and NARAYAN PANDURANG AGTERY, Honorary Secretaries, Satara Sarvajanic Sabha,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Legislative Department.

We have been directed by the Managing Committee of the Satara Sarvajanic Sabha to submit the following representation on Bill No. 8 of 1883, a Bill to amend the criminal jurisdiction of Native Magistrates, for the consideration of the Legislative Council, and to request you to lay the same before it.

1. The Sabha has been watching with deep interest the progress of the Bill mentioned above since the time the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert begged leave of the Council to introduce the same.

2. The principle of this Bill is of the greatest importance and significance, and is in thorough accord with the traditional policy of the Indian Government, with the declared views and acts of the great Anglo-Indian statesmen who have founded and consolidated this great empire, with the repeated instructions of the Court of Directors of the East India Company, with the Acts of British Parliament on the subject of Indian policy, and, lastly, with the generous promises and pledges of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, as solemnly given in the Royal Proclamation of 1858.

3. The equality in the eye of the law of all Her Majesty's Indian subjects—whether British-born or otherwise—has been one of the main principles underlying the policy and government of this country by the late East India Company, and it has been accentuated above all in the Royal Proclamation on the assumption of the direct rule of this great country by Her Most Gracious Majesty.

4. The greater and more extended employment of the Natives in the government of their own country, which has been promised, which is being carried out partially, and which policy and economy alike will force the Government to carry out more fully, demands that the Natives shall be under no disqualification, by reason of their caste, colour or creed, in the exercise of powers appertaining to the posts held by them. If invidious distinctions and disqualifications are allowed, not only great public inconvenience and injustice will accrue, but much needless expense will be thrown on the public Exchequer.

5. The British Indian Government cannot recognise Europeans as a dominant caste in this country, and invest them with exclusive rights and privileges. Such a proceeding will stamp the Natives as an inferior race, and engender in the mind of the nation at large a sense of injustice and wrong, and will create a permanent feeling of discontent most prejudicial to the interests both of India and England. The triumph or defeat of this Bill will be associated in the minds of the people with the triumph or defeat of a great cause—the cause of justice and equality, the cause of India being governed in its own interests and not in the interests of a small dominant class; its “symbolical significance” is great, and its fate is watched with keen interest.

6. The power to try European British subjects, which the present Bill proposes to invest Native Magistrates with, has been freely enjoyed by Her Majesty's Native subjects in Ceylon, and the Sabha has the authority of Her Majesty's Colonial Under-Secretary declaring in Parliament that none of the numerous and fancied dangers which such an investment is alleged to be fraught with has ever occurred there, and that no complaints are made by the Europeans there against Native Magistrates exercising criminal jurisdiction over them.

7. The same is found to be the case in the matter of Native Magistrates and Judges exercising criminal jurisdiction over Europeans in Presidency towns and civil jurisdiction all over the country. The Natives have shown themselves perfectly competent and fit to hold such powers, and it is not likely they will ever prove unworthy of trust if invested with criminal

8. Notwithstanding this, many objections are raised against the passing of this Bill, some of which are noticed below :—

- (1) The necessity for the proposed change has not been made out.
- (2) The time for the change has not yet come.
- (3) A Native is not fit to try European British subjects because of his caste-prejudices and his ignorance of European manners, habits, and language.
- (4) There has been no popular demand for the change.

9. As regards the first objection. Since the Native Civilians are rising to the rank of District Magistrates and Sessions Judges, it is necessary, for obvious reasons, that they must be put on a footing of equality with European members of the same service, as regards the criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects, by removing the existing anomalous distinction and disqualification. According to the provisions of existing law, a European British subject, committing an offence not adequately punishable by a Magistrate, in a district presided over by a Sessions Judge, who himself is not a European British subject, has to be sent up to the Presidency town for his trial before the High Court. This is a great public inconvenience, entailing, the Sabha submits, a great hardship on the aggrieved parties and on the witnesses concerned, and a good deal of needless expense on the public treasury, which it is quite desirable should be avoided by removing the judicial incapacity of the Native Civilians by introducing the proposed change into the law.

10. As regards the second objection. British statesmen of great Indian experience have often declared that Native judicial officers are efficient and impartial in administering justice, and, as a matter of fact, their decisions on important questions are generally upheld by the superior tribunals. This circumstance alone encourages the Sabha to say that this objection is groundless. Any such objection would hold good if European settlers in this country were to a great extent under English law. But all Her Majesty's Indian subjects, whether European or Native, are now tried by one and the same criminal law without any distinction, and this law is entirely based upon the principles and precedents of English law and jurisprudence. The case of English residents in foreign countries being tried by their own Courts is not in point, because in this country they are not tried by foreign Courts, administering foreign and strange law, but by Judges appointed by their own Government and by laws made by themselves.

11. With regard to the third ground of objection, the Sabha is really at a loss to conceive what bearing caste has on one's notion of justice. Had there been any force in this objection, European British subjects would never have submitted to the jurisdiction of Native Magistrates in Presidency towns. Native Magistrates, moreover, daily try men of all castes and creeds, Hindus, Mussalmans, Parsis, Christians, Jains, Buddhists, &c.; and no complaint has been heard that, in trying men and women of so many races, they are swayed by caste-prejudices. As regards ignorance of European habits and language, if Natives are ignorant of European habits and language, much more are the Europeans ignorant of Native habits and languages, and would be unfit to try Natives. The fact, however, is that educated Natives possess a better knowledge of English than many English Civilians possess of the Vernacular languages.

12. Lastly, it has been put forth that the Natives have never asked for the change. It is well known that, when the Criminal Procedure Code was under discussion in the Supreme Legislative Council, two eminent Native Members of the Council proposed an amendment for the removal of this very anomaly. The movers clearly made out the importance of the amendment: what they said was that there should be perfect equality in respect of all races without any distinction of colour or creed. The Sabha does not wish to enter into the details of this question, but it is humbly of opinion that the change is really and earnestly asked for by the leading members of the Native community.

13. We cannot conclude without expressing the Sabha's great regret at the hostile attitude of a certain section of the European community in India on this subject. A broad question has been raised—"What ideal shall we set before our eyes" in the government of the various nations of this great Empire? The Sabha has not the slightest doubt that His Excellency the present Viceroy's government will settle this question rightly and wisely, and in the interests of the millions of Her Majesty's Indian subjects entrusted to His Excellency's care.

No. 2108, dated 11th August, 1883.

From—M. HAMMICK, Esq., for Chief Secretary to Government, Madras,

To—The Secretary to Government of India, Legislative Department.

In continuation of my letter, dated 27th June 1883, No. 1710, and with reference to your telegram of the 27th ultimo, I am directed to forward a copy of the minute recorded by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice T. Muttasami Aiyar on the Criminal Procedure Bill.

Minute by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice T. MUTTASAMI AIYAR, Madras.

As a Native who has had criminal jurisdiction over European British subjects as a Presidency Magistrate from 1868 to 1872, and as a High Court Judge since 1878, I have felt some delicacy in expressing an opinion on the Jurisdiction Bill, which is opposed mainly on the ground that the several races other than European British subjects who are settled in India are, as a body, incompetent to exercise such jurisdiction. But, as a member of a Court to which Her Imperial Majesty has, under statutory enactment, been pleased to commit the highest judicial functions, I feel it at once due to the Crown and to my country to place on record my views on a legislative proposal which has evoked such widely different sentiments both in this country and in Europe. Divesting myself, so far as it is possible to do, of any conscious partiality, I believe that the measure is one which the Legislature may enact as law with the fullest assurance of its justice and without any reasonable doubt of its expediency. There is scarcely room to doubt that the principle on which the Bill is founded is sound and unimpeachable. Assuming for a moment that there are certain classes of Natives who are, by education, special knowledge, and character, qualified to exercise the new jurisdiction, I am unable to conceive on what principle of justice it is to be withheld from them. Where are we to stop, if we once admit that, in a time of peace and progress, when the policy adopted in every branch of the administration is in the direction of the regeneration of India, the claims of equal justice to all classes of Her Imperial Majesty's subjects are to be subordinated to the sentimental objections of any one class? Nearly 50 years ago, and in 1833, it was decided by the British Parliament that no Native shall be excluded from any office in the State which he is competent to hold solely by reason of his colour, caste or creed; and the Jurisdiction Bill only purports to give effect to this Parliamentary guarantee, by substantially ruling that no power appertaining to the office which the Native is qualified to hold shall be taken away from him because he is Native and not an European British subject. The time that has been allowed to elapse from the date of the Parliamentary guarantee, during which English education, English administration, and liberal-minded Englishmen and Englishwomen have steadily been doing their good work in aid of progress, indicates that the legislation now proposed is far from premature. On the other hand, it is the necessary result of that liberal policy and statesmanship which does not shrink from recognising the altered conditions of progress, which has made Great Britain what she is and which, it is earnestly hoped, will one day raise India to what she ought to be. I further think that, in this country, where there are divers races and nationalities, the only considerations that ought to influence our decision is that of competency to exercise the new jurisdiction. I do not for a moment pretend to claim this jurisdiction for all Natives, for no one is more aware than I am of their many imperfections; but I desire to point out that there is a considerable number of Natives who are competent to exercise the criminal jurisdiction as efficiently as the average European British subject, and that it is as incorrect to say that no Native is competent to exercise it as it is that every European British subject is competent to exercise it.

2. Confining myself, then, to the question of competency, I do not see sufficient ground for the apprehension that the Bill, if it becomes law, will at all impair the protection which European British subjects claim against injustice. Our Subordinate Judges, who are Natives, exercise unlimited jurisdiction over the property of European British subjects, and it is generally admitted that they exercise it as satisfactorily as most of our District Judges. Again, our District Munsifs have civil jurisdiction to no inconsiderable extent over European British subjects, and there has been no complaint against them. The coercive and punitive powers which are conferred upon the Native Judiciaries by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure include powers to arrest, to imprison, to fine, and to demand security from European British subjects; larger in extent, in some cases, than the power to fine or imprison, which it is now intended to confer upon Justices of the Peace; and, so far as I am aware, there has not been a single instance in this Presidency in which these powers have been abused to the prejudice of the European British subject. Notwithstanding the fact that civil justice is so largely administered by Native agency, no sense of insecurity of property has resulted from it. On the other hand there has been a steady and copious flow of British capital into India during the last 20 years. This being so, I do not understand why should the very limited criminal jurisdiction which it is now proposed to confer upon a few superior Native Magistrates, who, as a class, are at least as intelligent and respectable as our Subordinate Judges, produce a different result. Is it not just and reasonable to conclude that the new criminal jurisdiction will be exercised by them as carefully and as impartially as the civil jurisdiction and its ancillary powers are exercised by their own countrymen in the uncovenanted judicial service? Turning, next to the Native civil servants, are not there additional guarantees of efficiency in the university education which those Natives and Eurasians who are selected for the civil service under the competitive system generally secure, in the common platform on which they compete in England with their English compeers, in the insight which they acquire into the influences that enter into the domestic and social life of Englishmen and Englishwomen, and in their modes of thought and feeling? Furthermore, the circumstances in which this jurisdiction will be exercised by Natives afford a very satisfactory guarantee against its abuse. The supervision which the District Magistrate, the Sessions Judge and the High Court exercise over the inferior Magistrates, the care with which their action is watched where an European British subject is concerned, the feeling among educated Natives that even a bona fide mistake in a case where an European British subject is concerned, or in which party-feeling runs high, is liable to misconstruction, the desire to maintain a high character for judicial impartiality in the estimation of the higher European district officials and of the High Court and Government, the power of transferring cases which vests in the High Court, the facilities which the European officials in the provinces possess of discovering any abuse of power in cases in which an European British subject is concerned, the right of appeal, and the right to apply for the writ of habeas corpus which Englishmen possess—all these favour the conclusion that the superior Native officials named in the Bill will feel and recognize that it is as much their interest as it is their duty to exercise the new jurisdiction so as to merit the approbation of enlightened Europeans. As to Native Sessions Judges and District Magistrates, who will be men of considerable experience and of approved service, high official status and character, it seems to me to be absurd to say that, although they may well sustain the heavy responsibility devolving on them in all other respects, they are not fit to try a few Europeans who may offend against criminal law. As to the members of the statutory or Native civil service, it is, no doubt, true that though they are always men of high social status, and though many have secured the benefit of liberal English education, some of them may be young, inexperienced, and not as highly educated as the others; and all that can, perhaps, be reasonably demanded is that in their case the new jurisdiction should be specially conferred by Government subject to certain length of service and on special proof of fitness for its exercise. I may here refer to the success with which criminal jurisdiction is exercised in the provinces by Native Magistrates over Europeans who are not European British subjects. In what respects do English British subjects differ from other Europeans so as to render the extension of jurisdiction inexpedient? If it is the right of conquest, I would observe that British love of equal justice to all is as important an element of British greatness as British valour or British pride. These considerations induce me to think that the opposition offered to the Bill is not founded on reason.

3. In the discussion which the legislative proposal has evoked, many secondary issues have unfortunately been raised, and the main issue has often been thrown quite into the back ground. It is said by the opponents of the Bill that what we ask for is, not that any privilege enjoyed by the Native should be withheld from him, but that the privilege hitherto enjoyed by the European British subject should not be taken away from him. I would here observe that the real question is one of equal justice to all Her Majesty's subjects, and of removing legal disabilities when the altered conditions of progress render their removal an act of bare justice and fairness. The principles and traditions of enlightened statesmanship and legislation seem to me to require in this country that no special privileges that derogate from the equal rights of citizenship should be recognized, except either on the ground that the particular privilege claimed must be tolerated for a time on considerations of policy as an unavoidable administrative imperfection, or for the reason that its preservation is necessary as a special protection against injustice.

4. It is next urged that the Native community does not demand a repeal of the privilege which is dealt with by the Bill. I would ask whether, as a community, Natives ever demanded that slavery should be abolished, or that no arbitrary distinction of colour, caste, or rank should be recognized regarding the exercise of public rights, or that the Indian prince and peasant should be equal in the eye of law and in the British courts of justice. I would further ask whether it is reasonable to believe that the Natives do not see and feel the humiliation implied by a legislative declaration of national and almost universal incompetency to exercise jurisdiction even in small criminal cases over European British subjects.

5. It is further alleged that some of the Natives say that it would be troublesome to exercise this jurisdiction, and that they would be better off without it. Does not this really imply a diffidence in the impartial judgment of their official superior when he has to decide between an Englishman and a Native subordinate? In many cases, this diffidence will, on enquiry, be found to rest on no solid foundation. Assuming that there are some cases in which it is well founded, is it not an administrative defect that ought to be remedied? Is this feeling to be encouraged or to be noted as an argument against the Bill? Does it not, on the contrary, indicate that scrupulous care would be taken in exercising this jurisdiction, and that European British subjects are likely to receive more consideration from Natives than they might reasonably expect from their own countrymen?

6. It is not for me to enter on the question of feeling or of sentiment, and I would therefore pass over it with the remark that it does not harmonize with the exigencies of progress and with the British sense of fairness and justice. I may, however, state that, if the Bill becomes law, it will tend, though after a time and after the present excitement passes away, rather to bridge over the gulf between the European and the Native which invidious distinctions maintain, than to widen or deepen the breach.

7. It is next urged that exemption from Native jurisdiction is of political importance, and that it is necessary to maintain the prestige of British power. Her Majesty's Secretary of State is often a party in a civil suit tried by a District Munsif, and at times is a judgment passed against him not only by the Court of first instance but also by the Court of Subordinate Judge on appeal. The whole Native community is aware of the existence of this right to sue the Crown. I would now ask whether this knowledge, and whether the gracious submission of the Crown to Native jurisdiction, have lowered or raised the prestige of British power. I may say, without fear of contradiction, that it has deepened the loyalty and affection felt for our Most Gracious Sovereign, and materially added to the prestige and splendour of British power. It is, therefore, not easy for me to understand why British prestige should suffer if Her Majesty's Native servant, acting in subordination to Her Majesty's Government, and subject to the authority of Her Majesty's High Court, should punish an European who breaks the law.

The submission of the Crown to Native jurisdiction in civil cases most emphatically illustrates the position that love of equal justice to all materially adds to, and does not at all detract from, the prestige of the British race, and that it has always characterised the British rule in this country.

8. As to the argument that immunity from the jurisdiction of Native Criminal Courts constituted by the British Government and supervised by higher European tribunals is the personal and indefeasible privilege of the European British subject, I must say that it is inconsistent with the traditions of the British rule and the history of British legislation in this country for nearly 50 years. For instance, prior to 1836, European British subjects had enjoyed a total immunity from the civil jurisdiction of all the Courts established by the late East India Company. Then there was a sentiment that even English gentlemen, including the Judges of the late Sadr Court, were unfit to exercise jurisdiction over Europeans. But when it was found that there was no necessity for the retention of this privilege, and that an amendment of the law was feasible, Act XI of 1836 was passed to repeal the privilege. When this was done, no distinction was made between the Native Judge and the District Judge. Although District Munsifs were not then included among the judicatories competent to exercise civil jurisdiction, still the ground was one of incompetency and not of nationality. However, when the improvement of the uncovenanted judicial service rendered a further amendment of the law practicable, Act III of 1850 subjected European British subjects to the civil jurisdiction of District Munsifs. Again, when it was found expedient to confer criminal jurisdiction on Native Magistrates in Presidency towns over European British subjects, the law was amended without any opposition. As to this, it is stated that the presence of a large European community and of the English Press in Presidency towns are special safeguards which do not exist in the provinces. Assuming that it is from fear, and not from principle or sense of duty, that Presidency Magistrates do not abuse their power, or the supervision of the High Courts, the facilities which district officials possess of acquiring information as to how an European British subject is treated, and the criticisms and letters that appear in the Presidency papers as to what takes place in remote plantations—are all these to go for nothing as checks against abuse of power?

9. As to the argument founded on international law, according to which Christian nations in Europe claim immunity from the criminal jurisdiction of Muhammadan States in Turkey and Northern Africa, it rests, as pointed out by Sir A. Hobhouse, on grounds which are not applicable to the Jurisdiction Bill. It has, then, been suggested that an immunity from the Criminal Courts in the Native States of Travancore and Mysore is enjoyed by European British subjects. Neither does this seem to me to be a parallel case. The British Government is not entitled to insist that the Indian Penal Code shall always be the criminal law to be administered by those States. Nor is it in a position to guide and control the nomination and dismissal of Native Magistrates or to subject them to the supervision of higher European tribunals, or to institute administrative guarantees to ensure the protection which the special immunity is designed to secure.

10. The real question, therefore, on which our decision should depend is, I say again, whether, regard being had to the education and status of superior Native Magistrates and of Native civil servants, and to the circumstances in which they are to exercise a very limited criminal jurisdiction, the retention of the special privilege is necessary as a safeguard to the administration of criminal justice. I shall next proceed to consider seriatim the arguments founded upon what are said to be defects in Native character or peculiarities of temper in certain uneducated classes of Europeans, and upon the consideration which is due to English ladies that appear before judicial tribunals.

11. Want of sufficient firmness and of independence of character, and a proneness to be swayed by race sentiment or feeling, especially when waves of social and political excitement pass over Native society, are the defects to which reference has been made in connection with the Bill. As to firmness and independence, they are seldom missed in the judgments of our Subordinate Judges and District Munsifs, and it was a marked improvement in this respect that induced the Legislature to give them jurisdiction over suits to which Government and superior public servants were parties. I have heard public and social questions discussed at social gatherings as well by educated as by orthodox Hindus, and I have seldom missed either a frank expression of opinion or firm adherence to one's views. If servility and obsequiousness are in some cases found in ministerial officials, it is because they feel that these are conducive to their success in official life. If they are at times found to feign a concurrence in the view of their European superiors, it will be seen on close examination that it is due to the fear that independence in a Native is mistaken for self-assertion and that manner is similarly mistaken for character owing to the limited social intercourse between the European and the Native. However this may be, the defect does not exist where there is a conviction that independence and frankness are invited and encouraged, or where a high sense of duty is generated and sustained by the influences due to liberal English education. Considering, then, the status, the education and the enlightenment generally of Natives who are superior Magistrates and members of the civil service, and considering also in what esteem such men as the late lamented Ratnavelu Chetti and others of his stamp were held, I do not think that this objection against the Bill has any force.

12. Next, as to proneness to be swayed by race feeling and social prejudice. There are three classes of Native Magistrates on whom it is proposed to confer criminal jurisdiction. The argument is obviously not pertinent in the case of Eurasians who enter the civil service under the competitive examination. Nor is it pertinent in the case of superior Native Magistrates, who are men of education and tried character, and possessed of considerable experience. Neither has it weight in the case of Natives who have risen above social prejudice, gone to England, studied and competed with Englishmen on their own soil, moved in their own society, at times dined at the same table, and in some instances even married Englishwomen. This class of civil servants, as well as those Natives who have had the benefit of university culture and education and have habitually cultivated a high sense of public duty, have no real reverence either for sacred monkeys or idols. It does seem to me to be a great hardship that these men should be told that, although they owe their position in the civil service to freedom from prejudice and narrow-minded views, and to the fact that, in most matters, they are influenced by English thought and feeling, they must be taken to be no better than some of their uneducated countrymen for the purposes of this Bill. As to the members of Native Civil Service, they are generally gentlemen by birth and status and education, and the conditions in which they will have to exercise the new jurisdiction are adequate checks against the misuse of their power. I must also point out that, defective as social education in this country is in many matters, reverence for law and judicial office is a trait in national character, and a dereliction of duty on the part of a Judge is, according to Hindu notion, one of the five great sins for which there is no atonement. I have also stated that there is no objection to instituting additional tests of competency in the case of this class of civil servants. In dealing with this argument, it is unfortunately overlooked by those who oppose the Bill that District Magistrates and the High Court will not hesitate to exercise their power to transfer cases from one Court to another whenever there is any apprehension on the ground of abnormal social or religious upheaval.

13. The next argument, that Native gentlemen will be wanting in consideration to English ladies who may appear before them, impliedly casts a very ungenerous and totally unfounded imputation on Native character. I hardly know a country in which there are fewer instances of insults offered to family women, both in public and private life. Conscious as I am of the profound respect with which English ladies are regarded by all classes of Hindus, and of the respectful affection and gratitude with which liberal-minded English ladies who labour to raise and elevate women in India are remembered both by men and women in educated Hindu families, I must emphatically characterise this attack as a cruel and unjust imputation on Native gentlemen. Have not Natives common sense to see that there are special social usages in every nation? Are they not aware that there are several peculiar customs among themselves? Does the educated European insult Native women because their customs are peculiar? "Regard every lady who is not your wife as your mother" is the rule of etiquette current among gentlemen in Native society. It is also a matter for regret that strange and startling misconceptions exist among European gentlemen as to the real position which the Hindu wife and mother enjoy in respectable families. The deference that is shown to the mother in all families, the consideration and respect accorded to Native ladies in Hindu society at ceremonial and festive gatherings, and the influence the wife commands in the families of many educated Natives and in respectable orthodox families, are scarcely inferior to what would be found in English homes. I may, therefore, confidently submit that English ladies that may appear before superior Native Magistrates and Native civil servants will be treated at least with as much deference and consideration as they might expect from their own countrymen, and that, if any mistake is made in this respect, it will be on the side of too much, than of too little, consideration.

14. As to the peculiarities of temper in sailors, soldiers, and the lower classes of Europeans, the answer is that these classes are most numerous in Presidency-towns, and there has been no complaint against Presidency Magistrates.

15. Another argument against the Bill is that national and social peculiarities are elements of probability that require to be taken into account in criminal cases, and that Natives are deficient in this branch of special knowledge. The fact is that it is hardly needed in dealing with ordinary police cases, such as drunken outbreaks, assaults or the like. In more serious cases, the overt acts from which a criminal intent is inferred would generally be such as create no difficulty in arriving at a finding as to intention. As to cases in which a special knowledge is necessary, why should it be assumed without adequate reason that an educated Native is not competent to acquire it, while an educated European, fresh from England, is supposed to be capable of acquiring the same knowledge as to Natives? Are not English education, acquaintance with English society, social intercourse with Englishmen, and opportunities of consulting European superiors and colleagues in cases of exceptional difficulty, facilities which a Native Magistrate and civil servant may turn to account? Are not cases which arise under the mercantile law, or which require a knowledge of the intricate law of trusts and testamentary alienations, and are not actions even for breach of promise of marriage, dealt with by Natives in the exercise of civil jurisdiction? It should also be borne in mind that those cases, if any, in which peculiarly subtle influences relating to sexual relations enter are not likely to come before inferior Magistrates, and that, if they ever do come, they may be transferred to some higher tribunal for disposal.

In conclusion, I have to apologize for the length of this paper. I have also to apologize if I have unconsciously under-estimated the force of any objection taken to the Bill. It is far from any intention that any special privilege which is necessary as a protection against injustice should be taken away from the British residents in India; for no one feels more than I do that, among the various races who have ruled over this country, the British race is the nation to whom this country owes an everlasting debt of gratitude. The prestige of that race is of importance as well to the Hindu as to the European; for it is necessary to the cause of order, progress, and national regeneration in India. My only desire is that the Native and the European should not, in their relations as fellow-citizens, overlook the exigencies of progress, but act with mutual consideration, so that their descent from the same stock in the far antiquity may become the watchword for mutual esteem, cordiality, love, and brotherhood.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

N<sup>o</sup> 37. } SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

CONTENTS.

PART I.—Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions, Leave of Absence, General Orders, Rules and Regulations.

PART II.—Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, Administrator General, Paper Currency Dept., Presidency Pay Master, Money Order Department, Mint Master, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, Supdt. of Government Printing, and other Government Officers; Postal, Telegraph, and Commissariat Notices.

PART III.—Advertisements and Notices by private individuals and Corporations.

PART IV.—Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General:—

The British Burma Pilots Act, 1883.

The Multán District Laws Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

PART V.—Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22:—

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.

SUPPLEMENT NO. 37.

PART I.

Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions, &c.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—PUBLIC.

Simla, the 14th September 1883.

No. 1365.—Under the provisions of Section 17 of the Indian Arms Act, 1878, and with reference to paragraph IV (b) of Home Department Notification No. 518, dated the 6th March 1879, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rule regarding the grant of licenses for the importation or transport of saltpetre in all districts on the external land frontier of British India and in the sea-board districts of British Burma, when such saltpetre is required for manufacturing, medicinal or industrial purposes:—

Rule.

Licenses may be granted to persons without payment of any fee in all districts on the external land frontier of British India and in the sea-board districts of British Burma, entitling the holder to import or transport saltpetre in reasonable quantities, when the same is proved to the satisfaction of the officer granting the license to be required bona fide for manufacturing, medicinal or industrial purposes.

PORT BLAIR.

The 13th September 1883.

No. 439.—Appointments.—Mr. M. V. Portman, Officiating Extra Assistant Superintendent, 2nd Class, to officiate as Extra Assistant Superintendent, 1st Class, Port Blair and the Nicobars, during the absence on leave of Mr. H. Godwin Austen, or until further orders.

Mr. W. Jessop to officiate as Extra Assistant Superintendent of the 2nd Class.

ECCLESIASTICAL.

The 13th September 1883.

No. 238.—The Reverend E. M. Beasley, B.A., Chaplain of Morar, is granted privilege leave for one month, with effect from the 20th ultimo, or from any subsequent date on which he may avail himself of it.

The 14th September 1883.

No. 242.—The services of the Reverend T. C. Shepherd, of the Bombay Ecclesiastical Establishment, are transferred to the Bengal (Lahore) Ecclesiastical Establishment.

A. MACKENZIE,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—MILITARY.

Simla, the 10th September, 1883.

No. 2189 G.—The services of Lieutenant C. G. Harris, Royal Irish Rifles, Officiating Wing Officer, on probation, Bhopal Battalion, are replaced at the disposal of the Military Department.

The 12th September, 1883.

No. 2213 G.—Lieutenant H. L. Pennell, 1st Dragoon Guards, Officiating Squadron Officer, on probation, 2nd Regiment, Central India Horse, is granted six months' leave to study the Native languages.

POLITICAL.

The 13th September, 1883.

No. 2236 G.—With reference to Foreign Department Notification, No. 1493 G., dated the 28th May, 1883, the recognition of the appointment by the Government of India of Mr. Peter Lenthardt as Acting Consul for the Netherlands, at Karachi, has been confirmed by Her Majesty's Government.

GENERAL.

The 12th September, 1883.

No. 2215 G.—Captain A. C. Talbot, Additional Political Agent of the 2nd Class, and Political Agent in Bhutpore and Karauli, is appointed to hold charge of the current duties of the office of Assistant to the Governor-General's Agent in Rajputana, at Sujangurh, in addition to his own duties, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

No. 2218 G.—The following reversions are made on the Graded List of the Political Department, with effect from the 13th August, 1883, consequent on the return from furlough of Sir J.

Kirk, R.C.M.G., Political Agent of the 1st Class :—

Mr. R. I. Bruce, C.I.E., from Officiating Political Agent of the 1st Class, to Political Agent of the 2nd Class.

Major E. Mockler, from Officiating Political Agent of the 2nd Class, to Political Agent of the 3rd Class.

Mr. Ney Elias, from Officiating Political Agent of the 3rd Class, to Political Assistant of the 1st Class.

Lieutenant H. L. Ramsay, from Officiating Political Assistant of the 1st Class, to Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class.

Mr. W. R. Lawrence, from Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, to Officiating Political Assistant of the 3rd Class.

No. 2223 G.—Lieutenant-Colonel S. B. Miles, Political Agent of the 1st Class, is posted as Political Agent at Muscat, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

No. 2225 G.—Major E. Mockler, Political Agent of the 3rd Class, is posted as Assistant Political Agent at Busreh, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

No. 2227 G.—Lieutenant H. L. Ramsay, Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, is posted as Cantonment Magistrate at Nasirabad, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

The 13th September, 1883.

No. 2232 G.—Surgeon A. F. Dobson, M.B., Indian Medical Service (Madras), is appointed to officiate as Residency Surgeon at Bangalore, vice Surgeon P. H. Benson, M.B., whose services have been lent to the Government of the Mysore State.

C. GRANT,

Secretary to the Government of India.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla the 14th September 1883.

No. 3273.—In accordance with the Resolution of the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 112, dated 6th April 1883, notice is hereby given that the original Promissory Notes mentioned on the subjoined list (of which duplicates have been applied for on the allegation that the originals have been lost) and that mentioned in the last case, of which renewal is applied for, will be discharged at the General Treasury of Fort William on 31st December 1883, with all interest due upon them, and that on that date all further interest upon such Notes shall cease.—

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date the lost Note bears interest.	Claimant for duplicate.	Remarks.
	Rs.
39974 4 per cent., 1842-43	300	Uddit Chunder Addy	Aug. 1, 1880	Gopal Chunder Ghose	Case No.
39090 " "	500	The Bank of Bengal	Feb. 1, 1879	Mrs. S. J. Stuart	"
39487 " "	500	S. T. Moysey	Ditto	Ditto	"
50218 " 1865	500	Deb Nath Sreenany	May 1, 1880	Kadumbini Dass	"
36893 " "	1,000	National Bank of India	May 1, 1878	Gopal Chaud Heerjee Kottra	"
36894 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto	"
36895 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto	"
36896 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto	"
49515 4½ per cent., 1872	500	S. T. Moysey	Jan. 16, 1879	Mrs. S. J. Stuart	"
57055 " "	3,000	Bhawanji Khosal Chaud	July 16, 1876	Dabidass Pranjivan Das	"
51360 4 per cent., 1879	500	J. Alamalunema	Jan. 16, 1878	Mysore Sreenivasa Rao	"
12962 " 1842-43	500	Bank of Bengal	"	Collector of Bulandshahar	* "
91140 " 1865	900	"	Nov. 1, 1878	Dwarkanath Pyne	† "

* Duplicate issued.

† To be renewed on Bond.

No. 3274.—The following lists of Notes which were advertised for discharge in Notification Nos. 227 and 28, dated 13th January 1883, are republished in accordance with Financial Department Resolution No. 1 dated 6th April 1883.

No. 1.

List of Government Promissory Notes advertised on which interest is paid under orders of the Comptroller General, but duplicates of which have not yet been issued subsequent to Financial Notification, dated 4th September 1873.

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date bearing interest.	Claimant for duplicate.	Remarks.
	Rs.
000078 3½ per cent., 1853-54	1,600	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay	Aug. 31, 1871	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay.	Case No.
000478 " "	5,000	Shama Sundary	Feb. 29, 1876	Shama Sundary	"
65 4 per cent., 1832-33	3,400	J. A. Hawkins, Registrar, Sudder Dewany Adalat.	May 1, 1852	Ranee Chunder Cally Dabee, Executrix of Raja Gunesch Chunder Roy.	"
14663 " "	5,000	Motee Khanum	Nov. 1, 1856	Motee Khanum.	"
ct. 4403 " "	6,500	The Registrar, Sudder Dewany Adalat.	May 1, 1872	Monce Brinddoo Dabee, by her attorney Jogendra Lal Mookerjee.	A.
000936 " "	2,000	Hurrish Chunder Ghuttuck	Nov. 1, 1873	Hurrish Chunder Ghuttuck.	Case No.
t. 001565 " "	2,000	M. Amorthlingum	May 1, 1878	P. Ramasawmy Moodeliar	"
t. 001566 " "	3,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto	"
t. 8339 " 1835-36	500	Krishto Mohun Mitter.	Mar. 31, 1863	Madhub Chunder Chatterji.	"
2709 " "	1,000	Motee Khanum	Sep. 30, 1856	Motee Khanum.	"
005940 " "	2,800	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay	Sep. 30, 1871	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay.	"
10948 " "	500	James English	Mar. 31, 1868	Madho Mistry.	"
006592 " "	500	Hurrish Chunder Ghuttuck	Mar. 31, 1873	Hurrish Chunder Ghuttuck.	"
006296 " "	500	Ditto	Sep. 30, 1873	Ditto	"
005783 " "	600	Nobokissory Dassee	Sep. 30, 1872	Nobokissory Dassee.	"
001262 " "	1,000	Sreenath Mookerjee	Mar. 31, 1871	Doyal Chaud Seal.	"
000671 " "	2,000	Ladli Persaud	Ditto	Ladli Persaud.	"
009710 " "	500	Rajnarain Chatterjee	Mar. 31, 1875	Rajnarain Chatterjee.	"
008612 " "	1,000	Kadumbini Debee	Sep. 30, 1874	{ Hura Kumar Gossain and Soorjee Kumar Gossain.	Case No.
011382 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	{	"

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date bearing interest.	Claimant for duplicate.	Remarks.
	Rs.
015719 4 per cent., 1835-36	1,000	Bank of Bengal . . .	Mar. 31, 1877	Heera Lall . . .	Case No.
008595 " "	1,000	Prem Chand Bose . . .	Sep. 30, 1870	Sham Chand Bose . . .	"
002614 " "	500	Nobin Chunder Paul . . .	Sep. 30, 1871	Rohoram Banerjee . . .	"
3981-14965 " "	1,000	Raja Indoo Bhusun Deb Roy.	Mar. 31, 1861	Pooroo Chunder Gangooly . . .	"
007603 " 1842-43	3,500	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay . . .	Aug. 1, 1871	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay.
016383 " "	500	Balerustna Myaram . . .	Aug. 1, 1870	Balerustna Myaram.
017477 " "	5,000	Wazeroonnissa Khanum . . .	Aug. 1, 1872	Yakoob Ally Khan.
017479 " "	2,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
20822 " "	500	Hurry Nath Mookerjee . . .	Feb. 1, 1861	Behary Bhoosun Mookerjee.
21200 " "	500	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
024259 " "	1,000	Bholanath Mitter . . .	Feb. 1, 1873	Bholanath Mitter.
024261 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
011852 " "	1,000	Netye Churn Bysack . . .	Ditto	Nabee Buksh Shekdar.
029914 " "	1,000	Tara Secondary Dabee . . .	Aug. 1, 1874	Tara Secondary Dabee.
17528 " "	500	Ditto . . .	Aug. 1, 1867	Degumbery Dasse.
013697 " "	500	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck . . .	Feb. 1, 1873	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck.
013698 " "	500	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
013699 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Feb. 1, 1874	Ditto.
023259 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Aug. 1, 1873	Ditto.
014164 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
013431 " "	500	Ditto . . .	Feb. 1, 1873	Ditto.
014326 " "	500	Ditto . . .	Aug. 1, 1873	Ditto.
et. 14914 " "	1,000	The Bank of Bengal . . .	Aug. 1, 1871	Doyal Chund Seal.
18908 " "	1,000	Pettumber Dhur . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
3166 " "	500	Bama Cally Dabee . . .	Feb. 1, 1872	Bama Cally Dabee.
084182 " "	1,000	Jeevunjee Bomanjee Har- musjee Pestonjee and Fuckerjee Lunjee.	Aug. 1, 1874	Harmusjee Pestonjee and Fuckerjee Lunjee.
002540 " "	1,000	Pary Mohun Ghossamy . . .	Aug. 1, 1866	Guru Churn Chuckerbutty.
040876 " "	5,000	Bepro Dass . . .	Aug. 1, 1877	Bepro Dass Dass.
075291 " "	10,000	Penumatcha Sectarama- raga.	Ditto	Penumatcha Sectaramaraga Gurra.
029160 " "	4,000	Mothoora Nauth Sircar . . .	Feb. 1, 1878	Nileunto Pall.
024731 " "	2,000	Ramlall Buddredoss . . .	Feb. 1, 1854	Moonshi Newal Kissors . . .	Case No.
056608 " "	1,000	Orantal Bank Corporation . . .	Feb. 1, 1878	Degumbery Dabee . . .	"
085874 " "	1,000	Bank of Bengal . . .	Feb. 1, 1877	Bhoobunesury Dabee . . .	"
019889 " "	5,400	Kadumbini Dabee . . .	Feb. 1, 1875	Hurroo Kumar Gossain and Soorjee Kumar Gossain.	"
045164 " "	1,000	Mungamur Lakshminarsoo and Mungamur Laksh- mamma.	Aug. 1, 1879	Mungamur Lakshminarsoo and Mungamur Lakshma- ma.	"
047000 " "	1,000	Mohes Chunder Sen . . .	Feb. 1, 1877	Mohes Chunder Sen . . .	"
047001 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	" . . .	"
047002 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	" . . .	"
047003 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	" . . .	"
000248 } et. 19682 }	1,000	{ Executive Commissariat Officer, Kasauli . . .	Feb. 1, 1866	Jowala Persaad . . .	"
035982 " 1854-55	1,800	Mungamur Lakshminarsoo and Mungamur Laksh- mamma.	June 30, 1879	Mungamur Lakshminarsoo and Mungamur Lakshma- ma.	"
et. 401 " "	1,000	Gopal Chund Seal & Co. . .	Dec. 31, 1862	Madhub Chunder Chatterjee.
33666 " "	4,100	Motee Khanum . . .	Dec. 31, 1856	Motee Khanum.
25289 " "	2,000	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay . . .	June 30, 1871	Mootoo Sawmy Pillay.
10299-17252 4 per cent., 1854-55.	1,000	Administrator General, Bengal.	June 30, 1868	Sreenutty Bama Sundary Dabee.	Case No
018972 4 per cent., 1854-55	4,600	Mungamur Nursein Harrow . . .	June 30, 1878	Mungamur Nursein Harrow	"
014423 " "	1,000	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck . . .	Dec. 31, 1873	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck.
024588 " "	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
43985 " "	1,000	Pettumber Dhur . . .	June 30, 1871	Doyal Chund Seal.
021160 " "	500	Khetter Gopal Sen . . .	June 30, 1873	Khetter Gopal Sen.
027795 " "	1,000	Kahandoss Muncharam . . .	Dec. 31, 1877	Gordhunbhai Doyaram.
034765 " "	1,000	J. H. Belchambers, W. L. Wenger, G. S. Sykes, and R. Williamson.	June 30, 1878	Survivors of the holders.
019182 " "	500	Prem Chunder Bose . . .	Dec. 31, 1870	Sham Chand Bose . . .	Case. No
086119 " 1865	500	Troylucko Mohinee Dasse . . .	Nov. 1, 1877	Troylucko Mohinee Dasse . . .	"
2766 " "	500	Modhoo Soodun Bose . . .	May 1, 1867	Saroda Churn Bose.
041413 " "	500	Goolab Shunker Doobey . . .	Nov. 1, 1872	Goolab Shunker Doobey.
045261 " "	1,000	The Bank of Bengal . . .	Nov. 1, 1873	Byramjee Harmusjee . . .
003330 " "	2,000	Netye Churn Bysack . . .	Nov. 1, 1872	Nabee Buksh Shekdar.
1305 " "	500	Toolsey Dass Mallick . . .	May 1, 1873	Wooma Churn Chuckerbutty.
017194 " "	500	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck . . .	Ditto	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck.
052804 " "	500	Gopal Chunder Sreemany . . .	Ditto	Ram Gopal Paul and Deno Nauth Ruckhit.
055837 " "	500	Bijraj Jagram . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
028408 " "	500	Khetter Gopal Sen . . .	Nov. 1, 1873	Khetter Gopal Sen.
037506 " "	500	The Bank of Bengal . . .	Nov. 1, 1875	Comul Churn Endro.
082310 " "	3,000	Joggon Mohinee Dabee . . .	May 1, 1876	Joggon Mohinee Dabee.
060464 " "	500	The National Bank of India, Limited.	Nov. 1, 1874	Octavius Steel.
059217 " "	900	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.
060053 " "	600	Ditto . . .	Ditto	Ditto.

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date bearing interest.	Claimant of duplicate.	Remarks
	Rs.
85015, 4 per cent., 1865	5,000	Dr. Charles, J. Jackson, and Wm. M. Souttar.	May 1, 1877	Sreeram Chunder Pal.
87736 " "	5,000	Modhoochun Dass Dwarka Dass.	May 1, 1877	Jadob Chunder Pal.
902175 " "	2,000	Brojo Nath Mullick and others, Executors of Tar-ruck Nauth Mullick.	May 1, 1876	Shik Nazir Mundle and Sheik Syed Mundle.
86859 " "	1,000	E. E. J. Tweedie	Nov. 1, 1875	Prosono Coomar Bose.
866583 " "	1,300	The Administrator General, Bengal.	Nov. 1, 1877	The Deputy Commissioner of Delhi, Admr. of G. D. E. Dorris.
863409 " "	5,000	Dheer Chand Paul	Ditto	Dheer Chand Paul.
863410 " "	5,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
863411 " "	2,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
863412 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
863413 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
863618 " "	1,500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
86914 " "	500	Bissonath Bakehee	May 1, 1878	Prosono Coomar Bakehee.
93935 " "	500	J. H. Belchambers, W. L. Wenger, G. S. Sykes and R. Williamson.	Ditto	Survivors of the holders.
99215 " "	1,000	Baroda Prasad Mookerjee and another.	May 1, 1879	Ishan Chunder Bose	) Case No.
107595 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
995796 " "	1,000	Bank of Bengal	May 1, 1877	Hera Lall
90018 " "	500	Lachmeechand Radhakisen	May 1, 1879	Schoobal Chundra Sen
75629 " "	500	Gopal Chunder Sreemany	Nov. 1, 1875	Nilmoni Ghose
82266 " "	1,000	Mohes Chunder Sen	Nov. 1, 1876	Mohes Chunder Sen
82267 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
82268 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
82269 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
115172 " "	500	Helen T. Schumacher	Nov. 1, 1879	Helen T. Schumacher
115173 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
115174 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
5256 " "	500	E. E. Petrocchino & Co.	May 1, 1868	S. Bama Soondry Dabee
900208 " "	500	Kartick Chunder Barral	Ditto	Ditto
978993 " "	500	National Bank of India, Ltd.	May 1, 1880	Ram Coomar Cheoramony
937871 " "	500	Dyal Chund Sahoo	May 1, 1873	Brijendra Coomar Sen
948219 " "	500	Mooltan Chund	May 1, 1876	Chunuo Lall
950218 " "	500	Deb Nath Sreemany	May 1, 1880	Kalumbeeni Dassie
901611, 4½ per cent., 1872	800	The Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China.	Jan. 16, 1872	Khetur Nath Moostophi and Chunderguttu Moostophi.
901107 " "	500	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck	Jan. 16, 1874	Hurriah Chunder Ghuttuck.
901534 " "	1,000	Ditto	July 16, 1873	Ditto.
923973 " "	5,000	Beethal Persand	Ditto	Beethal Persand.
907068 " "	500	Mooktamoni Dabee	Jan. 16, 1872	Mooktamoni Dabee.
913984 " "	500	Denonath Gangooly	Ditto	Denonath Gangooly.
932999 " "	1,000	Mooktamoni Dabee	Ditto	Mooktamoni Dabee.
945111 " "	500	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
12607 " "	1,000	Pundit Sheo Churn	Ditto	Pundit Sheo Churn.
56278 " "	500	Charcoondah Rama Chundria	July 16, 1876	Charcoondah Rama Chundria.
51501 " "	1,100	Ramtarik Mookerjee	July 16, 1877	Kalumbini Dabee.
27398 " "	1,000	Nowrojee Bazonjee Fuckerjee.	Jan. 16, 1877	Merwanjee Franjee Moody and Jarbai.
24163 " "	1,000	Dhunjeebhoy Nanobhoy	Ditto	Ditto.
28833 " "	1,000	J. W. Chisholm	Ditto	Ditto.
28834 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
11272 " "	1,000	C. M. H. Day	Jan. 16, 1875	Vullab Dass Heera Chund.
19221 " "	1,000	Kabandas Muncharam	Jan. 16, 1878	Gordhanblai Dayram.
19225 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto.
95172 " "	1,000	Bhoobun Mohinee Dassee	Jan. 16, 1877	Bhoobun Mohinee Dassee.
98776 " "	500	Bansi Lall Aberechand	July 16, 1874	P. Doorgachellum Moodelliar	) Case No. 1
13475 " "	4,000	Jose Francisco dePiedade Pereira.	Jan. 16, 1872	Jose Andre Pereira
34522 " "	500	Pundit Harshabhye and his wife Roopnanti.	Jan. 16, 1874	Pundit Harshabhye and his wife Roopnanti.	25
34523 " "	500	Rajkristo Bannerjee	July 16, 1874	Omesh Chunder Bannerjee	26
95235 " "	500	Mohes Chunder Sen	Jan. 16, 1877	Mohes Chunder Sen	27
97710 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto	32
97711 " "	1,000	Ditto	Ditto	Ditto
TOTAL	2,07,500

A notice of discharge withdrawn by consent.

No. 2.

List of lost Government Promissory Notes advertised, duplicates of which have been issued under orders of the Comptroller General subsequent to Financial Notification, dated 4th September 1873.

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date bearing interest.	Claimant for duplicate.	Remarks.
	R.
490, 3½ per cent., 1853-56 .	10,000	Shama Soondry . . .	Feb. 28, 1867 .	Shama Soondry.
491 " " .	10,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
492 " " .	3,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
164 " " .	600	Soolayman Mirza . . .	Feb. 29, 1856 .	Soolayman Mirza.
10084, 4 per cent., 1832-33 .	Sic. 500	Shibnarain Roy . . .	May 1, 1812 .	Shibnarain Roy.
12380-1231, 4 per cent., 1835-36.	1,000	Shama Churn Ghose . . .	Mar. 31, 1871 .	Shama Churn Ghose.
6737-3298, 4 per cent., 1835-36.	500	Boly Chund Dutt . . .	Mar. 31, 1860 .	Boly Chund Dutt.
006752, 4 per cent., 1835-36 .	1,100	Rakhal Chunder Bhuttacharjee.	Sep. 30, 1872 .	Rakhal Chunder Bhuttacharjee.
006814 " " .	500	Tara Churn Bhuttacharjee .	Ditto .	Tara Churn Bhuttacharjee.
8186 " " 1812-43 .	500	Shama Churn Chatterjee .	Feb. 1, 1861 .	Shama Churn Chatterjee.
8475-17794, 4 per cent., 1842-43.	500	Brojo Govind Shaha . . .	Feb. 1, 1869 .	Brojo Govind Shaha.
11380, 4 per cent., 1812-43 .	700	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
6024 " " .	500	Cassee Nath Dhuir . . .	Aug. 1, 1859 .	Shiboo Soondery Dassee.
16245 " " .	5,000	Nobokristo Ghose, deceased .	Aug. 1, 1865 .	Monemohun Ghose and Saroda Soondry Dassee.
8653-9563, 4 per cent., 1812-43.	3,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .
017871, 4 per cent., 1812-43 .	500	Kadumbini Dassee . . .	Feb. 1, 1873 .	Kadumbini Dassee.
000254 " " .	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
020284 " " .	500	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
011009 " " .	2,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
021705 " " .	1,000	Unoda Churn Bhuttacharjee	Aug. 1, 1872 .	Unoda Churn Bhuttacharjee.
et. 18856 " " .	500	Moolsoondun Chunder . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
21611 " " .	600	Nobin Chunder Dass . . .	Aug. 1, 1870 .	Nobin Chunder Dass.
022862 " " .	500	Modhoo Soondun Chowdry .	Aug. 1, 1873 .	Ditto.
038336 " " .	1,000	W. T. Lindsay . . .	Feb. 1, 1875 .	John Lindsay, Administrator of W. T. Lindsay.
016542 " " .	10,700	H. Palmer . . .	Aug. 1, 1878 .	The Revd. Robert Milford Taylor, R. M. Taylor Jr., and Alicia Mary Taylor.
et. 14713 " " .	500	Anoop Chund Moolcund . . .	Aug. 1, 1858 .	Bazonjee Furdoujee.
056370 " " .	1,000	The Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China.	Aug. 1, 1878 .	V. Kristnama Chetty.
056453 " " .	2,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
056371 " " .	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
056372 " " .	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
080125 " " .	1,000	The Agra Bank, Limited . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
063895 " " .	1,000	The Bank of Bombay . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
059414 " " .	1,000	The Oriental Bank Corporation.	Ditto .	Ditto.
058152 " " .	100	The Bank of Bombay . . .	Feb. 1, 1879 .	Surgeon H. D. Mussani.
065207 " " .	100	The Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China.	Ditto .	Ditto.
065211 " " .	100	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
1133 " " .	500	Kallypodo Mookerjee, deceased.	Feb. 1, 1862 .	Sowdamini Dabee.
6970 " " .	1,000	The Executive Commissariat Officer, Fort William.	Ditto .	Ditto.
049945 " " .	2,000	The Bank of Bengal . . .	Feb. 1, 1878 .	Mohomed Wujhoollah Khan.
077070 " " .	500	Seetamath Mytee . . .	Feb. 1, 1879 .	Seetamath Mytee . . .	Case No
017528 " " .	500	Beeressur Bose . . .	Aug. 1, 1867 .	Digambar Dassee . . .	"
20762 " 1851-55 .	500	D. McCulluch . . .	June 30, 1859 .	Shiboo Soondery Dassee.
2830-17672, 4 per cent., 1851-55.	500	Obhoy Churn Dutt . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
026294, 4 per cent., 1851-55 .	50,000	H. B. Goodall . . .	Dec. 31, 1873 .	H. B. Goodall . . .
024455 " " .	10,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
024456 " " .	1,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
026295 " " .	4,000	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
022758 " " .	1,000	The Oriental Bank Corporation.	Ditto .	Ditto.
027593 " " .	2,000	The Allahabad Bank, Limited.	Ditto .	Ditto.
022887 " " .	5,000	Majur J. W. Hoggan . . .	Dec. 31, 1873 .	The Delhi and London Bank, Limited.
38714 " " .	4,000	Nobokristo Ghose, deceased .	Dec. 31, 1865 .	Monemohun Ghose and Saroda Soondery Dassee.
17950 " " .	1,500	Ditto . . .	Ditto .	Ditto.
7532 " " .	500	Ruggeeshath Succaba, deceased.	Dec. 31, 1867 .	Morabha Saccaram.
772-18295 " " .	1,000	Boly Chund Dutt . . .	June 30, 1866 .	Boly Chund Dutt.
001886 " " .	1,000	Moolchand Premjee & Co .	June 30, 1875 .	Captain F. J. Palmer.
008379 " " .	500	Greesh Chunder Mitter . . .	June 30, 1872 .	Unoda Churn Bhuttacharjee

No. of the Note.	Value.	In whose name issued.	From what date bearing interest.	Claimant for duplicate.	Remarks.
	Rs.
016140, 4 per cent., 1854-55 ...	500	Rakhal Doss Bhuttacharjee	June 30, 1872 ...	Rakhal Chunder Bhuttacharjee.
016138 " " ...	1,000	Obhoy Churn Bhuttacharjee	Ditto ...	Obhoy Churn Bhuttacharjee.
009231 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
10927-11615, 4 per cent., 1854-55	500	The Executive Commissariat Officer, Gwalior.	June 30, 1865 ...	Rebecca Johnstone.
9815 of $\frac{1,084}{6}$ , 4 per cent., 1854-55	500	The Administrator General, Administrator to the Estate of H. Randolph.	June 30, 1871 ...	Tara Kissur Mookerjee.
36507, 4 per cent., 1854-55 ...	2,000	Bullakdass Khemchand ...	Dec. 31, 1863 ...	Veejachand Keekachand.
39958 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
6392-26308, 4 per cent., 1854-55	1,000	Ditto ...	Dec. 31, 1862 ...	Ditto.
011009, 4 per cent., 1854-55 ...	1,000	The Administrator General, Bengal.	Dec. 31, 1877 ...	The Deputy Commissioner of Delhi, Administrator of G. D. E. Dorris.
1868-9358, 4 per cent., 1854-55	500	The Deputy Commissary General, Upper Circle.	Dec. 31, 1861 ...	Sowdamini Dabee.
058157, 4 per cent., 1865 ...	500	The National Bank of India, Limited.	May 1, 1871 ...	Opendro Nauth Mitter.
011620 " " ...	1,000	J. W. Smyth ...	Nov. 1, 1869 ...	J. W. Smyth.
011621 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
011622 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
011623 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
011624 " " ...	1,000	Ditto ...	Ditto ...	Ditto.
055948 " " ...	2,000	Bevole Nauth Haldar	May 1, 1873 ...	Bevole Nauth Haldar.
2009 " " ...	1,000	Bank of Hindustan, China and Japan, Limited.	May 1, 1865 ...	Khetter Mohun Nag.
020899 " " ...	500	Jebun Kristo Mullick	Nov. 1, 1869 ...	Doorga Churn Mullick.
030158 " " ...	500	Dyal Chund Saboye	Nov. 1, 1870 ...	James Brown.
1802 " " ...	500	Cossi Nauth Mookerjee	May 1, 1873 ...	Luckhy Money Dassee.
035154 " " ...	500	Meher Lall Shamunto	Ditto ...	Meher Lall Shamunto.
068458 " " ...	1,000	W. T. Lindsay	May 1, 1875 ...	John Lindsay, Administrator of W. T. Lindsay.
068459 " " ...	1,000	Ditto	Ditto ...	Ditto.
095149 " " ...	500	Tariny Churn Ghose	May 1, 1877 ...	Chotay Lall.
099153 " " ...	500	Gourang Chunder Sarkar	Ditto ...	Gourang Chunder Sarkar.
099159 " " ...	500	Ditto	Ditto ...	Ditto.
107375 " " ...	700	Nogur Mull	Nov. 1, 1878 ...	The Executive Commissariat Officer, Umballa.
086879 " " ...	1,000	Bulloverder Doss	Ditto ...	The Uncovenanted Service Bank, Limited.
097595 " " ...	1,000	H. L. Tonnochee	May 1, 1876 ...	H. L. Tonnochee.
099542 " " ...	1,000	The Joint Administrators of Bhownagar State.	Nov. 1, 1878 ...	V. Kristnama Chetty.
014095 " " ...	800	The Administrator General, Bengal.	Nov. 1, 1877 ...	The Deputy Commissioner of Delhi, Administrator of G. D. E. Dorris.
018419 " " ...	800	Ditto	Ditto ...	Ditto.
027720 " " ...	1,000	Chartered Mercantile Bank	Nov. 1, 1877 ...	Lieut.-Col. A. Copland	Cas.
027942 " " ...	500	Byranji Nusserwanji Selhi	May 1, 1878 ...	Ditto
094745 " " ...	500	Executive Commissariat Officer, Morar.	Ditto ...	Ditto
005806, 4½ per cent., 1870 ...	700	The Bank of Madras	Jan. 15, 1872 ...	Lalladhar Zavirchund.
000996 " " ...	500	Chundy Churn Ghose	July 15, 1873 ...	Chundy Churn Ghose.
048736 " " 1872 ...	1,000	Shumbhoo Pundoorung	Jan. 16, 1879 ...	The Deputy Commissioner of Balaghat.
056565 " " ...	10,000	The Bank of Madras	Jan. 16, 1876 ...	V. Thavasumatha Nadan.
025359 " " ...	5,000	The Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China.	July 16, 1877 ...	Davidass Pranjeevandass.
*008825 " " ...	500	J. W. Fordham	Jan. 16, 1879 ...	Sectanath Mytee	Cas.
*065269 " " ...	3,000	Aspinwall & Co.	July 16, 1878 ...	Aspinwall
*033562 " " ...	1,000	P. Valloida Chetty	Jan. 16, 1878 ...	Ditto
*033563 " " ...	1,000	Ditto	Ditto ...	Ditto
*033564 " " ...	1,000	Ditto	Ditto ...	Ditto
065878, 4½ per cent., 1872, now Rd. 4 per cent., 1879.	500	Bank of Bengal	Jan. 16, 1880 ...	Helen T. Schumacher
*000017 } Nagpore-Raipur	200	Bema Pershad ...	July 1, 1880 ...	Deputy Commissioner of Jubulpore on behalf of the Debenture holders specified opposite.
*000097 } Railway Provincial	500	Niranjun Pershad Sukul	Ditto ...
*000098 } Debenture loan of	500	Ditto	Ditto ...
*000050 } 1879, 4½ per cent.	500	Doorga Pershad	Ditto ...
*000167 } 1879, 4½ per cent.	500	Raja Mohip Singh	Ditto ...
*000178 } 1879, 4½ per cent.	500	Sheodat Ram Sukul	Ditto ...
A009862 Rd. 4 per cent., 1879 ...	2,000	The Bank of Bengal	July 16, 1880 ...	The Inspector General of Police, N.-W. P.
A005090 " " " " ...	5,000	The Agra Bank, Limited	Ditto ...	Ditto.
060133 of Rd. 4 per cent. of 1879.	2,500	Nurshingh Doss	July 16, 1881 ...	Treasury Officer, Lahore, on behalf of Nurshingh Doss.
000010 Non-transferable 5 per cent. Try. Note.	500	Gopi Kabai, Manager of Mundir Vithul Rukmai.	Sep. 16, 1874 ...	Gopi Kabai, Manager of Mundir Vithul Rukmai.
003488, 5 per cent. 15 years' debenture.	1,000	The Bank of Bengal	June 1, 1878 ...	Moonshee Purbhodial.	Not di
TOTAL Rs. ...	2,19,700

No. 3277.—Abstract of the Accounts of the Department of Issue of Paper Currency on the 31st August 1883, published as required by Section 27 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, XX of 1882.

CIRCLES OF ISSUE	Which are issued in circulation	RESERVE IN SILVER COIN AND BULLION.
		Com.	Bullion.	Total.
	R.	R.	R.	R.
Calcutta	6,240,340	1,27,298.36	22,05,878	14,29,416.72
Allahabad	81,14,300	66,21,000		66,21,000
Lahore	7,50,140	81,19,150		81,19,150
Bombay	3,97,8,000	32,78,000	10,79,352	3,29,05,352
Kurrachee	3,67,100	31,13,100	19,100	31,62,100
Madras	1,12,47,510	8,19,000	8,10,000	9,00,000
Calcut	11,55,180	11,19,500		11,79,500
Rangoon	7,39,145	8,00,000		8,00,000
Total	14,78,82,050	7,37,08,364	11,14,300	7,78,82,664

Prior paid for Government Securities of the nominal value of Rs. 9,23,47,000 held under Section 19 of the Act 5,99,99,996

GRAND TOTAL 14,78,82,050

D. M. BARBOUR,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 14th September, 1883.

APPOINTMENTS.

No. 494.—STAFF CORPS—

The undermentioned officers are admitted to the Bengal Staff Corps, with effect from the dates specified, subject to the confirmation of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India :—

Lieutenant Charles John Corfield, King's Own Borderers, Wing Officer, 2nd Native Infantry,—18th February, 1882.

Lieutenant Alexander Hamilton, King's Own Borderers, Officiating Wing Officer, 25th Native Infantry,—6th July, 1882.

No. 495.—MEDICAL DEPARTMENT—

Brigade Surgeon W. Watson, M.D., Deputy Sanitary Commissioner, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to be Deputy Surgeon-General, with temporary rank, with effect from the 29th August, 1883, vice Deputy Surgeon-General S. C. Townsend, C.B., on furlough.

No. 496.—MILITARY ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT—

Lieutenant W. C. F. Field, Assistant Military Accountant, on probation, is confirmed in his appointment, with effect from the 20th July, 1882.

No. 497.—HYDERABAD CONTINGENT—

6th Infantry.

Lieutenant G. C. C. Shakespear, Royal Irish Fusiliers, a candidate for the Bengal Staff Corps, to be Officiating Wing Officer, on probation, with effect from the 28th August, 1883.

No. 498.—NATIVE ARMY—

9th Bengal Cavalry.

Commandar Shahzada Sharyar, appointed, on pro-confirmed in that rank, with effect from the 19th July, 1881.

No. 499.—PUNJAB FRONTIER FORCE—

3rd Punjab Cavalry.

Jemadar Shildeo Singh, appointed, on probation, in G. G. O. No. 784 of 1878, is confirmed in that rank, with effect from the 14th September, 1878.

No. 500.—VOLUNTEER CORPS—

Hyderabad Volunteer Rifle Corps.

Major E. S. Ludlow, C.I.E., Madras Staff Corps, Commandant, to be Lieutenant-Colonel.

Mr. Maurice Wilkinson to be Major, vice Major E. S. Ludlow, promoted.

Secbore College Volunteer Rifle Corps.

Volunteers Arthur Henry Mason and Alfred Osmond Knight to be Lieutenants to complete establishment.

FURLOUGH AND LEAVE.

No. 501.—The undermentioned officers are granted furlough out of India, with the necessary subsidiary leave :—

Lieutenant-Colonel (Brevet Colonel) F. H. Jenkins, C.B., Bengal S. C., Aide-de-Camp to the Queen, Commandant, (Queen's Own) Corps of Guides, (p. a.) for one year and 10 days, under rule IX of the regulations of 1868.

Captain A. de C. Rennie, Bengal S. C., Cantonment Magistrate, 1st class, Mooltan, (p. a.) for two years, under rule IX of the regulations of 1868.

Surgeon-Major W. E. Allen, Bhopal Battalion (p. a.) for one year and 15 days, under rule IX of the regulations of 1868.

Surgeon G. A. Emerson, (p. a.) for one year under rule I of the regulations of 1875.

No. 502.—Surgeon J. Seely, Erinpoorah Irregular Force, is granted leave to sea (m. c.) for 9 days, under rule XXVII of the regulations of 1868.

No. 503.—The undermentioned officers have been granted extensions of furlough by the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India :—

Lieutenant-Colonel E. Swetenham, Bengal S. C., (p. a.) for one week

Lieutenant-Colonel C. W. Campbell, Bengal S. C., (m. c.) for 61 days.

Major T. W. Hogg, Bengal S. C., (p. a.) for 183 days.

LONDON GAZETTE.

No. 504.—The following extract is published for general information :—

"London Gazette," dated the 14th August, 1883, page 4018.

"WAR OFFICE ;

Pall Mall, 14th August, 1883.

MEMORANDA.

* * * * *

Deputy Assistant Commissary William Brodston, Madras Establishment, to be Honorary Secretary to the Government of Madras, 1883."

PENSIONS.

No. 505.—SUBORDINATE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT—

Senior Apothecary Edmund Tanney is transferred to the Pension establishment.

PROMOTIONS.

No. 506.—The following promotions are made, subject to Her Majesty's approval:—

BENGAL STAFF CORPS.

To be Majors.

Captain Charles Henry Stoddart,—11th September, 1883.

Captain James Graves Kelly,—11th September, 1883.

Captain (Brevet Major) Henry Vere Hunt,—11th September, 1883.

BREVET.

To be Colonels.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles James Jennings, Madras S. C.,—10th September, 1883.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Adolphus deKantow, Bengal S. C.,—14th September, 1883.

No. 507.—WARRANT OFFICERS—

Sergeant John McDermott to be Sub-Conductor, vice Sub-Conductor C. G. Bradbury, pensioned, with effect from the 10th August 1883.

No. 508.—NATIVE ARMY—2nd Bengal Cavalry.

Ressaldar Mohomed Eussuf Khan to be Ressaldar-Major, vice Gokul Sing, deceased; Ressaldar Nizam Ally Khan to be Ressaldar, vice Gokul Sing, deceased,—11th September, 1883.

Ressaldar and Woordie-Major Gholam Molmed Khan to be Ressaldar, vice Ally Molmed Khan, invalided; Jemadar Mir Abd Rahman to be Ressaldar, vice Gholam Molmed Khan, promoted; Duffadar Holass Si to be Jemadar, vice Mir Abdool Rahma promoted,—5th August, 1883.

12th Bengal Cavalry.

Ressaldar and Woordie-Major Mardan A Khan to be Ressaldar, vice Golab Singh, invalided; Jemadar Rahimdad Khan to be Ressaldar and Woordie-Major, vice Mard Ali Khan, promoted; Kōt-Duffadar Mobar Singh to be Jemadar, vice Rahimdad Khan promoted,—1st May, 1883.

G. CHESNEY,

Secretary to the Government of India

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Calcutta, the 10th September, 1883.

Under Clause 26 of the Regulations appended to the Regimental Debts Act of 1863, it is notified that reports of the deaths of the undermentioned Commissioned Officers, on the dates specified, were received in the Military Department from the 7th August to the 10th September, 1883:—

Corps.	Rank and Names.	Date of decease.	Place of decease.	Testate or Intestate.	Remarks.
Staff Corps	Colonel J. P. Turton	19th Aug., 1883	Amritsar	...	...
Army Medical Department	Surgeon-Major M. Grant	24th Aug., 1883	Kuklanna	...	...
Norfolk Regiment	Lieutenant A. Butler	29th Aug., 1883	Merar (Gwalior).	...	...
Royal Artillery	Major C. F. Glass	30th Aug., 1883	Agra	No will found.	...

Statement of Deposits on account of Estates from the 21st August to the 10th September, 1883.

On whose account.	Rank.	Corps.	Date of decease.	Testate or Intestate.	Total unclaimed amount deposited.	Amount paid in India.	Date to which claims will be received.
Indian Military Service.					Rs. A. P.
Alexander Melvin (a)	Captain	Bengal Staff Corps.	29th Jan., 1883	Intestate	692 2 11	...	...

(a) Widow—Julie Marie Goodall.

Children—Alexander Cecil, Edith Marie, Maud Eilene. Administrator General, Bengal, administering.

E. H. H. COLLEN,

Officiating Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.*NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 11th September 1883.

No. 209.—Captain W. I. LeBreton, B.S.C., Examiner of Guaranteed Railway Accounts, Bombay, is appointed to officiate as Examiner, Public Works Accounts, Bombay, in addition to his own duties, during the absence of Colonel Mellis, on privilege leave, or until further orders.

The 12th September 1883.

No. 210.—Major H. Y. Murray, Executive Engineer, 1st Grade, is appointed to officiate as Superintending Engineer and Secretary to the Agent, Governor General, for Rajputana in the Public Works Department, during the absence of Lieutenant-Colonel J. P. Steel, R.E., on privilege leave, or until further orders.

No. 211.—Mr. R. W. L. Tooze, Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, Indus Valley and Kandahar State Railways, is appointed to officiate as an Executive Engineer, 4th Grade, while he holds charge of the Kandahar Division, or until further orders.

The 14th September 1883.

No. 212.—Mr. H. C. D. La Touche, Superintending Engineer, Class III, sub. pro tem., is appointed Engineer-in-Chief of the Jhansi-Manikpore State Railway.

W. S. TREVOR, Colonel, R.E.,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 29th August, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XII OF 1883.

THE BRITISH BURMA PILOTS ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

PREAMBLE.

SECTIONS.

Preliminary.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definition of "port."

Licensing of Pilots.

3. Licensing of pilots.
4. No person to act as pilot except under license.

Regulation of Pilots.

5. Power to make rules to regulate conduct of pilots.

Special Court.

6. Power to direct investigation by special Court into charges against pilots.
7. Constitution of Court.
8. Appointment of president.
9. Assessors.
10. Appointment of assessors.
11. Fees to be paid to assessors.

SECTIONS.

12. Copy of grounds of charge to be supplied to pilot.
13. Person charged to be heard.
14. Powers of the Court as to evidence and regulating proceedings.
15. Court to report to Chief Commissioner.
16. Power of Chief Commissioner to make rules.

Power to cancel, suspend or reduce Licenses.

17. Power to cancel, suspend or reduce license for misconduct, &c.
18. Power to suspend license pending trial or investigation.

Delegation of Functions of Chief Commissioner.

19. Power to delegate functions of Chief Commissioner.

An Act to provide for the licensing and control of Pilots in British Burma and for investigating certain charges against them.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the licensing and control of pilots in British Burma, and for investigating certain charges against them; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

1. (1) This Act may be called the British Burma Pilots Act, 1883.

Short title.

- (2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Chief Commissioner of British Burma; and

Local extent.

- (3) It shall come into force on such date as the Chief Commissioner may fix in this behalf.

Commencement.

2. In this Act—

"Port" means any port, or any part of a navigable river or channel, in which the Indian Ports Act, XII of 1875, is for the time being in force.

Licensing of Pilots.

3. The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, appoint, or cause to be appointed, competent persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of persons desirous of acting as pilots at any port, and make rules—

- (a) for the conduct of the examinations and for the qualifications to be required;
- (b) establishing grades of pilots, and determining the duties which may be undertaken by pilots of each grade;
- (c) for the grant to qualified persons of licenses to act as pilots of any grade at any port; and
- (d) for the fees to be paid for the examinations and licenses.

4. (1) A person shall not act as a pilot at any port, after such date as the Chief Commissioner may fix in this behalf for that port, except as permitted by a license granted under section 3.

(2) Any person acting as a pilot in contravention of this section shall be punished, for every time he so acts, with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Regulation of Pilots.

5. (1) The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, make rules to regulate the conduct of pilots licensed under this Act in all matters connected with the performance of their duties as such pilots.

(2) Any such rule may contain a provision that a pilot committing a breach of the rule shall be punished with imprisonment which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both:

Provided that a prosecution shall not be instituted in respect of any such breach except by order of such officer as the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, appoint in this behalf.

Special Court.

6. (1) If the Chief Commissioner has reason to believe that there are grounds for charging any pilot licensed under this Act with incompetency or misconduct in the discharge of his duties as such pilot, or with any act or omission in breach of a rule made under section 5, and that the charge cannot be satisfactorily investigated by an ordinary Court, he may direct that a special Court be constituted, under this Act, at the port at which it will, in his opinion, be most convenient for the parties and witnesses to attend, and shall then send to the Court a statement of the grounds of the charge, and direct the Court to make an investigation into the charge.

(2) When the Chief Commissioner directs an investigation under this section, he may, if he thinks fit, appoint a person to act as prosecutor in the investigation.

7. Every Court constituted under section 6 shall consist of a president sitting with three assessors.

8. (1) The president shall be such person as the Chief Commissioner appoints in this behalf, either generally or for any specified case.

(2) Every person so appointed shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860.

9. One of the assessors shall be a master of a seagoing vessel lying in the port at which the investigation is to be made, another shall be a merchant residing at that port, and the third shall be a person who has personally exercised the calling of a pilot for not less than five years.

10. (1) The assessor who is the master of a seagoing vessel shall be appointed in each case by the Chief Commissioner, and shall be summoned by the president.

(2) The other assessors shall be summoned by the president in such manner as may be prescribed by rule, out of two lists, one of merchants, the other of pilots, to be, from time to time, prepared for the purpose and published by the Chief Commissioner in the British Burma Gazette. If there are no such lists, or if it is impracticable to procure the attendance of two persons one of whom is named in the list of merchants and the other in list of pilots, the other assessors or assessor, as the case may be, shall be appointed and summoned by the president.

11. The assessors shall receive such fees as the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by rule, prescribe.

12. Before any investigation under this Act is commenced, the special Court shall supply the pilot with a copy of the statement sent, under section 6, to the Court.

13. For the purpose of an investigation under this Act, the special Court may summon the pilot to appear before it, and shall give him full opportunity of making a defence, either in person or otherwise.

14. For the purpose of an investigation under this Act, the special Court shall, so far as relates to compelling the attendance, and to the examination, of witnesses, the production of documents and the regulation of the proceedings, have the same powers as are exercisable by the principal Court of original criminal jurisdiction for the place at which the investigation is made.

15. On the completion of the investigation, the special Court shall send to the Chief Commissioner a full report of the conclusions at which it has arrived. The report shall be in accordance with the opinion of the majority of the members of the Court, or, if the Court is equally divided, in accordance with the opinion of the president and with the member with whom he concurs. In the latter case, any member who does not concur in the report may separately record his opinion.

16. (1) The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, make rules to carry into effect the provisions of this Act with respect to the special Court, and in particular with respect to—

Power of Chief Commissioner to make rules.

- (a) the mode in which the president shall, under section 10, summon the assessors;
- (b) the amount of the fees to be paid to the assessors; and
- (c) the procedure of the Court.

(2) All such rules shall be published in the British Burma Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

Power to cancel, suspend or reduce Licenses.

17. The Chief Commissioner may cancel or suspend, or reduce the grade of, any license granted to a pilot under this Act in the following cases, that is to say:—

Power to cancel, suspend or reduce license for misconduct, &c.

- (a) if the pilot is found guilty by a Criminal Court of any offence punishable under section 5, or of any other offence the commission of which, in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner, shows him to be unfit to discharge the duties of a pilot; or

- (b) if, on considering a report submitted under section 15 of this Act, or transmitted under section 17 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, the Chief Commissioner is of opinion that the pilot is incompetent, or has been guilty of any misconduct in the discharge of his duty as pilot, or of any breach of a rule made under section 5 of this Act.

18. When a prosecution has been instituted against a pilot under section 5, or an investigation has been ordered in respect of him under section 6, or an investigation affecting his conduct has been ordered under Chapter II of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1883, the Chief Commissioner may suspend his license until the trial is concluded or the report of the investigation is submitted or transmitted to the Chief Commissioner, as the case may be.

Delegation of Functions of Chief Commissioner.

19. The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, by notification in the British Burma Gazette, delegate his functions under section 6, section 8, section 10, sub-section (1), or section 18 to such person as he thinks fit.

Power to delegate functions of Chief Commissioner.

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[ First publication. ]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 12th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. XIII OF 1883.

An Act to declare the law in force in certain lands which have been or hereafter may be ceded by the Bahawalpur State for occupation by the Indus Valley State Railway.

WHEREAS Act X of 1880 (to declare the law in force in certain lands annexed to the Multán District) provides that all enactments which, on the second day of September, 1879, were in force in the Multán district and not in force in the lands occupied by the Indus Valley State Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the Bahawalpur State, which have been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by that State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Panjáb, and have by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb been annexed to the Multán district, shall be deemed to have come into force in the said lands on that day ;

and whereas it is expedient to make like provision for certain other lands occupied by the same

Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which have, since the second day of September, 1879, been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and have by the same Lieutenant-Governor been annexed to the same district ;

and whereas it is also expedient to make like provision for any lands to be hereafter occupied by the same Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which may be ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and may be declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and may by the same Lieutenant-Governor be annexed to the same or some other district ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. Act X of 1880 is hereby repealed.

2. All enactments which, on the date on which any such lands as are referred to in the preamble to this Act have been, or may hereafter be, annexed to the Multán or any other district, were, or shall be, in force in that district, and not in the said lands, shall be deemed to have come, or, as the case may be, shall come, into force in the said lands on that date.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XIV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH LOCAL BOARDS ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

SECTIONS.

Preliminary.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definition of "prescribed."

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. Formation of sub-districts.
4. Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.
5. Constitution of local boards.
6. Constitution of district boards.
7. Term of office of members of local boards and of certain district boards.
8. Resignation of members of those boards.
9. Removal of members of those boards.
10. Filling of casual vacancies on those boards.
11. Incorporation of district board.
12. Time for boards coming into existence.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. Chairman of local board.
14. Chairman of district board.
15. Vice-chairman of district board.
16. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
17. Resignation of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
18. Removal of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
19. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman of district board.
20. Chairman appointed by Local Government to be member of district board.
21. Chairman of local board and chairman or vice-chairman of district board re-eligible.
22. Person to preside at meeting of district board.

SECTIONS.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. Notification of elections, &c.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Matters to be administered by district boards.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Local board to be agent of district board.
26. Control of district board over local boards.

Joint Committees.

27. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Vote of majority decisive.
31. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
32. Resolutions to be recorded.
33. Power to make rules as to conduct of business.

Officers and Servants.

34. Appointment of secretary.
35. Employment of other officers and servants.
36. Pensions and allowances of Government officials serving boards.
37. Pensions and allowances of servants of boards.

District Fund.

38. Constitution of district fund.
39. Vesting, custody and investment of district fund.
40. Application of the district fund.

Control.

41. Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.
42. Power of Commissioner to suspend action under this Act.
43. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
44. Powers of Local Government in cases of default of district board.
45. Power to supersede district board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.

Forms and Rules.

47. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.
48. Procedure for making rules.
49. Publication of rules.

SECTIONS.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Acquisition of land.
51. Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts made with board or committee.
52. Saving of Act XI of 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. Power of Local Government to except local area from operation of Act.
54. Case of sub-district excepted from provisions regarding election.
55. Administrative committee to be appointed for district wholly excepted from Act.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

56. Section 11, clause (c), Act III of 1878, amended.
57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of same repealed.
58. New section substituted for section 14 of same.

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

59. Section 11, clause (c), Act IV of 1878, amended.
60. Sections 12 and 14 of same repealed.
61. New section substituted for section 13 of same.

Contracts made by, and Government Officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

62. Contracts of local rates committees.
63. Government officers serving under committees to continue under board.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. New section to follow section 7 of Act XVII of 1878.
65. Amendments of sections 6 and 17 of same Act.

An Act to provide for the constitution of Local Boards in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the constitution of local bodies in each district in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to administer the expenditure of that portion of the rates levied on land which is applicable to local purposes in that district, and of the income accruing from certain other sources of revenue which may, from time to time, be made applicable to the like purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.
Short title.
- (2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and
Local extent.
- (3) It shall come into force on the first day of November, 1885.
Commencement.
2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—
Definition of "prescribed."

"Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under section 17.

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. (1) The Local Government shall, by order in writing, for the purposes of this Act, divide each district into sub-districts.
Formation of sub-districts.

(2) There shall be excluded from the sub-districts formed under this section such portions of the district as are for the time being included in the limits of a military cantonment or of a municipality, and, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, the portions of the district (if any) in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaudhurs in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bázars in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, by order in writing, vary any order made under this section.

4. There shall be established for each sub-district a local board having authority over that sub-district, and for each district a district board having authority over the entire district, except such portions thereof as are excluded from the sub-districts under section 3, sub-section (2).
Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.

5. (1) The local board for a sub-district shall consist of so many elected members and so many nominated members as the Local Government may, from time to time, fix in this behalf:
Constitution of local boards.

Provided that the nominated members shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the board.

(2) The elective members of a local board shall be elected in manner prescribed.

(3) The persons entitled to vote at the election shall be nominated by the Local Government or determined in such other manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that the persons entitled to vote at the election of a member shall not be less than twenty-five in number.

(1) A person to be qualified for election must, at the time of his election, be an elector, and reside, or own landed property, or carry on trade or business, in the sub-district.

(3) The nominated members shall be such persons as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 17, from time to time, nominate in this behalf.

6. (1) The district board for a district shall, except as next hereinafter provided, consist of all persons who for the time being are members of the local boards of the sub-districts comprised in that district.
Constitution of district boards.

(2) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that the district board for a district shall consist of so many of the elected members of each local board as it thinks fit, elected in this behalf by the local board in manner prescribed, and such of the nominated members of each local board as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf:

Provided that the nominated members of local boards so appointed by the Local Government shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the district board.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 7-14.

(3) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, rescind any direction issued under sub-section (2) with effect from the date on which all the persons holding office as members of the district board at the date of the notification shall, under the provisions of this Act, have vacated their offices as such members.

7. (1) The term of office of a member of a local board and of a member of a district board elected or appointed under section 6, sub-section (2), shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election, nomination or appointment.

8. A member of a local board and a member of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on the acceptance by the Local Government of such resignation, the member shall be deemed to have vacated his office as such member.

9. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a local board or of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid who refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the local board, or, when he is a member of the district board, without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of that board.

10. (1) When the place of an elected member of a local board or of a district board elected as aforesaid becomes vacant by the resignation or removal of the member or by his death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of nominated members of a local board fixed by section 5, and to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of a district board fixed by section 6, direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of a nominated member of a local board or an appointed member of a district board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 47, nominate or appoint, as the case may be, a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected, nominated or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out

11. Every district board shall be a body corporate by the name of the district board of its district, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immovable, to transfer any moveable property and, with the previous approval in writing of the Commissioner of the division, any immovable property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

12. The several local boards and district boards constituted under this Act shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. (1) Every local board shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be chairman.

(2) The term of office of a chairman so elected shall be the residue of his term of office as a member of the board.

(3) If the chairman so elected dies, resigns or is removed from his office as a member of the board, resigns the office of chairman or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall elect another of its members to be chairman for the period during which the person so dying, resigning, removed or becoming incapable would have been entitled to continue in office, and no longer.

(4) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant or the chairman is absent from the meeting, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

14. (1) Every district board shall, on first coming into existence and thereafter whenever the term of office of its chairman expires under this Act, take into consideration, at a special meeting convened for the purpose within the time prescribed, the appointment of a chairman, and, if the meeting is attended by not less than three-fourths of the members of the board, may, by a majority of the members present,—

(a) determine whether the chairman shall be elected, or his appointment shall be left to be made by the Local Government, and

(b) if it is determined that the chairman shall be elected, elect one of its members to be chairman; and the Local Government may, if it approves of the person so elected, declare him to be chairman of the board.

(2) If no such meeting is held within the time prescribed, or if three-fourths of the members of the board are not present at the meeting, or, where several meetings are convened under this section, at any of those meetings, or if no such election takes place, or if the person elected is not approved of by the Local Government, the Local Government shall appoint as chairman, by name or by virtue of his office, such person as

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 15-24.

15. At a special meeting held under section 14, or at another special meeting held for this purpose, the district board shall elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

Vice-chairman of district board.

16. (1) The term of office of an elected chairman of a district board shall be the residue of his term of office as member of the board.

(2) The term of office of an appointed chairman of a district board shall be such term, not exceeding three years, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman of a district board shall be one year, or when at the time of his election the residue of his term of office as member is less than one year, the residue of that term.

17. (1) A chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on such resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A vice-chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board; and, on such resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

18. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a district board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

19. (1) If an elected chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, a special meeting of the board shall be held within the period prescribed, and a new chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 14.

(2) If an appointed chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) If a vice-chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall, at a special meeting held for this purpose, select one of its members to be vice-chairman in his place.

(4) A chairman or vice-chairman elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and

20. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a chairman appointed by the Local Government to be member of district board, sub-section (2), or section 19, sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), shall, if he is not already a member of the district board, become a member thereof by virtue of such appointment, and continue to be a member thereof while he holds the office of chairman.

21. A chairman of a local board, and a chairman or vice-chairman of a district board, if otherwise qualified, shall on going out of office be again eligible for election or appointment.

22. (1) At every meeting of a district board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. All elections, nominations and appointments of members of local boards and district boards, and of chairmen of district boards, and all vacancies in those offices, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Every district board shall, so far as the funds at its disposal will permit, but subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, provide for the control and administration of the following matters within the area subject to its authority:—

- (a) the construction, repair and maintenance of public roads and other means of communication;
- (b) the planting and preservation of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground;
- (c) the establishment, management, maintenance and visiting of schools, hospitals, dispensaries, markets, staging-houses, inspection-houses and other public institutions, and the construction and repair of all buildings connected with these institutions;
- (d) the construction and repair of public wells, tanks and water-works, and the supply of water from them and from other sources;
- (e) the establishment and maintenance of such relief-works in time of famine or scarcity as may be entrusted to the charge of the board by the Local Government;
- (f) the establishment and management of pounds, including, where the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, is in force, such functions of the Local Government and the Magistrate

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 25-33.

- (g) the management of such public ferries as may be entrusted to its charge under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act;
- (h) the regulation of encamping-grounds and, where the Sarāis Act, 1867, is in force, of sarāis and parāos, including such functions of the Magistrate of the district under that Act as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct;
- (i) the institution, holding and management of agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions;
- (j) the maintenance of any building or other property which is vested under this Act in the district board, or may be placed by the Local Government under the management of that board; and
- (k) any other local works or measures likely to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the public.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Every local board shall, in the sub-district Local board to be agent under its authority, be the of district board. agent of the district board, and, as such agent, shall have such authority and discharge such duties in respect of all or any of the matters specified in section 24 as the district board may, by written authority in that behalf, from time to time, confer or impose upon it.

26. The district board may, by a resolution Control of district board over local boards. passed by two-thirds of the members present at a meeting, either on complaint made to it or of its own motion, reverse or vary any order or other proceeding of any local board within the district:

Provided that, except for reasons recorded in writing, no such resolution shall be passed until the local board has been allowed an opportunity of showing cause against the same.

Joint Committees.

27. (1) A district board may, from time to time, Joint committees. concur with any other district board, or with the board of any municipality, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of such committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division or of the Local

Conduct of Business.

28. (1) A meeting of a district board or local Ordinary and special board shall be either ordinary meetings. or special.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special Quorum. meeting of a district board or local board shall, except where otherwise provided by this Act, be one-half of the whole board.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a district board or local board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under this Act:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before and transacted at the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Vote of majority de- Act or by any rule made cative. under this Act, all questions coming before a meeting of a district board or local board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

31. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall be entitled to attend any meeting of a district board or local board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction.

32. (1) Every resolution passed by a district Resolutions to be re- board or local board at a corded. meeting shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next ensuing meeting.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a local board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the district board.

(3) A copy of every resolution passed by a district board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

33. Every district board, and, with the previous Power to make rules sanction of the district board, as to conduct of busi- every local board, may, from ness. time to time, make rules consistent with this Act and with any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to—

(a) the time and place of its meetings.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 34-40.

- (c) the conduct of proceedings at meetings;
- (d) the division of duties among the members of the board; and
- (e) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act.

Officers and Servants.

34. (1) Every district board and every local board shall, from time to time, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a secretary appointed under this section is a member of the board, he shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. If he is not a member of the board, the district board may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, assign to him such pay as it thinks fit.

35. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, every district board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of its duties and of the duties of the local boards in the district, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit and as may be approved by the Commissioner of the division.

36. In the case of a Government official, any district board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

37. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 36, any district board may—

(1) grant him leave-allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

- (a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave-allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or
- (b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement:

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave-allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which, under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, the servant

District Fund.

38. There shall be formed for each district a fund, to be called the district fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(a) the balance (if any) of the allotments made for the district under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, which may be available for expenditure in the district on the day on which the district board comes into existence;

III of 1878.
IV of 1878.

(b) all sums which may, from time to time, be allotted by the Local Government to the district fund under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, as amended by this Act;

III of 1878.
IV of 1878.

and, subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, the following, namely:—

(c) the surplus accruing in the district under section 18 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871; I of 1871.

(d) the proceeds of public ferries payable into the district fund under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act;

XVII of 1878.

(e) receipts from encamping-grounds under the regulation of the district board;

(f) the sale-proceeds of grass and of the produce of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground under the control and administration of the district board, and of timber fallen or felled thereon;

(g) receipts from property vested in the district board;

(h) rents and profits accruing from nazul and other property placed by the Local Government under the management of the district board;

(i) other sums assigned to the district fund by the Local Government;

(j) sums contributed to the district fund by local bodies or private persons; and

(k) all other sums received by or on behalf of the district board in the carrying out of this Act.

39. (1) The district fund shall be vested in the district board, and the balance standing at the credit of the fund shall be kept in the Government treasury of the district or in the bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over.

(2) Subject to such rules as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, the district board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of the district fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the same nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the district fund.

40. (1) The district fund shall be charged with the payment of the expenses incurred in auditing the district fund.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 41-45.

Provincial Departments for education, sanitation, vaccination, medical relief and public works as may be held by the Local Government to be equitably debitable to the district board in return for services rendered to the board by those Departments.

(2) Subject to the charges specified in sub-section (1), the district fund shall be applicable to the payment, in whole or in part, of the charges and expenses incidental to the several matters specified in sections 24, 34, 35, 36 and 37 within the area subject to the authority of the district board, and, with the sanction of the Local Government, outside that area when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of that area.

Control.

Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.

41. (1) The Commissioner of the division, or the Magistrate of the district when he is not a member of the district board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immovable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any local board, district board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents, relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between officers exercising the powers conferred by sub-section (1), it shall be referred—

- (a) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in the same division, to the Commissioner; and
- (b) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in different divisions or between two or more Commissioners, to the Local Government; and the decision thereon of the Commissioner or of the Local Government, as the case may be, shall be final.

42. (1) A Commissioner may, by order in writing, suspend within his division the execution of any resolution or order of a local board, district board or joint committee, and may prohibit the doing of any act which is about to be done or is being done within his division in pursuance of, or under cover of, this Act, if, in his opinion, such resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of such resolution or order, or the doing of such act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public

(2) When the Commissioner makes any such order, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order, or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

43. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate Extraordinary powers of the district may provide of Magistrate in case of for the execution of any emergency. work, or the doing of any act, which a district board or local board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the district board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers given to him by this section.

44. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that any district board has made default in performing, or has inefficiently performed, any duty imposed on it by this or any other Act for the time being in force, the Local Government may, by order in writing, direct the district board to perform that duty, or to take such measures as the Local Government may think proper for the performance thereof, and may fix a time within which the duty shall be performed or the measures shall be taken.

(2) If the order is not obeyed to the satisfaction of the Local Government within the time fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to execute it, and may direct that the expense of executing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the district board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

45. (1) If a district board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this Act or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare the board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and super-

Power of Commissioner to suspend action under this Act.

Power to supersede district board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 45-51.

(2) When the district board of a district is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue:—

- (a) all members of the board and all members of the local boards of the district shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members;
- (b) all powers and duties of the district board may, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf;
- (c) all property vested in the district board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the local boards and district board shall be re-established, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (2) shall not be deemed disqualified for nomination, appointment or election.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. A person shall be liable for the loss, liability of members waste or misapplication of for loss, waste or mis- any money or other property application on belonging to the district board if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of a local board or of the district board; and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him in any Court of competent jurisdiction by the district board with the sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Forms and Rules.

47. The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for members to frame forms and any proceeding for which make rules. it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act:—

- (a) as to the method and time of election of elective members of local boards, and, where a notification under section 6, subsection (2), is in force, of elective members of district boards;
- (b) as to the nomination of members of local boards under section 5;
- (c) as to the mode of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively, the notice to be given of such meetings, the business that may be transacted at ordinary and special meetings respectively, and the majority by which any question which may come before a board at a meeting shall be decided;
- (d) as to the division of duties among the members of the board;
- (e) as to the mode of entering into and executing contracts and transfers of property on behalf of district board; and the authority on which money may be paid from the district fund;
- (f) as to the preparation of plans and estimates and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned;

- (g) for the guidance of district boards when suits or other proceedings are intended to be, or have been, instituted by or against them in Civil Courts;
- (h) as to the office or offices through which correspondence of, and with, local boards and district boards and representations to the Local Government under this Act shall pass;
- (i) as to the accounts to be kept, and as to the manner in which those accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge;
- (j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure, and the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned;
- (k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by local boards and district boards respectively;
- (l) as to the language of the board;
- (m) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill; and
- (n) generally, for the guidance of local boards, district boards and officers of Government in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act and for settling their relations to one another.

48. The Local Government shall, before making any rules under section 47, Procedure for making publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, together with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration, and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

49. Every rule made under section 47 shall be published in the local official Publication of rules. Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by section 48.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Where any land is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the district board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the district board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the district board.

51. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a local board, district board or joint committee appointed under this Act is, otherwise Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts any contract made with such board or committee, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence of 1860, under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code :

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1873—Sections 52-59.

(2) A person shall not, by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and a board or committee, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board or committee relating to any such contract.

Saving of Act XI of 1879. 52. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. If the circumstances of any district or part of a district are, in the opinion of the Local Government, such that all or any of the provisions of this Act are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, except the district or part from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to the excepted district or part until again applied thereto by a like notification.

Power of Local Government to exempt local area from operation of Act.

54. When a sub-district is excepted, under section 53, from the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a local board shall be elected, the Local Government may itself appoint all such members.

55. When a district is excepted, under section 53, from all the provisions of this Act, a committee shall be appointed for the control and administration in that district of the matters mentioned in section 24, or of such of them as the Local Government may, from time to time, specify; and the Local Government shall, from time to time, determine the manner in which the members of the committee shall be appointed and removed, define the functions and authority of the committee, and place at its disposal, subject to such control as the Local Government thinks fit, the amounts mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 38, and such of the sources of income mentioned in the other clauses of that section as the Local Government thinks fit :

Provided that not less than one-half of the members of the committee shall be persons who own landed property, or reside or carry on trade or business, in the district, and are not in the service of Government.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

Section 11, clause (c), Act III of 1878, amended. 56. For section 11, clause (c), of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor may, from of each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the maintenance of the village and road police and the district-post;
- (2) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (3) the registration of traffic; and
- (4) any other matter tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section four and the first clause of section five in such district in such year.”

57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, are hereby repealed.

58. For section 14 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“14. Accounts of the receipts in respect of the rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted for the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

Section 11, clause (c), Act IV of 1878, amended. 59. For section 11, clause (c), of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to such appropriation, the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, reserve from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in, or for the benefit of, each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (2) the registration of traffic; and
- (3) any other matters tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Chief Commissioner may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 60-65.

60. Sections 12 and 14 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, are repealed.

61. For section 13 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“13. Accounts of the receipts in respect of all rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted in the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Contracts made by, and Government officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

62. Every contract entered into, whether in its own name or in the name of the Government, by the committee appointed in a district under section 15 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or section 14 of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, may be enforced by and against the district board constituted for that district under this Act, in like manner as it might have been by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed.

63. A Government officer employed under the committee appointed in a district as aforesaid at the time when a district board comes into existence for the district under section 12 of this Act shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without the sanction of the Local Government.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. After section seven of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, the following shall be inserted, namely:—

“7A. The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh may direct that any public ferry wholly or partly within the area subject to the authority of a district board in any district in the North-Western Provinces or Oudh, as the case may be, be managed by that board, and may further direct that all or any part of the proceeds from such ferry be paid into the district fund of that district; and proceeds paid into district fund.

“and thereupon such ferry shall be managed, and such proceeds or part thereof shall be paid, accordingly.”

65. In section six of the same Act, after the words “section seven,” and in section seventeen of the same Act, after the words “section seven” where they first occur, the following shall be inserted, namely:—“and section 7A.”

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 11th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH MUNICIPALITIES
ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definitions.
3. Notification of intention to apply Act.
4. Application of Act.
5. Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. Board to consist of elected and appointed members.
7. Magistrate to convene meeting to determine system of election.
8. Persons to be invited to meeting.
9. Matters to be considered at the meeting.
10. Power to Local Government to make rules regarding election.
11. Term of office of member of board.
12. Resignation of member.
13. Removal of member.
14. Filling of casual vacancies.
15. Incorporation of municipal board.
16. Time for boards coming into existence.
17. Consequences of establishment of municipal board where municipal committee exists or Act XX of 1856 is in force.

SECTIONS.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. Election or appointment of chairman.
19. Election of vice-chairman.
20. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.
21. Resignation of chairman or vice-chairman.
22. Removal of chairman or vice-chairman.
23. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.
24. Chairman to become member if not already member.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Notification of elections, appointments and vacancies.

Joint Committees.

26. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

27. Time for holding meetings.
28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Chairman of meeting.
31. Vote of majority decisive.
32. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
33. Resolutions to be recorded and published.
34. Power to make rules as to meetings and proceedings.

Officers and Servants.

35. Appointment of secretary.
36. Employment of other officers and servants.
37. Pensions of Government officials serving boards.
38. Pensions of servants of boards.

Contracts.

39. Authority to contract.
40. Mode of executing contracts.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Taxes which may be imposed.
42. Procedure in imposing taxes.
43. Tax not invalid for defect of form.
44. Power to abolish or reduce tax.
45. Taxes leviable under Act XV of 1873 to be deemed to be taxes under this Act.
46. Recovery of taxes.

Municipal Fund.

47. Constitution and application of municipal fund.
48. Custody and investment of municipal fund.

SECTIONS.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS
GENERALLY.Municipal Police.

49. Police-establishment.
50. Constitution of establishment.
51. Appointment, punishment and duties of municipal watchmen.
52. Duties of municipal police enrolled under Act V of 1861.
53. Powers under section 34 of Act V of 1861.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Duties of municipal board generally.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. Power to make rules.
56. Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.
57. Powers as to conditional orders in respect of certain acts and omissions.
58. Delegation of powers under sections 56 and 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. Control by Commissioner or Magistrate.
60. Power to suspend action under Act.
61. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
62. Powers of Local Government in case of default of board.
63. Power of Local Government to supersede board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.
64. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. Penalty on member, officer or servant of board being interested in contract made with board.
66. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.
67. Acquisition of land under Act X of 1870.
68. Procedure for making rules.
69. Prosecutions.
70. Saving of prosecutions under other laws.
71. Continuance of existing rules.
72. Notification of intention to alter limits of municipality.
73. Alteration of limits of municipality.
74. Effect of exclusion of local area from municipality.
75. Effect of including local area in municipality.
76. Saving of Act XI of 1879.
77. Member of municipal board to be municipal commissioner.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. Power to except municipalities from operation of provisions of Act regarding election.
79. Power to withdraw municipal area altogether from operation of this Act or Act XV of 1873.

An Act to make better provision for the Organization and Administration of Municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the organization and administration of municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

(2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of November, 1883.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "Municipality" means a local area to which this Act has been applied under section 4 or section 5.

(b) "Honorary Magistrate" means a Magistrate who holds no salaried office in any department of the Government service.

(c) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under this Act.

3. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time determine, declare its intention to apply this Act to any town or to any group of towns in the immediate neighbourhood of one another.

(2) Every notification under this section shall define the limits of the town or group of towns to which it refers, and may include within those limits any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity of any such town:

Provided that it shall not, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, so include any part of a military cantonment.

4. (1) Any inhabitant of a local area in respect of which a notification has been published under section 3 may, if he objects to the application of the Act, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under sub-section (1), the Local Government may, by a notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to the local area.

5. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any local area which is a municipality established under the North-

Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 6-13.

Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, and shall, within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force, so apply it to every such local area unless before the expiration of that period—

- (a) the Act has been applied under section 4 to some local area in which that local area is comprised; or
- (b) the Local Government has declared, by a notification in the official Gazette, that the provisions of this Act are unsuited to that local area.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. There shall be established for each municipality a municipal board having authority over that municipality, and consisting of—

Board to consist of elected and appointed members.

- (a) so many elected members as may be determined in manner prescribed, representing wards of the municipality or particular classes of the inhabitants; and
- (b) such person or persons (if any), not exceeding in number one-fourth of the board, as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 64, from time to time, appoint in this behalf.

7. (1) The Magistrate of the district within which any municipality is situate shall, within one month from the date on which this Act has been applied to the municipality under section 4 or section 5, issue notices in writing to the persons mentioned in section 8, inviting them to meet at a time and place specified in the notices, for the purpose of preparing and submitting, within such further time not exceeding three months from the date of the meeting as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, proposals for determining the system of representation and election to be established in the municipality.

(2) The Local Government may, for special reasons, grant an extension, not exceeding one month, of the time fixed under this section for submitting proposals.

8. Notices under section 7 shall be issued to the following persons, namely:—

Persons to be invited to meeting.

- (a) all Honorary Magistrates having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality;
- (b) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a municipal committee has been appointed under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the members of that committee;
- (c) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a panchayat has been appointed under Act XX of 1856, the members of that panchayat; and
- (d) any leading residents of the municipality not included under the foregoing clauses who in the opinion of the Magistrate of the district should be allowed to take part in the discussion.

9. The persons who meet in compliance with the notices issued under section 7 shall consider, and shall, within the time limited under that section, submit through the Magistrate of the district to the Local Government proposals regarding the following matters, namely:—

Matters to be considered at the meeting.

- (a) the division of the municipality into wards;
- (b) the number of representatives proper for each ward;
- (c) the provision (if any) to be made for the special representation of any classes of the community;
- (d) the qualifications of electors and of candidates for election;
- (e) the registration of electors;
- (f) the nomination of candidates, the time of election and the mode of recording votes; and
- (g) any other matters regarding the system of representation and of election which it may seem to the meeting expedient to consider.

10. (1) The Local Government shall, after taking into consideration the proposals (if any) submitted under section 9, make rules regulating the matters referred to in that section, and may in making such rules direct that the breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

(2) The Local Government may, after the municipal board has come into existence as herein-after provided, from time to time amend, after consulting the board, the rules made under this section; but no amendment made under this sub-section shall take effect until six months after it has been published in the official Gazette.

(3) Elective members of the board shall be elected in accordance with the rules made under this section and for the time being in force.

11. (1) The term of office of a member of a municipal board shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

12. A member of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

13. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a municipal board who refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

Resignation of member.

Removal of member.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 14-20.

14. (1) When the place of an elected member of a municipal board becomes vacant by his resignation, removal or death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of the board fixed by section 6, clause (b), direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of an appointed member of a municipal board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 64, appoint a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but shall be again eligible for election or appointment.

15. Every municipal board shall be a body corporate by the name of the municipal board of its municipality, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to the rules made under section 64, to transfer any property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

16. A municipal board shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

17. (1) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area which is a municipality under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the following consequences shall ensue, namely:—

(a) the said North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act shall cease to apply to the local area;

(b) the municipal committee (if any) constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist;

(c) all property vested in that committee shall vest in the municipal board for the purposes of this Act, subject to all rights (if any) existing over, and all debts, liabilities and obligations (if any) affecting, that property;

(d) every right and liability belonging to or incurred by the committee may be enforced by and against the board in like manner as it might have been enforced by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed;

(e) a Government officer employed by the committee at the time when the board comes into existence shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without the sanction of the Local Government; and

(f) the board shall be substituted for the committee in all legal proceedings by or against the committee pending at the time when the board comes into existence.

(2) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaudhars in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bázars in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force, that Act shall cease to have effect in the local area, and every panchayat constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. A municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect as its chairman one of its own members or some other person qualified for election as a member, and the member or other person so elected shall, if the election is approved by the Local Government, but not otherwise, become chairman of the board:

Provided that—

(a) If the office of chairman remains vacant for three months from the date of the first meeting of the board, or in the case of a vacancy afterwards occurring, from the occurrence of that vacancy, and no person is within that period elected under this section to fill it, the Local Government may in its discretion appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman; and

(b) in such municipalities as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from the operation of this section, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman.

19. In every municipality the board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

20. (1) The term of office of a member of the board elected to be chairman shall be the residue of his term of office as member.

(2) The term of office of any other person elected to be chairman, or of a chairman appointed by the Local Government, shall be such term not exceeding three years as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman shall be one year: Provided that when at the time of his election as vice-chairman the residue of his term of office as member of the board is less than one year, his term of office as vice-chairman shall be the residue of his term as member.

(4) An outgoing chairman or vice-chairman shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 21-31.

21. (1) A chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A vice-chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board, and, on his resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

22. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a municipal board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he, without sufficient excuse, neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

23. (1) If an elected chairman or vice-chairman dies or resigns his office, or office of chairman or vice-chairman is removed, a new chairman or vice-chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 18 or section 19, as the case may be.

(2) If a chairman appointed by the Local Government dies, resigns his office or is removed, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office. Provided that if a person so elected is a member of the board at the time of his election, he shall go out of office on ceasing to be a member.

(4) A person going out of office under subsection (3) shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

24. When a person not already a member of the board is elected or appointed chairman or vice-chairman, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of his election or appointment, and shall continue to be a member so long as he holds office as chairman.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Every election and appointment of a member or chairman of a municipal board and every vacancy in the office of member or chairman shall be notified in the official Gazette.

Joint Committees.

26. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, concur with any other municipal board, or with a district board, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of the committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division, if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division, or of the Local Government if those areas are in different divisions, shall be final.

Conduct of Business.

27. (1) A municipal board shall meet for the transaction of business at least once in every month on such day as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34.

(2) The chairman, or, in his absence, a vice-chairman, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth of the members of the board, convene either an ordinary or a special meeting at any other time.

28. (1) A meeting of a municipal board shall be either ordinary or special.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of a municipal board shall be one-half of the whole board.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a municipal board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before, and transacted at, the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) At every meeting of a municipal board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

31. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Act, or by any rule made by the Local Government under this Act, all questions which may come before any meeting of a municipal board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 32-40.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

32. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall be entitled to attend any meeting of the board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction.

33. (1) Every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or the next ensuing meeting, and shall be published in some local English or Vernacular newspaper, or in such other manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

34. (1) Every municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules consistent with this Act and any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively and of giving notice thereof;
- (c) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;
- (d) the conduct of proceedings at meetings, and the adjournment of meetings;
- (e) the division of duties among the members of the board;
- (f) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act; and
- (g) all other similar matters.

(2) Every rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Officers and Servants.

35. (1) Every municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may at a like meeting remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a person who is an officer in the service of the Government, and who is not a member of the board, is appointed secretary, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of such appointment, and shall continue to be a member of the board as long as he holds the office of secretary.

(3) When a member of the board is appointed to be secretary, he shall receive no remuneration.

Commissioner, assign to a secretary any such pay as it thinks fit.

36. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, a municipal board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary or proper for the efficient execution of its duties, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit.

37. In the case of a Government official employed by a municipal board, the board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

38. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 37, a board may—

(1) grant him leave allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

(a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or

(b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement:

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which, under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, he would be entitled if the service had been service under the Government.

Contracts.

39. (1) A municipal board may delegate to one or more of its members the power of entering into, on its behalf, any contract whereof the value or amount does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) A contract whereof the value or amount exceeds two hundred rupees shall not be executed until it has been sanctioned by the board at a meeting.

40. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a municipal board whereof the value or amount exceeds twenty rupees shall be in writing.

(2) Every such contract shall be signed by the chairman, or a vice-chairman, and a secretary:

Provided that the board may delegate to one or

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund—Sections 41-47.

contracts which he or they are empowered to enter into under section 39, sub-section (1).

(3) If a contract to which this section applies is executed otherwise than in conformity therewith, it shall not be binding on the board.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Subject to any general rules or special Taxes which may be orders which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may, for the purposes of this Act, impose, with the sanction hereinafter specified in each case, and in manner prescribed by section 42, any of the following taxes, namely:—

(1) with the previous sanction of the Local Government—

- (a) a tax on houses, buildings and lands situate within the municipality, not exceeding seven and a half per centum of the annual value of the houses, buildings and lands;
- (b) a tax on persons exercising professions or carrying on trades or dealings in the municipality;
- (c) a tax on vehicles and on animals used for riding or driving or as beasts of burthen, when such vehicles or animals are kept within the municipality;
- (d) a tax on vehicles and on animals as aforesaid entering the municipality, and on boats moored therein;
- (e) an octroi on goods or animals brought within the municipality for consumption or use therein; and

(2) with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, any other tax.

42. (1) A municipal board may resolve at a Procedure in imposing special meeting to propose taxes. the imposition of any tax for the purposes of this Act.

(2) When a resolution has been passed under sub-section (1), the board shall publish a notice defining the persons or property proposed to be taxed, the amount or rate of the tax to be imposed, and the system of assessment to be adopted.

(3) Any inhabitant of the municipality objecting to the proposed tax may, within a fortnight from the publication of the notice, submit his objection in writing to the board, and the board shall, at a special meeting, take his objection into consideration.

(4) If no objection is submitted within the said period of a fortnight under sub-section (3), or if the objections so submitted, having been considered as aforesaid, are deemed insufficient, the board may forward its proposals to the Local Government, with the objections (if any) which have been submitted as aforesaid.

(5) The Local Government on receiving proposals under sub-section (4) may sanction the same, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the

(6) When the Local Government sanctions any proposals which, under section 41, sub-section (2), require the further sanction of the Governor General in Council, it shall submit those proposals to the Governor General in Council, with the objections (if any) received through the board; and the Governor General in Council may sanction the proposals, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the Local Government for further consideration.

(7) When the proposals of a municipal board have been sanctioned by the Local Government, or by the Local Government and the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, the board may, at a special meeting, direct the imposition of the tax in accordance with those proposals.

43. A tax imposed under this Act shall not be Tax not invalid for invalid for defect of form, defect of form.

and when any property is described for the purpose of assessing any such tax, it shall be sufficient to describe it so that it shall be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier.

44. A municipal board, by a resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Local Government, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may abolish or reduce any tax imposed under the foregoing sections.

45. All taxes leviable in any local area under Taxes leviable under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, at the time when XV Act XV of 1873 to be deemed to be taxes under this Act. a municipal board having authority over that local area comes into existence under this Act, shall be deemed to have been imposed and assessed under this Act.

46. Arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality, by the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within those limits.

Municipal Fund.

47. (1) There shall be formed for each municipality a municipal fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

- (a) all sums received by or on behalf of the board;
- (b) all fines realized in cases in which prosecutions are instituted under this Act or section 34 of Act V of 1861 for offences committed within the municipality;
- (c) when there has been included within the municipality any municipality constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the balance XV (if any) standing at the credit of the municipal fund of that municipality at the time when the municipal board came into existence; and
- (d) when there has been included within the municipality any local area in which the said Act XX of 1856 was in force at the time when the municipal board came into existence, the amount (if any) then available under section 36 of that Act for the purposes of cleansing, lighting and improvement in that local area.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Bill, 1883.Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Municipal Boards generally—Sections 48—55.

(2) The municipal fund shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be applicable, at the discretion of the municipal board, to all the purposes of this Act within the limits of the municipality, and, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to like purposes beyond those limits, when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality.

48. (1) In places where there is a Government Custody and investment treasury or sub-treasury, or of municipal fund. a bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over, the municipal fund shall be kept in the treasury, sub-treasury or bank.

(2) In places where there is no such treasury or sub-treasury or bank, the municipal fund may be deposited with any banker, or person acting as a banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government may in each case think sufficient.

(3) A municipal board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of its municipal fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the like nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the municipal fund.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS
GENERALLY.Municipal Police.

49. Every municipal board shall maintain a police-establishment. watch and ward, for the prevention and suppression of nuisances and for the enforcement of the rules and orders of the board.

1880. 50. Subject to the provisions of section 9 of the Constitution of establishments. Cantonments Act, 1880, the establishment maintained under section 49 shall, as the board with the approval of the Local Government may from time to time direct, be either a body of watchmen or a part of the general police force under the Local Government within the meaning of section 2 of Act V of 1861; and it shall consist of such number of officers and men, and the officers and men shall receive such pay, leave allowances, gratuities and pensions, as the board may, from time to time, after consultation with the Magistrate of the district and the Inspector General of Police, and subject to the final decision of the Local Government, direct.

51. If the establishment maintained under section 49 is a body of watchmen, the watchmen shall be appointed and promoted, and shall be liable to dismissal, suspension, reduction or fine, under such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf; and shall perform such duties, and be liable to such

the North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873, or under the Oudh Laws Act, XVI of 1873. 1876, as the case may be, perform and are liable to, XVIII of 1876.

52. If the establishment is part of the general Duties of municipal police force, the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Act V of 1861 or in any other Act for the time being in force, define the duties which the officers and men of the establishment may or may not be required to perform.

53. In any municipality in which section 34 of Act V of 1861 is in force, every watchman under this Act shall have the powers of a police-officer under that section.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Every municipal board, so far as the municipal fund at its disposal will permit, but subject to any agreement between the board and the Local Government as to the application of that fund, shall, after providing for the maintenance of the police-establishment referred to in the foregoing sections,—

- (1) provide for the construction, maintenance, repair and cleansing of the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and watercourses;
- (2) cause those streets and roads to be watered and lighted;
- (3) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of schools and dispensaries and of other public institutions for the promotion of education or for the benefit of the public health, and control and administer all such institutions within the municipality, except where they may, by order of the Local Government, have been excepted from the operation of this section;
- (4) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of poor-houses, markets and other works of public utility; and
- (5) generally do all acts and things calculated to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants of the municipality.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules—

- (a) for prohibiting, preventing and punishing such acts or omissions within the municipality as may, in the opinion of the board, cause or tend to cause any common injury, danger or annoyance to the public, or to people in general, who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, or injury, obstruction, danger or annoyance to persons who have occasion to use any public right, or may, in its opinion, be prejudicial to the public health, safety or convenience, or offences against public decency;
- (b) for protecting from injury or interference anything within the municipality being the

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter V.—Control—Sections 56-60.

- (c) for prohibiting or controlling the establishment or maintenance of markets, sarais and halting places, and controlling the management of the same and of any places of public entertainment and resort;
- (d) for controlling and regulating the use and management of burial and burning grounds;
- (e) for limiting the rates which may be demanded for the hire of any carriage, cart, boat or other conveyance, or of animals hired to carry loads, or for the services of persons hired to carry loads, where those conveyances, animals or persons are hired within the municipality for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, or for a service which would ordinarily be performed within twenty-four hours;
- (f) for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths;
- (g) for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which officers of the board may enter on private property for the enforcement of rules made under this section;
- (h) in hilly tracts, for regulating or prohibiting the cutting of trees or shrubs, or the excavation or removal of soil, where such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for the preservation of the soil, the prevention of landslips or of the formation of ravines or torrents, the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel; and
- (i) generally for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In making any rule under this section, a municipal board may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(3) A rule made under this section shall not come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing portion of this section, the municipal board of a municipality in which the Hackney Carriage Act, 1879, is in force shall not make rules under sub-section (1) in respect of any vehicles to which that Act applies.

56. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may order any person not to do, or not to omit to do, within the municipality, anything the doing of, or the omission to do, which is a public nuisance.

57. (1) The Local Government may invest, within the limits of the municipality, a municipal board with the powers of a Magistrate of a district as described in section 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and with power to make conditional orders of the nature referred to in that section, in respect of all or any acts or omissions punishable under rules made in exercise of the power conferred by section 55, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) and (h).

(2) Sections 133 to 142 (both inclusive) of the Code of the Criminal Procedure shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to all proceedings taken in exercise of these powers:

Provided that, for the purposes of such proceedings, section 133 of the Code shall be read as if for the words "before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class" the words "before the District Magistrate or some magistrate of the first or second class appointed by him in this behalf" were substituted.

(3) The Local Government may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the powers with which it has invested a board under this section.

58. A municipal board may, at a special meeting, delegate to one or more committees of its members any of the powers vested in the board by section 56, or with which the board may have been invested under section 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district, when he is not a member of the municipal board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immoveable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any municipal board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any book or document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

60. (1) The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district may, by order in writing, suspend within the limits of the division or district (as the case may be) the execution of any resolution or order of a municipal board or joint committee, or prohibit the doing within those limits of any act which is about to be done, or is being done, in pursuance of or under cover of this Act, if, in his opinion, the resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace, or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter V.—Control—Sections 61-64.

(2) When a Commissioner or Magistrate makes any order under this section, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

61. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate of the district may provide extraordinary powers for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a municipal board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from that balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers conferred on him by this section.

62. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that a municipal board has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, the Local Government may, by order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty.

(2) If that duty is not performed within the period so fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

63. (1) If a municipal board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare that board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and supersede it for a period to be specified in the order.

(2) When a board is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue:—

(a) All members of the board shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members.

(b) All powers and duties of the board may during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf.

(c) All property vested in the board shall during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the board shall be re-constituted, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for being members.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding of a municipal board for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) as to the appointment of members of a municipal board;

(b) as to the language of the board;

(c) for the assessment and collection of taxes imposed under this Act, and for preventing evasion of the same;

(d) as to the authority on which money may be paid from the municipal fund;

(e) as to the conditions on which property vested in the board may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise;

(f) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed by the board to offices requiring professional skill;

(g) as to the intermediate office or offices, if any, through which correspondence between boards and the Local Government or officers of that Government and representations addressed to the Local Government under this Act shall pass;

(h) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned;

(i) as to the accounts to be kept by boards, as to the manner in which such accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge;

(j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned;

(k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by boards; and

(l) generally, for the guidance of boards and public officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act.

(2) In making rules under clause (c), the Local Government may direct that a breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter VI.—Supplemental—Sections 65-74.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a board is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner of the division, directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with the board, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 18 of the Indian Penal Code.

(2) A person shall not by reason of being a shareholder in, or member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and the board, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board relating to any such contract.

66. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the board, if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of the board, and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him by the board with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

67. Where any land, whether within or without the limits of a municipality, is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the municipal board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the board.

68. (1) The authority empowered to make rules under section 10, section 55, or section 64 shall, before making them, publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) Every rule made under any of those sections shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by this section.

69. A Court shall not take cognizance of an offence punishable under this Act, or the rules made under this Act, except on the complaint of the municipal board or of some person authorized by the board in this behalf.

70. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under that other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules made under it: Provided that a person shall not be punished twice for the same offence.

71. All rules made under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, or any Act thereby repealed, and in force in any local area comprised in a municipality constituted under this Act at the time the municipal board for that municipality comes into existence under section 16, shall, as far as may be, be deemed to have been made under this Act, and shall continue in force until repealed by new rules so made.

(2) The authority empowered to make such new rules shall, as soon as may be, make them and take such action as may be requisite for bringing them into force.

72. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time determine, declare its intention—

- (a) to exclude from a municipality any local area comprised therein and defined in the notification, or
- (b) to include within a municipality any local area in the vicinity of the same and defined in the notification:

Provided that where the local area is a military cantonment or part of a military cantonment, a notification shall not be published under this section in respect of it without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council.

73. (1) Any inhabitant of a municipality or local area in respect of which a notification has been published in the Gazette under section 72 may, if he objects to the alteration proposed, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under sub-section (1), the Local Government may by a notification in the official Gazette exclude the local area from the municipality or include it therein, as the case may be.

74. (1) When a local area is excluded from a municipality under section 73—

- (a) this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act shall cease to apply thereto; and
- (b) the Local Government shall, after consulting the municipal board, frame a scheme determining what portion of the balance of the municipal fund and other property vested in the municipal board shall vest in Her Majesty for the benefit of the local area, and in what manner the liabilities of the board shall be apportioned between the board and the Secretary of State for India in Council, and on the publication of the scheme in the local official Gazette, the property and liabilities shall vest and be apportioned accordingly.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter VII.—Exceptional Provisions—Sections 75-79.

(2) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (1) shall be applied under the orders of the local Government to discharging the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council under that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area.

75. When a local area is included in a municipality under section 73, this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act and in force throughout the whole municipality at the time the local area is so included shall apply to the local area.

76. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

77. Every member of a municipal board constituted under this Act shall be deemed to be a municipal commissioner within the meaning of every enactment for the time being in force.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the circumstances of any municipality are such that the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a municipal board be elected are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt the municipality, wholly or in part, from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply, or shall only apply in part, as the case may be, to the excepted municipality until again applied thereto by a like notification of the Local Government:

Provided that no notification shall be issued under this section in respect of a municipality for which a municipal board has come into existence unless its issue has been sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

(2) While the municipality continues to be excepted, wholly or in part, from the operation of the provisions mentioned in sub-section (1), the Local Government may appoint such of the members of the municipal board as would otherwise have been elected.

79. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, withdraw from the operation of this Act or the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the area of any municipality constituted under that Act.

(2) When a notification is issued under this section in respect of any municipality, the Act, and all rules, bye-laws, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under the Act, shall cease to apply to the local area comprised in the municipality, the balance of the municipal fund and all other property which at the time of the issue of the notification is vested in the municipal board or municipal committee shall vest in Her Majesty, and the liabilities of the board or committee shall be transferred to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

(3) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (2) shall be applied under the orders of the Local Government to discharge the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council by that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area comprised in the municipality.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making
Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th September, 1883:—

No. 20 of 1883.

THE PANJÁB MUNICIPAL BILL, 1883.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Repeal of Act IV of 1873.
3. Interpretation-clause.
4. Notification of intention to apply Act.
Publication of notification.
5. Objection to such application.
Procedure thereon.
6. Alteration of limits of municipalities, transfer from one class to another, and withdrawal from operation of the Act.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES.

Constitution of Committees.

7. Constitution of committees, and number, appointment and election of members.
8. Disqualification for corrupt practices.
9. Term of office.
10. Removal of member.
11. Resignation of members.
12. Filling up casual vacancies.
13. Incorporation of committee.

SECTIONS.

14. Time when committee shall come into existence.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

15. Election or appointment of chairman or vice-chairman.
16. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.
Determination of office.
17. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.

Notification of Elections, Appointments, &c.

18. Notification of elections, appointments, &c.

Conduct of Business.

19. Chairman of meeting.
20. Time of meeting.
21. Ordinary and special meetings.
22. Quorum.
23. Vote of majority decisive.
24. Record and publication of proceedings.
25. Exercise by chairman or vice-chairman of powers of committee.
26. Rules of business.

Joint Committees.

27. Joint committees.

Officers and Servants.

28. Appointment of secretary.
29. Employment of other officers and servants.
30. Pensions to establishments.

Contracts.

31. Authority to contract.
32. Mode of executing contracts.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

33. Taxes which may be imposed.
34. Additional taxes for special objects.
Annual value.
35. Tolls and fees.
36. Procedure in imposing taxes.
37. Power to exempt from taxation.
38. Taxes, &c., not invalid for defect of form.
39. Tax on houses, buildings and lands when payable.

SECTIONS.

40. Preparation of valuation lists.
41. Owner or occupier how to be designated, if name unknown.
42. Publication of notice of assessments.
43. Public notice of time fixed for revising assessment.
44. Verification of list after disposal of objections.
45. Further amendments of valuation-list.
46. New list need not be prepared every year.
47. Presentation of bill and issue of notice of demand.
48. Liability of occupier if tax not paid by owner after notice of demand.
49. Recovery of taxes.
50. Power to examine articles liable to octroi tax.
Presentation of bill for octroi tax and receipt for payment.
51. Power to lease the collection of octroi or tolls.
52. Returns for purposes of valuation.
Power to enter houses, &c.
53. Assessments not to be questioned except under this Act.
54. Receipts to be given.

Appeals.

55. Appeals against assessments.
56. Limitation of appeal.
Deposit of amount.
57. No appeal in certain cases.

Municipal Fund.

58. Municipal fund constituted.
59. Custody of municipal fund.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Police.

60. Police-establishment.
61. Relief of committee from police charges.
Composition for police with poor municipalities.
Termination of such composition.
62. Constitution of police-establishment.
Duties when part of the general police force.
Powers, duties, protection, responsibilities and penalties when a body of watchmen.
Command of such body.
63. Obligation to assist watchmen.
Arrest of persons obstructing watchmen.
64. Appointment, promotion, suspension and punishment of watchmen.
65. Police protection of snāns, &c., for the use of which fees are charged by committee.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

66. Duties of committee generally.
67. Power to make rules creating offences.
68. Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.
69. Power to make conditional orders for removal of nuisances.
70. Delegation of powers as to nuisances.

Additional power to make Rules.

71. Additional power to make rules.
72. Special power to make rules in hill municipalities.
73. Penalty for infringement of rules under sections 71 and 72.
Confirmation of such rules.

SECTIONS.

Special Provisions.

74. Regulation of offensive and dangerous trades.
75. Prohibition of such trades.
76. New burial or burning places.
Closing of burial and burning places.
77. Appeal against order under section 75 or 76.
78. Slaughter of animals.
79. Bathing-places, &c.
80. Setting back buildings projecting beyond line of street.
81. Notice of new buildings.
82. Removal of projections and obstructions.
83. Execution of notices.
84. Names of streets and numbers of houses.
85. Recovery of cost of works executed from persons interested.
86. Service of notices.
87. Power to make compensation out of municipal fund.
88. Proceeds of fines.
89. Power to compound offences declared to be public nuisances.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

90. Control by Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.
91. Power to suspend action of committee.
92. Extraordinary powers of Deputy Commissioner in case of emergency.
93. Power to provide for performance of duties in case of default of committee.
94. Action of Deputy Commissioner or Commissioner to be immediately reported.
95. Powers of Local Government and its officers over committees.
96. Power of Local Government to supersede committee in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.
97. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

98. Members, officers or servants of committees not to be interested in contracts with the committee.
99. Suits against committees or their officers.
100. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.
101. Prosecutions for infringement of rules.
102. Acquisition of land.
103. Procedure for making rules.
104. Powers of Governor General in Council and of Local Government exercisable from time to time.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPPLEMENTAL AND TEMPORARY PROVISIONS.

105. Disposal of property vested in committee when local area is withdrawn from operation of Act.
106. Power to except municipality from provisions of Act unsuited thereto.
107. Saving of rights of existing officers and servants.
108. General powers of Local Government and Commissioners.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter I.—Preliminary.)

A Bill to make better provision for the organization and administration of Municipalities in the Panjab.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the organization and administration of municipalities in the Panjab; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

[Act IV of 1873, section 1.]

1. (1) This Act may be called the Panjab Municipal Act, 1883:

Short title.

(2) It extends only to the territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab:

Local extent.

Commencement.

(3) And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

[Act IV of 1873, section 2.]

2. (1) Act IV of 1873 (the Panjab Municipal Act, 1873) is hereby repealed.

(2) But all extensions and appointments made, and all limits defined, under the said Act shall be deemed to be respectively made and defined under this Act, and an extension of any particular provision of the said Act shall be deemed to be an extension of the corresponding provision of this Act:

Provided that, when a first election is held under this Act in any municipality, the term of office of any member of committee appointed before this Act comes into force shall cease when the elected members take office, unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

(3) And all taxes imposed and sanctioned under the said Act shall be deemed to have been imposed and sanctioned under this Act.

(4) And all assessments, bye-laws, rules and regulations of any kind, relating to matters provided for by this Act, which may heretofore have been made or approved by the Local Government, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act.

(5) And all proceedings taken under any such assessment, bye-law, rule or regulation shall be deemed to be as valid as if they had been taken under this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

“Committee” means a municipal committee appointed under the provisions of this Act:

“Municipality” means any town or group of towns to which this Act is applied:

“Inhabitant” means any person ordinarily residing or carrying on business, or possessing immoveable property, and any person declared by the Local Government to be an inhabitant, in any town to which this Act applies, or to which the Local Government has by notification declared its intention to apply it:

“Street” means any way, road, street, square, court, alley, passage or open space, whether a thoroughfare or not, over which the public have a right of way; and also the roadway and footway over any public bridge or causeway:

“Owner” includes the person for the time being receiving the rent of lands and buildings, or either of them, whether on his own account or as agent or trustee for any other person or society, or for any religious or charitable purpose, or who would receive the same if the land or building were let to a tenant:

Provided that no such agent or trustee shall be liable to do anything required by this Act to be done by the owner unless he has in his possession sufficient funds belonging to the owner to pay for the same; nor shall he be subject to any penalty for omitting to do such act if he can prove that he had not in his possession funds belonging to the owner sufficient for the purpose:

“Casual vacancy” means a vacancy occurring in a committee by the death, resignation or removal of a member of committee:

“Notification” means a notification published by authority of the Local Government in the Panjab Government Gazette:

“Pre-eribed” means prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under this Act.

4. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification, declare its intention to apply this Act or any of its provisions to any town or group of towns in the territories under such Government.

(2) Every such notification shall define the limits of the town or group of towns to which it relates, and may include within those limits any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity of any such town:

Provided that it shall not, without the consent of the Governor General in Council, so include any military cantonment.

(3) A copy of every notification under this section, together with a translation of the same in the local vernacular, shall be affixed in some conspicuous place in the court-house of the district in which the town or group of towns to which it relates is situate, and in one or more conspicuous places in such town or group of towns; and the Deputy Commissioner shall certify to the Local Government the date on which the copy and translation aforeaid were so affixed. The date so certified shall be deemed to be the date of publication of the notification.

5. (1) If any inhabitant objects to the application of the Act, or of the provisions thereof specified in the notification, he may, within six weeks from the date of publication of the notification, submit his objection in writing through the Deputy Commissioner to the Local Government; and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the date of the said publication have expired, and the Local Government has considered and passed orders upon any such objections which may have been submitted to it, the Local Government may, by notification, declare such town or group of towns to be, for the purposes of this Act, a municipality of the first or second class, and apply this Act or the provisions thereof specified in the notification to such municipality.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

Bengal Act V
1876, s. 10;
Panjab Local
Self-government Bill, s.
7.]

6. The Local Government may, at any time, by notification, alter the limits of any municipality, or order that it be transferred from one class to another, or withdraw any local area to which this Act or any of its provisions may have been applied or extended from the operation of this Act or of the said provisions:

Provided that, when such notification applies this Act or any of its provisions to any local area not previously subject thereto, it shall not be published unless and until the provisions of section 4 and section 5, sub-section (1), have been complied with, and the period specified in section 5, sub-section (2), has expired, and all objections submitted to the Local Government have been disposed of as in that sub-section provided.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES.

Constitution of Committees.

Act IV of 1873, s. 6;
Panjab Local
Self-government Bill, ss. 3
and 6.]

7. (1) There shall be established by notification for each municipality a committee having authority over such municipality, and consisting of such number of members, not less than six, as the Local Government may direct.

(2) Such members may be appointed by the Local Government, either by name or by official designation, or may be elected from among the inhabitants in accordance with rules made under this Act, or some may be appointed and some elected as the Local Government may direct:

Provided that—

(1) when the Local Government has directed that all or any of the members shall be elected, they shall not be appointed by the Local Government unless—

- (a) the electors do not elect a sufficient number of members; or
- (b) a sufficient number of candidates do not present themselves for election; or
- (c) a majority of the electors declare that they so desire; or
- (d) by order of the Local Government, subject to the sanction of the Governor General in Council, for any other good and sufficient reason affecting the public interests:

(2) except with the approval of the Governor General in Council, not less than two-thirds of the members of every committee shall be persons other than salaried officers of Government unless such officers are elected as members.

ew.]

8. If the Local Government is satisfied that any candidate elected as member of committee has been guilty of corrupt practices at his election, the election of such candidate shall be cancelled.

N.W.P. Bill,
11;
Urban Act of 1871,
section 7.]

9. (1) Members of committee, except those who have been appointed by official designation, shall hold office for such term, not exceeding three years, as shall be fixed by the Local Government, or until their successors have been elected or appointed.

(2) When the Local Government has directed that the members of a committee or any of them shall be elected and shall hold office for a term of three years, one-third, as nearly as may be, of the members elected at the first election thereafter held shall vacate office at the end of one year, and one-third, as nearly as may be, at the end of two years from the date of assuming office.

(3) The members who shall vacate office at the end of the first and of the second year, respectively, shall be determined either by voluntary arrangement among the members or by lot:

Provided that, if an elected member be chairman of the committee, he shall not be required to vacate office as member by lot during his term of office as chairman.

(4) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be eligible for re-election or re-appointment.

10. (1) The Local Government may at any time remove any member of committee appointed by name or by his official designation. [Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 7, sub-section 1.]

(2) The Local Government may remove any member of committee chosen by election—

- (a) if such member refuses to act, or becomes, in the opinion of the Local Government, incapable of acting;
- (b) if he is declared an insolvent, or is proscribed from employment under Government, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a criminal Court to any such order as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member;
- (c) if his continuance in office is, in the opinion of the Local Government, dangerous to the public peace or order, or, when he is a salaried officer of Government, inconsistent with the proper discharge of his official functions;
- (d) if for three consecutive months he is absent from the meetings of the committee unless with its permission.

(3) Members removed under clauses (b) and (c) shall be disqualified for election unless with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

11. Any member of committee may signify to the Local Government in writing his intention or wish to resign his office; and, on such resignation being accepted by the Local Government, his office shall become vacant. [N.W.P. Bill, section 11, sub-section 1.]

12. (1) The Local Government may either empower committees to fill up casual vacancies among the members or, subject to the provisions of section 7, appoint members to fill such vacancies or cause them to be filled up by election. [Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 7, sub-section 4.]

(2) Every member of committee so chosen shall be deemed to be an elected member, and shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office; but shall, if otherwise qualified, be eligible for re-election. [N.W.P. Bill, section 11, sub-section 3.]

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

anjab Local Government
Bill, section 9; N.-W.
Bill, section
1.
Act of 1871, s.
1.
Act of 1873, s.
1.

13. Every committee shall be a body corporate by the name of the municipal committee of its municipality, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to rules from time to time made by the Local Government in this behalf, to transfer any property held by it, to invest any sums not required for current charges in Government securities or in any other form of security which may be approved of by the Local Government, and from time to time to dispose of such securities as may be necessary, and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

N.W.P. Bill,
section 1.

14. A committee shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification, appoint in this behalf.

Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

N.W.P. Bill,
sections 18 &
19.

15. (1) Every committee shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be chairman, and such member shall, after the election is approved by the Local Government, become chairman of the committee:

Provided that the committee, instead of electing, may apply to the Local Government to appoint a chairman from among its members, and that the Local Government may, by notification, exclude any committee from the operation of this clause; and that in either of these cases, or if no election is made within one month from the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of chairman, or if the person elected is not approved, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, appoint one of the members of the committee to be chairman.

(2) Every committee may also, from time to time, elect one or two of its members to be vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

16. (1) A chairman shall hold office for three years, and a vice-chairman shall hold office for such term as the committee may, by rule, determine.

Now.]

(2) A chairman or vice-chairman shall vacate office as such when he ceases to be a member of committee, or tenders in writing to the committee his resignation of his office as chairman or vice-chairman, or becomes, in the opinion of the Local Government, incapable of acting; and he may be removed from such office by the Local Government if moved to do so by resolution passed by two-thirds of the members present at a special meeting.

(3) Every resignation of office tendered under this section shall be reported, as soon as may be, to the Deputy Commissioner.

17. If a chairman or vice-chairman refuses to act, or vacates or is removed from his office as such, another chairman or vice-chairman shall be elected or appointed, as the case may be.

Notification of Elections, Appointments, &c.

18. All elections and appointments of members of committees and of chairmen of committees, and all determinations of the office of such members otherwise than by the expiration of their term of office, shall be notified in the Panjab Government Gazette. No such election or appointment shall take effect until it is so notified.

Conduct of Business.

19. At every meeting of committee the chairman, if present, shall preside. If the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and there is a vice-chairman, the vice-chairman, if present, shall preside. If neither chairman nor vice-chairman be present, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

20. (1) Every committee shall meet for the transaction of business, at least once in every month, at such time as may be fixed by its rules of business, and also at the time to which any such meeting may be adjourned under such rules:

Provided that, if there be no business to be laid before a committee at any monthly meeting, the chairman may give notice of the same to each member of committee three days before the time appointed for such meeting, and, when such notice is given, the meeting shall not be held.

(2) The chairman, or, in his absence, the vice-chairman, if any, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fourth of the members of the committee, convene a meeting at any other reasonable time.

21. (1) Meetings of committee shall be either ordinary or special.

(2) All business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting which is not required by this Act or by any rules made thereunder to be transacted at a special meeting.

22. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of committee shall be one-half of the members of committee for the time being.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of committee shall be such number of the members of committee, not less than three, as may from time to time be fixed by its rules of business.

(3) If at any meeting of committee a quorum is not present, the chairman, or in his absence the vice-chairman, may adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit. Notice of such adjourned meeting shall be given in the manner required by the rules of business, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before, and transacted at, the adjourned meeting, whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

Bill, 23. Except as otherwise provided by this Act ] Vote of majority de- or by rules made under this cise. Act, all questions which may committee shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present, the chairman of the meeting, in case of an equality of votes, having a second or casting vote.

Act 24. (1) Minutes of the proceedings at each 871, Record and publica- meeting of committee shall
N. tion of proceedings. be drawn up and recorded
Bill, in a book to be kept for the purpose, and shall be J signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next ensuing meeting, and shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct, and shall, at all reasonable times and without charge, be open to the inspection of any inhabitant who pays any tax under this Act.

(2) A copy of all such minutes shall, within three days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

Act 25. In case of emergency, the chairman of the 1, s. committee, or in his ab-ngal Exercise by chairman sence the vice-chairman, 876, or vice-chairman of shall exercise all powers 47.] powers of committee. vested in the committee by this Act or by any rules made thereunder, unless it is by this Act expressly declared that such power shall be exercised by the committee at a meeting :

Provided that the chairman or vice-chairman shall not act in opposition to, or in contravention of, any order of the committee at a meeting.

P. 26. (1) Every committee may, from time to tion Rules of business. time, at a special meeting, V of make rules consistent with tion this Act and with any rules made by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner in which notice of ordinary and special meetings and adjourned meetings shall be given;
- (c) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;
- (d) the conduct of proceedings at meetings and the adjournment of meetings;
- (e) the custody of the common seal and the purposes for which it shall be used;
- (f) the division of duties among the members of the committee;
- (g) the powers to be exercised by sub-committees or members to whom particular duties have been assigned;
- (h) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the committee for money paid under this Act;
- (i) the appointment, leave, suspension and removal of its officers and servants;
- (j) the term for which the vice-chairman shall hold office; and
- (k) all other similar matters.

(2) Every rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

Joint Committees.

27. (1) A committee may, from time to time, [N. W. P.
concur with any other local Bill, section Joint committees. authority in appointing, 24; Panjáb out of their respective bodies, a joint committee Local Self-go-for any purpose in which they are jointly interest- vernment Bill, ed, and in appointing a chairman of such joint section 86.]
committee, and in delegating to such joint committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the local authorities so concurring, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of such joint committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which such joint committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between [N. W. P.
local authorities acting under this section, it shall Bill, section be referred to— 24; Panjáb Local Self-government Bill,
section 45.]

(a) the Deputy Commissioner, if the local authorities are in the same district,

(b) the Commissioner of the division, if the local authorities are in different districts in the same division, or if they are in different divisions, the Commissioners of such divisions, when they can agree as to the decision of the case, and

(c) the Local Government, if the local authorities are in different divisions, and the Commissioners of such divisions cannot agree as to the decision of the case;

and when such reference is made, the decision thereupon of the Deputy Commissioner, Commissioner or Local Government shall be final.

Explanation.—In this section “local authority” means a municipal committee, district committee, local board or cantonment authority.

Officers and Servants.

28. (1) Every committee shall, from time to [N. W. P.
Appointment of se- time, at a special meeting, Bill, section cretary. cretary. appoint one or more of 33.]
its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person, to be its secretary, and may, at a like meeting, with the same sanction, remove any person so appointed.

(2) A member of committee appointed as secretary shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. When any other person is appointed to be secretary, the committee may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, assign to him such pay as it thinks fit.

29. (1) Subject to the other provisions of this [Panjáb Local Employment of other Act and to any rules Self-govern-officers and servants. made in this behalf, every ment Bill, sec-committee may employ and pay such other officers tion 46; N. W. and servants not being members of the committee P. Bill, section 84.]
as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of its duties:

Provided that if, at any time, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner,

(a) the number of persons employed by the committee, or the remuneration assigned to those persons, or to any of them, is excessive, or

(b) any such person is unfit for his employment, the committee shall, on the requirement of the Deputy Commissioner, reduce the number or

Panjáb Municipal Bill, 1883.
Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

remuneration of such persons, or, as the case may be, dismiss the unfit person.

(2) If the committee is dissatisfied with such requirement, it may appeal against it to the Commissioner of the division, whose decision shall be final.

Panjáb Local Self-government Bill, 1883, section 47 and Act I of 1883. 30. (1) In the case of Government officials, any committee may—

(a) if the services of such officials are wholly lent to it, contribute to their pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances in accordance with the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force; and

(b) if such officials devote only a part of their time to the performance of duties in behalf of the committee, contribute to their pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

(2) In the case of servants, not being Government officials, any committee may—

(1) grant leave-allowances, and, in the case of servants appointed before the passing of this Act and not entitled to pension, and of servants drawing less than ten rupees a month, gratuities to such servants; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

(a) subscribe in behalf of such servants for pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances under the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force;

(b) purchase from the Government or otherwise annuities for such servants on their retirement;

Provided that such pensions, gratuities, leave-allowances and annuities shall in no case exceed the sum to which, under the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force, such servants would be entitled if the service had been service under Government.

Contracts.

W. P. Bill, 1883, section 36. 31. (1) The committee of a municipality of the first class may delegate the first class may delegate Authority to contract. to one or more of its members the power of entering, on its behalf, into any contract whereof the value or amount does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) No contract whereof the value or amount exceeds two hundred rupees shall be executed until it has been sanctioned at a meeting of the committee.

W. P. Bill, 1883, section 36. 32. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a committee whereof the value or amount exceeds twenty rupees shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the chairman or vice-chairman and the secretary, if he is a member of committee, and, if the secretary is not a member of committee, by another member:

Provided that, when the power of entering into any contract on behalf of the committee has been delegated under the preceding section, the members so empowered may execute such contract.

(2) A transfer of immoveable property belonging to the committee must be made by an instrument in writing, executed by the chairman or vice-chairman, and by at least two other members of the committee.

(3) No contract or transfer executed otherwise than in conformity with the provisions of this section shall be binding on the committee:

Provided that this shall not affect any liability of the committee under section 70 of the Indian Contract Act to make compensation for any benefit received. IX of 1883

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

33. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a committee may, for the purposes of this Act, in the manner hereinafter provided, impose any of the following taxes, namely:—

(1) with the previous sanction of the Local Government—

(a) a tax on houses, buildings and lands, either

(i) not exceeding  $7\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the annual value thereof; or

(ii) not exceeding one anna per square yard; or

(iii) not exceeding three rupees per running foot of frontage in streets or bázárs;

(b) a tax on persons practising arts or professions or carrying on trades or callings in the municipality;

(c) a tax on vehicles, boats, animals used for riding, driving, draught or burden, and dogs, kept within the municipality;

(d) a tax on menial and domestic servants;

(e) an octroi on animals for slaughter and goods brought within the octroi limits for consumption or use therein; and

(2) with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, any other tax.

34. (1) To provide further funds for the following purposes, or any special objects. of them, namely:— [Act VII 1874, section 13.]

(a) the lighting of streets, roads and public thoroughfares;

(b) the supply, storage and preservation from pollution of water for drinking and cooking purposes;

(c) any special work approved by the Local Government for promoting the health, comfort or convenience of the inhabitants;

a committee may (subject to the rules or orders last aforesaid) in the manner hereinafter provided, and with the previous sanction of the Local

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

Government, impose, in addition to any taxes imposed under section 33, a tax on houses, buildings and lands, either

- (i) not exceeding  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the annual value thereof; or
- (ii) not exceeding 4 pies per square yard; or
- (iii) not exceeding one rupee per running foot of frontage in streets or bazárs.

(2) A separate account shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of every tax levied under this section.

Explanation.—In this and the last preceding section, “annual value” means the annual rent for which houses, buildings and lands liable to taxation may reasonably be expected to let:

Provided that—

(1) In municipalities where houses are usually let furnished, it shall not be necessary, in estimating the rental, to make any deduction on account of the furniture, unless the Local Government shall otherwise order:

(2) In the case of land assessed to the land-revenue or of which the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, if the Local Government shall so direct, the annual value shall be deemed to be double the land-revenue for the time being assessed on the land, whether such assessment is leviable or not; and, when the land-revenue has been wholly or in part compounded for or redeemed, double the amount which, but for such composition or redemption, would have been leviable; and also, when the improvement of the land due to canal irrigation has been excluded from account in assessing the land-revenue, double the amount of the owner's rate or water-advantage rate or other rate imposed in respect of such improvement.

35. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, or of such officer as the Local Government may authorize in this behalf, a committee may, from time to time, by resolution at a special meeting, impose and fix the rate of, or abolish, the following tolls and fees, namely:—

- (a) where no octroi is levied, a toll on vehicles and animals entering the municipality, and on boats moored therein;
- (b) fees on licenses to the proprietors or drivers of vehicles, boats or animals plying for hire within the limits of the municipality;
- (c) school-fees;
- (d) fees for the use of, or benefits derived from, hospitals, dispensaries, rest-houses, saráis, slaughter-houses, markets and other public institutions;
- (e) fees at fairs, agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions held within the municipality and under its control;
- (f) fees for notices of demand of any tax, toll or fee due under the Act;
- (g) fees for licenses to carry on offensive or dangerous trades;

(4) fees for permission to make any temporary erection, or for the temporary occupation of any street or other land vested in the committee.

36. (1) A committee may, at a special meeting, pass a resolution to propose the imposition of any tax under section 33 or section 31, or any toll under section 35 (a), within the whole or any part of the municipality for the purposes of this Act.

(2) When such resolution has been passed, the committee shall publish a notice, defining the class of persons or description of property proposed to be taxed, the amount or rate of the tax to be imposed and the system of assessment to be adopted.

(3) Any inhabitant objecting to the proposed tax may, within thirty days from the publication of the notice, submit his objection in writing to the committee, and the committee shall, at a special meeting, take such objection into consideration.

(4) If no such objection is received, or if such objection, having been considered as aforesaid, is deemed insufficient, the committee may forward its proposals to the Local Government, together with the objections (if any) which have been submitted as aforesaid, and with its decision thereupon.

(5) The Local Government, on receiving such proposals, may sanction the same, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the committee for further consideration.

(6) When the Local Government sanctions any such proposals which require the further sanction of the Governor General in Council, it shall submit the same to the Governor General in Council, together with the objections (if any) received through the committee; and the Governor General in Council may sanction the proposals, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the Local Government for further consideration.

(7) When the proposals of a committee have been sanctioned by the Local Government, or by the Local Government and the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, the committee may, at a special meeting, direct the imposition of the tax in accordance with such proposals. In giving such direction the committee shall fix a date, not less than one month after the meeting, from which the tax shall come into force:

Provided that no tax shall come into force until it has been notified in the Panjab Government Gazette, and such notification shall be conclusive evidence that it has been imposed in the manner provided by this section.

(8) The Local Government may, by notification, and the committee may, at a special meeting, with the sanction of the Local Government, abolish or reduce in amount any tax so imposed.

37. (1) A committee may at a meeting exempt, in whole or in part, from the payment of any tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, any person who by reason of poverty may be deemed to be unable to pay the same.

Madras Act of 1871, s. 1; Madras Act V of 1876, s. 1876.

Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 20.]

Madras Act II of 1871, sections 52 & 53.]

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

(2) The Local Government may, by notification, and the committee may, by resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Local Government, exempt from the payment of any tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, any person or class of persons or any description of property.

Act XV of 1873, section 9; Act VII of 1874, section 5; Bengal Act of 1876, section 369.] 33. No tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, and no proceedings of committee at any ordinary or special meeting, shall be invalid merely for defect of form; and it shall be enough in any such tax on property, or any assessment of value for the purpose of making such tax, if the property taxed or assessed be so described as to be generally known; and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

Madras Act III of 1871, s. 1.] 39. Any tax imposed under section 33, sub-section (1), clause (a), or under section 34, shall be payable. Tax on houses, buildings and lands when due and payable by the owner of the house, building and land, respectively, from and after the end of the first quarter of the year for which it is assessed.

Madras Act III of 1871, s. 13; Bengal Act V of 1876, s. 34. 40. The committee shall cause a valuation-list of all houses, buildings and lands on which such tax is imposed to be prepared, containing the name of the street or division in which such property is situate, the designation of the property, either by name or number, sufficient to identify the same, the name of the owner, or if the occupier, and not the owner, is the person liable to pay the tax, the name of the occupier, the annual value, area or length of frontage upon which the property is assessed, and the amount of the tax assessed thereon by the committee.

[Madras Act III of 1871, section 45.] 41. When the name of the owner or occupier is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him in the said list, and also in any notice or other proceeding under this Act, as the "owner" or the "occupier" of the property on which the tax is assessed, without further description.

[Madras Act III of 1871, section 46; Bengal Act V of 1876, section 103.] 42. When the valuation has been completed, the committee shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the list or copy thereof may be inspected, and every person claiming to be the owner or occupier of property included in the assessment, or the agent of such person, shall be at liberty to inspect the entries in such list or copy relating to such property, and to make extracts thereof without charge.

[Madras Act III of 1871, section 47.] 43. (1) The committee shall at the same time give public notice of a day and hour, not less than one month from the publication of such notice, when they will proceed to revise the said valuation and assessment; and in all cases in which any property is for the first time assessed, or the assessment is increased, shall give special notice thereof to the owners or occupiers of such property.

(2) All objections to such valuation and assessment shall be made at or before the time fixed in the notice.

Madras Act III of 1871, section 48.] 44. After the objections have been enquired into and the revision of the valuation and assessment has been completed, the amendments made in the list shall be authenticated by the signatures of not less than two members of the committee, who shall at the same time certify that no valid objection has been made to the valuation and assessment contained in the list, except in the cases in which amendments have been entered therein; and, subject to such amendments as may thereafter be duly made, the tax so assessed shall be deemed to be the tax for the whole year for which the assessment is made.

45. The committee may at any time amend the list by inserting the name of any person whose name ought to be inserted, or by inserting any property liable to the tax, or by altering the assessment on any property which has been insufficiently valued or assessed through mistake or fraud, or the value of which has been increased by the construction of any new building or by additions to or alterations in any building thereon, after giving notice to any person interested in such amendment of a day, not less than fifteen days from the date of service of such notice, on which the amendment is to be made;

and any person interested in such amendment may tender his objection to the committee by application in writing at or before the time fixed in the notice.

46. It shall not be necessary to prepare a new valuation-list every year; but the committee may adopt the valuation and assessment contained in the list for the preceding year, with such alterations as may in particular cases be deemed necessary, as the valuation and assessment for the year following, giving the same public notice of such valuation and assessment as if a new valuation-list had been prepared.

47. (1) When any sum is due for any tax leviable under section 33, sub-section (1), clause (a), or under section 34, the committee shall cause a bill for the amount, stating the property and the period for which the charge is made, to be presented to the person liable to pay the same.

(2) If the bill be not paid within ten days from the presentation thereof, the committee may cause a notice of demand to be served upon such person;

and if such person do not, within seven days from the service of such notice, pay the sum due, with any fee leviable for the notice, or show sufficient cause for non-payment of the same, the sum due, together with such fee, shall be deemed to be an arrear of tax.

48. If the sum due from the owner of the house, building or land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the committee may demand the amount from the occupier for the time being, and may proceed against him in all respects as if he were the owner; and if the amount is paid by, or recovered from, the occupier, he may deduct the amount so paid or recovered from the next and following payments of rent:

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

Provided that no arrear which has remained due from the owner for more than one year shall be so recovered from the occupier.

W. P. section
]

49. (1) Arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality, by the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within those limits.

Madras Act
of 1871,
section 79;
Municipal Act V
1876, sec-
154.]

(2) In case of non-payment of any octroi tax or of any toll on demand, the person empowered to collect the same may seize any goods on which such octroi is chargeable, or any conveyance, boat or animal on which such toll is chargeable or any part of its burden of sufficient value to satisfy the demand. The committee may cause any property so seized or so much thereof as is necessary to be sold by auction to satisfy such demand, together with the expenses occasioned by the seizure, custody and sale thereof, unless such demand and expenses are in the meantime paid, after the lapse of five days from the seizure, and after the issue of a proclamation fixing the time and place of sale, a copy of which shall be served upon the person entitled to the property at least 48 hours before the sale:

Provided that, by order of the chairman or vice-chairman, articles of a perishable nature which could not be kept for five days without serious risk of damage may be sold after the lapse of twenty-four hours.

r. Plow-
s draft
law, No.
.]

50. (1) Every person bringing within the octroi limits of any municipality articles liable to octroi tax, any articles upon which an octroi tax has been imposed shall, when required by any person authorized by the committee to assess the octroi tax chargeable, or to collect the tax assessed thereon, and so far as may be necessary for ascertaining the amount of tax chargeable,—

- (a) permit such person to inspect, examine, weigh and otherwise deal with such articles;
- (b) permit such person to separate taxable articles from articles not taxable;
- (c) communicate to such person any information and exhibit to him any document he may possess relating to such taxable articles.

r. Plow-
s draft
law, No.
.]

(2) Every person assessing octroi tax by the authority of the committee shall, on request by the person introducing taxable articles on which such tax is claimed, present him with a bill specifying the articles taxable, the amount claimed; and the rate at which the tax is calculated; and any person receiving payment of the whole or any part of the tax claimed shall on request receipt the said bill accordingly.

Madras Act
of 1871,
section 78.]

51. The collection of any octroi tax or toll may be leased by the committee, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, for any period not exceeding one year; and the lessee and all persons employed by him in the management and collection of such octroi tax or toll shall be bound by any rules made by the committee for their guidance, and shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same responsibilities, as if they were employed by the committee for the management and collection of such octroi tax or toll. Any dispute between the lessee and any person from whom such tax or toll is demanded shall be referred to the committee, whose decision thereupon shall be final.

52. (1) The committee may require the owners or occupiers of houses, buildings or lands to furnish them with returns for purposes of valuation. Returns for purposes of valuation. The committee or any person appointed by them for that purpose may, at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter, inspect and measure any such houses, buildings or lands, after having given 48 hours previous notice in writing to the occupiers thereof.

[Madras Act III of 1876, section 46.]

(2) The committee, or any person authorized by them in writing for that purpose, may also, at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter and inspect any stable, coach-house or other place wherein they may have reason to believe that there is any vehicle or animal liable to taxation under this Act, for which a license has not been duly taken out.

[Bengal Act III of 1872, section 72.]

53. No objection shall be taken to any valuation or assessment, nor shall the liability of any person to be assessed or taxed be questioned, in any other manner or by any other authority than in this Act is provided.

[Bengal Act III of 1866, section 107; Madras Act III of 1871, s. 8.]

54. For all sums paid on account of any tax under this Act, a receipt, stating the amount and the tax on account of which it is paid, shall be given by the person receiving the same, on request by the person making the payment.

[Bengal Act III of 1856, section 110.]

Appeals.

55. Appeals against any tax, toll or fee, other than octroi tax or fees under section 35, clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f), assessed or levied under this Act shall lie to the Deputy Commissioner, unless when he is a member of the committee, in which case the appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the division.

[Cf. Madras Act III of 1876, section 85.]

56. No appeal shall lie against any assessment on any house, land or building, unless it be preferred within one month after the confirmation of the assessment by the committee, and no appeal shall lie against any other tax, toll or fee, unless preferred within one month from the time of such tax, toll or fee being charged:

[Cf. Madras Act III of 1876, section 86.]

Provided that no appeal shall be entertained unless the amount of the assessment, tax, toll or fee to which it relates is deposited with the committee on or before the day on which the appeal is lodged.

57. No appeal shall lie against any assessment of octroi tax or the levy of any fee under section 35, clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f), but the decision of the committee on any objection thereto shall be final.

No appeal in certain cases.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

Municipal Fund.

N.W. P. Bill, section 2; Act IV of 1873, section 40.] 58. There shall be for each municipality a municipal fund constituted of which shall be placed all sums received by or on behalf of the committee and any balances standing at the credit of the municipality when this Act came into force.

N.W. P. Bill, section 43.] 59. (1) Where there is a Government treasury or sub-treasury, the municipal fund shall be kept in the treasury or sub-treasury, or in the bank, if any, to which the Government treasury business has been made over.

(2) In places where there is no such treasury or sub-treasury, or bank, the municipal fund may be deposited with any banker or person acting as a banker who has given such security for the safe custody of the fund and repayment thereof on demand as the Local Government may in each case think sufficient.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Police.

Act IV of 1873, section 2; Act VII of 1874, section 32.] 60. (1) Every committee shall, unless it is relieved of this obligation by the Local Government, make such provision for the maintenance of the establishment ordinarily employed on police-duty within the limits of the municipality as the Local Government may consider necessary.

(2) Subject, in case this Act is made applicable to any military cantonment, to the provisions of section 9 of the Cantonments Act, 1880, the establishment so entertained, whether enrolled under Act V of 1861 or not, shall be under the orders of the District Superintendent of Police, subject to the general control of the Magistrate of the district; and the watch and ward of the municipality, the prevention and suppression of nuisances therein, and the enforcement of the rules and orders of the committee shall be included among its duties.

61. (1) The Local Government may relieve any committee of the whole or part of the cost of such establishment, and may enter into an agreement with the committee that, as an equivalent for such relief for any term of years, the committee shall, during the same term, undertake any services within the municipality to which the municipal fund can properly be applied, and which are estimated to cost not more than the cost of the police-establishment of which the committee is so relieved. When a committee is relieved under this section of the whole or part of the cost of the police-establishment which it is required to maintain, the Local Government shall maintain such police-establishment as it considers necessary, and the establishment so maintained shall perform the same duties as if its cost were defrayed from the municipal funds.

(2) The Inspector General of Police may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, enter into an agreement with any committee, which is unable to provide the entire cost of the police-establishment which the Local Government considers necessary, that, on the committee making such payment as may be agreed upon, or undertaking any services within the municipality, approved by the Local Government, to which the municipal fund can properly be applied, and which are estimated to cost not more than the amount of such payment, he will provide a sufficient police-establishment for the service of the municipality.

(3) The Local Government or the committee may determine such agreement, after twelve months' notice of an intention to do so has been given by the Local Government to the committee or by the committee to the Inspector General of Police; and on the expiration of such notice the agreement shall cease to operate.

62. (1) Except in the case of any military cantonment to which this Act is made applicable, the establishment maintained under section 60 or section 61 shall be either part of the general police force enrolled under Act V of 1861 or a body of watchmen, as the Local Government may determine.

(2) When it is part of the general police force, the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Act V of 1861 or in any other Act for the time being in force, define the duties which the officers and men of the establishment may or may not be required to perform.

(3) When it is a body of watchmen, it shall be of such strength and the persons of whom it consists shall be of such grades, and shall receive such rates of pay, as the Local Government shall fix, and they shall possess such powers, perform such duties, enjoy such protection, be subject to such responsibilities and be liable to such penalties as Police-officers enrolled under Act V of 1861 possess, perform, enjoy and are subject and liable to.

(4) Police-officers enrolled under Act V of 1861 may be appointed to command such body of watchmen when the Local Government thinks fit.

63. (1) Every person shall be bound to render to any municipal watchman, or officer of such watchmen, when discharging the duties of a Police-officer all the assistance which he is bound to render to a Police-officer.

(2) Any person obstructing such watchman or officer in the discharge of such duties may be arrested without warrant by a Police-officer or by any person belonging to such body of watchmen.

64. The appointment, promotion, suspension and punishment of municipal watchmen and officers of such watchmen shall rest with the District Superintendent of Police, subject to the general control of the Magistrate of the district.

65. When a committee imposes fees under section 35, clauses (d), and (e), for the use of sarais, markets, and other public institutions for which special police-pro-

Panjáb Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

and by persons hired to carry loads within the limits of the municipality;

- (c) to secure a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths, and to provide for the taking of a census;
- (d) to provide for the inspection and proper regulation of lodging-houses, markets and slaughter-houses, burial and burning places;
- (e) to provide for the supervision and regulation of public wells, tanks, springs or other sources from which water is or may be made available for public use;
- (f) to regulate all matters connected with conservancy;
- (g) to regulate for sanitary reasons the crops which may be grown in any place within the limits of the municipality;
- (h) where the collection of an octroi tax has been sanctioned, to fix octroi limits for the purpose of collecting that tax; and
- (i) generally to carry out the purposes of this Act:

XIV of 1879. Provided that the committee of a municipality in which the Hackney Carriage Act, 1879, is in force shall not make rules in respect to any vehicles to which that Act applies.

[New.]

72. (1) In the case of municipalities in mountainous and sub-mountainous tracts, the committee may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules for the maintenance of a water-supply in streams and springs, for the preservation of the soil on the ridges and slopes of the hills and in the valleys, for the prevention of landslips and of the formation of ravines and torrents, and for the protection of land from erosion or the deposit thereon of sand, gravel or stones; and may prohibit all persons from doing any acts the prohibition of which it may consider necessary for these purposes.

Examples.—Cutting down forest trees on private grounds, unless with the previous sanction of the committee, and quarrying or making excavations in such grounds unless with the like sanction, may be prohibited by rules made under this section.

(2) The committee of a municipality in a mountainous tract may also make rules for the regulation of traffic in the streets.

[N.-W. P. Bill, section 54, sub-section (2); Act IV of 1873, section 21.]

73. (1) In making any rule under section 67, section 71 or section 72, a committee may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing one, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

[N.-W. P. Bill, section 54, sub-section (3); Act IV of 1873, section 15.]

(2) No rule made under section 67, section 71 or section 72 shall come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

Special Provisions.

74. (1) The owner or occupier of every place within the municipality used for any of the following purposes, namely:—

Regulation of offensive and dangerous trades. melting tallow; boiling offal or blood; or as a soap-house, oil-boiling house, dyeing house or tannery; or as a brick-pottery or lime-kiln; or other manufactory, or place of business from which offensive or unwholesome smells arise;

or as a yard or depôt for hay, straw, thatching-grass, wood or coal, or other dangerously inflammable material; or as a store-house for kerosine, petroleum, naphtha, or any inflammable oil, spirit or explosive substance;

or as a manufactory of gunpowder or fireworks;

or as a shop for smoking opium or any preparation of opium;

shall register the same in a book to be kept by the committee for the purpose.

(2) No place shall be newly used for any of the said purposes except under a license from the committee, which shall be renewable annually.

(3) Such license shall not be withheld unless the committee considers that the business which it is intended to establish or maintain would be offensive or dangerous to persons residing in, or frequenting, the immediate neighbourhood.

(4) The committee may impose such conditions in respect of such license as it may think necessary.

(5) Whoever, without such registration or without a license, uses any place for any such purpose shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding ten rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

75. If it be shewn to the satisfaction of the committee, at a meeting, that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, or likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, they may, by written notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place, or to use it in such manner as will, in the opinion of the committee, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

(2) Whoever disobeys the direction of such notice shall be liable to a fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding forty rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

(3) Nothing in this or the preceding section shall affect the power of the committee to proceed under sections 67, 68 and 69 of this Act, in respect to any place used for any of the purposes mentioned in section 74.

76. (1) No burial or burning ground, whether public or private, shall be made or formed, after the passing of this Act, without the sanction in writing of the committee.

(2) The committee may, by notice published in such manner as may be prescribed, order the closing of burial and burning places.

[Madras III of sections to 131; gal Act 1876, sec 285 and

[Ben of 1 trades. that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, or likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, they may, by written notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place, or to use it in such manner as will, in the opinion of the committee, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

[Ben of 1 trades. that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, or likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, they may, by written notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place, or to use it in such manner as will, in the opinion of the committee, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

[Ben of 1 trades. that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, or likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, they may, by written notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place, or to use it in such manner as will, in the opinion of the committee, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

(2) Whoever disobeys the direction of such notice shall be liable to a fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding forty rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

(3) Nothing in this or the preceding section shall affect the power of the committee to proceed under sections 67, 68 and 69 of this Act, in respect to any place used for any of the purposes mentioned in section 74.

76. (1) No burial or burning ground, whether public or private, shall be made or formed, after the passing of this Act, without the sanction in writing of the committee.

(2) The committee may, by notice published in such manner as may be prescribed, order the closing of burial and burning places.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

any burial or burning ground which is, in its opinion, dangerous to the health of persons living in the vicinity thereof to be closed, from a date to be specified in the notice, and shall, in such case, if no suitable place for burial or burning exists within a reasonable distance, provide a fitting place for the purpose.

(3) Private burial-places in such burial-grounds may be excepted from such notice, subject to such conditions as the committee may impose in this behalf:

Provided that the limits of such burial-places are sufficiently defined, and that they shall only be used for the burial of members of the family of the owner thereof.

(4) Whoever shall bury or burn, or cause or permit to be buried or burnt, any corpse in any burial or burning ground made or formed contrary to the provisions of this section, or after the date fixed thereunder for closing the same, shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each offence.

77. When any order is made under section 75 or section 76 by any committee, any person aggrieved thereby may appeal within 30 days from the date thereof to the Commissioner when the municipality is of the first class, or to the Deputy Commissioner when the municipality is of the second class; and the order of the appellate authority confirming, setting aside or modifying such order shall be final; and no such order shall be liable to be called in question otherwise than by such appeal.

Provided that such order shall not be modified or set aside until the appellant and the committee have had reasonable opportunity of being heard.

78. The committee may, with the approval of the Deputy Commissioner, fix places for the slaughter of animals, or of any specified description of animals for sale; and when such place has been fixed, no person shall slaughter any such animal for sale within the municipality at any other place; and whoever slaughters any such animal for sale at any other place shall be liable to a fine which may extend to twenty rupees for each offence.

79. The committee may set apart suitable places for the purpose of bathing, and may specify the times at which, and the sex of the persons by whom, such places may be used, and may also set apart suitable places for washing animals or clothes, or for any other purpose connected with the health, cleanliness or comfort of the inhabitants; and may, by rule made under section 71, prohibit bathing in any public place not so set apart, or at times or by persons other than those so specified, and all other acts not so permitted, by which water in public places may be rendered foul or unfit for use.

80. When any building, or any part thereof, which projects beyond the regular line of a public street, or beyond the front of the buildings on either side thereof, has fallen down or been taken down in order to be rebuilt or altered, the committee may, by written notice, require the same, when being rebuilt, to be set back to or towards the line of the street or the front of the adjoining buildings; and the land so added to the street shall become part of the public street:

Provided that the committee shall make full compensation to the owner of such building for any damage he may thereby sustain; and, if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, it shall be settled in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, X of 1870 sections 3, 8 to 42, 51 to 53 and 56 to 59, so far as they can be made applicable.

81. (1) Every person intending to erect or re-erect any building within the limits of the municipality shall, if required by rules made under section 71, give notice in writing to the committee, and shall, if required to do so, furnish a plan shewing the levels at which the foundation and lowest floor are proposed to be laid, and the elevation and specifications of the works intended to be constructed, and the materials to be used, and shall obey all written directions given by the committee within one month after receiving such notice, either prohibiting such erection or re-erection, if deemed likely to be injurious to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, or in respect to all or any of the matters following, namely, (1) free passage or way in front thereof; (2) space to be left about the same to secure free circulation of air and facilitate scavenging; (3) ventilation and drainage; (4) level and width of foundation and stability of structure; and (5) the regularity of the elevation and the line of frontage with neighbouring buildings, if the building abuts on a street or public thoroughfare.

(2) If such building be begun or erected without giving notice, or without furnishing particulars as aforesaid when required, or in contravention of the legal orders of the committee issued within one month, the committee may require it to be altered or demolished, as they may deem necessary, by written notice fixing a time within which the requisition must be complied with.

Explanation.—The expression “erect any buildings” includes all additions or alterations which involve new foundations or increased superstructure on existing foundations.

82. (1) The committee may, by written notice fixing a time within which the requisition must be complied with, require the owner or occupier of any house to remove or alter any projection, encroachment or obstruction erected or placed against, or in front of, such house, if the same overhangs or juts into or encroaches upon any public street, or projects into or encroaches upon any drain, aqueduct or sewer in such street:

Provided that, if such projection, encroachment or obstruction were lawfully made before the passing of this Act, the committee shall make reasonable compensation to any person who suffers damage by such removal or alteration; and, if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, it shall be settled in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, X of 1870 sections 3, 8 to 42, 51 to 53 and 56 to 59, so far as they can be made applicable.

(2) The committee may give written permission to the owners or occupiers of houses in public

[Bombay VI of 18 sections 34; Bengal Act V of 18 sections to 263; Plowden draft re XXV.]

[Bombay VI of 18 section 42]

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter V.—Control.)

streets to put up open verandahs, balconies or rooms projecting from any upper storey thereof, to an extent not exceeding four feet beyond the line of the plinth or basement wall.

[Bombay Act
VI of 1873,
section 75.]

83. In the event of non-compliance with the terms of any notice under either of the last two preceding sections, the committee may take such steps as may be necessary to carry out the requisition therein made; and the expenses incurred by them in so doing shall be paid by the person on whom the notice was served.

[Bengal Act V
of 1876, section 232;
Madras Act
III of 1871,
sections 145 &
146;
Bombay Act
VI of 1873,
section 45.]

84. (1) The committee at a meeting may cause a name to be given to any street, and to be affixed in such place as they may think fit, and may also cause a number to be affixed to every house; and in like manner may, from time to time, cause such names and numbers to be altered.

(2) Whoever destroys, pulls down or defaces such name or number, or puts up any different name from that put up by order of the committee, shall be liable to a fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

[Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 121;
Bombay Act
VI of 1873,
sections
and 78.]

85. (1) Whenever, under the provisions of this Act, or of any rules made thereunder, the committee requires any work to be executed, and such work is executed by the occupier of any house or land, or by the committee at his expense, the occupier, if the owner is the person by whom such work ought to have been executed, may deduct the cost thereof from the next and following payments of rent due or becoming due to the owner, or may recover it from the owner by suit.

(2) If such work is executed by the committee and the expense is not paid on demand by the occupier or owner, the committee may recover the expense by suit from the person by whom the work ought to have been executed, or by distraint of the moveable property of the occupier, who, if the owner is the person by whom the work ought to have been executed, may deduct the amount so recovered from the next and following payments of rent, or may recover it from the owner by suit:

Provided that, if the expense does not exceed Rs. 20, it may be recovered in the manner provided by the first clause of section 49 for the recovery of arrears of any tax under this Act.

[Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 164.]

86. (1) Every notice issued by the committee under this Act, or under any rule made thereunder, shall be served on the person to whom it is addressed, or left at his usual place of abode or business with some adult male member or servant of his family, or, if it cannot be so served, shall be posted on some conspicuous part of his place of abode or business.

[Bengal Act
V of 1876,
sections
& 308.]

(2) If the place of abode or business of the owner be not within the limits of the municipality, every such notice addressed to him shall be sent by registered cover addressed to his usual place of abode.

(3) If the place of abode or business of the owner be not known, every such notice addressed to him may be served upon the occupier.

87. The committee may make compensation out of the municipal fund to any person sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers vested in the committee, its officers and servants, under this Act.

88. The proceeds of all fines imposed under this chapter, or under section 34 of Act V of 1861, on account of nuisances committed within the municipal limits shall be credited to the municipal fund.

89. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification, empower any member of committee or officer in the service of a municipality by name, or any sub-committee appointed by the committee in this behalf, to summon any person accused of any offence created by clause (a) of section 67.

(2) The member of committee or officer or sub-committee so empowered shall have the power of a Magistrate under the Criminal Procedure Code in regard to the issue of summons to persons accused of such offences, and may issue a summons returnable to the Magistrate by whom charges of such offences would ordinarily be tried, giving notice to the Magistrate of the issue of the same.

(3) If it appears to such member of committee or officer or sub-committee that the person so summoned has committed any such offence, he may give such person the option of compounding for the offence by payment of a specified sum of money not exceeding one rupee:

Provided that, when the offence is a continuing one, no such composition shall be accepted unless the offence is first discontinued.

(4) If such person elect to pay the sum of money in consideration of which he is allowed to compound, and pay the same to such member of committee or officer or sub-committee, no further proceedings shall be taken against him for the offence which has been so compounded.

(5) Such member of committee or officer or sub-committee shall keep a book in which he or it shall enter at the time all cases of persons against whom he or it takes action under this section, with the nature of the offence charged, and, should such person appear to him or it to have committed any such offence, the nature of the offence committed, and, if he is allowed to compound for such offence and elects to do so, the sum demanded by way of composition, and the sum received.

(6) All sums received by way of composition under this section shall be paid, as soon as conveniently may be, to the credit of the municipal fund.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

90. (1) The Commissioner of the division or the Deputy Commissioner of the district (not being a member of the committee) may—

(a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immovable property within the limits of the division or district,

Panjáb Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter V.—Control.)

respectively, occupied by any committee or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under its direction;

(b) by order in writing call for and inspect any book or document in the possession or under the control of any committee or joint committee having authority within the said limits;

(c) by order in writing require such committee or joint committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to the proceedings or duties of the committee as he may think fit to call for; and

(d) record in writing, for the consideration of such committee or joint committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the committee.

(2) Every committee shall regularly submit copies of all its proceedings to the Deputy Commissioner, and shall further submit such periodical reports to the Deputy Commissioner or other authority as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

W.P. Bill,
tion 56;
ujáb Local
self-government Bill, section 51.]

91. The Commissioner of the division or the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, by order in writing, suspend, within the division or district respectively, the execution of any resolution or order of the committee or joint committee, or prohibit the doing of any act within the said limits which is about to be done, or is being done, in pursuance of or under cover of this Act, if, in his opinion, the resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to lead to a breach of the peace, or to cause injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

J.W.P. Bill,
tion 57;
ujáb Local
self-government Bill, section 52; Act I
of 1883, section 30.]

92. (1) In cases of emergency, the Deputy Commissioner may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a committee is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or of doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the committee.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Deputy Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is, from time to time, possible, from that balance, in priority to all other charges against the same.

Panjáb Local
self-government Bill, sec-
tion 53.]

93. (1) When the Commissioner, after due enquiry, is satisfied that a committee of the first class has made default in performing any duty imposed upon it by or under this Act, he may, by an order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty; and, if it is not performed within the period so fixed, he may appoint some person to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it shall be paid, within such time as he may fix, by the committee to such person.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is, from time to time, possible, from that balance, in priority to all other charges against the same.

(3) The Deputy Commissioner shall have the same powers with respect to committees of the second class as are by this section conferred upon the Commissioner with respect to committees of the first class.

94. When a Deputy Commissioner makes any order under section 91, section 92 or section 93, he shall forthwith forward to the Local Government through the Commissioner a copy thereof, with a statement of the reasons for making it; and when the Commissioner makes any order under section 91 or section 93, he shall forthwith forward to the Local Government a copy thereof, with a statement of the reasons for making it and with any explanation which the committee may wish to record.

95. (1) It shall be the duty of the Local Government and of all Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners acting under its orders to require that the proceedings of committees shall be in conformity with law and with the rules in force thereunder; and the Local Government may exercise all powers necessary for this purpose, and may, amongst other things, by order in writing, annul or modify any such proceeding which it shall consider not to be in conformity with law and with the said rules.

(2) The Commissioner of the division and the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, within their jurisdiction for the same purpose, exercise such powers as may be, from time to time, conferred upon them by rule made in this behalf by the Local Government.

96. (1) If a committee is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by notification, in which the reasons for so doing shall be stated, declare the committee to be superseded:

Provided that, in case of public emergency, such notification may be issued without the previous approval of the Governor General in Council.

(2) When a committee is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue:—

(a) All members of the committee shall, from the date of the notification, vacate their offices as such members:

(b) All powers and duties of the committee may, until the committee is reconstituted, be exercised and performed by such person as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf:

(c) All property vested in the committee shall, until the committee is reconstituted, vest in Her Majesty.

[Panjáb Local
Self-government Bill,
tion 54.]

[Panjáb Local
Self-government Bill,
tion 49,
part of 5]

[N. V.
Bill, section 59;
Local government
Bill, section 55 to 57]

*Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter VI.—Miscellaneous.)*

(3) The Local Government shall, as soon as, in its judgment, conveniently may be, constitute another committee in the place of any committee superseded under this section.

[N. W. P. Bill, section 60; British Burma Bill, section 8.]

97. The Local Government may frame forms for any proceeding of a committee for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

- (a) with respect to the powers and duties of committees in municipalities of the first and of the second class respectively ;
- (b) as to the division of the municipality into wards, or of the inhabitants into classes or both ;
- (c) as to the number of representatives proper for each ward or class ;
- (d) as to the qualifications of electors and of candidates for election ;
- (e) as to the registration of electors ;
- (f) as to the nomination of candidates, the time of election and the mode of recording votes ; and
- (g) generally for regulating all elections under this Act ;
- (h) for the remission of tax on houses unoccupied for the whole or part of the year, and the notice to be given of a house being unoccupied by persons desiring such remission ;
- (i) as to the arts, professions, trades and callings liable to be taxed in any municipality, the registration and classification of persons engaged therein, the rates at which they may be taxed, the preparation of lists of persons to be taxed, and the penalty to which they shall be liable for practising or trading without payment of the tax ;
- (j) as to the statements of vehicles and animals liable to taxation under this Act to be furnished by the owners or persons in charge of them, the rates at which they may be taxed, the issue of licenses for them on payment of tax, and the penalty for keeping them without a license ;
- (k) as to the classes of menial and domestic servants liable to taxation in any municipality, the rate at which they may be taxed, the returns of such servants to be furnished by the masters, and the time when the masters shall pay the tax imposed in respect of such servants ;
- (l) as to the exhibition of tables of octroi tax, the system under which refunds shall be made on account of that tax when the goods on which the tax was paid are again exported, and the storage of goods declared not to be intended for consumption or use within the municipality into which they are brought ;
- (m) as to the rates of toll chargeable on vehicles or animals entering the municipality, or boats moored therein, the exhibition of tables shewing such rates, the exemptions to be made, and the terms on which residents outside municipal limits may compound for such tolls ; and

- (n) generally as to the assessment and collection of taxes imposed under this Act ;
- (o) as to the authority on which money may be paid from the municipal fund ;
- (p) as to the conditions on which property vested in the committee may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise ;
- (q) as to the intermediate office or offices, if any, through which correspondence between committees or members of committees and the Local Government or officers of that Government shall pass ;
- (r) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of committees, and as to the person by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned ;
- (s) as to the accounts to be kept by committees, as to the conditions on which such accounts shall be open to inspection by inhabitants paying any tax under the Act, as to the manner in which such accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge ;
- (t) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure of committees, and as to the person by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned ;
- (u) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by committees ;
- (v) as to the powers to be exercised by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners under section 95 ;
- (w) as to the language in which business shall be transacted ; and
- (x) for the guidance of committees acting under sections 26, 29, 67, 73 and 76, and generally for the guidance of committees and public officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

98. If any member or servant of a committee is directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with the committee, he shall be thereby become incapable of continuing in office or in employment as such member or servant, and shall be liable to a fine which may extend to five hundred rupees :

Provided that no person shall, by reason of being a shareholder in, or member of, any incorporated or registered company, be held to be interested in any contract entered into between such company and the committee.

Panjāb Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter VII.—Supplemental and Temporary Provisions.)

is clause
mitted in XV of having red in
IV & XI
73. It was red in Act of 1871.]
in j a b
1 Selfrment
section
Madras Act of 1871, on 168;
by Act
of 1873,
on 86;
Civil
dure
section

Nevertheless, it shall not be lawful for such shareholder or member to act as a member of the committee in any matter relating to such contract.

99. (1) No suit for compensation for anything done or purporting to be done, or for the omission of anything which ought to have been done, under this Act shall be brought against a committee, or any of its officers, or any person acting under its direction, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of the committee or at the place of abode of such person, stating the circumstances constituting the cause of action and the name or place of abode of the intending plaintiff; and the plaint must contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left.

Suits against committees or their officers.

(2) Every such suit shall be commenced within six months next after the accrual of the right to sue, and not afterwards.

(3) And if any person to whom any such notice of suit is given shall, before suit brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover more than the amount so tendered, and shall pay all costs incurred by the defendant after such tender.

100. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the committee, to which he has been a party, or which happens through, or is facilitated by, the neglect of his duty as member of committee; and he shall be liable to be sued for compensation for the same, in such Court as the Local Government directs, by the committee with the sanction of the Commissioner or by the Local Government.

101. (1) Prosecutions under this Act for the infringement of rules may be instituted by the committee or by any person authorized by it in this behalf and not otherwise.

(2) A member of committee under this Act shall be deemed to be a municipal commissioner within the meaning of section 555, Criminal Procedure Code.

102. Where any land, whether within or without the limits of a municipality, is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the committee, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the committee of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of any other charges incurred in acquiring the land, the land shall vest in the committee.

103. (1) The authority empowered to make rules under section 7, section 67, section 71, section 72 or section 97 shall, before making them, publish, in such number as may, in its opinion, be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, together with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or any suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) If, on such consideration of the draft, any modification is made, the Local Government shall determine whether it is necessary to republish the draft under this section.

(3) Every rule made under any of the said sections shall be published in the Panjāb Government Gazette in English, and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by this section.

104. All powers conferred by this Act on the Governor General in Council and of Local Government exercisable from time to time may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPPLEMENTAL AND TEMPORARY PROVISIONS.

105. (1) When a notification is issued under section 6 in respect of the whole area subject to the authority of a committee, withdrawing that area from the operation of this Act, all property which, at the time of the issue of the notification, is vested in the committee, shall vest in the Local Government, and be applied by it, in such manner as it thinks fit, for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants.

(2) When a notification is issued under section 6 in respect of a part of the area under the authority of a committee, withdrawing that part from the operation of this Act, such part of the property vested in the committee as the Commissioner of the division may determine shall vest in the Local Government and be applied as aforesaid.

106. (1) If the circumstances of any municipality are such that, in the opinion of the Local Government, any of the provisions of this Act are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification, except the municipality from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to the excepted municipality until again applied thereto by a like notification.

(2) While such exception remains in force, the Local Government may make rules for the guidance of the committee and public officers in respect of the matters excepted from the operation of the said provisions.

107. Nothing in or done under this Act shall prejudicially affect the rights of any officer or servant of a committee appointed before the passing of the Act as to tenure of office, salary or pension.

108. In all matters connected with this Act, the Local Government shall have and exercise over Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, and Commissioners shall have and exercise over Deputy Commissioners, the same authority and control as they respectively have and exercise over them in the general and revenue administration.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law at present applicable to municipalities in the Panjáb is contained in Act IV of 1873.

2. Except in a few of the larger municipalities, all the members of the municipal committees constituted under that Act have hitherto been nominated; but, for the reasons stated in Panjáb Government Resolution No. 1777, dated 7th September, 1882, it is thought desirable to give the committees a more representative character than they have hitherto had, and for this purpose it is proposed that, unless where special reasons exist against resorting to a system of election, a portion at least of the members of each committee should be chosen by the inhabitants of the municipality.

3. It is further believed that greater powers of initiating action and of controlling the administration and expenditure of their funds for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality may with advantage be given to committees than, except in a few of the more important municipalities, they possess under existing rules, if sufficient powers of control are reserved to prevent the interests of the public from being endangered by neglect, abuse of powers or mistake as to the extent of their powers, on the part of the municipal bodies.

4. It would be possible to carry out the measures necessary for these purposes by rules under the existing Act, but the amendment of the Act appears to be a more suitable mode of giving effect to the proposals of the Local Government, and this course has therefore been preferred.

5. It has also for a considerable time past been known that Act IV of 1873 is very defective in omitting to provide for many of the powers with which it is usually considered desirable to invest municipal bodies and their servants, some of which were expressly given by the later Acts, XV of 1873 and VII of 1874, passed for the North-Western Provinces and British Burma respectively; and serious doubts have arisen as to the validity of some of the bye-laws framed to carry out and supplement its provisions, and as to the authority of municipalities to take action which it is important for the public interest that they should have the power to take. The opportunity has therefore been taken to redraft the entire Act, after referring to the corresponding Acts in force in other parts of India, with a view to remove the defects which have been brought to light by experience of its working for upwards of ten years.

6. The draft is divided into seven chapters nearly corresponding with those of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Bill, but it differs from that Bill in not proposing to treat the new committees as different bodies from the committees now in existence, and it also enters into greater detail in the chapters on the subjects of taxation and of the powers and duties of committees. In some other respects its provisions are necessarily different, being framed with reference to the peculiar circumstances of the Panjáb, and therefore corresponding more or less closely with those of the Panjáb Local Self-government Bill.

7. The preliminary chapter provides for the repeal of Act IV of 1873, and for the procedure to be adopted when it is proposed to establish a new municipality, to alter the limits of an existing municipality, or to withdraw any local area from the operation of the Act. It also provides for the division of municipalities into two classes, it being considered unnecessary to retain the third class committees, the orders and proceedings of which, under the rules now in force, are subject to the confirmation of the Deputy Commissioner before they can take effect. The power given by section 6 to withdraw any local area from the operation of the Act is required to meet cases in which petty municipalities have been established in places where experience has shown that municipal institutions cannot be continued with advantage, or that a sufficient municipal income cannot be raised without having recourse to forms of taxation which would either be extremely unpopular or would not meet with the approval of Government. The third class committees, where it is not necessary to abolish them for reasons of this nature, can be transferred to the second class.

8. Chapter II relates to the organization of committees. The provisions of section 7, as to the appointment or election of the members, are similar to those of the Local Self-government Bill, and, as in that Bill, the circumstances under which election, when once introduced, may be departed from are defined as far as possible. While the existing Act requires only two-fifths of the members to be other than salaried officers of Government, the Bill raises the proportion to two-thirds unless when such officers are elected as members.

9. The term of office, except in the case of members appointed ex officio, is to be fixed by the Local Government, but not to exceed three years, and, when this term is adopted, provision is made for the members retiring by rotation.

10. The provisions as to the removal of members are, with slight variations, the same as those contained in the Local Self-government Bill. The incorporation of committees and the control of transfers of property made by them and of investments by them of money in the public funds are also similarly provided for.

11. Section 15 provides for the election of the chairman by the committee, subject to the approval of the Local Government, unless where Government otherwise orders, but enables the committee, instead of electing, to apply to the Local Government to appoint a chairman from among its members. Vice-chairmen will also be elected when necessary. The term of office of the chairman is fixed by section 16 at three years, if he so long continues to be a member of the committee, but power is given to the Local Government to remove him, if moved to do so by two-thirds of the members of committee present at a special meeting.

12. Sections 19 to 26 deal with the conduct of business and the framing of rules of business. Section 25, following the precedent of the Madras and Bengal Acts, enable the chairman, or, in his absence, the vice-chairman, in cases of emergency, to exercise all powers of the committee which the Act does not require to be exercised by the committee at a meeting.

13. Section 27 provides for the appointment of joint committees when co-operation between different committees is necessary, as in the Panjáb Local Self-government Bill.

14. Sections 28 to 30 relate to the officers and servants to be employed by committees. Of these, only section 28, which deals with the appointment of a secretary, has no corresponding provision in the Panjáb Local Self-government Bill. When a paid secretary is appointed, his appointment, removal, and salary are made subject to the sanction of the Commissioner, with a view to secure the appointment of a competent man to this important office, and to supply the guarantee against arbitrary dismissal, without which it might be difficult to get a competent man to accept office. The power of control in regard to other appointments, given by section 29 to the Deputy Commissioner, has been made applicable to all committees at the suggestion of the Delhi municipal committee, which considered such a check desirable in all cases.

15. Chapter III, on the subject of taxation and the municipal fund, is much fuller than the provisions of the existing Act upon the same subject. Section 7 of Act IV of 1873, which relates to the imposition of taxes, contains no description of the taxes which may be imposed. Section 33 now specifies the taxes which may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, be imposed for general purposes, and authorizes the imposition of other taxes, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; section 34 provides for additional taxes on property, when necessary for special objects, such as the improvement of the water-supply; and section 35 describes the tolls and fees which the committee may be empowered to levy; while section 36 prescribes the procedure to be followed in imposing taxes; and section 37 provides for exemptions. Some of the taxes specified, such as a tax on professions and tolls on vehicles and animals, are not at present levied in any municipality in the province; but it has been considered desirable to include them, as it may, in some cases, be necessary to find a substitute for octroi, which forms the chief source of income in almost all Panjáb municipalities, and these taxes have been resorted to for this purpose in other provinces. In the case of tolls, it is expressly provided that they may be imposed only where no octroi is levied. Other taxes are at present sanctioned for particular municipalities such as Simla, and it has therefore been necessary to include them, without reference to whether they are suitable for adoption in other cases.

16. Section 8, Act IV of 1873, prohibits the collection of taxes until the assessment has been confirmed as prescribed by rules made by the Local Government. This provision, which, however appropriate in the case of direct taxes, is clearly inapplicable to indirect taxes like the octroi, has been omitted from the present Bill, but sections 39 to 48 lay down rules for the assessment, confirmation and collection of taxes on immoveable property; and sections 49 and 50 provide for the collection of the octroi tax; while section 97 empowers the Local Government to make rules as to the assessment and collection of other taxes.

17. Section 51 gives a power to lease octroi and tolls, which is believed not to exist under the present Act, but which is likely to be found useful in some case.

18. Section 52 enables the committee to call for returns and to enter premises in order to obtain such information as they may require for purposes of taxation.

19. Appeals against taxes or assessments are provided for by sections 55 to 57.

20. Under section 9 of Act IV of 1873, municipal taxes may be collected as if they were arrears of land-revenue. It is not proposed to maintain this rule now that committees are about to be placed in a more independent position than hitherto, and it is not well adapted to indirect taxes like the octroi. Power is, therefore, given by section 49 to seize any articles on which any octroi, tax or toll is chargeable in default of payment, and to recover arrears of taxes generally by distress and sale under the orders of a Magistrate.

21. Chapter IV deals with the subject of the powers and duties of committees, and is also much more in detail than the corresponding sections of Act IV of 1873.

22. Sections 60 to 65 relate to the municipal police. It is necessary to maintain the liability of the municipal fund for the charges of the establishment ordinarily employed on police-duty within municipal limits, as, when the Local Government takes over such charges, this will usually be done in consideration of the committee agreeing to undertake services within the municipality to which the municipal fund can properly be applied, the cost of which has hitherto been borne by Government, and such agreements may be for a limited period and have to be renewed from time to time. Section 61 provides for agreements of this nature.

23. The police-establishment may consist either of a part of the general police force or of a body of watchmen, as the Local Government thinks fit; and section 62 enables the Local Government to regulate its duties in either case, and, where it is a body of watchmen, to fix its strength and the grades and pay of its members; and makes provisions for the powers, protection, responsibilities and punishment of the members of such body, which are considered to be more suitable than those contained in Act XXIV of 1851, which is the present law on the subject.

24. It is not the practice to entertain separate establishments for the preservation of the peace and the prevention of crime and for watch and ward, members of the general police force or municipal watchmen, as the case may be, being employed on both duties; and it is held to be desirable that they should continue to be available for both duties. Sections 62 to 64 therefore place municipal watchmen on a similar footing to members of the general police force, so far as is possible without enrolling them in that force, bringing them under the same rules as to pay and pension, and making them liable to general service. It is therefore proposed to place them under the orders of the District Superintendent of Police, and the Local Government may relieve committees of any charge for them, in the same way as it may do where a police-establishment enrolled under Act V of 1861 is entertained.

25. Section 66 gives a more detailed statement of the duties of municipal committees and the purposes to which the municipal fund may be applied than is to be found in section 11 of the present Act.

26. Sections 67 to 70 give powers to make rules prohibiting acts of the nature of nuisances. The powers to issue injunctions, and to make conditional orders for the removal of nuisances, have not hitherto been conferred upon committees in the Panjāb, but are taken, with some modifications, from the Municipal Acts in force in the North-Western Provinces and British Burma.

27. Section 71 specifies other purposes for which committees may make rules binding on the public, and section 72 adds a special power to committees in hill stations to make rules on subjects which, in such localities, it has been found necessary to enable committees to regulate. The confirmation of such rules, and the penalties incurred by infringing them, are provided for by section 73. Section 21 of the present Act prescribes a uniform penalty, but it has been thought better to enable the committees, when making a rule, to attach to it an appropriate penalty.

28. Sections 74 to 85 give powers of interference with trades and rights of property which have hitherto usually been taken in bye-laws. Such powers are expressly given in the Municipal Acts of the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Legislatures, and it has been thought better to give them in the Bill than to leave them to depend upon the authority of bye-laws. They may not be required in some of the minor municipalities, but a subsequent provision will admit of these municipalities being excepted from this part of the Bill.

29. Section 89 enables the Local Government to invest members of committee or officers of the committee by name or a sub-committee with the power to summon persons committing offences punishable under section 67 before a Magistrate, and to accept composition for such offences from persons who are willing to pay such composition in preference to appearing before a Magistrate to answer the charge. A provision of this nature was suggested by the Local Government as likely to be suitable in places like Simla, in reply to a proposal to give the secretary to the committee the powers of a Magistrate for the disposal of petty cases of nuisance; and, as the section is framed, no such power will exist unless where the Local Government thinks proper to confer it.

30. Chapter V, relating to control, differs in no material respect from the corresponding provisions of the Panjāb Local Self-government Bill.

31. Section 97 enables the Local Government to prescribe such forms as it may consider necessary, and specifies the subjects on which it may make rules supplementary to the provisions of the Act.

32. Chapter VI contains miscellaneous provisions as to the effect of a member or servant of a committee being interested in any contract with the committee, the liabilities of members, suits against committees, prosecutions for infringement of rules, the acquisition of land, the procedure to be followed in making rules, and the like.

33. Chapter VII provides for the disposal of property vested in committees when the area subject to their authority or part thereof is withdrawn from the operation of the Act under section 6; for excepting municipalities from any provisions of the Act unsuitable thereto; and, in the same way as in the Local Self-government Bill, for the saving of the rights of existing officers and servants, and for the control to which Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners are to be subject in the discharge of their duties under the Act.

D. G. BARKLEY.

The 3rd September, 1883.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR
THE WEEK ENDING THE 11th SEPTEMBER 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.—The rainfall continues general throughout India. In the Deccan, Konkan and Guzerat the kharif crops are thriving; but in Sind, where the river is still low and the rainfall has been slight, the scarcity of water is much felt. In Hyderabad more rain is said to be wanted, while in parts of the Berars a break in the weather would be beneficial. Throughout Central India and Rajputana there has been good rain; more is yet needed in a few places, and the kharif crops have not escaped the late drought without considerable injury, but prospects are greatly improved and all fears of scarcity have passed away. In Mysore and Coorg the weather continues generally favourable and the crops are doing well, but in Madras several districts want rain for unirrigated crops.

In Burma the rainfall of the week has been abundant, except in Thayetmyo, where owing to insufficient rain the rice crop is very backward. Floods have damaged the crops in the Cachar and Sylhet districts of Assam and the rainfall has been unequal, but prospects are on the whole fair. In the Central Provinces, Bengal and Behar more rain is needed for rice, while in Chittagong, Orissa and Chota Nagpur the fall has been sufficient. Heavy rain fell in the Central Provinces during the week benefiting the crops. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there has been good rain in several districts and prospects are fair, but more rain is still required. A general and abundant fall throughout the Punjab has removed all cause for anxiety in that province.

Harvesting continues in Madras, and sowing of later kharif crops in Bombay. No serious damage has as yet been caused by locusts in the Deccan. The early kharif crops are being cut in the North-Western Provinces and elsewhere, and harvesting of early rice and jute is going on in Bengal. Sowings of rice have been completed in Burma, where some injury has been done by floods and other causes; but on the whole the prospects of the crop are favourable.

Cholera still lingers in several places, but is abating in the Central Provinces, and the public health is generally much improved.

Prices are returning to their normal average with improving prospects.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(Sept. 12th)
Bellary ...	·47 (average of seven stations).	Standing crops generally good.
Kurnool ...	·51 (average of seven stations).	Standing crops generally good. Harvest indigo, yield fourteen annas. Cattle-disease in seven taluks.
Ganjam ...	2·38 (average of eighteen stations).	Standing crops red and black gram, sugarcane, and cotton thriving. Gingelly damaged by excessive rains. Fever and small-pox continue.
Kistna ...	1·05 (average of twelve stations).	Standing crops generally good, except in three taluks. Rain wanted; canal supply insufficient. Fever, small-pox, dysentery, guinea-worm, and cattle-disease in parts.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	·44 (average of five stations).	Standing crops good, except in one taluk. Harvest khar paddy, &c., yield three-fourths. Small-pox slight in three taluks. Cattle-disease slight in parts.
Coimbatore ...	·28 (average of five stations).	Standing crops cholum damaged by insects in one taluk. Dry crops want rain in seven taluks. Harvest dry crops in parts, yield average. Cholera in three taluks, 4 deaths; fever in parts.
Tanjore ...	·20 (average of two stations).	Standing crops generally good, except in three taluks. Rain much wanted everywhere. Harvest paddy and cumboo , yield below average. Thirty-five deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	.....	Standing crops fading, except in one taluk. Harvest paddy in two taluks, and dry crops in one.
Malabar ...	3·02 (average of fourteen stations).	Harvest continues in eight taluks. First crop in good condition. Cholera in two taluks, 13 deaths; small-pox slight in nine taluks; fever in five taluks.
Travancore ...	·038	Harvesting progressing. Fever prevails. General Remarks. —No rain in Madura. General prospects good.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—(Sept. 12th)
Kurrachee ...	Slight rain in Kurrachee, Manjhand, Sakro, Jerruck, and Tatta.	River at Kotri on 10th 14 feet 6 inches against 17 feet 9 inches on same date last year. Want of water much felt. Fever in six talukas. Cattle-disease in six talukas, some deaths among sheep and goats in Jati. Small-pox in five villages, in districts 26 fresh cases, 1 death, 6 remaining sick. Wheat, red rice, and bajri in Kurrachee 24, 26 and 34, in Manjhand 22, 28 and 40, in Ghorabari 20, 28 and 36, and in Mirpur Botoro 22, 30 and 34 lbs. per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	Rain in eight talukas, average fall 1·22.	River has risen 1 foot and 8 inches since last week, and was lower by 3 feet and 3 inches on 10th instant than on same date last year. Small-pox in two, fever in four, and cattle-disease in three talukas. Wheat 24, bajri 35, juari 46, red rice 26, and white rice 22 lbs. per rupee.
Ahmedabad ...	1·96	Total rainfall 19·28. Crops healthy. Cholera in Ahmedabad, 15 cases, 9 deaths, in Verungam, 4 cases, 1 death. Bajri 27 and wheat 24½ lbs. per rupee.
Baroda ...	5·93	Total rainfall 43·19. Crops thriving. Cholera disappeared everywhere, except in Patan and Wadaoli where it continues in a mild form. Bajri 27 and rice 21 lbs. per rupee.
Surat ...	4·74	Total rainfall 16·20. Crops healthy. Cholera in Surat, 3 cases, 2 deaths, in Olphad, 2 cases fatal; slight fever in Jalalpur and Pardi. Locusts appeared in a few villages of Bardoli, Chikli, and Pardi talukas, and steps are being taken for their destruction. Juari 37 and agali 43 lbs. per rupee.
Nasik ...	Nil	Partial break in the rain. Kharif crops in fair condition. Locusts throughout the district, doing no damage, save in Calvan. Cholera disappeared. Wheat 28, bajri 28, and rice 22 lbs. per rupee.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	1·31; light rain daily	Total rainfall to date 71·59, being 9·04 above average. Abnormal temperature 0° to 2° cool. Vapour in air normal. Monsoon wind strong.
Poona ...	Maximum at Mawal 7·0.	Standing crops healthy. Cholera 32 cases, 22 fatal. Bajri 39 and juari 17 lbs. per rupee, in Poona bajri 34 and juari 41 lbs. per rupee.
Ahmednagar ...	1·32 in Newasa and from 23 to 95 in all the remaining talukas.	Kharif crops are in good condition. Cholera 35 attacks, 16 deaths. Sowing operations of rabi have not yet commenced. Bajri —maximum 48 lbs. in Jamkhed, minimum 36 lbs. in Akola; juari —maximum 66 lbs. in Newasa, minimum 39 lbs. in Akola.
Sholapur ...	·88	Total rainfall 32·78. Kharif crops good; rabi sowings commenced in places; no damage done by locusts. Cholera 86 cases, 30 deaths. Juari 60 lbs. and bajri 50 lbs. per rupee.
Dharwar ...	Slight rain in eastern talukas, pretty heavy in western talukas; maximum 4·30 in Hangal; 3·08 in Kalghatgi; 2·48 in Mugud; 2·10 in Bankapur; 1·80 in Kod.	More rain is required for rice. Sowing of cotton and other late crops progressing. Ague prevails to a small extent in Mugud, Hangal, and Kalghatgi talukas, and slight cattle-disease in Hangal. Juari 63 lbs. and rice 32 lbs. per rupee.
Kanara ...	Karwar, 8·42; Kumpita, 7·61; Sisi, 11·27; Hallial, 2·32.	Total rainfall 129·78. Weeding and transplanting of rice continue above ghat; cardamums ripening. Small-pox in Kumpita and Honawar. Common rice in Karwar 12½ seers, district average 14½ seers.
Rajkot ...	2·39	Total rainfall 24·66. General health fair. Weather cool. Small-pox in Limra. Bajri 28 lbs and juari 33 lbs. per rupee. General Remarks. —Good rain has fallen in most districts of the Presidency. Crops healthy. Light rain, and slight rise in the river in Sind, where the crops have improved in consequence. Little damage from locusts. Cholera abating; slight fever and small-pox, and cattle-disease in a few places.
Bengal—(Sept. 12th)
Chittagong ...	3·56	Weather seasonable. Harvesting of aus rice nearly completed; aman rice still being planted in some places. Prospects favourable. Prices stationary. Cholera abating. Cattle-disease still continues.
Dacca ...	·79	Aus rice and jute being cut; roachia paddy being sown. Prospects good.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta) ...	1·81	Prospects of both early and late rice good. Early rice being harvested; transplanting of late rice still going on in some parts of districts. Cases of fever and of cattle-disease reported from Bassirhat sub-division. Public health good.
Moorshedabad ...	.....	No report received.
Rajshahye ...	1·83	Weather seasonable and prospects good. Aus rice a fair crop. Fever reported bad over a limited area only.
Burdwan ...	·45	Aus rice being reaped; outturn fair. Prospects of all other crops favourable. Fever prevalent.
Rungpore ...	.....	No report received.
Bhagalpur ...	·51	More rain wanted for winter rice. Bhadai crops being cut, outturn 8 to 12 annas.
Purneah ...	·18	Prospects of crops generally fair. Farming operations normal. Rain wanted. Rivers falling. Health normal.
Patna ...	·64	Makai commenced to be cut; transplanting of paddy going on. More rain wanted. Cholera still reported from Behar sub-division.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—contd.
Durbhunga ...	30	Very much more rain than has fallen is required. Crops are suffering. General health good.
Hazaribagh ...	3.45	Weather seasonable. Good rain. Prospects of rice crop improving. Harvesting of bladoi crops continue. Some isolated cases of small-pox and cattle-disease reported. General health good.
Cuttack ...	5.10	Weather seasonable. Early rice being reaped with prospects of fair outturn; late rice being weeded and reploughed. Price of rice stationary. Public health good.
General Remarks —General rain fell during the week, but except in Orissa and Coota Nagpore the fall was generally slight. In Central Bengal and Behar the rice crop is suffering from want of rain. In several places elsewhere prospects of this crop are reported to be favourable. Early rice and jute are being reaped with fair results, but in Patna, Julpigoree, and Mymensingh the jute is said to be a poor crop. In Behar harvesting of bladoi crops has commenced generally with expectation of a fair outturn, except in Mozufferpore where they have been greatly destroyed by inundation. Cholera rages and fever has appeared in some districts, but the general health of the province is still fair.
N. W. Provinces and Oudh—
Benares (Sept. 11th)	Average 20	More rain wanted to improve crop prospects. Fever continues. Condition of cattle good. Prices steady.
Allahabad ( „ 12th)	Good rain ranging from 1.20 to 3.30 in all nine tahsils.	Harvest prospects improved. Rice crops somewhat damaged; early kharif crops being harvested. Only 1 death from cholera reported. Bajri and juari fallen, arhar , dhan , and kauri risen; other prices fairly steady.
Gorakhpur ( „ 9th)	About 1.0 in four tahsils on 5th.	The rain which has fallen has done much good. Prices steady. More rain required.
Jhansi ( „ 10th)	Jhansi, 1.0; Mau, .50; Moth, .80; Garotha, 1.50.	Weather cloudy with occasional showers. Crops are looking well, their prosperity depends on more rain. Locusts are said to have appeared in pargana Mau, particulars are under enquiry. Prices falling. Health good.
Agra ( „ 11th)	Rain in all parganas from 1.20 to 3.30.	Sporadic cholera and fever in three parganas. Prices falling slightly. Prospects generally much brighter. No cattle-disease reported. Cholera abating.
Bareilly ( „ „ )	Weather showery	Crops improving. Early kharif harvest begun in places. Cholera reported in one village.
Meerut ( „ „ )	Meerut, 3.50; Sardhana, 4.10; Bagpat, 3.20; Ghazabad, 2.60; Hapur, 5.20; Mowana, 1.50.	Prospects immensely improved. Even unirrigated crops will be revived and yield probably an eight-anna crop at least. Health good, a few cases of supposed cholera in Bagunabad. Supplies sufficient. Prices easy.
Kumaun ( „ „ )	...	Weather seasonable. Early rice being cut; outturn poor. Some slight fever, otherwise general health good. No change in prices. Cattle-disease continues.
Lucknow ( „ „ )	Lucknow, .30; Mohanlalganj, .170.	Weather cloudy for the greater part of the week. Wind easterly. Unirrigated rice crops and that sown in uparbars are dying; large juari has also suffered; no injury as yet to the harad crops. Condition of people generally good and of cattle normal. Markets well supplied. Prices steady except at Mohanlalganj, where they are said to be rising a little.
Partabgarh ( „ „ )	Sadr, 2.80; Kunda, .40; Patti, .90.	Crops doing fairly well. More rain wanted. Makka and kakun being cut. Prices steady. Health good.
Sitapur ( „ „ )	Sitapur, .70; Sidhoul in parts, 1.70; Biswan, .40; Misrikh, .80.	More than half the rice crops lost; crops on low lands still good. Bajri and juari in three tahsils healthy.
Fyzabad ( „ 10th)	Sadr, .10; Akbarpur, .70; Bikapur, 1.30; Tanda, 2.10.	The rain in Tanda has somewhat improved prospects in that tahsil; rain still much wanted in all tahsils for the aghani crops.
Rae Bareli ( „ „ )	Sadr, 2.80; Salon, 2.60; Dalman, .30; Digbijaiganj, 1.0.	Prospects of the kharif crops have improved; makka , kodon , juari , bonra , mothi , mash , and saran specially benefited, and from which a fair crop may now be anticipated. More rain required for dhan . General health good. Supplies sufficient. Prices steady.
Cawnpore ( „ 11th)	Average rainfall of nine tahsils, 1.70.	The rain has done much good, but more rain is desirable to prevent injury to crops. Fever prevalent and cholera decreasing except in a few localities and at Bithur, where fresh cases reported. Cattle-disease almost entirely disappeared. Prices slightly lower.
Farrukhabad ( „ „ )	Light scattered rain	Weather cloudy. Save maize and in less degree rice, all crops promise well; some very well; cotton very fine, but too forward and likely to be damaged by later rains.
General Remarks —There has been a fair fall of rain during the week which has materially improved the prospects of the later kharif crops, but more rain is still wanted. The rice crops especially have suffered severely in Lucknow and Sitapur; the early kharif harvest has begun in places. Locusts are reported to have appeared in Jhansi, but no particulars regarding them are yet known. Cholera has appeared in Meerut and Bareilly. Prices are steady or falling.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Punjab—(Sept. 11th).
Delhi ...	4.4	Health good. Crop prospects much improved. Prices falling.
Hissar ...	.....	Rain throughout the district. Health good. Agricultural prospects much improved. Prices falling.
Umballa ...	2.8	Health good. Crop prospects much improved, but yield expected to be below the average. Prices stationary.
Jullundur ...	5.8	Health good. Crop prospects improving. Prices falling.
Amritsar ...	7.8	Health good. Prices falling.
Sialkot ...	6.0	Health and harvest prospects good. Prices falling.
Ferozepore ...	Sadr, 9.2; Zira, 4.8; Moga, 3.2; Muktsar, 3.4; Jalalabad, 7.0.	Health good. Crop prospects improved. Prices falling.
Lahore ...	8.1	Health good. Crop prospects much improved. Prices falling.
Rawalpindi ...	1.8	Health good. Prospects good in four tahsils and average in three others. Prices falling.
Mooltan ...	No rain	Health and crop prospects good. Prices falling.
Dera Ismail Khan ...	.20	Health good. Prices steady.
Peshawar ...	.20	Health good. Prices falling.
		General Remarks. —Rain throughout the province. Crop prospects much improved. Health good. Prices falling.
Central Provinces—(Sept. 12th)
Nagpur ...	.97	Weather cool. Prospects good. Cholera 404 cases, 181 deaths. Prices steady.
Jubbulpore ...	8.87	Weather cloudy and rainy. Heavy rain on the 9th. Cotton and other kharij crops thriving. Prospects improved. Wheat 21 and rice 14 seers per rupee. Fever prevalent.
Saugor (Sept. 11th) ...	4.90	Prospects much improved. Prices steady. Health good.
Seoni ...	7.60	Heavy rain throughout the week. Crops much benefited. Cholera slight. Prices falling.
Hoshangabad ...	.....	Weather rainy and cloudy. Nerbudda and Tawa rivers flooded, and crops on the river banks seriously damaged. Fever in Sohagpur.
Khandwa ...	5.20	Wheat 15 and rice 9 seers per rupee.
Raipur ...	1.41	Weather showery. Prospects good. Prices steady.
Sambalpur ...	6.76	Prospects favourable, except at Simoga where the rainfall has been deficient. Prices steady. Preparations for rabi sowings in progress.
		Good rain throughout the week towards the east; rain towards north and west still deficient. Prospects good, except in north and west where slight loss is expected. Fever increasing. Common rice 36 seers per rupee.
		General Remarks. —Rain has continued to fall very generally throughout the provinces, the falls being heaviest in the northern districts. Prospects are favourable. Cholera rapidly abating.
British Burma—(Sept. 8th)
Akyab ...	12.22	Total rainfall to date 160.75. Two deaths from cholera in the jail and 1 in district, and 4 deaths from small-pox in Koladan. 58 deaths of cattle in three townships, elsewhere health of plough cattle good. Transplanting continues. Crop prospects favourable. Transplanting wages from 6 to 8 annas per day.
Rangoon ...	4.71	Total rainfall to date 66.15. Two deaths from small-pox, otherwise public health good. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to 94 per 100 baskets.
Bassein ...	6.50	Total rainfall to date 75.40. Public health good. Three deaths of cattle in Kangyidoun township. Ploughing nearly finished, about two-thirds transplanted. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to 100 per 100 baskets.
Prome ...	2.59	Total rainfall to date 38.08. Public health good. Eighty-nine deaths of cattle from small-pox in two townships, elsewhere health of cattle good. 148,360 acres ploughed, 134,500 acres planted. Young plants in good condition. Price of paddy Rs. 93 per 100 baskets.
Amherst (Moulmein) ...	10.88	Total rainfall to date 142.44. Public health in Moulmein and district good. 224 deaths of cattle in Hlaingbwey township. Crops healthy in Moulmein town. Few holdings remain unploughed. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting progressing. State of supply of seedlings for transplanting and general appearance of crops fair. No damage from drought, flood or insects.
Toungoo ...	3.65	Total rainfall to date 66.41. Public health and health of plough cattle good. Transplanting progressing. Average price of paddy Rs. 65 per 100 baskets.
Kyoukphyoo (1st Sept.) ...	8.90	Total rainfall to date 133.23. Three deaths from cholera in Pouk-toodoun village, Myabone township; one in old Kyoukphyoo, otherwise public health good. Health of cattle good. Only a few acres remain unploughed. Transplanted paddy progressing favourably; broadcast paddy in good condition.
Kyoukphyoo (8th „ ) ...	9.53	Total rainfall to date 142.76. Two deaths from cholera in Kinechoung doubtful; two deaths in Kalanto village, Kyoukphyoo township; cholera also reported from Ramree township. Health of cattle good. Sowings completed.
Sadoway ...	15.99	Total rainfall to date 181.75. Public health good. Sowing and transplanting finished. Crops looking healthy.
Hanthawaddy ...	.....	Public health and health of cattle good. Ploughing progressing. Ploughing wages 60 baskets of paddy in Hlaing township. Paddy crops in three circles of the Hlaing township inundated. Price of paddy from Rs. 80 to Rs. 100 per 100 baskets.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
British Burma—contd.
Pagu ...	6.15	Total rainfall to date 101.21. Few deaths from fever in town, otherwise public health good. Transplanting nearly completed. Flood in river not so high as first. Season favourable. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to Rs. 90 per 100 baskets.
Tharrawaddy ...	...	No report received.
Thonegwa ...	6.02	Total rainfall to date 69.38. Public health and health of cattle good. Ploughing progressing. Damage to crops from floods in the Thay-ein circle, Donabyoo township, and in the Kyouspouk and Kyone-padouk circles, Shwayloun township. Young crops are slightly damaged by insects in the Papone and Daydayeh townships. Supply of seedlings insufficient in the flooded parts of the Shwayloun township. Transplanting not progressing in the Kyoneinangeh circle, Thonegwa township, on account of high water. Wages of labourers for sowing and transplanting one basket of paddy or one rupee per day. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to Rs. 90 per 100 baskets.
Henzada ...	5.63	Total rainfall to date 69.28. Public health and health of cattle good. Transplanting progressing. Seedlings and plants in good condition; in Zuloon township plants in 2,580 acres damaged by floods, replanting going on and 350 acres damaged by insects. Information from Myanounng sub-division up to 3rd only.
Thayetmyo (Sept. 1st)	1.15	Total rainfall to date 25.11. Public health good. Ploughing going on. Rainfall hitherto insufficient. Prospects bad in western half of district, only about one-third of land planted yet, in some places seedlings killed by drought.
Thayetmyo ( , 8th)	1.35	Total rainfall to date 26.46. Public health good. 30 deaths of cattle from small-pox in Syndoke, 10 in Myoma and 139 in Thabala circles. Cultivation still very backward for want of rain, about half of the total of paddy land planted. Price of paddy risen from Rs. 95 to Rs. 110 per 100 baskets.
Shwaygyin ...	6.64	Total rainfall to date 119.85. Public health and health of cattle fair. Ploughing nearly finished, except in low tracts which are flooded. Transplanting and sowing progressing. Some fields in low tracts flooded. Prices of paddy Rs. 74 per 100 baskets.
Tavoy ...	8.48	Total rainfall to date 171.06. Public health and health of cattle good. General appearance of the plants good. Area ascertained to have been damaged in western township, 150 acres by inundations and 50 acres by rats.
Mergui (Aug. 25th)	} 11.00 for week ending 25th August.	Total rainfall to date 105.95. Public health and health of cattle good. Area ploughed 33,000 acres and seed sown. Crops healthy. Price of paddy Rs. 75 per 100 baskets.
Mergui (Sept. 1st)		General Remarks. —Rainfall up to date still remains less than last year, but appears gradually making up. Public health good. No increase of cattle-disease and no serious mortality among cattle reported. Sowings completed. Transplanting except in overflooded tracts and in parts of Thayetmyo, where the rainfall has been insufficient, nearly completed. Prospects of crops reported favourable. Price of paddy keeps fairly steady.
Assam—(Sept. 12th)
Gauhati ...	21 week ending 11th instant.	Weather sultry and hot. Transplanting of sali paddy in progress. Public health fair. Cattle-disease still prevalent in the interior.
Sylhet ...	0.46	State and prospects of crops on the whole good; some damage done to aus in south of district by floods. Small-pox prevalent in Karimganj.
Cachar ...	.....	No report received.
Dibrugarh ...	4.42	Weather seasonable. Transplanting of sali dhan nearly finished. Cattle-disease reported. Public health good.
Mysore and Coorg—(Sept. 12th)
Bangalore ...	6.3	Standing crops in good condition. Prospects fair. Public health good. Crops thriving. Prospects favourable. Sowing operations continue.
Mysore ...	1.15	A break in the monsoon needed in the western taluka. Prospects of coffee and cardamum crops good. Public health good. No change in prices of food-grains which rule low.
Mercara ...	6.22	General Remarks. —Slight rain in all districts. Sowings active. Standing crops and public health favourably reported on. Prices stationary.
Berar &amp; Hyderabad—(Sept. 12th)
Amraoti ...	1.53	Crops in good condition. A break in the weather is now necessary. Wheat 16 and juari 26 seers per rupee.
Akola ...	2.53	Crops in good condition.
Hyderabad ...	1.75; total from 1st January 24.63.	Rain very uneven in Hyderabad district. In some places tanks have breached, and crops slightly damaged. In others rain still wanted. No sickness. Prices stationary.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Central India States— (Sept. 12th)
Indore ...	2·08	Prospects good.
Morar (Gwalior) ...	1·21	Prospects good. Cholera decreasing in Gwalior. Prices of food-grains falling.
Sutna ...	2·46	Prospects good.
Rutlam ...	.....	No report received.
Neemuch ...	1·49	Agricultural prospects improved. Public health good.
Goona ...	3·9	Health good.
Bhopal ...	.....	No report received.
Agar ...	.....	No report received.
Nowgong ...	1·45	Kharif prospects improved. More rain is wanted. Prices steady. Public health fair.
Manpur ...	.....	Prospects improving.
Rajputana—
Abu (Sept. 12th)	5·47	Good rain has fallen and still more is expected, as the clouds are very heavy. Prices falling.
Sirohi ( „ 9th)	2·97	Tanks and wells full. Health good. Crop prospects fair. Weather cloudy.
Marwar ( „ 7th)	3·11	Four months' supply of water in Jodhpore city; tanks and wells filling up. Health good. Bajri crops which had escaped the drought reviving; moth and til being sown. Rains being general and more copious in districts have dispelled fears of famine. Prospects of rabi much brighter. Prices falling. More rain expected as the weather is still cloudy.
Meywar ( „ 9th)	4·33	Tanks and wells filling fast. Health good. Kharif crop injured by late drought. Rain daily.
Harowti ( „ 8th)	Tonk, 2·19	Good rainfalls everywhere. Prospects improved. Health good.
Jhallawar ( „ 7th)	3·46	Good rain has fallen in all the districts. Prospects much improved. Health good.
Ajmere ( „ 11th)	2·28	Prospects favourable. Sufficient rain has fallen for standing crops, but considerably heavier falls are required to fill tanks, except in Merwara where the falls have been heavier. Health improving.
Jeypore ( „ „ )	4·96	Crops thriving. Prospects favourable. Prices falling. Cholera almost stopped.
Blurtipore ...	.....	No report received.
Ulwur (Sept. 11th)	Average 3·30	Prospects greatly improved. Prices falling. Health good.
Nepal—(Sept. 6th)
Katmandu ...	2·80	Generally cloudy; frequent showers. Prospects good.

E. C. BUCK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
HOME DEPARTMENT.

---

EXECUTION OF DEEDS, CONTRACTS, &c., ON BEHALF OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

---

No. 1234.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Home Department (Judicial),— under date Simla, the 12th September 1883.

Read the following papers relating to the execution of deeds, contracts, &c, on behalf of the Secretary of State :—

Home Department Resolution No. 1750, dated the 2nd November 1876.

Ditto ditto No. 684, dated the 31st May 1878.

Read also—

Letter from the Government of Madras, No. 10, dated the 9th January 1883.

„ to Director of Indian Marine, No. 161, dated the 31st January 1883.

„ from Director of Indian Marine, No. 588, dated the 7th February 1883.

„ to Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 245, dated the 20th February 1883.

„ from Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 386, dated the 28th March 1883.

„ to Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 386, dated the 1st May 1883.

„ from Solicitor to the Government of India, No. 624, dated the 25th May 1883.

„ to Government of Madras, No. 892, dated the 20th June 1883.

„ from Government of Madras, No. 373, dated the 16th July 1883.

---

RESOLUTION.

In exercise of the power conferred by the thirty-third and thirty-fourth of Victoria, Cap. fifty-nine, section two, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to declare that the undermentioned classes of contracts referred to in the twenty-second and twenty-third of Victoria, Cap. forty-one, section two, may be executed as follows in the territories of the Government of India :—

Contracts for the engagement of crews of Indian Government vessels, whether belonging to the Imperial or to Local Governments.	} By the officers in command of such vessels.
--	--

---

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the Military (Marine) Department, and that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

A. MACKENZIE,
Secretary to the Government of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART II.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, &c.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 17th March 1883.

From the 7th April next, till further notice, Parts I, IV, and V of the Gazette of India, and the Weather and Crop Reports, will be published at Simla. After the 31st March, all Notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts, should be addressed to the Officiating Publisher at Simla.

Parts IV and V of the Gazette of India, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Council, may be subscribed for separately from the other Parts of the Gazette. The annual subscription for the two Parts is Rs 5 per annum, payable in advance. When sent by post, Rs 2-8 per annum additional will be charged for postage.

Complaints regarding non-receipt of any number of the Gazette should be forwarded within a week after the day on which it is due.

Applications for the supply of the Gazette on the public service should be addressed to the Home Department.

By an order of Government, all subscriptions must be paid in advance.

	Rs	a.	p.
Subscription for Gazette and Supplement per annum	15	0	0
Postage	5	8	0
Subscription for Supplement only	6	0	0
Postage	3	0	0
For a single copy of the Gazette	0	8	0
For a single copy of the Supplement	0	4	0
Postage on single copies varies according to weight.

E. J. DEAN,

Publisher, Gazette of India.

HIGH COURT—Original Side.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 8th September 1883.

The following rules, passed by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, are published for general information.

It is ordered that the following rules, under the provisions of Section 645A. of Act XIV of 1882, be read and passed as the rules of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to take effect from the 1st day of October 1883:—

The Registrar of the High Court in its Original

Registrar to frame list of Assessors.

To be approved by the Chief Justice.

Jurisdiction shall from time to time frame a list, to be approved by the Chief Justice, without whose approval it shall have no validity, of persons of nautical skill and experience residing or having places of business within the jurisdiction of the High Court, to act as assessors in any admiralty or vice-admiralty cause of salvage, towage or collision, under the provisions of Section 645A. of the Code of Civil

And published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Procedure, and shall cause the list to be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

Persons named in list liable to be summoned.

2. Any persons named in the said list may be summoned to act as assessors in such cause as aforesaid.

3. Every person who shall so act as an assessor shall be entitled to a fee of 4 gold-mohurs for each day's attendance.

4. Either party in any such cause as aforesaid may apply that it may be heard with the assistance of assessors. Unless otherwise ordered, the application should be made, by summons, as follows:—where the cause is

Amount of Assessors' fee.

Application to summon Assessors.

pending before the Court in its original jurisdiction, to the Judge before whom it is appointed, that the cause shall be heard, or, where the cause is pending in appeal, to the Judges or one of the Judges before whom it is appointed that the cause shall be heard in appeal.

5. Where assessors are to be summoned, this shall be done by a letter under the signature of the Registrar, which may be served in like manner as process under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Letter in the nature of summons.

To be served as process.

6. The assessors' fees shall, before each day's hearing, be deposited with the Registrar by the party at whose instance they were summoned, or in default thereof by the other party.

Assessors' fee by whom to be deposited.

7. The Registrar shall pay the fees so deposited with him to the assessors, or, in any case where their attendance is not required, shall, unless, otherwise ordered, refund the same to the party by whom the same was deposited.

How to be disposed of.

8. Unless otherwise ordered, all fees paid to assessors under these rules shall be deemed to be costs in the cause.

To be deemed costs in the cause.

(Sd.) RICHARD GARTH.
 " ROMESH CHUNDER MITTER.
 " W. F. McDONELL.
 " H. T. PRINSEP.
 " L. R. TOTTENHAM.
 " J. F. NORRIS.
 " J. Q. PIGOT.
 " J. O'KINEALY.
 " C. J. WILKINSON.
 " W. MACPHERSON.

The 7th September 1883.

The 14th September 1883.

The Honorable the Chief Justice has granted Mr. C. T. Davis, Chief Clerk of this Court, extension of leave on furlough in India, under Section 131, Chapter 10, of the Civil Leave Code, for twelve months from the 23rd instant.

By Order,

R. BELCHAMBERS,

Registrar.

SURVEY OF INDIA.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 31st July 1883.

No. 370.—Captain J. R. Hobday, S.C., Assistant Superintendent, 1st Grade, is appointed to officiate as Deputy Superintendent, 4th Grade, with effect from the forenoon of the 25th July 1883, the date on which Major S. H. Cowan, Deputy Superintendent, 4th Grade, proceeded on subsidiary leave preparatory to availing himself of the furlough granted in G. G. O. No. 372, dated the 29th June 1883.

The 4th September 1883.

No. 378.—Lieutenant F. B. Longe, R.E., Assistant Superintendent, Survey of India, is granted privilege leave for one month, under Section 71, Chapter V, of the Civil Leave Code, with effect from such date as he may avail himself of the same.

No. 379.—Mr. M. J. Oglo, Surveyor, 3rd Grade, is granted an extension of privilege leave for eleven days, in continuation of the leave granted to him in Notification No. 359, dated the 28th May 1883.

No. 380.—Mr. A. G. Wyatt, Surveyor, 3rd Grade, is granted furlough to Europe, for two years, under Section 131, Chapter X, of the Civil Leave Code, with effect from 11th November next.

No. 381.—In continuation of Notification No. 367, dated the 10th July 1883, Mr. W. W. McNair, Surveyor, 4th Grade, is permitted to spend a further period of one month of his furlough in India.

The 10th September 1883.

No. 382.—The following promotions are made, with effect from the 5th September 1883, vice Mr. N. A. Belletty, Surveyor, 1st Grade, who retired, with effect from the afternoon of the 4th idem :—

Mr. G. B. Scott, Surveyor, 3rd Grade, to be Surveyor, 1st Grade.

Mr. H. Dowman, Surveyor, 4th Grade, to be Surveyor, 3rd Grade.

Mr. R. B. Smart, Officiating Surveyor, 4th Grade, is confirmed in that grade.

Mr. C. D. Potter, Assistant Surveyor, 1st Grade, to officiate as Surveyor, 4th Grade.

Mr. R. A. Gibson, Assistant Surveyor, 2nd Grade, to be Assistant Surveyor, 1st Grade.

G. C. DEPRÉE, Colonel,

Offg. Surveyor General of India.

TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 5th September 1883.

Offices opened and closed during the month of August 1883 :—

Name of Station.	Where situated.	Date.	REMARKS.
Ellore	Madras Presdy.	23rd	Opened.
Gulistan Karez	Beluchistan	22nd	Closed.
Kushdil	Ditto	22nd	Ditto.
Saharanpur	Punjab	31st	Opened.
Thal Chotiali	Beluchistan	18th July	Ditto.

A. J. L. CAPPEL,

Director General of Telegraphs in India.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR CENTRAL INDIA.

NOTIFICATION.

Indore Residency, the 7th September 1883.

No. 2364.—Major John Biddulph, Political Agent, Bhopawar, is granted forty-two days' privilege leave from 24th September 1883, or from such subsequent date as he may avail himself thereof.

By Order,

C. E. YATE, *Capt.,
for 1st Asst. Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India.*

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR
CENTRAL INDIA, P. W. D.

NOTIFICATION.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Indore, the 4th September 1883.

No. 10.—Central India Administration Notification No. 6, dated 11th July 1883, appointing Mr. T. Knight, Executive Engineer, 2nd Grade, as Officiating Executive Engineer, Gwalior Division, is cancelled, and Mr. Knight is appointed Officiating Executive Engineer, Neemuch Division, until further orders.

By Order,

H. F. WHITE, *M.I., C.E.,
Offg. Secy. to Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India, P. W. D.*

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, RAJPUT-ANA, AND CHIEF COMMISSIONER,
AJMER-MERWARA.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Mount Abu, the 3rd September 1883.

No. 2225 S.—Under the provision of Section 9 of the Ajmer Forest Regulation, 1874, the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer is pleased to sanction the following addition to Rule II of the Forest By-Laws, sanctioned in the Rajputana Public Works Department Notification No. 1505 S., dated the 14th June 1875, and published in the Rajputana Official Gazette of 19th June 1875:—

- (3) Any Forest Officer not below the rank of an Assistant Conservator of Forests may accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exist that he has committed a breach of any of the foregoing rules a sum of money not exceeding Rs 5 by way of compensation for any damage which has been committed, and may release any property which has been seized as liable to confiscation on payment of the value thereof as estimated by such Officer.

On the payment of such sum of money or such value or both as the case may be to such Officer, the accused person, if in custody, shall be discharged, the property seized shall be released, and no further proceedings shall be taken under these Rules against such person or property.

The 10th September 1883.

No. 2319 S.—The Chief Commissioner of Ajmer-Merwara has been pleased to order the following addition being made in this Department Notification No. 2004 S., dated 9th August 1883, nominating the members of the Municipal Committee of Kekree:—

6. Jodha Lumberdar.

By Order,

J. P. STEEL, *Lieut.-Col., R.E.,
Secy. to the Chief Commr. in the P. W. D., Ajmer-Merwara.*

ORDERS BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR
AND SYNDICATE OF THE CALCUTTA
UNIVERSITY.

The undermentioned students have passed the Examinations in Engineering:—

B. C. E.

SECOND DIVISION.

In Order of Merit.

Sarkar, Annadaprasad . . . Govt. Engrg. Col., Howrah .
Mukhopadhyay, Rajendranath . . . Ditto.

L. C. E.

SECOND DIVISION.

In Order of Merit.

Warde, Charles P. . . . Govt. Engrg. Col., Howrah.
Martin, J. Arnold . . . Ditto.
Ghoshal, Hariprasad . . . Ditto.

FIRST EXAMINATION IN ENGINEERING.

Second Division.

Hanby, W. . . . Govt. Engrg. Col., Howrah.

G. BELLETT,

Registrar.

SENATE HOUSE.

The 7th September 1883.

Weekly Statement of Silver tendered, of Certificates issued, and Silver Balance in the Mint.

DATE.	SILVER TENDERED, ESTI- MATED VALUE.	CERTIFICATES ISSUED OF		BALANCE OF MILLION
		General Treasury.	Currency Depart- ment.	Under Assay.	Assayed.	Held on account of the Cur- rency De- partment.
1883.	R	R	R	R	R	R
Sept. 3	81,658	..	1,53,900	3,11,435	37,87,507	24,08,218
" 4	..	..	..	3,11,435	37,87,507	24,08,218
" 5	..	..	2,28,359	96,908	40,20,855	26,41,476
" 6	75,521	..	15,159	1,57,581	40,36,640	26,57,290
" 7	1,93,135	..	..	3,50,716	40,36,640	26,57,290
" 8	..	..	..	3,50,716	40,36,640	26,57,290

J. F. TENNANT, Major-Genl., R.E.,

Mint Master.

CALCUTTA MINT.

The 10th September 1883.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL'S OFFICE.

TELEGRAPHIC STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS AND OUTGOINGS FROM TREASURIES DURING AUGUST 1883

Thousands of Rupees.

	Civil Revenue.	Civil Debt and Remittance Heads.	Forest, Telegraph, and Marine.	Post Office.	Guaranteed Railways.	Military Department.	P. W. Department.	Opening Balance.	TOTAL.
Receipts.	R	R	R	R	R	R	R	R	R
India General	25,01	3,08,67	23	3,50	4,95	92	40,54	2,85,68	6,69,50
Central Provinces	4,38	5,84	1,23	1,83	...	11	55	82,92	96,86
British Burmah	13,06	9,92	2,98	2,18	...	11	1,01	48,82	78,08
Assam	3,56	3,50	12	1,50	...	4	18	33,55	42,45
Bengal	1,06,40	53,91	1,58	7,22	...	5	4,11	1,31,20	3,04,47
N.W. Provinces and Oudh	25,91	46,81	48	2,65	3,86	39	2,35	3,19,49	4,01,94
Punjab	28,97	41,85	68	3,15	6,96	58	7,57	1,19,91	2,09,67
Madras	36,42	53,92	1,00	3,85	8,84	69	68	1,58,53	2,63,98
Bombay	36,47	2,17,21	2,38	5,58	34,15	84	2,75	1,70,99	4,70,37
Remittance Adjust- ment	...	—5,15	...	...	...	...	...	12	—5,03
TOTAL RECEIPTS	2,80,18	7,36,48	10,68	31,46	58,76	3,73	59,74	13,51,26	25,32,29

Outgoings.
India General	41,97	3,00,66	1,34	45	3,10	17,47	15,79	2,88,72	6,69,50
Central Provinces	4,77	12,82	39	9	...	2,87	2,10	73,82	96,86
British Burmah	6,51	8,40	1,03	2	...	2,16	5,11	54,85	78,08
Assam	3,18	5,84	25	16	...	82	61	31,59	42,45
Bengal	49,40	1,27,10	1,17	7,02	7	1,68	16,03	1,02,00	3,04,47
N.W. Provinces and Oudh	41,11	57,22	87	7,18	5,70	15,74	10,62	2,60,50	4,01,94
Punjab	13,31	44,04	1,55	3,27	3,91	20,73	14,07	1,08,79	2,09,67
Madras	29,20	54,65	1,32	4,11	4,84	13,46	8,09	1,48,31	2,63,98
Bombay	32,48	1,59,16	3,58	4,07	14,18	14,19	15,97	2,26,74	4,70,37
Remittance Adjust- ment	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	—5,03	—5,03
TOTAL OUTGOINGS	2,24,93	7,69,89	11,50	26,37	31,80	89,12	88,39	12,90,20	25,32,29

SUMMARY OF ACCOUNTS FOR THE FIVE MONTHS ENDING AUGUST 1883.

Lakhs of Rupees

	RECEIPTS.						OUTGOINGS.
	Accounts till June.	TELEGRAPHIC.		Total. 5 months.	Budget Estimate. 5 months.		Accounts till June.	TELEGRAPHIC.		Total. 5 months.	Budget Estimate. 5 months.
		July.	August.					July.	August.
Civil Revenue	14,52	3,45*	2,81*	20,78	20,54	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Civil Expenditure	...	...	...	...	...	6,57	1,86*	2,27*	10,70	11,01	...	...
Military Department	18	4	4	26	36	2,91	94	89	4,74	4,94	...	...
Public Works Department	2,34	67	59	3,60	...	3,37	91	88	5,16	2,12	...	...
Forest, Telegraph, and Marine Dept. (net)	...	...	...	...	...	5	...	...	5	6	...	...
Post Office Department (net)	12	7	5	24	10	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Guaranteed and Subsidized Railways	1,61	20	27	2,08	1,28	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Imperial Loan	1	...	1,48	1,49	2,03	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Municipal Bills, including Exchange	...	...	...	...	...	7,14	1,31	1,59	10,04	8,12	...	...
Mint and Coinage Accounts	...	...	...	...	...	—22	—4	9	—17	...	...	...
Civil Debt and Remittance (net)	31	—3	—13	15	18	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Total	19,09	4,40	5,11	28,60	24,49	19,82	4,98	5,72	30,52	26,25	...	...
Opening Balance	14,82	14,09	13,51	14,82	13,81	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Closing Balance	...	...	...	...	...	14,09	13,51	12,90	12,90	12,08	...	...
GRAND TOTAL	33,91	18,49	18,62	43,42	38,33	33,91	18,49	18,62	43,42	38,33	...	...

* Includes Forest in Madras and Bombay.

ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE.
Public Works Department.

NOTIFICATION.

Statement of the Monthly Accounts of the several Branches of the Public Works Department received in the Office of the Accountant General, Public Works Department, up to the 6th September 1883.

PUBLIC WORKS (BUILDINGS AND ROADS AND MILITARY WORKS BRANCH) AND TELEGRAPHS.				IRRIGATION.				STATE RAILWAYS (CAPITAL).				STATE RAILWAYS (REVENUE).
Order of receipt.	Accounting Offices.	Last month for which received.	Date of receipt.	Order of receipt.	Accounting Offices.	Last month for which received.	Date of receipt.	Order of receipt.	Accounting Offices.	Last month for which received.	Date of receipt.	Order of receipt.	Accounting Offices.	Last month for which received.	Date of receipt.
1	Assam	June 1883	Aug. 17, 1883	1	Punjab	June 1883	Aug. 16, 1883	1	Garo Hills Survey	June 1883	Aug. 10, 1883	1	Punjab Northern	June 1883	Aug. 23, 1883
2	Port Blair	Do.	Do. 18, "	2	Rajputana	Do.	Do. 24, "	2	Unrisar & Pathankote	Do.	Do. 17, "	2	Bhopal	Do.	Do. 24, "
3	Punjab	Do.	Do. 20, "	3	Bombay	Do.	Do. 27, "	3	State Ry. Stores Branch	Do.	Do. 18, "	3	Rajputana	Do.	Do. 27, "
4	Rajputana	Do.	Do. 24, "	4	British Burma	Do.	Do. 28, "	5	Jhansi-Manikpur	Do.	Do. 20, "	5	Kewari-Ferozepore	Do.	Do. 28, "
5	Bombay	Do.	Do. 27, "	5	Bengal	Do.	Do. 31, "	6	Ranghat-Bhagwanga	Do.	Do. 20, "	6	Northern Bengal	Do.	Sep. 1, "
6	Hyderabad (Imperial)	Do.	Do. 27, "	6	Madras	Do.	Do. 20, "	7	Punjab Northern	Do.	Do. 23, "	7	Kanwa & Dhurua	Do.	Do. 3, "
7	Central India	Do.	Do. 27, "	7	North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	May	Do. 20, "	8	Central Bengal	Do.	Do. 24, "	8	Calcutta & South-Eastern	Do.	Do. 4, "
8	Hyderabad Assigned Districts.	Do.	Do. 28, "	8	British Burma	Do.	Do. 31, "	9	Bhopal Katni Bilaspur Survey.	Do.	Do. 25, "	9	Wardha Coal	Do.	Do. 4, "
9	British Burma	Do.	Do. 31, "	9	Madras	Do.	Sep. 4, "	10	Indus Valley	Do.	Do. 25, "	10	British Burma	Do.	Do. 5, "
10	Coorg	Do.	Aug. 13, "	10	Military Works	May	Do. 25, "	11	Kandahar	Do.	Do. 25, "	11	Nalhati	Do.	July 26, "
12	Bengal	Do.	Do. 25, "	12	Central Provinces	Do.	Sep. 1, "	12	Bombay Railway Surveys.	Do.	Do. 25, "	12	Tirhoot	Do.	Do. 31, "
13	North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	Do.	Do. 25, "	13	British Burma	Do.	Aug. 13, "	13	Rajputana	Do.	Do. 27, "	13	Parua & Gya	Do.	Do. 31, "
14		Do.	Do. 25, "	14	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	14	Holkar	Do.	Do. 27, "	14	Indus Valley	Do.	Aug. 8, "
15		Do.	Do. 25, "	15	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	15	Wardha Coal	Do.	Do. 27, "	15	Muttra-Hattas	Do.	Do. 13, "
16		Do.	Do. 25, "	16	Central Provinces	Do.	Sep. 1, "	16	Nagpur-Chhattisgarh	Do.	Do. 27, "	16	Cawnpore-Furuckabad	Do.	Do. 13, "
17		Do.	Do. 25, "	17	North-Western Provinces and Oudh.	Do.	Sep. 1, "	17	Dhond-Manmad.	Do.	Do. 27, "	17	East Indian	Do.	Do. 13, "
18		Do.	Do. 25, "	18	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	18	Western Deccan.	Do.	Do. 27, "	18		Do.	Do. 13, "
19		Do.	Do. 25, "	19	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	19	Northern Bengal	Do.	Do. 27, "	19		Do.	Do. 13, "
20		Do.	Do. 25, "	20	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	20	Northern Bengal & Tirhoot Extensions.	Do.	Do. 27, "	20		Do.	Do. 13, "
21		Do.	Do. 25, "	21	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	21	Tirhoot	Do.	Do. 27, "	21		Do.	Do. 13, "
22		Do.	Do. 25, "	22	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	22	India	Do.	Do. 27, "	22		Do.	Do. 13, "
23		Do.	Do. 25, "	23	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	23	Kewari-Ferozepore	Do.	Do. 27, "	23		Do.	Do. 13, "
24		Do.	Do. 25, "	24	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	24	Madras Railway Surveys.	Do.	Do. 27, "	24		Do.	Do. 13, "
25		Do.	Do. 25, "	25	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	25	Assam & Mymensing.	Do.	Do. 27, "	25		Do.	Do. 13, "
26		Do.	Do. 25, "	26	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	26	Chitragong Survey.	Do.	Do. 27, "	26		Do.	Do. 13, "
27		Do.	Do. 25, "	27	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	27	Calcutta & South-Eastern	Do.	Do. 27, "	27		Do.	Do. 13, "
28		Do.	Do. 25, "	28	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	28	North-Western Provinces	Do.	Do. 27, "	28		Do.	Do. 13, "
29		Do.	Do. 25, "	29	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	29	Licht Railway Surveys.	Do.	Do. 27, "	29		Do.	Do. 13, "
30		Do.	Do. 25, "	30	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	30	Muttra-Hattas	Do.	Do. 27, "	30		Do.	Do. 13, "
31		Do.	Do. 25, "	31	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	31	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	31		Do.	Do. 13, "
32		Do.	Do. 25, "	32	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	32	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	32		Do.	Do. 13, "
33		Do.	Do. 25, "	33	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	33	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	33		Do.	Do. 13, "
34		Do.	Do. 25, "	34	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	34	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	34		Do.	Do. 13, "
35		Do.	Do. 25, "	35	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	35	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	35		Do.	Do. 13, "
36		Do.	Do. 25, "	36	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	36	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	36		Do.	Do. 13, "
37		Do.	Do. 25, "	37	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	37	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	37		Do.	Do. 13, "
38		Do.	Do. 25, "	38	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	38	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	38		Do.	Do. 13, "
39		Do.	Do. 25, "	39	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	39	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	39		Do.	Do. 13, "
40		Do.	Do. 25, "	40	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	40	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	40		Do.	Do. 13, "
41		Do.	Do. 25, "	41	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	41	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	41		Do.	Do. 13, "
42		Do.	Do. 25, "	42	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	42	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	42		Do.	Do. 13, "
43		Do.	Do. 25, "	43	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	43	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	43		Do.	Do. 13, "
44		Do.	Do. 25, "	44	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	44	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	44		Do.	Do. 13, "
45		Do.	Do. 25, "	45	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	45	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	45		Do.	Do. 13, "
46		Do.	Do. 25, "	46	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	46	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	46		Do.	Do. 13, "
47		Do.	Do. 25, "	47	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	47	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	47		Do.	Do. 13, "
48		Do.	Do. 25, "	48	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	48	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	48		Do.	Do. 13, "
49		Do.	Do. 25, "	49	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	49	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	49		Do.	Do. 13, "
50		Do.	Do. 25, "	50	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	50	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	50		Do.	Do. 13, "
51		Do.	Do. 25, "	51	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	51	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	51		Do.	Do. 13, "
52		Do.	Do. 25, "	52	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	52	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	52		Do.	Do. 13, "
53		Do.	Do. 25, "	53	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	53	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	53		Do.	Do. 13, "
54		Do.	Do. 25, "	54	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	54	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	54		Do.	Do. 13, "
55		Do.	Do. 25, "	55	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	55	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	55		Do.	Do. 13, "
56		Do.	Do. 25, "	56	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	56	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	56		Do.	Do. 13, "
57		Do.	Do. 25, "	57	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	57	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	57		Do.	Do. 13, "
58		Do.	Do. 25, "	58	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	58	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	58		Do.	Do. 13, "
59		Do.	Do. 25, "	59	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	59	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	59		Do.	Do. 13, "
60		Do.	Do. 25, "	60	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	60	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	60		Do.	Do. 13, "
61		Do.	Do. 25, "	61	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	61	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	61		Do.	Do. 13, "
62		Do.	Do. 25, "	62	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	62	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	62		Do.	Do. 13, "
63		Do.	Do. 25, "	63	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	63	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	63		Do.	Do. 13, "
64		Do.	Do. 25, "	64	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	64	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	64		Do.	Do. 13, "
65		Do.	Do. 25, "	65	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	65	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	65		Do.	Do. 13, "
66		Do.	Do. 25, "	66	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	66	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	66		Do.	Do. 13, "
67		Do.	Do. 25, "	67	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	67	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	67		Do.	Do. 13, "
68		Do.	Do. 25, "	68	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	68	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	68		Do.	Do. 13, "
69		Do.	Do. 25, "	69	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	69	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	69		Do.	Do. 13, "
70		Do.	Do. 25, "	70	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	70	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	70		Do.	Do. 13, "
71		Do.	Do. 25, "	71	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	71	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	71		Do.	Do. 13, "
72		Do.	Do. 25, "	72	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	72	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	72		Do.	Do. 13, "
73		Do.	Do. 25, "	73	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	73	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	73		Do.	Do. 13, "
74		Do.	Do. 25, "	74	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	74	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	74		Do.	Do. 13, "
75		Do.	Do. 25, "	75	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	75	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	75		Do.	Do. 13, "
76		Do.	Do. 25, "	76	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	76	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	76		Do.	Do. 13, "
77		Do.	Do. 25, "	77	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	77	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	77		Do.	Do. 13, "
78		Do.	Do. 25, "	78	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	78	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	78		Do.	Do. 13, "
79		Do.	Do. 25, "	79	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	79	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	79		Do.	Do. 13, "
80		Do.	Do. 25, "	80	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	80	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	80		Do.	Do. 13, "
81		Do.	Do. 25, "	81	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1, "	81	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	81		Do.	Do. 13, "
82		Do.	Do. 25, "	82	British Burma	Do.	Sep. 1, "	82	East Indian	Do.	Do. 27, "	82		Do.	Do. 13, "
83		Do.	Do. 25, "	83	Madras	Do.	Sep. 1,

Statement of the Affairs of the Bank of Bengal for the week ending 11th September 1883.

LIABILITIES.				ASSETS.
	R	a.	p.		R	a.	p.
Capital paid-up . . . . .	2,00,00,000	0	0	Government Securities . . . . .	56,61,534	8	0
Reserve Fund . . . . .	35,10,581	4	4	Other authorized Investments . . . . .	52,94,710	0	0
	R	a.	p.	Loans on Government and other authorized Securities . . . . .	1,23,58,269	9	0
Public Deposits at Head Office . . . . .	99,79,477	2	10	Accounts of Credit on Government and other authorized Securities . . . . .	51,89,792	12	3
Public Deposits at Branches . . . . .	1,94,27,586	2	7	Bills discounted and purchased . . . . .	2,01,07,180	15	7
Other Deposits at Head Office and Branches . . . . .	2,29,86,888	2	0	Balances with other Banks . . . . .	6,86,229	0	7
Bank Post Bills, &c. . . . .	4,13,853	10	8	Bullion . . . . .	73,299	6	9
Sundries . . . . .	11,03,661	6	6	Dead Stock . . . . .	11,95,643	6	10
				Stamps . . . . .	8,071	5	0
				Sundries . . . . .	6,24,385	13	1
					5,11,99,116	13	1
					R	a.	p.
				Cash and Cur- rency Notes at Head Office . . . . .	85,76,478	12	2
				Cash and Cur- rency Notes at Branches . . . . .	1,76,46,452	3	8
					2,62,22,930	15	10
					R	a.	p.
					7,74,22,047	12	11
					R	a.	p.
					7,74,22,047	12	11

BANK OF BENGAL,
Calcutta, 13th September 1883.

J. GORDON,
Chief Acctt. & Depy. Secretary.

By order of the Directors.
R. HARDIE,
Secy. & Treasurer.

CURRENCY NOTES.

The following Currency Notes of the Government of India are stated to have been lost, and payment of their value has been claimed by the persons whose names are placed against the numbers. Any other person having these Notes in his possession, or claiming a right to them, is warned to communicate at once with the undersigned :—

Calcutta Circle.

NOTES WHOLLY LOST OR DESTROYED.
Regt. No.	No. of Notes.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		R
164	P 39—17143	50	Nobin Chunder Shaha.
165	P 39—17334	50	Goburdhun Mitra.
166	P 9—98794	50	Babu Gopi Krishna Banerji.
169	P 76—00611	100	Mr. H. R. Heysham, Manager, Money Order Department, Calcutta.
	" —00612	100
	" —00634	100
	" —00635	100
	" —00636	100
	" —00637	100
160	P 39—11360	50	Babu Upendra Narain Dutt.
161	P 44—55647	100	Babu Goury Prosad Koondoo.
	" —61833	100
163	P 44—53697	100
	" —85690	100	Babu Koylas Chandra Coondoo.

CALCUTTA,
The 14th September 1883.

J. TAYLOR,
Asst. Comptlr. Genl., in charge, Paper Currency.

Calicut Circle.

NOTE WHOLLY LOST OR DESTROYED.
No. of Note.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
	R
J 12—13623	50	Moothoosawmy Pillay, Pensioned Sepoy, Pookara Street, No. 1, Tanjore.

CALICUT,
The 3rd September 1883.

Lahore Circle.

NOTES WHOLLY LOST OR DESTROYED.
Regt. No.	No. of Notes.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		R
10	E 19—44309	50	Golan Jelani & Co., Kash- more.
11	E 13—65161	100	Kameez Fatimah Begum, Calcutta.
	" —55587	100

LAHORE,
The 5th September 1883.

W. H. EGERTON,
for Depy. Commr. of Paper Currency.

Report of a Deserter from the 2nd Battalion, Devonshire Regiment of Infantry, dated at Jullundur, this 6th day of September 1883.

Number, Rank, and Name.— No. 2390, Private William Skuse.	Date of Enlistment,—10th February 1872.
Age,—26 years.	At what Place Enlisted,— London.
Size,—5 feet 9 inches.	Parish and County in which Born.—Gravesend, Kent.
Colour of— Complexion, fresh; Hair, brown; Eyes, grey.	Marks,—None.
Date of Desertion,—1st September 1883.	Trade,—None.
Place of Desertion,—Jullun- dur.	Coat or Jacket.— Waistcoat,— Breeches or Trowsers— REMARKS,— Under 12 years' service.

M. C. MORRIS, Lieut.-Colonel,
Comdg. 2nd Battn., Devonshire Regt.

TREASURE TROVE.

Notice is hereby given under Section 5 of the Indian Treasure Trove Act, VI of 1878, that in the town of Puntamba, in the Kopergaon Taluka of the Ahmednagar District, the undermentioned treasure was found on the 15th of December 1882, in the dwelling-house of one Vinayak Ganesh

Nedre, to the south side of the chimney which is in the eastern wall of the house :—

Gold ornaments.

	R	a.	p.
4 "Patlias," or bracelets worn by women on the wrist . . . . .	207	8	0
1 "Harpad Revdiachi Mal," beads, 66 in number, strung together . . . . .	30	0	0
4 "2-Gondas" with a silver base to each and 2 beads of gold with which women adorn their hair on the head . . . . .	10	0	0
1 "Rakhdi," a head ornament with a silver base . . . . .	15	0	0
2 "Sarries," gold necklets worn by women . . . . .	250	0	0
1 "Mud," head ornament worn by women . . . . .	25	0	0
2 Rings set with diamonds . . . . .	42	8	0
1 Pair of "Velas," armlets of women . . . . .	173	2	0
1 "Kanthi," a double chain worn by men round their necks . . . . .	155	0	0
17 "Putalis" or Venetian coins strung together . . . . .	102	0	0
	1,010	2	0

Any one who may have a claim to the said treasure, or a portion thereof, may personally or by agent appear before the Mamlatdar of Kopergaon, on the 19th January 1884, when that officer will institute an enquiry into the matter under the provisions of the Act above quoted.

J. ELPHINSTON,
Acting Collector.

AHMEDNAGAR,
The 6th September 1883.

TREASURE TROVE.

It is hereby notified, under Section 5 of the Indian Treasure Trove Act, VI of 1878, that on or about the 25th July 1883, the undermentioned articles, valued at Rs5 0-10, were found within the limits of Kasimagorpuram in Tenkasi Taluk, Tinnevely District, by Mutusami Pillai and three other coolies while excavating earth :—

	R	a.	p.
23 Zinc pieces of wire . . . . .	0	0	6
7½ Silver large coins . . . . .	1	8	0
6 Silver small coins . . . . .	0	2	0
1 Gold piece of string . . . . .	1	8	0
1 Gold screw . . . . .	0	12	0
1 Gold plate bored . . . . .	3	12	0
3 Gold pieces of bracelet . . . . .	1	0	0
2 Gold wire rings . . . . .	2	8	0
7 Gold plates bored . . . . .	15	0	0
1 Gold marriage tie (tali) . . . . .	1	0	0
2 Gold earrings . . . . .	1	0	0
1 Gold earring set with stone . . . . .	5	0	0
2 Gold pieces of waste string . . . . .	12	0	0
4 Gold finger rings . . . . .	2	0	0

	R	a.	p.
2 Gold pieces of wire . . . . .	0	8	0
2 Gold pieces of finger rings . . . . .	0	6	0
11½ Silver coins . . . . .	1	12	0
1 Gold ring set with stone . . . . .	0	4	0
1 Emerald . . . . .	0	0	2
6 Zinc pieces . . . . .	0	0	2
1 Gold string . . . . .	1	0	0
1 gold earring set with emerald . . . . .	4	0	0

All persons claiming the said treasure, or any part thereof, are hereby required to appear personally or by agent before the Collector of Tinnevely, at his Office, on 15th January 1884, at Tinnevely, in order that the matter may be enquired into and determined in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

A. J. B. ATKINSON,
Acting Collector of Tinnevely.

The 1st September 1883.

WANTED

ENGLISH AND PERSIAN WRITER.

Required for the Commissioner's Office, Peshawar, a Deputy Superintendent and Translator. His work will be entirely with the Commissioner, and confidential, and he must possess a thorough and idiomatic knowledge of English and Persian for correspondence in both languages; pay Rs130, with prospects; apply in own hand-writing with copies of certificates, not originals, to Commissioner, Abbottabad.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATION.

Unclaimed Letters held in the Calcutta General Post Office on 13th September 1883.

Bosanquet & Co.	Lowry, Lt. F. J.	Smallwood, G.
Burrows, H. B.	Ludovic, F. W.	Steele, W. W.
Colbrook, Robert.	Macleod, C. H.	Turner, John T.
Downie, Dr. K. M.	Ross, Lieut. W. C.	Walters, W. H.
Fardell, G. W.	Secretary, the C. V. E.	White, W. M.
FitzWilliam, Hon'ble C.	Society, -	Young, J. D.
Foxley, W.	Secretary to the Tent Club.	Youngs, G. B.
Hardwick, E.
Lanorgere, V.

Letters marked "Care of Post Office."

Agist, John.	Douglas, P. H.	M. M. M.
A. Q. R.	Dyett, B. H. R.	Misud, George.
A. X. Y. Z.	Erter, Frau. Merrie.	Moore, Miss L.
Baggs, W. H.	"Felix."	Mosse, W. Forbes.
Baker, C. J. Seymour.	Fergus, Mrs. M.	Nordt, Miss Minnie.
B. B.	Ferrell, Mrs. J. B.	Pearson, H. J. F. G.
Barber, C. J.	Field, Miss Fanny.	Perrins, C. H.
Battersby, Leslie C.	Fount, P. S.	Rains, -
Boswell, Lt.	Gahan, Capt. R. L.	Rathergurd, R. C.
Bradley, Walter.	Gelseid, Leann.	Rode, Capt. J.
Bradshaw, D. E.	Hallewell, J. A.	Ross, C. Henry.
Brown, John.	Haly, J. J.	Ryan, J. H.
Bruntton, Mrs. J.	H. R. A.	Sanford, E. C. Ayshford.
Bullwell, H.	Hilbert, J.	Scott, Montagu Hill.
Burley, Mrs. E.	Horridge, Charles.	Specht, Otto.
Burlington, Charles.	Jugels, H. V.	Spencer, Mrs. L.
Camar, Madame A.	J. B. - B. M.	Stoker, H. W.
Campbell, Dr. M. R.	Jones, H.	Tomlinson, Captn.
Chase, J.	Jones, John.	Joseph S.
Cotton, F.	Karoly, S.	Tucker, Mrs.
Coutt, P. S.	Kavanaugh, P.	Vaughan, Percy.
Crispini, C. Umberto.	Kirkbride, J.	VansAgnew, Lieut. P. A.
Croose, Richard Victoria.	Langley, Manly G.	White, Mrs. S.
Crowther, John.	Lee, Frederick.	Williams, J. M.
Dalvell, Mrs. R. F.	Lynam, B.	Wyndham, W. G.
D'Cruz, Mrs. Bella.	McKay, James D.

Registered Letters.

Barrett, Captain J. C.	Harrison, W. H.	Nardini, Sig. Raffaello.
Damate, Michael.	Moses, S. H.	Weben, Madame Martha.
Gahan, Capt. R. L. (parcel).	Marshall, Edmund.	Wood, Mrs. Nellie.
	Menzies, Charles.

E. HUTTON,
Presidency Post Master.

GOVERNMENT CINCHONA FEBRIFUGE.

This preparation is an efficient substitute for Quinine and can be purchased by Government officers for public and charitable purposes, and by any one taking twenty pounds at a time, from the Superintendent, Botanical Garden, Calcutta, for cash only, at the following rates:—per four ounce tin, R1-8; per eight ounce tin, RS-5; per pound tin, R16-8. The general public can be supplied by the Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, for cash only, at the under-noted rates:—per four ounce tin R5-8; per eight ounce tin R10-8; per pound tin, R20. This medicine is also sold by the principal European and Native druggists in Calcutta. Postage 8 annas per four and eight ounce tins, and 12 annas per pound tin, in addition to the foregoing rates.

گورنمنٹ سنکونا فبري فيوج

یہ دوا کوئینائین کا خوب قائم مقام ہی اور کلکتہ کے ہوائیکل گارڈن یعنی کمپنی باغ کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے ہر ایک ملازم سرکاری واسطے سرکاری کام اور خیرات کے اور سیوے اونکے جو کوئی ایک مشہد بیس پونڈ خرید لینے سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس کے تین کا چار روپیہ آٹھ آنہ؛ آٹھ اونس کے تین کا آٹھ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ؛ ایک پونڈ کے تین کا سولہ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ،

اور عوام الناس ہوائیکل گارڈن یعنی کمپنی باغ کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس تین کا پانچ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ؛ آٹھ اونس کے تین کا دس روپیہ آٹھ آنہ؛ ایک پونڈ کے تین کا بیس روپیہ

یہ دوا کلکتہ کے بڑے بڑے دلائی اور دیسی دواخانہ میں مکتی ہی ماسیوے قیمت مذکورہ بالا کے معقول قاک چار رو آٹھ اونس کے تین کا آٹھ آنہ؛ اور ایک پونڈ کے تین کا بارہ آنہ

Meteorological Publications for Sale.

The following publications of the Meteorological Office of the Government of India are on sale and can be procured at the Meteorological Office, No. 4, Middleton Row, or either at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., or at Messrs. Brown & Co., at the prices noted against them:—

Report on the Meteorology of India, 1875, 4to, 89 pages text, 297 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	R	a.	p.
Report on the Meteorology of India, 1876, 4to, 97 pages text, 340 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India 1877, 4to, 173 pages text, 375 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	8	4	0
Report on the Meteorology of India, in 1878, 4to, 149 pages text, 380 pages tables, 3 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India in 1879, 4to, 164 pages text, 273 pages tables, 4 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India in 1880, 4to, 174 pages text, 286 pages tables, 6 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part I, 4to, 118 pages, 9 plates	2	8	0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part II, 4to, 63 pages, 4 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part III, 4to, 86 pages, 2 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part IV, 4to, 62 pages, 8 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part V, 4to, 57 pages, 10 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part VI, 4to, 62 pages . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, cloth bound, 4to, 438 pages, 33 plates . . . . .	10	0	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. II, Part I, 4to, 78 pages, 9 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Rainfall Chart of India, showing the average annual distribution of rainfall (in colors) . . . . .	1	9	0
Report on the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones, October 1876, 4to, 87 pages, 4 plates . . . . .	2	0	0
Report on the Madras Cyclone, May 1877, 4to, 117 pages text, 97 pages tables, 4 plates . . . . .	2	8	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1879, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1880, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1881, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0

HENRY F. BLANFORD.

*Meteorological Reporter
to the Government of India.*

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

	Without Postage.	With Postage.
For the CALCUTTA SERIES . . . . .	R35	R37-8
„ MADRAS SERIES . . . . .	„ 8	„ 9
„ BOMBAY SERIES . . . . .	„ 8	„ 9
„ ALLAHABAD SERIES . . . . .	„ 8	„ 9
Complete set . . . . .	„45	„47-8

The price of each Part purchased separately will vary according to the amount of matter it contains, and will be printed on the wrapper. It will, however, never be below the following:—

For a Part of the CALCUTTA SERIES .	R3	8
" " MADRAS SERIES .	"	1 0
" " BOMBAY SERIES .	"	1 0
" " ALLAHABAD SERIES .	"	1 0
Complete set .	"	4 0

Persons desiring to subscribe for or purchase the Reports, should apply to—

MESSRS. THACKER, SPINK AND CO., CALCUTTA;
MESSRS. THACKER AND CO., BOMBAY;
MESSRS. HIGGINBOTHAM AND CO., MADRAS;
THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL BOOK DEPOT, BOMBAY;
THE GOVERNMENT BOOK DEPOT, ALLAHABAD.

Orders and Subscriptions for 1875 should be at once remitted.

THE BENGAL LAW REPORTS.

A few sets of the Bengal Law Reports (Volumes 1 to 15) are available at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., Calcutta, at R375 a set.

For sale in Rajputana to Officers stationed there.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India, 4th Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Apply to the Superintendent, Commissioner's Office, Ajmer.

The following books may be purchased from the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, No. 166, Dhurrumtollah Street, for private use only, which should be stated in the requisition.

No orders can be attended to unless accompanied by a remittance. When postage stamps are forwarded, one anna additional should be sent for every Rupee's worth of stamps, for discount in exchanging them for cash. Service labels or Court Fee stamps are not received.

Books required for the public service cannot be supplied on payment; they are only issued on the authority of the Department to which the indenting officer is subordinate. Applications for them should be made through the Local Government under which the applicant serves.

Revised Edition.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part I.

Transport of Troops by Sea. Price, R2-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part II.

Transport of Troops, Inland. Price, R2-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Public Works Department Classified List and Distribution Return of Establishment, corrected up to 30th June 1883. Price R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Preliminary Administration Report on the Railways in India for 1882-83 by Colonel F. S. STANTON, R.E., Director General of Railways. Price, R1; packing and postage, 3 annas.

The Report of the Rent Law Commission, with draft of Bill to amend the Law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal, in two volumes. Price, R3; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Report of the Government of Bengal on the proposed amendment, with revised Bill and Appendices, in two volumes. Price, R4; packing and postage, R1.

Correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State regarding the proposed amendment. Price, annas 8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

The Bengal Tenancy Bill, with annexures. Price, annas 4; packing and postage, 3 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled, under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. First Edition.

Price reduced from R10 to R5; packing and postage, 12 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Statutes relating to India and the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. Second Edition, by William Fischer Agnew, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

Price, R10; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Regulations for the Medical Department, Her Majesty's Forces, Bengal, 1882. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 6 annas; interleaved copy, R2-8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Travelling Allowance Code (Civil), Revised Edition, 1883. Price R1; packing and postage, 2 annas. Correction slips for the above. R1 per annum.

A Manual of the Land Revenue Systems and Land Tenures of British India, by B. H. BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S. Royal 8vo, half calf. Price, R6; packing and postage, 8 annas.

A Manual of Jurisprudence for Forest Officers, by BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S., royal 8vo., half calf. Price, R6; packing and postage, 7 annas.

Carbine and Rifle Exercises and Musketry Instruction for Native Troops, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Indian Appendix to the British Musketry Regulations, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, 12 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Instructions for payment of British Troops, India, 1882. Royal 8vo, cloth gilt. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Folio Foolscap.

Return of Wrecks and Casualties in Indian Waters for the years 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, and 1882. Price, R2 each; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Royal octavo, cloth, gilt.

The Commissariat Code for India, published under authority of the Government of India. Price, R4; by post 8 annas extra

Fasciculus of forms referred to in the Code. Price, R2; by post 14 annas extra.

Compendium of Existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Compiled by H. G. Whelan, Superintendent, Office of Examiner of Commissariat Accounts. Price, R5; packing and postage, 8 annas. Interleaved copies, R6; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Appendices to the Compendium of existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Price, R4 for plain copies, and R5 for interleaved copies; packing and postage, 6 annas and 9 annas respectively.

Revised edition.

General Rules and Circular Orders of the High Court in Bengal, Appellate Side—Civil, R2 8; Criminal, R1 8; packing and postage, 5 annas and 3 annas respectively.

Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to the public monthly, at R3 a year payable in advance.

P. W. D. Code, 4th Edition.

Vol. I.—(For the use of Sub-divisional as well as Divisional Officers)—

Chap. I. Organization of the Department.—II. Rules for candidates for appointment or promotion.—III. Duties of Departmental Officers.—IV. Rules affecting personal conduct.—V. Special Rules applicable to all branches.—VI. Office arrangements.—VII. Designs and Estimates.—VIII. Contracts.—IX. Execution of works.—X. Cash and stores.—XI. Public buildings.—XII. Accounts. Price, R2 8; packing and postage, 4 annas; interleaved copies, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. II.—(For the use of Divisional Officers)—

Chap. XIII. Executive Engineers' Accounts.—XIV. Duties of Examiner's Office.—XV. Budget Rules and Annual Reports.—XVI. Military Works.—XVII. Irrigation. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas; interleaved copies, R2 8; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Super-royal octavo, cloth.

Tribes of the Hindoo Koosh. Price, R6; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Civil Service Gradation List is no longer appended to the Army List, but is published separately, and may be obtained from Mr. H. W. Ronaldson, Civil Fund Office, Calcutta. Price, R1; postage, 4 annas.

Select Extra-Tropical Plants readily eligible for industrial culture or naturalisation, with indications of their native countries and some of their uses, by Baron Ferd. Von Mueller. Indian edition, 1880. Price, R4; Packing and postage, 6 annas.

Report on Cotton Gins, and on the cleaning and quality of Indian cotton, in two parts; by Dr. FORBES WATSON. Price, R5; packing and postage, 10 annas.

West India Pilot, Volume II. Price, R6; packing and postage, 6 annas.

THE INDIAN STATUTE-BOOK.

REVISED EDITION.

A.—General Acts.

Vol. I.—From 1834 to 1863.

Vol. II.—From 1864 to 1871.

Vol. III.—From 1872 to June 1876.

Price of each Volume, R5; packing and postage, 12 annas.

The above to be had at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 166, Dhurrumtollah Street, Calcutta.

A Manual of Tibetan, being a Guide to the Colloquial Speech of Tibet, in a Series of Progressive Exercises, by Major T. H. Lewin, F.R.G.S., of the Bengal Staff Corps, late Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling. Price, R6; postage, 8 annas.

Copies are to be had at the Office of the Director of Public Instruction.

Examination Paper for Station Masters, Goods Clerks, Booking Clerks, Guards, Signallers, and menials employed on State Railways, by Mr. G. S. LEONARD, Traffic Superintendent, Northern Bengal State Railway. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas. To be had on application from the Manager, Northern Bengal State Railway, Saidpore.

Publications for Sale at the Bengal Secretariat Press.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for India, Fourth Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R1.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Safe Use of Steam, in Bengali. Price, 2 annas; postage, 1 anna.

Distribution Return of Officers and Subordinates employed under District Road Cess Committees. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 2 annas; postage, 1 anna.

List of Officers of the Public Works Department, Bengal. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 6 annas; postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

The Quarterly Civil List. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Reprint of the Report of the Rent Law Commission, with the draft of a Bill to consolidate and amend the law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal. Vols. I and II. Price, R3 8; packing and postage, 9 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers engaged in the Administration of the Salt Department. Price, R1 4; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Administration of Wards' and Attached Estates. Revised edition. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R1; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Board's Rules, or Rules for the guidance of Officers engaged in the administration of the Revenue Department in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. Revised edition, Vol. I. Price, R4; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R5; postage, 8 annas.

Ditto ditto, Vol. II. Price, R3; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R3 8; postage, 8 annas.

Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to purchasers monthly, at R2 per annum, including postage.

Rules for the Lease of Waste Lands in Bengal, May 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Opium Department. Published by authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Bengali Translation of the Revised Salt Manual. Price, 4 annas; postage 6 pies.

Civil Suits, 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Rules under the Cess Act, No. IX (B.C.) of 1880. Price, R1 8; postage, 2 annas.

The Bengal Pilots' Code of Signals, revised, enlarged, and arranged for use with three Geometrical Shapes in combination with the eighteen International Code Flags (on the plan of the Trinity Light-house Code), intended as a Supplement to the International Code of Signals. Also Calm or Line of Wind Signals; made with the above three shapes only. Concluding with the Morse Flashing Signals. Compiled by S. R. ELSON, Licensed Master Pilot, Bengal Pilot Service. Published by authority of the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 3; postage, 2 annas and 6 pies.

The Bengal Embankment Manual: containing an account of the action of the Government in dealing with Embankments and Water-courses since the Permanent Settlement; a discussion of the principles of the Act of 1873; a reprint of the Act itself, with notes and appendices describing the present condition of Embankments under State control in Bengal, and the chief controversies concerning them. By HENRY IRLAND HARRISON, B.A., C.S., late Mathematical Junior Student of Christ Church, Oxford. Price, Rs. 2; with map, Rs. 4.

The Factories' Act, XV of 1881, with Rules and Forms. Price, 2 annas and 6 pies; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Bengali Translations of the Rules and Notifications under the Arms Act issued by the Governments of India and Bengal. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Hindi Translation of the Rules and Notifications under the Indian Arms Act, 1878. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urya ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urdu ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Annual Report on Inland Emigration for 1880-81. Price, Rs. 1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Ditto ditto ditto for 1882. Price, Rs. 1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Papers regarding the Tea Industry in Bengal. Price, Rs. 3; postage, 3 annas.

List of the Trees, Shrubs, and large Climbers found in the Darjeeling District, Bengal. By J. S. GAMBLE, M.A., Assistant Conservator of Forests, Bengal. Price, Rs. 1-8; postage, 1 anna.

Report on the Census of Calcutta and its Suburbs, 1881. Price Rs. 4; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1881-82. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1879-80. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1878-79. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 6; postage, 6 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1877-78. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 8; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1876-77. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 5; Colored Map, Rs. 8.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Ganja in Bengal. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Collector, on special duty. Price, Rs. 1-8; postage, 3 annas.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Jute in Bengal, and on Indian Fibres available for the Manufacture of Paper; with Map. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Magistrate, on special duty. Price, Rs. 5; postage, 7 annas.

Report on the Food-grain Supply and Statistical Review of the Relief Operations in the distressed districts of Behar and Bengal during the Famine of 1873-74. By A. P. MACDONNELL, of the Bengal Civil Service. Price Rs. 4; postage, 6 annas.

Prices of Food-grains, Firewood, and Salt in Bengal from 1866 to 1878, compiled in the Bengal Secretariat, Statistical Department. Price, Rs. 2; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Report on the Census of Bengal, 1872. By H. BEVERLEY, Esq., C.S., Registrar-General of Bengal. Price, Rs. 10; postage, 9 annas.

Report on the Effects of Artificial Respiration, Intravenous Injection of Ammonia, and Administration of various Drugs, &c., in India and Australian Snake-poisoning; and the Physiological, Chemical and Microscopical Nature of Snake-poisons. By the Commission appointed to investigate the subject. Price, Rs. 1; postage, 4 annas.

Memorandum on the Revenue History of Chittagong. By H. J. S. COTTON, Esq., Collector and Magistrate of Chittagong. Price, Rs. 4; packing and postage, 4 annas.

A Report on the District of Jessore: its Antiquities, its History and its Commerce. (Second Edition, Revised and Corrected.) By J. WESTLAND, Esq., C.S., late Magistrate and Collector of Jessore. Price, Rs. 3; postage, 3 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1881-82. Price, Rs. 6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1879-80. Price, Rs. 6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1878-79. Price, Rs. 6; packing and postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1877-78. Price, Rs. 8; postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1876-77. Price, Rs. 8; postage, 6 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1875-76. Price, Rs. 8; postage, 7 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1874-75. Price, Rs. 8; postage, 7 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1874-75. Price, if taken with the Report, Rs. 1; separately, price, Rs. 2; postage, 3 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1873-74. Price, Rs. 4; postage, 5 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1872-73. Price, Rs. 7-8; postage, 10 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1873. Price, if taken with the Report, Rs. 1; separately, price, Rs. 2; postage, 3 annas.

Report of the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones of October 1876. By J. ELIOT, Esq., M.A., Meteorological Reporter to the Government of Bengal. Price, Rs. 3; postage, 4 annas.

The Winds of Northern India. By H. F. BLANFORD, Esq., Meteorological Reporter to Government. Price, Rs. 1 per copy; postage, 3 annas.

A Statistical Account of Bengal. By W. W. HUNTER, B.A., LL.D., Director-General of Statistics to the Government of India.

- |           |   |
|-----------|---|
| Vol. I.   | 24-Pergunnahs and Sundarbans.   |
| Vol. II.  | Nadiya and Jessore.   |
| Vol. III. | Midnapur, Hugli and Howrah.   |
| Vol. IV.  | Bardwan, Bankura and Birbhum.   |
| Vol. V.   | Dacca, Bakarganj, Faridpur and Maimensing.                                |
| Vol. VI.  | Chittagong Hill Tracts, Chittagong, Noakhali, Tipperah and Hill Tipperah. |
| Vol. VII. | Maldah, Rangpur and Dinagepur.  |

- Vol. VIII. Rajshahi and Bogra.
 Vol. IX. Murshidabad and Pabna.
 Vol. X. Darjiling, Jalpaiguri and Kuch Behar State.
 Vol. XI. Patna and Saran.
 Vol. XII. Gaya and Shahabad.
 Vol. XIII. Tirhut and Champaran.
 Vol. XIV. Bhagalpur and Santal Parganas.
 Vol. XV. Monghyr and Purniah.
 Vol. XVI. Hazaribagh and Lohardaga.
 Vol. XVII. Singbhum, Tributary States and Manbhum.
 Vol. XVIII. Cuttack and Balasor.
 Vol. XIX. Puri and Tributary States of Orissa.
 Vol. XX. Fisheries and Botany of Bengal, with General Index.
 Vol. XX. General Index only.

Price, per volume, R1; postage, 6 annas.

Manual of Materia Medica in Urdu, compiled by SHAIK AKBAR ALLY, Civil Hospital Assistant, Dinapore. Price, 8 annas per copy; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Buddha Gayá, the Hermitage of Sákya Muni. By Kájendralála Mitra, LL.D., C.I.E., Honorary Member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Physical Class of the Imperial Academy of Sciences, Vienna; Corresponding Member of the German and of the American Oriental Societies; of the Royal Academy of Science, Hungary, and of the Ethnological Society of Berlin; Fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c. Price, R30; packing and postage, R1-4.

Further Notes on the Rungpore Records, Vol. II. By E. G. GLAZIER, Esq., C.S., Officiating Magistrate and Collector, Rungpore. Price, R1; postage, 2 annas.

Selection of Papers regarding the Hill Tracts between Assam and Burma, and on the Upper Brahmapooter. Price, R5; postage, 4 annas.

Selections from Divisional and District Annual Administration Reports, 1872-73, with the Government Resolutions on them. Price, R5; postage, 6 annas.

Selections from the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, 1871 to 1874. Price, R2-8; postage, 3 annas.

Progressive Colloquial Exercises in the Lushai Dialect of the Dzo or Kuki Language. With Vocabularies and Popular Tales (notated). By CAPTAIN THOMAS HERBERT LEWIN, B.S.C., Deputy Commissioner Chittagong Hills. Price, R6; postage, 3 annas.

Notes on the History of Midnapore, as contained in records extant in the Collector's Office. By J. C. PALOE, Officiating Settlement Officer of Midnapore. Vol. I. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

Descriptive Ethnology of Bengal. By EDWARD TUTE DALTON, C.S.I., Colonel, Bengal Staff Corps; Commissioner of Chutja Nagpur; Member of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, &c. Illustrated by Lithograph Portraits copied from Photographs. Printed for the Government of Bengal, under the direction of the Council of the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

Price—Bound copies . . . . . R45 0 0
 " Unbound copies . . . . . " 35 0 0

The Statistical Reporter, edited by H. J. S. COTTON, Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal.
 Vol. I, bound in full cloth, lettered . . . R10 0 0
 Vol. II, ditto ditto . . . " 10 0 0
 Single copies of monthly Nos. . . . . " 2 0 0

Annual Statement of the Sea-borne Trade and Navigation of the Bengal Presidency, and of its Chief Port and each of the Subordinate Ports, with Foreign Countries, for the official year 1875-76. Vol. I. Price, R12; postage, 10 annas.

Rules for the Examination of, and grant of Certificates of Competency to, Masters, Mates and Engineers. Price, R1; postage, 1 anna.

Abstract of the Rules of the Road at Sea, in English. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Ditto ditto in Arabic. Price, R1; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Sanitary Primers in English and in Bengali. Price, R6 per hundred, including transit and packing charges; single copies, 1 anna each.

The Book named below having been declared a part of the obligatory equipment of Emigrant vessels, is now obtainable at the Bengal Secretariat Press at the price noted:—

West India Pilot, Vol. II . . . . . R5 0 0

 Cash must be sent with order.

Apply to Accountant, Bengal Secretariat, Writers' Buildings, Calcutta.

NOTICE.

The 9th February 1883.—The subscription to, and postage for, the Calcutta Gazette will henceforward be at the following rates, payable in advance:—

For the Mofussil.

	R	a.	p.
Entire Gazette . . . . .	15	0	0	per annum.
Postage . . . . .	5	0	0	"
Supplement . . . . .	6	0	0	"
Postage . . . . .	3	0	0	"
Parts III, IV, V, and VI, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Councils of India and Bengal . . . . .	5	0	0	"
Postage . . . . .	2	8	0	"
For a single copy—
Entire Gazette . . . . .	0	8	0
Postage . . . . .	0	2	0
Supplement . . . . .	0	4	0
Postage . . . . .	0	1	0
Parts III, IV, V, and VI . . . . .	0	1	0	for 4 sheets or under with an additional charge of 1 anna for every 4 sheets in excess of 4.
Postage . . . . .	0	1	0

For Calcutta.

The same rates as those for the mofussil, with the exception of the charge for postage.

E. N. BAKER,

Offg. Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

---

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

---

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

---

PART III.

Advertisements and Notices by Private Individuals and Corporations.

PROMISSORY NOTES.

Lost

The Government Promissory Notes, Nos. 161053 and 161054, of the 4 per cent. of 1865, for ₹1,000 each, originally standing in the name of the Comptroller General, and last endorsed to the proprietor, by whom they were never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Notes and the interest thereupon have been stopped at the Public Debt Office, Bank of Bengal, and application is about to be made for the issue of duplicates in favour of the proprietor.

PANNA LALL,
Late Command Gomashta, Kooncha Sunjogee Ram, Delhi.

Lost or Stolen

In transit by Post, Government Debentures in the Cawnpur and Furrackabad Railway, for ₹1,000. Application is about to be made for the issue of a duplicate in favour of the proprietor.

T. F. O'MEARA,
Resident Engineer, O. & R. Railway, Saharanpur.

SUPPLEMENT TO
The Gazette of India.

N<sup>o</sup> 37.} CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1883.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

A SUPPLEMENT to the GAZETTE OF INDIA will be published from time to time, containing such official Papers and information as the Government of India may deem to be of interest to the Public, and such as may usefully be made known.

Non-Subscribers to the GAZETTE may receive the SUPPLEMENT separately on a payment of six Rupees per annum if delivered in Calcutta, or nine Rupees if sent by Post.

No Official Orders or Notifications, the publication of which in the GAZETTE OF INDIA is required by Law, or which it has been customary to publish in the CALCUTTA GAZETTE, will be included in the SUPPLEMENT. For such Orders and Notifications the body of the GAZETTE must be looked to.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

RETURNS OF ACCIDENTS ON INDIAN RAILWAYS FOR THE FIRST QUARTER OF 1883.

No. 933 R. T., dated Simla, the 27th August 1883.

OBSERVATIONS—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read again—

Public Works Department Resolution No. 725 R. T., dated the 20th July 1882.

Public Works Department Resolution No. 623 R. T., dated the 2nd June 1883.

Read also—

Returns of Accidents to trains, &c., on the open lines of railway in India for the quarter ending 31st March 1883.

OBSERVATIONS.—As compared with the corresponding quarter of the previous year with an increase of 248 miles, or 2·51 per cent. in the open mileage, and of 272,088 miles, or 2·72 per cent. in the train mileage, the number of accidents to trains, rolling-stock, permanent-way, &c., shows an increase of 20, or 2·87 per cent. The following are the railways on which the numbers chiefly vary :—

	Increase.	Decrease.
Bombay, Baroda and Central India . . . . .	12	...
Punjab Northern . . . . .	15	...
Indus Valley and Kandahar . . . . .	35	...
Rajputana-Malwa . . . . .	...	18
Wardha Coal . . . . .	...	20
Northern Bengal . . . . .	11	...
Mysore . . . . .	...	16

2. On the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway the increase chiefly took place under “miscellaneous accidents,” the number being 8 against 18.

3. On the Punjab Northern and Indus Valley and Kandahar State Railways the cases of fire in trains increased from 5 to 25, and 8 to 25 respectively. The number of cattle "accidents on the latter line also rose from 26 to 33, and that of cases of trains running over obstructions" from 1 to 7.

4. The number of cases in which trains ran over cattle on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was 23 against 29, and that of "broken rails" 10 against nil. Under "fire in trains" and "miscellaneous" there were no accidents, while in the corresponding period of 1882 the accidents under these heads numbered 4 and 8 respectively.

5. Of the decrease of 20 accidents on the Wardha Coal Railway, 8 occurred under "failure of tyres" and 9 under "fire in trains."

6. The increase on the Northern Bengal Railway, and decrease on the Mysore Railway, call for no particular remark.

7. The total number of accidents on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway was 87 against 95, but it appears from the details that, while there was an increase of 17 accidents under "goods trains or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails," there was a decrease of 21 accidents under "fire in trains."

8. On the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway there were 6 cases of "failure of couplings" against nil in the corresponding quarter of 1882; the number of "miscellaneous accidents" increased from 1 to 20, but owing to decreases under other heads, there was a total increase of 5 accidents only on this line.

9. The casualties resulting from accidents to trains, &c., exhibit a very large reduction, being, among passengers, 4 injured against 14 killed and 31 injured, and, among servants, 2 killed and 6 injured against 2 killed and 10 injured. The decrease in the casualties to passengers is accounted for by the fact that in the corresponding quarter of 1882 13 men were killed and 15 injured in a single accident on the East Indian Railway at Shikohabad, caused by an up-mail train coming into collision with an up-goods train which it was following, and 13 men slightly injured in an accident on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway, caused, through the carelessness of the pointsman, by an up-mail train colliding with some wagons standing on a siding at the Viramgam station.

10. The following table exhibits the number of accidents under the different classes, and the number of persons killed and injured thereby:—

DESCRIPTION OF ACCIDENTS.	Number of accidents.	NUMBER OF PASSENGERS AND OTHERS.		NUMBER OF SERVANTS.		TOTAL.
		Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.
Collisions between passenger trains and goods or mineral trains, engines, and vehicles standing foul of the line	16	...	...	1	...	1	...
Collisions between goods trains or parts of goods trains	15	...	4	...	1	...	5
Collisions between light engines	4	...	...	1	...	1	...
Passenger trains or parts of passenger trains leaving the rails	9	...	...	...	...	...	...
Goods trains or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails	72	...	...	...	...	...	...
Trains or engines travelling in the wrong direction through points	9	...	...	...	...	...	...
Trains running into stations or sidings at too high a speed	2	...	...	...	...	...	...
Trains running over cattle on the line	210	...	...	...	...	...	...

DESCRIPTION OF ACCIDENTS.	Number of accidents.	NUMBER OF PASSENGERS AND OTHERS.		NUMBER OF SERVANTS.		TOTAL.
		Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.
Trains running over obstructions on the line . . . . .	37	*1	*1	...	...	1	1
Do. do. through gates at level crossings . . . . .	15	...	...	...	...	...	...
The bursting of boilers or tubes, &c., of engines . . . . .	19	...	...	...	...	...	...
The failure of machinery, springs, &c., of engines . . . . .	66	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of tyres . . . . .	1	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of wheels . . . . .	1	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of axles . . . . .	14	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of brake apparatus . . . . .	1	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of couplings . . . . .	31	...	...	...	...	...	...
Do. of tunnels, bridges, viaducts, culverts, &c. . . . .	1	...	...	...	...	...	...
Broken rails . . . . .	16	...	...	...	...	...	...
The flooding of portions of permanent-way . . . . .	1	...	...	...	...	...	...
Fire in trains . . . . .	95	...	...	...	...	...	...
Fire at stations or involving injury to bridges or viaducts . . . . .	4	...	...	...	...	...	...
Other accidents . . . . .	77	...	...	...	5	...	5
TOTAL . . . . .	716	1	5	2	6	3	11

11. The number of derailments of "goods trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c.," has increased from 53 to 72. This increase appears to be due to there being 26 accidents of this description against 9 in the corresponding quarter of 1882 on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and 9 against 1 on the East Indian Railway.

12. The cattle accidents were, as previously noticed, numerous on the South Indian, Indus Valley and Kandahar, and Rajputana-Malwa Railways. There were out of a total of 210 accidents, 43 on the South Indian, 33 on the Indus Valley and Kandahar, and 23 on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway.

13. The cases of "bursting of boilers or tubes, &c., of engines" numbered 19, of which 11 occurred on the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway, and 8 on the Indus Valley and Kandahar. As compared with the corresponding previous quarter, there was a reduction of 11 accidents under this head.

14. The number of "failures of machinery, springs, &c., of engines" was the largest on the Indus Valley and Kandahar Railway, being 35 out of a total of 66.

15. There was only one case of "failure of tyres" against 10 in the corresponding quarter of 1882.

16. There were 14 cases of "failure of axles," 31 cases of "failure of couplings," and 16 cases of "broken rails." Of these numbers 8, 11 and 10 respectively occurred on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway alone.

17. Of 95 cases of "fire in trains" 21 took place on the Great Indian Peninsula, 25 on the Punjab Northern, and 25 on the Indus Valley Railway. On the Great Indian Peninsula, as already noted in a previous paragraph, there was a decrease of 21 accidents under this class.

* Not passengers: see footnote to Table No. II of Abstract.

18. The casualties to passengers from causes other than accidents to trains, &c., were :—

	Killed.	Injured.
From falling between carriages and platforms . . . . .	...	2
Falling on to the platform, ballast, &c., when getting into or out of trains .	1	4
Falling out of carriages during the travelling of trains . . . . .	4	15
Other accidents . . . . .	1	6
TOTAL .	6	27

19. And the accidents to servants in the employ of Railways or of contractors, whilst performing duties connected directly with the transit of passengers and goods, from causes other than accidents to trains, &c., were :—

	Killed.	Injured.
During shunting operations . . . . .	3	11
Falling off engines, vans, wagons, &c. . . . .	5	5
Coming in contact with overbridges, &c., during the travelling of trains .	1	...
Getting on or off trains, engines, &c. . . . .	5	6
Whilst loading, unloading or sheeting . . . . .	1	8
Whilst braking, spragging or chocking wheels . . . . .	...	1
Whilst working at cranes or capstans . . . . .	...	2
Whilst working on the permanent-way or in sidings . . . . .	2	2
Whilst walking along the line on the way home or to work . . . . .	1	...
Whilst walking, crossing or standing on the line . . . . .	7	11
Whilst attending to the machinery of engines, cleaning them, &c. . . . .	...	2
Whilst attending to gates at level crossings . . . . .	2	...
Falling off ladders, scaffolds, platforms, &c. . . . .	...	2
By falling of lamps, wagon doors, timber, weights, &c. . . . .	1	6
Whilst coupling or uncoupling wagons . . . . .	3	6
Miscellaneous . . . . .	6	14
TOTAL .	37	76

20. Of other persons killed and injured by running trains, &c., 4 were killed and 2 injured whilst passing over the line at level crossings; 21 were killed and 4 injured whilst trespassing on the line; 3 committed suicide; and 2 were killed and 4 injured from miscellaneous causes.

21. The following table shows the total number of persons killed and injured from causes connected with the working of trains, as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1882:—

	1ST QUARTER 1882.		1ST QUARTER 1883.
	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.
Passengers.
From causes beyond their own control . . .	14	29	...	4
From misconduct or want of caution . . .	10	28	6	27
Servants.
From causes beyond their own control . . .	3	25	4	11
From misconduct or want of caution . . .	40	85	35	71
Others.
Whilst passing at level crossings . . .	3	1	4	2
Trespassers, including suicides . . .	29	6	24	4
Other persons . . .	2	2	2	4
TOTAL .	101	176	75	123

22. In addition to the above, 14 persons are reported to have been killed and 44 injured in yards, workshops, &c., and 91 passengers to have met death in carriages and at stations from causes unconnected with the working of trains.

RESOLUTION.—The attention of the Government and Officers concerned should be invited to the increase in the numbers of derailments of “goods trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c.,” on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, and cases of “fire in trains” on the Punjab Northern and Indus Valley State Railways.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution, together with the abstract returns compiled by the Government of India, be communicated to the Governments, Administrations, and Officers noted in the margin for information.

The Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab.
The Chief Commissioners, Central Provinces, Assam, and British Burma.
The Residents, Hyderabad and Mysore.
The Agents to the Governor General for Rajputana, Central India, and Biluchistan.
The Director General of Railways.
The Consulting Engineers to the Government of India for Guaranteed Railways.

Ordered also, that copies be forwarded to the Secretary of State for information of Her Majesty's Government.

Ordered further, that this Resolution, with the abstract returns, be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

R. A. SARGEAUNT, Major, R.E.,
Offg. Under-Secretary.

[illegible]

See Inclusion of the Branch State lines worked by the Company.

TABLE

NUMBER OF PERSONS reported during the First Quarter of 1883, as KILLED or INJURED on the several RAILWAYS open for traffic, and, so far as practicable, the Nature and Causes of the

[illegible]

TABLE NO. 4.—ACCIDENTS ON RAILWAYS, INCLUDING PASSENGERS, GOODS, AND VEHICLES.

SEE ALSO TABLE NO. 4.

PROVINCIAL STATE—continued.

	NALHATI.				NORTHERN BENGAL.				KASHMIR-DEHRA.				TIRHUT.
	Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.		Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.		Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.		Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.
	No.	Killed.	Injured.	Total all Classes.	No.	Killed.	Injured.	Total all Classes.	No.	Killed.	Injured.	Total all Classes.	No.	Killed.	Injured.	Total all Classes.
ons between passenger trains, or parts of passenger trains	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ons between passenger trains and goods or mineral trains, engines and vehicles	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ading foul of the line	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ons between goods trains, or parts of goods trains	..	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ons between light engines	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ger trains, or parts of passenger trains leaving the rails	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
trains, or parts of goods trains, engines, &c., leaving the rails	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
or engines travelling in the wrong direction through points	..	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
a running into stations or sidings at too high a speed	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
a running over cattle on the line	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
Ditto over obstructions on the line	1	..	..	..	2	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	1	..	..	..
Ditto through gates at level-crossings	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ursting of boilers or tubes, &c., of engines	1	..	..	..	7	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ailure of machinery, springs, &c., of engines	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of tyres	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of wheels	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of axles	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of brake apparatus	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of couplings	..	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
o of tunnels, bridges, viaducts, culverts, &c.	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
en rails	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
flooding of portions of permanent-way	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
in cuttings or embankments	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
in trains	..	..	..	..	3	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
at stations, or involving injury to bridges or viaducts	1	..	..	..	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
r accidents	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
TOTAL ALL CLASSES	3	..	..	..	34	..	..	..	4	..	..	..	7	..	..	..
of Passenger-miles	701,924	..	..	..	8,544,125	..	..	..	842,264	..	..	..	5,679,756	..	..	..
of Servants employed	154	..	..	..	1,672	..	..	..	148	..	..	..	1,128	..	..	..
	9,054	..	..	..	189,137	..	..	..	6,246	..	..	..	89,093	..	..	..

TABLE No. 3.—ACCIDENTS TO TRAINS, ROLLING-STOCK, PERMANENT-WAY, &c., reported during the First Quarter of 1883, &c.—concluded.

SEE ALSO TABLE No. 4.
NATIVE STATES—concluded.
GAKHWAR OF BARODA'S.					MYSORE.					JODHPUR.
No.	Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.		Total all Classes.		Number of Passengers and others.		Number of Servants.		Total all Classes.		Number of Passengers and others.
	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.
	No.		No.		No.		No.		No.		No.		No.
ions between passenger trains or parts of	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
enger trains	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ions between passenger trains and goods	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
mineral trains, engines and vehicles stand-	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
foul of the line	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ions between goods trains, or parts of	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ds trains	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ions between light engines	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
nger trains, or parts of passenger trains,	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ing the rails	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
s trains, or parts of goods trains, engines,	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
leaving the rails	1	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
is or engines travelling in the wrong	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ction through points	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
is running into stations or sidings at too	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
a speed	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
is running over cattle on the line	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
Ditto over obstructions on the line	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
Ditto through gates at level-crossings	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
bursting of boilers or tubes, &c., of engines	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
failure of machinery, springs, &c., of engines	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of tyres	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of wheels	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of axles	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of brake apparatus	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of couplings	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
to of tunnels, bridges, viaducts, cul-	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
verts, &c.	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
ten rails	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
flooding of portions of permanent-way	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
s in cuttings or embankments	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
in trains	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
at stations, or involving injury to bridges	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
viaducts	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
or accidents	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..	..
TOTAL ALL CLASSES	1	..	..	..	..	..	9	..	..	..	..	..	716	1 5 2 6 3 11
of Passenger-miles	1,390,601	..	..	..	..	..	5,914,482	..	..	..	..	..	2,702,144	727,890,455
of Servants employed	285	..	..	..	..	..	715	..	..	..	..	..	663	120,514
	..	..	..	..	..	..	74,647	..	..	..	..	..	24,030	10,277,038

1st Quarter of 1883, distinguishing the different Classes of ACCIDENTS, the Number of PASSENGERS and OTHERS Killed or Injured thereby.

Year.	22. Slips in cuttings or embankments.	23. Fire in trains.	24. Fire at stations, or involving injury to bridges or viaducts.	25. Other accidents.	Total all Classes.	NUMBER OF PASSENGERS AND OTHERS.		NUMBER OF SERVANTS.		TOTAL ALL CLASSES.		Mean miles of Railway open.	Number of Passengers carried.	Train-mileage of all descriptions.	Passenger-mileage.	PER MILE OPEN.			TOTAL PASSENGERS.
						Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.					Number of Passengers carried.	Train-mileage of all descriptions.	Passenger-mileage.	Killed.	Injured.	Killed.	Injured.
...	...	2	...	6	57	...	4	1	...	1	4	1,653	2,917,293	2,538,561	209,985,436	1,765	1,536	127,033	...	1'371	...	0'019
...	...	5	...	...	33	...	...	...	...	...	...	861	1,070,053	462,265	49,688,649	1,243	537	57,710	...	...	...	...
...	...	5	...	1	57	...	...	...	...	...	...	655	1,103,191	370,777	31,799,788	1,693	566	48,549	...	...	...	...
...	...	21	...	11	87	...	...	...	2	...	2	1,457	1,625,201	2,420,754	96,281,452	1,115	1,660	66,036	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	18	33	...	...	1	1	1	1	461	1,931,442	479,024	53,198,511	4,189	1,041	115,398	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	1	...	10	...	...	...	...	...	...	192	701,812	202,515	25,642,427	3,646	1,052	133,207	...	...	...	...
...	...	4	...	20	64	...	...	...	1	...	1	663	961,937	743,812	54,055,568	1,450	1,129	81,470	...	...	...	...
...	...	1	...	2	11	...	...	...	...	...	...	546	583,479	417,452	30,438,769	1,067	763	55,672	...	...	...	...
1	...	25	...	3	40	...	...	...	...	...	...	422	441,550	218,537	21,159,009	1,046	518	50,140	...	...	...	...
...	...	25	2	2	126	*1	*1	...	2	1	3	660	360,001	485,501	10,200,276	545	736	29,091	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	72	...	...	...	...	...	...	1,138	1,291,370	1,072,876	75,309,208	1,134	942	66,133	...	...	...	...
...	...	3	...	...	9	...	...	...	...	...	...	45	31,180	21,717	816,586	693	483	18,146	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	7	21	...	...	...	...	...	...	43	238,244	20,013	2,853,454	5,633	465	66,359	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	1	3	...	...	...	...	...	...	27	34,247	9,954	701,924	1,257	365	25,759	...	...	...	...
...	...	3	1	...	34	...	...	...	...	...	...	230	181,694	189,137	8,544,125	790	822	37,148	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	4	...	...	...	...	...	...	32	28,335	6,246	342,264	878	193	10,613	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	2	7	...	...	...	...	...	...	134	150,965	89,092	5,679,756	1,120	661	42,150	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	3	...	...	...	...	...	...	29	90,431	11,207	1,782,707	3,118	386	61,473	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	...	...	...	86	141,677	33,391	4,191,809	1,638	386	48,460	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	8	...	...	...	...	...	...	128	175,956	119,452	4,189,266	1,375	933	32,729	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	4	22	...	...	...	...	...	...	161	474,632	175,627	14,344,656	2,948	1,091	89,097	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	4	...	...	...	...	...	...	193	182,560	67,107	7,677,588	946	348	39,780	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	...	...	...	59	73,989	17,244	1,390,601	1,254	292	23,570	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	121	96,020	71,847	5,014,482	794	619	48,880	...	...	...	...
...	...	1	...	...	9	...	...	...	...	...	...	86	78,636	24,030	2,702,144	914	279	31,420	...	...	...	...
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	19	†	†	†	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
1	...	95	4	77	716	1	5	2	6	3	11	10,106	14,971,915	10,277,038	727,890,455	1,484	1,019	72,159	...	1'371	...	0'
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	14,177,406	10,004,950	787,223,059	1,438	1,014	79,952	0'987	2'186	0'018	0'

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

LEMENT TO THE STATEMENT OF PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS FOR THE 1st HALF OF AUGUST 1883 PUBLISHED IN PAGES 1522, 1523, 1530 AND 1531 OF THE SUPPLEMENT TO THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA," DATED 8th SEPTEMBER 1883.

[illegible]

STATEMENTS OF IRRIGATION OPERATIONS OF FASL RABI OF 1882-83 IN THE PUNJAB.

Comparative Abstract of Irrigation and Rainfall in Canal Districts of the Punjab.

Area irrigated, 1882-83 . . .	Acres.	421,778
Ditto ditto 1881-82 . . .		434,816
Net decrease . . .		13,038

(1) These figures differ from those shown in the return for corresponding crop of 1981-82, in consequence of the areas remitted before the preparation of demand statements which included in the figures shown in statement for rabi, 1981-82, having been excluded from those entered in the present return.

(2) These figures differ from those shown in the return for rabi, 1981-82, in consequence of the inclusion for those of Lahore in the present return.

Statement in Acres of Crops irrigated in Canal Districts.

* These figures differ from those shown in the return for corresponding crop of 1881-82, the cause of which is explained in note appended to Statement No. 1.

Statement in Acres of Crops irrigated in Canal Divisions.

* These figures differ from those shown in the return for corresponding crop of 1891-92, the cause of which is explained in note appended to Statement No. 1.

R. HOME, Colonel, R.E.,
Joint-Secretary to Govt., Punjab, P. W. D., Irrigation Branch.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

IRRIGATION OPERATIONS OF FASL KHARIF IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES, 1883-84, UP TO 31st JULY 1883.

CANAL DIVISION.	WATER DISTRIBUTED DURING JULY, 1883.					Total area of irrigation during current fasl.	Total area for the corresponding period of last year.	ZILA.	LAND IRRIGATED (APPROXIMATE).								RAIN-FALL.	REMARKS.
	Depth in Canal at regulating gauge in feet.	Gross Consumption, cubic feet per second.	Actual average throughout.	Allotted discharge.	Actual average throughout.				Sugarcane.	Indigo.	Rice.	Cotton.	Other food-grains.	Fodder crops.	Miscellaneous.	Total.
CANAL DIVISION.	(Northern)	10-00	7-17	950	97	43,583	45,585	Saharanpur	16,774	1,794	15,329	367	61	218	1,181	35,724	9-9	15-3	Supply— entering head of Ganges Canal . . . . . 4,337 Lower Ganges Canal . . . . . 1,128 Expend— Ganges Canal . . . . . 2,116 Lower Ganges Canal . . . . . 1,665 Escaped— Anupshahr Branch, Ganges Canal . . . . . 293 Meerut Division, ditto . . . . . 112 Bulandshahr ditto, ditto . . . . . 163 Narora ditto, Lower Ganges Canal . . . . . 210 Mainpuri ditto, ditto . . . . . 104 Cawnpore ditto, ditto . . . . . 632 Etawah ditto, ditto . . . . . 4-9 Bhognipur ditto, ditto . . . . . 274 Percolation from the Narora Division . . . . . 62 Deduct drainage water . . . . . 5,837 172 5,665
	(Anupshahr)	7-00	4-47	1,100	288	44,169	54,280	Muzaffarnagar	41,867	4,671	15,888	1,151	106	398	2,570	66,551	13-2	14-6
	(Meerut)	8-10	5-41	925	1,214	54,907	63,012	Meerut	63,248	17,493	4,588	5,830	776	1,207	2,355	95,497	6-7	12-1
	(Bulandshahr)	7-20	5-28	925	33	60,107	59,676	Bulandshahr	6,082	53,039	14	7,447	1,191	781	1,353	69,907	10-8	12-2
	(Aligarh)	5-50	4-50	1,340	454	70,172	71,986	Aligarh	588	45,504	196	2,780	98-6	28	1,455	51,537	15-3	11-0
CANAL DIVISION.	(Narora)	9-00	4-43	975	93	43,459	13,351	Muttra	1,111	9,956	...	9,419	98	19	1,247	21,850	12-1	12-2	Executive Engineer, Northern Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "during the early part of July, there was fair rain; on the 17th of July there was a fall of 9-6 inches at Roorkie, but only 1-8 inches at Mainpuri, 12 miles below Roorkie. Rice crops only took water till very nearly the end of the month, when a general demand commenced; without early rain crops will suffer." Executive Engineer, Meerut Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "with the decrease in rainfall has been very deficient and a drought is coming. South of Meerut up to end of month there was hardly any demand the rajahs all running into escapes to maintain supply at a fair navigable height above mile 60. The rice crop has in July expanded in the northern half of the Division and is very nearly what it was last year." Executive Engineer, Bulandshahr Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "all irrigation stopped on the 9th, the volume in rajahs and Mat branch was escaping after 1-8th. The water taken in the early days of the month was for sugarcane and indigo; no new irrigation was done this month." Executive Engineer, Mainpuri Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that there was a partial demand for water up to the 18th. After that date there was no demand. The new irrigation done during the month is 1,119 acres against 287 in July 1882. The average rainfall over the division during the month has been 6-3"; the maximum 10-7 inches fell at Jhibramau, zila Farkhabad, and the minimum 2-3 inches at Bilon, zila Mainpuri. Executive Engineer, Cawnpore Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease is due to the reasons noted in the return for May. Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease in indigo and sugarcane is due to reasons given in previous returns. Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that very little new irrigation was effected during the month. Weather cloudy with occasional showers in the 10th, and heavy general rain between the 16th and 26th stopped all demand for the remainder of the month.
	(Mainpuri)	7-00	3-13	600	74	24,212	33,923	Agra	1,278	4,450	3	1,038	1-4	94	462	7,429	12-8	13-6
	(Cawnpore)	8-20	5-55	825	490	43,955	46,923	Etah	1-3 6	26,217	140	742	701	71	1,100	30,277	8-9	12-3
	(Etawah)	5-80	2-99	975	416	59,986	63,870	Mainpuri	2,890	34,257	309	611	1,497	154	1,543	41,761	9-8	15-2
	(Bhognipur)	7-00	5-39	950	450	25,445	21,072	Fatehgarh	2,234	14,831	376	210	623	159	86	18,519	8-1	14-6
TOTAL, UPPER AND LOWER GANGES CANALS.	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Etawah	5,273	42,484	262	86	971	168	883	50,127	10-6	12-0	Executive Engineer, Meerut Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "with the decrease in rainfall has been very deficient and a drought is coming. South of Meerut up to end of month there was hardly any demand the rajahs all running into escapes to maintain supply at a fair navigable height above mile 60. The rice crop has in July expanded in the northern half of the Division and is very nearly what it was last year." Executive Engineer, Bulandshahr Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "all irrigation stopped on the 9th, the volume in rajahs and Mat branch was escaping after 1-8th. The water taken in the early days of the month was for sugarcane and indigo; no new irrigation was done this month." Executive Engineer, Mainpuri Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that there was a partial demand for water up to the 18th. After that date there was no demand. The new irrigation done during the month is 1,119 acres against 287 in July 1882. The average rainfall over the division during the month has been 6-3"; the maximum 10-7 inches fell at Jhibramau, zila Farkhabad, and the minimum 2-3 inches at Bilon, zila Mainpuri. Executive Engineer, Cawnpore Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease is due to the reasons noted in the return for May. Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease in indigo and sugarcane is due to reasons given in previous returns. Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that very little new irrigation was effected during the month. Weather cloudy with occasional showers in the 10th, and heavy general rain between the 16th and 26th stopped all demand for the remainder of the month.
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Cawnpore	4,846	41,337	1,290	23	688	...	1,399	49,583	10-6	10-8
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Delhi	...	30	...	11	...	32	73	8-0	13-2
	...	...	...	9,525	3,679	443,990	473,708	Gurgaon	1,025	4,796	...	14	1,335	84	141	264	16,659	9-5		13-0
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Delra Dún	768	...	3,176	...	...	...	301	4,245	27-3		36-1
Eastern Jumna Canal.	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Bijnor	948	...	...	...	...	...	...	970	11-6	17-5	Executive Engineer, Meerut Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "with the decrease in rainfall has been very deficient and a drought is coming. South of Meerut up to end of month there was hardly any demand the rajahs all running into escapes to maintain supply at a fair navigable height above mile 60. The rice crop has in July expanded in the northern half of the Division and is very nearly what it was last year." Executive Engineer, Bulandshahr Division, Ganges Canal, reports that "all irrigation stopped on the 9th, the volume in rajahs and Mat branch was escaping after 1-8th. The water taken in the early days of the month was for sugarcane and indigo; no new irrigation was done this month." Executive Engineer, Mainpuri Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that there was a partial demand for water up to the 18th. After that date there was no demand. The new irrigation done during the month is 1,119 acres against 287 in July 1882. The average rainfall over the division during the month has been 6-3"; the maximum 10-7 inches fell at Jhibramau, zila Farkhabad, and the minimum 2-3 inches at Bilon, zila Mainpuri. Executive Engineer, Cawnpore Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease is due to the reasons noted in the return for May. Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease in indigo and sugarcane is due to reasons given in previous returns. Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that very little new irrigation was effected during the month. Weather cloudy with occasional showers in the 10th, and heavy general rain between the 16th and 26th stopped all demand for the remainder of the month.
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Tarai	1,270	...	1,325	...	...	...	...	2,595	14-2	20-9
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Pilibhit	813	...	1,306	...	...	...	...	2,119	16-6	22-7
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Bareilly	4,668	...	4,744	...	7	...	...	9,412	9-7	20-2
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Jhansi	13	...	...	4	...	...	...	22	10-3	14-7
TOTAL	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Hamirpur	10	...	...	...	...	...	37	51	16-9	15-2	Executive Engineer, Eastern Jumna Canal, reports that there was a partial demand for water up to the 18th. After that date there was no demand. The new irrigation done during the month is 1,119 acres against 287 in July 1882. The average rainfall over the division during the month has been 6-3"; the maximum 10-7 inches fell at Jhibramau, zila Farkhabad, and the minimum 2-3 inches at Bilon, zila Mainpuri. Executive Engineer, Cawnpore Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease is due to the reasons noted in the return for May. Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that the decrease in indigo and sugarcane is due to reasons given in previous returns. Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports that very little new irrigation was effected during the month. Weather cloudy with occasional showers in the 10th, and heavy general rain between the 16th and 26th stopped all demand for the remainder of the month.
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	TOTAL	157,012	300,759	48,986	40,057	8,386	3,438	16,270	574,908	...	...
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	TOTAL FOR THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR	190,943	304,377	52,136	40,302	8,600	5,285	15,759	617,402	...	...
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Increase	...	...	...	...	...	...	511	...	...	...
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Decrease	33,931	3,618	3,150	245	214	1,847	...	42,494	...	...

W. P. V. HORST,

STATEMENT OF TRAFFIC ON UPPER AND LOWER GANGES CANALS FOR THE MONTH OF JULY 1883.

	UPPER GANGES CANAL.						LOWER GANGES CANAL.						UPPER AND LOWER GANGES CANALS.						REMARKS.
	PRINCIPAL ITEMS OF LOCAL TRAFFIC.						PRINCIPAL ITEMS OF LOCAL TRAFFIC.						PRINCIPAL ITEMS OF THROUGH TRAFFIC.
	Up.			Down.			Up.			Down.			Up.			Down.
	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.	Mds.	Nos.	Total up and down.
GRAINS.
Wheat	80	...	5,785	...	...	5,785	...	...	525	...	...	525	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	2,151	...	2,151	...	...	2,151	...	...	2,027	...	...	2,027	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	42	...	...	42	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Ordnance	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Or mixed grain	...	...	1,331	...	...	1,331	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Urd	...	...	725	...	...	725	...	...	124	...	...	124	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Mung	125	...	125	...	...	125	...	...	60	...	...	60	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Arhar	50	...	50	...	...	50	...	...	401	...	...	401	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Masuri	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	14	...	...	14	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Indian-corn	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
TOTAL	2,406	...	10,167	...	...	10,167	...	...	2,668	...	...	2,668	...	...	...	...	...	...	8,230	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	219	...	...	219	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	80	...	...	80	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	650	...	...	650	...	...	25	...	...	25	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	735	...	...	735	...	...	94	...	...	94	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Materials	499	...	46,346	...	...	46,346	...	...	6,573	...	...	6,573	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
neous goods	34,249	...	10,172	...	...	10,172	...	...	206	...	...	206	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	659	...	9,033	...	...	9,033	...	...	3,232	...	...	3,232	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	4,271	...	15,968	...	...	15,968	...	...	345	...	...	345	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	319,360	...	...	319,360	...	...	6,900	...	...	6,900	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	5,136	...	...	5,136	...	...	99	...	...	99	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
es and un-	163	...	4,044	...	...	4,044	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
quared timber.	...	...	6,382	...	...	6,382	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
is and squared	333	...	6,049	...	...	6,049	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
amber.	...	...	190	...	...	190	...	...	82	...	...	82	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	2,130	...	...	2,130	...	...	351	...	...	351	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
neous timber	601	...	1,529	...	...	1,529	...	...	702	...	...	702	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
"	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
AND TOTAL	43,911	1,783	1,06,116	335,81	13,675	7,804	35,090	77,820	48,765	85,624	5,507	6,011	43,845	667	49,352	6,678	63,093	15,598	141,140	412,517	204,233	428,115	...	...
URING CORRE-	62,598	17	29,753	170,582	92,351	170,599	13,948	1,768	50,221	62,208	2,359	100	8,062	12	10,421	112	78,905	1,885	88,036	231,034	166,941	232,919	...	...
ING PERIOD OF	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
FEAR.	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
INCREASE	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
DECREASE	18,687	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	273	...	15,131	...	...	...	...	...	...	15,812	...	...	...	...	...	...
Particulars.
Upper Ganges Canal (local).												Lower Ganges Canal (local).										Total, Upper and Lower Ganges Canals.
1882.												1883.										1882.
3,392												1,791										1,813
69,329												1,20,586										3,98,266
31,797												33,083										1,45,167
Tonnage, including weight of timber and bamboos												Ton mileage										Value of goods
R												R										R

W. P. V. HORST,

W. P. V. HORST,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.
RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

No. XXXII of 1883.

APPROXIMATE STATEMENT OF GROSS RECEIPTS AND EXPENSES OF INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Latest return received.	Railways.	Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 19TH AUGUST 1882.		Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 18TH AUGUST 1883.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 19TH AUGUST 1882.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 18TH AUGUST 1883.		Total Increase in 1883-84.	Total Decrease in 1883-84.
			Total.	Per mile open.		Total.	Per mile open.	Total.	Per mile open per week.	Total.	Per mile open per week.	R	R
4th Aug. 1883	Guaranteed. Eastern Bengal . . .	172	1,17,499	683	172	(a) 63,556	317	16,24,859	469	(a) 16,41,937	477	17,078	...
18th ditto .	Oudh and Rohilkhand . . .	547	70,071	128	547	90,326	165	20,00,014	181	23,16,932	212	3,16,918	...
18th ditto .	Sind, Punjab & Delhi . . .	676	1,45,179	215	749	2,08,961	279	36,80,496	270	47,37,576	319	10,57,080	...
18th ditto .	Madras . . . . .	861	1,10,311	128	861	1,13,799	132	27,99,939	162	25,98,460	151	...	2,01,479
18th ditto .	South Indian . . . . .	655	66,920	102	655	66,506	102	15,15,371	115	15,58,613	119	43,242	...
18th ditto .	Great Indian Peninsula . . .	1,450	3,54,604	245	1,451	4,79,283	330	1,35,36,934	463	1,43,63,928	494	8,26,994	...
18th ditto .	Bombay, Baroda and Central India . . .	461	1,16,623	253	461	1,67,082	362	41,88,478	451	47,00,856	510	5,12,378	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	4,822	9,81,207	203	4,896	11,89,513	243	2,93,46,091	301	3,19,18,302	326	25,72,211	...
18th Aug. 1883	State. East Indian . . . . .	1,507	6,71,114	445	1,509	8,85,461	587	1,72,99,680	570	2,02,93,167	672	29,93,487	...
31st ditto .	Calcutta and South-Eastern . . . . .	33	2,350	71	56	4,630	83	75,097	124	1,15,599	109	40,502	...
5th ditto .	Nalhati . . . . .	27	1,115	41	27	1,443	53	26,466	48	31,556	58	5,090	...
31st ditto .	Northern Bengal . . . . .	230	23,708	103	239	26,380	110	7,09,700	152	7,75,423	166	65,723	...
31st ditto .	Tirhoot . . . . .	75	11,887	158	166	17,093	103	2,48,872	149	3,26,177	93	77,305	...
1st July 1883	Patna-Gya . . . . .	57	7,511	132	...	(b) . . .	...	(c) 1,49,019	162	(d) 1,36,913	150	...	12,136
5th Aug. 1883	Muttra-Hathras . . . . .	29	2,084	72	29	2,357	81	43,358	74	48,447	84	5,089	...
8th ditto .	Cawnpore-Furrakhabad . . .	87	4,756	55	87	6,161	71	1,30,112	75	1,28,736	74	...	1,376
8th ditto .	Dildarnagar-Ghaziपुर . . .	12	384	32	12	682	57	18,752	78	20,005	83	1,253	...
5th ditto .	Rajputana-Malwa . . . . .	1,117	1,60,699	144	1,117	2,00,850	180	41,09,271	183	48,28,577	216	7,19,306	...
8th ditto .	Wardha Coal . . . . .	45	4,700	104	45	12,869	286	2,06,914	230	2,85,600	317	76,686	...
15th ditto .	Nagpur & Chhattisgarh . . .	98	4,230	43	149	8,993	60	2,41,481	123	5,91,104	198	3,49,623	...
15th ditto .	Rangoon and Irrawaddy Valley . .	161	16,298	101	161	16,354	102	5,58,685	172	5,40,154	167	...	18,531
18th ditto .	Sindia . . . . .	75	5,643	75	75	6,832	91	1,24,016	82	1,22,249	81	...	1,766
18th ditto .	Punjab Northern . . . . .	409	43,325	106	419	58,087	139	11,55,818	143	12,16,681	145	60,863	...
15th ditto .	Indus Valley and Kandahar . . .	660	22,209	34	660	1,26,562	192	16,09,967	121	30,45,529	231	14,35,562	...
15th ditto .	Muttra-Achnera . . . . .	23	1,128	49	23	1,460	63	21,852	47	28,144	61	6,292	...
18th ditto .	Kaunia-Dhurla . . . . .	32	965	30	32	1,556	49	28,962	45	37,463	58	8,501	...
15th ditto .	Rewari-Ferozepore . . . . .	...	...	...	89	7,380	83	...	...	1,26,822	71	1,26,822	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	3,170	3,12,992	99	3,386	4,99,689	148	94,60,372	148	1,24,05,179	183	29,14,807	...
4th Aug. 1883	Assisted Company. Bengal Central . . . . .	...	...	...	...	(b) . . .	...	...	...	(e) 38,927	62	38,927	...
15th Aug. 1883	Native States. Bhavnagar-Gondal . . . . .	194	7,573	39	193	9,664	50	3,87,719	99	4,31,587	111	43,868	...
18th ditto .	Nizam's . . . . .	121	14,038	116	121	14,288	118	3,36,050	137	3,08,698	127	...	27,356
18th ditto .	Mysore . . . . .	86	4,284	50	86	4,632	56	1,09,665	63	1,01,775	59	...	7,886
18th ditto .	Jodhpore . . . . .	19	300	16	19	600	32	(f) 1,229	8	14,089	37	12,860	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	420	26,195	62	419	29,384	70	8,34,663	99	8,56,149	102	21,486	...
	GRAND TOTAL . . . . .	9,919	19,91,508	201	10,210	26,04,047	255	5,69,40,806	285	6,55,11,724	320	85,70,918	...
	GROSS ESTIMATED EXPENSES . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	2,85,37,167	143	3,22,38,330	158	...	...
	NET RECEIPTS . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	2,84,03,639	142	3,32,73,394	162	48,69,765	...

(a) Exclusive of the Company's share of the earnings of the Bengal Central Railway (estimated for period subsequent to 4th August 1883).
(b) Return not received.
(c) Total receipts from 1st April to 21st July 1883.
(d) Total receipts from 1st April to 4th August 1883.
(e) Total receipts from 24th June to 19th August 1882.
(f) Total receipts from 1st April to 22nd July 1883.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

N<sup>o</sup> 38. } SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

CONTENTS.

PART I.—Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions, Leave of Absence, General Orders, Rules and Regulations.

PART II.—Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, Administrator General, Paper Currency Dept., Presidency Pay Master, Money Order Department, Mint Master, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, Supdt. of Government Printing, and other Government Officers; Postal, Telegraph, and Commissariat Notices.

PART III.—Advertisements and Notices by private individuals and Corporations.

PART IV.—Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General:—

The Multán District Laws Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

PART V.—Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22:—

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.

SUPPLEMENT No. 38.

PART I.

Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions, &c.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—JUDICIAL.

Simla, the 19th September 1883.

No. 1264.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 8, Act XVII of 1875 (The Burma Courts Act, 1875), the Governor General in Council is pleased to establish a Court to be called the Court of the Extra Assistant Commissioner of the 3rd Class of Pyindaye, the local limits of the jurisdiction of which shall be those of the Pyindaye Circle in the Thongwa district.

EDUCATION.

The 19th September 1883.

No. 313.—The services of Mr. H. P. Jacob, on special duty with the Education Commission, are replaced at the disposal of the Government of Bombay.

A. MACKENZIE,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—JUDICIAL.

Simla, the 18th September, 1883.

No. 2759 I.—In exercise of the power conferred by Section 22 of Act X of 1882 (The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to appoint Major John Bid-dulph, Political Agent in Bhopawar, to be a Justice of the Peace within the limits of the pergunna of Manpur.

No. 2760 I.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 6 of Act XXI of 1879 (The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to appoint the officers holding for the time being the appointments specified below, being European British subjects, to be Justices of the Peace within the territories of Native Chiefs included in the Central India Agency:—

- (1) All Political Agents accredited to Native States within the Central India Agency.
- (2) The 1st Assistant to the Governor-General's Agent in Central India.

No. 2761 I.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 6 of Act XXI of 1879 (The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to appoint the officers holding for the time being the appointments specified below, being European British subjects, to be Justices of the Peace within the territories of Native Chiefs included in the Rajputana Agency:—

- (1) All Political Agents accredited to Native States within the Rajputana Agency.
- (2) The 1st Assistant to the Governor-General's Agent in Rajputana.

POLITICAL.

The 20th September, 1883.

No. 2770 I.—With reference to Foreign Department Notification, No. 2672P., dated the 4th

December, 1877, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General is pleased to recognize as hereditary the title of "Rai" thereby conferred, as a personal distinction, upon Jagmohan Singh, Talukdar of Raipur-Bichur, in the Partabgurh District, in Oudh.

No. 2772 I.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General is pleased to recognize the title of "Dewan" as the hereditary title of Rudr Partab Singh, Talukdar of Urayadli, in the Partabgurh District, in Oudh.

No. 2774 I.—In recognition of his services, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General is pleased to confer upon Rao Sahib Krishnaji Ballal Sugtankar, Mamlatdar of Hubli, in the Dharwar Collectorate of the Bombay Presidency, the title of "Rao Bahadur," as a personal distinction.

No. 2291 G.—With the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to recognize the appointment of Mr. Jean Frame, as Consul for Austria, at Bassein.

No. 2294 G.—Foreign Department Notification, No. 1136G., dated the 19th April, 1883, provisionally recognizing the appointment of Mr. S. G. Hedderwick, as Acting Consular Agent for the United States of America, at Moulmein, during the absence on leave of Mr. W. G. Reddie, is hereby cancelled.

GENERAL.

The 19th September, 1883.

No. 2273 G.—Major (Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel) C. B. Euan-Smith, c.s.i., Political Agent of the 3rd Class, is posted as Political Agent, Bikanir, with effect from the date of assuming charge.

The 20th September, 1883.

No. 2239 G.—Pandit Suraj Narayen, Attaché to the Resident at Hyderabad, sub. pro tem., is confirmed in his appointment, with effect from the 11th September, 1882. This cancels the notification of the promotion of Mir Ahsan-ul-Hak, as published in Foreign Department Notification, No. 818G., dated the 15th March, 1883.

Mir Ahsan-ul-Hak, Officiating Attaché to the Resident at Hyderabad, is confirmed in his appointment, with effect from the 24th November, 1882, consequent on the transfer of Muhammad Raza to the Madras Civil Service. Mir Ahsan-ul-Hak held the appointment of Attaché, sub. pro tem., from the 11th September to the 23rd November, 1882, vice T. Ranga Rao.

C. GRANT,

Secretary to the Government of India.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 19th September 1883.

No. 3290.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 46 of the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1876, the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct the following alterations to be made in the Schedules (A and B) of medicines and medical appliances referred to in Rule II of the Rules made under the provisions of that section, and published in the Gazette of India under Notification No. 298 (Commerce and Trade), dated the 8th August 1877 :—

ALTERATIONS.

Name of article.		For 100 passengers and under.	From 100 to 200 passengers.	From 200 to 300 passengers.	From 300 to 400 passengers.
For	Sir W. Burnett's disinfecting fluid ... ..	7 gallons ...	12 gallons ...	17 gallons ...	22 gallons
	Norton's carbolic acid ... ..	30 gallons ...	45 gallons ...	60 gallons ...	70 gallons
Read	Chloride of zinc (Burnett's solution) ... ..	2 quarts ...	3 quarts ...	4 quarts ...	5 quarts or Jeyes' perfect purifier (liquid)	1 gallon ...	1 gallon ...	2 gallons ...	2 gallons
	Acid,* carbolic	} 1 cwt. ...	} 1½ cwt. ...	} 2 cwt. ...	} 2½ cwt.
	or Jeyes' sanitary powder ...

* A powder containing not less than 20 per cent. of pure carbolic or cresylic acid.

The 21st September 1883.

No. 3417.—Privilege leave for fifteen days is granted to Mr. J. Westland, B.C.S., Comptroller General and Head Commissioner of Paper Currency.

Mr. A. C. Tupp, B.C.S., is appointed to officiate as Comptroller General and Head Commissioner of Paper Currency during the absence of Mr. Westland.

Mr. Tupp received charge of the said offices after noon on the 19th September 1883.

The following Addendum to the Codes of the Financial Department is published for general information :—

No. 3420.

C. P. C.

PAGE 37.

Section 81.

Add the following to the Exception under this Section :—

“the rule of proportions being applied in the case of service paid partly from the Port fund and partly from other sources.”

D. M. BARBOUR,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 21st September, 1883.

APPOINTMENTS.

No. 509.—STAFF CORPS—

The undermentioned officer is admitted to the Bengal Staff Corps, with effect from the date specified, subject to the confirmation of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India :—

Lieutenant Harry Frere Loch, Royal Irish Regiment, Officiating Wing Officer, 1st Native Infantry,—25th August, 1882.

No. 510.—COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT—

Lieutenant S. C. F. Peile, Sub-Assistant Commissary General, 2nd class, to be Sub-Assistant Commissary General, 1st class, with effect from 18th July, 1883, vice Captain M. R. Spence, deceased.

No. 511.—Lieutenant H. James, Bengal Staff Corps, Wing Officer, 4th Native Infantry, to be a Sub-Assistant Commissary General, 2nd class, on probation, with effect from the 4th September, 1883.

No. 512.—VOLUNTEER CORPS—

2nd Punjab Volunteer Rifle Corps.

The Hon'ble Sir Charles Umpherston Aitchison, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, to be Honorary Colonel.

East Indian Railway Volunteer Rifle Corps.

The Reverend Edward Grosvenor Ashley Bowen to be Honorary Chaplain.

Nagpore Volunteer Rifle Corps.

William Brittain Jones, Esquire, C.S.I., C.S., Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to be Honorary Colonel, vice Sir J. H. Morris, K.C.S.I., C.S., resigned.

Lucknow Volunteer Rifle Corps.

Captain Charsley Thomas, Agra Volunteer Rifle Corps, to be Major-Commandant, vice Major S. C. E. Hartwell, resigned.

COMMANDS.

No. 513.—The following Military letter from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India is published for general information :—

MILITARY.

INDIA OFFICE;

No. 262.

London, 16th August, 1883.

To His Excellency the Most Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—I have to inform Your Lordship that Her Majesty has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Major-General His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, K.G., to succeed Lieutenant-General Sir R. O. Bright, K.C.B., in the command of a Division in the Bengal Presidency.

I have, &c.,

(Sd.) KIMBERLEY..

FURLOUGH AND LEAVE.

No. 514.—The undermentioned officers are granted furlough out of India, with the necessary subsidiary leave :—

Lieutenant-Colonel A. D. Butter, Bengal S. C., Wing Commander and 2nd-in-Command, 42nd Native Infantry, (m. c.) for 182 days, under rules IX and XV of the regulations of 1868.

Lieutenant H. S. Massy, Bengal S. C., Squadron Officer, 19th Bengal Lancers, (p. a.) for one year, under rule I of the regulations of 1875.

No. 515.—The undermentioned officer has been granted an extension of furlough by the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India :—

Major C. S. Beauchamp, R.E., (m. c.) for two months.

LONDON GAZETTE.

No. 516.—The following extracts are published :—

“London Gazette,” dated the 14th August, 1883, page 4018.

“WAR OFFICE;

Pall Mall, 14th August, 1883.

Staff.—Major-General His Royal Highness Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught Strathearn, K.G., &c., &c., to be a Major-General on the staff of the Army in India, to command a Division in the Bengal Presidency, vice Lieutenant-General Sir R. O. Bright, K.C.B., whose period of service in that appointment is about to expire. Dated 22nd October, 1883."

"London Gazette," dated the 21st August, 1883, pages 4113-4114.

"WAR OFFICE;

Pall Mall, 21st August, 1883.

MEMORANDA.

* * * * *

Maharajah Nripendro Narain Bahadoor of Cooch Behar to have the honorary rank of Major in the Army. Dated 22nd August, 1883.

INDIA OFFICE;

20th August, 1883.

The Queen has approved of the following promotions among the Officers of the Staff Corps and Indian Military Services made by the Governments in India:—

BENGAL STAFF CORPS.

To be Lieutenant-Colonels.

Major Fitzherbert Coddington. Dated 12th June, 1883.

Major Henry Charles Anthony Szczepanski. Dated 13th June, 1883.

Major Stephen Beckett. Dated 13th June, 1883.

Major Thomas Augustus Scott. Dated 13th June, 1883.

Major Travers Dodgson Madden. Dated 13th June, 1883.

Major George Campbell Ross. Dated 19th June, 1883.

To be Major.

Captain Robert Patch. Dated 12th June, 1883.

To be Captain.

Lieutenant George Lindsay Garstin. Dated 30th May, 1883.

BENGAL ARMY.

Cavalry.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel.

Major and Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Charles Kemble. Dated 10th June, 1883.

BREVET.

To be Colonels.

Lieutenant-Colonel Patrick Wheeler, Bengal Infantry. Dated 1st July, 1881.

Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Hamer Stansfeld, Bengal Infantry. Dated 1st July, 1881.

Lieutenant-Colonel Leopold Exxel Evans, Bengal Infantry. Dated 1st July, 1881.

Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Morris Cherry, Madras Cavalry. Dated 20th August, 1882.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Herbert Bergman, Bengal Infantry. Dated 12th September, 1882.

Lieutenant-Colonel William Stephen Alexander Lockhart, C.B., Bengal Infantry. Dated 6th April, 1883.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel.

Major John Chalmers, Bengal Unattached List. Dated 27th June, 1883."

PROMOTIONS.

No. 517.—The following promotion is made, subject to Her Majesty's approval:—

BENGAL STAFF CORPS.

To be Lieutenant-Colonel.

Major (Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel) John Francis FitzGerald Cologan,—20th September, 1883.

No. 518.—COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT—

Sergeant and Officiating Sub-Conductor Thomas Davis to be Sub-Conductor, vice Sub-Conductor H. G. Hein, pensioned, from the 11th July, 1883.

No. 519.—ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT—

Sub-Conductor William Henry Smith, on probation, is confirmed in his present grade from the 28th February, 1883.

No. 520.—SUBORDINATE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT—

1st Class Assistant Apothecary Henry D'Lacy to be 2nd Class Apothecary from the 9th February, 1883, vice Apothecary Richard Higginson, pensioned.

1st Class Assistant Apothecary William Mann to be 2nd Class Apothecary from the 16th February, 1883, vice Apothecary Henry William Johnson, pensioned.

Passed Hospital Apprentice William Forrester to be 2nd Class Assistant Apothecary from the 9th February, 1883, vice Assistant Apothecary Henry D'Lacy, promoted.

Passed Hospital Apprentice Patrick Wilkins O'Gorman to be 2nd Class Assistant Apothecary from the 16th February, 1883, vice Assistant Apothecary William Mann, promoted.

No. 521.—NATIVE ARMY—

16th Native Infantry.

Subadar Narain Sing to be Subadar-Major, vice Buldeo Patack, invalided,—16th April, 1883.

RETIREMENTS.

No. 522.—Lieutenant Charles Blenheim Porter, Bengal S. C., is transferred to the Half-pay List, with effect from the 7th October, 1883, subject to Her Majesty's approval.

REWARDS.

No. 523.—ORDER OF BRITISH INDIA—

His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to admit the undermentioned Native Officers to the 2nd Class of the Order of British India from the dates specified:—

MADRAS.

To the 2nd Class, with the title of "Bahadur."

Subadar Vencatachellum, Queen's Own Sappers and Miners, vice Pensioned Subadar-Major Bowany Sing, "Bahadur," deceased,—8th May, 1883.

Subadar Andeenaroydoo, 30th Native Infantry, vice Pensioned Subadar-Major Curpanah, "Bahadur," deceased,—15th May, 1883.

VOLUNTEER CORPS.

No. 524.—His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to sanction the formation of a Naval Artillery Volunteer Corps, to be designated the "Calcutta Naval Artillery Volunteer Corps."

The corps will be attached for administrative purposes to the Administrative Battalion, Presidency Volunteers.

APPOINTMENTS.

No. 525.—CALCUTTA NAVAL ARTILLERY VOLUNTEER CORPS—

Lieutenant J. M. Brebner, R.N.R., to be Commander.

Lieutenant E. W. Petley, R.N., to be Lieutenant.
Mr. J. E. King to be Sub-Lieutenant.

G. CHESNEY,

Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 15th September 1883.

No. 213.—The services of Mr. R. F. Coppin, Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, are transferred from the Establishment under the Director General of Railways to that under the Government of Madras, Railway Branch.

No. 214.—That portion of Public Works Department Notification No. 286, dated 4th December 1882, which relates to the transfer of Captain B. Scott, R.E., Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, is hereby cancelled.

No. 215.—The services of Lieutenant J. Burn-Murdoch, R.E., Executive Engineer, 4th Grade (temporary rank), and Acting Deputy Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for Guaranteed Railways, Lahore, are placed at the disposal of the Director General of Railways.

The 17th September 1883.

No. 216.—The Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India has commuted the leave for six months on private affairs granted in Public Works Department Notification No. 117, dated 8th May 1883, to Mr. G. F. Mathew, C.I.E., Officiating Manager, His Highness the Nizam's State Railway, into leave on medical certificate for twelve months.

The 19th September 1883.

No. 217.—Mr. C. H. Mackie, in Class III of the State Railway Locomotive Department, is transferred from the Establishment under the orders of the Chief Commissioner, British Burma, to that under the orders of the Director General of Railways.

No. 219.—Mr. W. R. Gilbert, Executive Engineer, 4th Grade, temporary rank, British Burma, reverted to his substantive rank of Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, from the 20th August 1883.

The 20th September 1883.

No. 220.—Mr. C. V. MacIvor, Executive Engineer, 2nd Grade, Railway Branch, has been granted by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India an extension of furlough for two months on sick certificate, in continuation of the extension for six and three months previously granted.

The 21st September 1883.

No. 221.—Mr. D. J. Clincey, Assistant Engineer, 3rd Grade, Assam, having passed the examination prescribed in paragraphs 16-18, Chapter II, of the Public Works Code, on 5th September 1883, is promoted to Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade, with effect from that date.

TELEGRAPH.

The 19th September 1883.

No. 218.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following permanent and officiating promotions in the Indian Telegraph Department, with effect from the dates specified and until further orders:—

Names.	From	To	With effect from
Mr. T. Blissett	Superintendent, 2nd Grade	Superintendent, 1st Grade	31st Aug. 1883.
Mr. J. Burke	" 3rd "	" 2nd "	31st " "
Mr. C. E. Pitman, C.I.E.	" 4th "	" 3rd "	31st " "
Mr. E. A. Boyd	Asst. Supdt., 1st "	" 4th "	31st " "
Mr. J. M. Lane	Superintendent, 2nd "	Officiate as Supdt., 1st Grade	31st " "
Mr. W. C. Darling	" 3rd "	" 2nd "	31st " "
Mr. M. J. Brind	Asst. Supdt., 1st "	" 4th "	10th May 1883.
Mr. W. H. M. Hare	" " 1st "	" 4th "	17th July 1883 to 9th August 1883 inclusive and from 31st August 1883.

W. S. TREVOR, Colonel, R.E.,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 12th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XIII of 1883.

An Act to declare the law in force in certain lands which have been or hereafter may be ceded by the Baháwalpur State for occupation by the Indus Valley State Railway.

WHEREAS Act X of 1880 (to declare the law in force in certain lands annexed to the Multán District) provides that all enactments which, on the second day of September, 1879, were in force in the Multán district and not in force in the lands occupied by the Indus Valley State Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the Baháwalpur State, which have been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by that State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Panjáb, and have by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb been annexed to the Multán district, shall be deemed to have come into force in the said lands on that day;

and whereas it is expedient to make like provision for certain other lands occupied by the same

Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which have, since the second day of September, 1879, been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and have by the same Lieutenant-Governor been annexed to the same district;

and whereas it is also expedient to make like provision for any lands to be hereafter occupied by the same Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which may be ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and may be declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and may by the same Lieutenant-Governor be annexed to the same or some other district;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Repeal of Act X of 1880. 1. Act X of 1880 is hereby repealed.

2. All enactments which, on the date on which any such lands as are referred to in the preamble to this Act have been, or may hereafter be, annexed to the Multán or any other district, were, or shall be, in force in that district, and not in the said lands, shall be deemed to have come, or, as the case may be, shall come, into force in the said lands on that date.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. XIV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH LOCAL BOARDS ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

SECTIONS.

Preliminary.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definition of "prescribed."

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. Formation of sub-districts.
4. Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.
5. Constitution of local boards.
6. Constitution of district boards.
7. Term of office of members of local boards and of certain district boards.
8. Resignation of members of those boards.
9. Removal of members of those boards.
10. Filling of casual vacancies on those boards.
11. Incorporation of district board.
12. Time for boards coming into existence.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. Chairman of local board.
14. Chairman of district board.
15. Vice-chairman of district board.
16. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
17. Resignation of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
18. Removal of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
19. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman of district board.
20. Chairman appointed by Local Government to be member of district board.
21. Chairman of local board and chairman or vice-chairman of district board re-eligible.
22. Person to preside at meeting of district board.

SECTIONS.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. Notification of elections, &c.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Matters to be administered by district boards.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Local board to be agent of district board.
26. Control of district board over local boards.

Joint Committees.

27. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Vote of majority decisive.
31. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
32. Resolutions to be recorded.
33. Power to make rules as to conduct of business.

Officers and Servants.

34. Appointment of secretary.
35. Employment of other officers and servants.
36. Pensions and allowances of Government officials serving boards.
37. Pensions and allowances of servants of boards.

District Fund.

38. Constitution of district fund.
39. Vesting, custody and investment of district fund.
40. Application of the district fund.

Control.

41. Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.
42. Power of Commissioner to suspend action under this Act.
43. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
44. Powers of Local Government in cases of default of district board.
45. Power to supersede district board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.

Forms and Rules.

47. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.
48. Procedure for making rules.
49. Publication of rules.

SECTIONS.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Acquisition of land.
 51. Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts made with board or committee.
 52. Saving of Act XI of 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. Power of Local Government to except local area from operation of Act.
 54. Case of sub-district excepted from provisions regarding election.
 55. Administrative committee to be appointed for district wholly excepted from Act.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

56. Section 11, clause (c), Act III of 1878, amended.
 57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of same repealed.
 58. New section substituted for section 14 of same.

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

59. Section 11, clause (c), Act IV of 1878, amended.
 60. Sections 12 and 14 of same repealed.
 61. New section substituted for section 13 of same.

Contracts made by, and Government Officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

62. Contracts of local rates committees.
 63. Government officers serving under committees to continue under board.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. New section to follow section 7 of Act XVII of 1878.
 65. Amendments of sections 6 and 17 of same Act.

An Act to provide for the constitution of Local Boards in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the constitution of local bodies in each district in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to administer the expenditure of that portion of the rates levied on land which is applicable to local purposes in that district, and of the income accruing from certain other sources of revenue which may, from time to time, be made applicable to the like purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preliminary.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.
 Short title.

(2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and
 Local extent.

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of November, 1883.
 Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—
 Definition of "prescribed."

"Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under section 47.

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. (1) The Local Government shall, by order in writing, for the purposes of this Act, divide each district into sub-districts.
 Formation of sub-districts.

(2) There shall be excluded from the sub-districts formed under this section such portions of the district as are for the time being included in the limits of a military cantonment or of a municipality, and, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, the portions of the district (if any) in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaukidars in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bāzars in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, by order in writing, vary any order made under this section.

4. There shall be established for each sub-district a local board having authority over that sub-district, and for each district a district board having authority over the entire district, except such portions thereof as are excluded from the sub-districts under section 3, sub-section (2).
 Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.

5. (1) The local board for a sub-district shall consist of so many elected members and so many nominated members as the Local Government may, from time to time, fix in this behalf:

Provided that the nominated members shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the board.

(2) The elective members of a local board shall be elected in manner prescribed.

(3) The persons entitled to vote at the election shall be nominated by the Local Government or determined in such other manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that the persons entitled to vote at the election of a member shall not be less than twenty-five in number.

(4) A person to be qualified for election must, at the time of his election, be an elector, and reside, or own landed property, or carry on trade or business, in the sub-district.

(5) The nominated members shall be such persons as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 47, from time to time, nominate in this behalf.

6. (1) The district board for a district shall, except as next hereinafter provided, consist of all persons who for the time being are members of the local boards of the sub-districts comprised in that district.
 Constitution of district boards.

(2) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that the district board for a district shall consist of so many of the elected members of each local board as it thinks fit, elected in this behalf by the local board in manner prescribed, and such of the nominated members of each local board as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf:

Provided that the nominated members of local boards so appointed by the Local Government shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the district board.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 7-14.

(3) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, rescind any direction issued under sub-section (2) with effect from the date on which all the persons holding office as members of the district board at the date of the notification shall, under the provisions of this Act, have vacated their offices as such members.

7. (1) The term of office of a member of a local board and of a member of a district board elected or appointed under section 6, sub-section (2), shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election, nomination or appointment.

8. A member of a local board and a member of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on the acceptance by the Local Government of such resignation, the member shall be deemed to have vacated his office as such member.

9. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a local board or of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid who refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the local board, or, when he is a member of the district board, without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of that board.

10. (1) When the place of an elected member of a local board or of a member of a district board elected as aforesaid becomes vacant by the resignation or removal of the member or by his death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of nominated members of a local board fixed by section 5, and to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of a district board fixed by section 6, direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of a nominated member of a local board or an appointed member of a district board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 47, nominate or appoint, as the case may be, a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected, nominated or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but shall be again eligible for election, nomination or appointment.

11. Every district board shall be a body corporate by the name of the district board of its district, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immovable, to transfer any moveable property and, with the previous approval in writing of the Commissioner of the division, any immovable property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

12. The several local boards and district boards constituted under this Act shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. (1) Every local board shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be chairman.

(2) The term of office of a chairman so elected shall be the residue of his term of office as a member of the board.

(3) If the chairman so elected dies, resigns or is removed from his office as a member of the board; resigns the office of chairman or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall elect another of its members to be chairman for the period during which the person so dying, resigning, removed or becoming incapable would have been entitled to continue in office, and no longer.

(4) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant or the chairman is absent from the meeting, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

14. (1) Every district board shall, on first coming into existence and thereafter whenever the term of office of its chairman expires under this Act, take into consideration, at a special meeting convened for the purpose within the time prescribed, the appointment of a chairman, and, if the meeting is attended by not less than three-fourths of the members of the board, may, by a majority of the members present,—

(a) determine whether the chairman shall be elected, or his appointment shall be left to be made by the Local Government, and

(b) if it is determined that the chairman shall be elected, elect one of its members to be chairman; and the Local Government may, if it approves of the person so elected, declare him to be chairman of the board.

(2) If no such meeting is held within the time prescribed, or if three-fourths of the members of the board are not present at the meeting, or, where several meetings are convened under this section, at any of those meetings, or if no such election takes place, or if the person elected is not approved of by the Local Government, the Local Government shall appoint as chairman, by name or by virtue of his office, such person as it thinks fit.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 15-24.

15. At a special meeting held under section 14, or at another special meeting held for this purpose, the district board shall elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

16. (1) The term of office of an elected chairman of a district board shall be the residue of his term of office as member of the board.

(2) The term of office of an appointed chairman of a district board shall be such term, not exceeding three years, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman of a district board shall be one year, or when at the time of his election the residue of his term of office as member is less than one year, the residue of that term.

17. (1) A chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on such resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A vice-chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board; and, on such resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

18. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a district board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

19. (1) If an elected chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, a special meeting of the board shall be held within the period prescribed, and a new chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 14.

(2) If an appointed chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) If a vice-chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall, at a special meeting held for this purpose, select one of its members to be vice-chairman in his place.

(4) A chairman or vice-chairman elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office:

Provided that a person so elected shall go out of office on ceasing to be a member of the board.

20. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a chairman appointed by the Local Government under section 14, sub-section (2), or section 19, shall, if he is not already a member of the district board, become a member thereof by virtue of such appointment, and continue to be a member thereof while he holds the office of chairman.

21. A chairman of a local board, and a chairman or vice-chairman of a district board, if otherwise qualified, shall on going out of office be again eligible for election or appointment.

22. (1) At every meeting of a district board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. All elections, nominations and appointments of members of local boards and district boards, and of chairmen of district boards, and all vacancies in those offices, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Every district board shall, so far as the funds at its disposal will permit, but subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, provide for the control and administration of the following matters within the area subject to its authority:—

- (a) the construction, repair and maintenance of public roads and other means of communication;
- (b) the planting and preservation of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground;
- (c) the establishment, management, maintenance and visiting of schools, hospitals, dispensaries, markets, staging-houses, inspection-houses and other public institutions, and the construction and repair of all buildings connected with these institutions;
- (d) the construction and repair of public wells, tanks and water-works, and the supply of water from them and from other sources;
- (e) the establishment and maintenance of such relief-works in time of famine or scarcity as may be entrusted to the charge of the board by the Local Government;
- (f) the establishment and management of pounds, including, where the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, is in force, such functions of the Local Government and the Magistrate of the district under that Act as may be transferred to the district board by the Local Government:

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 25-33.

- (g) the management of such public ferries as may be entrusted to its charge under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act;
- (h) the regulation of encamping-grounds and, where the Sarais Act, 1867, is in force, of sarais and paraos, including such functions of the Magistrate of the district under that Act as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct;
- (i) the institution, holding and management of agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions;
- (j) the maintenance of any building or other property which is vested under this Act in the district board, or may be placed by the Local Government under the management of that board; and
- (k) any other local works or measures likely to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the public.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Every local board shall, in the sub-district Local board to be agent under its authority, be the agent of the district board, and, as such agent, shall have such authority and discharge such duties in respect of all or any of the matters specified in section 24 as the district board may, by written authority in that behalf, from time to time, confer or impose upon it.

26. The district board may, by a resolution Control of district board over local Boards. passed by two-thirds of the members present at a meeting, either on complaint made to it or of its own motion, reverse or vary any order or other proceeding of any local board within the district:

Provided that, except for reasons recorded in writing, no such resolution shall be passed until the local board has been allowed an opportunity of showing cause against the same.

Joint Committees.

27. (1) A district board may, from time to time, Joint committees. concur with any other district board, or with the board of any municipality, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of such committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division, or of the Local Government if those areas are in different divisions, shall be final.

Conduct of Business.

28. (1) A meeting of a district board or local board shall be either ordinary or special Ordinary and special meetings.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of a district board or local board shall, except where otherwise provided by this Act, be one-half of the whole board. Quorum.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a district board or local board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under this Act:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before and transacted at the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Act or by any rule made under this Act, all questions coming before a meeting of a district board or local board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present. Vote of majority decisive.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

31. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall Certain officers entitled to attend and speak. be entitled to attend any meeting of a district board or local board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction.

32. (1) Every resolution passed by a district board or local board at a meeting shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next ensuing meeting. Resolutions to be recorded.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a local board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the district board.

(3) A copy of every resolution passed by a district board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

33. Every district board, and, with the previous sanction of the district board, every local board, may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act and with any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to— Power to make rules as to conduct of business.

(a) the time and place of its meetings;

(b) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 34-40.

- (c) the conduct of proceedings at meetings;
- (d) the division of duties among the members of the board; and
- (e) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act.

Officers and Servants.

34. (1) Every district board and every local board shall, from time to time, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a secretary appointed under this section is a member of the board, he shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. If he is not a member of the board, the district board may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, assign to him such pay as it thinks fit.

35. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, every district board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of its duties and of the duties of the local boards in the district, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit and as may be approved by the Commissioner of the division.

Pensions and allowances of Government officials serving boards.

36. In the case of a Government official, any district board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

37. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 36, any district board may—

(1) grant him leave-allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

- (a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave-allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or
- (b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement;

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave-allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which, under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, the servant would be entitled if the service had been service under the Government.

District Fund.

38. There shall be formed for each district a fund, to be called the district fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(a) the balance (if any) of the allotments made for the district under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, which may be available for expenditure in the district on the day on which the district board comes into existence; III of 1878.
IV of 1878.

(b) all sums which may, from time to time, be allotted by the Local Government to the district fund under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, as amended by this Act; III of 1878.
IV of 1878.

and, subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, the following, namely:—

(c) the surplus accruing in the district under section 18 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871; I of 1871.

(d) the proceeds of public ferries payable into the district fund under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act; XVII of 1878

(e) receipts from encamping-grounds under the regulation of the district board;

(f) the sale-proceeds of grass and of the produce of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground under the control and administration of the district board, and of timber fallen or felled thereon;

(g) receipts from property vested in the district board;

(h) rents and profits accruing from nazul and other property placed by the Local Government under the management of the district board;

(i) other sums assigned to the district fund by the Local Government;

(j) sums contributed to the district fund by local bodies or private persons; and

(k) all other sums received by or on behalf of the district board in the carrying out of this Act.

39. (1) The district fund shall be vested in the district board, and the balance standing at the credit of the fund shall be kept in the Government treasury of the district or in the bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over.

(2) Subject to such rules as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, the district board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of the district fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the same nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the district fund.

40. (1) The district fund shall be charged with the payment of the expenses incurred in auditing the accounts of the district and local boards, and such portion of the cost of the

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 41-45.

Provincial Departments for education, sanitation, vaccination, medical relief and public works as may be held by the Local Government to be equitably debitable to the district board in return for services rendered to the board by those Departments.

(2) Subject to the charges specified in sub-section (1), the district fund shall be applicable to the payment, in whole or in part, of the charges and expenses incidental to the several matters specified in sections 24, 34, 35, 36 and 37 within the area subject to the authority of the district board, and, with the sanction of the Local Government, outside that area when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of that area.

Control.

Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.

district board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immoveable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any local board, district board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents, relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between officers exercising the powers conferred by sub-section (1), it shall be referred—

- (a) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in the same division, to the Commissioner; and
- (b) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in different divisions or between two or more Commissioners, to the Local Government; and the decision thereon of the Commissioner or of the Local Government, as the case may be, shall be final.

42. (1) A Commissioner may, by order in writing, suspend within his division the execution of any resolution or order of a local board, district board or joint committee, and may prohibit the doing of any act which is about to be done or is being done within his division in pursuance of, or under cover of, this Act, if, in his opinion, such resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of such resolution or order, or the doing of such act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public

(2) When the Commissioner makes any such order, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order, or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

43. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate Extraordinary powers of the district may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a district board or local board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the district board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers given to him by this section.

44. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that any district board has made default in performing, or has inefficiently performed, any duty imposed on it by this or any other Act for the time being in force, the Local Government may, by order in writing, direct the district board to perform that duty, or to take such measures as the Local Government may think proper for the performance thereof, and may fix a time within which the duty shall be performed or the measures shall be taken.

(2) If the order is not obeyed to the satisfaction of the Local Government within the time fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to execute it, and may direct that the expense of executing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the district board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

45. (1) If a district board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this Act or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare the board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and super-

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 46-51.

(2) When the district board of a district is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue:—

- (a) all members of the board and all members of the local boards of the district shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members;
- (b) all powers and duties of the district board may, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that, behalf;
- (c) all property vested in the district board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the local boards and district board shall be re-established, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for nomination, appointment or election.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. A person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the district board if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of a local board or of the district board; and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him in any Court of competent jurisdiction by the district board with the sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Forms and Rules.

47. The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

- (a) as to the method and time of election of elective members of local boards, and, where a notification under section 6, sub-section (2), is in force, of elective members of district boards;
- (b) as to the nomination of members of local boards under section 5;
- (c) as to the mode of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively, the notice to be given of such meetings, the business that may be transacted at ordinary and special meetings respectively, and the majority by which any question which may come before a board at a meeting shall be decided;
- (d) as to the division of duties among the members of the board;
- (e) as to the mode of entering into and executing contracts and transfers of property on behalf of district boards, and the authority on which money may be paid from the district fund;
- (f) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of district and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned;

- (g) for the guidance of district boards when suits or other proceedings are intended to be, or have been, instituted by or against them in Civil Courts;
- (h) as to the office or offices through which correspondence of, and with, local boards and district boards and representations to the Local Government under this Act shall pass;
- (i) as to the accounts to be kept, and as to the manner in which those accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge;
- (j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure, and the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned;
- (k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by local boards and district boards respectively;
- (l) as to the language of the board;
- (m) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill; and
- (n) generally, for the guidance of local boards, district boards and officers of Government in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act and for settling their relations to one another.

48. The Local Government shall, before making any rules under section 47, publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, together with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration, and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

49. Every rule made under section 47 shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by section 48.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Where any land is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the district board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the district board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the district board.

51. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a local board, district board or joint committee appointed under this Act is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner any contract made with such board or committee, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence of 1860, under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code :

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 52-59.

(2) A person shall not by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and a board or committee, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board or committee relating to any such contract.

of 1879. 52. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. If the circumstances of any district or part of a district are, in the opinion of the Local Government, such that all or any of the provisions of this Act are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, except the district or part from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to the excepted district or part until again applied thereto by a like notification.

54. When a sub-district is excepted, under section 53, from the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a local board shall be elected, the Local Government may itself appoint all such members.

55. When a district is excepted, under section 53, from all the provisions of this Act, a committee shall be appointed for the control and administration in that district of the matters mentioned in section 24, or of such of them as the Local Government may, from time to time, specify; and the Local Government shall, from time to time, determine the manner in which the members of the committee shall be appointed and removed, define the functions and authority of the committee, and place at its disposal, subject to such control as the Local Government thinks fit, the amounts mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 38, and such of the sources of income mentioned in the other clauses of that section as the Local Government thinks fit :

Provided that not less than one-half of the members of the committee shall be persons who own landed property, or reside or carry on trade or business, in the district, and are not in the service of Government.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

56. For section 11, clause (c), of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, reserve from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in or for the benefit of each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the maintenance of the village and road police and the district-post;
- (2) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (3) the registration of traffic; and
- (4) any other matter tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section four and the first clause of section five in such district in such year.”

57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, are repealed.

58. For section 14 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“14. Accounts of the receipts in respect of all rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted for the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

59. For section 11, clause (c), of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to such appropriation, the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, reserve from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in, or for the benefit of, each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (2) the registration of traffic; and
- (3) any other matters tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Chief Commissioner may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than one-half of the proceeds of the rates assessed in such district in such year.”

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 60-65.

60. Sections 12 and 14 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, are repealed.

61. For section 13 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“13. Accounts of the receipts in respect of all rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted for the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Contracts made by, and Government officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

62. Every contract entered into, whether in its own name or in the name of the Government, by the committee appointed in a district under section 15 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or section 14 of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, may be enforced by and against the district board constituted for that district under this Act, in like manner as it might have been by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed.

63. A Government officer employed under the committee appointed in a district as aforesaid at the time when a district board comes into existence for the district under section 12 of this Act shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without the sanction of the Local Government.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. After section seven of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, the following shall be inserted, namely:—

“7A. The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh may direct that any public ferry wholly or partly within the area subject to the authority of a district board in any district in the North-Western Provinces or Oudh, as the case may be, be managed by that board, and may further direct that all or any part of the proceeds from such ferry be paid into the district fund of that district; and thereupon such ferry shall be managed, and such proceeds or part thereof shall be paid, accordingly.”

65. In section six of the same Act, after the words “section seven,” and in section seventeen of the same Act, after the words “section seven” where they first occur, the following shall be inserted, namely:—“and section 7A.”

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH MUNICIPALITIES
ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definitions.
3. Notification of intention to apply Act.
4. Application of Act.
5. Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. Board to consist of elected and appointed members.
7. Magistrate to convene meeting to determine system of election.
8. Persons to be invited to meeting.
9. Matters to be considered at the meeting.
10. Power to Local Government to make rules regarding election.
11. Term of office of member of board.
12. Resignation of member.
13. Removal of member.
14. Filling of casual vacancies.
15. Incorporation of municipal board.
16. Time for boards coming into existence.
17. Consequences of establishment of municipal board where municipal committee exists or Act XX of 1856 is in force.

SECTIONS.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. Election or appointment of chairman.
19. Election of vice-chairman.
20. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.
21. Resignation of chairman or vice-chairman.
22. Removal of chairman or vice-chairman.
23. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.
24. Chairman to become member if not already member.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Notification of elections, appointments and vacancies.

Joint Committees.

26. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

27. Time for holding meetings.
28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Chairman of meeting.
31. Vote of majority decisive.
32. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
33. Resolutions to be recorded and published.
34. Power to make rules as to meetings and proceedings.

Officers and Servants.

35. Appointment of secretary.
36. Employment of other officers and servants.
37. Pensions of Government officials serving boards.
38. Pensions of servants of boards.

Contracts.

39. Authority to contract.
40. Mode of executing contracts.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Taxes which may be imposed.
42. Procedure in imposing taxes.
43. Tax not invalid for defect of form.
44. Power to abolish or reduce tax.
45. Taxes leviable under Act XV of 1873 to be deemed to be taxes under this Act.
46. Recovery of taxes.

Municipal Fund.

47. Constitution and application of municipal fund.
48. Custody and investment of municipal fund.

SECTIONS.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS

GENERALLY.

Municipal Police.

49. Police-establishment.
50. Constitution of establishment.
51. Appointment, punishment and duties of municipal watchmen.
52. Duties of municipal police enrolled under Act V of 1861.
53. Powers under section 34 of Act V of 1861.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Duties of municipal board generally.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. Power to make rules.
56. Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.
57. Powers as to conditional orders in respect of certain acts and omissions.
58. Delegation of powers under sections 56 and 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. Control by Commissioner or Magistrate.
60. Power to suspend action under Act.
61. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
62. Powers of Local Government in case of default of board.
63. Power of Local Government to supersede board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.
64. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. Penalty on member, officer or servant of board being interested in contract made with board.
66. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.
67. Acquisition of land under Act X of 1870.
68. Procedure for making rules.
69. Prosecutions.
70. Saving of prosecutions under other laws.
71. Continuance of existing rules.
72. Notification of intention to alter limits of municipality.
73. Alteration of limits of municipality.
74. Effect of exclusion of local area from municipality.
75. Effect of including local area in municipality.
76. Saving of Act XI of 1879.
77. Member of municipal board to be municipal commissioner.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. Power to except municipalities from operation of provisions of Act regarding election.
79. Power to withdraw municipal area altogether from operation of this Act or Act XV of 1873.

An Act to make better provision for the Organization and Administration of Municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the organization and administration of municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

Short title.

- (2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and

Local extent.

- (3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of November, 1883.

Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definitions.

- (a) "Municipality" means a local area to which this Act has been applied under section 4 or section 5.

- (b) "Honorary Magistrate" means a Magistrate who holds no salaried office in any department of the Government service.

- (c) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under this Act.

3. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time determine, declare its intention to apply this Act to any town or to any group of towns in the immediate neighbourhood of one another.

- (2) Every notification under this section shall define the limits of the town or group of towns to which it refers, and may include within those limits any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity of any such town:

Provided that it shall not, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, so include any part of a military cantonment.

4. (1) Any inhabitant of a local area in respect of which a notification has been published under section 3 may, if he objects to the application of the Act, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

- (2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under subsection (1), the Local Government may, by a notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to the local area.

5. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any local area which is a municipality established under the North-

Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 6-13.

Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, and shall, within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force, so apply it to every such local area unless before the expiration of that period—

- (a) the Act has been applied under section 4 to some local area in which that local area is comprised; or
- (b) the Local Government has declared, by a notification in the official Gazette, that the provisions of this Act are unsuited to that local area.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. There shall be established for each municipality a municipal board having authority over that municipality, and consisting of—

Board to consist of elected and appointed members.

- (a) so many elected members as may be determined in manner prescribed, representing wards of the municipality or particular classes of the inhabitants; and
- (b) such person or persons (if any), not exceeding in number one-fourth of the board, as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 64, from time to time, appoint in this behalf.

7. (1) The Magistrate of the district within which any municipality is situate shall, within one month from the date on which this Act has been applied to the municipality under section 4 or section 5, issue notices in writing to the persons mentioned in section 8, inviting them to meet at a time and place specified in the notices, for the purpose of preparing and submitting, within such further time not exceeding three months from the date of the meeting as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, proposals for determining the system of representation and election to be established in the municipality.

(2) The Local Government may, for special reasons, grant an extension, not exceeding one month, of the time fixed under this section for submitting proposals.

8. Notices under section 7 shall be issued to the following persons, namely:—

Persons to be invited to meeting.

- (a) all Honorary Magistrates having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality;
- (b) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a municipal committee has been appointed under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the members of that committee;
- (c) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a panchayat has been appointed under Act XX of 1856, the members of that panchayat; and
- (d) any leading residents of the municipality not included under the foregoing clauses who in the opinion of the Magistrate of the district should be allowed to take part in the discussion.

9. The persons who meet in compliance with the notices issued under section 7 shall consider, and shall, within the time limited under that section, submit through the Magistrate of the district to the Local Government proposals regarding the following matters, namely:—

Matters to be considered at the meeting.

- (a) the division of the municipality into wards;
- (b) the number of representatives proper for each ward;
- (c) the provision (if any) to be made for the special representation of any classes of the community;
- (d) the qualifications of electors and of candidates for election;
- (e) the registration of electors;
- (f) the nomination of candidates, the time of election and the mode of recording votes; and
- (g) any other matters regarding the system of representation and of election which it may seem to the meeting expedient to consider.

10. (1) The Local Government shall, after taking into consideration the proposals (if any) submitted under section 9, make rules regulating the matters referred to in that section, and may in making such rules direct that the breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

(2) The Local Government may, after the municipal board has come into existence as herein-after provided, from time to time amend, after consulting the board, the rules made under this section; but no amendment made under this sub-section shall take effect until six months after it has been published in the official Gazette.

(3) Elective members of the board shall be elected in accordance with the rules made under this section and for the time being in force.

11. (1) The term of office of a member of a municipal board shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

12. A member of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

13. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a municipal board who refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

Removal of member.

Resignation of member.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 14-20.

14. (1) When the place of an elected member of a municipal board becomes vacant by his resignation, removal or death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Filling of casual vacancies.

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of the board fixed by section 6, clause (b), direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of an appointed member of a municipal board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 64, appoint a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but shall be again eligible for election or appointment.

15. Every municipal board shall be a body corporate by the name of the municipal board of its municipality, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to the rules made under section 64, to transfer any property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

16. A municipal board shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

17. (1) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area which is a municipality under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the following consequences shall ensue, namely:—

Consequences of establishment of municipal board where municipal committee exists or Act XX of 1856 is in force.

- (a) the said North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act shall cease to apply to the local area;
- (b) the municipal committee (if any) constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist;
- (c) all property vested in that committee shall vest in the municipal board for the purposes of this Act, subject to all rights (if any) existing over, and all debts, liabilities and obligations (if any) affecting, that property;
- (d) every right and liability belonging to or incurred by the committee may be enforced by and against the board in like manner as it might have been enforced by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed;
- (e) a Government officer employed by the committee at the time when the board comes into existence shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without the sanction of the Local Government; and

(f) the board shall be substituted for the committee in all legal proceedings by or against the committee pending at the time when the board comes into existence.

(2) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaudhairs in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bazaris in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force, that Act shall cease to have effect in the local area, and every panchayat constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. A municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect as its chairman one of its own members or some other person qualified for election as a member, and the member or other person so elected shall, if the election is approved by the Local Government, but not otherwise, become chairman of the board:

Provided that—

- (a) If the office of chairman remains vacant for three months from the date of the first meeting of the board, or in the case of a vacancy afterwards occurring, from the occurrence of that vacancy, and no person is within that period elected under this section to fill it, the Local Government may in its discretion appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman; and
- (b) in such municipalities as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from the operation of this section, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman.

19. In every municipality the board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

20. (1) The term of office of a member of the board elected to be chairman shall be the residue of his term of office as member.

Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.

(2) The term of office of any other person elected to be chairman, or of a chairman appointed by the Local Government, shall be such term not exceeding three years as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman shall be one year: Provided that when at the time of his election as vice-chairman the residue of his term of office as member of the board is less than one year, his term of office as vice-chairman shall be the residue of his term as member.

(4) An outgoing chairman or vice-chairman shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 21-31.

21. (1) A chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

Resignation of chairman or vice-chairman.

(2) A vice-chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board, and, on his resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

22. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a municipal board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he, without sufficient excuse, neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

23. (1) If an elected chairman or vice-chairman dies or resigns his office, or is removed, a new chairman or vice-chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 18 or section 19, as the case may be.

Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.

(2) If a chairman appointed by the Local Government dies, resigns his office or is removed, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office. Provided that if a person so elected is a member of the board at the time of his election, he shall go out of office on ceasing to be a member.

(4) A person going out of office under subsection (3) shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

24. When a person not already a member of the board is elected or appointed chairman, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of his election or appointment, and shall continue to be a member so long as he holds office as chairman.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Every election and appointment of a member or chairman of a municipal board and every vacancy in the office of member or chairman shall be notified in the official Gazette.

Notification of elections, appointments and vacancies.

Joint Committees.

26. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, concur with any other municipal board, or with a district board, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of the committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

Joint committees.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division, if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division, or of the Local Government if those areas are in different divisions, shall be final.

Conduct of Business.

27. (1) A municipal board shall meet for the purpose of holding transaction of business at least once in every month on such day as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34.

(2) The chairman, or, in his absence, a vice-chairman, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth of the members of the board, convene either an ordinary or a special meeting at any other time.

28. (1) A meeting of a municipal board shall be either ordinary or special.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of a municipal board shall be one-half of the whole board.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a municipal board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before, and transacted at, the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) At every meeting of a municipal board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

31. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Act, or by any rule made by the Local Government under this Act, all questions which may come before any meeting of a municipal board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present.

Vote of majority decisive.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 32-40.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

32. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall be entitled to attend any meeting of the board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction.

33. (1) Every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or the next ensuing meeting, and shall be published in some local English or Vernacular newspaper, or in such other manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

34. (1) Every municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules consistent with this Act and any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively and of giving notice thereof;
- (c) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;
- (d) the conduct of proceedings at meetings, and the adjournment of meetings;
- (e) the division of duties among the members of the board;
- (f) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act; and
- (g) all other similar matters.

(2) Every rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Officers and Servants.

35. (1) Every municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may at a like meeting remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a person who is an officer in the service of the Government, and who is not a member of the board, is appointed secretary, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of such appointment, and shall continue to be a member of the board as long as he holds the office of secretary.

(3) When a member of the board is appointed to be secretary, he shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. In other cases, the board may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, assign to a secretary any such pay as it thinks fit.

36. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, a municipal board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary or proper for the efficient execution of its duties, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit.

37. In the case of a Government official employed by a municipal board, the board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

38. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 37, a board may—

(1) grant him leave allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

(a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or

(b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement;

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, he would be entitled if the service had been service under the Government.

Contracts.

39. (1) A municipal board may delegate to one or more of its members the power of entering into, on its behalf, any contract whereof the value or amount does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) A contract whereof the value or amount exceeds two hundred rupees shall not be executed until it has been sanctioned by the board at a meeting.

40. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a municipal board whereof the value or amount exceeds twenty rupees shall be in writing.

(2) Every such contract shall be signed by the chairman, or a vice-chairman, and a secretary:

Provided that the board may delegate to one or more of its members the power of executing an

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund—Sections 41-47.

contracts which he or they are empowered to enter into under section 39, sub-section (1).

(3) If a contract to which this section applies is executed otherwise than in conformity therewith, it shall not be binding on the board.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Subject to any general rules or special Taxes which may be orders which the Governor imposed. General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may, for the purposes of this Act, impose, with the sanction hereinafter specified in each case, and in manner prescribed by section 42, any of the following taxes, namely:—

(1) with the previous sanction of the Local Government—

(a) a tax on houses, buildings and lands situate within the municipality, not exceeding seven and a half per centum of the annual value of the houses, buildings and lands;

(b) a tax on persons exercising professions or carrying on trades or dealings in the municipality;

(c) a tax on vehicles and on animals used for riding or driving or as beasts of burthen, when such vehicles or animals are kept within the municipality;

(d) a tax on vehicles and on animals as aforesaid entering the municipality, and on boats moored therein;

(e) an octroi on goods or animals brought within the municipality for consumption or use therein; and

(2) with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, any other tax.

42. (1) A municipal board may resolve at a Procedure in imposing special meeting to propose taxes. the imposition of any tax for the purposes of this Act.

(2) When a resolution has been passed under sub-section (1), the board shall publish a notice defining the persons or property proposed to be taxed, the amount or rate of the tax to be imposed, and the system of assessment to be adopted.

(3) Any inhabitant of the municipality objecting to the proposed tax may, within a fortnight from the publication of the notice, submit his objection in writing to the board, and the board shall, at a special meeting, take his objection into consideration.

(4) If no objection is submitted within the said period of a fortnight under sub-section (3), or if the objections so submitted, having been considered as aforesaid, are deemed insufficient, the board may forward its proposals to the Local Government, with the objections (if any) which have been submitted as aforesaid.

(5) The Local Government on receiving proposals under sub-section (4) may sanction the same, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the board for further consideration.

(6) When the Local Government sanctions any proposals which, under section 41, sub-section (2), require the further sanction of the Governor General in Council, it shall submit those proposals to the Governor General in Council, with the objections (if any) received through the board; and the Governor General in Council may sanction the proposals, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the Local Government for further consideration.

(7) When the proposals of a municipal board have been sanctioned by the Local Government, or by the Local Government and the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, the board may, at a special meeting, direct the imposition of the tax in accordance with those proposals.

43. A tax imposed under this Act shall not be Tax not invalid for invalid for defect of form, defect of form.

and when any property is described for the purpose of assessing any such tax, it shall be sufficient to describe it so that it shall be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier.

44. A municipal board, by a resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Local Government, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may abolish or reduce any tax imposed under the foregoing sections.

45. All taxes leviable in any local area under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, at the time when a municipal board having authority over that local area comes into existence under this Act, shall be deemed to have been imposed and assessed under this Act. XV of 1873.

46. Arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality, by the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within those limits.

Municipal Fund.

47. (1) There shall be formed for each municipality a municipal fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(a) all sums received by or on behalf of the board;

(b) all fines realized in cases in which prosecutions are instituted under this Act or section 34 of Act V of 1861 for offences committed within the municipality;

(c) when there has been included within the municipality any municipality constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the balance (if any) standing at the credit of the municipal fund of that municipality at the time when the municipal board came into existence; and XV of 1873.

(d) when there has been included within the municipality any local area in which the said Act XX of 1856 was in force at the time when the municipal board came into existence, the amount (if any) then available under section 36 of that Act for the purposes of cleansing, lighting and improvement in that local area.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Bill, 1883.Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Municipal Boards generally—Sections 48—55.

(2) The municipal fund shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be applicable, at the discretion of the municipal board, to all the purposes of this Act within the limits of the municipality, and, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to like purposes beyond those limits, when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality.

48. (1) In places where there is a Government Custody and investment treasury or sub-treasury, or of municipal fund. a bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over, the municipal fund shall be kept in the treasury, sub-treasury or bank.

(2) In places where there is no such treasury or sub-treasury or bank, the municipal fund may be deposited with any banker, or person acting as a banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government may in each case think sufficient.

(3) A municipal board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of its municipal fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the like nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the municipal fund.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS
GENERALLY.Municipal Police.

49. Every municipal board shall maintain a police-establishment. watch and ward, for the prevention and suppression of nuisances and for the enforcement of the rules and orders of the board.

50. Subject to the provisions of section 9 of the Constitution of establishment. Cantonments Act, 1860, the establishment maintained under section 49 shall, as the board with the approval of the Local Government may from time to time direct, be either a body of watchmen or a part of the general police force under the Local Government within the meaning of section 2 of Act V of 1861; and it shall consist of such number of officers and men, and the officers and men shall receive such pay, leave allowances, gratuities and pensions, as the board may, from time to time, after consultation with the Magistrate of the district and the Inspector General of Police, and subject to the final decision of the Local Government, direct.

51. If the establishment maintained under section 49 is a body of watchmen, the watchmen shall be appointed and promoted, and shall be liable to dismissal, suspension, reduction or fine, under such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf; and shall perform such duties, and be liable to such penalties, as village-policemen appointed under the North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873, or under the Oudh Laws Act, XVI of 1873 1876, as the case may be, perform and are liable to, XVIII of 1876

52. If the establishment is part of the general Duties of municipal police force, the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Act V of 1861 or in any other Act for the time being in force, define the duties which the officers and men of the establishment may or may not be required to perform.

53. In any municipality in which section 31 of Act V of 1861 is in force, every watchman under this Act shall have the powers of a police-officer under that section.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Every municipal board, so far as the municipal fund at its disposal will permit, but subject to any agreement between the board and the Local Government as to the application of that fund, shall, after providing for the maintenance of the police-establishment referred to in the foregoing sections,—

- (1) provide for the construction, maintenance, repair and cleansing of the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and watercourses;
- (2) cause those streets and roads to be watered and lighted;
- (3) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of schools and dispensaries and of other public institutions for the promotion of education or for the benefit of the public health, and control and administer all such institutions within the municipality, except where they may, by order of the Local Government, have been excepted from the operation of this section;
- (4) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of poor-houses, markets and other works of public utility; and
- (5) generally do all acts and things calculated to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants of the municipality.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules—

- (a) for prohibiting, preventing and punishing such acts or omissions within the municipality as may, in the opinion of the board, cause or tend to cause any common injury, danger or annoyance to the public, or to people in general, who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, or injury, obstruction, danger or annoyance to persons who have occasion to use any public right, or may, in its opinion, be prejudicial to the public health, safety or convenience, or offences, against public decency;
- (b) for protecting from injury or interference anything within the municipality being the property of Her Majesty or of the board;

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter V.—Control—Sections 56-60.

- (c) for prohibiting or controlling the establishment or maintenance of markets, sārāis and halting places, and controlling the management of the same and of any places of public entertainment and resort;
- (d) for controlling and regulating the use and management of burial and burning grounds;
- (e) for limiting the rates which may be demanded for the hire of any carriage, cart, boat or other conveyance, or of animals hired to carry loads, or for the services of persons hired to carry loads, where those conveyances, animals or persons are hired within the municipality for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, or for a service which would ordinarily be performed within twenty-four hours;
- (f) for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths;
- (g) for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which officers of the board may enter on private property for the enforcement of rules made under this section;
- (h) in hilly tracts, for regulating or prohibiting the cutting of trees or shrubs, or the excavation or removal of soil, where such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for the preservation of the soil, the prevention of landslips or of the formation of ravines or torrents, the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel; and
- (i) generally for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In making any rule under this section, a municipal board may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(3) A rule made under this section shall not come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing portion of this section, the municipal board of a municipality in which the Hackney Carriage Act, 1879, is in force shall not make rules under sub-section (1) in respect of any vehicles to which that Act applies.

56. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may order any person not to do, or not to omit to do, within the municipality, anything the doing of, or the omission to do, which is a public nuisance.

57. (1) The Local Government may invest, within the limits of the municipality, a municipal board with the powers of a Magistrate of a district as described in section 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and with power to make conditional orders of the nature referred to in that section, in respect of all or any acts or omissions punishable under rules made in exercise of the power conferred by section 55, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) and (h).

(2) Sections 133 to 142 (both inclusive) of the Code of the Criminal Procedure shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to all proceedings taken in exercise of these powers: X of 1882.

Provided that, for the purposes of such proceedings, section 133 of the Code shall be read as if for the words "before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class" the words "before the District Magistrate or some magistrate of the first or second class appointed by him in this behalf" were substituted.

(3) The Local Government may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the powers with which it has invested a board under this section.

58. A municipal board may, at a special meeting, delegate to one or more committees of its members any of the powers vested in the board by section 56, or with which the board may have been invested under section 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district, when he is not a member of the municipal board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immovable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any municipal board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any book or document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

60. (1) The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district may, by order in writing, suspend within the limits of the division or district (as the case may be) the execution of any resolution or order of a municipal board or joint committee, or prohibit the doing within those limits of any act which is about to be done, or is being done, in pursuance of or under cover of this Act, if, in his opinion, the resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace, or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter V.—Control—Sections 61-64.

(2) When a Commissioner or Magistrate makes any order under this section, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

61. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate Extraordinary powers of the district may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a municipal board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from that balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers conferred on him by this section.

62. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that a municipal board has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, the Local Government may, by order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty.

(2) If that duty is not performed within the period so fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

63. (1) If a municipal board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare that board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and supersede it for a period to be specified in the order.

(2) When a board is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue :—

(a) All members of the board shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members.

(b) All powers and duties of the board may, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf.

(c) All property vested in the board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the board shall be reconstituted, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for being members.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding of a municipal board for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) as to the appointment of members of a municipal board ;

(b) as to the language of the board ;

(c) for the assessment and collection of taxes imposed under this Act, and for preventing evasion of the same ;

(d) as to the authority on which money may be paid from the municipal fund ;

(e) as to the conditions on which property vested in the board may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise ;

(f) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed by the board to offices requiring professional skill ;

(g) as to the intermediate office or offices, if any, through which correspondence between boards and the Local Government or officers of that Government and representations addressed to the Local Government under this Act shall pass ;

(h) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned ;

(i) as to the accounts to be kept by boards, as to the manner in which such accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge ;

(j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned ;

(k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by boards ; and

(l) generally, for the guidance of boards and public officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act.

(2) In making rules under clause (c), the Local Government may direct that a breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter VI.—Supplemental—Sections 65-74.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a board is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner of the division, directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with the board, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code.

(2) A person shall not by reason of being a shareholder in, or member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and the board, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board relating to any such contract.

66. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the board, if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of the board, and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him by the board with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

67. Where any land, whether within or without the limits of a municipality, is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the municipal board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the board.

68. (1) The authority empowered to make rules under section 10, section 55, or section 61 shall, before making them, publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) Every rule made under any of those sections shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by this section.

69. A Court shall not take cognizance of an offence punishable under this Act, or the rules made under this Act, except on the complaint of the municipal board or of some person authorized by the board in this behalf.

70. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under that other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules made under it: Provided that a person shall not be punished twice for the same offence.

71. All rules made under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, or any Act thereby repealed, and in force in any local area comprised in a municipality constituted under this Act at the time the municipal board for that municipality comes into existence under section 16, shall, as far as may be, be deemed to have been made under this Act, and shall continue in force until repealed by new rules so made.

(2) The authority empowered to make such new rules shall, as soon as may be, make them and take such action as may be requisite for bringing them into force.

72. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may determine, declare its intention—

- (a) to exclude from a municipality any local area comprised therein and defined in the notification, or
- (b) to include within a municipality any local area in the vicinity of the same and defined in the notification:

Provided that where the local area is a military cantonment or part of a military cantonment, a notification shall not be published under this section in respect of it without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council.

73. (1) Any inhabitant of a municipality or local area in respect of which a notification has been published in the Gazette under section 72 may, if he objects to the alteration proposed, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under sub-section (1), the Local Government may by a notification in the official Gazette exclude the local area from the municipality or include it therein, as the case may be.

74. (1) When a local area is excluded from a municipality under section 73—

- (a) this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act shall cease to apply thereto; and
- (b) the Local Government shall, after consulting the municipal board, frame a scheme determining what portion of the balance of the municipal fund and other property vested in the municipal board shall vest in Her Majesty for the benefit of the local area, and in what manner the liabilities of the board shall be apportioned between the board and the Secretary of State for India in Council, and on the publication of the scheme in the local official Gazette, the property and liabilities shall vest and be apportioned accordingly.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter VII.—Exceptional Provisions—Sections 75-79.

(2) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (1) shall be applied under the orders of the local Government to discharging the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council under that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area.

75. When a local area is included in a municipality under section 73, this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act and in force throughout the whole municipality at the time the local area is so included shall apply to the local area.

76. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

77. Every member of a municipal board constituted under this Act shall be deemed to be a municipal commissioner within the meaning of every enactment for the time being in force.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the circumstances of any municipality are such that the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a municipal board be elected are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt the municipality, wholly or in part, from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply, or shall only apply in part, as the case may be, to the excepted municipality until again applied thereto by a like notification of the Local Government:

Provided that no notification shall be issued under this section in respect of a municipality for which a municipal board has come into existence unless its issue has been sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

(2) While the municipality continues to be excepted, wholly or in part, from the operation of the provisions mentioned in sub-section (1), the Local Government may appoint such of the members of the municipal board as would otherwise have been elected.

79. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, withdraw from the operation of this Act or the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the area of any municipality constituted under that Act.

(2) When a notification is issued under this section in respect of any municipality, the Act, and all rules, bye-laws, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under the Act, shall cease to apply to the local area comprised in the municipality, the balance of the municipal fund and all other property which at the time of the issue of the notification is vested in the municipal board or municipal committee shall vest in Her Majesty, and the liabilities of the board or committee shall be transferred to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

(3) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (2) shall be applied under the orders of the Local Government to discharge the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council by that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area comprised in the municipality.

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART V.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making
Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 5th September, 1883:—

No. 20 OF 1883.

THE PANJÁB MUNICIPAL BILL, 1883.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Repeal of Act IV of 1873.
3. Interpretation-clause.
4. Notification of intention to apply Act.
Publication of notification.
5. Objection to such application.
Procedure thereon.
6. Alteration of limits of municipalities, transfer from one class to another, and withdrawal from operation of the Act.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES.

Constitution of Committees.

7. Constitution of committees, and number, appointment and election of members.
8. Disqualification for corrupt practices.
9. Term of office.
10. Removal of member.
11. Resignation of members.
12. Filling up casual vacancies.
13. Incorporation of committee.

SECTIONS.

14. Time when committee shall come into existence.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

15. Election or appointment of chairman or vice-chairman.
16. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.
Determination of office.
17. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.

Notification of Elections, Appointments, &c.

18. Notification of elections, appointments, &c.

Conduct of Business.

19. Chairman of meeting.
20. Time of meeting.
21. Ordinary and special meetings.
22. Quorum.
23. Vote of majority decisive.
24. Record and publication of proceedings.
25. Exercise by chairman or vice-chairman of powers of committee.
26. Rules of business.

Joint Committees.

27. Joint committees.

Officers and Servants.

28. Appointment of secretary.
29. Employment of other officers and servants.
30. Pensions to establishments.

Contracts.

31. Authority to contract.
32. Mode of executing contracts.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

33. Taxes which may be imposed.
34. Additional taxes for special objects.
Annual value.
35. Tolls and fees.
36. Procedure in imposing taxes.
37. Power to exempt from taxation.
38. Taxes, &c., not invalid for defect of form.
39. Tax on houses, buildings and lands when payable.

SECTIONS.

40. Preparation of valuation lists.
41. Owner or occupier how to be designated, if name unknown.
42. Publication of notice of assessments.
43. Public notice of time fixed for revising assessment.
44. Verification of list after disposal of objections.
45. Further amendments of valuation-list.
46. New list need not be prepared every year.
47. Presentation of bill and issue of notice of demand.
48. Liability of occupier if tax not paid by owner after notice of demand.
49. Recovery of taxes.
50. Power to examine articles liable to octroi tax.
Presentation of bill for octroi tax and receipt for payment.
51. Power to lease the collection of octroi or tolls.
52. Returns for purposes of valuation.
Power to enter houses, &c.
53. Assessments not to be questioned except under this Act.
54. Receipts to be given.

Appeals.

55. Appeals against assessments.
56. Limitation of appeal.
Deposit of amount.
57. No appeal in certain cases.

Municipal Fund.

58. Municipal fund constituted.
59. Custody of municipal fund.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Police.

60. Police-establishment.
61. Relief of committee from police charges.
Composition for police with poor municipalities.
Termination of such composition.
62. Constitution of police-establishment.
Duties when part of the general police force.
Powers, duties, protection, responsibilities and penalties when a body of watchmen.
Command of such body.
63. Obligation to assist watchmen.
Arrest of persons obstructing watchmen.
64. Appointment, promotion, suspension and punishment of watchmen.
65. Police protection of sarāis, &c., for the use of which fees are charged by committee.

Conserrancy and General Improvement.

66. Duties of committee generally.
67. Power to make rules creating offences.
68. Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.
69. Power to make conditional orders for removal of nuisances.
70. Delegation of powers as to nuisances.

Additional power to make Rules.

71. Additional power to make rules.
72. Special power to make rules in hill municipalities.
73. Penalty for infringement of rules under sections 71 and 72.
Confirmation of such rules.

SECTIONS.

Special Provisions.

74. Regulation of offensive and dangerous trades.
75. Prohibition of such trades.
76. New burial or burning places.
Closing of burial and burning places.
77. Appeal against order under section 75 or 76.
78. Slaughter of animals.
79. Bathing-places, &c.
80. Setting back buildings projecting beyond line of street.
81. Notice of new buildings.
82. Removal of projections and obstructions.
83. Execution of notices.
84. Names of streets and numbers of houses.
85. Recovery of cost of works executed from persons interested.
86. Service of notices.
87. Power to make compensation out of municipal fund.
88. Proceeds of fines.
89. Power to compound offences declared to be public nuisances.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

90. Control by Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.
91. Power to suspend action of committee.
92. Extraordinary powers of Deputy Commissioner in case of emergency.
93. Power to provide for performance of duties in case of default of committee.
94. Action of Deputy Commissioner or Commissioner to be immediately reported.
95. Powers of Local Government and its officers over committees.
96. Power of Local Government to supersede committee in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.
97. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

98. Members, officers or servants of committees not to be interested in contracts with the committee.
99. Suits against committees or their officers.
100. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.
101. Prosecutions for infringement of rules.
102. Acquisition of land.
103. Procedure for making rules.
104. Powers of Governor General in Council and of Local Government exercisable from time to time.

CHAPTER VII.

SUPPLEMENTAL AND TEMPORARY PROVISIONS.

105. Disposal of property vested in committee when local area is withdrawn from operation of Act.
106. Power to except municipality from provisions of Act unsuited thereto.
107. Saving of rights of existing officers and servants.
108. General powers of Local Government and Commissioners.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter I.—Preliminary.)

A Bill to make better provision for the organization and administration of Municipalities in the Panjab.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the organization and administration of municipalities in the Panjab; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

t IV of
3, sec-
1.]

1. (1) This Act may be called the Panjab Municipal Act, 1883:

Short title.

(2) It extends only to the territories under the Government of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjab:

Local extent.

Commencement.

(3) And it shall come into force on the passing thereof.

t IV of
3, section

2. (1) Act IV of 1873 (the Panjab Municipal Act, 1873) is hereby repealed.

(2) But all extensions and appointments made, and all limits defined, under the said Act shall be deemed to be respectively made and defined under this Act, and an extension of any particular provision of the said Act shall be deemed to be an extension of the corresponding provision of this Act:

Provided that, when a first election is held under this Act in any municipality, the term of office of any member of committee appointed before this Act comes into force shall cease when the elected members take office, unless the Local Government shall otherwise direct.

(3) And all taxes imposed and sanctioned under the said Act shall be deemed to have been imposed and sanctioned under this Act.

(4) And all assessments, bye-laws, rules and regulations of any kind, relating to matters provided for by this Act, which may heretofore have been made or approved by the Local Government, shall be deemed to have been made under this Act.

(5) And all proceedings taken under any such assessment, bye-law, rule or regulation shall be deemed to be as valid as if they had been taken under this Act.

3. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Interpretation-clause.

“Committee” means a municipal committee appointed under the provisions of this Act:

“Municipality” means any town or group of towns to which this Act is applied:

“Inhabitant” means any person ordinarily residing or carrying on business, or possessing immoveable property, and any person declared by the Local Government to be an inhabitant, in any town to which this Act applies, or to which the Local Government has by notification declared its intention to apply it:

“Street” mean: any way, road, street, square, court, alley, passage or open space, whether a thoroughfare or not, over which the public have a right of way; and also the roadway and footway over any public bridge or causeway:

“Owner” includes the person for the time being receiving the rent of lands and buildings, or either of them, whether on his own account or as agent or trustee for any other person or society, or for any religious or charitable purpose, or who would receive the same if the land or building were let to a tenant:

Provided that no such agent or trustee shall be liable to do anything required by this Act to be done by the owner unless he has in his possession sufficient funds belonging to the owner to pay for the same; nor shall he be subject to any penalty for omitting to do such act if he can prove that he had not in his possession funds belonging to the owner sufficient for the purpose:

“Casual vacancy” means a vacancy occurring in a committee by the death, resignation or removal of a member of committee:

“Notification” means a notification published by authority of the Local Government in the Panjab Government Gazette:

“Pre-scribed” means pre-scribed by rules made by the Local Government under this Act.

4. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification, declare its intention to apply this Act or any of its provisions to any town or group of towns in the territories under such Government.

(2) Every such notification shall define the limits of the town or group of towns to which it relates, and may include within those limits any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity of any such town:

Provided that it shall not, without the consent of the Governor or General in Council, so include any military cantonment.

(3) A copy of every notification under this section, together with a translation of the same in the local vernacular, shall be affixed in some conspicuous place in the court-house of the district in which the town or group of towns to which it relates is situate, and in one or more conspicuous places in such town or group of towns; and the Deputy Commissioner shall certify to the Local Government the date on which the copy and translation aforesaid were so affixed. The date so certified shall be deemed to be the date of publication of the notification.

5. (1) If any inhabitant objects to the application of the Act, or of the provisions thereof specified in the notification, he may, within six weeks from the date of publication of the notification, submit his objection in writing through the Deputy Commissioner to the Local Government; and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the date of the said publication have expired, and the Local Government has considered and passed orders upon any such objections which may have been submitted to it, the Local Government may, by notification, declare such town or group of towns to be, for the purposes of this Act, a municipality of the first or second class, and apply this Act or the provisions thereof specified in the notification to such municipality.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

1 V 6. The Local Government may, at any time, by notification, alter the limits of any municipality, or order that it be transferred from one class to another, or withdraw any local area to which this Act or any of its provisions may have been applied or extended from the operation of this Act or of the said provisions:

Provided that, when such notification applies this Act or any of its provisions to any local area not previously subject thereto, it shall not be published unless and until the provisions of section 4 and section 5, sub-section (1), have been complied with, and the period specified in section 5, sub-section (2), has expired, and all objections submitted to the Local Government have been disposed of as in that sub-section provided.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF COMMITTEES.

Constitution of Committees.

7. (1) There shall be established by notification for each municipality a committee having authority over such municipality, and consisting of such number of members, not less than six, as the Local Government may direct.

(2) Such members may be appointed by the Local Government, either by name or by official designation, or may be elected from among the inhabitants in accordance with rules made under this Act, or some may be appointed and some elected as the Local Government may direct:

Provided that—

(1) when the Local Government has directed that all or any of the members shall be elected, they shall not be appointed by the Local Government unless—

- (a) the electors do not elect a sufficient number of members; or
- (b) a sufficient number of candidates do not present themselves for election; or
- (c) a majority of the electors declare that they so desire; or
- (d) by order of the Local Government, subject to the sanction of the Governor General in Council, for any other good and sufficient reason affecting the public interests:

(2) except with the approval of the Governor General in Council, not less than two-thirds of the members of every committee shall be persons other than salaried officers of Government unless such officers are elected as members.

8. If the Local Government is satisfied that any candidate elected as member of committee has been guilty of corrupt practices at his election, the election of such candidate shall be cancelled.

Disqualification for corrupt practices.

9. (1) Members of committee, except those who have been appointed by official designation, shall hold office for such term, not exceeding three years, as shall be fixed by the Local Government, or until their successors have been elected or appointed.

(2) When the Local Government has directed that the members of a committee or any of them shall be elected and shall hold office for a term of three years, one-third, as nearly as may be, of the members elected at the first election thereafter held shall vacate office at the end of one year, and one-third, as nearly as may be, at the end of two years from the date of assuming office.

(3) The members who shall vacate office at the end of the first and of the second year, respectively, shall be determined either by voluntary arrangement among the members or by lot:

Provided that, if an elected member be chairman of the committee, he shall not be required to vacate office as member by lot during his term of office as chairman.

(4) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be eligible for re-election or re-appointment.

10. (1) The Local Government may at any time remove any member of committee appointed by name or by his official designation.

(2) The Local Government may remove any member of committee chosen by election—

- (a) if such member refuses to act, or becomes, in the opinion of the Local Government, incapable of acting;
- (b) if he is declared an insolvent, or is proscribed from employment under Government, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a criminal Court to any such order as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member;
- (c) if his continuance in office is, in the opinion of the Local Government, dangerous to the public peace or order, or, when he is a salaried officer of Government, inconsistent with the proper discharge of his official functions;
- (d) if for three consecutive months he is absent from the meetings of the committee unless with its permission.

(3) Members removed under clauses (b) and (c) shall be disqualified for election unless with the previous sanction of the Local Government.

11. Any member of committee may signify to the Local Government in writing his intention or wish to resign his office; and, on such resignation being accepted by the Local Government, his office shall become vacant.

12. (1) The Local Government may either empower committees to fill up casual vacancies among the members or, subject to the provisions of section 7, appoint members to fill such vacancies or cause them to be filled up by election.

(2) Every member of committee so chosen shall be deemed to be an elected member, and shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office; but shall, if otherwise qualified, be eligible for re-election.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

Panjab Local
Self-government Bill, section 9; N.-W.
Bill, section
1 of 1871, s.
adms Act of 1871, s.
; Ambay Act of 1873, s.
]

13. Every committee shall be a body corporate by the name of the municipal committee of its municipality, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to rules from time to time made by the Local Government in this behalf, to transfer any property held by it, to invest any sums not required for current charges in Government securities or in any other form of security which may be approved of by the Local Government, and from time to time to dispose of such securities as may be necessary, and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

W.P. Bill,
section 1.

14. A committee shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification, appoint in this behalf.

Chairman and Vice-Chairman.

W.P. Bill,
sections 18 &
]

15. (1) Every committee shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be chairman, and such member shall, after the election is approved by the Local Government, become chairman of the committee :

Provided that the committee, instead of electing, may apply to the Local Government to appoint a chairman from among its members, and that the Local Government may, by notification, exclude any committee from the operation of this clause : and that in either of these cases, or if no election is made within one month from the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of chairman, or if the person elected is not approved, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, appoint one of the members of the committee to be chairman.

(2) Every committee may also, from time to time, elect one or two of its members to be vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

16. (1) A chairman shall hold office for three years, and a vice-chairman shall hold office for such term as the committee may, by rule, determine.

(2) A chairman or vice-chairman shall vacate office as such when he ceases to be a member of committee, or tenders in writing to the committee his resignation of his office as chairman or vice-chairman, or becomes, in the opinion of the Local Government, incapable of acting ; and he may be removed from such office by the Local Government if moved to do so by resolution passed by two-thirds of the members present at a special meeting.

(3) Every resignation of office tendered under this section shall be reported, as soon as may be, to the Deputy Commissioner.

17. If a chairman or vice-chairman refuses to act, or vacates or is removed from his office as such, another chairman or vice-chairman shall be elected or appointed, as the case may be.

Notification of Elections, Appointments, &c.

18. All elections and appointments of members of committees and of chairmen of committees, and all determinations of the office of such members otherwise than by the expiration of their term of office, shall be notified in the Panjab Government Gazette. No such election or appointment shall take effect until it is so notified.

Conduct of Business.

19. At every meeting of committee the chairman, if present, shall preside. If the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and there is a vice-chairman, the vice-chairman, if present, shall preside. If neither chairman nor vice-chairman be present, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

20. (1) Every committee shall meet for the transaction of business, at least once in every month, at such time as may be fixed by its rules of business, and also at the time to which any such meeting may be adjourned under such rules :

Provided that, if there be no business to be laid before a committee at any monthly meeting, the chairman may give notice of the same to each member of committee three days before the time appointed for such meeting, and, when such notice is given, the meeting shall not be held.

(2) The chairman, or, in his absence, the vice-chairman, if any, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fourth of the members of the committee, convene a meeting at any other reasonable time.

21. (1) Meetings of committee shall be either ordinary or special.

(2) All business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting which is not required by this Act or by any rules made thereunder to be transacted at a special meeting.

22. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of committee shall be one-half of the members of committee for the time being.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of committee shall be such number of the members of committee, not less than three, as may from time to time be fixed by its rules of business.

(3) If at any meeting of committee a quorum is not present, the chairman, or in his absence the vice-chairman, may adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit. Notice of such adjourned meeting shall be given in the manner required by the rules of business, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before, and transacted at, the adjourned meeting, whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter II.—Organization of Committees.)

23. Except as otherwise provided by this Act or by rules made under this Act, all questions which may come before any meeting of committee shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present, the chairman of the meeting, in case of an equality of votes, having a second or casting vote.

24. (1) Minutes of the proceedings at each meeting of committee shall be drawn up and recorded in a book to be kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next ensuing meeting, and shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct, and shall, at all reasonable times and without charge, be open to the inspection of any inhabitant who pays any tax under this Act.

(2) A copy of all such minutes shall, within three days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

25. In case of emergency, the chairman of the committee, or in his absence the vice-chairman, shall exercise all powers vested in the committee by this Act or by any rules made thereunder, unless it is by this Act expressly declared that such power shall be exercised by the committee at a meeting:

Provided that the chairman or vice-chairman shall not act in opposition to, or in contravention of, any order of the committee at a meeting.

26. (1) Every committee may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules consistent with this Act and with any rules made by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner in which notice of ordinary and special meetings and adjourned meetings shall be given;
- (c) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;
- (d) the conduct of proceedings at meetings and the adjournment of meetings;
- (e) the custody of the common seal and the purposes for which it shall be used;
- (f) the division of duties among the members of the committee;
- (g) the powers to be exercised by sub-committees or members to whom particular duties have been assigned;
- (h) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the committee for money paid under this Act;
- (i) the appointment, leave, suspension and removal of its officers and servants;
- (j) the term for which the vice-chairman shall hold office; and
- (k) all other similar matters.

(2) Every rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

Joint Committees.

27. (1) A committee may, from time to time, concur with any other local authority in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of such joint committee, and in delegating to such joint committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the local authorities so concurring, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of such joint committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which such joint committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between local authorities acting under this section, it shall be referred to—

- (a) the Deputy Commissioner, if the local authorities are in the same district,
- (b) the Commissioner of the division, if the local authorities are in different districts in the same division, or if they are in different divisions, the Commissioners of such divisions, when they can agree as to the decision of the case, and
- (c) the Local Government, if the local authorities are in different divisions, and the Commissioners of such divisions cannot agree as to the decision of the case; and when such reference is made, the decision thereupon of the Deputy Commissioner, Commissioner or Local Government shall be final.

Explanation.—In this section “local authority” means a municipal committee, district committee, local board or cantonment authority.

Officers and Servants.

28. (1) Every committee shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person, to be its secretary, and may, at a like meeting, with the same sanction, remove any person so appointed.

(2) A member of committee appointed as secretary shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. When any other person is appointed to be secretary, the committee may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, assign to him such pay as it thinks fit.

29. (1) Subject to the other provisions of this Act and to any rules made in this behalf, every committee may employ and pay such other officers and servants not being members of the committee as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of its duties:

Provided that if, at any time, in the opinion of the Deputy Commissioner,

- (a) the number of persons employed by the committee, or the remuneration assigned to those persons, or to any of them, is excessive, or

(b) any such person is unfit for his employment, the committee shall, on the requirement of the Deputy Commissioner, reduce the number or

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.

remuneration of such persons, or, as the case may be, dismiss the unfit person.

(2) If the committee is dissatisfied with such requirement, it may appeal against it to the Commissioner of the division, whose decision shall be final.

Self-government Bill,
nos 17 and
Act I of
, section

30. (1) In the case of Government officials, any committee may—

- (a) if the services of such officials are wholly lent to it, contribute to their pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances in accordance with the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force; and
- (b) if such officials devote only a part of their time to the performance of duties in behalf of the committee, contribute to their pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

(2) In the case of servants, not being Government officials, any committee may—

(1) grant leave-allowances, and, in the case of servants appointed before the passing of this Act and not entitled to pension, and of servants drawing less than ten rupees a month, gratuities to such servants; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

- (a) subscribe in behalf of such servants for pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances under the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force;
- (b) purchase from the Government or otherwise annuities for such servants on their retirement:

Provided that such pensions, gratuities, leave-allowances and annuities shall in no case exceed the sum to which, under the Government Leave and Pension Code for the time being in force, such servants would be entitled if the service had been service under Government.

Contracts.

W. P. Bill, ion 35.]

31. (1) The committee of a municipality of the first class may delegate Authority to contract. to one or more of its members the power of entering, on its behalf, into any contract whereof the value or amount does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) No contract whereof the value or amount exceeds two hundred rupees shall be executed until it has been sanctioned at a meeting of the committee.

W. P. Bill, ion 36;
IV of
3, section

32. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a committee whereof the value or amount exceeds twenty rupees shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the chairman or vice-chairman and the secretary, if he is a member of committee, and, if the secretary is not a member of committee, by another member:

Provided that, when the power of entering into any contract on behalf of the committee has been delegated under the preceding section, the members so empowered may execute such contract.

(2) A transfer of immoveable property belonging to the committee must be made by an instrument in writing, executed by the chairman or vice-chairman, and by at least two other members of the committee.

(3) No contract or transfer executed otherwise than in conformity with the provisions of this section shall be binding on the committee:

Provided that this shall not affect any liability of the committee under section 70 of the Indian Contract Act to make compensation for any benefit received.

IX of 187

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

33. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor [Act XV 1873, secti
16; Act V
of 1871, s
tion 12; N.
P. Bill, secti
37.]
Taxes which may be General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a committee may, for the purposes of this Act, in the manner hereinafter provided, impose any of the following taxes, namely:—

(1) with the previous sanction of the Local Government—

- (a) a tax on houses, buildings and lands, either
- (i) not exceeding  $7\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the annual value thereof; or
- (ii) not exceeding one anna per square yard; or
- (iii) not exceeding three rupees per running foot of frontage in streets or bázárs;

(b) a tax on persons practising arts or professions or carrying on trades or callings in the municipality;

(c) a tax on vehicles, boats, animals used for riding, driving, draught or burden, and dogs, kept within the municipality;

(d) a tax on menial and domestic servants;

(e) an octroi on animals for slaughter and goods brought within the octroi limits for consumption or use therein; and

(2) with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, any other tax.

34. (1) To provide further funds for the [Act VII 1874, sec
13.]
Additional taxes for following purposes, or any special objects. of them, namely:—

(a) the lighting of streets, roads and public thoroughfares;

(b) the supply, storage and preservation from pollution of water for drinking and cooking purposes;

(c) any special work approved by the Local Government for promoting the health, comfort or convenience of the inhabitants;

a committee may (subject to the rules or orders last aforesaid) in the manner hereinafter provided, and with the previous sanction of the Local

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

Government, impose, in addition to any taxes imposed under section 33, a tax on houses, buildings and lands, either

- (i) not exceeding  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the annual value thereof; or
- (ii) not exceeding 4 pies per square yard; or
- (iii) not exceeding one rupee per running foot of frontage in streets or bázárs.

(2) A separate account shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of every tax levied under this section.

Madras Act
I of 1871,
41;
Municipal Act V
1876, s.

Explanation.—In this and the last preceding section, “annual value” means the annual rent for which houses, buildings and lands liable to taxation may reasonably be expected to let:

Provided that—

(1) In municipalities where houses are usually let furnished, it shall not be necessary, in estimating the rental, to make any deduction on account of the furniture, unless the Local Government shall otherwise order:

(2) In the case of land assessed to the land-revenue or of which the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, if the Local Government shall so direct, the annual value shall be deemed to be double the land-revenue for the time being assessed on the land, whether such assessment is leviable or not; and, when the land-revenue has been wholly or in part compounded for or redeemed, double the amount which, but for such composition or redemption, would have been leviable; and also, when the improvement of the land due to canal irrigation has been excluded from account in assessing the land-revenue, double the amount of the owner's rate or water-advantage rate or other rate imposed in respect of such improvement.

35. With the previous sanction of the Local Government, or of such officer as the Local Government may authorize in this

Tolls and fees. behalf, a committee may, from time to time, by resolution at a special meeting, impose and fix the rate of, or abolish, the following tolls and fees, namely:—

- (a) where no octroi is levied, a toll on vehicles and animals entering the municipality, and on boats moored therein;
- (b) fees on licenses to the proprietors or drivers of vehicles, boats or animals plying for hire within the limits of the municipality;
- (c) school-fees;
- (d) fees for the use of, or benefits derived from, hospitals, dispensaries, rest-houses, saráís, slaughter-houses, markets and other public institutions;
- (e) fees at fairs, agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions held within the municipality and under its control;
- (f) fees for notices of demand of any tax, toll or fee due under the Act;
- (g) fees for licenses to carry on offensive or dangerous trades;

Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 20.]

Madras Act I of 1871, sections 52 & 53. ibid, sections 10 & 153.]

(h) fees for permission to make any temporary erection, or for the temporary occupation of any street or other land vested in the committee. [Bombay VI of 1 section 2]

36. (1) A committee may, at a special meeting, pass a resolution to propose the imposition of any tax under section 33 or section 34, or any toll under section 35 (a), within the whole or any part of the municipality for the purposes of this Act. [N. W. P. section 38 IV of 1 section 7]

(2) When such resolution has been passed, the committee shall publish a notice, defining the class of persons or description of property proposed to be taxed, the amount or rate of the tax to be imposed and the system of assessment to be adopted.

(3) Any inhabitant objecting to the proposed tax may, within thirty days from the publication of the notice, submit his objection in writing to the committee, and the committee shall, at a special meeting, take such objection into consideration.

(4) If no such objection is received, or if such objection, having been considered as aforesaid, is deemed insufficient, the committee may forward its proposals to the Local Government, together with the objections (if any) which have been submitted as aforesaid, and with its decision thereupon.

(5) The Local Government, on receiving such proposals, may sanction the same, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the committee for further consideration.

(6) When the Local Government sanctions any such proposals which require the further sanction of the Governor General in Council, it shall submit the same to the Governor General in Council, together with the objections (if any) received through the committee; and the Governor General in Council may sanction the proposals, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the Local Government for further consideration.

(7) When the proposals of a committee have been sanctioned by the Local Government, or by the Local Government and the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, the committee may, at a special meeting, direct the imposition of the tax in accordance with such proposals. In giving such direction the committee shall fix a date, not less than one month after the meeting, from which the tax shall come into force:

Provided that no tax shall come into force until it has been notified in the Panjab Government Gazette, and such notification shall be conclusive evidence that it has been imposed in the manner provided by this section.

(8) The Local Government may, by notification, and the committee may, at a special meeting, with the sanction of the Local Government, abolish or reduce in amount any tax so imposed.

37. (1) A committee may at a meeting exempt, in whole or in part, from the payment of any tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, any person who by reason of poverty may be deemed to be unable to pay the same. [Madras III of section 3]

Power to exempt from taxation.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

(2) The Local Government may, by notification, and the committee may, by resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Local Government, exempt from the payment of any tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, any person or class of persons or any description of property.

38. No tax, toll or fee imposed under this Act, and no proceedings of committee at any ordinary or special meeting, shall be invalid merely for defect of form; and it shall be enough in any such tax on property, or any assessment of value for the purpose of making such tax, if the property taxed or assessed be so described as to be generally known; and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier thereof.

39. Any tax imposed under section 33, sub-section (1), clause (a), or under section 34, shall be payable. Tax on houses, buildings and lands when due and payable by the owner of the house, building and land, respectively, from and after the end of the first quarter of the year for which it is assessed.

40. The committee shall cause a valuation-list of all houses, buildings and lands on which such tax is imposed to be prepared, containing the name of the street or division in which such property is situate, the designation of the property, either by name or number, sufficient to identify the same, the name of the owner, or if the occupier, and not the owner, is the person liable to pay the tax, the name of the occupier, the annual value, area or length of frontage upon which the property is assessed, and the amount of the tax assessed thereon by the committee.

41. When the name of the owner or occupier is not known, it shall be sufficient to designate him in the said list, and also in any notice or other proceeding under this Act, as the "owner" or the "occupier" of the property on which the tax is assessed, without further description.

42. When the valuation has been completed, the committee shall give public notice thereof, and of the place where the list or copy thereof may be inspected, and every person claiming to be the owner or occupier of property included in the assessment, or the agent of such person, shall be at liberty to inspect the entries in such list or copy relating to such property, and to make extracts thereof without charge.

43. (1) The committee shall at the same time give public notice of a day and hour, not less than one month from the publication of such notice, when they will proceed to revise the said valuation and assessment; and in all cases in which any property is for the first time assessed, or the assessment is increased, shall give special notice thereof to the owners or occupiers of such property.

(2) All objections to such valuation and assessment shall be made at or before the time fixed in the notice.

44. After the objections have been enquired into and the revision of the valuation and assessment has been completed, the amendments made in the list shall be authenticated by the signatures of not less than two members of the committee, who shall at the same time certify that no valid objection has been made to the valuation and assessment contained in the list, except in the cases in which amendments have been entered therein; and, subject to such amendments as may thereafter be duly made, the tax so assessed shall be deemed to be the tax for the whole year for which the assessment is made.

45. The committee may at any time amend the list by inserting the name of any person whose name ought to be inserted, or by inserting any property liable to the tax, or by altering the assessment on any property which has been insufficiently valued or assessed through mistake or fraud, or the value of which has been increased by the construction of any new building or by additions to or alterations in any building thereon, after giving notice to any person interested in such amendment of a day, not less than fifteen days from the date of service of such notice, on which the amendment is to be made;

and any person interested in such amendment may tender his objection to the committee by application in writing at or before the time fixed in the notice.

46. It shall not be necessary to prepare a new valuation-list every year; but the committee may adopt the valuation and assessment contained in the list for the preceding year, with such alterations as may in particular cases be deemed necessary, as the valuation and assessment for the year following, giving the same public notice of such valuation and assessment as if a new valuation-list had been prepared.

47. (1) When any sum is due for any tax leviable under section 33, sub-section (1), clause (a), or under section 34, the committee shall cause a bill for the amount, stating the property and the period for which the charge is made, to be presented to the person liable to pay the same.

(2) If the bill be not paid within ten days from the presentation thereof, the committee may cause a notice of demand to be served upon such person;

and if such person do not, within seven days from the service of such notice, pay the sum due, with any fee leviable for the notice, or show sufficient cause for non-payment of the same, the sum due, together with such fee, shall be deemed to be an arrear of tax.

48. If the sum due from the owner of the house, building or land remains unpaid after notice of demand has been duly served, the committee may demand the amount from the occupier for the time being, and may proceed against him in all respects as if he were the owner; and if the amount is paid by, or recovered from, the occupier, he may deduct the amount so paid or recovered from the next and following payments of rent:

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund.)

Provided that no arrear which has remained due from the owner for more than one year shall be so recovered from the occupier.

W. P.
section
1]

49. (1) Arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality, by the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within those limits.

Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 79;
Municipal Act V
of 1876, section 154.]

(2) In case of non-payment of any octroi tax or of any toll on demand, the person empowered to collect the same may seize any goods on which such octroi is chargeable, or any conveyance, boat or animal on which such toll is chargeable or any part of its burden of sufficient value to satisfy the demand. The committee may cause any property so seized or so much thereof as is necessary to be sold by auction to satisfy such demand, together with the expenses occasioned by the seizure, custody and sale thereof, unless such demand and expenses are in the meantime paid, after the lapse of five days from the seizure, and after the issue of a proclamation fixing the time and place of sale, a copy of which shall be served upon the person entitled to the property at least 48 hours before the sale:

Provided that, by order of the chairman or vice-chairman, articles of a perishable nature which could not be kept for five days without serious risk of damage may be sold after the lapse of twenty-four hours.

Mr. Plover's draft
No. II.]

50. (1) Every person bringing within the limits of any municipality articles liable to octroi tax, any articles upon which an octroi tax has been imposed shall, when required by any person authorized by the committee to assess the octroi tax chargeable, or to collect the tax assessed thereon, and so far as may be necessary for ascertaining the amount of tax chargeable,—

- (a) permit such person to inspect, examine, weigh and otherwise deal with such articles;
- (b) permit such person to separate taxable articles from articles not taxable;
- (c) communicate to such person any information and exhibit to him any document he may possess relating to such taxable articles.

Mr. Plover's
draft
No. V.]

(2) Every person assessing octroi tax by the authority of the committee shall, on request by the person introducing taxable articles on which such tax is claimed, present him with a bill specifying the articles taxable, the amount claimed, and the rate at which the tax is calculated; and any person receiving payment of the whole or any part of the tax claimed shall on request receipt the said bill accordingly.

Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 78.]

51. The collection of any octroi tax or toll may be leased by the committee, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, for any period not exceeding one year; and the lessee and all persons employed by him in the management and collection of such octroi tax or toll shall be bound by any rules made by the committee for their guidance, and shall have the same powers, and be subject to the same responsibilities, as if they were employed by the committee for the management and collection of such octroi tax or toll. Any dispute between the lessee and any person from whom such tax or toll is demanded shall be referred to the committee, whose decision thereupon shall be final.

52. (1) The committee may require the owners or occupiers of houses, buildings or lands to furnish them with returns of the measurements and of the rent or annual value thereof; and the committee or any person appointed by them for that purpose may, at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter, inspect and measure any such houses, buildings or lands, after having given 48 hours previous notice in writing to the occupiers thereof.

[Madras
III of 1871,
section 46.]

(2) The committee, or any person authorized by them in writing for that purpose, may also, at any time between sunrise and sunset, enter and inspect any stable, coach-house or other place wherein they may have reason to believe that there is any vehicle or animal liable to taxation under this Act, for which a license has not been duly taken out.

53. No objection shall be taken to any valuation or assessment, nor shall the liability of any person to be assessed or taxed be questioned, in any other manner or by any other authority than in this Act is provided.

[Bengal
Act III
of 1866, section 107; Ma
Act III
of 1871, s. 1]

54. For all sums paid on account of any tax under this Act, a receipt, stating the amount and the tax on account of which it is paid, shall be given by the person receiving the same, on request by the person making the payment.

[Bengal
Act III
of 1866,
section 110.]

Appeals.

55. Appeals against any tax, toll or fee, other than octroi tax or fees under section 35, clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f), assessed or levied under this Act shall lie to the Deputy Commissioner, unless when he is a member of the committee, in which case the appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the division.

[Cf. M
III of 18
section 85.]

56. No appeal shall lie against any assessment on any house, land or building, unless it be preferred within one month after the confirmation of the assessment by the committee, and no appeal shall lie against any other tax, toll or fee, unless preferred within one month from the time of such tax, toll or fee being charged:

[Cf. M
III of 18
section 86.]

Provided that no appeal shall be entertained unless the amount of the assessment, tax, toll or fee to which it relates is deposited with the committee on or before the day on which the appeal is lodged.

57. No appeal shall lie against any assessment of octroi tax or the levy of any fee under section 35, clauses (c), (d), (e) and (f), but the decision of the committee on any objection thereto shall be final.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)Municipal Fund.

[N.-W. P. Bill, section 42; Act IV of 1873, section 10.] 58. There shall be for each municipality a Municipal fund constituted. municipal fund, to the credit of which shall be placed all sums received by or on behalf of the committee and any balances standing at the credit of the municipality when this Act came into force.

[N. W. P. Bill, section 43.] 59. (1) Where there is a Government treasury Custody of municipal or sub-treasury, the municipal fund shall be kept in the treasury or sub-treasury, or in the bank, if any, to which the Government treasury business has been made over.

(2) In places where there is no such treasury or sub-treasury, or bank, the municipal fund may be deposited with any banker or person acting as a banker who has given such security for the safe custody of the fund and repayment thereof on demand as the Local Government may in each case think sufficient.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF COMMITTEES.

Municipal Police.

[Act IV of 1873, section 12; Act VII of 1874, section 32.] 60. (1) Every committee shall, unless it is relieved of this obligation by the Local Government, make such provision for the maintenance of the establishment ordinarily employed on police-duty within the limits of the municipality as the Local Government may consider necessary.

[III of 1880.] (2) Subject, in case this Act is made applicable to any military cantonment, to the provisions of section 9 of the Cantonments Act, 1880, the establishment so entertained, whether enrolled under Act V of 1861 or not, shall be under the orders of the District Superintendent of Police, subject to the general control of the Magistrate of the district; and the watch and ward of the municipality, the prevention and suppression of nuisances therein, and the enforcement of the rules and orders of the committee shall be included among its duties.

61. (1) The Local Government may relieve any committee of the whole or part of the cost of such establishment, and may enter into an agreement with the committee that, as an equivalent for such relief for any term of years, the committee shall, during the same term, undertake any services within the municipality to which the municipal fund can properly be applied, and which are estimated to cost not more than the cost of the police-establishment of which the committee is so relieved. When a committee is relieved under this section of the whole or part of the cost of the police-establishment which it is required to maintain, the Local Government shall maintain such police-establishment as it considers necessary, and the establishment so maintained shall perform the same duties as if its cost were defrayed from the municipal funds.

(2) The Inspector General of Police may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, enter into an agreement with any committee, which is unable to provide the entire cost of the police-establishment which the Local Government considers necessary, that, on the committee making such payment as may be agreed upon, or undertaking any services within the municipality, approved by the Local Government, to which the municipal fund can properly be applied; and which are estimated to cost not more than the amount of such payment, he will provide a sufficient police-establishment for the service of the municipality.

(3) The Local Government or the committee may determine such Termination of such agreement, after twelve composition. months' notice of an intention to do so has been given by the Local Government to the committee or by the committee to the Inspector General of Police; and on the expiration of such notice the agreement shall cease to operate.

62. (1) Except in the case of any military Constitution of police-cantonment to which this establishment. Act is made applicable, the establishment maintained under section 60 or section 61 shall be either part of the general police force enrolled under Act V of 1861 or a body of watchmen, as the Local Government may determine.

(2) When it is part of the general police force, Duties when part of the Local Government may, the general police force. notwithstanding anything contained in Act V of 1861 or in any other Act for the time being in force, define the duties which the officers and men of the establishment may or may not be required to perform.

(3) When it is a body of watchmen, it shall be Powers, duties, protection, responsibilities and penalties when a body of watchmen. of such strength and the persons of whom it consists shall be of such grades, and shall receive such rates of pay, as the Local Government shall fix, and they shall possess such powers, perform such duties, enjoy such protection, be subject to such responsibilities and be liable to such penalties as Police-officers enrolled under Act V of 1861 possess, perform, enjoy and are subject and liable to.

(4) Police-officers enrolled under Act V of 1861 Command of such may be appointed to command such body of watchmen when the Local Government thinks fit.

63. (1) Every person shall be bound to render to Obligation to assist any municipal watchman, watchmen. or officer of such watchmen, when discharging the duties of a Police-officer all the assistance which he is bound to render to a Police-officer.

(2) Any person obstructing such watchman or Arrest of persons obstructing watchmen. officer in the discharge of such duties may be arrested without warrant by a Police-officer or by any person belonging to such body of watchmen.

64. The appointment, promotion, suspension and punishment of municipal watchmen and officers of such watchmen shall rest with the District Superintendent of Police, subject to the general control of the Magistrate of the district.

65. When a committee imposes fees under section 35, clauses (d), and (e), Police-protection of sarāis, &c., for the use of which fees are charged by committee. for the use of sarāis, markets, and other public institutions for which special police-protection is required, or at fairs, agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions, it shall pay such police-charges, if any, as may be sanctioned by the Local Government for the protection of the saráis, markets, public institutions, fairs, agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions from which such fees are derived.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

Conservancy and General Improvement.

IV of
section
N. W. P.
section

66. Every committee, so far as the municipal fund at its disposal will permit, shall, after providing for the repayment of, and interest due on, loans raised in accordance with law on the security of its funds or any portion thereof, and for the maintenance of any police-establishment which it is required to maintain under the provisions of this Act, and subject to any agreement between it and the Local Government in respect of any of the following matters, provide for the construction, maintenance, cleansing and repair of the public streets, bridges, embankments, drains, latrines, tanks and watercourses of the municipality; and may cause such streets or any of them to be watered and lighted;

and may provide for the construction, establishment and maintenance of schools, hospitals and dispensaries, and other institutions for the promotion of education or for the benefit of the public health, and of rest-houses, saráis, poor-houses, markets and other works of public utility, and control and administer all public institutions of any of these descriptions within the municipality, except when, by special order, the Local Government may otherwise direct;

and may make grants-in-aid to schools, hospitals, dispensaries, poor-houses, leper asylums and other educational or charitable institutions; and may provide for the training of teachers and the establishment of scholarships; and may provide for the establishment and maintenance of relief and relief-works in time of famine or scarcity; and may provide for the supply, storage and preservation from pollution of water for the use of men or animals; and may provide for the taking of a census, the registration of births, marriages and deaths, public vaccination and any lawful sanitary measure; and may also do all acts and things likely to promote the safety, health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants.

Prevention of Nuisances.

N. W. P. Bill,
section 50.]

67. (1) A committee may, from time to time, Power to make rules at a special meeting, make rules—

(a) for prohibiting, preventing and punishing such acts or omissions within the municipality as may, in its opinion, cause or tend to cause any common injury, danger or annoyance to the public or to the people in general who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, injury, obstruction, danger or annoyance to persons who may have access to any public right, or may, in its opinion, be prejudicial to the public health, safety and convenience, or be offences against public decency;

(b) for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which officers of the committee may enter upon private property for the detection and abatement of public nuisances, or the enforcement of rules made under this section.

(2) A rule made under this section shall not come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

68. (1) Subject to any orders which the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a committee may enjoin any person not to do, or not to omit to do, within the municipality, anything the doing of, or the omission to do, which is a public nuisance, or an offence created by clause (a) of section 67. [N. W. P. Bill section 51, Act XV of 1873, section 25; Act VII of 1874, section 22.]

(2) Every such injunction shall be deemed, for the purposes of section 291 of the Indian Penal Code, to have been made by a public servant. [XLV of 1860]

69. (1) The Local Government may invest within the limits of the municipality, a committee with the powers of a Magistrate of a district as described in section 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and with power to make conditional orders under that section, in respect of all or any of the acts or omissions punishable under rules made in exercise of the power conferred by clause (a) of section 67 of this Act. [N. W. P. Bill section 5, Act XV of 1873, section 26; X of 1882.]

and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the powers so conferred:

Provided that the conditional order shall specify a Magistrate of the first or second class, other than the committee so invested, before whom the person against whom it is made may appear and move to have it set aside or modified.

(2) Sections 133 to 142 (both inclusive) of the Code of Criminal Procedure shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to all proceedings taken in exercise of these powers. [X of 1882]

70. A committee may, at a special meeting, delegate to one or more sub-committees of its members any of the powers vested in it by section 68, or with which it may have been invested under section 69, and may at a like meeting withdraw the powers so delegated. [N. W. P. Bill section VII of 1874, section 23.]

Additional power to make Rules.

71. (1) A committee may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules— [Act IV of 1873, section 14; N. W. P. Bill, section 54; Act V of 1874, section 19; Act V of 1873, section 72.]

(a) rendering licenses necessary for the proprietors or drivers of vehicles, boats or animals plying for hire within the limits of the municipality, and fixing the conditions on which such licenses are to be granted and may be revoked;

(b) limiting the rate of hire which may be demanded for, and the loads to be carried by, such vehicles, boats or animals, or for

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

and by persons hired to carry loads within the limits of the municipality ;

- (c) to secure a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths, and to provide for the taking of a census ;
- (d) to provide for the inspection and proper regulation of lodging-houses, markets and slaughter-houses, burial and burning places ;
- (e) to provide for the supervision and regulation of public wells, tanks, springs or other sources from which water is or may be made available for public use ;
- (f) to regulate all matters connected with conservancy ;
- (g) to regulate for sanitary reasons the crops which may be grown in any place within the limits of the municipality ;
- (h) where the collection of an octroi tax has been sanctioned, to fix octroi limits for the purpose of collecting that tax ; and
- (i) generally to carry out the purposes of this Act :

XIV of 1879.

Provided that the committee of a municipality in which the Hackney Carriage Act, 1879, is in force shall not make rules in respect to any vehicles to which that Act applies.

[New.]

72. (1) In the case of municipalities in mountainous and sub-mountainous tracts, the committee may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules for the maintenance of a water-supply in streams and springs, for the preservation of the soil on the ridges and slopes of the hills and in the valleys, for the prevention of landslips and of the formation of ravines and torrents, and for the protection of land from erosion or the deposit thereon of sand, gravel or stones ; and may prohibit all persons from doing any acts the prohibition of which it may consider necessary for these purposes.

[See Act VII of 1878, section 35.]

Examples.—Cutting down forest trees on private grounds, unless with the previous sanction of the committee, and quarrying or making excavations in such grounds unless with the like sanction, may be prohibited by rules made under this section.

(2) The committee of a municipality in a mountainous tract may also make rules for the regulation of traffic in the streets.

[N.-W. P. Bill, section 51, sub-section (2) ; Act IV of 1873, section 21.]

73. (1) In making any rule under section 67, section 71 or section 72, a committee may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing one, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

[N.-W. P. Bill, section 51, sub-section (3) ; Act IV of 1873, section 15.]

(2) No rule made under section 67, section 71 or section 72 shall come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

Special Provisions.

74. (1) The owner or occupier of every place within the municipality used for any of the following purposes, namely :—

Regulation of offensive and dangerous trades, melting tallow ; boiling offal or blood ; or as a soap-house, oil-boiling house, dyeing house or tannery ; or as a brick-pottery or lime-kiln ; or other manufactory, or place of business from which offensive or unwholesome smells arise ;

or as a yard or depôt for hay, straw, thatching-grass, wood or coal, or other dangerously inflammable material ; or as a store-house for kero-line, petroleum, naphtha, or any inflammable oil, spirit or explosive substance ;

or as a manufactory of gunpowder or fireworks ;

or as a shop for smoking opium or any preparation of opium ;

shall register the same in a book to be kept by the committee for the purpose.

(2) No place shall be newly used for any of the said purposes except under a license from the committee, which shall be renewable annually.

(3) Such license shall not be withheld unless the committee considers that the business which it is intended to establish or maintain would be offensive or dangerous to persons residing in, or frequenting, the immediate neighbourhood.

(4) The committee may impose such conditions in respect of such license as it may think necessary.

(5) Whoever, without such registration or without a license, uses any place for any such purpose shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding ten rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

75. If it be shewn to the satisfaction of the committee, at a meeting, that any place registered or licensed under the last preceding section is a nuisance to the neighbourhood, or likely to be dangerous to life, health or property, they may, by written notice, require the occupier thereof to discontinue the use of such place, or to use it in such manner as will, in the opinion of the committee, render it no longer a nuisance or dangerous.

(2) Whoever disobeys the direction of such notice shall be liable to a fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding forty rupees for every day during which the offence is continued after he has been convicted of such offence.

(3) Nothing in this or the preceding section shall affect the power of the committee to proceed under sections 67, 68 and 69 of this Act, in respect to any place used for any of the purposes mentioned in section 74.

76. (1) No burial or burning ground, whether public or private, shall be made or formed, after the passing of this Act, without the sanction in writing of the committee.

(2) The committee may, by notice published in such manner as may be prescribed, order the closing of burial and burning places.

(3) The committee may, by notice published in such manner as may be prescribed, order the closing of burial and burning places.

(4) The committee may, by notice published in such manner as may be prescribed, order the closing of burial and burning places.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Committees.)

any burial or burning ground which is, in its opinion, dangerous to the health of persons living in the vicinity thereof to be closed, from a date to be specified in the notice, and shall, in such case, if no suitable place for burial or burning exists within a reasonable distance, provide a fitting place for the purpose.

(3) Private burial-places in such burial-grounds may be excepted from such notice, subject to such conditions as the committee may impose in this behalf:

Provided that the limits of such burial-places are sufficiently defined, and that they shall only be used for the burial of members of the family of the owner thereof.

(4) Whoever shall bury or burn, or cause or permit to be buried or burnt, any corpse in any burial or burning ground made or formed contrary to the provisions of this section, or after the date fixed thereunder for closing the same, shall be liable to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees for each offence.

77. When any order is made under section 75 under section 75 or 76, any person aggrieved thereby may appeal within 30 days from the date thereof to the Commissioner when the municipality is of the first class, or to the Deputy Commissioner when the municipality is of the second class; and the order of the appellate authority confirming, setting aside or modifying such order shall be final; and no such order shall be liable to be called in question otherwise than by such appeal.

Provided that such order shall not be modified or set aside until the appellant and the committee have had reasonable opportunity of being heard.

78. The committee may, with the approval of the Deputy Commissioner, fix places for the slaughter of animals, or of any specified description of animals for sale; and when such place has been fixed, no person shall slaughter any such animal for sale within the municipality at any other place; and whoever slaughters any such animal for sale at any other place shall be liable to a fine which may extend to twenty rupees for each offence.

79. The committee may set apart suitable places for the purpose of bathing, and may specify the times at which, and the sex of the persons by whom, such places may be used, and may also set apart suitable places for washing animals or clothes, or for any other purpose connected with the health, cleanliness or comfort of the inhabitants; and may, by rule made under section 71, prohibit bathing in any public place not so set apart, or at times or by persons other than those so specified, and all other acts not so permitted, by which water in public places may be rendered foul or unfit for use.

80. When any building, or any part thereof, which projects beyond the regular line of a public street, or beyond the front of the buildings on either side thereof, has fallen down or been taken down in order to be rebuilt or altered the committee may, by written notice, require the same, when being rebuilt, to be set back to or towards the line of the street or the front of the adjoining buildings; and the land so added to the street shall become part of the public street:

Provided that the committee shall make full compensation to the owner of such building for any damage he may thereby sustain; and, if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, it shall be settled in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, X of 1870 sections 3, 8 to 12, 51 to 53 and 56 to 59, so far as they can be made applicable.

81. (1) Every person intending to erect or re-erect any building within the limits of the municipality shall, if required by rules made under section 71, give notice in writing to the committee, and shall, if required to do so, furnish a plan shewing the levels at which the foundation and lowest floor are proposed to be laid, and the elevation and specifications of the works intended to be constructed, and the materials to be used, and shall obey all written directions given by the committee within one month after receiving such notice, either prohibiting such erection or re-erection, if deemed likely to be injurious to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood, or in respect to all or any of the matters following, namely, (1) free passage or way in front thereof; (2) space to be left about the same to secure free circulation of air and facilitate scavenging; (3) ventilation and drainage; (4) level and width of foundation and stability of structure; and (5) the regularity of the elevation and the line of frontage with neighbouring buildings, if the building abuts on a street or public thoroughfare.

(2) If such building be begun or erected without giving notice, or without furnishing particulars as aforesaid when required, or in contravention of the legal orders of the committee issued within one month, the committee may require it to be altered or demolished, as they may deem necessary, by written notice fixing a time within which the requisition must be complied with.

Explanation.—The expression “erect any buildings” includes all additions or alterations which involve new foundations or increased superstructure on existing foundations.

82. (1) The committee may, by written notice fixing a time within which the requisition must be complied with, require the owner or occupier of any house to remove or alter any projection, encroachment or obstruction erected or placed against, or in front of, such house, if the same overhangs or juts into or encroaches upon any public street, or projects into or encroaches upon any drain, aqueduct or sewer in such street:

Provided that, if such projection, encroachment or obstruction were lawfully made before the passing of this Act, the committee shall make reasonable compensation to any person who suffers damage by such removal or alteration; and, if any dispute shall arise touching the amount of such compensation, it shall be settled in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, X of 1870 sections 3, 8 to 12, 51 to 53 and 56 to 59, so far as they can be made applicable.

(2) The committee may give written permis-

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter V.—Control.)

streets to put up open verandahs, balconies or rooms projecting from any upper storey thereof, to an extent not exceeding four feet beyond the line of the plinth or basement wall.

[Bombay Act
I of 1873,
section 75.]

83. In the event of non-compliance with the terms of any notice under either of the last two preceding sections, the committee may take such steps as may be necessary to carry out the requisition therein made; and the expenses incurred by them in so doing shall be paid by the person on whom the notice was served.

[Bengal Act V
of 1876, section 232;
Madras Act
II of 1871,
sections 115 &
16;
Bombay Act
I of 1873,
section 75.]

84. (1) The committee at a meeting may cause a name to be given to any street, and to be affixed in such place as they may think fit, and may also cause a number to be affixed to every house; and in like manner may, from time to time, cause such names and numbers to be altered.

(2) Whoever destroys, pulls down or defaces such name or number, or puts up any different name from that put up by order of the committee, shall be liable to a fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

[Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 121;
Bombay Act
VI of 1873,
sections 77
and 78.]

85. (1) Whenever, under the provisions of this Act, or of any rules made thereunder, the committee requires any work to be executed, and such work is executed by the occupier of any house or land, or by the committee at his expense, the occupier, if the owner is the person by whom such work ought to have been executed, may deduct the cost thereof from the next and following payments of rent due or becoming due to the owner, or may recover it from the owner by suit.

(2) If such work is executed by the committee, and the expense is not paid on demand by the occupier or owner, the committee may recover the expense by suit from the person by whom the work ought to have been executed, or by distraint of the moveable property of the occupier, who, if the owner is the person by whom the work ought to have been executed, may deduct the amount so recovered from the next and following payments of rent, or may recover it from the owner by suit:

Provided that, if the expense does not exceed Rs. 20, it may be recovered in the manner provided by the first clause of section 49 for the recovery of arrears of any tax under this Act.

[Madras Act
III of 1871,
section 164.]

86. (1) Every notice issued by the committee under this Act, or under any rule made thereunder, shall be served on the person to whom it is addressed, or left at his usual place of abode or business with some adult male member or servant of his family, or, if it cannot be so served, shall be posted on some conspicuous part of his place of abode or business.

[Bengal Act
V of 1876,
sections 307
& 308.]

(2) If the place of abode or business of the owner be not within the limits of the municipality, every such notice addressed to him shall be sent by registered cover addressed to his usual place of abode.

(3) If the place of abode or business of the owner be not known, every such notice addressed to him may be served upon the occupier.

87. The committee may make compensation out of the municipal fund to any person sustaining any damage by reason of the exercise of any of the powers vested in the committee, its officers and servants, under this Act.

88. The proceeds of all fines imposed under this chapter, or under section 34 of Act V of 1861, on account of nuisances committed within the municipal limits shall be credited to the municipal fund.

89. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification, empower any member of committee or officer in the service of a municipality by name, or any sub-committee appointed by the committee in this behalf, to summon any person accused of any offence created by clause (a) of section 67.

(2) The member of committee or officer or sub-committee so empowered shall have the power of a Magistrate under the Criminal Procedure Code in regard to the issue of summons to persons accused of such offences, and may issue a summons returnable to the Magistrate by whom charges of such offences would ordinarily be tried, giving notice to the Magistrate of the issue of the same.

(3) If it appears to such member of committee or officer or sub-committee that the person so summoned has committed any such offence, he may give such person the option of compounding for the offence by payment of a specified sum of money not exceeding one rupee:

Provided that, when the offence is a continuing one, no such composition shall be accepted unless the offence is first discontinued.

(4) If such person elects to pay the sum of money in consideration of which he is allowed to compound, and pay the same to such member of committee or officer or sub-committee, no further proceedings shall be taken against him for the offence which has been so compounded.

(5) Such member of committee or officer or sub-committee shall keep a book in which he or it shall enter at the time all cases of persons against whom he or it takes action under this section, with the nature of the offence charged, and, should such person appear to him or it to have committed any such offence, the nature of the offence committed, and, if he is allowed to compound for such offence and elects to do so, the sum demanded by way of composition, and the sum received.

(6) All sums received by way of composition under this section shall be paid, as soon as conveniently may be, to the credit of the municipal fund.

CHAPTER V.
CONTROL.

90. (1) The Commissioner of the division or the Deputy Commissioner of the district (not being a member of the committee) may—

(a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immovable property within the limits of the division or district,

Panjáb Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter V.—Control.)

respectively, occupied by any committee or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under its direction;

(b) by order in writing call for and inspect any book or document in the possession or under the control of any committee or joint committee having authority within the said limits;

(c) by order in writing require such committee or joint committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to the proceedings or duties of the committee as he may think fit to call for; and

(d) record in writing, for the consideration of such committee or joint committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the committee.

(2) Every committee shall regularly submit copies of all its proceedings to the Deputy Commissioner, and shall further submit such periodical reports to the Deputy Commissioner or other authority as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

N.W.P. Bill, section 56; Panjáb Local self-government Bill, section 51.]

91. The Commissioner of the division or the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, by order in writing, suspend, within the division or district respectively, the execution of any resolution or order of the committee or joint committee, or prohibit the doing of any act within the said limits which is about to be done, or is being done, in pursuance of or under cover of this Act, if, in his opinion, the resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to lead to a breach of the peace, or to cause injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

N.W.P. Bill, section 57; Panjáb Local self-government Bill, section 52; Act I of 1883, section 30.]

92. (1) In cases of emergency, the Deputy Commissioner may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a committee is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or of doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the committee.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Deputy Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is, from time to time, possible, from that balance, in priority to all other charges against the same.

Panjáb Local self-government Bill, section 53.]

93. (1) When the Commissioner, after due enquiry, is satisfied that a committee of the first class has made default in performing any duty imposed upon it by or under this Act, he may, by an order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty; and, if it is not performed within the period so fixed, he may appoint some person to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it shall be paid, within such time as he may fix, by the committee to such person.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Commissioner may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is, from time to time, possible, from that balance, in priority to all other charges against the same.

(3) The Deputy Commissioner shall have the same powers with respect to committees of the second class as are by this section conferred upon the Commissioner with respect to committees of the first class.

94. When a Deputy Commissioner makes any order under section 91, section 92 or section 93, he shall forthwith forward to the Local Government through the Commissioner a copy thereof, with a statement of the reasons for making it; and when the Commissioner makes any order under section 91 or section 93, he shall forthwith forward to the Local Government a copy thereof, with a statement of the reasons for making it and with any explanation which the committee may wish to record.

[Panjáb Self-government Bill, section 54]

95. (1) It shall be the duty of the Local Government and of all Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners acting under its orders to require that the proceedings of committees shall be in conformity with law and with the rules in force thereunder; and the Local Government may exercise all powers necessary for this purpose, and may, amongst other things, by order in writing, annul or modify any such proceeding which it shall consider not to be in conformity with law and with the said rules.

[Panjáb Self-government Bill, section 49 part of.]

(2) The Commissioner of the division and the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, within their jurisdiction for the same purpose, exercise such powers as may be, from time to time, conferred upon them by rule made in this behalf by the Local Government.

(2) The Commissioner of the division and the Deputy Commissioner of the district may, within their jurisdiction for the same purpose, exercise such powers as may be, from time to time, conferred upon them by rule made in this behalf by the Local Government.

96. (1) If a committee is not competent to perform or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by notification, in which the reasons for so doing shall be stated, declare the committee to be superseded:

[N. W. Bill, section 59; Panjáb Local self-government Bill, section 55 to 57.]

the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by notification, in which the reasons for so doing shall be stated, declare the committee to be superseded:

Provided that, in case of public emergency, such notification may be issued without the previous approval of the Governor General in Council.

(2) When a committee is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue:—

(a) All members of the committee shall, from the date of the notification, vacate their offices as such members:

(b) All powers and duties of the committee may, until the committee is reconstituted, be exercised and performed by such person as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf:

(c) All property vested in the committee shall, until the committee is reconstituted, vest in Her Majesty.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter VI.—Miscellaneous.)

(3) The Local Government shall, as soon as, in its judgment, conveniently may be, constitute another committee in the place of any committee superseded under this section.

N. W. P. Bill, section 10; British India Bill, section 8.] 97. The Local Government may frame forms for any proceeding of a committee for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

- (a) with respect to the powers and duties of committees in municipalities of the first and of the second class respectively;
- (b) as to the division of the municipality into wards, or of the inhabitants into classes or both;
- (c) as to the number of representatives proper for each ward or class;
- (d) as to the qualifications of electors and of candidates for election;
- (e) as to the registration of electors;
- (f) as to the nomination of candidates, the time of election and the mode of recording votes; and
- (g) generally for regulating all elections under this Act;
- (h) for the remission of tax on houses unoccupied for the whole or part of the year, and the notice to be given of a house being unoccupied by persons desiring such remission;
- (i) as to the arts, professions, trades and callings liable to be taxed in any municipality, the registration and classification of persons engaged therein, the rates at which they may be taxed, the preparation of lists of persons to be taxed, and the penalty to which they shall be liable for practising or trading without payment of the tax;
- (j) as to the statements of vehicles and animals liable to taxation under this Act to be furnished by the owners or persons in charge of them, the rates at which they may be taxed, the issue of licenses for them on payment of tax, and the penalty for keeping them without a license;
- (k) as to the classes of menial and domestic servants liable to taxation in any municipality, the rate at which they may be taxed, the returns of such servants to be furnished by the masters, and the time when the masters shall pay the tax imposed in respect of such servants;
- (l) as to the exhibition of tables of octroi tax, the system under which refunds shall be made on account of that tax when the goods on which the tax was paid are again exported, and the storage of goods declared not to be intended for consumption or use within the municipality into which they are brought;
- (m) as to the rates of toll chargeable on vehicles or animals entering the municipality, or boats moored therein, the exhibition of tables shewing such rates, the exemptions to be made, and the terms on which residents outside municipal limits may compound for such tolls; and

- (n) generally as to the assessment and collection of taxes imposed under this Act;
- (o) as to the authority on which money may be paid from the municipal fund;
- (p) as to the conditions on which property vested in the committee may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise;
- (q) as to the intermediate office or offices, if any, through which correspondence between committees or members of committees and the Local Government or officers of that Government shall pass;
- (r) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of committees, and as to the person by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned;
- (s) as to the accounts to be kept by committees, as to the conditions on which such accounts shall be open to inspection by inhabitants paying any tax under the Act, as to the manner in which such accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge;
- (t) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure of committees, and as to the person by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned;
- (u) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by committees;
- (v) as to the powers to be exercised by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners under section 95;
- (w) as to the language in which business shall be transacted; and
- (x) for the guidance of committees acting under sections 26, 29, 67, 73 and 76, and generally for the guidance of committees and public officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act.

CHAPTER VI.
MISCELLANEOUS.

98. If any member or servant of a committee is directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with the committee, he shall be thereby become incapable of continuing in office or in employment as such member or servant, and shall be liable to a fine which may extend to five hundred rupees:

Members, officers or servants of committees not to be interested in contracts with the committee.

[N. W. P. section Punjab Self-govt ment section 71; IV of 1 section 21 Madras Act III of 187 section 21 Bombay Act VI of 187 section 13 and Bengal Act V of 1 section 57]

Provided that no person shall, by reason of being a shareholder in, or member of, any incorporated or registered company, be held to be interested in any contract entered into between such company and the committee.

Panjab Municipal Bill, 1883.
(Chapter VII.—Supplemental and Temporary Provisions.)

his clause omitted in
XV of 3, having ared in
IV & XI
73. It was red in Act of 1874.]
a n j á b d S e l f - r n m e n t
section
Madras Act of 1871,
on 168;
ay Act
f 1873,
on 86;
Civil edure
; section
]

Nevertheless, it shall not be lawful for such shareholder or member to act as a member of the committee in any matter relating to such contract.

59. (1) No suit for compensation for anything done or purporting to be done, or for the omission of anything which ought to have been done, under this Act shall be brought against a committee, or any of its officers, or any person acting under its direction, until the expiration of one month next after notice in writing has been delivered or left at the office of the committee or at the place of abode of such person, stating the circumstances constituting the cause of action and the name or place of abode of the intending plaintiff; and the plaint must contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered or left.

(2) Every such suit shall be commenced within six months next after the accrual of the right to sue, and not afterwards.

(3) And if any person to whom any such notice of suit is given shall, before suit brought, tender sufficient amends to the plaintiff, such plaintiff shall not recover more than the amount so tendered, and shall pay all costs incurred by the defendant after such tender.

IV of
section
Act XV of section et VII of
section
N. W. P.
section

100. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the committee, to which he has been a party, or which happens through, or is facilitated by, the neglect of his duty as member of committee; and he shall be liable to be sued for compensation for the same, in such Court as the Local Government directs, by the committee with the sanction of the Commissioner or by the Local Government.

IV of
section
British a Bill,
m 68;
inal Pro-
e Code, n 555.]

101. (1) Prosecutions under this Act for the infringement of rules may be instituted by the committee or by any person authorized by it in this behalf and not otherwise.

(2) A member of committee under this Act shall be deemed to be a municipal commissioner within the meaning of section 555, Criminal Procedure Code.

V.P. Bill, ion 65;
b Local govern-
Bill, sec-
9.]

102. Where any land, whether within or without the limits of a municipality, is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the committee, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the committee of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of any other charges incurred in acquiring the land, the land shall vest in the committee.

Act X of
s. 56.]

V.P. Bill
66]

103. (1) The authority empowered to make rules under section 7, section 67, section 71, section 72 or section 97 shall, before making them, publish, in such manner as may, in its opinion, be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, together with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or any suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) If, on such consideration of the draft, any modification is made, the Local Government shall determine whether it is necessary to republish the draft under this section.

(3) Every rule made under any of the said sections shall be published in the Panjab Government Gazette in English, and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by this section.

104. All powers conferred by this Act on the Governor General in Council or on the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

[Criminal Procedure Code section 557.]

CHAPTER VII.

SUPPLEMENTAL AND TEMPORARY PROVISIONS.

105. (1) When a notification is issued under section 6 in respect of the whole area subject to the authority of a committee, withdrawing that area from the operation of this Act, all property which, at the time of the issue of the notification, is vested in the committee, shall vest in the Local Government, and be applied by it, in such manner as it thinks fit, for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants.

[N. W. P. Bill section 68.]

(2) When a notification is issued under section 6 in respect of a part of the area under the authority of a committee, withdrawing that part from the operation of this Act, such part of the property vested in the committee as the Commissioner of the division may determine shall vest in the Local Government and be applied as aforesaid.

106. (1) If the circumstances of any municipality are such that, in the opinion of the Local Government, any of the provisions of this Act are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification, except the municipality from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to the excepted municipality until again applied thereto by a like notification.

[N. W. P. Local Boards Bill, section 50.]

(2) While such exception remains in force, the Local Government may make rules for the guidance of the committee and public officers in respect of the matters excepted from the operation of the said provisions.

107. Nothing in or done under this Act shall prejudicially affect the rights of any officer or servant of a committee appointed before the passing of the Act as to tenure of office, salary or pension.

[Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 72.]

108. In all matters connected with this Act, the Local Government shall have and exercise over Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, and Commissioners shall have and exercise over Deputy Commissioners, the same authority and control as they respectively have and exercise over them in the general and revenue administration.

[Panjab Local Self-government Bill, section 73.]

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE law at present applicable to municipalities in the Panjáb is contained in Act IV of 1873.

2. Except in a few of the larger municipalities, all the members of the municipal committees constituted under that Act have hitherto been nominated ; but, for the reasons stated in Panjáb Government Resolution No. 1777, dated 7th September, 1882, it is thought desirable to give the committees a more representative character than they have hitherto had, and for this purpose it is proposed that, unless where special reasons exist against resorting to a system of election, a portion at least of the members of each committee should be chosen by the inhabitants of the municipality.

3. It is further believed that greater powers of initiating action and of controlling the administration and expenditure of their funds for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality may with advantage be given to committees than, except in a few of the more important municipalities, they possess under existing rules, if sufficient powers of control are reserved to prevent the interests of the public from being endangered by neglect, abuse of powers or mistake as to the extent of their powers, on the part of the municipal bodies.

4. It would be possible to carry out the measures necessary for these purposes by rules under the existing Act, but the amendment of the Act appears to be a more suitable mode of giving effect to the proposals of the Local Government, and this course has therefore been preferred.

5. It has also for a considerable time past been known that Act IV of 1873 is very defective in omitting to provide for many of the powers with which it is usually considered desirable to invest municipal bodies and their servants, some of which were expressly given by the later Acts, XV of 1873 and VII of 1874, passed for the North-Western Provinces and British Burma respectively ; and serious doubts have arisen as to the validity of some of the bye-laws framed to carry out and supplement its provisions, and as to the authority of municipalities to take action which it is important for the public interest that they should have the power to take. The opportunity has therefore been taken to redraft the entire Act, after referring to the corresponding Acts in force in other parts of India, with a view to remove the defects which have been brought to light by experience of its working for upwards of ten years.

6. The draft is divided into seven chapters nearly corresponding with those of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Bill, but it differs from that Bill in not proposing to treat the new committees as different bodies from the committees now in existence, and it also enters into greater detail in the chapters on the subjects of taxation and of the powers and duties of committees. In some other respects its provisions are necessarily different, being framed with reference to the peculiar circumstances of the Panjáb, and therefore corresponding more or less closely with those of the Panjáb Local Self-government Bill.

7. The preliminary chapter provides for the repeal of Act IV of 1873, and for the procedure to be adopted when it is proposed to establish a new municipality, to alter the limits of an existing municipality, or to withdraw any local area from the operation of the Act. It also provides for the division of municipalities into two classes, it being considered unnecessary to retain the third class committees, the orders and proceedings of which, under the rules now in force, are subject to the confirmation of the Deputy Commissioner before they can take effect. The power given by section 6 to withdraw any local area from the operation of the Act is required to meet cases in which petty municipalities have been established in places where experience has shown that municipal institutions cannot be continued with advantage, or that a sufficient municipal income cannot be raised without having recourse to forms of taxation which would either be extremely unpopular or would not meet with the approval of Government. The third class committees, where it is not necessary to abolish them for reasons of this nature, can be transferred to the second class.

8. Chapter II relates to the organization of committees. The provisions of section 7, as to the appointment or election of the members, are similar to those of the Local Self-government Bill, and, as in that Bill, the circumstances under which election, when once introduced, may be departed from are defined as far as possible. While the existing Act requires only two-fifths of the members to be other than salaried officers of Government, the Bill raises the proportion to two-thirds unless when such officers are elected as members.

9. The term of office, except in the case of members appointed ex officio, is to be fixed by the Local Government, but not to exceed three years, and, when this term is adopted, provision is made for the members retiring by rotation.

10. The provisions as to the removal of members are, with slight variations, the same as those contained in the Local Self-government Bill. The incorporation of committees and the control of transfers of property made by them and of investments by them of money in the public funds are also similarly provided for.

11. Section 15 provides for the election of the chairman by the committee, subject to the approval of the Local Government, unless where Government otherwise orders, but enables the committee, instead of electing, to apply to the Local Government to appoint a chairman from among its members. Vice-chairmen will also be elected when necessary. The term of office of the chairman is fixed by section 16 at three years, if he so long continues to be a member of the committee, but power is given to the Local Government to remove him, if moved to do so by two-thirds of the members of committee present at a special meeting.

12. Sections 19 to 26 deal with the conduct of business and the framing of rules of business. Section 25, following the precedent of the Madras and Bengal Acts, enable the chairman, or, in his absence, the vice-chairman, in cases of emergency, to exercise all powers of the committee which the Act does not require to be exercised by the committee at a meeting.

13. Section 27 provides for the appointment of joint committees when co-operation between different committees is necessary, as in the Panjāb Local Self-government Bill.

14. Sections 28 to 30 relate to the officers and servants to be employed by committees. Of these, only section 28, which deals with the appointment of a secretary, has no corresponding provision in the Panjāb Local Self-government Bill. When a paid secretary is appointed, his appointment, removal, and salary are made subject to the sanction of the Commissioner, with a view to secure the appointment of a competent man to this important office, and to supply the guarantee against arbitrary dismissal, without which it might be difficult to get a competent man to accept office. The power of control in regard to other appointments, given by section 29 to the Deputy Commissioner, has been made applicable to all committees at the suggestion of the Delhi municipal committee, which considered such a check desirable in all cases.

15. Chapter III, on the subject of taxation and the municipal fund, is much fuller than the provisions of the existing Act upon the same subject. Section 7 of Act IV of 1873, which relates to the imposition of taxes, contains no description of the taxes which may be imposed. Section 33 now specifies the taxes which may, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, be imposed for general purposes, and authorizes the imposition of other taxes, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council; section 34 provides for additional taxes on property, when necessary for special objects, such as the improvement of the water-supply; and section 35 describes the tolls and fees which the committee may be empowered to levy; while section 36 prescribes the procedure to be followed in imposing taxes; and section 37 provides for exemptions. Some of the taxes specified, such as a tax on professions and tolls on vehicles and animals, are not at present levied in any municipality in the province; but it has been considered desirable to include them, as it may, in some cases, be necessary to find a substitute for octroi, which forms the chief source of income in almost all Panjāb municipalities, and these taxes have been resorted to for this purpose in other provinces. In the case of tolls, it is expressly provided that they may be imposed only where no octroi is levied. Other taxes are at present sanctioned for particular municipalities such as Simla, and it has therefore been necessary to include them, without reference to whether they are suitable for adoption in other cases.

16. Section 8, Act IV of 1873, prohibits the collection of taxes until the assessment has been confirmed as prescribed by rules made by the Local Government. This provision, which, however appropriate in the case of direct taxes, is clearly inapplicable to indirect taxes like the octroi, has been omitted from the present Bill, but sections 39 to 48 lay down rules for the assessment, confirmation and collection of taxes on immoveable property; and sections 49 and 50 provide for the collection of the octroi tax; while section 97 empowers the Local Government to make rules as to the assessment and collection of other taxes.

17. Section 51 gives a power to lease octroi and tolls, which is believed not to exist under the present Act, but which is likely to be found useful in some cases.

18. Section 52 enables the committee to call for returns and to enter premises in order to obtain such information as they may require for purposes of taxation.

19. Appeals against taxes or assessments are provided for by sections 55 to 57.

20. Under section 9 of Act IV of 1873, municipal taxes may be collected as if they were arrears of land-revenue. It is not proposed to maintain this rule now that committees are about to be placed in a more independent position than hitherto, and it is not well adapted to indirect taxes like the octroi. Power is, therefore, given by section 49 to seize any articles on which any octroi, tax or toll is chargeable in default of payment, and to recover arrears of taxes generally by distress and sale under the orders of a Magistrate.

21. Chapter IV deals with the subject of the powers and duties of committees, and is also much more in detail than the corresponding sections of Act IV of 1873.

22. Sections 60 to 65 relate to the municipal police. It is necessary to maintain the liability of the municipal fund for the charges of the establishment ordinarily employed on police-duty within municipal limits, as, when the Local Government takes over such charges, this will usually be done in consideration of the committee agreeing to undertake services within the municipality to which the municipal fund can properly be applied, the cost of which has hitherto been borne by Government, and such agreements may be for a limited period and have to be renewed from time to time. Section 61 provides for agreements of this nature.

23. The police-establishment may consist either of a part of the general police force or of a body of watchmen, as the Local Government thinks fit; and section 62 enables the Local Government to regulate its duties in either case, and, where it is a body of watchmen, to fix its strength and the grades and pay of its members; and makes provisions for the powers, protection, responsibilities and punishment of the members of such body, which are considered to be more suitable than those contained in Act XXIV of 1881, which is the present law on the subject.

24. It is not the practice to entertain separate establishments for the preservation of the peace and the prevention of crime and for watch and ward, members of the general police force or municipal watchmen, as the case may be, being employed on both duties; and it is held to be desirable that they should continue to be available for both duties. Sections 62 to 64 therefore place municipal watchmen on a similar footing to members of the general police force, so far as is possible without enrolling them in that force, bringing them under the same rules as to pay and pension, and making them liable to general service. It is therefore proposed to place them under the orders of the District Superintendent of Police, and the Local Government may relieve committees of any charge for them, in the same way as it may do where a police-establishment enrolled under Act V of 1861 is entertained.

25. Section 66 gives a more detailed statement of the duties of municipal committees and the purposes to which the municipal fund may be applied than is to be found in section 11 of the present Act.

26. Sections 67 to 70 give powers to make rules prohibiting acts of the nature of nuisances. The powers to issue injunctions, and to make conditional orders for the removal of nuisances, have not hitherto been conferred upon committees in the Panjáb, but are taken, with some modifications, from the Municipal Acts in force in the North-Western Provinces and British Burma.

27. Section 71 specifies other purposes for which committees may make rules binding on the public, and section 72 adds a special power to committees in hill stations to make rules on subjects which, in such localities, it has been found necessary to enable committees to regulate. The confirmation of such rules, and the penalties incurred by infringing them, are provided for by section 73. Section 21 of the present Act prescribes a uniform penalty, but it has been thought better to enable the committees, when making a rule, to attach to it an appropriate penalty.

28. Sections 74 to 85 give powers of interference with trades and rights of property which have hitherto usually been taken in bye-laws. Such powers are expressly given in the Municipal Acts of the Bengal, Madras and Bombay Legislatures, and it has been thought better to give them in the Bill than to leave them to depend upon the authority of bye-laws. They may not be required in some of the minor municipalities, but a subsequent provision will admit of these municipalities being excepted from this part of the Bill.

29. Section 89 enables the Local Government to invest members of committee or officers of the committee by name or a sub-committee with the power to summon persons committing offences punishable under section 67 before a Magistrate, and to accept composition for such offences from persons who are willing to pay such composition in preference to appearing before a Magistrate to answer the charge. A provision of this nature was suggested by the Local Government as likely to be suitable in places like Simla, in reply to a proposal to give the secretary to the committee the powers of a Magistrate for the disposal of petty cases of nuisance; and, as the section is framed, no such power will exist unless where the Local Government thinks proper to confer it.

30. Chapter V, relating to control, differs in no material respect from the corresponding provisions of the Panjáb Local Self-government Bill.

31. Section 97 enables the Local Government to prescribe such forms as it may consider necessary, and specifies the subjects on which it may make rules supplementary to the provisions of the Act.

32. Chapter VI contains miscellaneous provisions as to the effect of a member or servant of a committee being interested in any contract with the committee, the liabilities of members, suit against committees, prosecutions for infringement of rules, the acquisition of land, the procedure to be followed in making rules, and the like.

33. Chapter VII provides for the disposal of property vested in committees when the area subject to their authority or part thereof is withdrawn from the operation of the Act under section 6; for excepting municipalities from any provisions of the Act unsuitable thereto; and, in the same way as in the Local Self-government Bill, for the saving of the rights of existing officers and servants, and for the control to which Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners are to be subject in the discharge of their duties under the Act.

D. G. BARKLEY.

The 3rd September, 1883.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR
GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING
LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House, Simla, on Wednesday, the 12th
September, 1883.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I.
G.M.I.E., presiding.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., C.I.E.

Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson, C.B., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble W. W. Hunter, LL.D., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.

The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

MÚLTÁN DISTRICT LAWS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved that the Bill to declare the law in force, in certain lands which have been or hereafter may be ceded by the Baháwalpur State for occupation by the Indus Valley State Railway be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also moved that the Bill be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH LOCAL BOARDS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the constitution of Local Boards in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh be taken into consideration. He said :—

“ MY LORD, in moving for leave to introduce this Bill in May last, I explained to the Council that it embodied the views of the Local Government as to the degree to which the principles of local self-government already recognised in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh should be extended, as to the mode in which the existing machinery of district committees should be utilized for that purpose, and as to the steps considered necessary to supplement that machinery in order to carry out the object in view. I showed that the proposals of Sir Alfred Lyall were the result of careful deliberation and of consultation with all persons likely to be able to give an opinion of value on the subject, and that those proposals had received the assent of the Government of India in the Executive Department.

“ The Bill, after its introduction, was published in the usual way for the information of the public, and was referred back to the Local Government for further opinion on its details. Divisional and district officers of the united provinces were again consulted, a committee was again assembled at Naini Tal, presided over by the senior member of the Board of Revenue, and having as its members one Commissioner from the North-Western Provinces, one from Oudh, three officers of the Secretariat, of whom two had not long ago been in charge of districts, and four Native gentlemen, including a member of this Council, the Hon'ble Rájá Siva Prasád.

"The opinions of the Local Government and of the officers consulted by it, the report of the Naini Tal Committee, and the criticisms of the English and Vernacular newspapers which discussed the measure, have been carefully weighed by the Select Committee; alterations, which it is hoped are amendments, have been made in the Bill in accordance with many of the suggestions emanating from these different sources; and I have to ask the Council to pass it into law to-day, after taking our report into consideration.

"I do not propose to detain the Council by discussing, or even enumerating, all the alterations which we have made. They will be found set forth at length in our report, but I shall confine myself to explaining a few of the more important changes.

"The Bill as introduced made no reference to towns in the united provinces in which Act XX of 1856 is in force. As the Council is doubtless aware, that Act provides for the appointment and maintenance of police chaukidárs in towns other than agricultural villages. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, where small towns are numerous, many have been brought under the Act, being too small as yet to constitute municipalities. The cost of watchmen, and in some places of sweepers for conservancy purposes, is raised by an assessment on persons or property within a limited maximum. The assessment is made by a pancháyat, and in no cases does it exceed double the charge for watchmen; in many it falls short of that amount. The surplus, when there is any, is spent in petty improvements in the town—generally in making or repairing roads or surface-drains—by the Magistrate, who is directed to consult the wishes of the rate-payers. Sir Alfred Lyall considers that these embryo municipalities should be left as they are for the present outside the jurisdiction of district boards, a discretionary authority being given to the Local Government to treat exceptionally any case that may seem to call for such treatment.

"Section 3 of the Bill as amended accordingly excludes from sub-districts formed under that section, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, the portions of the district in which Act XX of 1856 is in force.

"We have made a change in the mode of appointing nominated members of district boards in those districts where the central board will consist only of delegates from the local boards. Instead of leaving such members to be chosen by the local boards, which we considered might give rise to complications and difficulty in maintaining the prescribed proportion of nominated and elected members on the district board, we have, in section 6, given to the Local Government the power of appointing the proper number of nominated members to the district boards from among the nominated members of the local boards.

"On the mode of appointing chairmen of local and district boards, a constitutional question of great importance, I dwelt at some length on the occasion to which I have before alluded, and need only now say that no change has been made on this point, and that section 14 has been very carefully drawn, so as to give effect to the proposals of Sir Alfred Lyall.

"The Bill as introduced limited the term of office of chairmen of local boards to one year, in accordance with the suggestion of the Local Government. It was believed that this would give boards the opportunity within a reasonable time of ridding themselves of chairmen who turned out to be inefficient, but the Lieutenant-Governor and many of the officers consulted, on reconsideration of the question, have urged that the term is too short; and the Select Committee agrees with His Honour that annual elections of chairmen might keep agitation constantly alive, might deter competent men from accepting office, and might tend to prevent the acquisition of that knowledge of the rules and of business which it is essential that a chairman should possess. The preponderance of argument turned the scale in favour of the later opinion, and sections 13 and 16 accordingly provide that the term of office of an elected chairman shall coincide with that of his term of office as a member of the board.

"For chairmen who are not elected the term of office will be fixed by the Local Government, but is in no case to exceed three years, the term of office for members. District boards will thus be able at reasonable intervals to review their determination not to elect their own chairmen.

“Questions may arise occasionally in which residents of military cantonments and district committees are jointly interested, and on which it is well that each party should have an opportunity of hearing the views of the other and stating its own. With this object, section 27 enables district boards to form a joint committee with the cantonment authorities whoever they may be. We have not specified cantonment committees, of which no mention is to be found in Act III of 1880, the latest enactment which amends the law relating to cantonments; but it will rest with the military authorities to determine in what form the residents of cantonments shall be represented in the joint committees.

“Some of the local officers consulted took strong exception to the clause of section 24 which enabled district boards to establish and maintain relief-works in times of scarcity or famine, urging in effect that undivided responsibility was essential to the successful conduct of a famine-campaign, and that this could not be expected from district boards. They appear to have overlooked, or to have thought insufficient, the qualification in the first sentence of section 24, which applies to all that follows, ‘subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may from time to time make and impose.’ There is no doubt of the general truth of the proposition on which the objection is based, where a widespread and severe famine has to be dealt with, but periods of scarcity frequently occur which do not require the universal application of official agency; and during such periods, or even occasionally in more serious famines, the services of the boards may often be utilised with advantage in administering relief-works of a subsidiary character. To meet such cases, the provision was inserted. It was intended by it not to empower the Local Government to divest itself of the responsibility for famine-administration, but to enlarge the armoury of weapons at the disposal of the Government for employment against the common enemy. The clause has been re-drafted so as to make this clear.

“In the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and in my speech when I asked leave to introduce this Bill, it was explained that the measure proposed to extend the financial independence of local bodies; and this object was secured by the provision which vested boards with the district fund. A suggestion of the Naini Tal Committee, supported by the Lieutenant-Governor, that ‘unexpended balances of yearly income should be credited to the boards subject to such conditions as the Lieutenant-Governor might impose,’ was carefully considered by the Select Committee, which felt compelled, for the reasons given in the Report, to reject it. Such a condition appeared to the Select Committee to be fatal to that financial independence which it is the object of the Bill to confer on every district board. Section 13 of Act III of 1878 and section 12 of IV of 1878, which left unexpended balances of the allotments at the disposal of the Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Commissioner, have been accordingly repealed and not re-enacted.

“The sections respecting the appointment of officers and servants have been recast. As regards the appointment of the secretary, no substantial change has been made; but we have rendered subject to rules made by the Lieutenant-Governor appointments to offices requiring professional skill. The supply of candidates for professional employments is limited, and the boards to be constituted under this Bill will not, at least for some time to come, be well adapted to judge without guidance of professional qualifications and scientific acquirements, whereas the selection of competent professional servants is of the utmost importance to the success of their administration.

“Two sections (36 and 37) have been added respecting the grants by boards to their servants of gratuities, pensions and leave-allowances. Here also it was felt that boards should be enabled to resist the pressure to which they will no doubt be largely subjected, and that the law should strengthen their hands in refusing to burden the rate-payers with extravagant charges.

“We have empowered the Local Government (clause (8), section 47) to make rules for the guidance of the boards in conducting litigation, but have struck out altogether the section of the Bill as introduced which conferred upon district boards and their officers and servants the privileges which the Secretary of State for India or a public officer has under Chapter XXVII of the Code of Civil Procedure. As stated in the Report, the tendency of recent legislation in England has been to remove special protection in the case of legal proceedings against public bodies, and, except that boards might possibly be placed at a disadvantage in the conduct of their legal business by the delay necessitated by the reference to Government under the rules, there appeared no good reason for continuing such protection to the boards for which we are now legislating. Such delay would, we think, be always accepted by the Courts as a good and sufficient reason for granting a postponement under the ordinary provisions of the Code.

"It also appeared to us that a provision for special notice of an intention to institute a suit against a board was uncalled for. Cases will rarely, if ever, occur in which persons thinking themselves aggrieved will not apply for redress to the boards before bringing them into a Court of law; and plaintiffs who fail to make such an application would doubtless be made, or, probably my hon'ble friend of the Chief Court will agree with me, ought to be made, to pay for their laches by being mulcted in the costs of the suit.

"I also propose to ask the Council to pass an amendment to section 40 of the Bill. Section 47 gives the Local Government the very necessary power of making rules as to the manner in which the accounts of the boards shall be audited; but section 40, which specifies and limits the charges and expenses to which the funds of the board can be legally applied, makes no provision for payment of the expense of auditing those accounts, so that the Local Government has the power of making rules for the performance of a duty the cost of which the board is under no obligation to pay.

"Section 47, clause (12), enables the Local Government to make rules as to the language of the board. This power was originally given to the district board, but on further consideration we adopted the view of the Lieutenant-Governor that, if this matter were left to the decision of the members, much controversy might be the result, and in some districts business might be seriously and uselessly retarded. My hon'ble friend the President of the Education Commission will, I am sure, bear me out in saying that the use of Hindi or Urdu as an official language has in many places become a burning question, and that opposite sides are frequently taken by Hindus and Muhammadans more from a desire to secure a badge of race-ascendancy than from considerations of the public convenience.

"The Bill, my Lord, will thus confer on the people of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh a substantial, though not an unsafe, measure of local self-government: it is a move, and a decided, but not a rapid move, in that direction. For a somewhat centralized system of administration of local funds, it establishes local bodies appointed mainly by such a form of election as is considered by those best acquainted with the provinces most suitable to their present condition, presided over by chairmen of their own choice, charged with the performance of definite duties, vested with the control of their own funds, and possessed of the local knowledge and local interest which it is the tendency of centralised departments in their zeal for improvement sometimes arbitrarily to override. It is not to be expected that large results will at once be apparent from the passing of the Act, or that a population composed chiefly of peasants and petty landholders, engaged in a hard struggle for existence, of whom not quite 6 per centum have acquired the arts of reading and writing, will suddenly manifest a great amount of public spirit, will display an unselfish interest in commercial affairs and develop a conspicuous genius for administration; but we may reasonably hope that in these respects a promising start will be made, and a steady rate of progress gradually attained, under the guidance of a body of divisional and district officers second to none in India in sympathy with, and knowledge of, the agricultural classes, controlled by a Lieutenant-Governor who has so thoroughly familiarised himself with the ideas and principles underlying the structure of Indian society."

The Hon'ble MR. HUNTER said :—" My Lord, after the exhaustive statement made by my Hon'ble friend in charge of the Bill, it is not needful that I should enter into further details connected with this measure. But a question arose in the Select Committee with regard to which it is expedient that, by your Excellency's permission, I should ask my Hon'ble friend for a fuller explanation in Council. The Bill provides, among other things, for the Local Government making over ' the control and administration ' of schools to the Local Boards. No definition is given of the class of schools thus to be transferred, but they are placed in a list ending with the words ' and other public institutions.' It may therefore be inferred that the schools to be placed under Local Boards are of the nature of State schools. But perhaps the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill will, at the close of this debate, make it clear that the schools to be handed over ' to the control and administration ' of the Local Boards, at the discretion of the Local Government, are not intended to include aided schools, or schools managed by European or Native associations or by similar bodies. It would be particularly unfortunate at the present juncture, if an unfounded surmise should get abroad that Government intends to interfere in any way with private enterprise in education. From what passed in the Select Committee, I am aware that there is no such intention ; and I have a perfect confidence that the Local Government will prevent any injustice by the rules to be framed under this Act. I also agree that it is inexpedient to attempt a definition of the schools now to be transferred to Local Boards, as the whole question of popular education and of educational legislation is shortly to come before your Excellency's Government. Nor do I ask for any pledge in regard to schools which the Boards may themselves establish. But it seems desirable that it should be made clear to managers of schools, and to European or Native associations engaged in school work, that the present Bill will not infringe on their private rights. I shall, therefore, with your Excellency's permission, ask my Hon'ble friend for an assurance that nothing in this Bill is intended to interfere with the powers at present exercised by individual managers, or by public associations, over aided or other non-Government schools ; or to transfer their management to ' the control and administration ' of the Local Boards.

" Two objections of a more general character have been brought against the control and administration of those Boards. On the one hand, it has been urged that the powers entrusted to the Boards go too far in the direction of local self-government ; on the other hand, it is complained that they do not go far enough. As an independent member of the Council, not pledged by responsibilities to your Lordship's Executive Government, I desire to state my own opinion in regard to these two categories of complaint. The first class of critics seem to suppose that this and similar measures now before the Council, have been modelled upon institutions, and are built up on theories, foreign to India. But if there was ever a series of measures free from the charge of doctrinaire legislation, it is the series to which the present Bill belongs. Every one of that series has been based upon existing institutions, and in each one of them the development of those institutions is strictly carried out on lines laid down by the District Officers and the Local Government. The Bill for the Central Provinces starts from the village school committees, characteristic of that part of India, and links them through Local Boards with the District Councils. In Burma, such rural mechanism is comparatively wanting, and the Burmese Bill now before the Council, practically confines its scope to municipalities or townships and the areas attached. In the Panjáb, different tracts vary widely in their circumstances. The Panjáb Bill refrains, therefore, from any attempt to bring that Province under uniform provisions, and it allows the largest liberty to the Local Government in regard to the rules by which the system will be worked in each district. The North-Western Provinces form a more homogenous territory. But, while the provisions of the present Bill are consequently made applicable to them as a whole, these provisions are based upon local experience and local advice collected from the separate Districts. It embodies the views arrived at by the North-Western Government upon the recommendations of a Committee of its own District Officers. It has been carried through this Council by a gentleman of exceptional experience in the management of North-Western Districts. At each stage of the Bill, the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces has been sought; and to that opinion more than one member of the Select Committee has, on particular clauses, yielded his own. Whatever may be the defects or the merits of this Bill, they are not the merits or defects of doctrinaire legislation.

“The Bill accepts the existing system of District Boards in the North-Western Provinces, and provides them with Local Boards as agents acting under them. But, in thus giving hands to the District Board with which to do its work, we are told that the Bill has deprived the District Board of its head. The meaning of this is, that the Chairman of the District Board will no longer be necessarily an official appointed by Government, but may, under certain conditions, be elected by the Board itself. Those conditions, however, afford ample security against evil results from so moderate a change. In the first place, a District Board must, at a meeting of not less than three-fourths of its whole members, determine whether the Chairman shall be elected by the Board, or be appointed by the Local Government. The condition requiring an attendance of three-fourths of the whole members, although an effective safeguard against hasty or partial elections, seemed, to me at any rate, to be unduly stringent. But, after the careful consideration given to this question by the Local Government, and as local experience shows that this safeguard can be practically carried out in the North-Western Districts, I think that no true friend of self-government should withhold his assent from a condition which those best acquainted with the North-West believe to be requisite for the successful working of self-government in those Provinces. The second safeguard consists in the circumstance that, when a Chairman has been elected, the approval of the person so selected rests with the Local Government; and, in the event of an unsuitable election, the Local Government shall appoint as Chairman such person as it thinks fit. The third safeguard resides in the right reserved to Government of nominating a portion of the members of the Local Board, not exceeding one-fourth of the whole. The fourth safeguard is to be found in the provision that every resolution passed by a District Board shall, within ten days, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the District. A fifth safeguard rests in the efficient but well-guarded powers of inspection, suspension and control vested in the Commissioner of the Division, and eventually in the Local Government. I do not think that any one can carefully read this Bill without the conviction that its provisions represent the best results of local experience, and that they take ample security against any dangers which might arise from the increased responsibilities now assigned to the District Boards.

“Those responsibilities are of a very real character. The list of duties made over to the District Boards include much of the daily work of rural administration. The evils of the undivided responsibility borne by Indian officials, have long been recognised, and have received fresh illustration in the most able of popular accounts of India, by Mr. J. S. Cotton, which has just reached this country. But, in regard to the duties and powers of District Boards, this Bill has been based on the past experience of District officers in the North-West, not upon theories or first principles. The construction and maintenance of public roads, wells, waterworks and certain local buildings; the management and inspection of schools, hospitals, markets, cattle-pounds, staging-houses and public ferries; the regulation of encamping grounds for travellers; the licensing of stage-carriages; the conduct of local works likely to promote the public health, comfort or convenience; and the relief of the people in time of scarcity or famine, are among the duties entrusted by the Bill to the District Boards, under rules and conditions to be laid down by the Local Government. Some of these duties have already been conducted by District Boards; but hereafter the District Boards will have an inducement to efficiency and economy which they did not possess before. For, any balance unexpended at the end of the year from the sums allotted to them by the Local Government, will no longer be swept back into the Provincial Treasury. Such balances will form a fund to enable the District Board still more efficiently to carry out its duties; and the more economically it performs its work each year, the better will be its financial position at the beginning of the next.

“With the responsibility for many branches of the rural administration, will come, I believe, an increased appreciation of the difficulty of the task. The British Government has, during the past twenty years, accepted responsibilities for the continuous welfare of its subjects which no previous Government of India admitted. The State now interposes its efforts between the calamities of nature and the people. When it fails in its almost insuperable task, the people are apt to blame, not the calamities of nature, but the efforts of the State. No one has so clearly described the result of this condition of things as the present Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces. ‘Cholera, famines and great sea-inundations,’ writes Sir Alfred Lyall in one of his brilliant essays, ‘when they are not made the text of invectives against the British Government, do at least, in some confused way, bring upon it great discredit; not apparently from the idea that the gods are angry with the Government, but upon the dim feeling that the Government has undertaken the gods’ business and is breaking down.’ The best remedy for such a state of things is to make the people themselves share the difficulty of the task; and I believe that the Bill to be passed to-day for the territories over which Sir Alfred Lyall presides, is the most important legislative step yet taken in that direction.

“We have lately heard much of the great influence exercised by the small but highly educated Native communities in the towns. It is complained that that influence is altogether disproportionate to the number of the persons who wield it, or to the pecuniary stake which they have in the country. Without pronouncing as to the justice of this view, I think that the present measure affords a new and valuable guarantee against the evil complained of. For this Bill creates effective mouthpieces for public opinion outside the great towns, such as the rural population never possessed before. Public opinion exists in the village as it does in the town; but under previous Indian Governments the village was separated by wide untraversed tracts from the ruler. This separation has stamped itself in the language of the people. The terms for the village and its internal life are almost everywhere taken from the vernacular Indian speech; but beyond the village stretched the Persian zila or District, and beyond the zila the Persian subah or Province, whose capital formed the residence of the remote Government or Persian sarkar. My Hon’ble friend in charge of the Bill, has mentioned that the language to be used by the Local Boards is a burning question at the present day; that is to say, whether the language is to be the native Hindí of India, or the naturalised Urdu derived from its former foreign rulers. He has dealt, I think, very wisely with that question. But the Bill which he has to-day conducted to a successful issue, goes to the root of the evil which bequeathed to us this and similar difficulties in the rural administration. Indian history discloses scarcely anything of the nature of a political institution between the village and the Central Government; and after the downfall of each successive dynasty the village alone survives, raising its head above the waste of anarchy like the Lower Bengal hamlets in time of flood. This absence of cohesive institutions has always been a source of political weakness in India. The present Bill, with the series of measures to which it belongs, takes the village, the indestructible unit of the Indian social system, and links it to the Central Government. My Hon’ble friend has truly said that the progress of local self-government must at first be slow. But the progress, such as it is, will be steadily in the right direction. The peasant landholders and the village heads will be represented on the Local Board. The Local Boards will, either directly or by election, constitute the District Board; and the District Boards will be in immediate communication with the responsible representatives of the Government. The old indestructible element of organization in India, the village, will no longer stand out as a solitary unit, but will be incorporated into a well-knit system of rural administration.

“I think the local Government of the North-Western Provinces, as well as the Hon’ble Member in charge of the Bill, is to be congratulated on the passing of this measure. I believe it to be an honest effort to carry out the policy of local self-government laid down in your Excellency’s Resolutions, and to carry out that policy with due safeguards against the risks which must attend all administrative changes in India."

His Honour the LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR said :—" My Lord, I was not aware that any difficulty had arisen in connection with those provisions of section 24 of the Bill which refer to the control and management of schools made over to local bodies. No mention of any such difficulty has been made in the report of the Select Committee, and therefore I have not come prepared to discuss the principle at any length. Nor do I clearly understand what is the particular difficulty in respect to aided schools to which my hon'ble colleague Mr. Hunter has referred. Perhaps when the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill comes to answer the appeal which has been made to him, some further light may be thrown upon the subject. But if it is asked that a pledge be given that the clause in the Bill shall apply only to Government schools and in no respect to aided schools,—that is to say, that grants-in-aid are to be given only from provincial finances and not from local funds, that all examinations in aided schools are to be conducted by provincial and not local establishments, and that local boards and committees are to have no concern with aided schools,—I sincerely trust no such pledge will be given. As far as the Panjáb is concerned, I distinctly contemplate, under the provisions of the Panjáb Bill, now before a Select Committee of this Council, to give certain powers to local boards in connection with aided schools, as well as Government schools. In regard to the Bill now before us, I think that the clause in the first part of section 24 which makes the provisions of the section subject 'to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, impose,' provides an ample check against any arbitrary or unwise interference with aided schools. Altogether, the matter is one which should be left to the discretion of the Local Government."

The Hon'ble SIR STEWART BAYLEY said :—" My Lord, I cannot anticipate the answer which my hon'ble friend Mr. Quinton will give to the question asked him by the Hon'ble Mr. Hunter in regard to the control and management of aided schools, but I am of opinion that it is undesirable that any definite pledge should be given in their case. It seems to me that there is a principle underlying the question which may enable the Local Government to come to a decision in the matter; and that, in regard to schools for the higher education, where these schools are in the main private institutions and can only be called public in consideration of the grants-in-aid they receive, they would hardly come under the wording of the section. Where, for instance, private persons or associations have invested time and money in starting a school on the faith of a system of grants-in-aid administered by Government, there is a prima facie reason for not making over such schools to local bodies without the consent of those persons and associations. I think that might be the guiding principle, but at the same time much must be left to the discretion of Local Governments, and it would be unsafe to give anything like a definite pledge."

The Hon'ble Mr. QUINTON said :—" The question raised by my hon'ble friend Mr. Hunter is no doubt one reasonably suggested by the wording of section 24 of the Bill, and, as it also arises in the Municipal Bill, I shall deal with both at the same time.

"It was found impossible to lay down by law a precise classification of the schools which should be placed under the control and administration of the boards, and the decision was accordingly left to the Local Government, while we indicated by a general qualification in the section the principles on which such decision should be based.

"The section runs—'Every district board shall, so far as the funds at its disposal will permit, but subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, provide, among other things, for the establishment, management, maintenance and visiting of schools.'

"It was not the intention that boards should have anything to do with schools other than those maintained or aided from the district or municipal funds.

“Schools which in future accept grants-in-aid from boards will of course be bound by the conditions on which such grants are given, and must make their own terms.

“Schools which at present receive grants-in-aid from Provincial funds are in a different position. Government may find it convenient to transfer the charges for such grants-in-aid to the funds of the boards; but, as the schools were often established on the faith of the continuance of the grants-in-aid by Government, as stated by my hon’ble friend Sir Steuart Bayley, the latter would doubtless, before taking action, we presume, consult the wishes of the managers of the institutions, and, if they objected to being rendered subject to the control of the boards, would probably either not make the transfer at all, or attach to it such ‘exceptions and conditions’ as would satisfy the reasonable objections of the proprietors or managers of the schools. I cannot give any assurance beyond this. We have left the matter to the Local Governments with every confidence that the discretion will not be abused.”

The Hon’ble MR. ILBERT said:—“My Lord, we are much indebted to our hon’ble friend Mr. Quinton for the great care and skill with which he has conducted this measure through Council, and for the fulness of his explanations. It clearly appears from what he has said that, with respect both to the details and to the principles of this measure, we have adhered as closely as possible to the views and suggestions expressed by the Local Government; and I have every reason to believe that this measure will lay down the lines of a useful and effective system of local self-government. To what has been already said, I need only add a very few words, and those will be in explanation of the financial clauses of the Bill. In defining the funds and sources of income to be placed at the disposal of local boards, we have endeavoured to keep in view three considerations. First, for the purpose of securing the requisite amount of elasticity in the adjustment of provincial and local revenue and expenditure, we have found it necessary to reserve to the Local Government a certain amount of discretion with regard to the funds to be allotted. We have done this by providing in section 38 of the Bill that the arrangements specified in that section are to be subject to such conditions and exceptions as may be made and imposed by the Local Government. Secondly, it has been thought desirable to give the Local Government, by express words, the power of reserving from the local rates fund such amounts as may be necessary for expenditure on matters of the district which it may be necessary to place under provincial as distinguished from local administration. We have provided for this by a sub-section, which will be found in section 56 of the Bill, amending the Local Rates Act of 1878. Whilst conferring these discretionary powers, we hope and believe that they will be exercised in accordance with fixed rules, and in such a manner as not to cripple the independence and responsibility we intend to give to local bodies. In connection with this point, I have to express my entire concurrence in the principle of leaving unexpended balances in the hands of those bodies. Lastly, it is necessary that local bodies should pay the expenses of such services as may be rendered to them by the officers of Provincial Departments, and we have accordingly charged the district fund with the payment of such amount as may be held to be equitably due in return for such services.”

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—“The remarks which have been made by the hon’ble members on this and previous occasions at the several stages of the Bill have so fully explained the objects and purposes of this and the sister measure which will be passed, I trust, in a few minutes, and I myself have had so many occasions of expressing my views on the question of local self-government in India, that I need not now occupy the time of the Council. But I cannot let those two Bills pass without expressing my hope that they will prove to be measures calculated to make a substantial advance in the development of local self-government; and it is a great satisfaction to me that these Bills should be passed by this Council during the time I have the honour to preside over it.”

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON also moved that, in section 40, sub-section (1), after the words "payment of" the following be inserted, namely:—"the expenses incurred in auditing the accounts of the district and local boards, and".

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON also moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH MUNICIPALITIES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON also moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to make better provision for the organization and administration of Municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh be taken into consideration. He said:—

"The printed report of the Select Committee enumerates at length the changes, except amendments in matters of minor detail, which have been made in the Bill as introduced, and gives briefly the reasons for each. It also states that, in making those alterations, the Select Committee was guided by the opinions of the local authorities, which in the case of a Bill of this nature appeared to be specially deserving of attention.

"The changes as regards terms of office of chairman of the board, the appointment of joint committees with the cantonment authorities, the language of the board and the appointment of officers and servants, the grant of pensions, gratuities and leave-allowances and special privileges in conducting litigation, correspond with those made in the Local Boards Bill; and, as I have dwelt on the reasons for these changes in the remarks I have just made on that measure, I need not weary the Council by going over the same ground.

"Towns in which Act XX of 1856 is in force were not alluded to in the Bill as introduced, but, as the Local Government is enabled to apply the Municipalities Act when passed to any town or group of towns, we have provided that, when a town in which Act XX of 1856 is in force is brought under the Municipalities Act, the former enactment shall cease to have effect therein, and every panchayat constituted under it for the local area in which such town is situated shall cease to exist. The maintenance of a proper establishment for watch and ward will then become the duty of the municipal board.

"The maximum term of office of members of the board was originally fixed at two years, but the local authorities and Native gentlemen consulted considered this period too short, especially where the system of retirement by rotation is in operation—a system which has worked satisfactorily and is well understood. In deference to these views, we have extended the period to three years.

"The Bill as introduced practically allowed a board to elect as its chairman any person whatever: 'one of its own members or some other person' was the language used. Exception was taken to this as throwing open the chairmanship in a manner inconsistent with ordinary rule and practice elsewhere, and as allowing a person who had not stood for election, or who, having stood, had not been elected, to be brought in to preside over the board's deliberations as chairman. It was urged that, although the power might occasionally be used to bring in a man of peculiar ability or aptitude, the probability was much stronger that it might be misused for purposes of private interest, and that it might foster dissension, especially if a candidate who had been defeated at the election for board membership were nominated.

"The Select Committee has given full weight to these considerations; but, looking to the fact that all elections are subject to the approval of the Local Government, has decided not to narrow the field from which chairmen may be chosen, except by the single restriction that they must possess the qualifications which would enable them to stand for election as members of the boards. These qualifications will be prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under section 9 of the Bill. This will prevent the election of an outsider who has no interest in the municipality, while the Local Government will be able, by withholding its approval, to cancel the election, to the office of a person obviously improper or unfit.

“To prevent municipal administration coming to a standstill by the neglect of a board to fill up the chairmanship within a reasonable time after the occurrence of a vacancy, we have enabled the Local Government to appoint a chairman when the office is allowed to remain vacant for three months. The control of the ordinary business of the committee will rest in a great degree with the chairman, and inconvenience to the public would result from its being interrupted. I shall leave to my hon’ble and learned friend Mr. Ilbert to explain the grounds on which we have altered the sections giving power to the board to make rules regarding nuisances. The principle involved is one of general application, and will doubtless regulate litigation on the point in other provinces than those to which this Bill relates. No power was given to the Local Government in the Bill as introduced to alter the limits of a municipality. The law now in force, Act XV of 1873, section 5, does enable the Local Government to effect this by notification, and on the suggestion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh we have inserted a section (74) to make provision for future cases in which it may be necessary to alter municipal limits.

“The object of this Bill, my Lord, like that of the Bill just passed, is to develop in the direction of local self-government institutions already in existence; and I may say that the institutions to which it applies have attained a much more advanced stage of development, and call for much less radical changes, than those with which we were dealing earlier in the day.

“Some degree of local self-government in municipal affairs existed in the North-Western Provinces since 1850, when Act XX of that year enabled residents of towns to apply for the extension of the Act to the town in which they lived, and to form committees for the purpose of taxing themselves and administering the funds raised by such taxation.

“As to Oudh, a Municipal Act for Lucknow and other towns to which it might be extended by the Governor General in Council was passed in 1864; and the Governor General in Council was subsequently empowered to extend to any towns in Oudh the Panjáb Municipal Act of 1867. In 1868, a new Municipal Act was passed for the North-Western Provinces, and was keenly debated in this Council; the opposition, headed by Sir H. Durand and Sir W. Mansfield, being opposed to granting to the Lieutenant-Governor power to apply the Act to any town irrespective of the wishes of the inhabitants and to the preponderance on the committee of official members, and the influence which it was likely they would exercise.

“Finally, in 1873, a fresh Act, No. XV of that year, being the law now in force, was passed for the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, in order to provide for municipalities in Oudh governed by the Panjáb Municipal Act, then about to expire, and to make alterations and amendments in some small matters, to which experience had shown to be required, to the North-Western Provinces Act, regarding which the mover, Mr. (now Sir) Arthur Hobhouse, stated his belief that it had worked in a very satisfactory manner. By this Act all municipalities in both provinces are now regulated, and a brief account of its operation, taken from the printed Administration Report of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh for the year ending on the 31st of March, 1882, may interest the Council, as showing the stage of advancement which municipal institutions have there reached.

“There were in that year in the united provinces 109 municipalities, with a population slightly in excess of 3,000,000. Members were appointed in some places by election only, in others by nomination only, and in others again by election and nomination combined. There were 438 ex officio members, against 1,022 nominated or chosen by election. An income of Rs. 23,30,837 was raised by taxation, of which 88 per cent. was derived from octroi-duties, and the average incidence of taxation per head was 12 annas.

“The first charge on the net income was for police, of which an establishment consisting of 2,802 constabulary and 4,006 non-constabulary forces was entertained. I may say here that, by the present Bill, municipalities will be entirely relieved from the cost of the former, under the obligation of devoting the funds thereby set free to purposes of education, medical relief and the like. Conservancy, maintenance and construction of roads and buildings, drainage, sanitation, charitable and educational grants, absorbed most of the remaining funds.

“Any one conversant with the condition of the towns and cities of Upper India five-and-twenty years ago, who compares it with their present state, must admit that the improvement effected by municipal administration in matters affecting the public health, safety and convenience is immense. I may perhaps be permitted to mention the cities of Lucknow, Allahabad and Cawnpore, of which I have personal knowledge, and in the two former of which a considerable portion of my official life has been spent. These cities are now distinguished by wide and handsome streets, excellent roads, comparatively good drainage, which is being daily improved, and efficient conservancy; all brought about by municipal committees, in whose proceedings some of the leading and most intelligent citizens took an active part. In Lucknow, my friend Nazim Agha Ali Khán Bahádur, commonly known as the Agha Sahib, and the late Daroga Wajíd Ali, so conspicuous for his loyal services to the British Government during the Mutiny, interested themselves above others in municipal affairs, and rendered invaluable assistance in municipal administration.

“Similar public spirit to that manifested by these gentlemen and others was not universal, and the system, under which the satisfactory results I have just alluded to were obtained, depended largely for its success in the first instance on the presence on committees of ex officio members. The number, however, of non-official residents of towns and cities who evince an intelligent interest in municipal business has been gradually increasing, and it is believed that the time has now come when the co-operation of officials on most municipal boards is no longer needed. The provisions of the present Bill have accordingly been framed with the view of giving to residents of the cities and towns to which it applies the sole management of their own municipal affairs, under rules for securing due attention to the public health, safety, convenience and interests generally—objects which no Government can suffer to be neglected. Some few places will still require the guiding hand of an official president, and in all a judicious exercise of the control from without established by the Bill cannot be safely dispensed with; but, with these exceptions, the State practically withdraws from the management of municipal affairs, in the expectation that the boards will prove themselves equal to the fresh responsibilities thrown upon them, and carry on with zeal and efficiency to ever advancing stages of development the system of municipal government, which has already conferred such substantial benefits on the united provinces.”

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY said:—“My Lord, there is only one point to which I wish to refer in connection with this Bill. I have no desire to oppose the passing of the Motion now before the Council, but it will be observed that I have qualified my assent to the Report of the Select Committee by expressing a doubt whether it was expedient to dispense with the notice now required before a suit can be brought against a committee or its officers for compensation for any thing done under the Municipalities Act. This question is likely to arise again with reference to other Bills now before this Council, and I may therefore briefly explain my reasons for considering it desirable that the law should require notice of such suits to be given.

“The principal reason is the tendency of such notice to reduce the number of cases in which municipal committees need be concerned as litigants. The object of the notice is to give them an opportunity of offering amends out of Court; and section 43 of Act XV of 1873 goes on to provide that, if sufficient amends are tendered before suit is brought, the plaintiff shall not recover. A similar provision is to be found, I believe, in all Municipal Acts now in force throughout India, those of the Presidency-towns included, and there is reason to believe that it has often led to claims being adjusted out of Court. It is said in the Report that the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure on the subject are sufficient; but the only notice before suit required by that Code is that provided by Chapter XXVII before suing Government or public officers. It was decided in Committee that it was not desirable to make Chapter XXVII of the Code, as originally proposed in the Bill, applicable to municipal committees; but, while I agree in considering the provisions of that chapter unsuitable, I still think that it would have been desirable to retain a provision similar to that contained in section 43 of the existing Act. Claims may of course still be adjusted out of Court, either after suit, or, if sufficient notice is given, before suit; but in cases of the former description the costs of bringing the suit must be paid by one party or other; and, if no notice is prescribed by law, cases of the latter description will be rare, as formal notice before suing is rarely given in India, and a plaintiff will think that he has done more than is necessary if he has told a member or servant of the committee that he intends to sue.

“My hon’ble friend Mr. Quinton has suggested that the Court would decree costs against the plaintiff if no formal notice had been given, but it is quite possible that the Court might think it harsh to throw all costs upon the plaintiff if he had given an informal warning to a member or servant of the committee.

“It appears that a similar provision which has long existed in English law has recently been found unnecessary, but the circumstances of England are very different from those of the interior of India, and I am unwilling to deprive municipal boards, which are bodies appointed to discharge a public duty, and are, like individuals, liable to err, of a protection which is given to public officers.

“A minor reason is that, as the protection has hitherto been given by law to municipal committees, it does not seem desirable to withdraw it just at the time when it is proposed to give them a more representative character and place them in a more independent position than before. This would not be a very strong reason if the protection served no useful purpose, but, from what has been already said, it will be seen that I think it is beneficial.

“But, as the Local Government has been informed that the Select Committee did not think that Chapter XXVII of the Procedure Code should be made applicable, and has not suggested that a provision similar to section 43 of the existing Act should be substituted, and the subject is one closely connected with local administration, I have not thought myself called upon to propose an amendment.”

The Hon’ble MR. ILBERT said:—“My Lord, my hon’ble friend Mr. Quinton has asked me to explain, somewhat more fully than it has been found possible to do in the Report of the Select Committee, the principles by which we have been guided in framing section 55 of the Bill, which delegates to municipal authorities the power to frame bye-laws. It is obvious that a power of this kind ought to be very carefully guarded and its exercise as carefully watched. Experience has shown that similar bodies have not unfrequently framed bye-laws which are either unnecessary, vexatious or in excess of their powers. This remark, I need hardly say, applies not only to India, but also to England. For the purpose of preventing similar abuses, it has been suggested that we ought to take away from municipal authorities the power of framing bye-laws, except those which are necessary for the regulation of their own proceedings, and to insert an exhaustive list of acts and omissions punishable within municipal limits, and of the penalties to be imposed for them. I do not think, however, that such a suggestion is practicable. I have examined carefully the different Indian Municipal Acts, and I find that, whilst they differ from each other materially with respect to the extent to which they define offences in the Act itself, or leave them to be defined by bye-laws, they all agree in reserving to local authorities a supplementary power of framing bye-laws for the prevention and punishment of petty municipal offences. The English Public Health Act, which goes into greater detail than is usual in Indian Acts, is framed on similar principles, and reserves to local sanitary authorities extensive powers of making bye-laws. This is a matter with respect to which I should be disposed to leave a reasonable amount of discretion to the Local Governments. I have not yet had an opportunity of minutely examining the Panjáb Municipal Bill, but it appears to have been framed with great care, and it contains provisions apparently borrowed from the Bombay, Bengal and Madras Acts, which specify in some detail the offences punishable under the Act. The North-Western Provinces Bill, however, has been framed on somewhat different lines, and the reason for this difference probably is, that the North-Western Provinces Government have already framed a model Code of bye-laws which, as I understand, has been put in force, with local modifications, in a good many municipalities in the Province, which has been found to work well, and which, I presume, the Local Government would wish to continue in force with as little alteration as possible. Under these circumstances, the Select Committee have not thought it necessary to insert in the Bill provisions which had not been suggested by the Local Government, and the suitability of which they would not have had sufficient opportunity for considering. At the same time, we thought that the bye-laws clause which appeared in the Bill as introduced was susceptible of improvement. This clause appeared to me to be open to two objections. In the first place, it gave to municipal authorities the power to interpret the term 'public nuisance'—a power which should properly be left to the Courts of law; and secondly, it gave, by implication, to those authorities the power of creating offences punishable by so heavy a penalty as a fine of Rs. 200. I have gone through the offences which are punishable under the model Code of bye-laws now in use in the North-Western Provinces, and I find that, with few exceptions, the offences dealt with under them can be brought under one of two categories. They are either offences which might properly be treated as belonging to the same class as those defined as public nuisances by section 268 of the Penal Code, or else they are offences which might be appropriately dealt with under that chapter of the Code (Chapter XIV) which contains this section, and which is headed 'Of offences affecting the public health, safety, convenience, decency or morals.' We have accordingly, by the first sub-section, given a general power to municipal authorities to frame bye-laws for the prevention and punishment of offences belonging to either of these two categories, and we have added sub-sections dealing specifically with offences about which a doubt might be entertained whether they were sufficiently covered by the general words of the first sub-section. And, in order to avoid an artificial extension of the term 'public nuisance,' we have not given that name to offences against municipal bye-laws as such. Of course, there are many offences which might be punishable both under the Penal Code and under a municipal bye-law. In these cases, the prosecutor will have the option of proceeding either under the one or under the other, subject to a proviso, which will be found in section 70 of the Bill, and which provides that no person shall be punished twice for the same offence.

"Then, we have provided sundry safeguards against the possibility of municipal committees exceeding or abusing their powers. In the first place, the maximum penalty for an offence against a municipal rule is limited to Rs. 50, with a proviso for the case of continuing offences; next, a draft of the proposed rules must, under section 68, be published, and objections and suggestions from persons interested must be invited before the rules are passed; and, lastly, the rules are made subject to the approval of the Local Government. This procedure is substantially the same as that prescribed in the case of bye-laws under the English Public Health Act. All such bye-laws require the sanction of the Local Government Board, and the course adopted by that Board in dealing with such bye-laws is this. They have drawn up a model Code of bye-laws containing all such provisions as have been shewn by experience to be necessary and sufficient, and they do not allow local authorities to depart from this model except for special reasons to be assigned in each case. I think that, if Local Governments in India adopt a somewhat similar course, and employ a reasonable amount of care in framing their model Code of bye-laws, there can be no ground for apprehension that the powers entrusted to municipalities are likely to be abused or exceeded.

"So much for bye-laws. Next, as to the point which my hon'ble friend Mr. Barkley has raised, with respect to the propriety of omitting the provision which requires a month's notice before the institution of legal proceedings against a municipal committee. As my hon'ble friend Mr. Quinton has explained, we have, in omitting this provision, followed the most recent precedents of English legislation. Protective clauses of a similar kind to that which we now propose to omit are to be found scattered up and down in great abundance in the English Statute-book. I once had occasion to make an exhaustive examination of these clauses for the purpose of seeing whether they could not be enacted once for all in a generalized form. I found that they had a long history, and that some of the forms now in use contained provisions which dated from the time of James I, and had been copied mechanically from one Statute into another, though they had long ceased to be of any practical utility. When the English Army Act was being framed, the most suitable form of such a clause was carefully considered, and the conclusion come to was that the requirement of a month's previous notice of action was likely to do more harm than good, and had better be omitted; the reason being that no person of ordinary prudence begins legal proceedings against an individual or a body of individuals for acts done under colour of statutory authority without taking the precaution of previously sending a lawyer's letter or in some similar way affording an opportunity of settling the matter without litigation; and that, if any person was so foolish as to dispense with this precaution, he would probably be mulcted in costs, even if he won his case. It appeared to me that, notwithstanding the differences between English and Indian circumstances to which Mr. Barkley has referred, the same considerations applied in India also; and, though I am fully impressed with the importance of protecting persons in office from vexatious litigation, yet I am very reluctant to increase the number of formalities of which proof must be furnished before a suit can be maintained, or to make any addition to the number of the existing opportunities for delay and procrastination which our civil procedure affords. Moreover, if such a provision as this is really required, it ought to be embodied in a general Act, which should grant the necessary kind of protection to all persons acting under statutory or other similar authority. These were the reasons which induced me to advise the Committee to omit the clause in question from the Bill."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON also moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PANJÁB MUNICIPALITIES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY moved that the Bill to make better provision for the organization and administration of Municipalities in the Panjáb be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Ilbert, the Hon'ble Sir Steuart Bayley, the Hon'ble Messrs. Hope, Hunter and Quinton and the Mover.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 19th September, 1883.

D. FITZPATRICK,

SIMLA;

The 18th September, 1883. }

Secretary to the Government of India,

Legislative Department.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

---

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR
GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING
LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

---

The Council met at Government House, Simla, on Wednesday, the 19th
September, 1883.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I.,
G.M.I.E., presiding.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., C.I.E.

Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson, C.B., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble W. W. Hunter, LL.D., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.

The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

PROTECTION OF INVENTIONS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the protection of inventions exhibited in the Exhibitions of India.

NATIVE PASSENGER SHIPS ACT, 1876, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1876.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS BILL.

The Hon'ble Mr. ILBERT also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, and the Indian Stamp Act, 1879.
He said :—

“The object of this Bill is to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, in certain respects in which experience has shown that the existing law is defective.

“Section 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, contains a provision that the High Court may suspend or dismiss any pleader who takes instructions in any case except from the party on whose behalf he is retained, or from a private servant of such party, or from some person who is the recognized agent of such party within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure. It has been brought to the notice of the Government that the practical operation of this provision is in certain cases attended with inconvenience to litigants and pleaders.
In litigation in which pardánashin women are concerned, instructions must often, as a matter of necessity, be given through their near relatives. Again, there are cases in which male litigants, who have not the means of employing private servants, are unable from various causes, such as physical incapacity or old age, to instruct their pleaders in person. In such cases, it seems right to allow the relatives of the litigants to instruct pleaders on their behalf. Section 3 of the Bill accordingly adds a proviso to section 13 of the Act enabling pleaders to take instructions from a relative of the party deputed by him or her requires a month's notice before the institution of legal proceedings against a municipal committee. As my hon'ble friend Mr. Quinton has explained, we have, in omitting this provision, followed the most recent precedents of English legislation. Protective clauses of a similar kind to that which we now propose to omit are to be found scattered up and down in great abundance in the English Statute-book. I once had occasion to make an exhaustive examination of these clauses for the purpose of seeing whether they could not be enacted once for all in a generalized form. I found that they had a long history, and that some of the forms now in use contained provisions which dated from the time of James I, and had been copied mechanically from one Statute into another, though they had long ceased to be of any practical utility. When the English Army Act was being framed, the most suitable form of such a clause was carefully considered, and the conclusion came to was that the requirement of a month's previous notice of action was likely to do more harm than good, and had better be omitted; the reason being that no person of ordinary prudence begins legal proceedings against an individual or a body of individuals for acts done under colour of statutory authority without taking the precaution of previously sending a lawyer's letter or in some similar way affording an opportunity of settling the matter without litigation; and that, if any person was so foolish as to dispense with this precaution, he would probably be mulcted in costs, even if he won his case. It appeared to me that, notwithstanding the differences between English and Indian circumstances to which Mr. Barkley has referred, the same considerations applied in India also; and, though I am fully impressed with the importance of protecting persons in office from vexatious litigation, yet I am very reluctant to increase the number of formalities of which proof must be furnished before a suit can be maintained, or to make any addition to the number of the existing opportunities for delay and procrastination which our civil procedure affords. Moreover, if such a provision as this is really required, it ought to be embodied in a general Act, which should grant the necessary kind of protection to all persons acting under statutory or other similar authority. These were the reasons which induced me to advise the Committee to omit the clause in question from the Bill."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. QUINTON also moved that the Bill as amended be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PANJÁB MUNICIPALITIES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY moved that the Bill to make better provision for the organization and administration of Municipalities in the Panjáb be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Messrs. Gibbs, Ilbert, Hope, Hunter and Quinton and the Mover. He said:—"My hon'ble friend Sir Steuart Bayley has mentioned to me that the Hon'ble Mr. Gibbs would shortly relieve him of the charge of the Home Department, and asked me to substitute Mr. Gibbs' name for his. I have altered the Motion accordingly, and if this alteration is not objected to, I desire to move that the Bill be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the hon'ble members abovenamed."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 19th September, 1883.

D. FITZPATRICK,

SIMLA;

The 18th September, 1883. }

Secretary to the Government of India,

Legislative Department.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

---

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR
GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING
LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

---

The Council met at Government House, Simla, on Wednesday, the 19th
September, 1883.

P R E S E N T :

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I.,
G.M.I.E., presiding.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., C.I.E.

Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson, C.B., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble W. W. Hunter, LL.D., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.

The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

PROTECTION OF INVENTIONS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the protection of inventions exhibited in the Exhibitions of India.

NATIVE PASSENGER SHIPS ACT, 1876, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1876.

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, and the Indian Stamp Act, 1879.
He said:—

“The object of this Bill is to amend the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, in certain respects in which experience has shown that the existing law is defective.

“Section 13 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, contains a provision that the High Court may suspend or dismiss any pleader who takes instructions in any case except from the party on whose behalf he is retained, or from a private servant of such party, or from some person who is the recognized agent of such party within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure. It has been brought to the notice of the Government that the practical operation of this provision is in certain cases attended with inconvenience to litigants and pleaders.
In litigation in which pardánashín women are concerned, instructions must often, as a matter of necessity, be given through their near relatives. Again, there are cases in which male litigants, who have not the means of employing private servants, are unable from various causes, such as physical incapacity or old age, to instruct their pleaders in person. In such cases, it seems right to allow the relatives of the litigants to instruct pleaders on their behalf. Section 3 of the Bill accordingly adds a proviso to section 13 of the Act enabling pleaders to take instructions from a relative of the party deputed by him or her to instruct the pleader when the party is a pardánashín woman or unable for any sufficient cause to instruct the pleader in person.

“ Under the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, an advocate not ordinarily practising in his own province must, if he wishes to practise in such a province as the Central Provinces, for example, where the Judicial Commissioner has at present no power of enrolling advocates, first enrol himself as a pleader. As this state of the law is felt by certain persons to be a grievance, a new section has been added to the Act, empowering all High Courts not established by Royal Charter to enrol advocates as the Chief Court of the Panjáb is at present empowered to enrol them. As the power of suspension or removal would, except in the case of the Panjáb Chief Court, be vested in a single officer if it were conferred absolutely on the High Court, it has been thought well to make every order by any High Court other than the Panjáb Chief Court suspending or removing an advocate subject to confirmation by the Local Government.

“ The new section 42, which section 5 of the Bill adds to the Act, provides for the repeal of Acts I of 1846 and XX of 1853 in all places to which that section may be extended. The Madras High Court has noticed that these Acts have not as yet been expressly repealed in that Presidency, though a great portion of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, has been brought into operation there. These Acts are, it is believed, already repealed in all the provinces to which the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, extends proprio vigore; but it is possible that they may be still unrepealed in some of the other provinces to which the Act either has already been or may hereafter be extended under the power conferred by its first section. The new section 42, taken with section 1 of the Act, will enable the Local Government of any such province to repeal the Acts if still in force in it.

“ Lastly, section 6 of the Bill amends article 27 of schedule I and article 11 of schedule II of the Indian Stamp Act, 1879, by omitting the words which confine their operation to advocates of the chartered High Courts. As section 41 of the Legal Practitioners Act, 1879, empowers the Chief Court of the Panjáb to enrol advocates, and as the Bill will confer similar powers on the other non-chartered High Courts, the words in question are, as represented by the North-Western Provinces High Court, out of place, so far as advocates are concerned, and should therefore be omitted.”

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 4th October, 1883.

D. FITZPATRICK,

SIMLA ;
The 20th September, 1883. }

Secretary to the Government of India,

Legislative Department.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR
THE WEEK ENDING THE 18th SEPTEMBER 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In the Carnatic, Travancore and parts of the Southern Mahratta Country the rainfall of the past week has been somewhat deficient, and more rain is wanted for unirrigated crops; otherwise the prospects in Southern India are fair. There has been a slight rise in the river in Sind, but it remains below its usual level; at Kurrachee, however, it is reported to be higher than last year. In Hyderabad and the Berars the crops are generally in excellent condition and throughout Central India and Rajputana good, and in some places abundant rain has greatly benefited the kharif and improved the pasturage.

In Burma, Assam and Bengal crop prospects are on the whole favourable, although some damage has been done by past floods, and more rain is wanted in parts of Behar and Central Bengal. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Central Provinces the rice crop has suffered from the long break in August, but other crops are doing well and the rainfall of the week under report has been general and very beneficial. Hardly any rain fell during the week in the Punjab, but prospects there have materially improved.

Harvesting is still in progress in Madras. Ploughing and sowing for the rabi has begun in the Bombay Presidency, Rajputana, the Central Provinces and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the early kharif crops are being cut. Reaping of early rice and jute continues in Bengal, the outturn being generally fair. In Burma rice sowings have been finished and transplanting is nearly completed.

Cattle-disease in mild form is reported from most districts; in Burma the mortality has slightly increased.

Cholera still exists in Bombay, the Central Provinces and Northern India, but is decreasing. The usual autumnal fevers prevail.

Prices are keeping steady.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(Sept. 19th)
Bellary ...	·18 (average of three stations).	Standing crops generally good.
Kurnool ...	·05	Rain still needed in four taluks; standing crops elsewhere good. Harvest of indigo in parts, yield 14 annas. Cattle-disease in seven taluks.
Ganjam ...	·93 (average of twelve stations).	Standing crops generally thriving. Fever and small-pox exist.
Kistna ...	·55 (average of four stations).	Rain needed throughout. Dry crops fading. Cholum suffering from grub in one taluk. Harvest of gingelly, yield below half. Fever, small-pox, guinea-worm, and cattle-disease in parts.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	·95	Standing crops withering, except in one taluk for want of water. Harvest of kar , paddy, &c., yield half. Small-pox slight in three taluks; ancasles in one taluk. Cattle-disease slight in all taluks.
Coimbatore ...	·89 (average of six stations).	Standing crops cholum damaged by insects in one taluk. Dry crops in eight taluks want rain. Harvest of cholum and ragi , yield average. Fever and small-pox in parts; cholera in one taluk, three deaths.
Tanjore ...	1·17 (average of eight stations).	Standing crops generally good, but dry crops in four taluks want rain. Harvest paddy and gingelly, yield below average. Twenty-six deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	1·33 (average of four stations).	Standing crops withering, except in two taluks. Harvest of paddy and dry crops in parts.
Malabar ...	1·18 (average of thirteen stations).	Standing crops good. Harvesting continues. Second crop cultivation begun in seven taluks. Small-pox slight in nine taluks; fever in three taluks; cholera in two taluks, 5 deaths.
Travancore ...	·177	Harvesting continues. Preparations for next cultivation begun. Fever and dysentery prevail; 1 death from small-pox. Rain needed in several districts. General Remarks. —General prospects fair.
Bombay—(Sept. 19th)
Kurrachee ...	·88, being average of fourteen stations.	River at Kotri on 17th 14 feet 7 inches against 13 feet 9 inches on same date last year. Fever in five talukas. Cattle-disease in five talukas, some loss among cows and buffaloes. Coughs and dysentery at Koti. Wheat, red rice, and bajri in Kurrachee 24, 28 and 34, in Shewan 32 and 40, in Tatta 24, 28 and 36, and in Jati 20, 32 and 40 lbs. per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	Rain in two talukas, average fall ·90.	River has risen 1 inch since last week, but was 3 feet lower on 17th instant than on same date last year. Crops are reported to have suffered from blight and rats in taluka Badin. Small-pox in one, fever in two, and cattle-disease in three talukas. Wheat 24, bajri 36, juari 46, red rice 20, and white rice 20 lbs. per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—contd.
Ahmedabad ...	40	Total rainfall 19.68. Crops healthy. Cholera abating. 5 cases, 3 deaths; slight fever in Aholka, Modasa, and Viramgaum. Bajri 26½ and wheat 24½ lbs. per rupee.
Baroda ...	74	Total rainfall 43.93. Crops in good condition. Locusts in Songhad, Mahuva, and Vyara talukas of Naosari division. Bajri 27 and rice 21 lbs. per rupee.
Surat ...	54	Total rainfall 46.74. Condition of crops good. Cholera in Bulsar, 18 cases, 14 deaths; slight fever in Pardi. Locusts in some talukas. Juari 37 and augli 43 lbs. per rupee.
Nasik ...	.....	Break in rain. Sowings of kharif completed. Heavy and continuous rain slightly damaged the kharif crops in places. Land is being prepared for rabi . No cholera. Cattle-disease in two villages of Dindori. Locusts throughout the district doing no damage, save in Kalwan. Wheat 28, bajri 28, and rice 22 lbs. per rupee.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	Very little rain; total of week 55.	Total rainfall to date 72.14, being 7.20 above average. Abnormal temperature 0° to 1° cool. Vapour in air defective. Wind normal. Barometer high.
Poona ...	Light showers in all talukas.	Nine deaths from cholera. Bajri 39 and juari 47 lbs., in Poona bajri 34 and juari 41 lbs.
Ahmednagar ...	Very light rain in four talukas and none in the rest.	Kharif crops are doing well; sowing of rabi has commenced in all the talukas except Parner, Jamkhed, and Sanganner. Cattle-disease prevails to some extent in Karjat. Cholera 17 attacks, 5 deaths. Bajri —maximum 60 lbs. in Jamkhed, minimum 36 in Kopergaon, juari —maximum 72 in Jamkhed, minimum 45 in Kopergaon.
Sholapur ...	No rain	Kharif crops good; rabi sowings commenced in places. No damage by locusts. Cholera 76 cases, 31 deaths. Juari 61 and bajri 53 lbs. per rupee.
Dharwar ...	Slight rain at eight stations; maximum 79 at Hubli.	Rain wanted in Gadag, Ron and some other places. Standing crops good. Sowing of cotton progressing in some places, and in others lands are being prepared for it and for sowing wheat, gram, and other rabi crops. Public health good. Juari 84 lbs. per rupee in Ranibennur to 47 lbs. in Mugud petta and rice 40 lbs. in Hargal to 25 lbs. in Mundargi.
Kanara ...	Karwar, 1.32; Kumpita, 5.84; Sirsi, 8.95; Halial, 3.80.	Total rainfall 131.10. Plucking cardamoms commenced. Rice plants healthy. Three cases of small-pox in Hanawar. Common rice in Karwar 13, in district average 14½ seers per rupee.
Rajkot ...	43	Total rainfall 25.09. Weather hot and cloudy. General health good. Bajri 28 and juari 34 lbs. per rupee.
General Remarks. —Slight rain in some districts, more wanted in parts of the Southern Mahratta Country. Kharif crops generally good. Preparations for rabi in progress. Little damage from locusts. Cholera in many districts, but of a mild character. Slight fever and cattle-disease in a few places.
Bengal—(Sept. 19th)
Chittagong ..	3.49	Weather seasonable. Transplanting of late rice nearly finished. Prospects good. Prices stationary. Cattle-disease still reported.
Dacca ..	45	Rochia paddy being sown; aus and jute being cut. Prospects good.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta) ..	30	Prospect of crops good. Harvesting of early rice still going on, outturn above average. Transplanting of late rice finished. Price of common rice stationary. Public health generally good, though cases of fever reported from Baraset and Bassirhat sub-divisions.
Moorshedabad ..	40	Weather sultry. Rain much wanted for late rice. Other crops doing well. Public health good.
Rajshahye ..	1.10	Weather clear and hot. Crops doing well. More rain wanted. Aus rice being harvested.
Burdwan ..	33	Aus rice being reaped, outturn fair; amun rice promises fairly. Public health tolerable.
Rungpore ..	5.76	Weather cloudy and rainy. Prospects of crops good. Cutting of jute proceeding. Fever prevalent; cholera at Kaligunge.
Bhagalpur ...	1.11	More rain wanted for winter rice.
Purneah ..	2.25	Prospects of crops good. Farming operations normal. Health fair. Rivers normal.
Patna ..	2.20	Bhadoi crops promising. Transplanting of paddy still going on. Cholera reported from several thanas of Behar sub-division.
Durbhunga ..	43	More rain wanted, but crops have certainly improved, and prospects are not unfavourable.
Hazaribagh ...	1.91	Weather warm and seasonable. Prospects of rice crop continue favourable. Bhadoi crops still being harvested. General health good.
Cuttack ...	36	Weather seasonable. Early rice being cut; late rice being reploughed and thriving well. Price of rice has risen a little high. Public health good.
General Remarks. —There has been general rain during the week; it has done much good in Behar, but more is still much wanted there, as well as in Central Bengal, for late rice especially on high lands. Early rice, jute, and other autumn crops are being harvested, and promise to give a general fair outturn, though in some districts it will be under an average. Fever is said to be prevalent in some districts, but the general health of the province is still very fair.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
N. W. Provinces and Oudh—
Benares (Sept. 18th)	Benares, 3.50; Chandausi, 1.30.	Crop prospects much improved. Fever continues. Cattle-disease of a very mild type reported in places. Prices steady.
Allahabad ( „ 19th)	Good rain everywhere except at Sadr, where only .70 has fallen; in the remaining eight tahsils the average is 2.30.	Harvest prospects good. Health generally good. Cholera, 5 deaths. Bajri , juari , and arhar risen in price and dhan and kuari fallen, other prices steady.
Gorakhpur ( „ 16th)	Rain more or less abundant all over district on 13th and 14th; Maharajgunj, 3.50; Deoria, 1.90; Bansgaon, 1.20.	Prospects much improved. Sharp outbreak of cholera in jail, prisoners moved into camp; one or two cases also in city.
Jhansi ( „ 17th)	Jhansi, .80; Mau, 2.90; Moth, 2.70; Garotha, 1.00.	Rice and minor crops somewhat damaged for want of rain. Juari , bajra , tili , and cotton are looking well. Prices fluctuating. Health of men and cattle good.
Agra ( „ 18th)	Rain in all parganas from .10 to 1.80.	Sporadic cholera in two and fever in three parganas. Prices slightly falling. More rain wanted. No cattle-disease.
Rae Bareilly ( „ 17th)	Rain during week—Sadr, 6.74; Digbijainj, 3.70; Dalmian, 1.30; Salon, .80.	Prospects of kharif crop greatly improved. General health good. Supplies sufficient. Prices steady.
Meerut ( „ 18th)	Meerut, 1.00; Bagpat, 1.40; Hapur, .70; Mowana, .40; rain has fallen in outlying villages of Ghaziabad.	Though recent rain most beneficial, more would be advantageous. West wind blowing and symptoms of approaching cold season. Prospects fair. Health good. No cholera. Labour abundant. Supplies sufficient. Prices steady.
Kumaun ( „ „ )	.....	Fine weather is now required for the crops, sufficient rain having fallen. Health of people fair. Cattle-disease continues. Prices unchanged.
Lucknow ( „ „ )	Abundant and general rain during week; Lucknow, 4.50; Malabad, 3.40; Mohanlalganj, 3.20.	Heavy clouds still overhanging. Rice crop has suffered to some extent, but it is now improving; hewat crops are doing very well. Condition of people and cattle good. Markets well supplied. Prices stationary.
Partabgarh ( „ „ )	Sadr, 1.00; Kunda, 3.60; Patti, .60.	Prices steady. Rice suffering from drought in a small tract in Patti tahsil. Prospects elsewhere good. Kuari , rice, kakun , makra , and sawan being cut. Health good.
Sitapur ( „ „ )	Sitapur, 1.50; Sidhouli, 3.20; Biswan, 4.70; Misrikh, 6.90.	Marked improvement in prospects. Fall in prices of all grains, except dhan and kodon which is stationary and sawan which has risen.
Fyzabad ( „ „ )	Sadr, 3.00; Bikapur, 3.20; Akbarpur, 1.20; Tanda, .60.	Prospects improved. Public health good.
Bareilly ( „ „ )	Passing showers	Weather cloudy. Kharif fully average, except rice and indigo. Cholera confined to original locality.
Cawnpore ( „ „ )	Good rain throughout the district, though varying considerably.	Weather favourable. Prospects improved. General health of the people good. Slight cattle-disease in one pargana only. Prices slightly fallen.
Farukhabad ( „ „ )	.....	Sky slightly overcast and favourable for all crops and for preparation of robi sowings. Later kharif crops very promising, except rice.
Punjab—(Sept. 18th).
Delhi ...	.....	Health good. Crop prospects improved. Prices stationary.
Hissar ...	Slight rain	Crops thriving. Health good. Prices stationary.
Umballa ...	.....	Health good. Crop prospects much improved, but yield expected to be below the average. Prices rising.
Jullundur ...	.....	Health good. Crop prospects improving. Prices falling.
Amritsar ...	.....	Health good. Prices falling.
Sialkot ...	.....	Health and harvest prospects good. Prices falling.
Ferozepore ...	Zira, .50	Health good. Crop prospects improved. Prices steady.
Lahore ...	.....	Health good. Crop prospects much improved. Prices stationary.
Rawalpindi ...	.30	Health good. Crop prospects good. Prices falling.
Mooltan ...	.....	Health and crop prospects good. Prices stationary.
Dera Ismail Khan ...	.....	Health good. Rain needed. Crops suffering. Prices steady.
Peshawar ...	.....	Health and harvest prospects good. Rain wanted. Prices falling.
General Remarks. —Slight rain in one or two districts. General health good. Crop prospects improving.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Central Provinces— (Sept. 19th)
Nagpur ...	·95	Weather rainy. Prospects good. 118 deaths from cholera. Prices steady.
Jubbulpore ...	·20	Weather cloudy and occasionally sunny; weather seasonable; Crops much benefited, but more rain is wanted for rice. Prices stationary.
Saugor (Sept. 18th)	·86	Weather cloudy with light rain. Crops much improved. Prices steady. Health good.
Seoni ...	2·59	Heavy rain on 19th followed by cloudy damp weather. Crops flourishing. 9 deaths from cholera. Prices stationary.
Hoshangabad ...	3·63	Weather rainy and cloudy. Weeding and preparation for rabi sowings stopped by continuous rain. Health good. Wheat 15 and rice 9 seers per rupee.
Khandwa ...	·3	Weather occasionally cloudy. Prospects good. Minor crops being reaped. 9 deaths from cholera. Prices steady.
Raipur ...	2·17	Prospects favourable. More rain wanted for rice, especially in Simoga. Health good. Prices steady.
Sambalpur (Sept. 15th)	1·0	Weather favourable. Rice improving, but loss to the extent of 4 annas is expected. Health good. Common rice 36 seers per rupee. General Remarks. —Prospects continue favourable, and the injury caused by the long break in the rains has been in a great measure repaired, except in respect to rice, which appear to have suffered permanent damage to the extent of one-quarter of the crop in some parts of the provinces.
British Burma — (Sept. 19th)
Akyab ...	6·48	Rainfall to date 167·23. Three deaths from cholera in Koladan, 3 in Writoung east, otherwise public health good. Seventy-four deaths of cattle in Menbya and Writoung east, elsewhere health of plough cattle good. Transplanting continues. Crops promising.
Rangoon ...	4·20	Rainfall to date 70·35. One death from small-pox, otherwise public health good. Price of paddy from Rs. 86 to 88 per 100 baskets.
Bassein ...	4·21	Total rainfall to date 79·61. Four deaths from cholera in Kyangidoung township, one from small-pox in Thabyahla circle, otherwise public health good. Sixty-five deaths of cattle in four townships. Ploughing finished except in some low lands. Transplanting about four-fifths finished. Paddy plants thriving. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to 100 per 100 baskets.
Amhorst (Moulmein) ...	10·92	Total rainfall to date 153·50. Public health and health of cattle in Moulmein and district good. Crops healthy in Moulmein town. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting progressing. Seedlings and crops good.
Toungoo ...	3·42	Total rainfall to date 69·83. Public health and health of plough cattle good. Transplanting progressing. Average price of paddy Rs. 65 per 100 baskets.
Kyoukphyoo ...	.....	No report received.
Sandoway ...	.....	No report received.
Hanthawaddy ...	.....	Public health and health of cattle good. 30,640 acres have been ploughed. Some of the crops in the Aingkaloung Bawley and Myoungtanga circles, Hlaing township, have been destroyed by floods. Transplanting going on in the Hlaing and Tamanoing townships. Ploughing wages 60 baskets of paddy per man in the Hlaing township. Price of paddy from Rs. 80 to 100 per 100 baskets.
Pegu ...	8·55	Rainfall to date 109·76. Public health good. 14 deaths of cattle in Kyouktan. Slight cattle-disease in Pagandoung. Transplanting finished. Season continues most favourable.
Tharrawaddy (Sept. 8th)	9·00	Rainfall to date 83·07. Public health good. 74 deaths of cattle in the Tapun and Minhla townships. Health of plough cattle good in all other townships, except Gyobingouk where slight disease prevails. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting progressing. Crops on 2,000 acres in Sangwey township reported as destroyed by floods, the damaged crops last reported are being replaced. Price of paddy from Rs. 90 to 95 per 100 baskets.
Tharrawaddy („ 15th)	2·70	Rainfall to date 85·77. Public health good. 17 deaths of cattle in Minhla and Tapun townships. Health of plough cattle in all the other townships good, except Gyobingouk where haint disease prevails. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting progressing. Crops on 600 acres in the Tapun township have been destroyed by floods, in the Sanjyo township the floods have subsided, and there is a prospect of the flooded land being successfully cultivated; about 200 acres of paddy land still remain under water. Price of paddy from Rs. 93 to 100 per 100 baskets.
Prome ...	1·24	Rainfall to date 39·32. One death from cholera in Mahathamman, otherwise public health good. Health of cattle good, except at Mahathamman, where 6 deaths from small-pox are reported. 150,360 acres ploughed and 1,42,370 planted. More rain wanted in the southern circle of Shweydonng township; reports from other townships favourable. Price of paddy Rs. 92 per 100 baskets.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
British Burma—contd.
Thonegwa ...	1.35	Rainfall to date 70.73. Two deaths from cholera in Donathyoo township, otherwise public health good. Health of cattle good. Ploughing nearly completed. Transplanting progressing. Young crops destroyed by floods in parts of Donathyoo and Thonegwa townships. Supply of seedlings sufficient. General appearance of young plants good, except in parts of the Donathyoo and Thonegwa townships. Transplanting wages one rupee or one basket of paddy per day. Price of paddy from Rs. 85 to 90 per 100 baskets.
Henzada ...	6.10	Rainfall to date 75.37. Three deaths from small-pox in Henzada township, otherwise public health good. Health of cattle good. Transplanting almost completed in the Henzada sub-division and progressing in the Myanoung sub-division. Seedlings and plants in good condition.
Thayetmyo ...	1.44	Rainfall to date 27.90. Public health good. 57 deaths of cattle in Myandeh sub-division. Crops still suffering from want of more rain, but there has been rain and prospects are improved.
Shwaygyin ...	3.10	Rainfall to date 122.95. Four deaths from small-pox in Mone circle, otherwise public health fair. 49 deaths of cattle in Mone circle, and cattle-disease in Kyonkhyi. Ploughing finished, except in flooded parts. Transplanting and sowing nearing completion. Price of paddy Rs. 76 per 100 baskets.
Tavoy ...	3.92	Rainfall to date 174.98. Public health and health of cattle good. General appearance of the plants good.
Mergui ...	.....	No report received.
General Remarks. —Rainfall still deficient compared with last year, but agricultural prospects on the whole favourable. Transplanting approaching completion. Sowings finished. Public health good. Cattle-disease in parts of Akab, Tharrawaddy, Bassein, Thayetmyo, and Shwaygyin and slight increase of mortality. Price of paddy continues steady.
Assam—(Sept. 19th)
Gauhati ...	.68	Weather hot. Transplanting of sali paddy in progress. Public health fair. Cattle-disease still in the interior.
Sylhet ...	11.19	Floods gone down. Crop prospects good. Public health fair except in Karimganj, where small-pox is bad.
Cachar ...	7.64	Weather warm with heavy rains at intervals. Transplanting of sali crops nearly finished; reaping of aus crops commenced. Public health good. Small-pox still reported from Hailakandi.
Dibrugarh ...	4.31	Weather showery. Transplanting of sali dhan finished. Public health good.
Mysore and Coorg—(Sept. 19th)
Bangalore ...	.20	Standing crops in fair condition. More rain needed. Prospects favourable.
Mysore ...	.10	Prospects promising. Standing crops generally good.
Mercara ...	.57	Cessation of monsoon on the 14th advantageous to crops. Cardamoms have ripened and the green coffee berries will shortly do so. Paddy seedlings have been planted out. The ragi crop is coming into ear. Public health good. Prices of food-grains low and almost stationary.
General Remarks. —Rainfall in districts from .10 to 1.50. Sowing operations continue. Standing crops generally in good condition. Public health in the province good. Prices—rice from 10 to 24 seers, ragi from 30 to 48 seers, and horse gram from 29 to 36 seers per rupee.
Berar &amp; Hyderabad—(Sept. 19th)
Amraoti ...	.60	A break in the weather during the week has benefited the crops. Wheat 16 and juari 26 seers per rupee.
Akola ...	.64	Crops in good condition.
Hyderabad ...	.20	Total rainfall from 1st January 24.83. Standing crops flourishing. Reaping of kharif crop commenced. Cholera broken out in one taluka. No cattle-disease. Prices—wheat 16, coarse rice 10½, white juari 24, yellow juari 27½, and tur 24 seers per current sicca rupee.
Central India States—(Sept. 19th)
Indore ...	Slight showers	Health fair. Prices of food-grains stationary.
Morar (Gwalior) ...	1.43	Prospects good. Cholera disappeared. Prices falling.
Satna ...	2.89	Prospects good.
Rutlam ...	.....	No report received.
Neemuch ...	5.86	Prospects and public health good.
Goona ...	11.76	Health and crops good. Prices stationary.
Bhopal ...	.....	No report received.
Agar ...	10.9	Crops abundant.
Sehore ...	12.34	Prospects and public health good.
Nowgong ...	1.28	Kharif prospects much improved. Prices falling. Grass safe.
Manpur (Bhopawar) ...	1.90	Health fair. Weather favourable. Crops promising.

Presidency or Province and District.		Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Rajputana—
Abu	(Sept. 19th)	·99	Break in weather with light clouds. Seasonable weather.
Sirohi	( „ 16th)	1·76	Water-supply and health good. Crop prospects fair.
Marwar	( „ 14th)	Jodhpore, ·05 ; good showers in districts.	Crops and grass reviving. Fresh sowings thriving. Prices stationary
Meywar	( „ 16th)	2·42	Water-supply very good. Prospects improved. Prices falling. Health good.
Harowti	( „ 15th)	Deoli, 1·73 ; Tonk, 2·71 ; Shahpura, 1·65 ; Kotah, 8·92.	Kharif materially improved. Rabi and grass need more rain. Prices further fallen. Health excellent, excepting 5 deaths from cholera at Kotah.
Jhallawar	...	.....	No report received.
Ajmere	( „ 18th)	.....	No rain. Prospects favourable. Maize harvest commencing. Health fair.
Jeypore	( „ „ )	·46	Prospects favourable. Health fair. Prices steady.
Blurtpore	...	.....	No report received.
Ulwur	(Sept. 15th)	1·57	Prospects improved. Rabi cultivation commenced. Prices falling. Health good. Good supply of water in tanks and wells.
Nepal—(Sept. 13th)
Katmandu	...	2·80 ; frequent rain in the last few days.	Constant and heavy clouds. Prospects good.

ABSTRACT SHOWING THE RESULT OF EMIGRATION FROM THE PORT OF CALCUTTA DURING THE MONTH OF MAY 1883.

No. I.—As to age and sex.

NATAL.				MAURITIUS.				TOTAL.		Grand Total.
Males.	Females.	Total.	Proportion of women to men.	Males.	Females.	Total.	Proportion of women to men.	Males.	Females.
Under 2 years	6	7	13	...	5	5	...	6	12	18
From 2 to 10 years	29	12	41	11	13	24	...	40	25	65
„ 10 „ 20 „	64	30	94	43	13	56	...	107	43	150
„ 20 „ 30 „	196	76	272	96	37	133	...	292	113	405
„ 30 „ 40 „	13	3	16	21	13	34	...	34	16	50
„ 40 „ 50 „	2	4	6	...	...	...	...	2	4	6
Above 50	...	...	...	...	1	1	...	...	1	1
GRAND TOTAL	310	132	442	171	82	253	...	481	214	695

No. II.—As to places whence emigrants come to Calcutta for embarkation.

NATAL.				MAURITIUS.				TOTAL.		Grand Total.
Males.	Females.	Total.	Proportion of women to men.	Males.	Females.	Total.	Proportion of women to men.	Males.	Females.
Orissa	...	...	...	...	2	2	4	2	2	4
Western Bengal	...	...	...	...	2	6	8	2	7	9
Central ditto	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	3	...	3
Eastern ditto	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Behar	58	21	79	69	37	106	...	127	58	185
North-Western Provinces	138	57	195	58	27	85	...	196	84	280
Oudh	39	12	51	27	9	36	...	66	21	87
Central India	13	7	20	3	...	3	...	13	7	23
Punjab	10	2	12	...	...	...	...	10	2	12
Nepal	13	1	14	10	1	11	...	23	2	25
Mixed, Madras & Bombay, &c.	36	31	67	...	...	...	...	36	31	67
GRAND TOTAL	310	132	442	171	82	253	...	481	214	695

No. III.—As to caste and religion.

				NATAL.			MAURITIUS.			TOTAL.
Brahmins, high caste	...	...	...	48	16	64	34	15	49	82	31	113
Agriculturist	...	...	...	81	27	108	53	27	80	134	54	188
Artisans	...	...	...	16	4	20	4	1	5	20	5	25
Low castes	...	...	...	119	66	185	50	24	74	169	90	259
Musulmans	...	...	...	42	19	61	30	15	45	72	34	106
Christians	...	...	...	4	...	4	...	...	...	4	...	4
GRAND TOTAL				310	132	442	171	82	253	481	214	695

Memo.

		Mala.	Female.	Total.
1. Hindoos	...	405	180	585
2. Musulmans	...	72	34	106
3. Christians	...	4	..	4
TOTAL		481	214	695

E. C. BUCK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART II.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, &c.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 17th March 1883.

From the 7th April next, till further notice, Parts I, IV, and V of the Gazette of India, and the Weather and Crop Reports, will be published at Simla. After the 31st March, all Notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts, should be addressed to the Officiating Publisher at Simla.

Parts IV and V of the Gazette of India, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Council, may be subscribed for separately from the other Parts of the Gazette. The annual subscription for the two Parts is Rs 5 per annum, payable in advance. When sent by post, Rs 2-8 per annum additional will be charged for postage.

Complaints regarding non-receipt of any number of the Gazette should be forwarded within a week after the day on which it is due.

Applications for the supply of the Gazette on the public service should be addressed to the Home Department.

By an order of Government, all subscriptions must be paid in advance.

	R	s.	p.
Subscription for Gazette and Supplement per annum	15	0	0
Postage	5	8	0
Subscription for Supplement only	6	0	0
Postage	3	0	0
For a single copy of the Gazette	0	8	0
For a single copy of the Supplement	0	4	0
Postage on single copies varies according to weight.

E. J. DEAN,

Publisher, Gazette of India.

HIGH COURT—Original Side.

NOTIFICATION.

Calcutta, the 15th September 1883.

The Honorable the Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal has appointed James George Cotton Minchin, Esq., of 2, Exchange Buildings, London, Solicitor, a Commissioner, within all parts of England, for the purpose of taking, under the law in force in British India, the acknowledgments of married women of deeds to be executed by them in respect of property in British India.

By Order,

R. BELCHAMBERS,

Registrar.

ORDERS BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR AND SYNDICATE OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

In consequence of unforeseen delay in printing Examination papers, the University Examinations in Arts of 1883 will be held on the undermentioned dates instead of the dates notified in the Gazette of India of August 11th and 18th, and Calcutta Gazette of August 15th:—

Entrance Examination and First Examination in Arts, on Monday, the 17th December, and following days.

Applications from Candidates for admission to the Entrance and First Arts Examinations must be lodged with the Registrar on or before the 17th November.

G. BELLETT,

Registrar.

SENATE HOUSE,

The 18th September 1883.

RESIDENT IN MYSORE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Bangalore, the 10th September 1883.

No. 16.—Under the provisions of Section 3 of the Bangalore Municipal Regulations of 1883, the Officiating Resident is pleased to direct that the Municipality of the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore be divided into six Divisions as follows :—

- No. I.—Ulsoor Division.
 „ II.—Southern Division.
 „ III.—East General Bazar Division.
 „ IV.—West General Bazar Division.
 „ V.—Cleveland Town Division.
 „ VI.—High Ground Division.

The boundaries of the abovenamed Divisions are specified below :—

No. I or Ulsoor Division.

Bounded on the North by the Station Boundary Line from Boundary Stone 1 to Stone 2.
 Bounded on the South by the Station Boundary Line from Boundary Stone 28 to Stone 29.
 Bounded on the East by the Station Boundary Line from Stone 29 running by Stones 30, 31, &c., 39 to Stone 1.
 Bounded on the West by Wheeler Road, the Feeder to the Ulsoor Tank, Kensington Road, Trinity Church, and thence by Stone 27 along Station Boundary Line to Stone 28.

No. II or Southern Division.

Bounded on the North by the South Parade Road.
 Bounded on the South by the Station Boundary Line from Stone 19 past Stones 20, &c., to Stone 27.
 Bounded on the East by the British Cavalry Barracks and Mounted Parade Ground.
 Bounded on the West by the Sydney, Sumpunghy, and Lal Bāgh Roads (i.e., along the Station Boundary past Boundary Stones 15, 16, 17, 18 to Stone 19).

Fort (included in No. II Division).

Bounded on the North by the Mysore Road.
 Bounded on the South by the Kankanhully Road.
 Bounded on the East by the Fort Gate to Oosoor Road.
 Bounded on the West by the Kankanhalli Road.

No. III or East General Bazar Division.

Bounded on the North by St. John's Church Road and Tank Lane.
 Bounded on the South by South Parade Road.
 Bounded on the East by Kensington Road.
 Bounded on the West by Narrainpillay Street, Main Guard Cross and Brigade Roads.

No. IV or West General Bazar Division.

Bounded on the North by St. John's Church Road.
 Bounded on the South by South Parade Road.
 Bounded on the East by Narrainpillay Street, Main Guard Cross and Brigade Roads.
 Bounded on the West by Cockburn Road, Broadway New Market Road, and road across the General Parade Ground.

No. V or Cleveland Town Division.

Bounded on the North by the Station Boundary Line from Boundary Stone 2 past Boundary Stones 3, 4, 5 to Stone 6.
 Bounded on the South by Miller's and St. John's Church Roads and Tank Lane.
 Bounded on the East by part of Wheeler Road and the village of Doddigunta and the feeder to the Ulsoor Tank.
 Bounded on the West by the Station Boundary Line from Stone 6 to 7 and then along "St. John's Road by Eadga" to Stone 8.

No. VI or High Ground Division.

Bounded on the North by "St. John's Road by Eadga" and Miller's Road.
 Bounded on the South by Cubbon Road.
 Bounded on the East by Cockburn Road, Broadway New Market Road, and road across the General Parade Ground.
 Bounded on the West by Miller's Road and its continuation along the High Ground up to Boundary Stone XI.

No. 17.—Under the provisions of Section 544 of Act X of 1882 (the Code of Criminal Procedure) the Resident in Mysore, with the sanction of the Government of India, has been pleased to pass the following rules for regulating the payment, on the part of Government, of the expenses of complainants and witnesses attending for the purpose of any enquiry, trial or other proceeding before the Criminal Courts in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore :—

- I.—The Criminal Courts are authorized to pay, at the rate specified in rule III, the expenses of complainants and witnesses in cases in which the prosecution is instituted or carried on by, or under the orders, or with the sanction of, the Government, or of any Judge, Magistrate or other public Officer, or when it shall appear to the Judge or Magistrate presiding over such Courts, to be directly in furtherance of the interests of public justice ; also in cases entered in Column V of Schedule II appended to the Code of Criminal Procedure as not bailable ; and in all cases in which the witnesses are compelled to attend by a Magistrate under the provisions of Section 540, Chapter XLVI, of the Code.
- II.—For the purposes of these rules, Europeans, East Indians and Natives shall be divided into three classes, and the Judge or Magistrate before whom they are required to appear, either as complainants or witnesses, shall be careful to fix the class with due regard to the station in life occupied by each complainant or witness.
- III.—Travelling allowance and batta shall be paid at the rates specified below :—

	EUROPEANS AND EAST INDIANS.			NATIVES.
	1st Class.	2nd Class.	2nd Class.	1st Class.	2nd Class.	3rd Class.
TRAVELLING ALLOW- ANCE—
By Rail . . .	1st Class fare.	2nd Class fare.	3rd Class fare.	1st Class fare.	2nd Class fare.	3rd Class fare.
By Road . . .	8 annas per mile.	4 annas per mile.	2 annas per mile.	6 annas per mile.	2 annas per mile.	2 annas per mile.
By Sea or Canal . .	Actual expenses of passage.			Actual expenses of passage.
Batta not to exceed .	3 Rupees per diem.	1 Rupee per diem.	8 annas per diem.	1 Rupee per diem.	8 annas per diem.	4 annas per diem.

- IV.—The distance for which mileage and the number of days for which batta should be allowed for the journey to and from the station at which the Court is held and for attendance at Court, shall be determined by the Judge or Magistrate ordering the payment in each case.
- V.—All bills for travelling allowance and batta to complainants and witnesses attending before the Courts of the Magistrates of the 2nd or 3rd Class shall be scrutinized by the District Magistrate before the charges included in them are finally passed.
- VI.—Whenever a Magistrate dismisses a case as frivolous or vexatious under Section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, no travelling allowance or batta shall be granted to the complainant in such case.

By Order,
H. WYLIE, Major,
Assistant to the Resident.

Statement of the Affairs of the Bank of Bengal for the week ending 18th September 1883.

LIABILITIES.			ASSETS.
	R	a. p.		R	a. p.
Capital paid-up . . . . .	2,00,00,000	0 0	Government Securities . . . . .	57,22,712	4 0
Reserve Fund . . . . .	35,10,581	4 4	Other authorized Investments . . . . .	56,55,602	8 0
	R	a. p.	Loans on Government and other authorized Securities . . . . .	1,23,39,206	6 2
Public Deposits at Head Office . . . . .	95,27,853	15 6	Accounts of Credit on Government and other authorized Securities . . . . .	49,45,436	13 4
Public Deposits at Branches . . . . .	1,85,70,567	9 2	Bills discounted and purchased . . . . .	2,10,04,448	11 2
Other Deposits at Head Office and Branches . . . . .	2,27,72,060	7 9	Balances with other Banks . . . . .	4,84,365	9 1
Bank Post Bills, &c. . . . .	4,14,818	2 10	Bullion . . . . .	90,263	4 9
Sundries . . . . .	11,45,512	8 11	Dead Stock . . . . .	11,94,571	12 11
			Stamps . . . . .	7,890	6 0
			Sundries . . . . .	6,11,317	3 1
				5,30,55,814	14 6
				R	a. p.
			Cash and Currency Notes at Head Office . . . . .	79,87,701	15 7
			Cash and Currency Notes at Branches . . . . .	1,48,97,877	2 5
				2,28,85,579	2 0
RUPES	7,59,41,394	0 6	RUPES	7,59,41,394	0 6

COMPTROLLER

No. 1530.—Account of Revenue and Expenditure of the Government of India for the first

N. B.—Amounts are converted into

	REVENUE.	Estimates, 1883-84.	April 1882.	April 1883.	COMPARISON OF TWO YEARS.
					Increase.	Decrease.
		£	£	£	£	£
I	Land Revenue*	22,338,200	1,511,552	1,569,278	57,726	...
II	Opium	9,200,000	762,891	739,841	...	23,060
III	Salt	6,167,000	599,968	499,022	...	100,946
IV	Stamps	3,427,200	287,850	315,251	27,401	...
V	Excise	3,623,300	299,037	315,402	16,365	...
VI	Provincial Rates	2,688,200	193,404	202,095	8,691	...
VII	Customs	1,255,100	138,461	150,300	11,839	...
VIII	Assessed Taxes	523,400	40,771	57,246	16,475	...
IX	Forest	933,300	16,101	45,702	29,601	...
X	Registration	280,400	21,592	23,157	1,565	...
XI	Tributes from Native States	701,000	56,705	51,805	...	4,900
XII	Post Office	1,010,900	81,369	83,020	1,651	...
XIII	Telegraph	514,100	31,609	39,394	7,785	...
XIV	Mint	102,000	20,763	5,591	...	15,172
XV	Law and Justice	645,000	36,837	41,383	4,546	...
XVI	Police	226,200	16,439	20,115	3,676	...
XVII	Marine	207,100	8,572	9,951	1,379	...
XVIII	Education	204,900	14,799	17,071	2,272	...
XIX	Medical	46,600	1,862	2,680	818	...
XX	Scientific and other Minor Departments.	70,000	1,574	4,114	2,540	...
XXI	Interest	646,000	140,872	137,179	...	3,693
XXII	Receipts in aid of Superannuation, &c.	193,500	7,028	7,052	24	...
XXIII	Stationery and Printing	57,200	3,935	2,982	...	953
XXIV	Miscellaneous	260,100	19,620	15,335	...	4,285
Productive Public Works.		55,320,700	4,313,611	4,354,966	41,355	...
XXV	State Railways (Gross Earnings)	2,730,500	166,893	265,775	98,882	...
XXVI	Guaranteed and Subsidized Railways (Net Traffic Receipts).	3,539,000	588,058	685,607	97,549	...
XXVII	East Indian Railway (Net Traffic Receipts).	2,907,000	253,525	281,144	27,619	...
XXVIII	Irrigation and Navigation (direct Receipts).	885,400	9,449	22,145	12,696	...
XXIX	Madras Irrigation and Canal Company (Net Traffic Receipts).	...	...	...	...	...
Unproductive Public Works.
XXXI	State Railways	191,900	...	6,723	6,723	...
XXXII	Subsidized Railways	10,000	...	...	...	...
XXXIII	Irrigation and Navigation	141,300	1,617	7,426	5,809	...
XXXIV	Military Works	39,200	...	1,307	1,307	...
XXXV	Civil Buildings, Roads and Services	463,900	27,982	36,908	8,926	...
XXXVI	Army	824,800	62,852	58,887	...	3,965
XXXVII	Military Operations in Afghanistan	...	...	...	...	...
	Do. do. in Egypt	...	...	269	269	...
		67,053,700	5,423,987	5,721,157	297,170	...
England, including Army, Public Works, &c.		220,300	10,476	17,990	7,514	...
GRAND TOTAL		67,274,000	5,434,463	5,739,147	304,684	...

* Includes Land Revenue due to Irrigation, which cannot be separated in the Monthly Accounts.

GENERAL'S OFFICE.

month of the year 1883-84, as compared with the corresponding period of 1882-83.
sterling at R10 to the pound sterling.

	EXPENDITURE.	Estimates, 1883-84.	April 1882.	April 1883.	COMPARISON OF TWO YEARS*
					Increase.	Decrease.
		£	£	£	£	£
1	Interest on Ordinary Debt† . . . . .	3,713,100	407,710	376,757	...	30,953
2	Do. on Deposits . . . . .	437,400	19,626	3,380	...	16,246
3	Refunds and Drawbacks . . . . .	195,900	26,860	14,366	...	12,494
4	Assignments and Compensations . . . . .	1,246,100	98,935	138,343	39,408	...
5	Land Revenue . . . . .	3,210,800	227,132	240,984	13,852	...
6	Opium (including cost of production) . . . . .	2,161,300	734,719	381,790	...	352,929
7	Salt ( do. do. ) . . . . .	546,300	28,707	33,852	5,145	...
8	Stamps . . . . .	79,600	6,525	6,796	271	...
9	Excise . . . . .	94,400	9,845	8,714	...	1,131
10	Provincial Rates . . . . .	51,100	1,624	1,629	5	...
11	Customs . . . . .	143,700	17,784	11,217	...	6,567
12	Assessed Taxes . . . . .	14,000	487	594	107	...
13	Forests . . . . .	671,500	10,753	38,733	27,980	...
14	Registration . . . . .	186,300	14,603	15,701	1,098	...
15	Post Office . . . . .	1,120,800	86,297	87,692	1,395	...
16	Telegraph . . . . .	543,600	34,963	39,027	4,064	...
17	Mint . . . . .	71,200	6,181	6,060	...	121
18	General Administration . . . . .	1,315,900	107,263	101,628	...	5,635
19	Law and Justice . . . . .	3,345,100	255,023	261,489	6,466	...
20	Police . . . . .	2,708,000	207,048	213,643	6,595	...
21	Marine (including river Navigation) . . . . .	378,700	25,717	27,001	1,284	...
22	Education . . . . .	1,199,800	81,561	82,926	1,365	...
23	Ecclesiastical . . . . .	167,300	13,934	12,894	...	1,040
24	Medical . . . . .	715,200	51,374	57,681	6,307	...
25	Political . . . . .	415,100	29,115	33,419	4,304	...
26	Scientific and other Minor Departments . . . . .	475,000	34,273	43,579	9,306	...
27	Territorial and Political Pensions . . . . .	664,100	63,829	56,047	...	7,782
28	Civil Furlough and Absentee Allowances . . . . .	1,500	253	...	...	253
29	Superannuation Allowances and Pensions . . . . .	756,300	129,806	126,867	...	2,989
30	Stationery and Printing . . . . .	329,000	26,355	27,480	1,125	...
31	Miscellaneous . . . . .	334,900	21,952	19,964	...	1,988
32	Famine Relief . . . . .	12,500	180	8	...	172
33	Protective Works—Railways . . . . .	1,012,500	21,322	10,951	...	10,371
34	Do. do. Irrigation . . . . .	343,300	25,278	20,048	...	5,230
35	Reduction of Debt . . . . .	131,700	...	...	...	...
51	Exchange on transactions with London . . . . .	3,548,000	208,851	439,553	230,702	...
	Productive Public Works.	32,344,000	3,035,885	2,940,813	...	95,072
36	State Railways (Working and Maintenance) . . . . .	1,572,850	94,175	135,470	41,295	...
37	Guaranteed and Subsidized Railways (Interest and Profits) . . . . .	588,500	8,452	5,236	...	3,216
38	East Indian Railway (Interest and Profits) . . . . .	188,400	...	...	...	...
39	Irrigation and Navigation (Working and Maintenance) . . . . .	549,300	9,585	29,381	19,796	...
40	Madras Irrigation & Canal Co. (Interest, &c.) . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...
	Unproductive Public Works.
42	State Railways (Capital Account) . . . . .	510,400	23,242	17,803	...	5,439
43	Do. (Working and Maintenance) . . . . .	184,800	...	9,218	9,218	...
44	Subsidized Railways . . . . .	71,300	2,344	3,713	1,369	...
	Southern Mahratta Railway . . . . .	84,800	...	...	...	...
45	Frontier Railways . . . . .	67,500	24,679	16,084	...	8,595
46	Irrigation and Navigation . . . . .	802,900	36,796	51,470	17,674	...
47	Military Works . . . . .	999,600	...	45,191	45,191	...
48	Civil Buildings, Roads and Services . . . . .	4,202,000	97,353	200,593	103,240	...
49	Army . . . . .	12,018,800	987,196	965,888	...	21,308
50	Military Operations in Afghanistan . . . . .	...	10	...	...	10
	Do. do. in Egypt . . . . .	...	...	3,694	3,694	...
	England, including Army, Public Works, Guaranteed Interest, &c.	54,184,200 14,132,100	4,319,717 2,009,502	4,427,554 2,275,232	107,837 265,730	...
	Productive Public Works—Capital Expenditure.	68,316,300	6,329,219	6,702,786	373,567	...
	In India—
52	State Railways . . . . .	1,583,000	21,261	60,310	39,049	...
53	East Indian Railway . . . . .	424,000	53,365	16,538	...	36,827
54	Irrigation and Navigation . . . . .	955,500	30,172	35,388	5,216	...
55	Miscellaneous Public Improvements . . . . .	23,000	1,508	1,184	...	324
	In England—
	State Railways . . . . .	812,000	27,390	62,222	34,832	...
	Irrigation and Navigation . . . . .	22,600	...	...	...	...
	East Indian Railway . . . . .	...	...	38,675	38,675	...
	GRAND TOTAL	72,136,400	6,462,915	6,917,103	454,188	...

† Includes Interest on Debt incurred for Productive Public Works, which cannot be separated in the Monthly Accounts.

STATEMENT of Government Promissory Notes enforced for payment of Interest in London, under deduction of amount re-transferred to India, and outstanding in the Books of the Bank of Bengal on the 15th September 1883.

PARTICULARS.	4 PER CENT. LOANS					4½ PER CENT. LOANS				GRAND TOTAL.
	3½ PER CENT. TRANSFERRED FROM LOAN OF 1853-54	OF 1852-53.	OF 1855-56.	OF 1849-53.	OF 1864-55.	Transfer of 1865.	Reduced ½ per cent. 4 per cent. Loan of 1879.	Reduced Loan of 1891.	TOTAL.
Balance of 31st August 1883	54,100	13,02,720	29,53,200	2,39,68,400	1,02,25,800	2,53,32,237	2,07,35,290	...	9,05,16,557	30,62,62,257
Add—
Amount enforced at Madras between 1st and 15th September 1883	...	...	2,000	11,000	8,000	14,000	17,000	...	52,000	86,000
Amount enforced at Bombay between 1st and 15th September 1883	...	...	...	1,000	2,000	1,000	...	...	4,000	4,000
Amount enforced at Calcutta between 1st and 15th September 1883	...	...	700	2,68,400	7,300	14,29,300	52,700	...	17,57,300	18,39,300
Defect—
Amount written off in the London Registers	...	7,983	...	2,07,000	10,000	12,500	1,43,900	...	3,81,283	5,81,783
Balance on 15th September 1883	54,100	13,04,703	29,55,900	2,40,41,800	1,02,31,100	2,67,62,937	2,68,61,000	...	9,19,47,664	20,78,09,764

NOTE.—From 9th June 1867 to 15th July 1883, enforced from India 4,796 lakhs; re-transferred from London, 4,072 lakhs.

"	16th July 1883 to 31st "	"	"	"	3	"	"	"	7
"	1st Aug. " to 15th Aug. "	"	"	"	4	"	"	"	13
"	16th " to 31st "	"	"	"	3	"	"	"	6
"	1st Sept. " to 15th Sept. "	"	"	"	19	"	"	"	5
					4,925 lakhs.				4,108 lakhs.
					4,103 "

Balance against India 722 lakhs.

PUBLIC DEBT OFFICE,
BANK OF BENGAL;
Calcutta, the 17th September 1883.

R. HARDIE,
Secretary and Treasurer.

MAPS OF THE SURVEY OF INDIA,

Published at the Offices of the Surveyor General of India, Calcutta and Dehra Dún, for the Quarter ending 30th June 1883.

Agents :

Calcutta,—*Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co. (for sales only).	Rangoon,—Curator, Government Book Depôt.
Allahabad,—Curator, Government Books, North-Western Provinces.	Rajkot,—Mr. Narainjee Sunderjee, for maps of Kattywar only.
Nagpur,—Curator, Government Books, Central Provinces.	Ahmedabad,—The Huzoor Deputy Collector, for maps of Guzerat only.
Lahore,—Curator, Government Central Book Depôt.	London,—*Messrs. Allen & Co., Waterloo Place (for sales only).
Madras,—*Messrs. Higginbotham & Co. (for sales only).	Do. *Mr. Edward Stanford, 6, Charing Cross (for sales only).
Poona,—Superintendent, Government Photo-zinco-graphic Department.	Simla,—*Messrs. Williams & Co., Ripon House (for sales only).

All published maps are also sold at the Office of the Surveyor General of India, Calcutta, by *Mr. J. N. T. Wood, for cash prepaid (for sales only).

* These Agents cannot issue maps free of charge on the Public Service.

N.B.—Maps are issued free of charge only on the Public Service. The cost of mounting maps, packing and postage of parcels, must be borne by applicants themselves. Lists of all newly published maps are periodically notified in the Gazettes of India and of local Governments.

Description.	Size.	PRICE OF MAP UNMOUNTED PER SHEET OR COPY.
		Uncolored.	Colored.
GENERAL AND MISCELLANEOUS MAPS.
Scale 1 Inch = 128 Miles.
India, No. 2, with Hills, 9th Edition . . . . .	Imperial . . .	1 0	1 4
India, No. 2(a), Skeleton (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	1 0	1 4
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Northern Afghanistan, Sheets Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 & 6 . . . . .	Double Elephant . . .	1 0	...
Scale 1 Inch = 2 Miles.
Northern Afghanistan, Sheet No. 7 . . . . .	Ditto . . .	1 0	...
Northern Afghanistan, Sheet No. 8 . . . . .	Ditto . . .	2 0	...
PROVINCIAL MAPS.
Scale 1 Inch = 8 Miles.
Bengal, Sheets Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, & 14 (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Imperial . . .	1 0	1 4
DIVISIONAL MAPS.
BENGAL.
Scale 1 Inch = 16 Miles.
Presidency Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	½ Sheet Imperial . . .	0 4	0 6
Burdwan Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	0 4	0 6
Rajshahie and Kooch Behar Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	0 4	0 6
Patna Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	0 4	0 6
Dacca Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	0 4	0 6
Bhaugulpur Division (corrected to 1883) . . . . .	Ditto . . .	0 4	0 6
DISTRICT MAPS.
NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.
Scale 1 Inch = 8 Miles.
Muttra District (Gazetteer Map) . . . . .	Foolscap . . .	0 4	...
Scale 1 Inch = 4 Miles.
Jaunpur District, Preliminary Edition . . . . .	½ Sheet D. E. . . .	0 8	0 10
CENTRAL PROVINCES.
Scale 1 Inch = 4 Miles.
Raipur District . . . . .	2 Sheets D. E. . . .	2 0	2 8

MAPS OF THE SURVEY OF INDIA —continued.

Description.	Size.	PRICE OF MAP UNMOUNTED PER SHEET OR COPY.
		Uncolored.	Colored.
PLANS OF CANTONMENTS AND CITIES.
ASSAM.
Scale 2½ Inches = 1 Mile.
Shillong Sanitarium, Sheets 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 11 & 12 . . . . .	Atlas . . . . .	R a. 1 0	R a. 1 4
BELUCHISTAN.
Scale 1 Inch = 500 Feet.
Plan of Sibi . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 0	1 4
CENTRAL INDIA AGENCY.
Scale 6 Inches = 1 Mile.
Plan of Jaora and Environs . . . . .	Double Royal . . . . .	1 0	1 4
PUNJAB.
Scale 12 Inches = 1 Mile.
Kohat City and Cantonments . . . . .	Double Elephant . . . . .	1 0	1 4
Scale 3 Inches = 1 Mile.
Simla and Jutog . . . . .	½ Sheet D. E. . . . .	1 0	1 4
RAJPUTANA.
Scale 6 Inches = 1 Mile.
Banswara and Environs . . . . .	Atlas . . . . .	1 0	1 4
INDIAN ATLAS SHEETS.
Scale 1 Inch = 4 Miles
Indian Atlas, Sheet No. 54. Parts of Hosungabad, Beitul, Khandesh, &c. (Central Provinces & Bombay Presidency) . . . . .	Double Elephant . . . . .	2 0	2 0
Indian Atlas, Quarter Sheet, No. 66 S. W. Parts of Bijnor, Kumaon, and British Ghurwal (North-West Provinces) . . . . .	½ Sheet D. E. . . . .	0 12	0 12
MAPS OF STANDARD SIZE.
BENGAL.
Scale 4 Inches = 1 Mile.
† Killa Khorda, Pooree District, Sheets Nos. 4 to 34, & 36, 37, 38, 45, 46 & 53 . . . . .	Atlas . . . . .	1 0	1 4
NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
North-West Provinces Survey, Sheets Nos. 31E., 32E., 33E., & 34. Parts of Moradabad and Budaun Districts . . . . .	Double Elephant . . . . .	1 8	1 12
North-West Provinces Survey, Sheets Nos. 47, 48, 50, 51, 52, 63, 64, 68, 69, 70, 84 & 85. Parts of Moradabad, Bijnor, Budaun, and Tarai Districts . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 8	1 12
North-West Provinces Survey, Sheets Nos. 109, 110, 111, 124, 125, & 140. Parts of Banda District . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 8	1 12
* Jaunsar Bawar, (Dehra Dún District) . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 12	2 0
OUDH PROVINCE.
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Oudh Survey, Sheet No. 146. Part of District Bahraich . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 8	1 12
Oudh Survey, Sheet No. 166. Part of District Partabgurh . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	1 8	1 12

* Published at the G. T. Branch Head Quarters Office, Dehra Dún.
† These maps take the place of the Standard Sheets, although not published on the actual standard size.

MAPS OF THE SURVEY OF INDIA —continued.

Description.	Size.	PRICE OF MAP UNMOUNTED PER SHEET OR COPY.
		Uncolored.	Colored.
MAPS OF STANDARD SIZE —contd.
ASSAM PROVINCE.
Scale 1 Inch = 2 Miles.
*North-East Frontier Topographical Survey, Sheets No. 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 95, 96 & 97. Parts of Burma & Manipur	Imperial . .	0 8	0 10
*North-East Frontier Topographical Survey, Sheets Nos. 51, 52, 53, & 55. Parts of South Sylhet and Hill Tipperah . . . . .	Double Elephant . .	1 0	1 4
Scale 2 Inches = 1 Mile.
*North-East Frontier Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 2. Part of South Sylhet	Ditto . .	1 8	1 12
*North-East Frontier Topographical Survey, Sheets Nos. 4, 5, 6 & 8. Part of South Sylhet . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
RAJPUTANA AGENCY.
Scale 1 Inch = 2 Miles.
Rajputana Topographical Survey, Half Degree Sheets Nos. XIX S., XX N. & XX S. Parts of Jodhpur, Jeysulmere, and Bickaneer . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Gwalior and Central India Topographical Survey, Sheets Nos. 85 & 95, comprising Jodhpur, Odeypur, and Sirohee . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
PUNJAB PROVINCE.
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Dera Ismail Khan District, Sheets Nos. 18, 19, 23 & 31 . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 8	1 12
BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.
Scale 2 Inches = 1 Mile.
Deccan Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 4. Parts of District Nasik .	4 Sheets D. E. . .	4 0	5 0
Deccan and Konkan Survey, Sheet No. 26 N. W., Districts Poona and Thana . . . . .	Double Elephant . .	1 0	1 4
Deccan and Konkan Survey, Sheet No. 46. Parts of Satara, Kolaba, and Ratnagiri . . . . .	4 Sheets D. E. . .	4 0	5 0
Deccan and Konkan Survey, Sheet No. 76. Districts Poona, Thana, and Kolaba . . . . .	Ditto . .	4 0	4 0
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Deccan and Konkan Survey, Sheet No. 76 Parts of Districts Poona, Thana and Kolaba . . . . .	Double Elephant . .	1 8	1 12
Scale 2 Inches = 1 Mile.
†Guzerat Survey, Sheet No. 17, Section 2. Part of Surat District . .	Ditto . .	1 4	1 8
Scale 4 Inches = 1 Mile.
†Guzerat Survey, Sheet No. 49, Section 7. (Dang Forest) . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 12	2 0
†Guzerat Survey, Sheet No. 49, Section 15. (Dang Forest) . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 12	2 0
MYSORE.
Scale 1 Inch = 1 Mile.
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheets Nos. 10 & 11. Parts of Chitaldroog and Shimoga Districts . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 14. Part of Chitaldroog District . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 15. Parts of Chitaldroog and Tumkur Districts . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 17. Part of Shimoga District .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 25. Part of Kadur District .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4
Mysore Topographical Survey, Sheet No. 30. Parts of Hasan, Kadur, and Tumkur Districts . . . . .	Ditto . .	1 0	1 4

* These maps take the place of the Standard Sheets, although not published on the actual standard size.
† Published at the G. T. Branch Head Quarter's Office, Dehra Dún.

MAPS OF THE SURVEY OF INDIA —concluded.

Description.	Size.	PRICE OF MAP UNMOUNTED PER SHEET OR COPY.
		Uncolored.	Colored.
INDEX MAPS.
Garo, Khasi, and Naga Hills, and North-East Frontier . . . . .	Foolscap . . . . .	R a. 0 4	R a. 0 4
Scale 1 Inch = 12 Miles.
Pooree and Cattack. Index to Sheets of— . . . . .	Ditto . . . . .	0 4	0 4
Scale 1 Inch = 32 Miles.
British Burmah. Index to the Sheets of— . . . . .	Imperial . . . . .	0 8	0 8
TECHNICAL CHARTS.
Scale 1 Inch = 4 Miles.
*Eastern Sind Meridional Series. Preliminary Chart of —. Seasons 1879-80 and 1880-81, between Latitudes 26°-44' and 28°-20', and between Longitudes 69°-42' and 70°-20' . . . . .	Double Elephant . . . . .	1 0	...

* Published at the G. T. Branch Head Quarters Office, Dehra Dún.

J. E. SANDEMAN, Major, S.C.,
for Offg. Surveyor General of India.

SURVEY OF INDIA OFFICE,
Calcutta, the 18th August 1883.

EXAMINER OF FUND ACCOUNTS.

Calcutta, the 19th September 1883.

Statement of Deposits made with the Military Orphan Fund in trust for Soldiers' Children.

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				R a. p.
Prior to 1842 .	Collins, —, Sergeant . . . . .		Two children . . . . .	157 14 1
" .	Lee, E., Corporal . . . . .		Two children . . . . .	111 9 6
" .	Smith, Henry, Sergeant . . . . .		Elizabeth . . . . .	828 0 0
" .	Smith, D., Sergeant Major . . . . .		Margaret . . . . .	78 6 5
" .	Story, —, Sergeant . . . . .		Thomas . . . . .	117 5 4
" .	MacConnell, Sergeant . . . . .		John . . . . .	77 15 3
" .	Rutherford, Sergeant . . . . .		Margaret . . . . .	138 10 8
" .	Hewetson, William, Gunner . . . . .		John . . . . .	47 5 7
" .	Taylor, John, Private . . . . .		John . . . . .	214 11 11
" .	Conroy, Peter, Corporal . . . . .		Thomas . . . . .	274 14 6
" .	McCullum, —, Conductor . . . . .		John . . . . .	854 6 10
" .	Gordon, James . . . . .	59th Foot	James . . . . .	589 2 2
" .	Casey, Jeremiah . . . . .	87th "	Daniel . . . . .	109 12 4
" .	Corbolly, Thomas, Private . . . . .	59th "	Samuel . . . . .	62 12 3
" .	Cassidy, —, Corporal . . . . .		John . . . . .	61 3 9
" .	Hyde, Henry, Conductor . . . . .		Thomas . . . . .	187 1 10
" .	Hodgkinson, E., Troop Sergeant Major . . . . .	11th Dragoons	William . . . . .	64 8 0
" .	Anderson, William, Corporal . . . . .	H.C. 1st En. Regt.	Mary Anne Margaret . . . . .	124 11 6
" .	White, W., Private . . . . .	3rd Buffs . . . . .	George and Mary Anne . . . . .	13 13 9
" .	Minogue, T., Private . . . . .	3rd " . . . . .	Thomas . . . . .	23 11 0
" .	Taylor, John, Bombardier . . . . .		Elizabeth . . . . .	43 0 0
" .	Neal, James, Private . . . . .	59th Foot . . . . .	James . . . . .	43 0 0
" .	Sherrock, J., Corporal . . . . .		Joseph . . . . .	160 0 0
" .	Moore, Bombardier . . . . .		Dorothy . . . . .	5 9 5
" .	Lawson, Henry, Laboratory Sergeant . . . . .		George . . . . .	11 8 2
" .	Creighton, James, Corporal . . . . .	13th L. Infy. . . . .	Mary Ann . . . . .	16 12 0
" .	McCoy, —, Sub-Conductor . . . . .		John and George . . . . .	958 3 2
" .	Long, R., Sergeant . . . . .	Allahabad Magazine Establishment.	Ann and Robert D. . . . .	137 3 9
" .	Baker, H., Gunner . . . . .	4th Co., 3rd Bn. Arty.	James . . . . .	32 1 4

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				R. a. p.
Prior to 1842— contd.	Hills, —, Gunner . . .	1st Co., 3rd R. A. . .	Sophia . . .	30 1 1
"	Burns, James, Gunner . . .	Artillery . . .	Hannah . . .	10 5 9
"	McKenny, R., Bombardier . . .	1st Co., 4th Bn. Arty. . .	Ann Eliza . . .	134 6 5
"	Smith, J., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Margaret . . .	6 6 5
"	Byrne, F., Hospital Sergeant . . .	2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Charles . . .	123 13 4
"	Flynn, J., Gunner . . .	3rd Troop, 1st Bde. H. Arty. . .	Elizabeth . . .	6 1 4
"	Fagan, J., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 3rd Bn. Arty. . .	Mary and James . . .	11 12 9
"	Johnson, C., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	William . . .	3 0 6
"	Twoomey, M., Gunner . . .	4th Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	Michael, William, and Margaret. . .	21 2 11
"	Ahern, William, Gunner . . .	4th Co., 2nd B. Arty. . .	John . . .	65 11 9
"	McCormick, J., Gunner . . .	4th Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Bernard . . .	116 10 9
"	Gavin, J., Gunner . . .	2nd Co., 3rd Bn. Arty. . .	Thomas and James . . .	189 3 6
"	Bryan, D., Sergeant . . .	Sappers and Miners . . .	Mortimer . . .	12 10 11
"	Reid, —, Sergeant . . .	44th Foot . . .	Eleanor and Eunice . . .	68 6 5
"	South, John, Sergeant . . .	44th Foot . . .	Elizabeth Martha . . .	310 0 0
"	Cunningham, Mathew, Private . . .	44th Foot . . .	Michael . . .	37 14 6
"	Blyth, John, Conductor . . .	44th Foot . . .	Children (names not recorded). . .	12 12 3
"	Smith, T., Sergeant . . .	20th N. I. . .	Esther and Amelia . . .	23 15 0
"	Pierce, Qr. Mr. Sergt. . .	20th N. I. . .	Thomas . . .	711 15 2
"	Driver, J., Sergt. Major (Not Recorded) . . .	20th N. I. . .	Robert . . .	141 7 1
June 29, 1853	Canty, John, Bombardier . . .	3rd Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	Bryan, Margaret and Wm. . .	53 8 3
June 29, 1849	(Not recorded) . . .	3rd Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	John (died 11th May 1842) . . .	272 2 8
"	Fatterson, John Sergt. . .	1st Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	Daly Robert . . .	23 9 1
"	Davis, D., Sergt. . .	4th Troop, 1st Bde., H. A. . .	William H. . .	26 7 10
"	" . . .	4th Troop, 1st Bde., H. A. . .	Thomas . . .	23 15 2
Dec. 28, 1842	Wilson, T., Bazar Sergt. . .	4th Troop, 2nd B. H. A. . .	Sophia . . .	132 9 0
Mar. 24, 1843	Nowlon, L., Farrier Sergt. . .	4th Troop, 2nd B. H. A. . .	Ellen . . .	112 9 0
Apl. 3, "	Farrell, James, Gunner . . .	2nd Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Charlotte . . .	4 2 8
"	Roach, Edward, Private . . .	1st En. Lt. Infy. . .	David and Austel . . .	7 13 3
Mar. 9, 1844	Sheeham, B., Gunner . . .	3rd Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	John and Patrick . . .	2 1 8
June 21, "	Evans, George, Sergt. . .	1st Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Mary Ann and Catherine . . .	19 14 9
Sep. 19, "	Andrews, —, Private . . .	44th Foot . . .	George . . .	200 0 0
Nov. 16, 1844	Gale, —, Private . . .	10th Foot . . .	John Thomas . . .	28 12 0
" 20, "	Sullivan, John, Bombardier . . .	1st Co., 2nd B. Arty. . .	John . . .	130 0 0
Jan. 6, 1845	Dawe, John, Gunner . . .	3rd Co. " " . . .	William Henry . . .	55 12 9
" 6, "	Barnes, Peter, Corporal . . .	1st Co. " " . . .	Mary Ann . . .	64 2 11
" 6, "	Monaghan, Michael, Sergt. . .	1st Co. " " . . .	James . . .	156 12 5
" 15, "	Godfrey, —, Sergt. Major . . .	6th B. Arty. . .	Harriett M. and James . . .	31 14 1
Feb. 14, "	Fry, —, Bugle Major . . .	68th Regt. N. I. . .	James . . .	12 6 9
" 14, "	Hannoo, John, Drummer . . .	2nd B. H. A. . .	Mary . . .	28 8 3
July 9, "	Meaney, John, Sergt. Major . . .	2nd T., 3rd Bde., H. A. . .	Henry and James . . .	292 15 8
" 9, "	Murphy, Thomas, Bombardier . . .	4th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Ellen . . .	77 4 11
" 9, "	Tate, William, Staff Sergt. . .	3rd Co. " " . . .	Catherine Ann . . .	167 15 5
" 9, "	Daley, Owen, Gunner . . .	3rd Co. " " . . .	Owen and William . . .	14 3 1
" 7, "	Hay, A., Sergt. Major . . .	3rd Co. " " . . .	Thomas . . .	101 5 4
Sep. 1, "	Ryan, —, Sergt. . .	5th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Julia B. and George J. . .	120 13 0
Jan. 7, 1846	Everett, Richard, Bombardier . . .	5th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Caroline and Eliza . . .	28 10 10
Aug. 8, "	McEnemy, Thomas, Conductor . . .	5th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Hannah . . .	152 0 9
"	Glasseen, John, Corporal . . .	5th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Ellen Sarah . . .	66 10 3
"	Ridley, Henry, Gunner . . .	5th Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Henry . . .	34 9 3
Oct. 16, "	Fowles, John, Sergt. . .	Artillery . . .	Sarah Terrence and James . . .	3 2 0
" 16, "	Lewis, Thomas, Gunner . . .	Artillery . . .	Thomas . . .	20 5 3
July 19, 1847	Lunn, Adam, Farrier . . .	Artillery . . .	Adam T. and John . . .	79 14 0
" "	Clarke, William, Bombardier . . .	1st T., 3rd B., H. Arty. . .	Children's names not recorded. . .	104 10 8
"	Prince, W., Sergt. . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Ditto ditto . . .	125 15 10
" 6, 1847	Dobbins, Francis, Gunner . . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Martha . . .	83 3 5
Jan. 11, 1848	Byrnes, —, Corporal . . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Maria . . .	59 0 0
" 7, "	Willford, C., Qr.-Mr. Sergt. . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Ann Louisa and Mary . . .	200 15 0
June 26, "	Mathews, M., Sub-Conductor . . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Rachael . . .	12 2 2
July 6, "	Braithwaite, W., Staff Sergt. . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	C. William and William H. . .	148 3 5
Jan. 13, 1849	Doherty, Michael, Sergt. . .	1st " 1st B., H. Arty. . .	Oliver H. and Henrietta . . .	77 8 10
May 9, "	Sheehan, D., Private . . .	2nd En. Regt. . .	James . . .	36 5 6
June 2, "	Moore, Benjamin, Private . . .	1st En. B. F. . .	Sarah C. . .	9 8 4
" 2, "	Crowley, Charles, Private . . .	" " . . .	John . . .	7 6 1
Oct. 12, "	Deare, W., Conductor . . .	" " . . .	Emiline . . .	50 0 0
Nov. 21, "	Moget, —, Sergt. Major . . .	" " . . .	George . . .	69 14 4
Feb. 18, 1850	Peal, Robert, Sergt. . .	3rd Co., 1st B. Arty. . .	Robert Henry . . .	69 7 10
" 18, "	Boote, Daniel, Gunner . . .	1st Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	James . . .	26 3 0
June 29, "	Uniaek, Patrick, Sergt. . .	1st Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	John . . .	29 15 0
July 18, "	Barker, J., Sergt. . .	1st Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	William Robert . . .	97 14 2
"	Sheehan, P., Gunner . . .	Artillery . . .	Patrick . . .	23 5 6
Oct. 29, "	Lees, James, Corporal . . .	2nd En. Regt. . .	Elizabeth . . .	25 14 6
April 15, 1851	Mulvey, Robert, Corporal . . .	2nd E. Regt. . .	Richard . . .	28 1 11
Mar. 2, 1852	O'Hanlon, Patrick, Qr. Mr. Sergt. . .	2nd E. Regt. . .	Patrick and Catherine Mary . . .	277 7 10
Sep. 14, 1852	Wade, Wm., Sergt. . .	1st Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	Sarah Ann, William Henry, Elizabeth, Esther, Jane, Wallis, and Ann. . .	72 9 5
Nov. 4, "	Hodgins, Adam, Gunner . . .	2nd Co., 5th. B. Arty. . .	William . . .	9 11 11

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				R a. p.
Feb. 1, 1853	Edwards, Michael, Gunner.	2nd Co., 5th B. Arty.	Jane and Bridget	36 5 9
Apl. 21, "	Staples, Edward, Sergt.	Sappers and Miners	E. W. H.	97 2 6
Sep. 13, "	Brown, Michael, Sergt.	Arracan Bn.	John	49 10 3
Dec. 2, "	Prendergast, J., Sub-Conductor	Ferozepore Magazine Establishment.	Eliza, Margaret Sarah, and Robert.	181 8 8
Jan. 24, 1854	Galway, Robert, Bombardier	1st Co., 2nd B. Arty.	William	206 1 2
Oct. 16, 1848	Butcher, H., Sergt. Major	Sirmoor Bn.	Johanna, Frederick, and David Edwin.	99 6 1
Jan. 18, 1855	Monrowd, George, Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	James, Frederick, Alfred, Georgiana, and Mary (died 15th June 1857).	184 14 9
Sep. 24, "	Franks, G., Bazar Sergt.		Mary	566 3 10
Oct. 15, 1857	Earle, Edward, Sergt.	Calcutta Town Guard	William Edward	209 14 0
Mar. 30, 1860	Eldridge, James, Riding Master	7th Lt. Cavy.	Walter Benjamin	495 4 6
Apl. 27, "	Rabbitt, Thomas, Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	George Thomas, Sarah Ann, Walter, and Edward William.	47 15 4
June 23, "	Smith, Joseph, Magazine Sergt.	Ditto	Step-children and legatee Isabella Yates and John Andrew Armstrong (died 28th October 1860).	235 8 8
Dec. 1860	McDonnell, John, Private	97th Foot	Charles	25 15 6
Feb. 13, 1861	Scott, William, Sergt.	2nd Frs.	William, Annie and Emma	214 2 9
Apl. 27, "	Byrne, John, Conductor		Catherine and Lawrence Andrew.	85 0 0
May 17, "	McConnel, Thos., Gunner	1st Co., 6th B. Arty.	Alice and Charlotte	167 7 0
Mar. 20, 1862	McDonnell, John, Sergt.	Ordnance Dept.	Maria and Catherine, and Edwin Joseph and Henry John.	356 3 6
	Pope, John, Sergt.	Commissariat Dept.
June "	Keddie, J., Private	2nd En. B. Frs.	Jane and James	86 0 0
July 26, "	Lockhart, Hugh, Sergt.	42nd Foot	Georgina Sherrieff, Elizabeth, and Alexina Anderson.	600 0 0
Jan. 27, 1863	Briggs, George, Sub-Conductor		Hannah and Mariah	73 5 0
July 22, "	Lowton, William, Color Sergt.	24th Foot	William Joseph	152 14 2
Jan. 1864	Jones, John, Gunner	G. Battery, 22nd B. R. Arty.	Henrietta Dalzell	39 5 10
Mar. 10, "	Anderson, William, Gunner	5th B., 25th B. R. A.	Duncan	35 4 11
May 19, "
July 18, 1865	Rowland, J., Private	2nd Dragoon Guards	Sophia M., Elizabeth Ann, (married) and George Edward.	12 0 0
Sep. 11, "	Blower, P., Park Sergt.		Sarah Ann	42 0 0
June 25, 1866	Mead, William, Bombardier	4-25th Royal Arty.	Mary Ann and Thomas	4 0 0
Jan. 17, 1867	Hannay, John, Gunner	E-16 Royal Arty.	Charlotte	168 7 5
Oct. 31, "	Hutchinson, John Sergt.	Army Comt. Dept.	Rose	26 2 0
Nov. 29, "	Craker, Charles, Sergt.	2nd Dragoon Guards	Constantine	65 15 4
Feb. 14, 1868	Coates, Robert, Corporal	Royal Arty.	Ann Frances and Rosina Mary.	141 15 1
Feb. 1842	McCarthy, Quarter Master Sergt.		John	61 2 3
Feb. 3, 1842	(Not recorded)		Wilson, Sophia, Thomas, and Elizabeth.	204 7 8
Dec. 1869	Rice, James, Sergt.	C-S. R. A.	Martha and William	1,114 8 0
Feb. 1870	Thompson, Edward, Sergt.	R. A.	William James	39 13 0
Apl. 29, "	Upson, D., Corporal	R. S. and M.	Alexander and David	331 4 4
Oct. 9, 1871	York, R., Sergt.	Artillery	Henry J., Jane Elizabeth, Amelia Lavinia, Mary Ann (died 15th May 1872) Walter Charles.	84 4 10
Feb. 17, 1873	Lemon, George, Driver	R. H. A.	Margaret	74 6 9
July 17, "	Rogers, G. J., Conductor	Commissariat Dept.	William George	1,541 5 7
May 4, "
Dec. 4, "	Mitchell, R., Trumpet Major	R. A.	Maud	165 1 9
Feb. 11, 1876	Thompson, Edward, Sergt.	8th B., R. A.	Margaret Emma	48 9 4
Oct. 31, "	Trollope, Henry, Sergt.	62nd Foot	John Henry	728 15 0
Dec. 20, "	Clarke, H., Drum Major	2-1 The Royal Scots	Ada, Annie, Rose, Emma, and Harry J.	475 8 6
Mar. 2, 1877	Longhurst, Chas., Bazar Sergt.	R. H. A.	Eliza Maria, Agnes Emma, and Caroline.	456 0 0
Aug. 13, "	Meehan, Peter, Private	2nd B. R. Scots	Joseph	37 1 8
Sep. 22, "	Murphy, Wm., Private	12th Foot	Earnest and Reuben	40 7 3
Jan. 8, 1879	Utting, J., Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	Frederick James, George Edward, and Albert Edward.	240 0 0
Feb. 21, 1880	Donohue, Andrew, Private	29th Foot	Ann, Mary Ann, and William.	150 0 0
Dec. 20, "	Holland, George, Sergt.	85th Foot	Constance Rebecca and Annie Theresa.	223 4 0
Jan. 16, 1883	Lyas, A., Private	2nd B., Warwickshire Regt.	Adolphus George and Wallace.	125 10 3
" 17, "	Tough, Charles, Sergt. (step-father late Gunner S. Hobcroft).	7-1 London Dn., R. A.	Charles George, Munnie Mahy, Thomas Henry, and Emma Ellen.	243 7 3
Apl. 30, "	Gillon, Thomas, Pioneer Sergt.	1 B., East Lanc. Regt.	John and Thomas Charles.	26 0 0

Besides the above the following are in the custody of the Examiner, Fund Accounts:—

On account orphan Tough . . . .	A 4 per cent. Government Promissory Note for $1,500 and a Guernsey Savings Bank Deposit Book containing £64-1-1, also a Pocket Account Book.
Mead . . . .	One gold wedding-ring.
The children of late Mrs. White . . . .	H. M.'s 79th Regt.—A packet containing sundries.
Orphan Maud Mitchell . . . .	One box containing sundries.

NOTE.—Interest on these deposits ceases from the date on which the Ward comes of age or leaves the Institution.

Applications for payment of the deposits should be made direct to the Examiner of Fund Accounts, Calcutta, who will supply the necessary form of receipt, &c.

G. L. SUTHERLAND, Surgeon-Major,
Examiner, Fund Accounts.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL. FOR CENTRAL INDIA.

NOTIFICATION.

Indore Residency, the 15th September 1883.

No. 2478.—Captain H. A. Vincent, Bombay Staff Corps, Officiating 2nd-in-Command, 1st Central India Horse, is granted thirty days' privilege leave from 5th October 1883.

By Order,

C. E. YATE, Capt.,
for 1st Asst. Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR
CENTRAL INDIA, P. W. D.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Indore, the 14th September 1883.

No. 11.—The following Assistant Engineers have passed the Lower Standard Examination prescribed in Public Works Code, Chapter II, paragraph 2, on the dates specified against their names:—

Mr. D. Litster, Assistant Engineer, 3rd Grade, —on 5th August 1878.

Mr. R. H. Tickell, Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade,—on the 3rd September 1883.

No. 12.—Mr. R. Ewing, Executive Engineer, 4th Grade, is appointed Executive Engineer, Gwalior Division.

By Order,

H. F. WHITE, M.I. C.E.,
Offg. Secy. to Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India, P. W. D.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR RAJPUTANA.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Mount Abu, the 17th September 1883.

No. 3326 G.—Hospital Assistant Mahomed Fakcer held medical charge of the Erinpura Irregular Force from the afternoon of the 20th August to the forenoon of the 11th September 1883, inclusive, during the absence of Surgeon J. Scully on the provisional leave granted him in this Office Notification No. 2989 G., dated 22nd August 1883.

No. 3328 G.—With reference to Foreign Department Notification No. 2163 G., dated 6th September 1883, Surgeon W. H. Neilson, M.B., assumed medical charge of the Erinpura Irregular Force from Hospital Assistant Mahomed Fakeer on the forenoon of the 11th September 1883.

By Order,

E. A. FRASER,
1st Asst. Agent to the Govr. Genl.

SURGEON-GENERAL WITH THE
GOVERNMENT OF INDIA:

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 31st August 1883.

No. 25.—Third Grade Assistant Surgeon Lal Madhub Mookerjee, of the Bengal provincial establishment, is permitted to resign the service.

J. M. CUNINGHAM, M.D.,
Surgeon-General with the Govt. of India.

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILWAYS.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Simla, the 13th September 1853.

No. 43.—Mr. E. H. Tuck, Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade, is transferred from the Punjab Northern State Railway to the Jhansi-Manikpore State Railway.

The 15th September 1883.

No. 44.—Mr. R. W. Egerton, Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade, is transferred from the Punjab Northern to the Indus Valley and Kandahar State Railway.

Director General's Notification No. 26, dated 19th May 1883, is hereby cancelled.

The 15th September 1883.

No. 45.—With reference to Public Works Department Notification No. 215, dated 15th September 1883, Lieutenant J. Burn-Murdoch, R.E., Executive Engineer, 4th Grade (temporary rank), is posted to the Punjab Northern State Railway.

The 18th September 1883.

No. 46.—The privilege leave for three months granted, with effect from 25th May 1883, to Mr. F. Finch, Store-keeper of the Indus Valley and Kandahar State Railway, in Class III of the State Railway Superior Revenue Establishment, has been commuted by Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India into sick leave for six months on medical certificate.

H. F. HANCOCK, Col., R.E.,
Offy. Director General of Railways.

GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANK.

No. 1.

ANNUAL STATEMENT.

Abstract of Operations of the Government Savings Bank from 1st April 1882 to 31st March 1883.

	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
Balance due to Depositors in 1881-82		31,74,302 10 4
Deposits in 1882-83	16,74,421 9 11
Interest allowed to Depositors in 1882-83	1,18,599 11 9	17,93,021 5 8
TOTAL RS.		52,07,324 0 0
DEDUCT—
Withdrawals in 1882-83	18,70,453 9 10
Investment in Government Loans, 1882-83	66,202 12 7	19,42,056 6 5
Balance		33,24,667 9 7
LIABILITIES.
Balance due to Depositors in 1882-83		33,24,667 9 7
ASSETS.
Due by General Books	32,06,067 13 10
Interest allowed to Depositors in 1882-83	1,18,599 11 9	33,24,667 9 7

J. GORDON,
Depy. Secretary.

BANK OF BENGAL.

GOVT. SAVINGS BANK;

Calcutta, the 20th September 1883.

Weekly Statement of Silver tendered, of Certificates issued, and Silver Balance in the Mint.

DATE.	SILVER TENDERED, ESTIMATED VALUE.	CERTIFICATES ISSUED ON		BALANCE OF HULLION
		General Treasury.	Currency Department.	Under Assay.	Assayed.	Held on account of the Currency Department.
1883.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Sept. 10	2,97,000	...	87,021	5,06,142	41,25,533	27,40,155
" 11	...	...	...	5,06,142	41,25,533	27,40,155
" 12	...	...	357	5,06,806	41,28,122	27,40,520
" 13	...	...	80,274	4,90,352	42,10,118	28,24,516
" 14	2,57,362	...	2,05,482	5,54,694	44,23,118	30,38,405
" 15	...	...	...	5,54,694	44,23,118	30,38,405

J. F. TENNANT, Major-Genl., R.E.,
Mint Master.

CALCUTTA MINT.

The 17th September 1883.

CURRENCY NOTES.

The following Currency Notes of the Government of India are stated to have been lost, and payment of their value has been claimed by the persons whose names are placed against the numbers. Any other person having these Notes in his possession, or claiming a right to them, is warned to communicate at once with the undersigned:—

Calcutta Circle.

Regt. No.	No. of Notes.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		Rs.
170	P 9—24096	50	Babu Radha Nath Ghose.
172	P 44—92424	100	Mr. J. Grieff.
	" —92425	100
	" —90155	100
173	P 44—75014	100	Babu Womesh Chunder Mookerjee.
175	P 43—69639	100	The District Superintendent of Police, Jessore.
178	P 9—67246	50	Babu Khetter Mohan Mit-ter.
179	P 11—46564	500	Babu Hari Singh.
180	O 96—47734	100	Babu Raj Koomar Ghose.
181	P 11—74677	500	Bissesshur Dyal.
182	O 67—65137	100	Babu Issur Chunder Chak-ravarti.
	" —65488	100
	" —65489	100
	P 42—05052	100
	O 30—72435	50

CALCUTTA.

The 21st September 1883.

J. TAYLOR.

Asst. Comptlr. Genl., in charge, Paper Currency.

Madras Circle.

Regt. No.	No. of Notes.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		Rs.
22	B 73—82753	100	Arunachellum Pillay, Cotton Merchant, Udumalpet, Coimbatore District.
	" —85209	100
	" —85669	100
	" —96892	100
23	B 61—69565	50	P. J. Jagannath Lulla, Tahsildar of Saidapet Taluk.
	" —70376	50
	" —81426	50
	B 65—28295	50
	" —51257	50
	" —55623	50
	" —70552	50
	B 62—76339	100
	B 68—05272	100
	B 71—83579	100

FORT SAINT GEORGE.

The 10th September 1883.

H. S. GROVES,

Assistant Accountant General, in charge of Paper Currency Dept., for Commissioners.

WANTED

ENGLISH AND PERSIAN WRITER.

Required for the Commissioner's Office, Peshawar, a Deputy Superintendent and Translator. His work will be entirely with the Commissioner, and confidential, and he must possess a thorough and idiomatic knowledge of English and Persian for correspondence in both languages; pay Rs130, with prospects; apply in own hand-writing with copies of certificates, not originals, to Commissioner, Abbottabad.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Unclaimed Letters held in the Calcutta General Post Office on 20th September 1883.

Bosanquet & Co.	DeNegri, A.	Thurber, Gates & Co.
Burbridge, J.	Hardwicke, E.	Valentine, Mrs.
Colbrook, Robert.	Lowry, Lt. F. J.	Waters, J. Harry.
Cooper, Geo. W.	Schwartz, S.	Williamson & Co.

Letters marked "Care of Post Office."

Agist, John.	Engel, Israel.	M. M. M.
A. Q. R.	Erter, Frau. Merrio.	Milsud, George.
A. X. Y. Z.	"Fella."	Mosso, W. Forbes.
B. B.	Fergus, Mrs. M.	Nordt, Miss Minnie.
Barber, C. J.	Field, Miss Fanny.	Pearson, H. J. F. G.
Battersby, Leslie C.	Fount, P. S.	Perrins, C. H.
Boswell, Lt.	Gahan, Capt. R. L.	Rains, —
Bradley, Walter.	Gelseid, Leann.	Rathergurd, R. C.
Bradshaw, D. E.	Hallewell, J. A.	Rode, Capt. J.
Brown, John.	H. R. A.	Ross, C. Henry.
Browne, Henri.	Hilbert, J.	Ryan, J. H.
Burlington, Charles.	Holt, Mrs. P. J.	Sanford, E. C. Aysh-
Camar, Madame A.	Horridge, Charles.	ford.
Campbell, Dr. M. R.	Ingers, H. V.	Scott, Montagu Hill.
Chase, J.	Jones, H.	Specht, Otto.
Coutt, P. S.	Jones, John.	Spencer, Mrs. L.
Crispini, C. Umberto.	Karoly, S.	Stoker, H. W.
Crooke, Richard Victoria.	Kaynagh, P.	Tanevici, Mendel.
Crowther, John.	Kirkbride, J.	Tayfenberg, Marco.
Dalyell, Mrs. R. F.	Langley, Manly G.	Tucker, Mrs.
D'Cruz, Mrs. Bella.	Lee, Frederick.	VansAgnew, Lieut. P. A.
Dean, William Edward.	Lynam, B.	White, Mrs. S.
Douglas, C. P. H.	McKay, James B.	Wyndham, W. G.
Dyett, B. H. R.

Registered Letters.

Barrett, Captain J. C.	Moses, S. H.	Weben, Madame Mar-
Keup, A. Garnett.	Meuzies, Charles.	tha.
McDonald, David	Nardini, Sig. Raffaello.

Calcutta, the 1st September 1883.

Commencing from the 28th September 1883, and until further notice, the Foreign Mail Steamer will be despatched from Bombay every Friday, the Mails closing in Calcutta every Tuesday. The last Saturday Mail will be closed at the General Post Office on the 15th September current, and the first Tuesday Mail on the 25th September 1883.

The 22nd September 1883.

SEA AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Foreign Mails for	Date.	Per Steamer
	1883.
Persian Gulf . . . . .	22nd Sept.	From Bombay.
Farman Gulf . . . . .	20th "	From Bombay.
Madras, Ceylon, and Intermediate Ports .	28th "	Str. Huzara .
Madras and Ceylon . . . . .	3rd Oct.	P. & O. Str.
Columbo, Penang, Singapore, Hong-Kong, Shanghai, Yokohama, and Australian Colonies . . . . .	2nd "	From Bombay.
Foreign Mails via Bombay . . . . .	25th Sept.	From Bombay.
Do. Book Post and Pattern Packets .	24th "	From Bombay.
Rangoon and Moulemein . . . . .	27th "	Str. Madura .
Chittagong, Akyab, Kyauk Phyo, and Rangoon . . . . .	27th "	Str. Calcutta .
Port Blair and Camorta . . . . .	27th "	Str. Maharani .

* Also for South Africa via England; also via Aden for Mauritius, Mahé (Seychelles), Mayotte, Nossi Be and Réunion can be forwarded.
N.B.—The letter-box will close at 7 p.m. precisely; after which hour, foreign letters, fully prepaid and bearing an extra postage stamp of four (4) annas on each cover, will be received up to 7-30 p.m.

E. HUTTON,
Presidency Post Master.

GOVERNMENT CINCHONA FEBRIFUGE.

This preparation is an efficient substitute for Quinine and can be purchased by Government officers for public and charitable purposes, and by any one taking twenty pounds at a time, from the Superintendent, Botanical Garden, Calcutta, for cash only, at the following rates:—per four ounce tin R4-8; per eight ounce tin, R5-8; per pound tin, R16-8. The general public can be supplied by the Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, for cash only, at the under-noted rates:—per four ounce tin R5-8; per eight ounce tin R10-8; per pound tin, R20. This medicine is also sold by the principal European and Native druggists in Calcutta. Postage 8 annas per four and eight ounce tins, and 12 annas per pound tin, in addition to the foregoing rates.

گورنمنٹ سنکونا فبري فيوج

یہ دوا کرٹینائین کا خوب قائم مقام ہی اور کلکتہ کے ہوٹانکل گارتن یعنی کمپنی باغ کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے ہوا ایک ملازم سرکاری واسطے سرکاری کام اور خیرات کے اور سیواے اوتکے جو کوئی ایک مشیت بیس پونڈ خرید لینے سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس کے ٹین کا چار روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; آٹھ اونس کے ٹین کا آٹھ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; ایک پونڈ کے ٹین کا سولہ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ

اور عوام الناس ہوٹانکل گارتن یعنی کمپنی با کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس ٹین کا پانچ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; آٹھ اونس کے ٹین کا دس روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; ایک پونڈ کے ٹین کا بیس روپیہ

یہ دوا کلکتہ کے بڑے بڑے دلایتی اور دیسی دواخانوں میں مکتی ہی ماسیواے قیمت مذکورہ بالا کے محصول ذات چار در آٹھ اونس کے ٹین کا آٹھ آنہ ; اور ایک پونڈ کے ٹین کا بارہ آنہ

Meteorological Publications for Sale.

The following publications of the Meteorological Office of the Government of India are on sale and can be procured at the Meteorological Office, No. 4, Middleton Row, or either at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., or at Messrs. Brown & Co., at the prices noted against them:—

Report on the Meteorology of India, R a. p.
in 1875, 4to, 89 pages text, 297
pages tables, 3 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Report on the Meteorology of India,
in 1876, 4to, 97 pages text, 340
pages tables, 3 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Report on the Meteorology of India
in 1877, 4to, 173 pages text, 375
pages tables, 3 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Report on the Meteorology of India,
in 1878, 4to, 149 pages text, 380
pages tables, 3 plates, 4 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Report on the Meteorology of India
in 1879, 4to, 164 pages text, 273
pages tables, 4 plates, 4 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Report on the Meteorology of India
in 1880, 4to, 174 pages text, 286
pages tables, 6 plates, 4 charts . . . . . 8 0 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part I, 4to, 118 pages, 9 plates . . . . . 2 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part II, 4to, 63 pages, 4 plates . . . . . 1 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part III, 4to, 86 pages, 2 plates . . . . . 1 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part IV, 4to, 62 pages, 8 plates . . . . . 1 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part V, 4to, 57 pages, 10 plates . . . . . 1 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, Part VI, 4to, 62 pages . . . . . 1 8 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
I, cloth bound, 4to, 438 pages, 33
plates . . . . . 10 0 0

Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol.
II, Part I, 4to, 78 pages, 9 plates . . . . . 1 8 0

Rainfall Chart of India, showing the average annual distribution of rainfall (in colors) . . . . . 1 0 0

	R	a.	p.
Report on the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones, October 1876, 4to, 87 pages, 4 plates . . .	2	0	0
Report on the Madras Cyclone, May 1877, 4to, 117 pages text, 97 pages tables, 4 plates . . .	2	8	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1879, corrected and reduced . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1880, corrected and reduced . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1881, corrected and reduced . . .	2	0	0

HENRY F. BLANFORD,

*Meteorological Reporter
to the Government of India.*

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set:

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

	Without Postage.	With Postage.
For the CALCUTTA SERIES . . .	R35	R37-8
" MADRAS SERIES . . .	" 8	" 9
" BOMBAY SERIES . . .	" 8	" 9
" ALLAHABAD SERIES . . .	" 8	" 9
Complete set . . .	" 45	" 47-8

The price of each Part purchased separately will vary according to the amount of matter it contains, and will be printed on the wrapper. It will, however, never be below the following:—

For a Part of the CALCUTTA SERIES . . .	R3	8
" " MADRAS SERIES . . .	" 1	0
" " BOMBAY SERIES . . .	" 1	0
" " ALLAHABAD SERIES . . .	" 1	0
Complete set . . .	" 4	0

Persons desiring to subscribe for or purchase the Reports, should apply to—

MESSRS. THACKER, SPINK AND CO., CALCUTTA;
MESSRS. THACKER AND CO., BOMBAY;
MESSRS. HIGGINBOTHAM AND CO., MADRAS;
THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL BOOK DEPOT, BOMBAY;
THE GOVERNMENT BOOK DEPOT, ALLAHABAD.

Orders and Subscriptions for 1878 should be at once remitted.

THE BENGAL LAW REPORTS.

A few sets of the Bengal Law Reports (Volumes 1 to 15) are available at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., Calcutta, at R375 a set.

For sale in Rajputana to Officers stationed there.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India, 4th Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Apply to the Superintendent, Commissioner's Office, Ajmer.

The following books may be purchased from the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, No. 166, Dhurrumtollah Street, for private use only, which should be stated in the requisition.

No orders can be attended to unless accompanied by a remittance. When postage stamps are forwarded, one anna additional should be sent for every Rupee's worth of stamps, for discount in exchanging them for cash. Service labels or Court Fee stamps are not received.

Books required for the public service cannot be supplied on payment; they are only issued on the authority of the Department to which the indenting officer is subordinate. Applications for them should be made through the Local Government under which the applicant serves.

Copies (in English) of Bills before the Legislative Council of the Governor General, and of Statements of Objects and Reasons and Reports of Select Committees upon them, are obtainable at the Offices of Superintendents of Government Printing, at Calcutta and Simla. They will be sold to casual purchasers at the rate of three pices per sheet (of four pages) or part of a sheet, but a reduction will be made where the papers cover more than sixty four pages. The whole set of papers published in a year will also be supplied to annual subscribers at the rate of R2, exclusive of postage, or R3, including postage, to any part of British India.

Revised Edition.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4

To all Officers employed in Government departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part I.

Transport of Troops by Sea. Price, R2-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part II.

Transport of Troops, Inland. Price, R2-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Public Works Department Classified List and Distribution Return of Establishment, corrected up to 30th June 1883. Price R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Preliminary Administration Report on the Railways in India for 1882-83 by Colonel F. S. STANTON, R.E., Director General of Railways. Price, R1; packing and postage, 3 annas.

The Report of the Rent Law Commission,

with draft of Bill to amend the Law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal, in two volumes. Price, R3; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Report of the Government of Bengal on the proposed amendment, with revised Bill and Appendices, in two volumes. Price, R4; packing and postage, R1.

Correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State regarding the proposed amendment. Price, annas 8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

The Bengal Tenancy Bill, with annexures. Price, annas 4; packing and postage, 3 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled, under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. First Edition. Price reduced from R10 to R5; packing and postage, 12 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Statutes relating to India and the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. Second Edition, by William Fischer Agnew, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. Price, R10; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Regulations for the Medical Department, Her Majesty's Forces, Bengal, 1882. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 6 annas; interleaved copy, R2-8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Travelling Allowance Code (Civil), Revised Edition, 1883. Price R1; packing and postage, 2 annas. Correction slips for the above. R1 per annum.

A Manual of the Land Revenue Systems and Land Tenures of British India, by B. H. BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S. Royal 8vo, half calf. Price, R6; packing and postage, 8 annas.

A Manual of Jurisprudence for Forest Officers, by BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S., royal 8vo., half calf. Price, R6; packing and postage, 7 annas.

Carbine and Rifle Exercises and Musketry Instruction for Native Troops, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Indian Appendix to the British Musketry Regulations, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, 12 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Instructions for payment of British Troops, India, 1882. Royal 8vo, Cloth gilt. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Folio Foolscap.

Return of Wrecks and Casualties in Indian Waters for the years 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, and 1882. Price, R2 each; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Royal octavo, cloth, gilt.

The Commissariat Code for India, published under authority of the Government of India. Price, R4; by post 8 annas extra.

Fasciculus of forms referred to in the Code. Price, R2; by post 14 annas extra.

Compendium of Existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Compiled by H. G. Whelan, Superintendent, Office of Examiner of Commissariat Accounts. Price, R5; packing and postage, 6 annas. Interleaved copies, R6; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Appendices to the Compendium of existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Price, R4 for plain copies, and R5 for interleaved copies; packing and postage, 6 annas and 9 annas respectively.

Revised edition.

General Rules and Circular Orders of the High Court in Bengal, Appellate Side—Civil, R2-8; Criminal, R1-8; packing and postage, 6 annas and 3 annas respectively.

Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to the public monthly, at R3 a year payable in advance.

P. W. D. Code, 4th Edition.

Vol. I.—(For the use of Sub-divisional as well as Divisional Officers)—

Chap. I. Organization of the Department.—II. Rules for candidates for appointment or promotion.—III. Duties of Departmental Officers.—IV. Rules affecting personal conduct.—V. Special Rules applicable to all branches.—VI. Office arrangements.—VII. Designs and Estimates.—VIII. Contracts.—IX. Execution of works.—X. Cash and stores.—XI. Public buildings.—XII. Accounts. Price, R2-8; packing and postage, 4 annas; interleaved copies, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. II.—(For the use of Divisional Officers)—

Chap. XIII. Executive Engineers' Accounts.—XIV. Duties of Examiner's Office.—XV. Budget Rules and Annual Reports.—XVI. Military Works.—XVII. Irrigation. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas; interleaved copies, R2-8; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Super-royal octavo, cloth.

Tribes of the Hindoo Koosh. Price, R6; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Civil Service Gradation List is no longer appended to the Army List, but is published separately, and may be obtained from Mr. H. W. Ronaldson, Civil Fund Office, Calcutta. Price, R1; postage, 4 annas.

Select Extra-Tropical Plants readily eligible for industrial culture or naturalisation, with indications of their native countries and some of their uses, by Baron Ferd. Von Mueller. Indian edition, 1880. Price, R4; Packing and postage, 6 annas.

Report on Cotton Gins, and on the cleaning and quality of Indian cotton, in two parts; by Dr. FORBES WATSON. Price, R5; packing and postage, 10 annas.

West India Pilot, Volume II. Price, R6; packing and postage, 6 annas.

THE INDIAN STATUTE-BOOK.

REVISED EDITION.

A.—General Acts.

Vol. I.—From 1834 to 1863.

Vol. II.—From 1864 to 1871.

Vol. III.—From 1872 to June 1876. Price of each Volume, R5; packing and postage, 12 annas.

B.—Local Regulations and Acts.

Vol. IV.—The Madras Code, 1876. Price, R8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. V.—The Oudh Code, 1877. Price, R4-8; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. VI.—The North-Western Provinces Code, 1877. Price, R8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. VII.—The British Burma Code, 1877. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. VIII.—The Panjáb Code, 1878. Price, R4-8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. IX.—The Lower Provinces Code, Vol. I, 1878. Price, R8; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. X.—The Lower Provinces Code, Vol. II, 1879. Price, R8; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Supplement to the Lower Provinces Code, 1882. Price, R4-8; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XI.—The Ajmer Code, 1879. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XII.—The Bombay Code, 1880. Price, R8; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Vol. XIII.—The Coorg Code, 1880. Price, R2; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XIV.—The Central Provinces Code, 1881. Price, R4-8; packing and postage, 6 annas.

C.—Statutes.

Vol. XV.—The Statutes relating to India. Vol. I, 1285 to 1855. Price, R8; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Vol. XVI.—The Statutes relating to India, Vol. II, 1856 to 1881. Price, R8; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Supplement to the Statutes relating to India. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Unrepealed Acts of the Governor General's Council from 1854 to date available separately.

[Applications for any of the above Volumes or Acts should, when the same are required for the public service, be made to the Local Government to which the applicant is subordinate, and the Local Government will, if necessary, forward such applications to the Legislative Department. Only persons wishing to purchase copies for private use should apply to this Office.]

Abstract of Proceedings of the Legislative Council of the Governor General from July 1882. Annual subscription R5; postage, R1. Single issue 4 annas including postage.
In three volumes—super royal 8vo.

Punjab Customary Law, containing selection from the Records of the Punjab Government, Statements of Customary Law in different Districts, and Questions on Tribal and Local Custom. Edited by C. L. Tupper, C.S. Price, R10 a set; packing and postage, 12 annas.

The Book of Aids to Military Equitation practised at the Cavalry Riding Establishment, Canterbury. Price, annas 4; packing and postage, 1 anna.

The Civil Account Code, Vol. I. Second Edition, corrected to 31st October 1880. Price, R2; packing and postage, 6 annas.

NOTIFICATIONS relative to the PUBLIC LOANS of the GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, from 1822 to 1879. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Tables showing the remissions or reductions of Stamp Duty authorised since the passing of Act XXXVI of 1860. Price, annas 2; by post, annas 3.

Cantonment Regulations framed under Act XXII of 1864. Price, annas 8; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Rules for the Audit of Cantonment Funds. Price, annas 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Selections from the records of the Government of India—

No. CLVI.—Report on the administration of the Baroda States for 1877-78. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXIX.—Ditto for 1878-79. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXIX.—Ditto for 1879-80. Price, R2; packing and postage, 6 annas.

No. CLX.—The wheat production and trade of India. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

No. CLXIV.—Report on the administration of the Ajmere and Mhairwarra Districts for 1878-79. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXII.—Ditto for 1879-80. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXV.—Rajputana Dispensary, Vaccination, Jail and Sanitary Report for 1879. Price, annas 12; packing and postage, annas 2.

No. CLXXXIII.—Report on the Political administration of the Rajputana States, 1880-81. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The above to be had at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 166, Dhurrumtollah Street, Calcutta.

A Manual of Tibetan, being a Guide to the Colloquial Speech of Tibet, in a Series of Progressive Exercises, by Major T. H. Lewin, F.R.G.S., of the Bengal Staff Corps, late Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling. Price, R6; postage, 3 annas.

Copies are to be had at the Office of the Director of Public Instruction.

Examination Paper for Station Masters, Goods Clerks, Booking Clerks, Guards, Signallers, and menials employed on State Railways, by Mr. G. S. LEONARD, Traffic Superintendent, Northern Bengal State Railway. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas. To be had on application from the Manager, Northern Bengal State Railway, Saidpore.

Publications for Sale at the Bengal Secretariat Press.

Abstract of the Rules of the Road [at Sea in Tamil. Price, R1; postage 1 anna and 6 pies.

Ditto ditto in Telugu. Price, Re. 1; postage 1 anna and 6 pies.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for India, Fourth Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Safe Use of Steam, in Bengali. Price, 2 annas; postage, ½ anna.

Distribution Return of Officers and Subordinates employed under District Road Cess Committees. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 2 annas; postage, ½ anna.

List of Officers of the Public Works Department, Bengal. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 6 annas; postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

The Quarterly Civil List. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Reprint of the Report of the Rent Law Commission, with the draft of a Bill to consolidate and amend the law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal. Vols. I and II. Price, R3-8; packing and postage, 9 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers engaged in the Administration of the Salt Department. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Administration of Wards' and Attached Estates. Revised edition. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R1; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Board's Rules, or Rules for the guidance of Officers engaged in the administration of the Revenue Department in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. Revised edition, Vol. I. Price, R4; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R5; postage, 8 annas.

Ditto ditto, Vol. II. Price, R3; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R3-8; postage, 8 annas.

Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to purchasers monthly, at R2 per annum, including postage.

Rules for the Lease of Waste Lands in Bengal, May 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Opium Department. Published by authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R3; postage, 2 annas.

Bengali Translation of the Revised Salt Manual. Price, 4 annas; postage 6 pies.

Civil Suits, 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Rules under the Cess Act, No. IX (B.C.) of 1880. Price, R1-8; postage, 2 annas.

The Bengal Pilots' Code of Signals, revised, enlarged, and arranged for use with three Geometrical Shapes in combination with the eighteen International Code Flags (on the plan of the Trinity Light-house Code), intended as a Supplement to the International Code of Signals. Also Calm or Line of Wind Signals; made with the above three shapes only. Concluding with the Morse Flashing Signals. Compiled by S. R. ELSON, Licensed Master Pilot, Bengal Pilot Service. Published by authority of the Government of Bengal. Price, R8; postage, 2 annas and 6 pies.

The Bengal Embankment Manual: containing an account of the action of the Government in dealing with Embankments and Water-courses since the Permanent Settlement; a discussion of the principles of the Act of 1873; a reprint of the Act itself, with notes and appendices describing the present condition of Embankments under State control in Bengal, and the chief controversies concerning them. By HENRY IRELAND HARRISON, B.A., C.S., late Mathematical Junior Student of Christ Church, Oxford. Price, R2; with map, R5-4.

The Factories' Act, XV of 1881, with Rules and Forms. Price, 2 annas and 6 pies; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Bengali Translations of the Rules and Notifications under the Arms Act issued by the Governments of India and Bengal. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Hindi Translation of the Rules and Notifications under the Indian Arms Act, 1878. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urya ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urdu ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Annual Report on Inland Emigration for 1880-81. Price, R1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Ditto ditto ditto for 1882. Price, R1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Papers regarding the Tea Industry in Bengal. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

List of the Trees, Shrubs, and large Climbers found in the Darjeeling District, Bengal. By J. S. GAMBLE, M.A., Assistant Conservator of Forests, Bengal. Price, R1-8; postage, 1 anna.

Report on the Census of Calcutta and its Suburbs, 1881. Price R4; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1881-82. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1879-80. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1878-79. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 6 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1877-78. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R3-8; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1876-77. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R5; Colored Map, R2-8.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Ganja in Bengal. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Collector, on special duty. Price, R1-8; postage, 2 annas.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Jute in Bengal, and on Indian Fibres available for the Manufacture of Paper; with Map. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Magistrate, on special duty. Price, R5; postage, 7 annas.

Report on the Food-grain Supply and Statistical Review of the Relief Operations in the distressed districts of Behar and Bengal during the Famine of 1873-74. By A. P. MACDONNELL, of the Bengal Civil Service. Price, R3-8; postage, 6 annas.

Prices of Food-grains, Firewood, and Salt in Bengal from 1866 to 1878, compiled in the Bengal Secretariat, Statistical Department. Price, R2; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Report on the Census of Bengal, 1872- By H. BRUNLEY, Esq., C.S., Registrar-General of Bengal. Price, R10; postage, 9 annas.

Report on the Effects of Artificial Respiration, Intravenous Injection of Ammonia, and Administration of various Drugs, &c., in India and Australian Snake-poisoning; and the Physiological, Chemical and Microscopical Nature of Snake-poisons. By the Commission appointed to investigate the subject. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Memorandum on the Revenue History of Chittagong. By H. J. S. CORRON, Esq., Collector and Magistrate of Chittagong. Price, R2-4; packing and postage, 4 annas.

A Report on the District of Jessore: its Antiquities, its History and its Commerce. (Second Edition, Revised and Corrected.) By J. WHISTLAND, Esq., C.S., late Magistrate and Collector of Jessore. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1881-82. Price, R6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1879-80. Price, R6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1878-79. Price, R6; packing and postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1877-78. Price, R4-8; postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1876-77. Price, R4-8; postage, 6 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1875-76. Price, R4-8; postage, 7 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1874-75. Price, R4-8; postage, 7 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1874-75. Price, if taken with the Report, R1; separately, price, R4; postage, 2 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1873-74. Price, R4; postage, 5 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1872-73. Price, R7-8; postage, 10 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1873. Price, if taken with the Report, R1; separately, price, R2; postage, 2 annas.

Report of the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones of October 1876. By J. ELIOT, Esq., M.A., Meteorological Reporter to the Government of Bengal. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

The Winds of Northern India. By H. F. BLANFORD, Esq., Meteorological Reporter to Government. Price, R1 per copy; postage, 2 annas.

A Statistical Account of Bengal. By W. W. HUNTER, B.A., LL.D., Director-General of Statistics to the Government of India.

- |           |   |
|-----------|---|
| Vol. I.   | 24-Pergunnahs and Sandarbans.   |
| Vol. II.  | Nadiyn and Jessore.   |
| Vol. III. | Midnapur, Hugli and Howrah.   |
| Vol. IV.  | Bardwan, Bankura and Birbhum.   |
| Vol. V.   | Dacca, Bakarganj, Faridpur and Manising.                                  |
| Vol. VI.  | Chittagong Hill Tracts, Chittagong, Noakhali, Tipperah and Hill Tipperah. |
| Vol. VII. | Maldah, Rangpur and Dinagapur.  |

- Vol. VIII. Rajshahi and Bogra.
 Vol. IX. Murshidabad and Pabna.
 Vol. X. Darjiling, Jalpaiguri and Kuch Behar State.
 Vol. XI. Patna and Saran.
 Vol. XII. Gaya and Shuhabad.
 Vol. XIII. Tirhut and Champaran.
 Vol. XIV. Bhagalpur and Santal Parganas.
 Vol. XV. Monghyr and Purniah.
 Vol. XVI. Hazaribagh and Lohardaga.
 Vol. XVII. Singbhum, Tributary States and Manbhum.
 Vol. XVIII. Cuttack and Balasor.
 Vol. XIX. Puri and Tributary States of Orissa.
 Vol. XX. Fisheries and Botany of Bengal, with General Index.
 Vol. XX. General Index only.
Price, per volume, Rs 1; postage, 5 annas.

Manual of Materia Medica in Urdu, compiled by SHAIK AKRAR ALY, Civil Hospital Assistant, Dinapore. Price, 8 annas per copy; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Buddha Gayá, the Hermitage of Sákya Muni. By Rájendralála Mitra, LL.D., C.I.E., Honorary Member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Physical Class of the Imperial Academy of Sciences, Vienna; Corresponding Member of the German and of the American Oriental Societies; of the Royal Academy of Science, Hungary, and of the Ethnological Society of Berlin; Fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c. Price, Rs 30; packing and postage, Rs 1-4.

Further Notes on the Rungpore Records, Vol. II. By E. G. GLAZIER, Esq., C.S., Officiating Magistrate and Collector, Rungpore. Price, Rs 1; postage, 2 annas.

Selection of Papers regarding the Hill Tracts between Assam and Burma, and on the Upper Brahmapooter. Price, Rs 5; postage, 4 annas.

Selections from Divisional and District Annual Administration Reports, 1872-73, with the Government Resolutions on them. Price, Rs 5; postage, 6 annas.

Selections from the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, 1871 to 1874. Price, Rs 8; postage, 3 annas.

Progressive Colloquial Exercises in the Lushai Dialect of the Dzo or Kuki Language With Vocabularies and Popular Tales (notated). By CAPTAIN THOMAS HERBERT LEWIN, B.S.C., Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong Hills. Price, Rs 5; postage, 3 annas.

Notes on the History of Midnapore, as contained in records extant in the Collector's Office. By J. C. PRICE, Officiating Settlement Officer of Midnapore. Vol. I. Price, Rs 3; postage, 3 annas.

Descriptive Ethnology of Bengal. By EDWARD TUTE DALTON, C.S.I., Colonel, Bengal Staff Corps; Commissioner of Chittagong; Member of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, &c. Illustrated by Lithographs Portraits copied from Photographs. Printed for the Government of Bengal, under the direction of the Council of the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

Price—Bound copies . . . . . Rs 45 0 0
 „ Unbound copies . . . . . „ 35 0 0

The Statistical Reporter, edited by H. J. S. COTTON, Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal.
 Vol. I, bound in full cloth, lettered . . . Rs 10 0 0
 Vol. II, ditto ditto . . . „ 10 0 0
 Single copies of monthly Nos. . . . . „ 0 0

Annual Statement of the Sea-borne Trade and Navigation of the Bengal Presidency, and of its Chief Port and each of the Subordinate Ports, with Foreign Countries, for the official year 1875-76. Vol. I. Price, Rs 12; postage, 10 annas.

Rules for the Examination of, and grant of Certificates of Competency to, Masters, Mates and Engineers. Price, Rs 1; postage, 1 anna.

Abstract of the Rules of the Road at Sea, in English. Price, Rs 1-4; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Ditto ditto in Arabic. Price, Rs 1; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Sanitary Primers in English and in Bengali. Price, Rs 6 per hundred, including transit and packing charges; single copies, 1 anna each.

The Book named below having been de-clared a part of the obligatory equipment of Emigrant vessels, is now obtainable at the Bengal Secretariat Press at the price noted:—

West India Pilot, Vol. II . . . . . Rs 0 0

 Cash must be sent with order.

Apply to Accountant, Bengal Secretariat, Writers' Buildings, Calcutta.

NOTICE.

The 9th February 1883.—The subscription to, and postage for, the Calcutta Gazette will henceforward be at the following rates, payable in advance:—

For the Mofussil.

	R	a.	p.
Entire Gazette . . . . .	15	0	0 per annum.
Postage . . . . .	5	0	0 „
Supplement . . . . .	6	0	0 „
Postage . . . . .	3	0	0 „
Parts III, IV, V, and VI, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Councils of India and Bengal . . . . .	5	0	0 „
Postage . . . . .	2	8	0 „

For a single copy—

Entire Gazette . . . . .	0	8	0
Postage . . . . .	0	2	0
Supplement . . . . .	0	4	0
Postage . . . . .	0	1	0
Parts III, IV, V, and VI . . . . .	0	1	0 for 4 sheets or under with an additional charge of 1 anna for every 4 sheets in excess of 4.
Postage . . . . .	0	1	0

For Calcutta.

The same rates as those for the mofussil, with the exception of the charge for postage.

E. N. BAKER,

Offg. Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

---

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

---

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

---

PART III.

Advertisements and Notices by Private Individuals and Corporations.

PROMISSORY NOTES.

Lost

The Government Promissory Notes, Nos. 161053 and 161054, of the 4 per cent. of 1865, for Rs1,000 each, originally standing in the name of the Comptroller General, and last endorsed to the proprietor, by whom they were never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Notes and the interest thereupon have been stopped at the Public Debt Office, Bank of Bengal, and application is about to be made for the issue of duplicates in favour of the proprietor.

PANNA LALL,
Late Command Gomashda, Kooncha Sunjogee Ram, Delhi.

Partially destroyed by White-Ants.

The Government Promissory Note No. 949, of the 5 per cent. loan of 15th January 1830, for sicca Rs2,000, issued in the name of Armogatha Pillai, by whom it was never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Note and the interest thereupon has been stopped at the Loan Office, and application is about to be made for payment to the undersigned of the principal and interest due.

N. VYTHILINGA PILLAI,

Grandson and Legal Representative of Armogatha Pillai, deceased.

NEGAPATAM,

The 10th September 1883.

SUPPLEMENT TO
The Gazette of India.

---

N<sup>o</sup> 38.} CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1883.

---

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

A SUPPLEMENT to the GAZETTE OF INDIA will be published from time to time, containing such Official Papers and information as the Government of India may deem to be of interest to the Public, and such as may usefully be made known.

Non-Subscribers to the GAZETTE may receive the SUPPLEMENT separately on a payment of six Rupees per annum if delivered in Calcutta, or nine Rupees if sent by Post.

No Official Orders or Notifications, the publication of which in the GAZETTE OF INDIA is required by Law, or which it has been customary to publish in the CALCUTTA GAZETTE, will be included in the SUPPLEMENT. For such Orders and Notifications the body of the GAZETTE must be looked to.

---

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.
IRRIGATION BRANCH.

IRRIGATION OPERATIONS IN BENGAL FOR THE OFFICIAL YEAR 1883-84.

Areas leased for Irrigation up to the end of July 1883.

Circle.	District.	Canal.	Estimated full discharge.	Average discharge in month.	Discharge utilized.	Approximate area of land irrigated during the year up to the end of the month.	Approximate area of land under irrigation up to the same date last year.	DETAILS OF AREAS LEASED.										RAINFALL, 1883-84.		REMARKS.
								Five years. All crops.	Five years. Khurreef.	ANNUAL LEASES.					GRAND TOTAL.	During month.	Up to end of month.	RAINFALL, 1882-83.
										Khurreef.	Rubbee.	Sugar-cane.	Bhadol.	Hot weather.					Total.
Orissa.	Cuttack.	Kendrapara . . .	1,269	293.95	33.74	2,097	48,525	...	5,532	...	632	31	...	66	6,311	...	...	...
		Gobri . . .	37,282	146.18	56.33	...	4,096	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
		Pattamondree . . .	1,042	19.86	7.47	90	13,809	...	350	...	2	...	...	15	367	...	...	...
		High Level, Range I . . .	675	100.72	14.58	480	14,260	...	1,032	...	67	3	...	16	1,118	...	...	...
		Taldunda, 1st Reach . . .	1,300	135	135	...	9,954	...	...	...	202	20	...	...	222	33.64	25.39	49.42
	Balasore.	Ditto, 2nd do. . .	650	38	38	...	22,309	...	...	2,015	...	200	29	...	229	...	...	...
		Matchong . . .	650	67	67	1,561	22,309	...	...	...	...	440	...	...	440	...	...	...
		High Level, Section II . . .	727.16	248.35	248.35	72	235	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
		High Level, do. III . . .	727.16	209.16	209.16	252	1,373	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
		Total . . .	...	...	...	4,562	114,561	...	8,929	...	1,153	523	...	97	1,773	10,702	...	...	...
South-Western.	Total of the corresponding period of last year.	Midnapore . . .	1,411	744	616	69,014	52,713	...	72,427	...	...	...	...	...	72,427	10.03	21.50	13.69	Whole month discharging. Eighteen days discharging.
		Panchkoora . . .	822	164	91	9,884	9,766	...	10,174	...	...	...	...	...	10,174	18.61	30.69	7.35
		Total . . .	...	...	...	78,908	92,469	...	82,601	...	...	...	...	...	82,601	...	...	...
	Total of the corresponding period of last year.	...	...	...	...	...	...	82,797	...	...	...	...	...	82,797	...	...	...
Sone.	Shahabad . . .	Western Main . . .	4,343	1,296	169	5,331	1,950	...	...	1,180	...	881	...	1,571	6,005	14.83	21.17	4.73	7.92	Excludes area irrigated under five years' leases.
		Buxar . . .	1,228	287	237	14,147	6,815	...	...	3,945	...	1,932	...	...	20,168	8.91	20.33	7.34	13.06
		Arrah . . .	1,160	799	666	41,011	33,114	...	...	5,913	...	1,502	154	7,003	66,424	...	...	...	...
	Patna and Eastern Main . . .	1,406	564	491	...	94	...	...	3,098	...	...	...	...	214	12.53	24.49	7.46	18.00
Grand Total.	Total of the corresponding period of last year.	Gya . . .	...	...	...	...	3,111	...	...	...	...	8	...	3,173	15,427	...	...	...	...
		Total . . .	...	...	...	61,737	45,084	...	82,974	...	...	3,523	154	7,139	25,262	106,236	...	...	...	...
		Grand Total . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	56,545	...	3,425	9,925	...	...	30,417	86,965	...	...	...	...
	Grand total of the corresponding period of last year.	...	...	...	145,207	252,144	...	91,530	...	1,153	4,346	154	7,238	27,035	201,539	...	...	...	...

The 4th September 1883.

G. F. E. S. NEILL, Major., M.S.C.,
Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,
P. W. Department.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

IRRIGATION OPERATIONS OF FASL KHARIF IN THE PUNJAB FOR 1883-84 UP TO 31st JULY 1883.

CANAL DIVISION.	WATER DISTRIBUTED DURING JULY 1883.				NAVIGATION RETURN CANAL.		LAND IRRIGATED (APPROXIMATE).		RAINFALL.		CHIEF CROPS (APPROXIMATE).		REMARKS.
	DEPTH IN CANAL AT REGULATING GAUGE.		GROSS CONSUMPTION, CUBIC FEET PER SECOND.		PRINCIPAL ITEMS OF TRAFFIC.		ZILA.	ACRES.	AVERAGE.	DURING MONTH.	NAME.	Area in acres.
	Full supply.	Actual through out.	Estimated full supply.	Actual average throughout.	Up.	Down.
1st Division	4.9	4.92	3,073.6	1,471.25	...	...	Gurdaspur	15,213	10.49	1.7	Cotton	21,518	On the Bari Doab Canal there is a decrease of 1,299 acres as compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year. The prospects of the crop continue to be very favorable. The usual rains having in a great measure failed, water is in great demand both for new and old sowings.
2nd Division, Main Branch, Lower	4.6	3.8	...	899.00	...	...	Amritsar	38,419	10.7	9.0	Rice	17,472
2nd do., Lahore Branch	3.35	3.5	...	764.00	...	...	Lahore	47,738	8.8	2.7	Sugarcane	9,192
Passed out of Escapes	...	...	...	229.00	...	...	...	...	...	...	Others	53,188
TOTAL BARI DOAB CANAL	...	...	3,073.6	3,363.25	...	...	...	101,370	...	...	...	101,370
Corresponding period of last year	...	...	3,073.6	2,484.52	...	...	...	102,669	...	...	...	102,669
Karnal Division	4.33	4.13	2,546	176	...	...	Umballa	1,359	12.33	8.23	Cotton	63,546	The operations of the month on the Western Jumna Canal show an increase in area irrigated of 45,913 acres, and of 4,566 acres as compared with the corresponding period of last year. There is an increase of 13,372 acres in the area of cotton, and a decrease of 12,565 acres in that of sugarcane, as compared with last year. The increase in the former is attributed to the scanty rainfall during the month, which is nearly 50 per cent. under the average.
Delhi do.	6.70	4.96	...	600	...	...	Karnal	26,689	8.52	4.63	Rice	28,979
Hansi do.	9.00	8.50	2,546	1,125	...	...	Delhi	28,911	10.20	2.80	Sugarcane	35,076
Do. Balla Head.	8.80	6.70	...	223	...	...	Rohatak	34,007	5.85	4.30	Others	24,407
Passed out of Escapes	...	...	...	289	...	...	Hissar	34,360	5.40	4.10	...	...
TOTAL WESTERN JUMNA CANAL	...	...	2,546	2,413	...	...	Jhind	25,807	10.40	3.50	...	...
Corresponding period of last year	...	...	2,546	1,925	...	...	Bikaner	201	...	...	...	...
Upper Sutlej Division	...	...	...	...	...	...	Kalsia State	774	...	...	...	...
Lower Sutlej and Chenab Division	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	152,008	...	...	...	152,008
India Canals	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	147,503	...	...	...	147,503
Muzaffargarh Canals	...	...	...	...	...	...	Lahore	12,168	...	...	Detail not obtainable for want of establishment.	...
TOTAL INUNDATION CANALS	...	...	...	...	...	...	Montgomery	15,875	...	...	...	...
Corresponding period of last year	...	...	...	...	...	...	Mooltan	170,255	2.3	1.8	...	...
PERMANENT CANALS, GRAND TOTAL	...	...	...	...	...	...	Dera Ghazi Khan	102,856	2.7	0.10	...	...
Do. corresponding period of last year	...	...	...	...	...	...	Muzaffargarh	123,150	...	3.3	...	...
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	424,304	...	...	...	424,304
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	513,957	...	...	...	513,957
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	253,378	...	...	...	253,378
	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	250,172	...	...	...	250,172

J. E. CATTON,
Offa. Asst. Secy. to Govt., Punjab, P. W. D., Irrigation Branch.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.
RAILWAY TRAFFIC.

No. XXXIII of 1883.

APPROXIMATE STATEMENT OF GROSS RECEIPTS AND EXPENSES OF INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Latest return received.	Railways.	Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 26TH AUGUST 1882.		Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 25TH AUGUST 1883.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 26TH AUGUST 1882.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 25TH AUGUST 1883.		Total Increase in 1883-82.	To Dec in 1883.
			Total.	Per mile open.		Total.	Per mile open.	Total.	Per mile open per week.	Total.	Per mile open per week.
	Guaranteed.		R	R		R	R	R	R	R	R	R
25th Aug. 1883	Eastern Bengal . . .	172	1,53,036	890	172	(a)72,069	419	17,77,895	489	(a)17,48,647	484	...	29
25th ditto .	Oudh and Rohilkhand . . .	547	80,695	148	547	88,263	161	20,80,709	180	24,04,916	209	3,24,207
1st Sept. 1883	Sind, Punjab & Delhi . . .	676	1,45,062	215	749	2,04,399	273	38,25,558	267	49,37,033	316	11,11,475
1st ditto .	Madras . . . . .	861	1,51,837	176	861	1,18,168	137	29,23,241	161	27,24,001	151	...	1,99
1st ditto .	South Indian . . . . .	655	78,835	113	655	72,299	110	15,89,206	115	16,31,850	118	42,644
1st ditto .	Great Indian Peninsula . . .	1,450	3,62,108	249	1,451	3,95,772	273	1,38,99,042	453	1,47,64,951	483	8,65,909
1st ditto .	Bombay, Baroda and Central India . . .	461	1,22,643	266	461	1,58,606	344	43,11,122	442	48,62,691	502	5,51,569
	TOTAL . . . . .	4,822	10,89,216	226	4,896	11,09,576	226	3,04,06,773	298	3,30,74,089	322	26,67,316
	State.
1st Sept. 1883	East Indian . . . . .	1,507	6,51,484	432	1,509	8,00,808	531	1,79,51,161	564	2,10,92,427	666	31,41,263
1st ditto .	Calcutta and South-Eastern . . . . .	33	4,456	135	56	5,300	95	79,553	121	1,20,619	108	41,066	..
1st ditto .	Nallhati . . . . .	27	1,120	41	27	1,668	62	27,586	48	33,294	59	5,703	..
1st ditto .	Northern Bengal . . . . .	230	35,338	154	239	37,350	156	7,45,038	152	8,21,642	168	76,604	..
1st ditto .	Tirhoot . . . . .	75	15,448	206	166	16,491	99	2,64,320	153	3,42,187	99	77,867	..
26th July 1883	Patna-Gya . . . . .	57	6,296	110	...	(b)	...	(c)1,55,997	160	(d)1,42,015	147	...	13,5
1st Sept. 1883	Muttra-Hathras . . . . .	29	2,557	88	29	2,378	82	45,915	75	50,464	83	4,549	..
1st ditto .	Cawnpore-Furrakhabad . . .	87	5,062	58	87	6,599	76	1,35,174	74	1,34,839	74	...	;
1st ditto .	Dildarnagar-Ghaziपुर . . .	12	523	44	12	616	51	19,276	76	20,555	82	1,279	..
1st ditto .	Rajputana-Malwa . . . . .	1,117	1,50,039	134	1,117	2,05,950	184	42,59,311	180	50,30,163	214	7,70,852	...
1st ditto .	Wardha Coal . . . . .	45	8,997	200	45	13,407	298	2,17,912	229	2,98,931	316	81,069	...
1st ditto .	Nagpur & Chhattisgarh . . .	98	4,369	45	149	9,243	62	2,45,849	119	6,02,648	193	3,56,799	...
1st ditto .	Rangoon and Irrawaddy Valley . . .	161	18,164	113	161	18,359	114	5,76,850	169	5,58,309	165	...	18,5
1st ditto .	Sindia . . . . .	75	4,672	62	75	5,005	67	1,28,686	81	1,27,151	81	...	1,5
1st ditto .	Punjab Northern . . . . .	409	47,994	117	421	60,943	145	12,03,812	142	12,83,141	145	79,329	...
1st ditto .	Indus Valley and Kandahar . . .	660	63,728	97	660	1,07,335	163	16,73,696	120	31,67,484	229	14,93,788	...
1st ditto .	Muttra-Achnera . . . . .	23	1,458	63	23	1,730	75	25,460	52	29,795	62	4,335	...
1st ditto .	Kaunia-Dhurla . . . . .	32	1,479	46	32	1,162	36	30,441	45	38,625	57	8,184	...
1st ditto .	Rewari-Ferozepore . . . . .	...	...	...	89	10,130	114	...	...	1,36,813	73	1,36,813	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	3,170	3,71,700	117	3,388	5,03,666	149	98,34,876	147	1,29,38,725	179	31,03,849	...
	Assisted Company.
11th Aug. 1883	Bengal Central . . . . .	...	...	...	...	(b)	...	...	...	(e)40,805	61	40,805	...
	Native States.
25th Aug. 1883	Bhavnagar-Gondal . . . . .	194	11,866	59	193	9,875	51	3,99,085	97	4,41,837	109	42,752	...
25th ditto .	Nizam's . . . . .	121	13,799	114	121	11,970	99	3,49,849	137	3,18,914	125	...	30,9
25th ditto .	Mysore . . . . .	86	5,499	64	86	5,021	58	1,15,164	63	1,06,796	59	...	8,2
1st Sept. 1883	Jodhpore . . . . .	19	320	17	19	660	35	(f)1,550	9	14,730	37	13,180	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	420	30,984	74	419	27,526	66	8,65,648	100	8,82,277	100	16,629	...
	GRAND TOTAL . . . . .	9,919	21,43,384	216	10,212	24,41,576	239	5,90,58,461	281	6,80,23,323	314	89,69,862	...
	GROSS ESTIMATED EXPENSES . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	2,98,28,937	142	3,37,73,455	156	...	...
	NET RECEIPTS . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	2,92,29,524	139	3,42,54,868	158	50,25,344	...

(a) Exclusive of the Company's share of the earnings of the Bengal Central Railway (estimated for period subsequent to 11th August 1883).
(b) Return not received.
(c) Total receipts from 1st April to 29th July 1882.

(d) Total receipts from 1st April to 28th July 1883.
(e) Total receipts from 1st April to 11th August 1883.
(f) Total receipts from 24th June to 26th August 1882.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

---

N<sup>o</sup> 39. } SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1883.

---

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

---

CONTENTS.

PART I.—Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions, Leave of Absence, General Orders, Rules and Regulations.

PART II.—Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, Administrator General, Paper Currency Dept., Presidency Pay Master, Money Order Department, Mint Master, Secretary and Treasurer, Bank of Bengal, Supdt. of Government Printing, and other Government Officers; Postal, Telegraph, and Commissariat Notices.

PART III.—Advertisements and Notices by private individuals and Corporations.

PART IV.—Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General:—

The Máltán District Laws Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

The North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

PART V.—Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22 .—

Nothing for publication.

SUPPLEMENT No. 39.

---

PART I.

Government of India Notifications, Appointments, Promotions; &c.

MILITARY SECRETARY'S OFFICE.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 24th September 1883.

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General will leave Simla for Jummoo on Tuesday, the 16th October, and will probably arrive at Calcutta, via Kashmir and Lahore, on Saturday, the 1st December 1883.

By Command,

WILLIAM BERESFORD, Captain,

Military Secretary to the Viceroy.

---

HOME DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—JUDICIAL.

Simla, the 26th September 1883.

No. 1310.—Under the provisions of Section 3 of Act XXVI of 1881 (The Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881), the Governor General in Council has been pleased to appoint Mr. Annodapershad Ghose, a Pleader in the Central Provinces, to perform the functions of a Notary Public under that Act.

No. 1312.—Under the provisions of Section 3, Act XXVI of 1881 (The Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881), the Governor General in Council has been pleased to appoint the following persons in the Bombay Presidency to perform the functions of Notaries Public under that Act :—

Mr. J. F. Fernandez	...	...	City Magistrate.
„ Vishnu Narsing	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Bapalal Lalbhai	...	...	„ „
„ Lalitanand Gowrinand	...	...	„ „
„ Motilal Dalpatram	...	...	„ „
„ Ramechandra Narayen	...	...	„ „
„ Pramlal Mathuradass	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Varajdas Lalbai	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Ganpatrao Balwant	...	...	„ „
„ Kasturchand Girdhar	...	...	Pleader.
„ Balwantrao Atmaram	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Chotalal Shewlal	...	...	„ „
„ Bolanath Dowlatrai	...	...	„ „
„ Cheganlal Porbhashunker	...	...	„ „
„ Keshavlal Mulshanker	...	...	„ „
„ Karsanlal Mowji	...	...	„ „
„ Nanalal Mulji	...	...	„ „
„ Vanmalidas Nagardas	...	...	„ „
„ Jayanand Harinand	...	...	„ „
„ Adarji Jiwanji	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Ratiram Motiram	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Bapalal-Danatrarn	...	...	„ „
„ Dayabhai Birojdas	...	...	„ „
„ Balkrishna Abaji	...	...	„ „
„ Trimbak Krishna	...	...	„ „
„ Luxumon Janardan	...	...	„ „
„ Wamraji Vithal	...	...	„ „
„ Trimbuck Narayen	...	...	„ „
„ Sadashew Eshwant	...	...	„ „
„ Jagannath Keshao Kulkarni	...	...	District Government Pleader.
„ Ramechundra Annant	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Ramkrishna Balwant	...	...	„ „
„ Mahadeo Dadshet Khode	...	...	„ „
„ Kuvarji Kavasji	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Sitaram Trimbak	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Trimbuck Ballal	...	...	„ „
„ Mahipat Ramechundra	...	...	„ „
„ Balkrishna Keroji	...	...	„ „
„ Madhowsrao Balaji	...	...	„ „
„ Mahadeo Sadasheo	...	...	„ „
„ W. R. Hamilton	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Gunpat Lingo	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Govind Pundlik	...	...	„ „
„ Daji Ballal	...	...	„ „
„ Ramechandra Sadasheo	...	...	„ „
„ Bapu Purshotum	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Eshwant Balkrishna	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Ramechandra Chintamon	...	...	„ „
„ Ganesh Ramechundra	...	...	„ „
„ Balkrishna Mahadeo	...	...	„ „
„ Damodar Ganesh	...	...	„ „
„ Shridhar Wamon	...	...	„ „
„ Balkrishna Mahadeo	...	...	„ „
„ Balwant Pandurang	...	...	„ „
„ Balkrishna Devrao	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
„ Sukaram Datatrya	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Appaji Balkrishna	...	...	„ „
„ Ganpatrao Sakhararn	...	...	„ „
„ Govind Ramechandra	...	...	„ „
„ Luxumon Pandurang	...	...	„ „
„ Syed Ahmed Ali	...	...	„ „
„ C. W. Richardson	...	...	City Magistrate.
„ D. H. Plunkett	...	...	Cantonment Magistrate.
„ Modhowsrao Malliar	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
„ Khanderao Bapuji	...	...	Pleader.
„ Wasudeo Sakhararn	...	...	„ „
„ Mahadaji Sakhararn	...	...	„ „
„ Ganpatrao Mahadeo	...	...	„ „
„ Shitaram Chintamon	...	...	„ „
„ Mohoniraj Sadasheo	...	...	„ „
„ Vinayek Gopal Wagh	...	...	„ „
„ E. T. Richardson	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.

Nabab Abdool Rahiman	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
Mr. Ramchundra Anant	...	...	" "
" Kashinath Ramchandra	...	...	" "
" Amrit Bapuji	...	...	" "
" Govind Martand	...	...	" "
Surgeon-Major J. Davidson	...	...	Superintendent, Malcolm Peth.
Mr. Wasudeo Sakharan	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Bapuji Vinayak	...	...	" "
" Venkaji Sakharan	...	...	" "
" Balkrishna Nilkant Joshi	...	...	Pleader.
" Ghanasham Bapaji	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Vittulroo Appaji	...	...	" "
" Ramchundra Gundo	...	...	" "
" Appaya Hooshuti	...	...	...
" Annaji Ralyanrao	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Hanmant Govind	...	...	" "
" Rango Govind	...	...	" "
" Ramchundra Bapaji	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
Mahomed Akberkhan	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
Mr. Luxuman Raghoendra	...	...	" "
" Hunmant Binduroo	...	...	" "
" Babaji Sidheshwar	...	...	" "
" Gundo Rajirao	...	...	" "
" Bhimrao Udapi	...	...	Pleader.
" J. Hearn	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
" Ramchandra Vithal	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Ramchundra Anaji	...	...	" "
" H. Ingle	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
" M. R. Saldanha	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" B. Theodore	...	...	" "
" Rangopa Subrao	...	...	" "
" Shamrao Sakharan	...	...	" "
" Luksmi Narayan Shesgiri	...	...	" "
" E. Leggett	...	...	Solicitor.
" R. H. Alexander	...	...	Attorney-at-Law.
Kazi Abdul Satar	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Khodabux	...	...	" "
Haji Ahmed	...	...	" "
Syud Umed Ali Shah	...	...	" "
Munshi Fattchand	...	...	" "
Mirza Gulam Haider	...	...	" "
Rao Bahadur Navatrai Shokiram	...	...	Huzur Deputy Collector.
Kazi Umed Ali	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Mahomed	...	...	" "
" Mahomed Hassan	...	...	" "
" Akhund Nalechango	...	...	" "
Meya Gowhar Ali	...	...	" "
Kazi Mahomed Saki	...	...	" "
" Khan Mahomed	...	...	" "
Hazi Abdul Hafiz	...	...	" "
" Abdul Latif	...	...	" "
Mr. Dowlutram Suratsing	...	...	Pleader.
" B. Nash	...	...	Barrister at-Law.
Hazi Mahomed Azam	...	...	Special Sub-Registrar.
" Sumar Ali	...	...	" "
Major J. M. Hunter	...	...	First Asst. Political Resident.
Mr. Muncherji Rustomji	...	...	Sub-Registrar.

FORESTS.

The 28th September 1883.

No. 746 F.—In continuation of Notification No. 640 F., dated the 3rd ultimo, the following temporary promotions are made among Conservators of Forests, during the absence on three months' privilege leave of Mr. G. Greig, Conservator of Forests, 1st Grade, or until further orders, with effect from the 6th August 1883:—

Mr. B. Ribbentrop, Conservator of Forests, 2nd Grade, Punjab,—to officiate in the 1st Grade.

Mr. G. Mann, Conservator of Forests, 3rd Grade, Assam,—to officiate in the 2nd Grade.

A. MACKENZIE,

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.—SURVEYS.

Simla, the 26th September 1883.

No. 416 S.—Lieutenant G. B. Hodgson, Bengal Staff Corps, Wing Officer, 3rd Goorkha Regiment, is appointed an Assistant Superintendent, 2nd Grade, of the Survey of India, on probation, with effect from the afternoon of the 12th September 1883.

E. C. BUCK,

STAR OF INDIA.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 24th September, 1883.

No. 26 S. I.—The following notification, which appeared in the London Gazette of the 10th August, 1883, is published for general information:—

INDIA OFFICE;
August 4th, 1883.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to nominate and appoint Major Evelyn Baring, C.S.I., C.I.E., Member of the Council of the Governor-General of India, to be an Extra Knight Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

C. GRANT,
Secretary to the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.—MILITARY.

Simla, the 25th September, 1883.

No. 2318 G.—Surgeon A. H. C. Dane, M.D., Medical Officer, 1st Regiment of Bombay Native Infantry, is appointed to officiate as Medical Officer of the Bhopal Battalion and of the Bhopal Political Agency, during the absence on furlough of Surgeon-Major W. E. Allen, or until further orders.

JUDICIAL.

The 25th September, 1883.

No. 2854 I.—Whereas His Highness the Nawab of Bhawalpur has granted to the British Government full jurisdiction over a plot of land 11 acres 3 roods and 15 poles in extent, situated in Bhawalpur territory on the border of the Mooltan District of the Punjab, and required for the head-works of the Bhawalwah-Lodran Canal: In exercise of such jurisdiction and of the powers conferred by Sections 4 and 5 of Act XXI of 1879 (The Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to notify as follows:—

1. All laws for the time being in force in the Mooltan District of the Mooltan Division are hereby extended to the aforesaid portion of land.
2. The Deputy Commissioner of the Mooltan District, and the Commissioner of the Mooltan Division, for the time being, and the Chief Court of the Punjab respectively, shall exercise within the aforesaid portion of land the same executive powers as they may respectively exercise within the British territories subject to their jurisdiction.
3. All British Courts having jurisdiction within the Mooltan District shall exercise the same jurisdiction within the aforesaid portion of land.
4. Within the aforesaid portion of land the administration of the police shall be vested in the District Superintendent of Police in the Mooltan District, who shall exercise the same police powers as may be exercised by District Superintendents of Police under any law for the time being in force in the Mooltan District, in subordination to the Deputy Commissioner of the Mooltan District and the Inspector General of Police in the Punjab.

The 27th September, 1883.

No. 2876 I.—Under Section 9 of Act XV of 1872, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to license the Reverend A. D. Gray, M.A., of the United Presbyterian (Scottish) Mission, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians in the Native States comprised in the Rajputana Agency.

The 28th September, 1883.

No. 2892 I.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 12 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to invest Colonel M. M. Procter with the powers of a Magistrate of the 1st Class to be exercised within the limits of the Morar Cantonment.

No. 2893 I.—In exercise of the power conferred by Section 22 of Act X of 1882 (The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to appoint Colonel M. M. Procter to be a Justice of the Peace within the limits of the Morar Cantonment.

GENERAL.

The 25th September, 1883.

No. 2312 G.—The following temporary promotions are made in the Graded List of the Political Department:—

With effect from the 12th September, 1883, during the absence on privilege leave of Captain W. H. C. Wyllie, C.I.E., Political Agent of the 3rd Class—

Mr. Ney Elias, Political Assistant of the 1st Class, to officiate as Political Agent of the 3rd Class.

Lieutenant H. L. Ramsay, Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 1st Class.

Lieutenant C. Herbert, Officiating Political Assistant of the 3rd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 2nd Class.

With effect from the 12th September, 1883, during the absence on privilege leave of Lieutenant-Colonel C. B. Euan-Smith, C.S.I., Political Agent of the 3rd Class—

Captain N. C. Martelli, Political Assistant of the 1st Class, to officiate as Political Agent of the 3rd Class.

Pundit Sarup Narain, Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 1st Class.

Lieutenant P. J. Melvill, Officiating Political Assistant of the 3rd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 2nd Class.

With effect from the 16th September, 1883, during the absence on privilege leave of Captain J. H. Newill, Political Assistant of the 1st Class—

Captain A. M. Muir, Officiating Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 1st Class.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

SIMLA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 12th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XIII OF 1883.

An Act to declare the law in force in certain lands which have been or hereafter may be ceded by the Baháwalpur State for occupation by the Indus Valley State Railway.

WHEREAS Act X of 1880 (to declare the law in force in certain lands annexed to the Multán District) provides that all enactments which, on the second day of September, 1879, were in force in the Multán district and not in force in the lands occupied by the Indus Valley State Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the Baháwalpur State, which have been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by that State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the Lieutenant-Governorship of the Panjáb, and have by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb been annexed to the Multán district, shall be deemed to have come into force in the said lands on that day;

and whereas it is expedient to make like provision for certain other lands occupied by the same

Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which have, since the second day of September, 1879, been ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and have been declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and have by the same Lieutenant-Governor been annexed to the same district;

and whereas it is also expedient to make like provision for any lands to be hereafter occupied by the same Railway, and the works, premises and stations thereof, within the limits of the same State, which may be ceded to the British Government in full sovereignty by the same State, and may be declared by the Governor General in Council to be subject to the same Lieutenant-Governorship, and may by the same Lieutenant-Governor be annexed to the same or some other district;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Repeal of Act X of 1880. 1. Act X of 1880 is hereby repealed.

2. All enactments which, on the date on which any such lands as are referred to in the preamble to this Act have been, or may hereafter be, annexed to the Multán or any other district, were, or shall be, in force in that district, and not in the said lands, shall be deemed to have come, or, as the case may be, shall come, into force in the said lands on that date.

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT NO. XIV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH LOCAL BOARDS ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

SECTIONS.

Preliminary.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definition of "prescribed."

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. Formation of sub-districts.
4. Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.
5. Constitution of local boards.
6. Constitution of district boards.
7. Term of office of members of local boards and of certain district boards.
8. Resignation of members of those boards.
9. Removal of members of those boards.
10. Filling of casual vacancies on those boards.
11. Incorporation of district board.
12. Time for boards coming into existence.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. Chairman of local board.
14. Chairman of district board.
15. Vice-chairman of district board.
16. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
17. Resignation of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
18. Removal of chairman and vice-chairman of district board.
19. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman of district board.
20. Chairman appointed by Local Government to be member of district board.
21. Chairman of local board and chairman or vice-chairman of district board re-eligible.
22. Person to preside at meeting of district board.

SECTIONS.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. Notification of elections, &c.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Matters to be administered by district boards.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Local board to be agent of district board.
26. Control of district board over local boards.

Joint Committees.

27. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Vote of majority decisive.
31. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
32. Resolutions to be recorded.
33. Power to make rules as to conduct of business.

Officers and Servants.

34. Appointment of secretary.
35. Employment of other officers and servants.
36. Pensions and allowances of Government officials serving boards.
37. Pensions and allowances of servants of boards.

District Fund.

38. Constitution of district fund.
39. Vesting, custody and investment of district fund.
40. Application of the district fund.

Control.

41. Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.
42. Power of Commissioner to suspend action under this Act.
43. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
44. Powers of Local Government in cases of default of district board.
45. Power to supersede district board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.

Forms and Rules.

47. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.
48. Procedure for making rules.
49. Publication of rules.

SECTIONS.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Acquisition of land.
 51. Penalty on member, officer or servant being interested in contracts made with board or committee.
 52. Saving of Act XI of 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. Power of Local Government to except local area from operation of Act.
 54. Case of sub-district excepted from provisions regarding election.
 55. Administrative committee to be appointed for district wholly excepted from Act.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

56. Section 11, clause (c), Act III of 1878, amended.
 57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of same repealed.
 58. New section substituted for section 14 of same.

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

59. Section 11, clause (c), Act IV of 1878, amended.
 60. Sections 12 and 14 of same repealed.
 61. New section substituted for section 13 of same.

Contracts made by, and Government Officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

62. Contracts of local rates committees.
 63. Government officers serving under committees to continue under board.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. New section to follow section 7 of Act XVII of 1878.
 65. Amendments of sections 6 and 17 of same Act.

An Act to provide for the constitution of Local Boards in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the constitution of local bodies in each district in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to administer the expenditure of that portion of the rates levied on land which is applicable to local purposes in that district, and of the income accruing from certain other sources of revenue which may, from time to time, be made applicable to the like purposes; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preliminary.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.
 Short title.
 (2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and
 Local extent.
 (3) It shall come into force on the first day of November, 1883.
 Commencement.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—
 Definition of "prescribed."

"Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under section 17

Constitution of Local Boards and District Boards.

3. (1) The Local Government shall, by order in writing, for the purposes of this Act, divide each district into sub-districts.
 Formation of sub-districts.

(2) There shall be excluded from the sub-districts formed under this section such portions of the district as are for the time being included in the limits of a military cantonment or of a municipality, and, unless the Local Government otherwise directs, the portions of the district (if any) in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaukidars in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bazaris in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, by order in writing, vary any order made under this section.

4. There shall be established for each sub-district a local board having authority over that sub-district, and for each district a district board having authority over the entire district, except such portions thereof as are excluded from the sub-districts under section 3, sub-section (2).
 Establishment of local boards for sub-districts and of district boards for districts.

5. (1) The local board for a sub-district shall consist of so many elected members and so many nominated members as the Local Government may, from time to time, fix in this behalf:

Provided that the nominated members shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the board.

(2) The elective members of a local board shall be elected in manner prescribed.

(3) The persons entitled to vote at the election shall be nominated by the Local Government or determined in such other manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that the persons entitled to vote at the election of a member shall not be less than twenty-five in number.

(4) A person to be qualified for election must, at the time of his election, be an elector, and reside, or own landed property, or carry on trade or business, in the sub-district.

(5) The nominated members shall be such persons as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 47, from time to time, nominate in this behalf.

6. (1) The district board for a district shall, except as next hereinafter provided, consist of all persons who for the time being are members of the local boards of the sub-districts comprised in that district.
 Constitution of district boards.

(2) The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that the district board for a district shall consist of so many of the elected members of each local board as it thinks fit, elected in this behalf by the local board in manner prescribed, and such of the nominated members of each local board as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf:

Provided that the nominated members of local boards so appointed by the Local Government shall not exceed in number one-fourth of the district board.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 7-14.

(3) The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, rescind any direction issued under sub-section (2) with effect from the date on which all the persons holding office as members of the district board at the date of the notification shall, under the provisions of this Act, have vacated their offices as such members.

7. (1) The term of office of a member of a local board and of a member of a district board elected or appointed under section 6, sub-section (2), shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election, nomination or appointment.

8. A member of a local board and a member of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on the acceptance by the Local Government of such resignation, the member shall be deemed to have vacated his office as such member.

9. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a local board or of a district board elected or appointed as aforesaid who refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the local board, or, when he is a member of the district board, without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of that board.

10. (1) When the place of an elected member of a local board or of a member of a district board elected as aforesaid becomes vacant by the resignation or removal of the member or by his death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of nominated members of a local board fixed by section 5, and to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of a district board fixed by section 6, direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of a nominated member of a local board or an appointed member of a district board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 47, nominate or appoint, as the case may be, a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected, nominated or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but shall be again eligible for election, nomination or appointment.

11. Every district board shall be a body corporate by the name of the district board of its district, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, to transfer any moveable property and, with the previous approval in writing of the Commissioner of the division, any immoveable property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

12. The several local boards and district boards constituted under this Act shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Chairmen and Vice-chairmen.

13. (1) Every local board shall, from time to time, elect one of its members to be chairman.

(2) The term of office of a chairman so elected shall be the residue of his term of office as a member of the board.

(3) If the chairman so elected dies, resigns or is removed from his office as a member of the board, resigns the office of chairman or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall elect another of its members to be chairman for the period during which the person so dying, resigning, removed or becoming incapable would have been entitled to continue in office, and no longer.

(4) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant or the chairman is absent from the meeting, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

14. (1) Every district board shall, on first coming into existence and thereafter whenever the term of office of its chairman expires under this Act, take into consideration, at a special meeting convened for the purpose within the time prescribed, the appointment of a chairman, and, if the meeting is attended by not less than three-fourths of the members of the board, may, by a majority of the members present,—

(a) determine whether the chairman shall be elected, or his appointment shall be left to be made by the Local Government, and

(b) if it is determined that the chairman shall be elected, elect one of its members to be chairman; and the Local Government may, if it approves of the person so elected, declare him to be chairman of the board.

(2) If no such meeting is held within the time prescribed, or if three-fourths of the members of the board are not present at the meeting, or, where several meetings are convened under this section, at any of those meetings, or if no such election takes place, or if the person elected is not approved of by the Local Government, the Local Government shall appoint as chairman, by name or by virtue of his office, such person as it thinks fit.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 15-24.

15. At a special meeting held under section 14, or at another special meeting held for this purpose, the district board shall elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

16. (1) The term of office of an elected chairman of a district board shall be the residue of his term of office as member of the board.

(2) The term of office of an appointed chairman of a district board shall be such term, not exceeding three years, as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman of a district board shall be one year, or when at the time of his election the residue of his term of office as member is less than one year, the residue of that term.

17. (1) A chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government; and, on such resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A vice-chairman of a district board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board; and, on such resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

18. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a district board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act, or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he without sufficient excuse neglects for more than six consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

19. (1) If an elected chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, a special meeting of the board shall be held within the period prescribed, and a new chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 14.

(2) If an appointed chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) If a vice-chairman of a district board dies, resigns, is removed or becomes incapable of acting, the board shall, at a special meeting held for this purpose, select one of its members to be vice-chairman in his place.

(4) A chairman or vice-chairman elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office:

Provided that a person so elected shall go out of office on ceasing to be a member of the board.

20. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a chairman appointed by the Local Government to be member of district board, sub-section (2), or section 19, sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), shall, if he is not already a member of the district board, become a member thereof by virtue of such appointment, and continue to be a member thereof while he holds the office of chairman.

21. A chairman of a local board, and a chairman or vice-chairman of a district board, if otherwise qualified, shall on going out of office be again eligible for election or appointment.

22. (1) At every meeting of a district board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

Notification of Elections, &c.

23. All elections, nominations and appointments of members of local boards and district boards, and of chairmen of district boards, and all vacancies in these offices, shall be notified in the local official Gazette.

Duties of District Boards.

24. Every district board shall, so far as the funds at its disposal will permit, but subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, provide for the control and administration of the following matters within the area subject to its authority:—

- (a) the construction, repair and maintenance of public roads and other means of communication;
- (b) the planting and preservation of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground;
- (c) the establishment, management, maintenance and visiting of schools, hospitals, dispensaries, markets, staging-houses, inspection-houses and other public institutions, and the construction and repair of all buildings connected with these institutions;
- (d) the construction and repair of public wells, tanks and water-works, and the supply of water from them and from other sources;
- (e) the establishment and maintenance of such relief-works in time of famine or scarcity as may be entrusted to the charge of the board by the Local Government;
- (f) the establishment and management of pounds, including, where the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871, is in force, such functions of the Local Government and the Magistrate of the district under that Act as may be transferred to the district board by the Local Government;

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 25-33.

- (g) the management of such public ferries as may be entrusted to its charge under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act;
- (h) the regulation of encamping-grounds and, where the Sarāis Act, 1867, is in force, of sarāis and parāos, including such functions of the Magistrate of the district under that Act as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct;
- (i) the institution, holding and management of agricultural shows and industrial exhibitions;
- (j) the maintenance of any building or other property which is vested under this Act in the district board, or may be placed by the Local Government under the management of that board; and
- (k) any other local works or measures likely to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the public.

Duties of Local Boards and their Relations to District Boards.

25. Every local board shall, in the sub-district Local board to be agent of district board. under its authority, be the agent of the district board, and, as such agent, shall have such authority and discharge such duties in respect of all or any of the matters specified in section 24 as the district board may, by written authority in that behalf, from time to time, confer or impose upon it.

26. The district board may, by a resolution Control of district board over local boards. passed by two-thirds of the members present at a meeting, either on complaint made to it or of its own motion, reverse or vary any order or other proceeding of any local board within the district:

Provided that, except for reasons recorded in writing, no such resolution shall be passed until the local board has been allowed an opportunity of showing cause against the same.

Joint Committees.

27. (1) A district board may, from time to time, Joint committees. concur with any other district board, or with the board of any municipality, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, a joint committee for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of such committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division, or of the Local Government if those areas are in different divisions, shall be final.

Conduct of Business.

28. (1) A meeting of a district board or local board shall be either ordinary or special. Ordinary and special meetings.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of a district board or local board shall, except where otherwise provided by this Act, be one-half of the whole board. Quorum.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a district board or local board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under this Act:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before and transacted at the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Act or by any rule made under this Act, all questions coming before a meeting of a district board or local board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present. Vote of majority decisive.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

31. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall be entitled to attend any meeting of a district board or local board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.

32. (1) Every resolution passed by a district board or local board at a meeting shall be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, and shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next ensuing meeting. Resolutions to be recorded.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a local board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the district board.

(3) A copy of every resolution passed by a district board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

33. Every district board, and, with the previous sanction of the district board, every local board, may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act and with any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 34-40.

- (c) the conduct of proceedings at meetings;
- (d) the division of duties among the members of the board; and
- (e) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act.

Officers and Servants.

34. (1) Every district board and every local board shall, from time to time, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a secretary appointed under this section is a member of the board, he shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. If he is not a member of the board, the district board may, with the previous sanction of the Commissioner of the division, assign to him such pay as it thinks fit.

35. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, every district board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary and proper for the efficient execution of its duties and of the duties of the local boards in the district, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit and as may be approved by the Commissioner of the division.

Pensions and allowances of Government officials serving boards.

36. In the case of a Government official, any district board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave-allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

37. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 36, any district board may—

(1) grant him leave-allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

(a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave-allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or

(b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement:

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave-allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which, under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, the servant would be entitled if the service had been service under the Government.

District Fund.

38. There shall be formed for each district a fund, to be called the district fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(a) the balance (if any) of the allotments made for the district under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, which may be available for expenditure in the district on the day on which the district board comes into existence; III of 1
IV of 18

(b) all sums which may, from time to time, be allotted by the Local Government to the district fund under section 11 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, as amended by this Act; III of 1
IV of 18

and, subject to such exceptions and conditions as the Local Government may, from time to time, make and impose, the following, namely:—

(c) the surplus accruing in the district under section 18 of the Cattle-trespass Act, 1871; I of 187

(d) the proceeds of public ferries payable into the district fund under section 7A of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, as amended by this Act; XVII of

(e) receipts from encamping-grounds under the regulation of the district board;

(f) the sale-proceeds of grass and of the produce of trees on the sides of roads and on other public ground under the control and administration of the district board, and of timber fallen or felled thereon;

(g) receipts from property vested in the district board;

(h) rents and profits accruing from nazul and other property placed by the Local Government under the management of the district board;

(i) other sums assigned to the district fund by the Local Government;

(j) sums contributed to the district fund by local bodies or private persons; and

(k) all other sums received by or on behalf of the district board in the carrying out of this Act.

39. (1) The district fund shall be vested in the district board, and the balance standing at the credit of the fund shall be kept in the Government treasury of the district or in the bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over.

(2) Subject to such rules as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, the district board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of the district fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the same nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the district fund.

40. (1) The district fund shall be charged with the payment of the expenses incurred in auditing the accounts of the district and local boards, and such portion of the cost of the

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 41-45.

Provincial Departments for education, sanitation, vaccination, medical relief and public works as may be held by the Local Government to be equitably debitable to the district board in return for services rendered to the board by those Departments.

(2) Subject to the charges specified in subsection (1), the district fund shall be applicable to the payment, in whole or in part, of the charges and expenses incidental to the several matters specified in sections 21, 31, 35, 36 and 37 within the area subject to the authority of the district board, and, with the sanction of the Local Government, outside that area when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of that area.

Control.

Control of Commissioner and Magistrate over boards and joint committees.

district board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immoveable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any local board, district board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents, relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between officers exercising the powers conferred by subsection (1), it shall be referred—

- (a) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in the same division, to the Commissioner; and
- (b) if it arises between two or more Magistrates in different divisions or between two or more Commissioners, to the Local Government; and the decision thereon of the Commissioner or of the Local Government, as the case may be, shall be final.

42. (1) A Commissioner may, by order in writing, suspend within his division the execution of any resolution or order of a local board, district board or joint committee, and may prohibit the doing of any act which is about to be done or is being done within his division in pursuance of, or under cover of, this Act, if, in his opinion, such resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of such resolution or order, or the doing of such act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

(2) When the Commissioner makes any such order, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order, or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

43. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate of the district may provide for the execution of any work, or the doing of any act, which a district board or local board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is, in his opinion, necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the district board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers given to him by this section.

44. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that any district board has made default in performing, or has inefficiently performed, any duty imposed on it by this or any other Act for the time being in force, the Local Government may, by order in writing, direct the district board to perform that duty, or to take such measures as the Local Government may think proper for the performance thereof, and may fix a time within which the duty shall be performed or the measures shall be taken.

(2) If the order is not obeyed to the satisfaction of the Local Government within the time fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to execute it, and may direct that the expense of executing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the district board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the district fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

45. (1) If a district board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this Act or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare the board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and supersede it for a period to be specified in the order.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 46-51.

(2) When the district board of a district is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue :—

- (a) all members of the board and all members of the local boards of the district shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members ;
- (b) all powers and duties of the district board may, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that, behalf ;
- (c) all property vested in the district board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the local boards and district board shall be re-established, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for nomination, appointment or election.

Liability of Members of Boards.

46. A person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the district board if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of a local board or of the district board ; and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him in any Court of competent jurisdiction by the district board with the sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

Forms and Rules.

47. The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

- (a) as to the method and time of election of elective members of local boards, and, where a notification under section 6, sub-section (2), is in force, of elective members of district boards ;
- (b) as to the nomination of members of local boards under section 5 ;
- (c) as to the mode of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively, the notice to be given of such meetings, the business that may be transacted at ordinary and special meetings respectively, and the majority by which any question which may come before a board at a meeting shall be decided ;
- (d) as to the division of duties among the members of the board ;
- (e) as to the mode of entering into and executing contracts and transfers of property on behalf of district boards, and the authority on which money may be paid from the district fund ;
- (f) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of district boards, and as to the authority by which,

and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned ;

- (g) for the guidance of district boards when suits or other proceedings are intended to be, or have been, instituted by or against them in Civil Courts ;
- (h) as to the office or offices through which correspondence of, and with, local boards and district boards and representations to the Local Government under this Act shall pass ;
- (i) as to the accounts to be kept, and as to the manner in which those accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge ;
- (j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure, and the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned ;
- (k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by local boards and district boards respectively ;
- (l) as to the language of the board ;
- (m) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill ; and
- (n) generally, for the guidance of local boards, district boards and officers of Government in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act and for settling their relations to one another.

48. The Local Government shall, before making any rules under section 47, publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, together with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration, and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

49. Every rule made under section 47 shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct ; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by section 48.

Supplemental Provisions.

50. Where any land is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the district board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870 ; and, on payment by the district board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the district board.

51. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a local board, district board or joint committee appointed under this Act is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner of the division, directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with such board or committee, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 168 of the Indian Penal Code :

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 52-59.

(2) A person shall not by reason of being a shareholder in, or a member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and a board or committee, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board or committee relating to any such contract.

Saving of Act XI of 1879.

52. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

Exceptional Provisions.

53. If the circumstances of any district or part of a district are, in the opinion of the Local Government, such that all or any of the provisions of this Act are unsuited thereto, the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, except the district or part from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply to the excepted district or part until again applied thereto by a like notification.

54. When a sub-district is excepted, under section 53, from the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a local board shall be elected, the Local Government may itself appoint all such members.

55. When a district is excepted, under section 53, from all the provisions of this Act, a committee shall be appointed for the control and administration in that district of the matters mentioned in section 24, or of such of them as the Local Government may, from time to time, specify; and the Local Government shall, from time to time, determine the manner in which the members of the committee shall be appointed and removed, define the functions and authority of the committee, and place at its disposal, subject to such control as the Local Government thinks fit, the amounts mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of section 38, and such of the sources of income mentioned in the other clauses of that section as the Local Government thinks fit :

Provided that not less than one-half of the members of the committee shall be persons who own landed property, or reside or carry on trade or business, in the district, and are not in the service of Government.

Amendment of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878.

56. For section 11, clause (c), of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to the appropriation directed by clause (a), the Lieutenant-Governor may, from time to time, reserve from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in or for the benefit of each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the maintenance of the village and road police and the district-post;
- (2) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (3) the registration of traffic; and
- (4) any other matter tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than nine-tenths of the proceeds of the rates assessed under the first clause of section four and the first clause of section five in such district in such year.”

57. Sections 12, 13 and 15 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, are III of 1878. repealed.

58. For section 14 of the said North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“14. Accounts of the receipts in respect of all rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted for the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Amendment of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878.

59. For section 11, clause (c), of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“(c) Subject to such appropriation, the Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, reserve from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to be applied in, or for the benefit of, each district for expenditure on all or any of the following matters:—

- (1) the construction, repair and maintenance of lunatic asylums;
- (2) the registration of traffic; and
- (3) any other matters tending to promote the welfare of the district which it is in his opinion necessary to place under provincial and not under local administration.

“(d) Subject as aforesaid, the Chief Commissioner may allot from such fund such amounts as he thinks fit to the district fund constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883 :

“Provided that the amounts so reserved and allotted in any year for the benefit of any district shall not be less than one-half of the proceeds of the rates assessed in such district in such year.”

N.-W. P. and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883—Sections 60-65.

of 1878. 60. Sections 12 and 14 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, are repealed.

of 1878. 61. For section 13 of the said Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“13. Accounts of the receipts in respect of all rates levied under this Act shall be kept in each district, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of the district board constituted for the district under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Boards Act, 1883.

“An abstract of such accounts shall also be published annually in the local official Gazette.”

Contracts made by, and Government officers employed by, Committees under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Local Rates Acts.

of 1878. 62. Every contract entered into, whether in its own name or in the name of the Government, by the committee appointed in a district under section 15 of the North-Western Provinces Local Rates Act, 1878, or section 14 of the Oudh Local Rates Act, 1878, may be enforced by and against the district board constituted for that district under this Act, in like manner as it might have been by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed.

63. A Government officer employed under the committee appointed in a district as aforesaid at the time when a district board comes into existence for the district under section 12 of this Act shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without the sanction of the Local Government.

Amendment of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878.

64. After section seven of the Northern India Ferries Act, 1878, the following shall be inserted, namely:—

“7A. The Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh may direct that any public ferry wholly or partly within the area subject to the authority of a district board in any district in the North-Western Provinces or Oudh, as the case may be, be managed by that board, and may further direct that all or any part of the proceeds from such ferry be paid into the district fund of that district; and thereupon such ferry shall be managed, and such proceeds or part thereof shall be paid, accordingly.”

65. In section six of the same Act, after the words “section seven,” and in section seventeen of the same Act, after the words “section seven” where they first occur, the following shall be inserted, namely:—“and section 7A.”

D. FITZPATRICK,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 14th September, 1883, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XV OF 1883.

THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES
AND OUDH MUNICIPALITIES
ACT, 1883.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

SECTIONS.

1. Short title.
Local extent.
Commencement.
2. Definitions.
3. Notification of intention to apply Act.
4. Application of Act.
5. Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. Board to consist of elected and appointed members.
7. Magistrate to convene meeting to determine system of election.
8. Persons to be invited to meeting.
9. Matters to be considered at the meeting.
10. Power to Local Government to make rules regarding election.
11. Term of office of member of board.
12. Resignation of member.
13. Removal of member.
14. Filling of casual vacancies.
15. Incorporation of municipal board.
16. Time for boards coming into existence.
17. Consequences of establishment of municipal board where municipal committee exists or Act XX of 1856 is in force.

SECTIONS.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. Election or appointment of chairman.
19. Election of vice-chairman.
20. Term of office of chairman and vice-chairman.
21. Resignation of chairman or vice-chairman.
22. Removal of chairman or vice-chairman.
23. Casual vacancies in office of chairman or vice-chairman.
24. Chairman to become member if not already member.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Notification of elections, appointments and vacancies.

Joint Committees.

26. Joint committees.

Conduct of Business.

27. Time for holding meetings.
28. Ordinary and special meetings.
29. Quorum.
30. Chairman of meeting.
31. Vote of majority decisive.
32. Certain officers entitled to attend and speak.
33. Resolutions to be recorded and published.
34. Power to make rules as to meetings and proceedings.

Officers and Servants.

35. Appointment of secretary.
36. Employment of other officers and servants.
37. Pensions of Government officials serving boards.
38. Pensions of servants of boards.

Contracts.

39. Authority to contract.
40. Mode of executing contracts.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Taxes which may be imposed.
42. Procedure in imposing taxes.
43. Tax not invalid for defect of form.
44. Power to abolish or reduce tax.
45. Taxes leviable under Act XV of 1873 to be deemed to be taxes under this Act.
46. Recovery of taxes.

Municipal Fund.

47. Constitution and application of municipal fund.
48. Custody and investment of municipal fund.

SECTIONS.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS

GENERALLY.

Municipal Police.

49. Police-establishment.
50. Constitution of establishment.
51. Appointment, punishment and duties of municipal watchmen.
52. Duties of municipal police enrolled under Act V of 1861.
53. Powers under section 34 of Act V of 1861.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Duties of municipal board generally.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. Power to make rules.
56. Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.
57. Powers as to conditional orders in respect of certain acts and omissions.
58. Delegation of powers under sections 56 and 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. Control by Commissioner or Magistrate.
60. Power to suspend action under Act.
61. Extraordinary powers of Magistrate in case of emergency.
62. Powers of Local Government in case of default of board.
63. Power of Local Government to supersede board in case of incompetency, persistent default or abuse of powers.
64. Power of Local Government to frame forms and make rules.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. Penalty on member, officer or servant of board being interested in contract made with board.
66. Liability of members for loss, waste or misapplication.
67. Acquisition of land under Act X of 1870.
68. Procedure for making rules.
69. Prosecutions.
70. Saving of prosecutions under other laws.
71. Continuance of existing rules.
72. Notification of intention to alter limits of municipality.
73. Alteration of limits of municipality.
74. Effect of exclusion of local area from municipality.
75. Effect of including local area in municipality.
76. Saving of Act XI of 1879.
77. Member of municipal board to be municipal commissioner.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. Power to except municipalities from operation of provisions of Act regarding election.
79. Power to withdraw municipal area altogether from operation of this Act or Act XV of 1873.

An Act to make better provision for the Organization and Administration of Municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make better provision for the organization and administration of municipalities in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.

Short title.

(2) It extends to the territories for the time being administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces and the Chief Commissioner of Oudh; and

Commencement.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of November, 1883.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definitions.

(a) "Municipality" means a local area to which this Act has been applied under section 4 or section 5.

(b) "Honorary Magistrate" means a Magistrate who holds no salaried office in any department of the Government service.

(c) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules made by the Local Government under this Act.

3. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may from time to time determine, declare its intention to apply this Act to any town or to any group of towns in the immediate neighbourhood of one another.

(2) Every notification under this section shall define the limits of the town or group of towns to which it refers, and may include within those limits any railway-station, village, building or land in the vicinity of any such town:

Provided that it shall not, without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council, so include any part of a military cantonment.

4. (1) Any inhabitant of a local area in respect of which a notification has been published under section 3 may, if he objects to the application of the Act, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under subsection (1), the Local Government may, by a notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to the local area.

5. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, apply this Act to any local area which is a municipality established under the North-

Special rule as to application of Act to towns to which Act XV of 1873 applies.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 6-13.

Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, and shall, within three months from the date on which this Act comes into force, so apply it to every such local area unless before the expiration of that period—

- (a) the Act has been applied under section 4 to some local area in which that local area is comprised; or
- (b) the Local Government has declared, by a notification in the official Gazette, that the provisions of this Act are unsuited to that local area.

CHAPTER II.

ORGANIZATION OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS.

Constitution of Boards.

6. There shall be established for each municipality a municipal board having authority over that municipality, and consisting of—

Board to consist of elected and appointed members.

- (a) so many elected members as may be determined in manner prescribed, representing wards of the municipality or particular classes of the inhabitants; and
- (b) such person or persons (if any), not exceeding in number one-fourth of the board, as the Local Government may, subject to the rules made under section 64, from time to time, appoint in this behalf.

7. (1) The Magistrate of the district within which any municipality is situate shall, within one month from the date on which this Act has been applied to the municipality under section 4 or section 5, issue notices in writing to the persons mentioned in section 8, inviting them to meet at a time and place specified in the notices, for the purpose of preparing and submitting, within such further time not exceeding three months from the date of the meeting as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, proposals for determining the system of representation and election to be established in the municipality.

(2) The Local Government may, for special reasons, grant an extension, not exceeding one month, of the time fixed under this section for submitting proposals.

8. Notices under section 7 shall be issued to the following persons, namely:—

Persons to be invited to meeting.

- (a) all Honorary Magistrates having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality;
- (b) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a municipal committee has been appointed under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the members of that committee;
- (c) when the municipality comprises any local area for which a panchayat has been appointed under Act XX of 1856, the members of that panchayat; and
- (d) any leading residents of the municipality not included under the foregoing clauses who in the opinion of the Magistrate of the district should be allowed to take part

9. The persons who meet in compliance with the notices issued under section 7 shall consider, and shall, within the time limited under that section, submit through the Magistrate of the district to the Local Government proposals regarding the following matters, namely:—

- (a) the division of the municipality into wards;
- (b) the number of representatives proper for each ward;
- (c) the provision (if any) to be made for the special representation of any classes of the community;
- (d) the qualifications of electors and of candidates for election;
- (e) the registration of electors;
- (f) the nomination of candidates, the time of election and the mode of recording votes; and
- (g) any other matters regarding the system of representation and of election which it may seem to the meeting expedient to consider.

10. (1) The Local Government shall, after taking into consideration the proposals (if any) submitted under section 9, make rules regulating the matters referred to in that section, and may in making such rules direct that the breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

(2) The Local Government may, after the municipal board has come into existence as herein-after provided, from time to time amend, after consulting the board, the rules made under this section; but no amendment made under this sub-section shall take effect until six months after it has been published in the official Gazette.

(3) Elective members of the board shall be elected in accordance with the rules made under this section and for the time being in force.

11. (1) The term of office of a member of a municipal board shall be fixed, from time to time, by the Local Government by rules made under this Act, and may be so fixed as to provide for the retirement of members by rotation, but shall not exceed three years.

(2) An outgoing member shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

12. A member of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

13. The Local Government may, from time to time, remove any member of a municipal board who refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting, or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be a member, or who without sufficient excuse neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 14-20.

14. (1) When the place of an elected member of a municipal board becomes vacant by his resignation, removal or death, a new member shall be elected in manner prescribed to fill the place:

Provided that the Local Government may, subject to the limitation of the proportion of appointed members of the board fixed by section 6, clause (b), direct in any such case that the vacancy shall be left unfilled.

(2) When the place of an appointed member of a municipal board becomes vacant as aforesaid, the Local Government may, if it thinks fit, but subject to the rules made under section 64, appoint a new member to fill the place.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office, but shall be again eligible for election or appointment.

15. Every municipal board shall be a body corporate by the name of the municipal board of its municipality, shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable, and, subject to the rules made under section 64, to transfer any property held by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purposes of its constitution, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name.

16. A municipal board shall come into existence at such time as the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

17. (1) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area which is a municipality under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the following consequences shall ensue, namely:—

(a) the said North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act shall cease to apply to the local area;

(b) the municipal committee (if any) constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist;

(c) all property vested in that committee shall vest in the municipal board for the purposes of this Act, subject to all rights (if any) existing over, and all debts, liabilities and obligations (if any) affecting, that property;

(d) every right and liability belonging to or incurred by the committee may be enforced by and against the board in like manner as it might have been enforced by and against the committee if this Act had not been passed;

(e) a Government officer employed by the committee at the time when the board comes into existence shall be deemed to be similarly employed by the board, and shall not be dismissed from that employment without

(f) the board shall be substituted for the committee in all legal proceedings by or against the committee pending at the time when the board comes into existence.

(2) When a municipal board comes into existence under section 16 for a municipality constituted under this Act, and that municipality comprises within its limits a local area in which Act XX of 1856 (an Act to make better provision for the appointment and maintenance of Police Chaukidars in Cities, Towns, Stations, Suburbs and Bazaras in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal) is in force, that Act shall cease to have effect in the local area, and every panchayat constituted under that Act for the local area shall cease to exist.

Chairman and Vice-chairman.

18. A municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect as its chairman one of its own members or some other person qualified for election as a member, and the member or other person so elected shall, if the election is approved by the Local Government, but not otherwise, become chairman of the board:

Provided that—

(a) If the office of chairman remains vacant for three months from the date of the first meeting of the board, or in the case of a vacancy afterwards occurring, from the occurrence of that vacancy, and no person is within that period elected under this section to fill it, the Local Government may in its discretion appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman; and

(b) in such municipalities as the Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt from the operation of this section, the Local Government may, from time to time, appoint such person as it thinks fit by name or by virtue of his office to be chairman.

19. In every municipality the board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, elect one or two of its members to be its vice-chairman or vice-chairmen.

20. (1) The term of office of a member of the board elected to be chairman shall be the residue of his term of office as member.

(2) The term of office of any other person elected to be chairman, or of a chairman appointed by the Local Government, shall be such term not exceeding three years as the Local Government may, from time to time, by rule prescribe.

(3) The term of office of a vice-chairman shall be one year: Provided that when at the time of his election as vice-chairman the residue of his term of office as member of the board is less than one year, his term of office as vice-chairman shall be the residue of his term as member.

(4) An outgoing chairman or vice-chairman shall if otherwise qualified be again eligible for

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 21-31.

21. (1) A chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the Local Government, and, on his resignation being accepted by the Local Government, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

(2) A vice-chairman of a municipal board may resign by notifying in writing his intention to do so to the board, and, on his resignation being accepted by the board, he shall be deemed to have vacated his office.

22. The Local Government may remove any chairman or vice-chairman of a municipal board from his office as such chairman or vice-chairman if he refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting or is declared an insolvent, or is convicted of any such offence, or subjected by a Criminal Court to any such order, as implies, in the opinion of the Local Government, a defect of character which unfits him to be chairman or vice-chairman, or if he, without sufficient excuse, neglects for more than three consecutive months to be present at the meetings of the board.

23. (1) If an elected chairman or vice-chairman dies or resigns his office, or office of chairman or vice-chairman is removed, a new chairman or vice-chairman shall be elected or appointed in manner provided by section 18 or section 19, as the case may be.

(2) If a chairman appointed by the Local Government dies, resigns his office or is removed, the Local Government shall appoint another chairman.

(3) A person elected or appointed under this section to fill a casual vacancy shall hold office until the person whose place he fills would regularly have gone out of office, and shall then go out of office. Provided that if a person so elected is a member of the board at the time of his election, he shall go out of office on ceasing to be a member.

(4) A person going out of office under subsection (3) shall, if otherwise qualified, be again eligible for election or appointment.

24. When a person not already a member of the board is elected or appointed chairman, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of his election or appointment, and shall continue to be a member so long as he holds office as chairman.

Notification of Elections, Appointments and Vacancies.

25. Every election and appointment of a member or chairman of a municipal board and every vacancy in the office of member or chairman shall be notified in the official Gazette.

Joint Committees.

26. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, concur with any other municipal board, or with a district board, or with a cantonment authority, or with more than one such board or authority, in appointing, out of their respective bodies, are jointly interested, and in appointing a chairman of the committee, and in delegating to any such committee any power which might be exercised by either or any of the boards or authorities, and in framing and modifying regulations as to the proceedings of any such committee, and as to the conduct of correspondence relating to the purpose for which the committee is appointed.

(2) If any difference of opinion arises between boards or authorities acting under this section, the decision thereon of the Commissioner of the division, if the areas under the boards and authorities are in the same division, or of the Local Government if those areas are in different divisions, shall be final.

Conduct of Business.

27. (1) A municipal board shall meet for the transaction of business at least once in every month on such day as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34.

(2) The chairman, or, in his absence, a vice-chairman, may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth of the members of the board, convene either an ordinary or a special meeting at any other time.

28. (1) A meeting of a municipal board shall be either ordinary or special.

(2) Any business may be transacted at an ordinary meeting unless it is required by this Act or the rules made under this Act to be transacted at a special meeting.

29. (1) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at a special meeting of a municipal board shall be one-half of the whole board.

(2) The quorum necessary for the transaction of business at an ordinary meeting of a municipal board shall be such number or proportion of the members of the board as may, from time to time, be fixed by the rules made under section 34:

Provided that, if at any ordinary or special meeting of the board a quorum is not present, the chairman shall adjourn the meeting to such other day as he thinks fit, and the business which would have been brought before the original meeting if there had been a quorum present shall be brought before, and transacted at, the adjourned meeting whether there is a quorum present thereat or not.

30. (1) At every meeting of a municipal board the chairman, if present, shall preside.

(2) If, when any meeting is held, the office of chairman is vacant, or the chairman is absent from the meeting, and a vice-chairman is present, such vice-chairman, or, when two vice-chairmen are present, the senior of them by date of appointment, shall preside.

(3) In any case not provided for in the foregoing portion of this section, the members present shall elect one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

31. (1) Except as otherwise provided by this Act, or by any rule made

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter II.—Organization of Municipal Boards—Sections 32-40.

under this Act, all questions which may come before any meeting of a municipal board shall be decided by a majority of the votes of the members present.

(2) In case of an equality of votes, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

32. The Civil Surgeon of the district, the Executive Engineer of the division, and the Inspector of Schools of the circle, shall be entitled to attend any meeting of the board, and to address the board on any matter affecting respectively sanitation, public works and public instruction.

33. (1) Every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall be recorded and published. Resolutions to be recorded in a book kept for the purpose, shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or the next ensuing meeting, and shall be published in some local English or Vernacular newspaper, or in such other manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

(2) A copy of every resolution passed by a municipal board at a meeting shall, within ten days from the date of the meeting, be forwarded to the Magistrate of the district.

34. (1) Every municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules consistent with this Act and any rules made under this Act by the Local Government as to—

- (a) the time and place of its meetings;
- (b) the manner of convening ordinary and special meetings respectively and of giving notice thereof;
- (c) the quorum necessary for the transaction of business at ordinary meetings;
- (d) the conduct of proceedings at meetings, and the adjournment of meetings;
- (e) the division of duties among the members of the board;
- (f) the persons by whom receipts may be granted on behalf of the board for money paid under this Act; and
- (g) all other similar matters.

(2) Every rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Local Government may from time to time direct.

Officers and Servants.

35. (1) Every municipal board shall, from time to time, at a special meeting, appoint one or more of its members, or, with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, any other person or persons, to be its secretary or secretaries, and may at a like meeting remove any person so appointed.

(2) If a person who is an officer in the service of the Government, and who is not a member of the board, is appointed secretary, he shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, become a member of the board by virtue of such appointment, and shall continue to be a member of the board as long as he holds the office of secretary.

(3) When a member of the board is appointed to be secretary, he shall receive no remuneration in respect of his services. In other cases,

Commissioner, assign to a secretary any such pay as it thinks fit.

36. Subject to the other provisions of this Act, and to such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make prescribing the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed to offices requiring professional skill, a municipal board may employ, in addition to its secretary or secretaries, such other officers and servants as may be necessary or proper for the efficient execution of its duties, and may assign to such officers and servants such pay as it thinks fit.

37. In the case of a Government official employed by a municipal board, the board may—

(1) if his services are wholly lent to it, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in accordance with the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; and

(2) if he devotes only a part of his time to the performance of duties in behalf of the board, contribute to his pension, gratuities and leave allowances in such proportion as may be determined by the Government.

38. In the case of a servant not being a Government official referred to in section 37, a board may—

(1) grant him leave allowances and, if his monthly pay is less than ten rupees, gratuities; and

(2) if empowered in this behalf by the Local Government—

(a) subscribe in his behalf for pension, gratuities and leave allowances under the rules of the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force; or

(b) purchase for him from the Government or otherwise an annuity on his retirement:

Provided that no pension, gratuity, leave allowance or annuity shall exceed the sum to which, under the Government Civil Pension and Leave Codes for the time being in force, he would be entitled if the service had been service under the Government.

Contracts.

39. (1) A municipal board may delegate to one or more of its members the power of entering into, on its behalf, any contract whereof the value or amount does not exceed two hundred rupees.

(2) A contract whereof the value or amount exceeds two hundred rupees shall not be executed until it has been sanctioned by the board at a meeting.

40. (1) Every contract made by or on behalf of a municipal board whereof the value or amount exceeds twenty rupees shall be in writing.

(2) Every such contract shall be signed by the chairman, or a vice-chairman, and a secretary:

Provided that the board may delegate to one or

N.-W. F. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter III.—Taxation and Municipal Fund—Sections 41-47.

contracts which he or they are empowered to enter into under section 39, sub-section (1).

(3) If a contract to which this section applies is executed otherwise than in conformity therewith, it shall not be binding on the board.

CHAPTER III.

TAXATION AND MUNICIPAL FUND.

Taxation.

41. Subject to any general rules or special orders which the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may, for the purposes of this Act, impose, with the sanction hereinafter specified in each case, and in manner prescribed by section 42, any of the following taxes, namely:—

(1) with the previous sanction of the Local Government—

(a) a tax on houses, buildings and lands situate within the municipality, not exceeding seven and a half per centum of the annual value of the houses, buildings and lands;

(b) a tax on persons exercising professions or carrying on trades or dealings in the municipality;

(c) a tax on vehicles and on animals used for riding or driving or as beasts of burthen, when such vehicles or animals are kept within the municipality;

(d) a tax on vehicles and on animals as aforesaid entering the municipality, and on boats moored therein;

(e) an octroi on goods or animals brought within the municipality for consumption or use therein; and

(2) with the previous sanction of the Local Government and of the Governor General in Council, any other tax.

42. (1) A municipal board may resolve at a special meeting to propose the imposition of any tax for the purposes of this Act.

(2) When a resolution has been passed under sub-section (1), the board shall publish a notice defining the persons or property proposed to be taxed, the amount or rate of the tax to be imposed, and the system of assessment to be adopted.

(3) Any inhabitant of the municipality objecting to the proposed tax may, within a fortnight from the publication of the notice, submit his objection in writing to the board, and the board shall, at a special meeting, take his objection into consideration.

(4) If no objection is submitted within the said period of a fortnight under sub-section (3), or if the objections so submitted, having been considered as aforesaid, are deemed insufficient, the board may forward its proposals to the Local Government, with the objections (if any) which have been submitted as aforesaid.

(5) The Local Government on receiving proposals under sub-section (4) may sanction the same, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the

(6) When the Local Government sanctions any proposals which, under section 41, sub-section (2), require the further sanction of the Governor General in Council, it shall submit those proposals to the Governor General in Council, with the objections (if any) received through the board; and the Governor General in Council may sanction the proposals, or refuse to sanction them, or return them to the Local Government for further consideration.

(7) When the proposals of a municipal board have been sanctioned by the Local Government, or by the Local Government and the Governor General in Council, as the case may be, the board may, at a special meeting, direct the imposition of the tax in accordance with those proposals.

43. A tax imposed under this Act shall not be invalid for defect of form, and when any property is described for the purpose of assessing any such tax, it shall be sufficient to describe it so that it shall be generally known, and it shall not be necessary to name the owner or occupier.

44. A municipal board, by a resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Local Government, or the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may abolish or reduce any tax imposed under the foregoing sections.

45. All taxes leviable in any local area under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, at the time when a municipal board having authority over that local area comes into existence under this Act, shall be deemed to have been imposed and assessed under this Act.

46. Arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the municipality, by the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the defaulter within those limits.

Municipal Fund.

47. (1) There shall be formed for each municipality a municipal fund, and there shall be placed to the credit thereof—

(a) all sums received by or on behalf of the board;

(b) all fines realized in cases in which prosecutions are instituted under this Act or section 34 of Act V of 1861 for offences committed within the municipality;

(c) when there has been included within the municipality any municipality constituted under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the balance (if any) standing at the credit of the municipal fund of that municipality at the time when the municipal board came into existence; and

(d) when there has been included within the municipality any local area in which the said Act XX of 1856 was in force at the time when the municipal board came into existence, the amount (if any) then available under section 86 of that Act for the purposes of cleansing, lighting and improvement in that local area.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Bill, 1883.Chapter IV.—Powers and Duties of Municipal Boards generally—Sections 48—55.

(2) The municipal fund shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be applicable, at the discretion of the municipal board, to all the purposes of this Act within the limits of the municipality, and, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, to like purposes beyond those limits, when such application of the fund is for the benefit of the inhabitants of the municipality.

48. (1) In places where there is a Government Custody and investment treasury or sub-treasury, or of municipal fund. a bank to which the Government treasury business has been made over, the municipal fund shall be kept in the treasury, sub-treasury or bank.

(2) In places where there is no such treasury or sub-treasury or bank, the municipal fund may be deposited with any banker, or person acting as a banker, who has given such security for the safe custody and repayment on demand of the fund so deposited as the Local Government may in each case think sufficient.

(3) A municipal board may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, invest any portion of its municipal fund in securities of the Government of India or such other securities as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, approve in this behalf, and vary such investments for others of the like nature. The income resulting from the securities and the proceeds of the sale of the same shall be credited to the municipal fund.

CHAPTER IV.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF MUNICIPAL BOARDS
GENERALLY.Municipal Police.

49. Every municipal board shall maintain a police-establishment. watch and ward, for the prevention and suppression of nuisances and for the enforcement of the rules and orders of the board.

50. Subject to the provisions of section 9 of the Constitution of establishment. Cantonments Act, 1880, the establishment maintained under section 49 shall, as the board with the approval of the Local Government may from time to time direct, be either a body of watchmen or a part of the general police force under the Local Government within the meaning of section 2 of Act V of 1861; and it shall consist of such number of officers and men, and the officers and men shall receive such pay, leave allowances, gratuities and pensions, as the board may, from time to time, after consultation with the Magistrate of the district and the Inspector General of Police, and subject to the final decision of the Local Government, direct.

51. If the establishment maintained under section 49 is a body of watchmen, the watchmen shall be appointed and promoted, and shall be liable to dismissal, suspension, reduction or fine, under such rules as the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf; and shall perform such duties, and be liable to such penalties, as village-policemen appointed under the North-Western Provinces Village and Road Police Act, 1873, or under the Oudh Laws Act, XVI of 1876, as the case may be, perform and are liable to, XVIII of 1876.

52. If the establishment is part of the general Duties of municipal police force, the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Act V of 1861 or in any other Act for the time being in force, define the duties which the officers and men of the establishment may or may not be required to perform.

53. In any municipality in which section 34 of Act V of 1861 is in force, every watchman under this Act shall have the powers of a police-officer under that section.

Conservancy and General Improvement.

54. Every municipal board, so far as the municipal fund at its disposal will permit, but subject to any agreement between the board and the Local Government as to the application of that fund, shall, after providing for the maintenance of the police-establishment referred to in the foregoing sections,—

- (1) provide for the construction, maintenance, repair and cleansing of the public streets, roads, drains, tanks and watercourses;
- (2) cause those streets and roads to be watered and lighted;
- (3) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of schools and dispensaries and of other public institutions for the promotion of education or for the benefit of the public health, and control and administer all such institutions within the municipality, except where they may, by order of the Local Government, have been excepted from the operation of this section;
- (4) provide for the establishment, maintenance and management of poor-houses, markets and other works of public utility; and
- (5) generally do all acts and things calculated to promote the health, comfort, convenience or interests of the inhabitants of the municipality.

Power to make and enforce Rules.

55. (1) A municipal board may, from time to time, at a special meeting, make rules—

- (a) for prohibiting, preventing and punishing such acts or omissions within the municipality as may, in the opinion of the board, cause or tend to cause any common injury, danger or annoyance to the public, or to people in general, who dwell or occupy property in the vicinity, or injury, obstruction, danger or annoyance to persons who have occasion to use any public right, or may, in its opinion, be prejudicial to the public health, safety or convenience, or offences against public decency;
- (b) for protecting from injury or interference anything within the municipality being the property of Her Majesty or of the board;

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter V.—Control—Sections 56-60.

- (c) for prohibiting or controlling the establishment or maintenance of markets, sarais and halting places, and controlling the management of the same and of any places of public entertainment and resort;
- (d) for controlling and regulating the use and management of burial and burning grounds;
- (e) for limiting the rates which may be demanded for the hire of any carriage, cart, boat or other conveyance, or of animals hired to carry loads, or for the services of persons hired to carry loads, where those conveyances, animals or persons are hired within the municipality for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours, or for a service which would ordinarily be performed within twenty-four hours;
- (f) for securing a proper registration of births, marriages and deaths;
- (g) for defining the cases, manner and times in and at which officers of the board may enter on private property for the enforcement of rules made under this section;
- (h) in hilly tracts, for regulating or prohibiting the cutting of trees or shrubs, or the excavation or removal of soil, where such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for the preservation of the soil, the prevention of landslips or of the formation of ravines or torrents, the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel; and
- (i) generally for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

(2) In making any rule under this section, a municipal board may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues.

(3) A rule made under this section shall not come into force until it has been confirmed by the Local Government and published for such time and in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing portion of this section, the municipal board of a municipality in which the Hackney of 1879. Carriage Act, 1879, is in force shall not make rules under sub-section (1) in respect of any vehicles to which that Act applies.

56. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may, from time to time, make in this behalf, a municipal board may order any person not to do, or not to omit to do, within the municipality, anything the doing of, or the omission to do, which is a public nuisance.

57. (1) The Local Government may invest, within the limits of the municipality, a municipal board with the powers of a Magistrate of a district as described in section 133 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and with power to make conditional orders of the nature referred to in that section, in respect of all or any acts or omissions punishable under rules made in exercise of the power conferred by section 55, clauses (a), (b), (c), (d) and (h).

(2) Sections 133 to 142 (both inclusive) of the Code of the Criminal Procedure shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to all proceedings taken in exercise of these powers: X of 1882.

Provided that, for the purposes of such proceedings, section 133 of the C. P. Code shall be read as if for the words "before himself or some other Magistrate of the first or second class" the words "before the District Magistrate or some magistrate of the first or second class appointed by him in this behalf" were substituted.

(3) The Local Government may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the powers with which it has invested a board under this section.

58. A municipal board may, at a special meeting, delegate to one or more committees of its members any of the powers vested in the board by section 56, or with which the board may have been invested under section 57.

CHAPTER V.

CONTROL.

59. The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district, when he is not a member of the municipal board, may—

- (a) enter on and inspect, or cause to be entered on and inspected, any immoveable property within the limits of the division or district respectively occupied by any municipal board or joint committee, or any work in progress within those limits under the direction of any such board or committee;
- (b) call for and inspect any book or document in the possession or under the control of any such board or committee having authority within those limits;
- (c) require any such board or committee to furnish such statements, accounts, reports and copies of documents relating to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee, as he may think fit to call for; and
- (d) record in writing, for the consideration of any such board or committee, any observations he may think proper in regard to the proceedings or duties of the board or committee.

60. (1) The Commissioner of the division or the Magistrate of the district may, by order in writing, suspend within the limits of the division or district (as the case may be) the execution of any resolution or order of a municipal board or joint committee, or prohibit the doing within those limits of any act which is about to be done, or is being done, in pursuance of or under cover of this Act, if, in his opinion, the resolution, order or act is in excess of the powers conferred by law, or the execution of the resolution or order, or the doing of the act, is likely to lead to a serious breach of the peace, or to cause serious injury or annoyance to the public or to any class or body of persons.

Power to prohibit commission of public nuisances.

Powers as to conditional orders in respect of certain acts and omissions.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter V.—Control—Sections 61-64.

(2) When a Commissioner or Magistrate makes any order under this section, he shall forthwith forward a copy thereof, with a statement of his reasons for making it, to the Local Government, which may thereupon rescind the order or direct that it continue in force with or without modification, permanently, or for such period as it thinks fit.

61. (1) In cases of emergency, the Magistrate Extraordinary powers of the district may provide of Magistrate in case for the execution of any of emergency. work, or the doing of any act, which a municipal board is empowered to execute or do, and the immediate execution or doing of which is in his opinion necessary for the service or safety of the public, and may direct that the expense of executing the work or doing the act shall be forthwith paid by the board.

(2) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate of the district may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or as much thereof as is from time to time possible, from that balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

(3) The Magistrate of the district shall forthwith report to the Commissioner every case in which he uses the powers conferred on him by this section.

62. (1) If at any time it appears to the Local Government that a municipal board has made default in performing any duty imposed on it by or under this or any other Act, the Local Government may, by order in writing, fix a period for the performance of that duty.

(2) If that duty is not performed within the period so fixed, the Local Government may appoint the Magistrate of the district to perform it, and may direct that the expense of performing it shall be paid, within such time as it may fix, to the Magistrate by the board.

(3) If the expense is not so paid, the Magistrate, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, may make an order directing the person having the custody of the balance of the municipal fund to pay the expense, or so much thereof as is from time to time possible, from the balance, in priority to any or all other charges against the same.

63. (1) If a municipal board is not competent to perform, or persistently makes default in the performance of, the duties imposed on it by or under this or any other Act for the time being in force, or exceeds or abuses its powers, the Local Government may, with the previous approval of the Governor General in Council, by an order published, with the reasons for making it, in the local official Gazette, declare that board to be incompetent or in default, or to have exceeded or abused its powers, as the case may be, and supersede it for a period to be specified in the order.

(2) When a board is so superseded, the following consequences shall ensue :—

(a) All members of the board shall, as from the date of the order, vacate their offices as such members.

(b) All powers and duties of the board may, during the period of supersession, be exercised and performed by such person or persons as the Local Government, from time to time, appoints in that behalf.

(c) All property vested in the board shall, during the period of supersession, vest in Her Majesty.

(3) On the expiration of the period of supersession specified in the order, the board shall be reconstituted, and the persons who vacated their offices under clause (a) shall not be deemed disqualified for being members.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding of a municipal board for which it considers that a form should be provided, and make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) as to the appointment of members of a municipal board ;

(b) as to the language of the board ;

(c) for the assessment and collection of taxes imposed under this Act, and for preventing evasion of the same ;

(d) as to the authority on which money may be paid from the municipal fund ;

(e) as to the conditions on which property vested in the board may be transferred by sale, mortgage, lease, exchange or otherwise ;

(f) as to the qualifications requisite in the case of persons appointed by the board to offices requiring professional skill ;

(g) as to the intermediate office or offices, if any, through which correspondence between boards and the Local Government or officers of that Government and representations addressed to the Local Government under this Act shall pass ;

(h) as to the preparation of plans and estimates for works which are to be partly or wholly constructed at the expense of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such plans and estimates may be sanctioned ;

(i) as to the accounts to be kept by boards, as to the manner in which such accounts shall be audited and published, and as to the power of the auditors in respect of disallowance and surcharge ;

(j) as to the preparation of estimates of income and expenditure of boards, and as to the authority by whom, and the conditions subject to which, such estimates may be sanctioned ;

(k) as to the returns, statements and reports to be submitted by boards ; and

(l) generally, for the guidance of boards and public officers in all matters connected with the carrying out of this Act.

(2) In making rules under clause (c), the Local Government may direct that a breach of any provision thereof shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.
Chapter VI.—Supplemental—Sections 65-74.

CHAPTER VI.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

65. (1) If any member, officer or servant of a board is, otherwise than with the permission in writing of the Commissioner of the division, directly or indirectly interested in any contract made with the board, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 168 of the

360. Indian Penal Code.

(2) A person shall not by reason of being a shareholder in, or member of, any incorporated or registered company be held to be interested in any contract entered into between the company and the board, but he shall not take part in any proceedings of the board relating to any such contract.

66. Every person shall be liable for the loss, waste or misapplication of any money or other property belonging to the board, if such loss, waste or misapplication is a direct consequence of his neglect or misconduct while a member of the board, and a suit for compensation may be instituted against him by the board with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, or by the Secretary of State for India in Council.

67. Where any land, whether within or without the limits of a municipality, is required for the purposes of this Act, the Local Government may, at the request of the municipal board, proceed to acquire it under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870; and, on payment by the board of the compensation awarded under that Act, and of the charges incurred by the Government in connection with the proceedings, the land shall vest in the board.

370.

68. (1) The authority empowered to make rules under section 10, section 55, or section 61 shall, before making them, publish, in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, a draft of the proposed rules, with a notice specifying a date at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration; and shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(2) Every rule made under any of those sections shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Local Government may direct; and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by this section.

69. A Court shall not take cognizance of an offence punishable under this Act, or the rules made under this Act, except on the complaint of the municipal board or of some person authorized by the board in this behalf.

70. Nothing in this Act shall prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Act or the rules made under it, or from being liable under that other law to any higher punishment or penalty than that provided by this Act or the rules made under it: Provided that a person shall not be punished twice for the same offence.

71. All rules made under the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, or any Act thereby repealed, and in force in any local area comprised in a municipality constituted under this Act at the time the municipal board for that municipality comes into existence under section 16, shall, as far as may be, be deemed to have been made under this Act, and shall continue in force until repealed by new rules so made.

(2) The authority empowered to make such new rules shall, as soon as may be, make them and take such action as may be requisite for bringing them into force.

72. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification published in the official Gazette, and in such other manner as the Local Government may determine, declare its intention—

- (a) to exclude from a municipality any local area comprised therein and defined in the notification, or
- (b) to include within a municipality any local area in the vicinity of the same and defined in the notification:

Provided that where the local area is a military cantonment or part of a military cantonment, a notification shall not be published under this section in respect of it without the previous consent of the Governor General in Council.

73. (1) Any inhabitant of a municipality or local area in respect of which a notification has been published in the Gazette under section 72 may, if he objects to the alteration proposed, submit his objection in writing to the Local Government within six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette, and the Local Government shall take his objection into consideration.

(2) When six weeks from the publication of the notification in the Gazette have expired, and the Local Government has considered the objections (if any) which have been submitted under sub-section (1), the Local Government may by a notification in the official Gazette exclude the local area from the municipality or include it therein, as the case may be.

74. (1) When a local area is excluded from a municipality under section 73—

- (a) this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act shall cease to apply thereto; and
- (b) the Local Government shall, after consulting the municipal board, frame a scheme determining what portion of the balance of the municipal fund and other property vested in the municipal board shall vest in Her Majesty for the benefit of the local area, and in what manner the liabilities of the board shall be apportioned between the board and the Secretary of State for India in Council, and on the publication of the scheme in the local official Gazette, the property and liabilities shall vest and be apportioned accordingly.

N.-W. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1883.Chapter VII.—Exceptional Provisions—Sections 75-79.

(2) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (1) shall be applied under the orders of the local Government to discharging the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council under that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area.

75. When a local area is included in a municipality under section 73, this Act and all rules, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under this Act and in force throughout the whole municipality at the time the local area is so included shall apply to the local area.

76. Nothing in this Act shall affect the Local Authorities Loans Act, 1879.

77. Every member of a municipal board constituted under this Act shall be deemed to be a municipal commissioner within the meaning of every enactment for the time being in force.

CHAPTER VII.

EXCEPTIONAL PROVISIONS.

78. (1) If it appears to the Local Government that the circumstances of any municipality are such that the provisions of this Act requiring that a certain proportion of the members of a municipal board be elected are unsuited thereto; the Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt the municipality, wholly or in part, from the operation of those provisions; and thereupon those provisions shall not apply, or shall only apply in part, as the case may be, to the excepted municipality until again applied thereto by a like notification of the Local Government:

Provided that no notification shall be issued under this section in respect of a municipality for which a municipal board has come into existence unless its issue has been sanctioned by the Governor General in Council.

(2) While the municipality continues to be excepted, wholly or in part, from the operation of the provisions mentioned in sub-section (1), the Local Government may appoint such of the members of the municipal board as would otherwise have been elected.

79. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, withdraw from the operation of this Act or the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1873, the area of any municipality constituted under that Act.

(2) When a notification is issued under this section in respect of any municipality, the Act, and all rules, bye-laws, orders, directions and powers made, issued or conferred under the Act, shall cease to apply to the local area comprised in the municipality, the balance of the municipal fund and all other property which at the time of the issue of the notification is vested in the municipal board or municipal committee shall vest in Her Majesty, and the liabilities of the board or committee shall be transferred to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

(3) All property vested in Her Majesty under sub-section (2) shall be applied under the orders of the Local Government to discharge the liabilities imposed on the Secretary of State for India in Council by that sub-section, or for the promotion of the health, comfort, convenience or interest of the inhabitants of the local area comprised in the municipality.

D. FITZPATRICK,

Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

No. 862R.C., dated 24th September 1883.

ORDER—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Preliminary Report on the reconnaissance survey of the country between Moghal Sarai and Daltonganj, in connection with the projected Benares-Cuttack-Poorce Railway.

Read the following papers :—

- (1) Letter from the Government of India, Public Works Department, to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, No. 1044R.C., dated 9th December 1882.
- (2) Letter from the Government of India, Public Works Department, to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, No. 521R.C., dated 13th June 1883.
- (3) Letter from the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, to the Government of India, Public Works Department, No. 1275W.R., dated 14th July 1883, and two enclosures (a and b).
  - (a) Letter from Engineer-in-Chief, Provincial Railways, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to Chief Engineer, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 1161W.R., dated 29th June 1883.
  - (b) Report on reconnaissance survey from Moghal Sarai to Daltonganj.
- (4) Letter from the Government of India, Public Works Department, to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, No. 733R.C., dated 18th August 1883; and note by Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways, dated 4th August 1883.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the papers quoted be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

No. 1044R.C., dated 9th December 1882.

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department.

I am directed to inform you that the Government of India is anxious to have a reconnaissance of the country between Benares and Cuttack made with a view to determining whether a fairly direct railway communication between the two places is practicable at a reasonable cost, and to request that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will afford such assistance towards the exploration of the country during the present cold season as he may be able.

2. The route via the Grand Trunk Road into Chota Nagpur is fairly well known, but the adoption of this line involves the serious undertaking of bridging the Sone river at or near Baroon, the cost of which is virtually prohibitory. It is, however, believed that the passage of this river will be found less formidable if attacked at some point higher up in its course; and it is in the investigation of a route which seems to promise well in respect to an easy crossing, and some 70 miles of which will probably lie within the North-Western Provinces, that His Excellency the Governor General in Council will be glad of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor's co-operation.

3. The route which has been suggested for examination starts from Mogulserai station, East Indian Railway, and runs in a nearly southerly direction towards Nowgarh on the upper reaches of the Karamnasa river. From there the line runs to the east of the fort Bijegarh through the range of hills by the Omlah or other convenient ghât to a probable crossing of the Sone river at Chukureea. After that the direction will be more easterly, and, passing near Kon Khas, will follow the general direction of the road through Untari, Miral, Garhwa to the left bank of the Koel river opposite Daltonganj.

4. So little, however, is known of the country which will be traversed by the proposed route that the Government of India does not wish the examination to be restricted to it exclusively. The object is to ascertain if a line of railway with reasonable gradients and following generally the line indicated above, but not necessarily confined to it, and leading up to a good crossing of the Sone, is economically practicable. I am to request therefore that the officers whom His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor may be able to depute for this reconnaissance may be instructed to exercise their discretion freely in the choice of routes, selecting those for more detailed investigation which may promise best to serve the end in view.

5. The junction of the survey with those now being undertaken by the Government of Bengal will probably be somewhere in the neighbourhood of Daltonganj, but the officer in charge of the reconnaissance should place himself in communication with Mr. Parker, Engineer-in-Chief, Chota Nagpur Railway Surveys, Hazaribagh, as to the route to be followed eastward of Garhwa.

6. I am also to add that a small grant to meet the expenses of the party will be made if desired.

7. As a part of the route lies through country under the Government of Bengal, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been consulted in the matter. Mr. Rivers Thompson has no objection whatever to an officer of your Government making the survey of that part of the line in Bengal, and in order that that Government may be fully aware of the facts of the case, a copy of this letter will be forwarded to them for information and for further action.

No. 1045R.C.

Copy to Secretary to Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, for information and for such further action as may be necessary.

No. 521R.C., dated 13th June 1883.

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 745W.R. of the 21st May 1883 forwarding progress reports of the Benares and Palamow Railway Survey for the months of April and May 1883.

2. These reports, and those for February and March 1883, received with your letter No. C.665R. of the 5th May 1883, establish that the Sone river is easily approachable from the north with moderate grades; that a good crossing of the Sone is practicable only 3,100 feet wide with rock foundations; and that the country from the Sone to Daltonganj presents no serious difficulties to railway construction. I am to express the satisfaction of the Government of India at the receipt of this information, and to say that the final reports of the reconnaissance are awaited with interest.

3. I am also to request that, with the permission of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, the Government of India may be furnished with a full account of the character, productiveness, &c., of the country between Mogulserai and the Sone, accompanied by an expression of His Honor's opinion as to the advantage generally to the North-Western Provinces of a line from Mogulserai to Daltonganj and the Aurunga and Kurumpura coal fields, and thence through Chota Nagpur and Chyebassa to Cuttack and Pooree.

Copy, with copy of the progress reports of the Benares and Palamow Railway Survey for the months of February, March, April, and May 1883, forwarded to the Government of Bengal, in continuation of previous correspondence ending with Public Works Department letter No. 1094R.C. of the 20th December 1882, for information and communication to Messrs. Burn and Company.

No. 1275W.R., dated 14th July 1883.

From—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, Railway Branch,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Letter No. 1161W.R., dated 29th June 1883, from the Engineer-in-Chief, Provincial Railways, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, to the Chief Engineer, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

Report, together with index plan, by the Executive Engineer, Benares, to Palamow Survey.

I am directed to forward copies of the correspondence marginally noted in reference to your No. 521R.C., dated 12th June, and in continuance of this office No. 745W.R., dated 21st May.

2. I am to remark that, although the route suggested by the Government of India was not found practicable, it is satisfactory to find that the construction of a line of railway between Benares and Chota Nagpur is feasible, and His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, North-Western Provinces, considers that much credit is due to Mr. G. A. Campbell, Executive Engineer, for the manner in which he has in four or five months explored the difficult country between Mogulserai and Daltonganj.

3. I am also to enquire whether any more information is required beyond the section of such portion of the line as was taken and that called for in your No. 521R.C., dated 12th June.

No. 1161W.R., dated 29th June 1883.

From—The Engineer-in-Chief, Provincial Railways, North-Western Provinces and Oudh,

To—The Chief Engineer, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Dept.

Mr. Campbell, the Executive Engineer, engaged on the Benares and Palamow Survey, has lately returned to Allahabad, and I have had an opportunity of talking to him on the subject of the railway reconnaissance, and I find that the monthly reports he sent in were more favorable than the circumstances of the case justified.

2. I therefore asked him to prepare and send in at once a preliminary plan and report, which are forwarded herewith.

3. In the tracing 1" = 1 mile, the line which Mr. Campbell recommends is shown in full red; the other lines shown are those which were examined and found not possible.

4. The principal points established were—

(a) That it is not possible to take the line, as shown dotted, along the banks of the Chandar Parbah river, and so ascend gradually to the plateau which occupies the whole country north of the Sone river. The Chandar Parbah issues out of the hills through a narrow gorge, with almost perpendicular banks, which are intersected with huge ravines.

(b) That once the top of the plateau is reached, there is no difficulty in taking a railway across it in any direction.

(c) That the only possible way of descent from the plateau to the Sone river is by the gorge of the Ghaggur river.

(d) That after crossing the Sone river, it is not possible to reach Daltonganj via Untari, as suggested by the Government of India, owing to a continuous range of hills, about 400 feet high and two or three miles wide, which stops the way. By making a detour of about three miles, and leaving Untari on the south of the line, a perfectly feasible line can, however, be obtained.

5. The full red line shown in the tracing 1" = 1 mile is that recommended for adoption, and from the foregoing it will be, I trust, plain that the principal points of difficulty are—

(1) The ascent from the Ganges valley up to the plateau about 20 miles south of Benares.

(2) The descent from the plateau via the gorge of the Ghaggur river into the Sone valley.

(3) The crossing of the Sone river.

6. The ascent from the Ganges valley to the plateau is dealt with in paragraphs 99 to 101 of the Executive Engineer's report. The difference of level between the plain and the top of the plateau is here said to be about 300 feet, and the Executive Engineer proposes to make the ascent by winding along the slopes of the hills which are said to be very easy at the top, and more difficult towards the bottom. It is assumed that in this way it will be possible to obtain a gradient of 1 in 200, but I do not think, without the actual survey being made, it will be safe to assume that a better gradient than 1 in 100 can be obtained without going in for excessively heavy works. Even with a 1 in 100 grade there will be a continuous rise for nearly 6 miles, and it is very seldom that ground can be got that will fit into this.

7. The descent from the plateau to the Sone river through the gorge of the Ghaggur river is dealt with in paragraphs 84 to 93 of Executive Engineer's report. The general proposal is to cross the Ghaggur on a bridge from 90 to 100 feet high at the position shown by the full red line; to continue thence along the hills sloping into the river on continuous grades, varying from 1 in 150 to 1 in 200, till the level of the plain of the Sone is reached about 300 feet below. The hills over the Ghaggur river on the south side are described as of rock, with easy slopes, but it is plain that a railway made thus along the sides of hills must be a very expensive undertaking, and I fear that here again better gradients than 1 in 100 will not be found possible.

8. With respect to the Sone crossing, the river, 3,000 feet wide, is confined well within rocky banks, but without borings it is impossible to offer an opinion as to whether the foundations will be difficult or not. The crossing of the Sone is described in paragraphs 37 to 42 of Executive Engineer's report.

9. The conclusions I arrive at are—

(1) From Mogulserai to the foot of the plateau the line will be very easy.

(2) The ascent of the plateau will be with gradients probably not less than 1 in 100, and the works will be rather heavy for about 6 or 7 miles.

- (3) Across the plateau the works will be ordinary and easy.
- (4) The descent from the plateau to the Sone river through the gorge of the Ghaggar river will have grades of not less than 1 in 100 for 6 or 7 miles, and the works will be very heavy and costly.
- (5) The crossing of the Sone river will entirely depend upon the depth of sand before rock is reached, and this cannot be told without borings.
- (6) From the Sone river to Daltonganj the works will be moderate with moderate gradients, probably not exceeding 1 in 200.
10. The plotting of such sections as were taken is now in hand, and will be submitted, when ready, together with a report on the probable traffic.

NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES AND OUDH.

PROVINCIAL RAILWAYS.

BENARES AND PALAMOW RAILWAY SURVEY.

Preliminary report on reconnaissance survey from Mogulserai to Daltonganj.

1. The Government of India being desirous of ascertaining whether or not fairly direct railway communication was possible between Benares and Cuttack at a reasonable cost, directed the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to have a reconnaissance survey made from the nearest convenient point to Benares, i.e., Mogulserai on the East Indian Railway to Daltonganj in the Palamow subdivision of the Lohardugga District.
2. The Benares and Palamow Railway Survey Division was accordingly formed with the object of carrying out the wishes of the Government of India as above quoted.
3. Lines were laid down on the 1 inch to the mile maps by the Engineer-in-Chief, Provincial Railways, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, as nearly as possible in the direction suggested by the Government of India in G. O. No. 1014 R.E., dated 9th December 1882, from Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department, to the Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Public Works Department, for general guidance, but which were not necessarily to be adhered to if easier country could be found on a different line.
4. The chief difficulties apprehended were the passage through the Kaimur range, miles 50 to 60; the crossing of the Sone river, mile 67; and the passage, miles 85 to 91, through the hills north of Untari (mile 93) on the borders of the Lohardugga District.
5. The above mileage is that of the line surveyed which is shown in the accompanying map in a red dotted line.
6. Survey work was commenced on the 2nd February 1883 from the Mogulserai station, and the line was carried in a southerly direction for 43 miles to the point whence two alternative lines diverged—one to the east, and the other to the west—of the more direct southerly route passing close to the fort of Bijegarh. This latter, shown in green on map, was examined and found, owing to the great height of the hills, the steepness of their approaches, and their great breadth on the top, to offer no likelihood of getting a line either over or through the range.
7. From enquiries made it was ascertained that the line shown in blue on map to the east of the direct southerly route was impracticable owing to the great and very abrupt fall on the south side of the Kaimur hills. It was therefore considered desirable to first examine the westerly route which appeared to afford a feasible passage through a natural gap in the hills. This was accordingly done with the result that a possible, though difficult and expensive, line has been found through the Kaimur range leading to a crossing over the Sone river near the Sasnai-Ghât almost due south of Bijegarh Fort.
8. After crossing the Sone, the line takes an easterly direction, and, passing Maidiha mile 72, Ramgarh mile 75, Kon Khas mile 79, Baghasoti mile 85, Untari mile 93, Miral mile 110, and Garhwa mile 116, runs to Shahpur, mile 135, on the left bank of the Koel river opposite Daltonganj.
9. A more detailed description of the country passed over will now be given.
10. On leaving Mogulserai, the country was found to be very flat for 15 miles, the difference of level being only 2 feet per mile. Over this portion the gradients would of course be very easy, and with the exception of the Garaiya, mile 9, which would require a 20 feet bridge, 10 feet to springing, 130 feet of waterway per mile would be sufficient to pass the drainage. Abundance of kunkur for lime and ballast is obtainable, as also is brick clay. The foundation of the culverts would be in clay.
11. The foot of the plateau which crosses the Mirzapur District from east to west is now reached, and the features of the country are entirely changed.
12. The ground is undulating, very rocky and barren, and with a steady rise southwards amounting to 40 feet in 4 miles. Owing to the undulating nature of the country few culverts are required, and the banks and cuttings would be comparatively light. The cuttings would, however, be mostly all rock, which is chiefly sandstone. One bridge of 30 feet span with clay foundation over a deep artificial stream, and one of 3-20 feet spans with rock foundations in the 17th mile, would be required; the remainder of the drainage could be passed by 2-10 feet culverts per mile. Brick clay and stone for building purposes and ballast are available.

13. The line now crosses some cultivated land of the villages of Hetampur and Niwazganj, mile 20, and enters the jungle at the foot of the hill at  $20\frac{1}{4}$  miles. The ground is steadily rising with intervening undulations. One stream requiring a 15 feet, or at the most a 20 feet, culvert, is crossed.

14. The line now winds along, and up the hill some very rough broken ground is passed over. The soil is an admixture of coarse gravel and loam. Some streams are crossed, but they are not of importance, and might be avoided altogether by taking the line a little higher up the hill. At mile 19 the reduced level is 272.00, at 20 it is 291.00, at 21 it is 271.00. Between miles 20 and 21 there is a small spur which could be skirted.

15. Immediately to the right (or west) of mile 21 there is a large and deep ravine, along which the line could wind, with a rising gradient of 1 in 125 or 1 in 150.

16. In mile 22 some large ravines are crossed — 2 of 60 feet span, 2 of 50 feet, and 1 of 80 feet; the reduced level of 22nd mile is 411.00, or 143 feet above mile 21. The ascent is very rapid, and the hill sides are precipitous.

17. In the next mile (23) there are one ravine of 30 feet, one of 50 feet span, 3 of 60 feet, and 2 of 80 feet. They are all very deep, varying from 40 feet to 80 feet. The reduced level at mile 23 is 603, or 189 feet above mile 22, and 332 feet above mile 21.

18. In mile 24 there is one very large ravine, 50 feet wide at bottom, about 400 feet wide at top, and 135 feet deep, running into the Chandar Parbah river, which is about 15 chains to east of the line. About  $\frac{1}{4}$  mile beyond this ravine the summit of the high land at reduced level (691) is reached at mile  $23\frac{1}{4}$ , or 420 feet above mile 21, or 188 feet per mile. From this it is clear that, as there is not sufficient space in which to curve about in order to get practicable gradients, this route is not feasible.

19. The banks of the Chandar Parbah all along opposite mile 23 and part of mile 24, are almost perpendicular for over 200 feet in depth. In fact they overhang in places; they are all solid rock, and it would therefore be quite impossible to cut a line along the face of this rock.

20. From the top of the high land, which is a plateau extending westwards beyond Mirzapur and Allahabad, the line passes over easy undulating ground for 25 miles via Dhusuria mile 25, Narkati mile 30, Majhgaon mile 35, Pachpudia mile 41, Poornan mile 44, and Sidhi mile 47, to the vicinity of the Ghaggar river. The Chandar Parbah is crossed at mile  $28\frac{1}{2}$ ; at this point it is 100 feet wide with a rock bed, well defined banks 15 feet deep. The reduced level of the bed of the river, which is here 500 feet above the bed opposite the 19th mile of this line, is 711.00, and the flood level is said to be 20 feet high. A bridge of 3 spans of 50 feet each would be sufficient.

21. The only other stream of importance is the Belan ("Balun" and "Biland" in the maps), mile 42. In itself it is a small stream, but it would require a bridge of 3-30 feet spans, as it has a wide shallow valley. About 8 miles to the west (down stream), where this stream is crossed by the Ahraora and Robertsganj road opposite mile 43, the bridge over it is 1 span of 37 feet, 2 of 27 feet, and 2 of 15 feet.

22. Besides the above two rivers, three culverts per mile of 10 feet span, 5 feet of springing, should pass all the drainage.

23. The gradients over this portion will be fairly easy, 1 on 200 being the steepest that is likely to be required. The banks and cuttings will be on the average 6 feet, with the exception of a few places, where, in the long undulations which are a characteristic feature of this part of the country, ridges between the depressions will have to be cut through. The cutting in these places will probably be from 20 to 30 feet deep.

24. The land along the most part of the line will not be expensive, as it is chiefly jungle. In fact from mile 21 to mile 41 it is, with few exceptions, nothing but dense jungle the whole way. From mile 41 the line emerges into cultivation, which extends up to mile  $47\frac{1}{2}$ .

25. The most difficult part of the line is now reached, i.e., the approaches to and crossing of the Ghaggar river, mile 51.

26. This river flows from east to west in a very deep channel 275 feet below the summit of the high land on the north side, and 200 feet below the top of the hills on the south.

27. The banks of the river are steep and rocky for heights varying from 50 to 300 feet, the latter height being reached some distance below the crossing, where the river has cut up to the hills. The north or right bank is much steeper than the left one, which is more or less shelving all the way from Bijgarh to where the river turns to the south towards the Son.

28. The course of the river is fairly straight for 4 miles down stream from Bijgarh. Thence it becomes very tortuous, the fall of the bed increases, and, after another two miles, it is merely a gorge between precipitous and rocky banks. There is a tributary stream on the right bank which might afford a means of getting down to a favorable crossing of the river. Another stream which lies to the west of Sidhi, mile 47, and south of Urauli opposite mile 47, and which is the only other one that might have been of service in enabling an easy crossing of the river to be made, suddenly stops at the high bank on the right, and discharges its waters down a fall of about 200 feet. The selection of a good site for a bridge over this river is a matter of great difficulty, owing mainly to the very close proximity of the hills on each side and their great height above the river bed.

29. A crossing can be got by approaching the stream immediately south of the village of Sidhi with a heavy cutting, say 60 feet deep, at the edge of the high ground on the north bank of the river.

30. From this point the line would be carried westward along the face of the slope which is at an angle of about  $45^\circ$  for about a mile, when a semi-detached hill is met, round which the line could be carried. It would then cross a small ravine and continue its westerly course for  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a mile to a point, one mile to the west of the point, where the river is crossed by survey line, and where there is a fairly good site for a bridge.

31. The best form of bridge for spanning this stream would be a single girder of about 150 feet span. The height of the bridge would be from 100 to 120 feet. The abutments would have very good foundations on the rocky banks of the river, and the wing walls could be stepped back into the hill sides. The embankment would require a revetment wall for about 500 feet, and would be composed of rough stone blocks with interstices filled in with earth.

32. The gradient would be very heavy, 1 in 125 being required to get down from the high land on the north to the bridge. The work would chiefly be rock cutting, but there would be some embankments where ravines were crossed. Four bridges would be required — one of 30 feet, two of 50 feet, and one of 60 feet span.

33. The line would then curve away to the west and wind along the north face of the hill, on the left bank of the river, till its western extremity was reached at mile  $57\frac{1}{2}$  on proposed line (not dotted or survey line). Then turning round the spur, it would take a south-easterly direction up to mile 60 on proposed line along the southern face of the hill, which is much steeper on this side than it is on the north face. The slope is from  $45^\circ$  to  $60^\circ$ . The work would consist almost exclusively of rock cutting, and the gradient would be 1 in 125 and 1 in 150. Some four or five small ravines would be crossed requiring culverts of 10 feet span.

34. The line actually run has a westerly course from Sidhi, mile 47 ( $70^\circ$  west of south), for  $2\frac{1}{4}$  miles. Thence it turns southwards and crosses a bridge the summit of which is at reduced level 992, mile 50. It thence passes down a deep ravine, crosses the river bed of which is at reduced level 715. Thence it passes up a rocky ravine and over the summit of the hills on the left bank of the river at their lowest point, i.e., reduced level 979, mile 51. The line then winds along the south-east face of the hill, and reaches comparatively level ground at reduced level 600 in a little over two miles at 52nd mile on survey line and mile 60 on proposed line.

35. The ground now reached, though fairly level, is very much broken up by ravines and streams which come down from Kaimur hills on the left and fall into the Ghaggur on the right.

36. Some of these streams are very wide and deep, varying  $20' \times 10'$  to  $200' \times 60'$ . They are also very tortuous, and have very swift currents. They will, however, not be found so very difficult to deal with at first sight as they appear.

37. The line passes under Mangesur peak and Kunda Pahar, and reaches the bank of the Sone at mile  $62\frac{1}{2}$  opposite the village of Kandhaora. It then turns eastward, and, running roughly parallel with the Sone for 1 miles, crosses the river a little above Sasnai Ghât at mile 67, where there is room between the river banks and the hills to get a curve of at least 1,000 feet radius.

38. There is a point higher up the river at which a more advantageous crossing could be made as regards the room for curved approaches up to the bridge, but this would necessitate bridging the Kanhar river, a large stream about 2,000 feet wide.

39. The Sone river is 3,000 feet wide at the point where it is crossed, and it is the same width for four or five miles up and down stream from that point. The banks are 28 feet high above low water and 33 feet above bed. Highest known flood level is 40 feet above river bed. The banks are rocky all along from the junction of the Ghaggur opposite Chopan to Chakaria Ghât, which is the extent of the river examined.

40. The clearance of the strata on the northside of the river is nearly horizontal, while that on the south side is nearly vertical, i.e., it forms an angle of  $75^\circ$  to  $80^\circ$  with the horizon. The bed of the river between these rocks is all sand mixed with large pebbles up to 3" and 4" diameter.

41. It is roughly estimated that the bridge over the Sone should be at least 15 spans of 200 feet each. This would give 3,000 feet clear water-way, which is the present unobstructed width of the river. Two land arches of 50 span might with advantage be given on each side. The height from river bed to flood is 40 feet; there should be about 15 feet between high flood level and bottom of girder to allow of brushwood and trees passing freely underneath without the risk of their being caught in the girders and causing an accumulation of debris, which might have disastrous results— $40 + 15 = 55$ , and assuming 17 feet from bottom of girder to rail level = 72 feet, above bed of river, reduced level of bed of river is 456, which  $+ 72 = 528.00$ , or reduced level of rails over bridge.

42. From the rocky nature of the banks and the close proximity of the hills on each side it is presumed that rock suitable for foundations will be found at no very great depth below river bed. The bridge would of course be all stone, except the girders, and good building stone can be had in the hills on either side.

43. After crossing the Sone the line passes through a gap in the hills, and takes a more or less easterly course along the foot of the small hills which run nearly parallel to the Sone.

44. Ramgarh, mile 76, is passed at mile 75, and Kon Khas at mile 79. Between the Sone and Maidiha, mile 72, some very bad ground is passed over, numerous small streams come down from the hills on the left, cutting up the ground in all directions, but the streams and ravines are not very deep or wide like those north of the Sone, and generally the surface is fairly level. In miles 72 and 73 the line is well up the slope of the hill, which is chiefly composed of flint rocks. Two large streams are crossed in mile 70, and two in mile 71, each requiring bridges of  $10.0 \times 30$  feet of water-way.

45. From Maidiha, mile 72, onward to Kon, mile 79, the country is chiefly cultivation until the immediate vicinity of Kon is reached, where the ground is again broken up into ravines by the streams coming down from the hills to the south of the line. The soil is loose red muram and cuts up readily. A short distance from this broken ground the Panda river, mile 79, is met. This is a large stream, which will require a bridge of about 3-50 feet spans. About a mile and half beyond the Panda, along which portion the line skirts the low hills south of Kon, the line takes a more southerly direction, and, passing over fairly easy ground, reaches Baghasoti in the 85th mile, 6 miles from Kon.

46. At this point another serious difficulty is encountered in following the route sketched out by the Government of India letter No. 1044R.C. of 9th December 1882. A range of hills runs across the line bounded on the west by the Kanhar river and running eastward until the neighbourhood of Koel river is reached. At the point where the line crosses this range, the hills rise in less than a mile to 400 feet high on the north side. The breadth of the range is 2 to  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles, and on the south side the plains about Untari, mile 93, are 500 feet below the top of the hills; this fall occupying a distance of less than 2 miles.

47. The ascent and descent are so abrupt that it would be only at great difficulty and expense that a line could be got through or across the range. In fact, the only feasible project is a tunnel of about 3 miles in length.

48. This route being for the above reasons considered quite out of the question, the towns of Untari and Miral, mile 110, must be left out in choosing another route, and for the same reasons it is considered unnecessary to give a detailed account of the route followed from the hills to Garhwa, mile 116. It will be sufficient to say that the line was carried over fairly easy country to the north-east of Nagar (Untari) via Adhaora mile 94, Parasoon mile 98, Ramna mile 100, Gonda mile 109, south of Miral mile 110, Sugman mile 111, Potman mile 112, to Sahan Jadua mile 116, a village about  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile south of Garhwa and on the left bank of the Danro river, mile 116.

49. This is a large stream 600 feet wide. It is very shallow, being only 12 feet deep, and the highest flood mark reported by the villagers is only 15 feet above river bed. The current is reported to be very rapid; but as the bed is sand, and exhibits no indications of deep scour, it may be safely assumed that the current is not more than 6 feet per second. This river would require a bridge at least of 6 spans of 100 feet each, 30 feet from river bed to bottom of girder. The crossing is a good one in a long straight reach.

50. After crossing the Danro the line passes over fairly easy country, passing the villages of Jhura mile 120, Haraiya mile 121, and Tildag mile 121. Thence it crosses the Tahleh river, mile 124, which is a rocky stream 600 feet wide, and which would require a bridge similar to that proposed for the Danro. The depth of the river, height of flood, and fall of bed, are similar to that river.

51. From the Tahleh river the line passes through jungle and easy ground, via Baroon mile 128 and Bausdih mile 132, to Shahpur, mile 135, opposite Daltonganj on the left bank of the Koel river, where, according to the instructions received, work was stopped.

52. The bridges for the Danro and the Tahleh have been referred to above. Besides these, one of 3-50 would be required over the Birha, mile 118, and one of 3-30 over another stream. For the remainder of the drainage two culverts of 10 feet span per mile would be sufficient to carry off the drainage.

53. The gradients will be on the average 1 in 500, nothing heavier than 1 in 200 being anticipated. The country is undulating and hilly, and affords facilities for an easy and cheap line. The bridges, culverts, and stations would be of stone as would also be the ballast.

54. Limestone and kunkur are procurable. The embankments and cuttings are likely to be an average of 3 or 4 feet; the latter will probably be all rock.

55. On the return march from Daltonganj the country was further examined with the view of getting a better line than that actually run, and one which, in the event of the survey operations being resumed next season, could be recommended for detailed survey.

56. This new line is shown on the accompanying map in a full red line to distinguish it from the route surveyed, which is shown by a dotted red line.

57. Between Daltonganj and Garhwa the proposed line does not differ very much from the original line, but from the latter place, with the object of avoiding the hills north of Untari, quite a new direction is taken.

58. Starting from Garhwa, mile 116 on survey line and mile 129 on proposed line, the proposed line runs north and north-east for about 5 miles, when, after passing Ukargurwa, mile 125 on proposed line, it turns due north to a gap between two detached hills to the west of Chapparbar, mile 122 on proposed line. The ground passed over up to this point is not difficult.

59. At Garhwa, mile 129 on proposed line, there is a stream called the Sarosati nala 200 feet wide, to be crossed. It has a rocky bed and flood height of 15 feet. A bridge of 3-70 feet girders would suffice to pass the highest flood. The next stream, mile 129, is one of 60 feet in width, where a single 40 feet girder or 3-20 feet spans could be given. The latter would be preferable, as the embankment at this point would be low, and there would not be room for a deep girder.

60. The ground gradually rises steadily from Garhwa to the gap, mile 122, before mentioned. A short length of low land opposite Dalele and Ukhargarwa, mile 125, would have to be crossed with about a 15 feet bank and a 10 feet culvert. Beyond this and up to the gap there is broken ravine ground, in which some 3 or 4 culverts will be required.

61. North of the gap, through which a cutting for  $\frac{1}{2}$  a mile of an average depth of 10 feet and maximum of 35 feet will be required, the ground falls again gently to the Banki river, mile 117.

62. Three streams, one requiring a 10 feet and the other two 20 feet culvert each, are required before reaching the Banki. This stream has 250 feet width of bed and 350 feet between tops of banks.

63. The bed is sand, but at short intervals rock is visible in large masses. It is therefore believed that rock foundations may be calculated upon for this bridge, which should be 5 spans of 70 or 7 of 50 girders. The flood height is 15 feet above bed; the bottom of girders should therefore be 20 or 22 feet above bed river.

64. A little beyond the river another 20 feet bridge is wanted, after which no culverts are required up to Laka village, mile 115. Immediately north of Laka the Pipardaha, mile 115, is crossed. This requires a 30-feet bridge, and two other streams between this and Bardih, mile 113, require a 20-feet and 2-30 feet span bridges respectively. From this the line would skirt the hills up to within  $\frac{1}{2}$  a mile of Magardih, mile 110, where a sharp curve to the west is necessary.

65. The gradients from Garhwa up to Magardih are not likely to be more in any part than 1 in 200, or at the steepest 1 in 150, possibly in the gap, and the banks will not exceed an average of 5 feet.

66. The culverts and bridges that have been enumerated should suffice to pass all the drainage. Lime and building stone and ballast can all be got from the adjoining hills.

67. The land passed through is almost entirely jungle.

68. At Magardih, mile 110, the hills, which are the obstacle to the more direct line originally proposed via Untari and Miral to Garwah, become detached, are much diminished in height, and have long flat slopes instead of the abrupt and almost perpendicular sides which characterise the more westerly portions of this range. A favorable opening through which the line can pass exists at Magardih.

69. Search was made along the hills for a practicable gap south of Magardih. There is just the possibility that a line might be found from Chowrasi, about 3 miles south from mile 102, in a south-easterly direction, emerging from the hills north of Kachia Pahar about 5 miles south-east of Chowrasi. Another route might be found near and south of Saramjara Hill, 4 miles south of mile 107, but this is very improbable.

70. It is believed that the route via Magardih is the best that can be found.

71. From Magardih the line will take a westerly course, and will skirt the spur of the hill for a short distance, after which it will strike out into open country.

72. From Magardih to Arsali, mile 104, there is some very rough broken ground, and several streams will have to be crossed between Magardih and Kailan (Kalleen on the map), mile 108. One stream will require a 20 feet bridge. From Kailan to Arsali three streams, requiring respectively, one 10, one 20, and one 30 feet bridge.

73. West of Buka, mile 103, a large stream 60 feet wide is crossed. Again south of Makri,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  mile north of mile 101, a stream 50 feet wide is crossed. East of Jagra, 1 mile north of mile 98, a stream 70 feet, and west of the same place a stream 40 feet wide, and at Rohinia, mile 96, a stream 15 feet wide, are crossed; all of the above streams will require bridges of at least the full width of the stream as stated.

74. The works will not be heavy except in the broken ground between Magardih and Arsali, i. e., from miles 103 to 109. The gradients over this length will not exceed 1 in 200. There will be high banks crossing some of the large ravines, but on the average the banks will not exceed 10 feet for this portion.

75. From Arsali westwards to Rohinia and beyond Majgawan, opposite and north of mile 95, Umnara opposite and north of mile 94, and Budar opposite and north of mile 90, to the south of which places line would run, the ground is fairly easy. The embankments will not be heavy here. There will be some rock cuttings, but nothing very extensive. Gradients are not likely to be heavier than 1 in 200. The streams already mentioned will, it is believed, pass all the drainage.

76. The Jhurwa, mile 93, is the largest stream over this portion, and would require a bridge of 3-30 feet spans.

77. A slight change of the original route is made here, viz., instead of running to the south of Kon it would pass to the north of it and of Ramgarh in 84th mile on proposed line, and turning through a gap in the hills, in 83rd mile on proposed line, about  $1\frac{1}{4}$  to 2 miles west of Ramgarh, it would pass along the hill slopes facing the Sone river up to the village of Hardi, mile 76, and the crossing of the Sone, mile 75, originally proposed.

78. This new portion was inspected on the return journey, and will give a better line than that first run.

79. The Panda nala, mile 88, near Kon, previously mentioned as requiring 3-50 feet bridge, will of course have to be crossed; and although the new crossing is lower down stream than that on the first line, there is not much additional drainage collected by the river in that distance.

80. Between the gap in the hills west of Ramgarh and the village of Hardi a large stream, mile 79, 200 feet wide, falls into the Sone. This would require a bridge of about 3-70 spans. Three other streams are met—one of 20, one of 30, and one of 40 feet width, each of which would require bridges of the spans noted, and another large stream of 150 feet width, mile 78, would require a bridge of 3-50 spans.

81. Along this portion, the work would be chiefly cutting the formation out of the side of the hills. This cutting is not likely to be anywhere more than 15 to 20 feet on the hill side, and for the most part would be only levelling off the formation width.

82. Culverts, aggregating  $20 \times 5 = 100$  feet of water-way per mile, besides the larger streams already noticed, will pass all the drainage. The line can be nearly level all the way, with the exception of the portion through the gap, where there will be a gradient of, say, 1 in 150 through the cutting, which is very short, and need not be more than 20 feet deep. It is all rock.

83. After crossing the Sone the original line is very closely adhered to all along the river bank round the Mangesur Peak and Kunda Pahar, and northwards to the foot of the hills south of the Ghaggur river.

84. From this point, mile 60, instead of going over the hills, which is impracticable, owing to the heavy grades and works that would be required, the line takes a north-westerly course along and up the southern face of the hill rising on a gradient of 1 in 150 to 1 in 200.

85. This westerly course continues for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 3 miles, mile 57, till the end of the spur is reached, when the line curves round in a semi-circle, and takes an easterly course along the northern slope of the same spur for 4 miles in a straight line, but the distance with the unavoidable windings will not be less than 5 to  $5\frac{1}{2}$  miles.

86. The work over the greater part of this length, from where the line diverged to the north-west round the spur and along the north face of the hills, will be rock cutting.

87. The rock is chiefly gneiss and iron-stone. The cuttings will be for the most part shallow, but in places they will be 20 or 30 feet deep on the hill side, where the line turns round small spurs. On the average, however, the cuttings are not likely to be more than 4 or 5 feet.

88. The gradient will be very heavy all the way, viz., 1 in 150 and 1 in 200, with occasionally short pieces of level to ease the engines when working up the incline.

89. At about  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile from the point at which the Ghaggur river is crossed a large stream, or rather ravine, is met in mile 55. This is a torrent in the rains, with a very steep fall, and the water comes down in large quantities with a great rush, bringing large stones and boulders with it. The best form of bridge will be a single span, which will have to be about 100 feet. The abutment and approaches will require heavy pitching, the stone for which is at hand in abundance.

90. We now come to the new crossing of the Ghaggur river, mile  $52\frac{1}{2}$ , which is  $2\frac{1}{2}$  miles in a straight line, and along the windings of the stream probably 3 miles higher up stream. The fall of the bed of the river is from 30 to 40 feet per mile; the level of the bed at the new crossing is therefore from 90 to 120 feet higher than it is at the original crossing, the reduced level of which is 715.00. Taking an average between 90 and 120 feet, we have 105 feet as the difference between the old and new crossings, which, added to 715.00, gives 820.00 as the reduced level of the new crossing. The high bank on the north side is about reduced level 950.00, or 130 feet above the river bed.

91. This, though a considerable height, can be overcome by having a cutting 30 to 40 feet deep at the edge of the high ground on the north bank and running back at one in 200 for about  $1\frac{1}{4}$  mile until the level ground south of Sidhi is reached.

92. The bridge would thus require to be from 90 to 100 feet high, which, considering the very difficult nature of the country, is not an extravagant proposal.

93. The hills on the south have long flat slopes, which admit of curving a way to the west with a thousand feet radius. A single span of about 120 feet will be the best form of bridge for crossing this river.

94. After crossing the Ghaggur another alternative line was examined passing to the east of Robertsganj mile 47, Hinduhari mile 44, Madhupur miles 37, Sukrat mile 32, and Ahrohra mile 19.

95. This route possesses many advantages over the original line. The undulations are much larger and flatter, the streams are less numerous, and there is much less necessity for rock cuttings.

96. The Belan river, mile 46, would be crossed at a point lower down stream, but it is believed that the bridge originally proposed, viz., 3-30 feet spans, or at the most 3-35 feet, would be sufficient. This river is crossed, as has been already noticed, on the Robertsganj and Ahraohra road, which is some miles below the river crossing by a bridge of 1-37' span, 2-27', and 2-15', aggregating 121 linear feet of water-way. A bridge of 3-35 will therefore be ample.

97. The Chandar Parbah river, mile 38, is crossed at a point 8 miles above the original crossing, at which latter a bridge of 3-50 feet spans was proposed. It is estimated that 3-40 feet spans will be quite sufficient at the new crossing.

98. From the Chandar Parbah the line runs north-west and north until the descent from the plateau into the plains on the north is met.

99. The hills at this point are not so high as they are over to the east along the Chandar Parbha river. They have long flat slopes in the first part of the descent affording facilities for fairly easy gradients, and it is only the hills immediately bordering the plain that any difficulty will be encountered.

100. The difference of level between the plain and the top of the plateau is roughly 300 feet, and it is proposed to overcome this difficulty by starting at the top with a cutting 30 feet deep, winding along the hills for 10 miles with a constantly falling gradient of 1 in 200, making a total fall of 264 feet in the 10 miles from mile 19 to mile 29, and having a 25 to 30 feet embankment at the foot of the hills. This appears to be the only feasible method of getting over the difficulty.

101. The difference between the plain and plateau is shown above as 300 feet, and the total of the cutting gradient and embankment is 324 feet. The 24 feet in excess could be very advantageously utilised in easing off the gradients, and making short level breaks in the otherwise continuous gradient.

102. After leaving the hills the line would run in a north-easterly direction for 5 miles, and then run due north till it joined the original line just south of the village Gasraori (locally called Usraori) at mile 6½ from Mogulserai, and following it up to Mogulserai.

103. The work along this portion will be very light and similar in all respects to that along the original line.

104. The length of the line proposed for detailed survey is between 13 and 14 miles longer than that surveyed.

The causes of this increase are as follows :—

I.—The necessity for making the line where it ascends the Sukrat-Robertsganj plateau sufficiently long to obtain a practicable gradient. This adds nearly 4 miles to the length of the more direct but impracticable route.

II.—A like necessity in descending from that plateau to cross the Ghaggur river and reach the low land bordering the Sone. This accounts for about 5 miles of the increase.

III.—The detour which has to be made between Kon and Garhwa in order to avoid the hills north of Untari. This increases the length between these two points by about 5 miles.

105. A map of the country from Mogulserai to Daltonganj on a scale of 1 inch to the mile, showing the lines originally laid down for examination and the line proposed for detailed survey, and a section across the Sone river on a scale of 400 to an inch, accompany this report.

No. 733R.C., dated 18th August 1883.

From—The Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh,
Public Works Department.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1275W.R. of the 14th July 1883 forwarding a report of the railway reconnaissance between Mogulserai and Daltonganj, and in reply to express the satisfaction of the Government of India at this confirmation of the information contained in the progress reports of the Benares-Palamow Railway Survey for the months of April and May 1883.

2. I am to request that the Government of India may be furnished on an early date with sections and an approximate estimate, under main heads, of the line reconnoitred, and also with all available information as to probable traffic, and with a full reply to paragraph 3 of Public Works Department No. 521R.C. of the 12th June 1883.

3. I am also to request that arrangements may be made for a complete survey next cold season, and in this connection I am to forward extract from a note, dated the 4th August 1883, by the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways, and copy of tracing referred to.

Note dated 4th August 1883, by the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways.

I think that the ascent and descent of the plateau somewhat to the west of the proposed line might be examined to ascertain whether a shorter ascent, than that proposed might be made following up the valley from Luttespore, and whether there is no lower gap in the southern edge of the plateau, through which the line might pass and creep down the face of the hills which appear to be not very rugged instead of crossing the Ghaggur at high level. I think also that the neck of hills close to the Surin Jurra Hill might be reconnoitred with the view of ascertaining whether a short tunnel at that point might not enable the line to be carried through the range into the valley of the Bonkee somewhat in the direction of the blue lines which I have marked on the tracing scale 1 mile to the inch.

W. S. TREVOR, Colonel, R.E.,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 25th SEPTEMBER 1883.

GENERAL REMARKS.—During the week under report the weather has been fair over the greater part of India, and the rainfall correspondingly light. In the Madras Presidency and Mysore the dry crops in several districts are suffering from want of rain. In the Bombay Presidency the fall has been light and unequally distributed, and more is needed in Guzerat and the Southern Mahratta Country. In Hyderabad and the Berars, on the other hand, the rainfall has been excessive, and a break would be beneficial. No rain fell in Sind during the week, and the river was, on the 24th September, 5 feet below the previous year's level. In Central India and Rajputana light but general rain continues, and prospects are improving. In British Burma, Assam, and Bengal the rainfall has been light, but the weather continues seasonable, and rice and other crops are progressing favourably, except in Behar and Central Bengal, where the crops on high lands need more rain. Heavy rain fell in the southern and eastern districts of the Central Provinces, and benefited the rice crop, but slightly injured cotton and millets. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the rainfall has been generally light, and confined to the early part of the week. The weather is now clear, and in several districts more rain is needed, but on the whole agricultural prospects are fair. No rain appears to have fallen during the week in the Punjab, but prospects there are reported to be fair or good.

Harvesting of millets and oil-seeds continues in Madras and Mysore, rice and the earlier kharif crops are being cut in Bombay, and the land is under preparation for the rabi. The damage from locusts in the Deccan has not proved as serious as was anticipated. Reaping of the kharif and ploughing and sowing for the rabi are also more or less in progress throughout North-Western and Central India. In Bengal the harvesting of early rice and jute is nearly finished, the outturn being, with some exceptions, fair.

Cattle-disease is decreasing in Burma, and is slight elsewhere.

A few deaths from cholera are still reported, and fever is somewhat prevalent, otherwise the public health has much improved.

Prices are either stationary or falling.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(Sept. 26th)
Bellary ...	11 (average of two stations).	Standing crops wet generally good. Dry crops suffer from want of rain.
Kurnool ...	1.15 (average of six stations).	Standing crops withering in five taluks from want of rain, elsewhere good. Harvest cumboo and indigo, yield half to three-fourths. Cattle-disease in seven taluks.
Ganjam ...	1.59 (average of thirteen stations).	Standing crops generally thriving. Fever and small-pox continue slight.
Kistna ...	.96 (average of six stations).	Standing crops dry generally withering. Cholera suffering from grub in one taluk. Rain wanted throughout. Harvest of indigo, yield half to three-fourths. Small-pox general; fever, guinea-worm, and cattle-disease slight in parts.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	.22 (average of three stations).	Standing crops withering for want of rain in all but one taluk. Harvest of kar , paddy, &c., yield quarter. Small-pox and cattle-disease slight in parts.
Coimbatore ...	.38 (average of ten stations).	Standing crops cholum damaged by insects in one. Rain wanted in eight taluks. Four deaths from cholera in two taluks; fever and small-pox in parts.
Tanjore ...	.92 (average of seven stations).	Standing crops generally good, but rain wanted in four taluks. Harvest paddy, cholum , cumboo , and gingelly, yield below average. Twenty-nine deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	.96 (average of six stations).	Standing crops fading, except in two taluks. Harvest paddy and dry crops in parts.
Malabar ...	.23 (average of eleven stations).	Standing crops good. Harvesting continues. Second crop cultivation progressing. Small-pox in nine taluks; fever in three taluks; 5 deaths from cholera in one taluk.
Travancore ...	.....	Harvesting continues. Preparations for next cultivation partly begun. Fever and dysentery continue. Rain generally wanted for dry crops.
General Remarks. —General prospects favourable,
Bombay—(Sept. 26th)
Kurrachee ...	No rain	Weather cool with high winds. River at Kotri on 24th 11 feet 8 inches against 17 feet 5 inches on same date last year. Small-pox in four villages in district, 9 fresh cases, 1 death, 5 remaining sick; fever in nine talukas. Cattle-disease in five talukas. Wheat, red rice, and bajri in Kurrachee 24, 28 and 36, in Dadu 32 and 32, in Sakro 15, 27 and 36, and in Shabbandar 20, 32 and 42 lbs. per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	.....	River has fallen 2 feet 11 inches since last week and was 5 feet lower on 21th instant than on same date last year. Small-pox in three, fever in six, and cattle-disease in three talukas. Wheat 25, bajri 37, juari 43, red rice 26, and white rice 20 lbs. per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—contd.
Ahmedabad ...	.....	Crops healthy. Rain wanted for rice. Cholera, only 1 death; slight fever in some talukas. Bajri 27 and wheat 23 lbs. per rupee.
Baroda ...	46	Total rainfall 44.39. Crops in good condition, except in Kadi division where more rain is wanted. Health good. Cholera in mild form in parts of Naosari division. Cattle-disease in parts of Kadi division. Bajri 26 and rice 22 lbs. per rupee.
Surat ...	1.09	Total rainfall 47.83. Crops healthy. Slight cholera in Bulsar and Pardi. Locusts are being destroyed. Juari 37 and nagli 43 lbs. per rupee.
Nasik ...	Rain throughout the district.	Bajri , cotton, and third crops have suffered in places owing to continuous and heavy rain. Cattle-disease in two villages of Dindori taluka. Cholera in parts, 5 attacks, 2 deaths. Locusts throughout the district doing no damage, except in a few villages of Sinnar, Baglan, Kalwan, and Peint. Wheat 28, bajri 28, and rice 22 lbs. per rupee.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	4.99 from 23rd to 25th; heavy rain on 25th.	Total rainfall 77.13, being 10.15 above average. Abnormal temperature 1° warm to 4° cool. Vapour in air defective, except on 25th. Abnormal wind from north-west on 25th.
Poona ...	Light showers during the week.	Six deaths from cholera. Bajri 39 and juari 48 lbs., in Poona bajri 34 and juari 44 lbs. per rupee.
Ahmednagar ...	Rain in all talukas—maximum at Newasa, 3.52; minimum at Jamkhed, .11.	Kharif crops in good condition. Sowings of rabi in progress throughout the district. Cholera 19 attacks, 11 deaths. Bajri —maximum 60 lbs. in Jamkhed, minimum 36 in Kopergaon, and juari —maximum 72 lbs. in Jamkhed, minimum 48 in Kopergaon.
Sholapur ...	44	Total rainfall 33.22. Kharif crops good. Rabi sowings commenced in places. No damage by locusts. Cholera 69 cases, 31 deaths. Juari 62 and bajri 52 lbs. per rupee.
Dharwar ...	No rain except at Hangal, where only .10 fell.	Rain badly wanted as crops, especially rice, are withering. Cotton sowings still in progress. Saman and rabi being cut in Hangal and Kod talukas. In Nargund, Gadag, Und, and Bankapur lands being prepared for sowing of wheat, gram, &c. Public health good. Slight cattle-disease in Hangal and Kalghutgi. Juari 84 to 49 lbs. and rice 41 to 26 lbs. per rupee.
Kanara ...	Karwar, .34; Kumpta, .6; Sirsi, .33; Halhal, .13.	Total rainfall 131.44. Rice plants in ear above ghat. Rice harvest begun on coast. Plucking betelnut commenced. Small-pox, 1 death each in Kumpta and Hanawar. Common rice in Karwar 12½, in district average 1½ seers per rupee.
Rajkot ...	28	General health fair. Weather cool and cloudy. Total rainfall 25.37. Bajri 29 and juari 32 lbs. per rupee.
Bengal—(Sept. 26th)
Chittagong ...	1.22	Weather hot. Prospects good. Outturn of aus rice fair. Transplanting of aman rice finished. Prices steady. Cattle-disease still continues.
Dacca ...	.57	Prospects of crops good. Aus rice and jute being cut.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta) ...	Nil	Prospects of both early and late rice good; early rice being harvested; yield estimated at twelve-anna average crop. Transplanting of late rice finished. More rain necessary in parts of district. Price of common rice stationary. Health of people generally good. Fever reported from Baraset and Bassirhat sub-divisions.
Moorshedabad ...	Nil	Weather very hot and close. Harvest rice suffering much for want of rain. Bhadai harvest almost completed. Outturn expected to be fair. Public health good.
Rajshahye ...	.02	Weather dry with light clouds. Crops want rain, especially in the north. Public health with some exceptions good for the time of year.
Burdwan ...	Nil	Rain much wanted, especially for crops on high land. Public health fair.
Rungpore ...	1.53	Weather cloudy. Prospects of crops fair. Fever prevalent.
Bhagalpur ...	.43	Prospects favourable. More rain wanted. Autumn crops have yielded eight to ten annas.
Purneah ...	2.06	Prospects of crops improved by rain. Fever slightly increased.
Patna ...	2.73	Transplanting of paddy over. Rain much wanted in South Behar. Bhadai crops nearly gathered. Cholera and fever prevalent. Season unhealthy.
Durbhunga ...	.94	Crops doing well, but more rain wanted. Transplanting still going on. Bhadai crops being harvested with fair outturn. Prices of food-grains stationary. Public health fairly good.
Hazaribagh ...	.55	Weather warm and close. Bhadai harvest nearly completed. Rice prospects favourable. General health good.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—contd.
Cuttack ...	1·31	Weather cloudy. Early rice being reaped with prospects of average outturn. Late rice being weeded and thriving well. Public health good. General Remarks. —Rain fell in almost all districts during the week; it has done much good in Behar, where more is still wanted. In Bengal proper, it has been generally very slight, except in Julpigorie and Cooch Behar, and the rice crop on the higher lands has begun to suffer in several parts. In Orissa and Chota Nagpore the rainfall has been adequate, and agricultural prospects are favourable. Early rice and jute have almost been gathered in with a fair outturn, except in some places where they are said to have yielded much below average crops. In Behar reaping of bladoi crops is being pushed on generally with expectation of a good average outturn, except in Mozufferpore where they were greatly destroyed by the late inundation. Fever is reported to be prevalent in some districts, but the general health of the province is still fair.
N. W. Provinces and Oudh—
Benares (Sept. 25th)	Nil	More rain required; none having fallen during the week. Fever continues amongst men. Prices stationary.
Allahabad ( " 26th)	Nil	Rain ceased on 22nd, since which date the weather has been fine and not dry.
Gorakhpur ( " 23rd)	Rain in all tahsils during the week varying from 6·8 in Deoria to ·3 in Sadr tahsil.	Crops flourishing; prospects excellent. Cholera in jail abating; no fresh cases for the last three days, several cases in the city during the week, otherwise general health exceptionally good. Prices steady.
Jhansi ( " 24th)	Good rain everywhere except Sadr.	Kharif prospects fair, but a little more rain will do good. Prices falling. Health of people and cattle good.
Agra ( " 25th)	Nil	No cholera; fever in two parganas. Prices steady. No cattle-disease reported. More rain required.
Barilly ( " " )	Nil	Crops good, except rice. Harvest progressing. Cholera almost disappeared; some fever prevails.
Meerut ( " 26th)	Nil	West wind. Cool nights and mornings. Rabi ploughings in active progress. Some peas and carrots already sown. A few cases of cholera in Mowana, otherwise health good. Labour abundant. Supplies sufficient and prices steady.
Kumaun ( " 25th)	Rain on 21st	Weather fair. Madua has begun to be reaped in some places. Health good. Cattle-disease continues. Prices unchanged.
Lucknow ( " " )	·1 at Malihabad on the 20th instant.	State of crops good; hewat crops doing very well. Condition of people and cattle good. Markets well supplied. Prices stationary.
Partabgarh ( " " )	Sadr, ·7; Kunda, 2·3; and Patti, ·3.	Prices of grain falling. The recent rain has saved the rice in Patti. Prospects good. Slight fever reported, but general health good.
Sitapur ( " " )	·4; Sidhoni, ·6; Biswan, 1·9; Misrikh, ·3.	Prospects good; wheat and rice somewhat dearer; barley and sauan cheaper.
Fyzabad ( " " )	Nil	Prospects of aghani crops good. Condition of cattle and public health good.
Rae Bareilly ( " " )	Sadr, 5·3; Digbijai-ganj, ·7; Dalman, 2·7; Salon, ·8.	Weather favourable. Harvest prospects good. Prices slightly falling. Supplies sufficient. General health good.
Cawnpore ( " " )	Good fall on 15th and 16th in all tahsils.	Weather good. Crops except rice doing well. General health of people good. Cattle-disease still reported in Sarh and Salempur, but of a mild nature. Prices stationary.
Farukhabad ( " " )	.....	Weather bright and rather hot sun. Nights and mornings much cooler; rainy season apparently closed. An outbreak of fever in Chibramau tahsil. General Remarks. —There was a fall of rain in some districts in the early part of the week, but the weather in the latter part seems to have been clear and sunny generally, and the rainy season appears to be over. More rain is however wanted in many districts. The prospects of the crops are on the whole fair. The cholera in Gorakhpur jail has abated, but there have been cases in the city.
Punjab—(Sept. 25th).
Delhi ...	.....	Health good. Prices slightly fallen.
Hissar ...	.....	Health good. Kharif crops thriving. Rabi sowings commenced. Prices stationary.
Umballa ...	.....	Health good. Kharif yields expected to be below the average. Rain wanted. Prices stationary.
Jullundur ...	.....	Health and kharif prospects good. Prices falling.
Amritsar ...	.....	Health good. Prices stationary.
Sialkot ...	.....	Health and harvest prospects good. Prices falling.
Ferozepore ...	.....	Health and kharif prospects good. Prices falling.
Lahore ...	.....	Health and kharif prospects good. Rabi ploughing commenced. Prices stationary.
Rawalpindi ...	.....	Fever in two tahsils, health elsewhere good. Crop prospects average. Prices falling.
Mooltan ...	.....	Health and crop prospects good. Prices stationary.
Dera Ismail Khan ...	.....	Health good. Crops suffering. Prices steady.
Peshawar ...	.....	Health good. Rain wanted. Prices falling. General Remarks. —There has been no rain during the week. Health and kharif prospects are generally good.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Central Provinces— (Sept. 26th)
Nagpur ...	4.80	Weather cloudy and hot. Recent heavy rain following upon the long drought has done some injury to khari crops. A break needed. Cholera abating.
Jubbulpore ...	.50	Weather clear with bright sunshine. Crops thriving. Wheat 22 and rice 14 seers per rupee. Health good.
Saugor (Sept. 25th)	.....	Weather clear and hot. Prospects favourable. Rain required for ploughing operations for rabi sowings. Prices stationary. Health good.
Seoni ...	3.9; rain daily	Weather unusually hot. Cotton and other khari crops thriving. Minor crops being reaped. Four deaths from cholera. Prices falling.
Hoshangabad ...	.91	Weather hot and cloudy. Khari crops thriving. Weeding continues. Health good. Wheat 15 and rice 9 seers per rupee.
Khandwa ...	1.33; occasional rain	Prospects good. Minor crops nearly reaped. Eleven deaths from cholera. Prices steady.
Raipur ...	5.5	Prospects favourable. A few cases of cholera in town and cantonments. Prices steady.
Sambalpur (Sept. 22nd)	2.71	Weather favourable. Rice on high lands stunted. Fever increasing. Rice 36 seers per rupee.
General Remarks. —There has been heavy rain in the south and east of the provinces which has been very favourable to rice, but has done some injury to the cotton and millet crops; in Nagpur and Wardha in the north of the provinces rain has been slight and these crops are reported to be promising well.
British Burma— (Sept. 26th)
Akyab (Sept. 22nd)	4.18	Total rainfall 171.41. Eight deaths from cholera in district, three in town, otherwise public health good. 75 deaths of cattle in two townships, elsewhere health of plough cattle good. Transplanting nearly over. Season favourable. Crops healthy.
Rangoon ...	0.64	Total rainfall 70.99. Five deaths from small-pox, otherwise public health good. Price of paddy from Rs. 97 to Rs. 87 per 100 baskets.
Bassein ...	1.01	Total rainfall 80.62. Public health good. 14 deaths of cattle in Thegwin township and 7 in Bassein township. Plants in good condition. Prices of paddy from Rs. 80 to Rs. 100 per 100 baskets.
Amherst (Moulmein) ...	6.42	Total rainfall 159.98. Public health and health of cattle good. Crops healthy. In Moulmein town public health and health of cattle good. Progress and general appearance of crops good. No damage from drought, floods or insects.
Toungoo ...	2.17	Total rainfall 72.0. Public health and health of plough cattle good. Transplanting progressing.
Kyoukphyoo (Sept. 15th)	9.07	Total rainfall 151.83. Four deaths from cholera. 15 heads of cattle died in the Myabin township. Price of paddy Rs. 25 per 100 local baskets. Paddy plants healthy.
Sadoway ( " " )	12.50	Total rainfall 194.25. Public health good. Crops healthy.
Hanthawaddy ...	.....	Public health and health of cattle good. Ploughing and sowing progressing. Some of the crops in the Aingkaloung, Bawley, and Moungtanga circles, and Hlaing township have been destroyed by floods. Transplanting going on in Tamanoing and Hlaing townships. Ploughing wages 60 baskets of paddy per man in Hlaing township. Price of paddy from Rs. 90 to Rs. 100 per 100 baskets.
Pegu ...	1.57	Total rainfall 111.33. Public health good. Slight cattle-disease in Kaonbaw circle and Pannglin township. No deaths returned. Crops well forward. Season most favourable. Prices of paddy Rs. 85 to Rs. 90 per 100 baskets.
Tharrawaddy ...	1.40	Total rainfall 87.17. Public health good. 29 deaths of cattle in Tapun and Sangwe townships. Health of plough cattle in all other townships except Gyobingouk where slight disease prevails, good. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting progressing. The damaged crops last reported are being replaced. More rain wanted in northern circle of Gyobingouk township. Price of paddy from Rs. 93 to Rs. 100 per 100 baskets.
Prome ...	0.28	Total rainfall 39.60. Public health good. Health of cattle also good. Only 12 deaths from small-pox reported. Ploughing and planting progressing. Transplanting nearly finished. Paddy crop in good condition. Prices of paddy Rs. 92 per 100 baskets.
Thonegwa ...	.39	Total rainfall 71.12. Public health good. Health of cattle good. 3,500 acres reported to be destroyed by floods in Thayein circle, Donabyoo township. Destruction of crops by floods also reported from Shawayloun, Pantanaw, Zandoon, and Thonegwa townships. Supply of seedlings for replanting insufficient. Prospects in Dadajeh and Pyapoon townships good. Prices of paddy from Rs. 90 to Rs. 95 per 100 baskets.
Henzada ...	.79	Total rainfall 76.11. Three deaths from small-pox in Henzada township, otherwise public health and health of cattle good. Transplanting completed in Henzada sub-division and progressing in Myanounng sub-division. Seedlings and plants in good condition.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
British Burma—contd.
Thayetmyo ...	67	Total rainfall 28.57. Public health good. Fifty-three deaths of cattle in Myede. About half rice crops promise fairly, remainder has suffered much from drought and though plentiful rain fell last night cannot wholly recover.
Shwaygyin ...	5.34	Total rainfall 128.89. Public health and health of cattle fair. Ploughing finished. Transplanting and sowing about five-sixths done.
Tavoy ...	4.42	Total rainfall 179.40. Public health and health of cattle good. General appearance of crops good. Price of paddy Rs. 65 per 100 baskets.
Mergui (Sept. 8th & 15th)	Week ending 1st September 1883, 8.50; week ending 8th September 1883, 13.15; week ending 15th September 1883, 7.40.	Total rainfall 135.0. Public health and health of cattle good. Area ploughed 34,000 acres and seed sown. Crops healthy. Prices of paddy Rs. 75 per 100 baskets.
General Remarks. —Public health good. Cattle deaths on the decrease. Rainfall for the week all over the province except the Tenasserim division, less than the rainfall for the corresponding week last year and total rainfall up to date considerably less than last year. Agricultural operations progressing favourably and prospects of crops reported good. In parts of the Thonegwa district the crops have suffered from flood, and in parts of Thayetmyo the crops have suffered from drought. Price of paddy slightly fallen.
Assam—(Sept. 26th)
Gauhati ...	Nil	Weather seasonable. Mornings cool and occasionally foggy. Transplanting of sali paddy nearly over. Prospects of other crops favourable. Public health fair. Cattle-disease still prevalent.
Sylhet ...	3.68	Crop prospects favourable except in the case of sugarcane; which is backward in places. Cholera and small-pox reported in parts, but public health generally good.
Cachar ...	1.41	Weather cloudy with slight rain. Transplanting of sali crops finished. Reaping of aus crops progressing. Common rice 16½ seers per rupee. No small-pox reported.
Dibrugarh ...	3.79	Weather rainy. Prospects of sali dhan good. Public health good.
Mysore and Coorg— (Sept. 26th)
Bangalore ...	15	Dry crops in the district in urgent need of rain. Prospects dependent on early rainfall. Health good.
Mysore ...	10	Standing crops generally in fair condition, but in need of rain. Harvesting of kar , ragi , paddy, oilseed, &c., in progress. Prospects fair.
Mercara ...	28	Prospect of crops good. Cutting of ragi crop commenced in North-East Coorg. Prices falling.
General Remarks. —Little or no rain during the week. Crops withering in parts of Tumkur and Kolar districts. In Shimoga and Kadur districts standing crops reported in good condition and agricultural operations continue. Prospects fair and general health good. No material change in prices.
Berar &amp; Hyderabad— (Sept. 26th)
Amraoti ...	3.70	Crops have suffered from excessive rain. A break is necessary. Wheat 16 and juari 26 seers per rupee.
Akola ...	3.63	Crops generally in good condition, but a break in weather is needed.
Hyderabad ...	1.25	Total rainfall from 1st January 26.8. Standing crops prospering. Reaping of kharif crop continues. Chillie crop damaged by excessive rain. Cholera broke out in a few villages of one taluka; fever and ague prevail in another taluka. Prices—wheat 16, coarse rice 10½, white juari 24, yellow juari 27, and tur 24 seers per current sicca rupee.
Central India States— (Sept. 26th)
Indore ...	36	Weather warm. Prospects good.
Morar (Gwalior) ...	0.48	Fever in Lashkar. Prospects good. Prices stationary.
Sutna ...	4.67	Prospects good.
Rutlam ...	.....	No report received.
Neemuch ...	Nil	Reaping of makka in progress. Weather warm. Public health good.
Goona ...	Nil	Health and crops good. Wheat 23 seers 8 chittacks per rupee.
Bhopal ...	.....	No report received.
Agar ...	Nil	Weather clear. Agricultural prospects satisfactory.
Schore ...	0.38	Weather fine with occasional clouds. Prospects and public health good.
Nowgong ...	1.84	Prospects favourable. Health good. Prices stationary.
Manpur (Bhopawar) ...	.....	No report received.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Rajputana—
Abu (Sept. 26th)	·23	Weather clear and seasonable.
Sirohi ( „ 23rd)	·07	Tanks and wells full. Health good. Prospects fair. Weather warm.
Marwar ( „ 21st)	No rain	Four months' water in Jodhpore city. Tanks and wells filling up. Health good. Crops good. Weather partially cloudy, warm, and close. Prospects favourable. Another general fall of rain would vastly improve the new and the damaged crops, and ensure a tolerably good harvest. Prices stationary.
Meywar ( „ 23rd)	·26	Slight showers. Tanks and wells very good. Health good. Crops good.
Harowti ( „ 22nd)	Nil	Rabi operations in progress. More rain wanted. Weather clear. Heat great. Health good. Prices stationary.
Jhallawar ( „ 14th)	11·21	Tanks full; wells nearly so.
Do. ( „ 21st)	·13	Sufficient rain reported from all districts. Health good.
Ajmere ( „ 25th)	No rain	Heat excessive. Ground being prepared for rabi. Health good.
Jeypore ( „ „ )	Nil	Kharif prospects improved. More rain wanted in Kishanghur for wells and tanks. Health good. Prices steady.
Bhurtapore	.....	No report received.
Ulwur (Sept. 25th)	No rain	Preparations for rabi commenced. Prices falling. Health good.
Nepal—(Sept. 20th)
Katmandu ...	1·91	Weather constantly cloudy and showery with some thunder. Prospects good.

E. C. BUCK,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Lieutenant T. C. Pears, Officiating Political Assistant of the 3rd Class, to officiate as Political Assistant of the 2nd Class.

The 27th September, 1883.

No. 2327 G.—Captain C. E. Yate, Political Assistant of the 2nd Class, and Boundary Settlement Officer, Bhopal, is appointed to hold charge of the current duties of the office of Political Agent in Bhopawar, in addition to his own duties, with effect from the date of assuming charge, during the absence on privilege leave of Major J. Biddulph.

C. GRANT,

Secretary to the Government of India.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

NOTIFICATIONS

Simla, the 29th September 1883.

No. 3470.—In exercise of the powers vested in him by Section 8 of Act XVI of 1881 (The Obstructions in Fairways Act, 1881), the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following Rule prohibiting the placing of fishing stakes in the fairway leading to the Port of Bombay:—

Rule.—It shall not be lawful to place fishing stakes outside the limits of the Port of Bombay to seaward of the 10-fathom line of soundings within 22 miles of the Prongs Light-house or within 18 miles of the Kennerly Light-house.

No. 3546.—In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 35 of the Court Fees Act, VII of 1870, the Governor General in Council has—remitted the fees payable under the Court Fees Act on all documents filed, exhibited or recorded in, or received or furnished by, the Court of the Special Judge appointed under the Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act, 1882;

remitted the fees payable under the Court Fees Act on all documents connected with the proceedings in the Court of the Commissioner under the Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act, 1882, except on memoranda of appeal, and on applications for revision of any decision or order of the Special Judge under Chapter VI of the said Act; directed that the fee payable under the Court Fees Act, 1870, on any appeal against a decision of the Special Judge under Chapter VI of the Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act, 1882, shall not exceed eight annas.

No. 3554.—Babu Umachurn Chackerbutty is appointed to officiate, until further orders, as Chief Superintendent in Class III, Financial Department, with effect from the 12th August 1883, and is attached to the Office of the Accountant General, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

D. M. BARBOUR,

Secy. to the Govt. of India.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Simla, the 28th September, 1883.

FURLOUGH AND LEAVE.

No. 526.—Surgeon G. S. A. Ranking, M.D., has been granted by the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India furlough out of India, (m. c.) for 182 days, under rule VI of the regulations of 1875, with effect from the 24th March, 1883.

No. 527.—The undermentioned officers have been granted extensions of furlough by the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India:—

Lieutenant-Colonel C. O'L. L. Prendergast, Bengal S. C., (m. c.) for six months.

Lieutenant-Colonel B. R. Brantill, Cavalry, (p. a.) for six months.

Brigade-Surgeon J. Jones, M.D., (m. c.) for six months.

Conductor W. Howes, Ordnance Department, (m. c.) for three months.

LONDON GAZETTE.

No. 528.—The following extract is published for general information:—

"London Gazette," dated the 28th August, 1883, page 4228.

“WAR OFFICE;

Pall Mall, 28th August, 1883.

MEMORANDA.

* * * *

The promotion to the rank of Colonel of Lieutenant-Colonel John Pringle Sherriff, Bengal Staff Corps, is antedated to 1st October, 1877.

The undermentioned Lieutenant-Colonels to be Colonels:—

John Malone Sexton, Bombay Staff Corps. Dated 19th October, 1881.

William Tweedie, C.S.I., Bengal Staff Corps. Dated 25th April, 1882.

Henry Alexander Little, Bengal Staff Corps. Dated 13th May, 1882.

Philip Crampton Rynd, Bengal Staff Corps. Dated 11th June, 1883.

James Galloway, C.B., Bombay Staff Corps. Dated 11th June, 1883.

Charles John Pearse, Madras Staff Corps. Dated 20th June, 1883.

INDIAN STAFF CORPS.

The undermentioned Officers have been transferred to the Unemployed Supernumerary List:—

Colonel Harry Smith Obbard, Bengal. Dated 20th July, 1883.

Colonel Hungerford Meyer Boddam, Bengal. Dated 28th July, 1883.

Colonel Thomas Mowbray Baumgartner, Bombay. Dated 21st July, 1883.

INDIAN LOCAL SERVICE.

The undermentioned Officers have been transferred to the Unemployed Supernumerary List. Dated 16th July, 1883:—

Lieutenant-General Frederick Charles Maisey, Bengal Infantry.

Major-General Henry Borlase Stevens, Bengal Infantry.

Major-General James Buchanan, Madras Cavalry.

Major-General William Martin Cafe, v.c., Bengal Infantry.

To be Lieutenant-General :—

Major-General William Henry Watts, Madras Infantry. Dated 16th July, 1883.

To be Lieutenant-Generals on the Unemployed Supernumerary List :—

Major-General Henry Borlase Stevens, Bengal Infantry. Dated 16th July, 1883.

Major-General James Buchanan, Madras Cavalry. Dated 16th July, 1883.

The undermentioned Officers have been transferred to the Unemployed Supernumerary List. Dated 1st August, 1883 :—

Lieutenant-General William Henry Watts, Madras Infantry.

Major-General George Travis Radcliffe, Madras Cavalry.

To be Lieutenant-General on the Unemployed Supernumerary List :—

Major-General George Travis Radcliffe, Madras Cavalry. Dated 1st August, 1883."

PROMOTIONS.

No. 529.—The following promotions are made, subject to Her Majesty's approval :—

BENGAL STAFF CORPS.

To be Captains.

Lieutenant Alfred Fox Cotton,—23rd September, 1883.

Lieutenant Frederick Charles Maisey,—23rd September, 1883.

Lieutenant George Wingate,—23rd September, 1883.

Lieutenant Charles Hogge,—23rd September, 1883.

Lieutenant John William Hogge,—23rd September, 1883.

Lieutenant Oswald Claude Radford,—26th September, 1883.

BENGAL ARMY.

To be Colonel.

Lieutenant-Colonel (Brevet Colonel) Henry Hamer Stansfeld, Bengal Infantry,—23rd September, 1883.

No. 530.—Under the provisions of the Royal Warrant of the 10th November, 1881, the name of Colonel R. M. Macdonald, Madras S. C., is placed on the list of Major-Generals on the Indian Gradation List, in consequence of the transfer to the Unemployed Supernumerary List of Colonel (Major-General on the Indian Gradation List) W. E. White, Madras S. C., on the 31st May, 1883 (since deceased).

No. 531.—ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT—

Sub-Conductor George Raffin, on probation, is confirmed in his present grade from the 5th March, 1883.

No. 532.—NATIVE ARMY—

9th Native Infantry.

Jemadar Jussoojat to be Subadar, vice Baboo Khan, invalided; Havildar Dost Mohammad Khan to be Jemadar, vice Jussoojat, promoted, —25th August, 1883.

RESIGNATIONS.

No. 533.—Second Class Assistant Apothecary George Edwards is permitted to resign the service.

G. CHESNEY,

Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Simla, the 24th September 1883.

No. 222.—Mr. H. C. Barnes, Deputy Examiner, 2nd Grade, is retransferred to the Engineer Establishment, with rank of Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, and posted to Bengal.

The 26th September 1883.

No. 223.—Mr. W. Palmer, Examiner of Telegraph Accounts, is appointed Examiner, Public Works Accounts, Central India.

Major F. G. Oldham, R.E., Examiner, Public Works Accounts, Central India, is appointed Examiner of Telegraph Accounts.

The 28th September 1883.

No. 224.—Mr. A. T. Goodfellow, Deputy Examiner of Accounts, is, on return from furlough, posted to the Office of the Examiner of Guaranteed Railway Accounts, Calcutta.

Mr. R. A. English, Deputy Examiner of Accounts, is transferred from the Office of the Examiner of Guaranteed Railway Accounts, Calcutta, to the Office of the Examiner of Accounts, Military Works Branch, to join after arrival of Mr. Goodfellow.

Mr. F. W. Eicke, Assistant Examiner of Accounts, Military Works Branch, is transferred to the Office of the Examiner, Public Works Accounts, North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

W. S. TREVOR, Colonel, R.E.,

Secy. to the Gov. of India.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1883.

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

PART II.

Notifications by High Court, Comptroller General, &c.

GAZETTE OF INDIA.

NOTICE.

The 17th March 1883.

From the 7th April next, till further notice, Parts I, IV, and V of the Gazette of India, and the Weather and Crop Reports, will be published at Simla. After the 31st March, all Notifications and other matter intended for publication in those Parts, should be addressed to the Officiating Publisher at Simla.

Parts IV and V of the Gazette of India, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Council, may be subscribed for separately from the other Parts of the Gazette. The annual subscription for the two Parts is R5 per annum, payable in advance. When sent by post, R2-8 per annum additional will be charged for postage.

Complaints regarding non-receipt of any number of the Gazette should be forwarded within a week after the day on which it is due.

Applications for the supply of the Gazette on the public service should be addressed to the Home Department.

By an order of Government, all subscriptions must be paid in advance.

	R	a.	p.
Subscription for Gazette and Supplement per annum	15	0	0
Postage	6	8	0
Subscription for Supplement only	6	0	0
Postage	3	0	0
For a single copy of the Gazette	0	8	0
For a single copy of the Supplement	0	4	0
Postage on single copies varies according to weight.

E. J. DEAN,

Publisher, Gazette of India.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR CENTRAL INDIA.

NOTIFICATION.

Indore Residency, the 19th September 1883.

No. 2518.—Mr. R. M. Dane, C.S., Special Boundary Settlement Officer, Indore, is granted one month's privilege leave, from the 6th September 1883.

By Order,

C. E. YATE, Capt.,

*for 1st Asst. Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India.*

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR CENTRAL INDIA, P. W. D.

NOTIFICATION.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Indore, the 21st September 1883.

No. 13.—Mr. H. F. White, Executive Engineer, 1st Grade, is granted twelve months' furlough to Europe, with the usual subsidiary leave, the latter commencing from the forenoon of the 20th instant.

The local Administration declares that it has no objection to extension or commutation of the leave by the Secretary of State.

By Order,

C. S. THOMASON, Col., R.E.,

*Secy. to Agent, Govr. Genl.,
for Central India, P. W. D.*

EXAMINER OF FUND ACCOUNTS.

Calcutta, the 19th September 1883.

Statement of Deposits made with the Military Orphan Fund in trust for Soldiers' Children.

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				₹ a. p.
Prior to 1842 .	Collins, —, Sergeant . . .	. . .	Two children . . .	157 14 1
" .	Lee, E., Corporal . . .	. . .	Two children . . .	111 9 6
" .	Smith, Henry, Sergeant . . .	. . .	Elizabeth . . .	828 0 0
" .	Smith, D., Sergeant Major . . .	. . .	Margaret . . .	78 6 5
" .	Story, —, Sergeant . . .	. . .	Thomas . . .	117 5 4
" .	MacConnell, Sergeant . . .	. . .	John . . .	77 15 3
" .	Rutherford, Sergeant . . .	. . .	Margaret . . .	138 10 8
" .	Hewetson, William, Gunner . . .	. . .	John . . .	47 5 7
" .	Taylor, John, Private . . .	. . .	John . . .	214 11 11
" .	Conroy, Peter, Corporal . . .	. . .	Thomas . . .	274 14 6
" .	McCullum, —, Conductor . . .	. . .	John . . .	354 6 10
" .	Gordon, James . . .	59th Foot . . .	James . . .	589 2 2
" .	Casey, Jeremiah . . .	87th " . . .	Daniel . . .	109 12 4
" .	Corbolly, Thomas, Private . . .	59th " . . .	Samuel . . .	62 12 3
" .	Cassidy, —, Corporal . . .	. . .	John . . .	61 3 9
" .	Hyde, Henry, Conductor . . .	. . .	Thomas . . .	187 1 10
" .	Hodgkinson, E., Troop Sergeant Major . . .	11th Dragoons . . .	William . . .	64 8 0
" .	Anderson, William, Corporal . . .	H. C. 1st En. Regt. . .	Mary Anne Margaret . . .	124 11 6
" .	White, W., Private . . .	3rd Buffs . . .	George and Mary Anne . . .	13 13 9
" .	Minogue, T., Private . . .	3rd " . . .	Thomas . . .	23 11 0
" .	Taylor, John, Bombardier . . .	. . .	Elizabeth . . .	43 0 0
" .	Neal, James, Private . . .	59th Foot . . .	James . . .	43 0 0
" .	Sherrock, J., Corporal . . .	. . .	Joseph . . .	160 0 0
" .	Moore, Bombardier . . .	. . .	Dorothy . . .	5 9 5
" .	Lawson, Henry, Laboratory Sergeant . . .	. . .	George . . .	11 8 2
" .	Creighton, James, Corporal . . .	13th L. Infy. . .	Mary Ann . . .	16 12 0
" .	McCoy, —, Sub-Conductor . . .	. . .	John and George . . .	958 3 2
" .	Long, R., Sergeant . . .	Allahabad Magazine Establishment . . .	Ann and Robert D. . .	137 3 9
" .	Baker, H., Gunner . . .	4th Co., 3rd Bn. Arty. . .	James . . .	32 1 4
" .	Hills, —, Gunner . . .	1st Co., 3rd B. A. . .	Sophia . . .	30 1 1
" .	Burns, James, Gunner . . .	Artillery . . .	Hannah . . .	10 5 9
" .	McKenny, R., Bombardier . . .	1st Co., 4th Bn. Arty. . .	Ann Eliza . . .	134 6 5
" .	Smith, J., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Margaret . . .	6 6 5
" .	Byrne, F., Hospital Sergeant . . .	2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Charles . . .	123 13 4
" .	Flynn, J., Gunner . . .	3rd Troop, 1st Bde. H. Arty. . .	Elizabeth . . .	6 1 4
" .	Fagan, J., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 3rd Bn. Arty. . .	Mary and James . . .	11 12 9
" .	Johnson, C., Gunner . . .	1st Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	William . . .	3 0 6
" .	Twoomey, M., Gunner . . .	4th Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	Michael, William, and Margaret . . .	21 2 11
" .	Ahern, William, Gunner . . .	4th Co., 2nd B. Arty. . .	John . . .	65 11 9
" .	McCormick, J., Gunner . . .	4th Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Bernard . . .	116 10 9
" .	Gavin, J., Gunner . . .	2nd Co., 3rd Bn. Arty. . .	Thomas and James . . .	189 3 6
" .	Bryan, D., Sergeant . . .	. . .	Mortimer . . .	12 10 11
" .	Reid, —, Sergeant . . .	Sappers and Miners . . .	Eleanor and Eunice . . .	68 6 5
" .	South, John, Sergeant . . .	. . .	Elizabeth Martha . . .	310 0 0
" .	Cunningham, Mathew, Private . . .	44th Foot . . .	Michael . . .	37 14 6
" .	Blyth, John, Conductor . . .	. . .	Children (names not recorded). . .	12 12 3
" .	Smith, T., Sergeant . . .	. . .	Esther and Amelia . . .	23 15 0
" .	Pierce, Qr. Mr. Sergt. . .	20th N. I. . .	Thomas . . .	711 15 2
" .	Driver, J., Sergt. Major . . .	. . .	Robert . . .	141 7 1
June 29, 1853 .	(Not Recorded) . . .	. . .	Bryan, Margaret and Wm. . .	53 8 3
" .	Canty, John, Bombardier . . .	3rd Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	John (died 11th May 1842) . . .	272 2 8
June 29, 1849 .	(Not recorded) . . .	. . .	Daly Robert . . .	23 9 1
" .	Patterson, John, Sergt. . .	1st Co., 4th B. Arty. . .	William H. . .	26 7 10
" .	Davis, D., Sergt. . .	4th Troop, 1st Bde., H. A. . .	Thomas . . .	23 15 2
Dec. 28, 1842 .	Wilson, T., Bazar Sergt. . .	. . .	Sophia . . .	132 9 0
Mar. 24, 1843 .	Nowlon, L., Farrier Sergt. . .	4th Troop, 2nd B. H. A. . .	Ellen . . .	112 9 0
Apl. 3, " .	Farrell, James, Gunner . . .	2nd Co., 5th B. Arty. . .	Charlotte . . .	4 2 8
" .	Roach, Edward, Private . . .	1st En. Lt. Infy. . .	David and Austel . . .	7 13 3
Mar. 9, 1844 .	Sheehan, B., Gunner . . .	3rd Co., 3rd B. Arty. . .	John and Patrick . . .	2 1 8
June 21, " .	Evans, George, Sergt. . .	1st Co., 2nd Bn. Arty. . .	Mary Ann and Catherine . . .	19 14 9
Sep. 19, " .	Andrews, —, Private . . .	44th Foot . . .	George . . .	200 0 0
Nov. 16, 1844 .	Gale, —, Private . . .	10th Foot . . .	John Thomas . . .	28 12 0
" 20, " .	Sullivan, John, Bombardier . . .	1st Co., 2nd B. Arty. . .	John . . .	130 0 0
Jan. 6, 1845 .	Dawe, John, Gunner . . .	3rd Co. " " . . .	William Henry . . .	55 12 9
" 6, " .	Barnes, Peter, Corporal . . .	1st Co. " " . . .	Mary Ann . . .	64 2 11
" 6, " .	Monaghan, Michael, Sergt. . .	1st Co. " " . . .	James . . .	156 12 5
" 15, " .	Godfrey, —, Sergt. Major . . .	. . .	Harriett M. and James . . .	31 14 1

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				R	a.	p.
Feb. 14, 1845	Fry, —, Bugle Major	6th B. Arty.	James	12	6	9
" 14, "	Hannoo, John, Drummer	68th Regt. N. I.	Mary	28	8	3
July 9, "	Meaney, John, Sergt. Major	2nd B. H. A.	Henry and James	292	15	8
" 9, "	Murphy, Thomas, Bombardier	2nd T., 3rd Bde., II. A.	Ellen	77	4	11
" 9, "	Tate, William, Staff Sergt.	4th Co., 5th B. Arty.	Catherine Ann	167	15	5
" 9, "	Daley, Owen, Gunner	3rd Co. " "	Owen and William	14	3	1
" 7, "	Hay, A., Sergt. Major	" " "	Thomas	101	5	4
Sep. 1, "	Ryan, —, Sergt.	" " "	Julia B. and George J.	120	13	0
Jan. 7, 1846	Everett, Richard, Bombardier	5th Co., 5th B. Arty.	Caroline and Eliza	28	10	10
Aug. 8, "	McEnemy, Thomas, Conductor	" " "	Hannah	152	0	9
" " "	Glasseen, John, Corporal	" " "	Ellen Sarah	66	10	3
" " "	Ridley, Henry, Gunner	" " "	Henry	34	9	3
Oct. 16, "	Fowles, John, Sergt.	Artillery	Sarah Terrence and James	3	2	0
" 16, "	Lewis, Thomas, Gunner	" " "	Thomas	20	5	3
July 19, 1847	Lunn, Adam, Farrier	" " "	Adam T. and John	79	14	0
" " "	Clarke, William, Bombardier	1st T., 3rd B., H. Arty.	Children's names not recorded.	104	10	8
" " "	Prince, W., Sergt.	1st " 1st B., H. Arty.	Ditto ditto	125	15	10
" 6, 1847	Dobbins, Francis, Gunner	" " "	Martha	83	3	5
Jan. 11, 1848	Byrnes, —, Corporal	" " "	Maria	59	0	0
" 7, "	Willford, C., Qr.-Mr. Sergt.	" " "	Ann Louisa and Mary	200	15	0
June 26, "	Mathews, M., Sub-Conductor	" " "	Rachael	12	2	2
July 6, "	Braithwaite, W., Staff Sergt.	" " "	C. William and William H.	148	3	5
Jan. 13, 1849	Doherty, Michael, Sergt.	" " "	Oliver H. and Henrietta	77	8	10
May 9, "	Sheehan, D., Private	2nd En. Regt.	James	36	5	6
June 2, "	Moore, Benjamin, Private	1st En. B. F.	Sarah C.	9	8	4
" 2, "	Crowley, Charles, Private	" " "	John	7	6	1
Oct. 12, "	Deare, W., Conductor	" " "	Emiline	50	0	0
Nov. 21, "	Moget, —, Sergt. Major	" " "	George	69	11	4
Feb. 18, 1850	Peal, Robert, Sergt.	3rd Co., 1st B. Arty.	Robert Henry	69	7	10
" 18, "	Roote, Daniel, Gunner	1st Co., 4th B. Arty.	James	26	3	0
June 29, "	Uniaek, Patrick, Sergt.	1st Co., 3rd B. Arty.	John	29	15	0
July 18, "	Barker, J., Sergt.	" " "	William Robert	97	14	2
" " "	Sheehan, P., Gunner	Artillery	Patrick	23	5	6
Oct. 29, "	Lees, James, Corporal	2nd En. Regt.	Elizabeth	25	14	6
April 15, 1851	Mulvey, Robert, Corporal	2nd E. Regt.	Richard	28	1	11
Mar. 2, 1852	O'Hanlon, Patrick, Qr. Mr. Sergt.	" " "	Patrick and Catherine Mary	277	7	10
Sep. 14, "	Wade, Wm., Sergt.	1st Co., 4th B. Arty.	Sarah Ann, William Henry, Elizabeth, Esther, Jane, Wallis, and Ann.	72	9	5
Nov. 4, "	Hodgins, Adam, Gunner	2nd Co., 5th B. Arty.	William	9	11	11
Feb. 1, 1853	Edwards, Michael, Gunner	2nd Co., 5th B. Arty.	Jane and Bridget	36	5	9
Apl. 21, "	Staples, Edward, Sergt.	Sappers and Miners	E. W. H.	97	2	6
Sep. 13, "	Brown, Michael, Sergt.	Arracan Bn.	John	49	10	3
Dec. 2, "	Prendergast, J., Sub-Conductor	Ferozepore Magazine Establishment.	Eliza, Margaret Sarah, and Robert.	181	8	8
Jan. 24, 1854	Galway, Robert, Bombardier	1st Co., 2nd B. Arty.	William	206	1	2
Oct. 16, 1848	Butcher, H., Sergt. Major	Sirmoor Bn.	Johanna, Frederick, and David Edwin.	99	6	1
Jan. 18, 1855	Monrowd, George, Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	James, Frederick, Alfred, Georgiana, and Mary (died 15th June 1857).	184	14	9
Sep. 24, "	Franks, G., Bazar Sergt.	" " "	Mary	566	3	10
Oct. 15, 1857	Earle, Edward, Sergt.	Calcutta Town Guard	William Edward	209	14	0
Mar. 30, 1860	Eldridge, James, Riding Master	7th Lt. Cavy.	Walter Benjamin	195	4	6
Apl. 27, "	Rabbitt, Thomas, Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	George Thomas, Sarah Ann, Walter, and Edward William.	47	15	4
June 23, "	Smith, Joseph, Magazine Sergt.	Ditto	Step children and legatee Isabella Yates and John Andrew Armstrong (died 28th October 1860).	235	8	8
Dec. 1860	McDonnell, John, Private	97th Foot	Charles	25	15	6
Feb. 13, 1861	Scott, William, Sergt.	2nd Frs.	William, Annie and Emma	214	2	9
Apl. 27, "	Byrne, John, Conductor	" " "	Catherine and Lawrence	85	0	0
May 17, "	McConnell, Thos., Gunner	1st Co., 6th B. Arty.	Andrew.	167	7	0
Mar. 20, 1862	McDonnell, John, Sergt.	Ordnance Dept.	Alice and Charlotte	356	3	6
" " "	Pope, John, Sergt.	Commissariat Dept.	Maria and Catherine, and Edwin Joseph and Henry John.
June " "	Keddie, J., Private	2nd En. B. Frs.	Jane and James	86	0	0
July 26, "	Lockhart, Hugh, Sergt.	42nd Foot	Georgina Sherriff, Elizabeth, and Alexina Anderson.	600	0	0
Jan. 27, 1863	Briggs, George, Sub-Conductor	" " "	Hannah and Mariah	73	5	0
July 22, "	Lowton, William, Color Sergt.	24th Foot	William Joseph	152	14	2
Jan. 1864	Jones, John, Gunner	G. Battery, 22nd B. R. Arty.	Henrietta Dalzell	39	5	10
Mar. 10, "	Anderson, William, Gunner	5th B., 25th B. R. A.	Duncan	35	4	11
May 19, "		" " "	" " "	"	"	"
July 18, 1865		2nd Dragoon Guards	Sophia M., Elizabeth Ann, (married) and George Edward.	12	0	0
Sep. 11, "	Blower, P., Park Sergt.	" " "	Sarah Ann	42	0	0

Date of deposit.	Name and rank of father.	Corps.	Names of children.	Amount.
				R a. p.
June 25, 1866	Mead, William, Bombardier	4-25th Royal Arty.	Mary Ann and Thomas	4 0 0
Jan. 17, 1867	Hannay, John, Gunner	E-16 Royal Arty.	Charlotte	168 7 5
Oct. 31, "	Hutchinson, John, Sergt.	Army Comt. Dept.	Rose	26 2 0
Nov. 29, "	Craker, Charles, Sergt.	2nd Dragoon Guards	Constantine	65 15 4
Feb. 14, 1868	Coates, Robert, Corporal	Royal Arty.	Ann Frances and Rosina Mary.	141 15 1
Feb. 1842	McCarthy, Quarter Master Sergt.		John	61 2 3
Feb. 3, 1842	(Not recorded)		Wilson, Sophia, Thomas, and Elizabeth.	204 7 8
Dec. 1869	Rice, James, Sergt.	C-S. R. A.	Martha and William	1,114 8 0
Feb. 1870	Thompson, Edward, Sergt.	R. A.	William James	39 13 0
Apl. 29, "	Upson, D., Corporal	R. S. and M.	Alexander and David	331 4 4
Oct. 9, 1871	York, R., Sergt.	Artillery	Henry J., Jane Elizabeth, Amelia Lavinia, Mary Ann (died 15th May 1872) Walter Charles.	84 4 10
Feb. 17, 1873	Lemon, George, Driver	R. H. A.	Margaret	74 6 9
July 17, "	Rogers, G. J., Conductor	Commissariat Dept.	William George	1,541 5 7
May 4, }	Mitchell, R., Trumpet Major	R. A.	Maud	165 1 9
Dec. 4, }
Feb. 11, 1876	Thompson, Edward, Sergt.	8th B., R. A.	Margaret Emma	48 9 4
Oct. 31, "	Trollope, Henry, Sergt.	62nd Foot	John Henry	728 15 0
Dec. 20, "	Clarke, H., Drum Major	2-1 The Royal Scots	Ada, Annie, Rose, Emma, and Harry J.	475 8 6
Mar. 2, 1877	Longhurst, Chas., Bazar Sergt.	R. H. A.	Eliza Maria, Agnes Emma, and Caroline.	456 0 0
Aug. 13, "	Meehan, Peter, Private	2nd B. R. Scots	Joseph	37 1 8
Sep. 22, "	Murphy, Wm., Private	12th Foot	Earnest and Reuben	40 7 3
Jan. 8, 1879	Utting, J., Sub-Conductor	Ordnance Dept.	Frederick James, George Edward, and Albert Edward.	240 0 0
Feb. 21, 1880	Donohue, Andrew, Private	29th Foot	Ann, Mary Ann, and William.	150 0 0
Dec. 20, "	Holland, George, Sergt.	85th Foot	Constance Rebecca and Annie Theresa.	223 4 0
Jan. 16, 1883	Lyas, A., Private	2nd B., Warwickshire Regt.	Adolphus George and Wallace.	125 10 3
" 17, "	Tough, Charles, Sergt. (step-father late Gunner S. Hoberoff).	7-1 London Dn., R. A.	Charles George, Munnio Mahy, Thomas Henry, and Emma Ellen.	243 7 3
Apl. 30, "	Gillon, Thomas, Pioneer Sergt.	1 B., East Lanc. Regt.	John and Thomas Charles	26 0 0

Besides the above the following are in the custody of the Examiner, Fund Accounts:—

On account orphan Tough	A 4 per cent. Government Promissory Note for Rs1,500 and a Guernsey Savings Bank Deposit Book containing £64-1-1, also a Pocket Account Book.
" Mead	One gold wedding-ring.
The children of late Mrs. White	H. M.'s 79th Regt.—A packet containing sundries.
Orphan Maud Mitchell	One box containing sundries.

NOTE.—Interest on these deposits ceases from the date on which the Ward comes of age or leaves the Institution. Applications for payment of the deposits should be made direct to the Examiner of Fund Accounts, Calcutta, who will supply the necessary form of receipt, &c.

G. L. SUTHERLAND, Surgeon-Major,
Examiner, Fund Accounts.

Statement of the Affairs of the Bank of Bengal for the week ending 25th September 1883.

LIABILITIES.			ASSETS.
	R	a. p.		R	a. p.
Capital paid-up	2,00,00,000	0 0	Government Securities	55,25,412	4 0
Reserve Fund	35,10,581	4 4	Other authorized Investments	58,55,362	8 0
	R a. p.		Loans on Government and other authorized Securities	1,41,02,776	9 6
Public Deposits at Head Office	1,10,29,610	7 3	Accounts of Credit on Government and other authorized Securities	51,01,464	7 10
Public Deposits at Branches	1,76,26,685	6 3	Bills discounted and purchased	2,06,34,811	0 7
Other Deposits at Head Office and Branches	2,09,26,781	3 3	Balances with other Banks	5,28,946	5 10
Bank Post Bills, &c.	5,78,169	14 11	Bullion	1,10,256	3 3
Sundries	11,59,700	4 5	Dead Stock	11,95,593	4 11
			Stamps	7,835	14 0
			Sundries	6,01,159	2 2
				5,36,63,617	12 1
				R a. p.
			Cash and Currency Notes at Head Office	72,27,727	1 4
			Cash and Currency Notes at Branches	1,39,40,203	11 0
				2,11,67,930	12 4
RUPEES	7,48,31,548	8 5	RUPEES	7,48,31,548	8 5

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, FOR RAJPUTANA.

NOTIFICATION.

Mount Abu, the 20th September 1883.

No. 3418 G.—With reference to Foreign Department Notification No. 2215 G., dated 12th September 1883, Captain A. C. Talbot, Political Agent, Bhurtpure and Kerowlec, assumed charge of the current duties of the Office of Assistant Agent to the Governor General, Shujangarh, in addition to his own duties, from Major A. W. Roberts, on the forenoon of the 10th August 1883.

By Order,

E. A. FRASER,

1st Asst. Agent to the Govr. Genl.

AGENT, GOVERNOR GENERAL, RAJPUT-
ANA, AND CHIEF COMMISSIONER,
AJMER-MERWARA.

NOTIFICATION.

Mount Abu, the 20th September 1883.

No. 2479 S.—Mr. C. S. Rennie, Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade, in the Public Works Department of this Province, passed the Lower Standard Examination in Hindustani on the 3rd September 1883.

By Order,

H. Y. MURRAY, Major,

Offg. Secy. to the Chief Commr. in the P. W. D., Ajmer-Merwara.

MILITARY WORKS DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Simla, the 20th September 1883.

No. 26.—Lieutenant E. C. Stanton, R.E., Assistant Engineer, 2nd Grade, was granted furlough in India on medical certificate from 22nd February to 3rd April 1883, inclusive.

J. J. McLEOD INNES, Colonel, R.E.,

Insp. Genl. of Military Works.

ACCOUNTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Public Works Department.

NOTIFICATION.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Simla, the 20th September 1883.

No. 1.—Mr. F. R. White, Accountant, 1st Grade, and Honorary Assistant Examiner, is transferred from the North-Western Provinces and Oudh to the Military Works Branch.

Mr. G. A. James, Accountant, 1st Grade, and Honorary Assistant Examiner, is transferred from the Military Works Branch to the North-Western Provinces and Oudh.

A. FILGATE, Lieut.-Col., R.E.,

Accountant General.

ORDERS BY THE VICE-CHANCELLOR AND SYNDICATE OF THE CALCUTTA
UNIVERSITY.

The following changes in the Regulations for the Examinations of Female Candidates having been sanctioned by the Senate and approved by His Excellency the Governor General of India in Council, are published for general information.

For the Regulations for the First Examination in Arts, Bachelor of Arts, and for the Degree of M. A., the following Regulations have been substituted, with effect, as regards the First Examination in Arts, from 1st of January 1884, and as regards the Bachelor of Arts, and for the Degree of M. A., from 1st of January 1885.

The first alteration refers to Rule 3 in the Regulations for the F. A. Examination of Female Candidates the word "Physics" has been substituted for the words "the subjects included in the second Mathematical paper in the F. A. Examination."

The second alteration refers to the omission of Rule 2 in the Regulations for the B. A. Examination of Female Candidates.

The third alteration refers to the omission of the 1st Clause of Rule 3 in the Regulations for the B. A. Examination of Female Candidates.

The fourth alteration adds the Regulations that "The M. A. Examination shall be the same for females as for males."

G. BELLETT,

Registrar.

SENATE HOUSE.

The 11th August 1883.

In consequence of unforeseen delay in printing Examination papers, the University Examinations in Arts of 1883 will be held on the undermentioned dates instead of the dates notified in the Gazette of India of August 11th and 18th, and Calcutta Gazette of August 15th:—

Entrance Examination and First Examination in Arts, on Monday, the 17th December, and following days.

Applications from Candidates for admission to the Entrance and First Arts Examinations must be lodged with the Registrar on or before the 17th November.

G. BELLETT,

Registrar.

SENATE HOUSE,

The 18th September 1883.

DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILWAYS.

NOTIFICATIONS.—ESTABLISHMENT.

Simla, the 19th September 1883.

No. 47.—Mr. M. S. N. Hequet, Honorary Assistant Engineer, 1st Grade, is transferred from the Punjab Northern State Railway to the Indus Valley and Kandahar State Railway.

The 20th September 1883.

No. 48.—With reference to Public Works Department Notification No. 217, dated 19th September 1883, Mr. C. H. Mackie, Assistant Locomotive Superintendent in Class III of the Superior State Railway Revenue Establishment, is posted to the Rajputana-Malwa State Railway.

H. F. HANCOCK, Col., R.E.,
Offg. Director General of Railways.

WANTED

ENGLISH AND PERSIAN WRITER.

Required for the Commissioner's Office, Peshawar, a Deputy Superintendent and Translator. His work will be entirely with the Commissioner, and confidential, and he must possess a thorough and idiomatic knowledge of English and Persian for correspondence in both languages; pay Rs130, with prospects; apply in own hand-writing with copies of certificates, not originals, to Commissioner, Abbottabad.

Weekly Statement of Silver tendered, of Certificates issued, and Silver Balance in the Mint.

DATE.	SILVER TENDERED, ESTIMATED VALUE.	CERTIFICATES ISSUED ON		BALANCE OF BULLION
		General Treasury.	Currency Department.	Under Assay.	Assayed.	Held on account of the Currency Department.
1883.	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs	Rs
Sept. 17	...	...	3,15,425	2,67,808	47,45,310	33,00,508
" 18	...	...	...	2,67,808	47,45,310	33,00,508
" 19	...	...	...	2,67,808	47,45,310	33,00,508
" 20	...	...	...	2,67,808	47,45,310	33,00,508
" 21	...	...	1,87,919	81,116	49,37,260	35,52,648
" 22	...	...	80,028	324	50,25,133	30,40,420

J. F. TENNANT, Major-Genl., R.E.,
Mint Master.

CALCUTTA MINT.
The 24th September 1883.

CURRENCY NOTES.

The following Currency Notes of the Government of India are stated to have been lost, and payment of their value has been claimed by the persons whose names are placed against the numbers. Any other person having these Notes in his possession, or claiming a right to them, is warned to communicate at once with the undersigned:—

Calcutta Circle.

NOTES WHOLLY LOST OR DESTROYED.
Regr. No.	No. of Note.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		Rs
183	P 39—20940	50	Babu Baney Madhub Mookenjee.
184	P 76—05601	100	Inspector O. C. Banerjee, Burro Bazar Thanaah, Calcutta.
185	P 76—05707	100
"	—05708	100
"	—05709	100
"	—05710	100
"	P 44—50272	100
"	—60890	100	Mrs. C. S. Beglar.
"	—98023	100
186	P 41—18006	100
187	P 47—78906	1,000	Hanoopershad Sheopershad.
188	P 76—02132	100	Akbar Uzuman.
189	P 41—80371	100	Babu Denonath Chatterjee.
190	P 44—81304	100	Shew Sing Janki Das.

CALCUTTA.
The 25th September 1883.

J. TAYLOR,
Asst. Compt. Genl., in charge, Paper Currency.

Lahore Circle.

NOTE WHOLLY LOST OR DESTROYED.

Regr. No.	No. of Note.	Value.	Name of Claimant.
		Rs
12	E 19—32675	50	Hazari Lal, Nazir, Jhansi.

LAHORE.

The 22nd September 1883.

W. H. EGERTON,
for Depy. Commr. of Paper Currency.

POST OFFICE.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Unclaimed Letters held in the Calcutta General Post Office on 27th September 1883.

Burbridge, J.	Hawes & Co.	Schwartz, S.
Calthurst, J.	Heriot, J.	Sidavid, Monsieur.
Carben, Herrn.	Jones, A. F.	Sullivan, S.
Cooper, Geo. W.	Lodge, H. B.	Thurber, Gates & Co.
Craven, D. H.	Lowry, Lt. F. J.	Waters, J. Harry.
Dutta & Co., R.	Oehme, D. J.	Williamese & Co.
Godfrey, Thos.	Pearce, Richard.

Letters marked "Care of Post Office."

Agist, John.	Erter, Frau. Merric.	M. M. M.
A. Q. R.	"Fells."	Misud, George.
A. X. Y. Z.	Fergus, Mrs. M.	Mosse, W. Forbes.
B. B.	Field, Miss Fauny.	Nordt, Miss Minnie.
Barber, C. J.	Fount, P. S.	Pearson, H. J. F. G.
Battersby, Leslie C.	Furell, Mrs.	Rains, —
Bradley, Walter.	Gahan, Capt. R. L.	Rathergard, R. C.
Bradshaw, D. E.	Gelseid, Leann.	Rode, Capt. J.
Brown, John.	Hallewell, J. A.	Ross, C. Henry.
Burlington, Charles.	H. R. A.	Ryan, J. H.
Calver, James.	Hilbert, J.	Sanford, E. C. Aysh-
Canar, Madame A.	Ingels, H. V.	ford.
Campbell, Dr. M. R.	Jones, H.	Schnottler, F. B.
Chase, J.	Jones, John.	Scott, Montagu Hill.
Comber, B.	Karoly, S.	Specht, Otto.
Coutt, P. S.	Kavanagh, P.	Spencer, Mrs. L.
Crispin, C. Umberto.	Kinnalus, W. J.	Tancovich, Mendel.
Croose, Richard Victoria.	Kirkbride, J.	Tayfenberg, Marco.
Crowther, John.	Langley, Manly G.	Tomlinson, Capt. Joseph
Dalyell, Mrs. R. F.	Lee, Frederick.	s.
Dean, William Edward.	Lloyd, John Henry.	Tucker, Mrs.
Douglas, P. H.	Lynam, B.	VansAgnew, Lieut. P. A.
Dyett, B. H. R.	McKay, James B.	Wyndham, W. G.
Engel, Israel.

Registered Letters.

Kemp, A. Garnett.	Menzies, Charles.	Weben, Madame Mar-
McDonald, David.	Nardini, Sig. Raffaele.	tha.

Calcutta, the 29th September 1883.

It is hereby notified for general information that the following mail despatches to Ceylon will be made from the Calcutta General Post Office during October 1883:—

DATE OF CLOSING.	ROUTE.
2nd October 1883	By P. & O. Steamer from Bombay.
3rd October 1883	By P. & O. Steamer from Calcutta.
8th October 1883	By French Steamer.
12th October 1883*	By H. I. S. N. Co.'s private vessel.
16th October 1883	By P. & O. Steamer from Bombay.
19th October 1883	By P. & O. Steamer from Calcutta.
26th October 1883*	By H. I. S. N. Co.'s private vessel.
26th October 1883*	By Star Line private vessel.

* These dates are subject to alteration in the event of departure of the vessels being delayed.

N.B.—The letter-box will close at 7 P.M. precisely, after which hour letters, fully prepaid and bearing an extra postage stamp of four (4) annas on each cover, will be received up to 7-30 P.M.

The rate of postage on letters conveyed by private vessels is two (2) annas per ½ oz. (prepayment compulsory).

The postage on letters conveyed by the P. & O. and French steamer is three (3) annas per ½ oz. (prepayment optional).

SEA AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Foreign Mails for	Date.	Per Steamer
	1883.
Persian Gulf . . . . .	29th Sept.	From Bombay.
Persian Gulf . . . . .	6th Oct.	From Bombay.
Madras, Ceylon, and Intermediate Ports . . . . .	5th "	Str. Sirdhana .
Madras and Ceylon . . . . .	3rd "	P. & O. Str. Ganges .
Colombo, Penang, Singapore, Hong-Kong, Shanghai, Yokohama, and Australian Colonies . . . . .	2nd "	From Bombay.
Foreign Mails via Bombay . . . . .	2nd "	From Bombay.*
Do. Hook Post and Pattern Packets . . . . .	1st "	From Bombay.
Rangoon, Moulemein, and Straits . . . . .	4th "	Str. Paralia †
Chittagong, Akyab, Kyauk Phyoo, and Rangoon . . . . .	4th "	Str. Cocanada .
Madras, Ceylon, Batavia, Singapore & China . . . . .	8th "	French Str. Tiber .
Straits and Hong-Kong . . . . .	6th "	Strs. A. Apear & Maray .

* Also for South Africa via England can be forwarded.

† Also for Port Blair can be sent by this opportunity.

N.B.—The letter-box will close at 7 P.M. precisely; after which hour, foreign letters, fully prepaid and bearing an extra postage stamp of four (4) annas on each cover, will be received up to 7-30 P.M.

E. HUTTON,

Presidency Post Master.

GOVERNMENT CINCHONA FEBRIFUGE

This preparation is an efficient substitute for Quinine and can be purchased by Government officers for public and charitable purposes, and by any one taking twenty pounds at a time, from the Superintendent, Botanical Garden, Calcutta, for cash only, at the following rates:—per four ounce tin R4-8; per eight ounce tin, R5-8; per pound tin, R16-8. The general public can be supplied by the Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, for cash only, at the under-noted rates:—per four ounce tin R5-8; per eight ounce tin R10-8; per pound tin, R20. This medicine is also sold by the principal European and Native druggists in Calcutta. Postage 8 annas per four and eight ounce tins, and 12 annas per pound tin, in addition to the foregoing rates.

گورنمنٹ سنکونا فبري فيوج .

یہ دوا کوئینائین کا خوب قائم مقام ہی اور کلکتہ کے ہوائیکل گارتن یعنی کمپنی باغ کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے ہر ایک ملازم سرکاری واسطے سرکاری کام اور خیرات کے اور سیواے اوتکے جو کوئی ایک مشیت بیس پونڈ خرید لینے سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس کے تین کا چار روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; آٹھ اونس کے تین کا آٹھ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; ایک پونڈ کے تین کا سولہ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ،

اور عوام الناس ہوائیکل گارتن یعنی کمپنی ہا کے سپرنٹنڈنٹ صاحب سے بقیہ نقد حسب نرخ ذیل خرید کرسکتے ہیں یعنی نرخ چار اونس کے تین کا پانچ روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; آٹھ اونس کے تین کا دس روپیہ آٹھ آنہ ; ایک پونڈ کے تین کا بیس روپیہ

یہ دوا کلکتہ کے بڑے بڑے دیتی اور دیسی دواخانوں میں مکتی ہی ماسیواے قیہ مذکورہ بالا کے محصل ذاک چار رو آٹھ اونس کے تین کا آٹھ آنہ ; اور ایک پونڈ کے تین کا بارہ آنہ

Meteorological Publications for Sale.

The following publications of the Meteorological Office of the Government of India are on sale and can be procured at the Meteorological Office, No. 4, Middleton Row, or either at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., or at Messrs. Brown & Co., at the prices noted against them:—

Report on the Meteorology of India, in 1875, 4to, 89 pages text, 297 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India, in 1876, 4to, 97 pages text, 340 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India in 1877, 4to, 173 pages text, 375 pages tables, 3 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India, in 1878, 4to, 149 pages text, 380 pages tables, 3 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India in 1879, 4to, 164 pages text, 273 pages tables, 4 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Report on the Meteorology of India in 1880, 4to, 174 pages text, 286 pages tables, 6 plates, 4 charts . . . . .	8	0	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part I, 4to, 118 pages, 9 plates . . . . .	2	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part II, 4to, 63 pages, 4 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part III, 4to, 86 pages, 2 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part IV, 4to, 62 pages, 8 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part V, 4to, 57 pages, 10 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, Part VI, 4to, 62 pages . . . . .	1	8	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. I, cloth bound, 4to, 438 pages, 33 plates . . . . .	10	0	0
Indian Meteorological Memoirs, Vol. II, Part I, 4to, 78 pages, 9 plates . . . . .	1	8	0
Rainfall Chart of India, showing the average annual distribution of rainfall (in colors) . . . . .	1	0	0
Report on the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones, October 1876, 4to, 87 pages, 4 plates . . . . .	2	0	0
Report on the Madras Cyclone, May 1877, 4to, 117 pages text, 97 pages tables, 4 plates . . . . .	2	8	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1879, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1880, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0
Register of Original Observations of six stations in India, in 1881, corrected and reduced . . . . .	2	0	0

HENRY F. BLANFORD,

Meteorological Reporter
to the Government of India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council.

cil, will appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and will comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court will be reported in the Series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court will be reported in the Calcutta Series. The Parts of each Series can be had separately, or all four Parts can be had stitched into one wrapper at the option of subscribers and purchasers. It will be observed from the following statement of the terms of subscription and sale, that a considerable reduction is allowed to persons taking the complete set :

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

	Without Postage.	With Postage.
For the CALCUTTA SERIES .	R35	R37-8
„ MADRAS SERIES .	„ 8	„ 9
„ BOMBAY SERIES .	„ 8	„ 9
„ ALLAHABAD SERIES .	„ 8	„ 9
Complete set . . . . .	„45	„47-8

The price of each Part purchased separately will vary according to the amount of matter it contains, and will be printed on the wrapper. It will, however, never be below the following :—

For a Part of the CALCUTTA SERIES .	R3	8
„ „ MADRAS SERIES .	„ 1	0
„ „ BOMBAY SERIES .	„ 1	0
„ „ ALLAHABAD SERIES .	„ 1	0
Complete set . . . . .	„ 4	0

Persons desiring to subscribe for or purchase the Reports, should apply to—

MESSRS. THACKER, SPINK AND CO., CALCUTTA ;
MESSRS. THACKER AND CO., BOMBAY ;
MESSRS. HIGGINBOTHAM AND CO., MADRAS ;
THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL BOOK DEPOT, BOMBAY ;
THE GOVERNMENT BOOK DEPOT, ALLAHABAD.

Orders and Subscriptions for 1878 should be at once remitted.

THE BENGAL LAW REPORTS.

A few sets of the Bengal Law Reports (Volumes 1 to 15) are available at Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., Calcutta, at R375 a set.

For sale in Rajputana to Officers stationed there.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India, 4th Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Apply to the Superintendent, Commissioner's Office, Ajmer.

The following books may be purchased from the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, No. 166, Dhurrumtollah Street, for private use only, which should be stated in the requisition.

No orders can be attended to unless accompanied by a remittance. When postage stamps are forwarded, one anna additional should be sent for every Rupee's worth of stamps, for discount in exchanging them for cash. Service labels or Court Fee stamps are not received.

Books required for the public service cannot be supplied on payment; they are only issued on the authority of the Department to which the indenting officer is subordinate. Applications for them should be made through the Local Government under which the applicant serves.

Pack Gear for Elephants. B. G. P.
SANDERSON, Superintendent of Khoddahs, Dacca. Price, R1 ; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Copies (in English) of Bills before the Legislative Council of the Governor General, and of Statements of Objects and Reasons and Reports of Select Committees upon them, are obtainable at the Offices of Superintendents of Government Printing, at Calcutta and Simla. They will be sold to casual purchasers at the rate of three pies per sheet (of four pages) or part of a sheet, but a reduction will be made where the papers cover more than sixty-four pages. The whole set of papers published in a year will also be supplied to annual subscribers at the rate of R2, exclusive of postage, or R3, including postage, to any part of British India.

Revised Edition.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for India. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R1.

To all Officers employed in Government departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part I.

Transport of Troops by Sea. Price, R2-8 ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Transport Regulations, Part II.

Transport of Troops, Inland. Price, R2-8 ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Public Works Department Classified List and Distribution Return of Establishment, corrected up to 30th June 1883. Price R2 ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Preliminary Administration Report on the Railways in India for 1882-83 by Colonel F. S. STANTON, R.E., Director General of Railways. Price, R1 ; packing and postage, 3 annas.

The Report of the Rent Law Commission, with draft of Bill to amend the Law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal, in two volumes. Price, R3 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Report of the Government of Bengal on the proposed amendment, with revised Bill and Appendices, in two volumes. Price, R4 ; packing and postage, R1.

Correspondence between the Government of India and the Secretary of State regarding the proposed amendment. Price, annas 8 ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

The Bengal Tenancy Bill, with annexures. Price, annas 4 ; packing and postage, 3 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled, under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. First Edition. Price reduced from R10 to R5 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

INDEX to the Enactments relating to India. Compiled under the orders of the Government of India, by Stephen Jacob, B.C.S., to which are prefixed Chronological Tables of the Statutes relating to India and the Acts and Regulations of the Indian Legislatures. Second Edition, by William Fischer Agnew, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

Price, R10 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Regulations for the Medical Department, Her Majesty's Forces, Bengal, 1882. Price, R1-8 ; packing and postage, 6 annas ; interleaved copy, R2-8 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Travelling Allowance Code (Civil), Revised Edition, 1883. Price R1 ; packing and postage, 2 annas. Correction slips for the above. R1 per annum.

A Manual of the Land Revenue Systems and Land Tenures of British India, by B. H. BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S. Royal 8vo, half calf. Price, R6 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

A. Manual of Jurisprudence for Forest Officers, by BADEN-POWELL, B.C.S., royal 8vo., half calf. Price, R6 ; packing and postage, 7 annas.

Carbine and Rifle Exercises and Musketry Instruction for Native Troops, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, R1-4 ; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Indian Appendix to the British Musketry Regulations, 1882. Royal 32mo. Price, 12 annas ; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Instructions for payment of British Troops, India, 1882. Royal 8vo, Cloth gilt. Price, R2 ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Folio Foolscap.

Return of Wrecks and Casualties in Indian Waters for the years 1877, 1878, 1879, 1880, 1881, and 1882. Price, R2 each ; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Royal octavo, cloth, gilt.

The Commissariat Code for India, published under authority of the Government of India. Price, R4 ; by post 8 annas extra

Fasciculus of forms referred to in the Code. Price, R2 ; by post 14 annas extra.

Compendium of Existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Compiled by H. G. Whelan, Superintendent, Office of Examiner of Commissariat Accounts. Price, R5 ; packing and postage, 6 annas. Interleaved copies, R6 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Appendices to the Compendium of existing Regulations, Commissariat Department, Bengal. Price, R4 for plain copies, and R5 for interleaved copies ; packing and postage, 6 annas and 9 annas respectively.

Revised edition.

General Rules and Circular Orders of the High Court in Bengal, Appellate Side—Civil, R2-8 ; Criminal, R1-8 ; packing and postage, 5 annas and 3 annas respectively.

Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to the public monthly, at R3 a year payable in advance.

P. W. D. Code, 4th Edition.

Vol. I.—(For the use of Sub-divisional as well as Divisional Officers)—

Chap. I. Organization of the Department.—II. Rules for candidates for appointment or promotion.—III. Duties of Departmental Officers.—IV. Rules affecting personal conduct.—V. Special Rules applicable to all branches.—VI. Office arrangements.—VII. Designs and Estimates.—VIII. Contracts.—IX. Execution of works.—X. Cash and stores.—XI. Public buildings.—XII. Accounts. Price, R2-8 ; packing and postage, 4 annas ; interleaved copies, R3 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. II.—(For the use of Divisional Officers)—

Chap. XIII. Executive Engineers' Accounts.—XIV. Duties of Examiner's Office.—XV. Budget Rules and Annual Reports.—XVI. Military Works.—XVII. Irrigation. Price, R2 ; packing and postage, 4 annas ; interleaved copies, R2-8 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Super-royal octavo, cloth.

Tribes of the Hindoo Koosh. Price, R6 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Civil Service Gradation List is no longer appended to the Army List, but is published separately, and may be obtained from Mr. H. W. Ronaldson, Civil Fund Office, Calcutta. Price, R1 ; postage, 4 annas.

Select Extra-Tropical Plants readily eligible for industrial culture or naturalisation, with indications of their native countries and some of their uses, by Baron Ferd. Von Mueller. Indian edition, 1880. Price, R4 ; Packing and postage, 6 annas.

Report on Cotton Gins, and on the cleaning and quality of Indian cotton, in two parts ; by Dr. FORBES WATSON. Price, R5 ; packing and postage, 10 annas.

West India Pilot, Volume II. Price, R6 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

THE INDIAN STATUTE-BOOK.

REVISED EDITION.

A.—General Acts.

Vol. I.—From 1834 to 1863.

Vol. II.—From 1864 to 1871.

Vol. III.—From 1872 to June 1876. Price of each Volume, R9 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

B.—Local Regulations and Acts.

Vol. IV.—The Madras Code, 1876. Price, R8 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. V.—The Oudh Code, 1877. Price, R4-8 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. VI.—The North-Western Provinces Code, 1877. Price, R9 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. VII.—The British Burma Code, 1877. Price, R3 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. VIII.—The Panjáb Code, 1878. Price, R1-8 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. IX.—The Lower Provinces Code, Vol. I, 1878. Price, R9 ; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Vol. X.—The Lower Provinces Code, Vol. II, 1879. Price, R9 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Supplement to the Lower Provinces Code, 1882. Price, R1-8 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XI.—The Ajmer Code, 1879. Price, R3 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XII.—The Bombay Code, 1880. Price, R8 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Vol. XIII.—The Coorg Code, 1880. Price, R2 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Vol. XIV.—The Central Provinces Code, 1881. Price, R1-8 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

C.—Statutes.

Vol. XV.—The Statutes relating to India. Vol. I, 1285 to 1855. Price, R8 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Vol. XVI.—The Statutes relating to India, Vol. II, 1856 to 1881. Price, R9 ; packing and postage, 12 annas.

Supplement to the Statutes relating to India. Price, R3 ; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Unrepealed Acts of the Governor General's Council from 1864 to date available separately.

[Applications for any of the above Volumes or Acts should, when the same are required for the public service, be made to the Local Government to which the applicant is subordinate, and the Local Government will, if necessary, forward such applications to the Legislative Department. Only persons wishing to purchase copies for private use should apply to this Office.]

Abstract of Proceedings of the Legislative Council of the Governor General from July 1882. Annual subscription R5; postage, R1. Single issue 4 annas including postage.

In three volumes—super royal 8vo.

Punjab Customary Law, containing selection from the Records of the Punjab Government, Statements of Customary Law in different Districts, and Questions on Tribal and Local Custom. Edited by C. L. Tupper, C.S. Price, R10 a set; packing and postage, 14 annas.

The Book of Aids to Military Equitation practised at the Cavalry Riding Establishment, Canterbury. Price, annas 4; packing and postage, 1 anna.

The Civil Account Code, Vol. I. Second Edition, corrected to 31st October 1880. Price, R2; packing and postage, 6 annas.

NOTIFICATIONS relative to the PUBLIC LOANS of the GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, from 1822 to 1879. Price, R2; packing and postage, 4 annas.

Tables showing the remissions or reductions of Stamp Duty authorised since the passing of Act XXXVI of 1860. Price, annas 2; by post, annas 3.

Cantonment Regulations framed under Act XXII of 1864. Price, annas 8; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Rules for the Audit of Cantonment Funds. Price, annas 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Selections from the records of the Government of India—

No. CLVI.—Report on the administration of the Barode States for 1877-78. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXIX.—Ditto for 1878-79. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXIX.—Ditto for 1879-80. Price, R2; packing and postage, 6 annas.

No. CLX.—The wheat production and trade of India. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

No. CLXIV.—Report on the administration of the Ajmere and Mhairwarra Districts for 1878-79. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXII.—Ditto for 1879-80. Price, R1-8; packing and postage, 4 annas.

No. CLXXV.—Rajputana Dispensary, Vaccination, Jail and Sanitary Report for 1879. Price, annas 12; packing and postage, annas 2.

No. CLXXXIII.—Report on the Political administration of the Rajputana States, 1880-81. Price, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

Scientific results of the second Yarkund Mission—

Mollusca, R1-8; Geology, R1-8; Ichthyology, R3-8; Reptilia and Amphibia, R2-8; Hymenoptera, R1-8; Neuroptera, As. 12; Rhynchota, R2; Syringospha-erida-e, R2; Lepidoptera, R2; packing and postage, 2 annas each.

Ditto—Mammalia, R35; packing and postage, 7 annas.

A sketch of the Túrki language as spoken in Eastern Turkistan (Kashghar and Yarkund), together with a collection of Extracts, by R. B. Shaw, F.R.G.S. Price, R5; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Suggestions regarding the demarcation and management of the Forests in Kulu with Map. Price, R1; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Suggestions regarding Forest Administration in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts. Price, R1; packing and postage, 3 annas.

 The above to be had at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, India, 16, Dhurrumtollah Street, Calcutta.

A Manual of Tibetan, being a Guide to the Colloquial Speech of Tibet, in a Series of Progressive Exercises, by Major T. H. Lewin, F.R.G.S., of the Bengal Staff Corps, late Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling. Price, R6; postage, 3 annas.

Copies are to be had at the Office of the Director of Public Instruction.

Examination Paper for Station Masters, Goods Clerks, Booking Clerks, Guards, Signallers, and menials employed on State Railways, by Mr. G. S. LEONARD, Traffic Superintendent, Northern Bengal State Railway. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas. To be had on application from the Manager, Northern Bengal State Railway, Saidpore.

Publications for Sale at the Bengal Secretariat Press.

Abstract of the Rules of the Road at Sea in Tamil. Price, R1; postage, 1 anna and 6 pies.

Ditto ditto in Telugu. Price, Re. 1; postage, 1 anna and 6 pies.

Moore's Manual of Family Medicine for

India, Fourth Edition. Price—

To Government Officers (except those mentioned below) and to the public at large, R4.

To all Officers employed in Government Departments who are in receipt of salaries under R500 per mensem, on a certificate being furnished declaring that the book is to be purchased only for the personal use of the officer, R3; packing and postage, 6 annas.

The Safe Use of Steam, in Bengali. Price, 2 annas; postage, ½ anna.

Distribution Return of Officers and Subordinates employed under District Road Cess Committees. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 2 annas; postage, ½ anna.

List of Officers of the Public Works Department, Bengal. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, 6 annas; postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

The Quarterly Civil List. Corrected up to 1st July 1883. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Reprint of the Report of the Rent Law Commission, with the draft of a Bill to consolidate and amend the law of Landlord and Tenant in Bengal. Vols. I and II. Price, R3-8; packing and postage, 9 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers engaged in the Administration of the Salt Department. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 8 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Administration of Wards' and Attached Estates. Revised edition. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R1; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Board's Rules, or Rules for the guidance of Officers engaged in the administration of the Revenue Department in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. Revised edition, Vol. I. Price, R4; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R5; postage, 8 annas.

Ditto ditto, Vol. II. Price, R3; postage, 5 annas; interleaved copy, R3-8; postage, 8 annas.

 Printed slips containing alterations and additions will be available to purchasers monthly, at R2 per annum, including postage.

Rules for the Lease of Waste Lands in Bengal, May 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 8 annas; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Rules for the Guidance of Officers in the Opium Department. Published by authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Bengali Translation of the Revised Salt Manual. Price, 4 annas; postage 6 pies.

Civil Suits, 1880. Published by the authority of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Rules under the Cess Act, No. IX (B.C.) of 1880. Price, R1-8; postage, 2 annas.

The Bengal Pilots' Code of Signals, revised, enlarged, and arranged for use with three Geometrical Shapes in combination with the eighteen International Code Flags (on the plan of the Trinity Light-house Code), intended as a Supplement to the International Code of Signals. Also Calm or Line of Wind Signals; made with the above three shapes only. Concluding with the Morse Flashing Signals. Compiled by S. R. ELSON, Licensed Master Pilot, Bengal Pilot Service. Published by authority of the Government of Bengal. Price, R3; postage, 2 annas and 6 pies.

The Bengal Embankment Manual: containing an account of the action of the Government in dealing with Embankments and Water-courses since the Permanent Settlement; a discussion of the principles of the Act of 1873; a reprint of the Act itself, with notes and appendices describing the present condition of Embankments under State control in Bengal, and the chief controversies concerning them. By HENRY LELAND HARRISON, B.A., C.S., late Mathematical Junior Student of Christ Church, Oxford. Price, R2; with map, R3-4.

The Factories' Act, XV of 1881, with Rules and Forms. Price, 2 annas and 6 pies; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Bengali Translations of the Rules and Notifications under the Arms Act issued by the Governments of India and Bengal. Price, 2 annas; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Hindi Translation of the Rules and Notifications under the Indian Arms Act, 1878. Price, As. 4; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urya ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Urdu ditto ditto. Price, As. 2; packing and postage, 1 anna.

Annual Report on Inland Emigration for 1880-81. Price, R1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Ditto ditto ditto for 1882. Price, R1 per copy; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Papers regarding the Tea Industry in Bengal. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

List of the Trees, Shrubs, and large Climbers found in the Darjeeling District, Bengal. By J. S. GAMBLE, M.A., Assistant Conservator of Forests, Bengal. Price, R1-5; postage, 1 anna.

Report on the Census of Calcutta and its Suburbs, 1881. Price R4; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1881-82. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1879-80. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 8 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1878-79. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R6; postage, 6 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1877-78. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R8-8; postage, 4 annas.

Report on the Internal Trade of Bengal for the year 1876-77. Published by the Government of Bengal. Price, R5; Colored Map, R2-8.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Ganja in Bengal. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Collector, on special duty. Price, R1-8; postage, 2 annas.

Report on the Cultivation of, and Trade in, Jute in Bengal, and on Indian Fibres available for the Manufacture of Paper; with Map. By HEM CHUNDER KERR, Deputy Magistrate, on special duty. Price, R9; postage, 7 annas.

Report on the Food-grain Supply and Statistical Review of the Relief Operations in the distressed districts of Behar and Bengal during the Famine of 1873-74. By A. P. MACDONNELL, of the Bengal Civil Service. Price, R3-8; postage, 6 annas.

Prices of Food-grains, Firewood, and Salt in Bengal from 1866 to 1878, compiled in the Bengal Secretariat, Statistical Department. Price, R2; packing and postage, 3 annas.

Report on the Census of Bengal, 1872 By H. BEVENLEY, Esq., C.S., Registrar-General of Bengal. Price, R10; postage, 9 annas.

Report on the Effects of Artificial Respiration, Intravenous Injection of Ammonia, and Administration of various Drugs, &c., in India and Australian Snake-poisoning; and the Physiological, Chemical and Microscopical Nature of Snake-poisons. By the Commission appointed to investigate the subject. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

Memorandum on the Revenue History of Chittagong. By H. J. S. COTTON, Esq., Collector and Magistrate of Chittagong. Price, R2-4; packing and postage, 4 annas.

A Report on the District of Jessore: its Antiquities, its History and its Commerce. (Second Edition, Revised and Corrected.) By J. WHISTLAND, Esq., C.S., late Magistrate and Collector of Jessore. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1881-82. Price, R6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1879-80. Price, R6; packing and postage, 10 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1878-79. Price, R6; packing and postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1877-78. Price, R4-8; postage, 8 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1876-77. Price, R4-8; postage, 6 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1875-76. Price, R4-8; postage, 7 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1874-75. Price, R4-8; postage, 7 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1874-75. Price, if taken with the Report, R1; separately, price, R2; postage, 2 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1873-74. Price, R4; postage, 5 annas.

The Bengal Administration Report for 1872-73. Price, R7-8; postage, 10 annas.

Map of Bengal, 1873. Price, if taken with the Report, R1; separately, price, R2; postage, 4 annas.

Report of the Vizagapatam and Backergunge Cyclones of October 1876. By J. ELIOT, Esq., M.A., Meteorological Reporter to the Government of Bengal. Price, R3; postage, 4 annas.

The Winds of Northern India. By H. F. BLANFORD, Esq., Meteorological Reporter to Government. Price, R1 per copy; postage, 2 annas.

A Statistical Account of Bengal. By W. W. HUNTRE, B.A., LL.D., Director-General of Statistics to the Government of India.

- Vol. I. 24-Pergunnahs and Sundarbans.
Vol. II. Nadiya and Jessore.
Vol. III. Midnapur, Hugli and Howrah.
Vol. IV. Bardwan, Bankura and Birbhum.
Vol. V. Dacca, Bakarganj, Faridpur and Maiminsing.
Vol. VI. Chittagong Hill Tracts, Chittagong, Noakhali, Tipperah and Hill Tipperah.
Vol. VII. Maldah, Rangpur and Dinagepur.
Vol. VIII. Rajshahi and Bogra.
Vol. IX. Murshidabad and Pabna.
Vol. X. Darjiling, Jalpaiguri and Kuch Behar State.
Vol. XI. Patna and Saran.
Vol. XII. Gaya and Shahabad.
Vol. XIII. Tirhut and Champaran.
Vol. XIV. Bhagalpur and Santal Parganas.
Vol. XV. Monghyr and Purniah.
Vol. XVI. Hazaribagh and Lohardaga.
Vol. XVII. Singbhum, Tributary States and Maubhum.
Vol. XVIII. Cuttack and Bulasor.
Vol. XIX. Puri and Tributary States of Orissa.
Vol. XX. Fisheries and Botany of Bengal, with General Index.
Vol. XX. General Index only.
Price, per volume, R4; postage, 5 annas.

Manual of Materia Medica in Urdu, compiled by SHAIK AKBAR ALLY, Civil Hospital Assistant, Dinapore. Price, 8 annas per copy; packing and postage, 2 annas.

Buddha Gayá, the Hermitage of Sákyá Muni. By Rájendralála Mitra, LL.D., C.I.E., Honorary Member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the Physical Class of the Imperial Academy of Sciences, Vienna; Corresponding Member of the German and of the American Oriental Societies; of the Royal Academy of Science, Hungary, and of the Ethnological Society of Berlin; Fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, &c., &c. Price, R30; packing and postage, R1-4.

Further Notes on the Rungpore Records, Vol. II. By E. G. GLAZIER, Esq., C.S., Officiating Magistrate and Collector, Rungpore. Price, R1; postage, 2 annas.

Selection of Papers regarding the Hill Tracts between Assam and Burma, and on the Upper Brahmapooter. Price, R5; postage, 4 annas.

Selections from Divisional and District Annual Administration Reports, 1872-73, with the Government Resolutions on them. Price, R5; postage, 6 annas.

Selections from the Supplement to the Calcutta Gazette, 1871 to 1874. Price, R2-8; postage, 3 annas.

Progressive Colloquial Exercises in the Lushai Dialect of the Dzo or Kuki Language. With Vocabularies and Popular Tales (notated). By Captain THOMAS HERBERT LEWIN, B.S.C., Deputy Commissioner, Chittagong Hills. Price, R6; postage, 3 annas.

Notes on the History of Midnapore, as contained in records extant in the Collector's Office. By J. C. PRICE, Officiating Settlement Officer of Midnapore. Vol. I. Price, R3; postage, 3 annas.

Descriptive Ethnology of Bengal. By EDWARD TUITR DALTON, C.S.I., Colonel, Bengal Staff Corps; Commissioner of Chutia Nagpur; Member of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, &c. Illustrated by Lithograph Portraits copied from Photographs. Printed for the Government of Bengal, under the direction of the Council of the Asiatic Society of Bengal.

Price—Bound copies . . . . R45 0 0
„ Unbound copies . . . . „ 35 0 0

The Statistical Reporter, edited by H. J. S. CORTON, Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal
Vol. I, bound in full cloth, lettered . . R10 0 0
Vol. II, ditto ditto . . „ 10 0 0
Single copies of monthly Nos. . . „ 2 0 0

Annual Statement of the Sea-borne Trade and Navigation of the Bengal Presidency, and of its Chief Port and each of the Subordinate Ports, with Foreign Countries, for the official year 1875-76. Vol. I. Price, R12; postage, 10 annas.

Rules for the Examination of, and grant of Certificates of Competency to, Masters, Mates and Engineers. Price, R1; postage, 1 anna.

Abstract of the Rules of the Road at Sea, in English. Price, R1-4; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Ditto ditto in Arabic. Price, R1; packing and postage, 1 anna 6 pies.

Sanitary Primers in English and in Bengali. Price, R6 per hundred, including transit and packing charges; single copies, 1 anna each.

The Book named below having been declared a part of the obligatory equipment of Emigrant vessels, is now obtainable at the Bengal Secretariat Press at the price noted:—

West India Pilot, Vol. II . . . . R3 0 0

 Cash must be sent with order.

Apply to Accountant, Bengal Secretariat, Writers' Buildings, Calcutta.

NOTICE.

The 9th February 1883.—The subscription to, and postage for, the Calcutta Gazette will henceforward be at the following rates, payable in advance:—

For the Mofussil.

	R	a.	p.
Entire Gazette . . . .	15	0	0 per annum.
Postage . . . .	5	0	0 „
Supplement . . . .	6	0	0 „
Postage . . . .	3	0	0 „
Parts III, IV, V, and VI, containing the Acts and Bills of the Legislative Councils of India and Bengal . . . .	5	0	0 „
Postage . . . .	2	8	0 „

For a single copy—

Entire Gazette . . . .	0	8	0
Postage . . . .	0	2	0
Supplement . . . .	0	4	0
Postage . . . .	0	1	0
Parts III, IV, V, and VI . . . .	0	1	0 for 4 sheets or under with an additional charge of 1 anna for every 4 sheets in excess of 4.
Postage . . . .	0	1	0

For Calcutta.

The same rates as those for the mofussil, with the exception of the charge for postage.

E. N. BAKER,

Offg. Under-Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The Gazette of India.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

---

CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1883.

---

Separate paging is given to this Part in order that it may be filed as a separate compilation.

---

PART III.

Advertisements and Notices by Private Individuals and Corporations.

PROMISSORY NOTES.

Lost

The Government Promissory Notes, Nos. 161053 and 161054, of the 4 per cent. of 1865, for Rs. 1,000 each, originally standing in the name of the Comptroller General, and last endorsed to the proprietor, by whom they were never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Notes and the interest thereupon have been stopped at the Public Debt Office, Bank of Bengal, and application is about to be made for the issue of duplicates in favour of the proprietor.

PANNA LALL,
*Late Command Gomashta,
Kooncha Sunjogee Ram, Delhi.*

Partially destroyed by White-Ants.

The Government Promissory Note No. 949, of the 5 per cent. loan of 15th January 1880, for Rs. 2,000, issued in the name of Armogatha Pillai, by whom it was never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Note and the interest thereupon has been stopped at the Loan Office, and application is about to be made for payment to the undersigned of the principal and interest due.

N. VYTHILINGA PILLAI,
Grandson and Legal Representative of Armogatha Pillai, deceased.

NEGAPATAM,
The 10th September 1883.

Destroyed.

The Government Promissory Note No. 038264, of the 4 per cent. of 1865, for Rs. 500, originally standing in the name of Gopaul Chunder Sreemany, and last endorsed to Brojo Coomary Dass, the proprietress, by whom it was never endorsed to any other person. Payment of the above Note and the interest thereupon have been stopped at the Public Debt Office, Bank of Bengal, and application is to be made for the issue of duplicate in favor of the proprietress.

SOSHE BHUSHAN BYSACK,
*69, Beadon Street,
Calcutta.*

SUPPLEMENT TO
The Gazette of India.

---

9 39.} CALCUTTA, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1883.

---

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

---

A SUPPLEMENT to the GAZETTE OF INDIA will be published from time to time, containing such Official Papers and Information as the Government of India may deem to be of interest to the Public, and such as may usefully be made known.

Non-Subscribers to the GAZETTE may receive the SUPPLEMENT separately on a payment of six Rupees per annum if delivered in Calcutta, or nine Rupees if sent by Post.

No Official Orders or Notifications, the publication of which in the GAZETTE OF INDIA is required by Law, or which it has been customary to publish in the CALCUTTA GAZETTE, will be included in the SUPPLEMENT. For such Orders and Notifications the body of the GAZETTE must be looked to.

---

GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT OF

PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS THROUGH

PROVINCES		DISTRICTS.	QUANTITIES PER H
			Wheat.			Barley			Rice (best sort).			Rice (common).			Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar), Holcus Sorghum .			Bulrush Millet bho, Bajra Pennisetia gl.
			Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.
MADRAS.	Ganjam . . . . .	9 10	10 5	7 6	...	...	...	17 0	17 0	17 13	17 14	17 14	19 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Vizagapatam . . . . .	10 0	9 8	10 0	...	...	...	9 8	9 8	9 0	11 14	11 14	11 5	23 13	21 10	21 10	23 13	23 13	...
	Godavery . . . . .	10 13	10 13	11 11	...	...	...	10 14	10 14	13 14	14 0	14 0	17 0	23 0	23 0	23 13	...	...	...
	Kistna . . . . .	8 13	8 13	12 11	...	...	...	14 0	14 0	15 11	14 11	14 11	16 5	20 13	20 13	24 14	...	...	...
	Nellore . . . . .	10 13	9 14	12 10	...	...	...	13 14	13 14	15 13	15 0	15 0	17 0	21 10	24 8	29 11	...	...	...
	Cuddapah . . . . .	12 14	12 14	13 3	...	...	...	12 6	12 6	11 14	13 5	13 5	13 11	29 3	328	6 26	13 31	331	3
	Anantapur . . . . .	13 6	13 6	13 6	...	...	...	11 13	11 13	12 13	12 5	12 5	15 2	30 14	14 30	14 30	230	230	2
	Bellary . . . . .	17 5	16 5	16 5	...	...	...	11 13	11 13	12 5	13 0	13 0	13 8	37 23	235	0 30	223	3	3
	Kurnool . . . . .	12 2	12 2	12 11	...	...	...	10 10	10 10	10 10	11 6	11 6	11 6	37 0	35	10 31	8 31	14 31	3
	Madras . . . . .	11 5	11 5	9 13	...	...	...	13 8	13 8	13 8	15 2	15 2	15 2	22 5	22	5 23	0 23	13 23	13
	Chingleput . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	13 8	13 8	14 10	15 2	15 2	15 14	...	...	...	21	2	...
	North Arcot . . . . .	9 11	9 11	9 5	...	...	...	13 8	13 8	14 11	16 14	16 14	16 14	...	...	34 10	31	5 31	5
	South Arcot . . . . .	9 6	9 6	9 0	...	...	...	13 11	13 11	15 11	14 14	14 14	16 3	...	...	33 10	28	8 28	8
	Tanjore . . . . .	11 13	11 13	8 13	...	...	...	17 13	17 3	15 13	...	...	...	33	6 31	0 31	13	12	0 1 14
	Trichinopoly . . . . .	9 10	9 10	9 3	...	...	...	15 13	15 13	14 6	16 11	16 11	14 14	33	10 30	13 25	3 30	8 30	8
	Madurai . . . . .	12 8	12 8	12 0	...	...	...	15 8	16 0	14 5	16 0	16 14	14 13	38	14 38	14 31	0 32	5 32	5
	Tinnevely . . . . .	10 10	10 10	8 0	...	...	...	16 5	16 5	15 6	16 13	16 13	15 13	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Coimbatore . . . . .	13 2	13 2	11 8	...	...	...	14 6	14 6	13 8	15 6	15 6	14 14	27	13 27	13 21	5 30	3 27	13
	Nilgiris . . . . .	10 10	10 10	7 2	...	...	...	11 3	11 3	9 10	12 0	12 0	11 3	20	0 21	10 20	0 21	0 19	19
	Salem . . . . .	12 11	12 11	10 3	...	...	...	14 0	14 0	13 2	14 11	15 0	14 2	32	13 32	13 27	5 29	8 27	2
	South Canara . . . . .	7 11	7 11	8 10	...	...	...	9 11	9 11	8 11	12 3	12 3	11 13	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Malabar . . . . .	8 10	8 10	7 14	...	...	...	15 6	15 0	13 13	18 3	15 13	14 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
BOMBAY.	Bombay . . . . .	10 0	10 5	10 1	16 5	21 4	18 9	7 5	7 7	7 10	11 3	12 1	10 7	17 14	18	5 20	10 15	15 14	10
	Ahmedabad . . . . .	12 0	11 0	14 8	19 0	19 8	...	6 8	10 0	7 8	12 0	12 0	8 0	14 8	14	0 17	8 30	0 14	0
	Kaira . . . . .	10 10	11 0	11 13	20 0	20 0	20 0	9 11	9 11	10 0	13 5	13 0	16 0	13	5 11	0 16	0 12	12 13	0
	Surat . . . . .	11 4	11 4	12 8	12 4	12 4	7 11	7 6	7 6	8 3	8 5	8 5	8 12	19	2 19	2 15	9 14	0 14	0
	Broach . . . . .	12 4	12 4	13 5	...	...	...	9 15	10 0	11 1	12 12	11 7	12 9	16	0 16	0 16	9 13	14 13	14
	Tanna (Salsette) . . . . .	9 12	9 12	10 5	...	...	...	7 13	7 13	8 3	8 2	8 2	10 0	18	10 18	10 18	10 15	0 15	0
	Colaba (Alibag) . . . . .	8 8	8 8	8 8	...	...	...	7 8	7 8	6 12	12 0	12 8	13 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Khandesh (Dhule) . . . . .	14 0	14 0	15 0	...	...	...	7 9	7 9	7 4	10 13	10 13	10 15	16	14 16	14 23	13 14	4 14	4
	Nasik . . . . .	14 4	14 4	14 4	...	...	...	7 7	7 7	7 7	13 6	13 6	12 0	...	22	6	...	15	6 15	5
	Ahmednagar . . . . .	13 4	14 6	14 6	...	...	...	8 6	9 10	9 11	10 9	11 4	12 0	23	6 21	14 30	9 17	6 18	9
	Poona . . . . .	12 10	11 8	12 10	9 4	9 4	...	9 13	9 13	11 0	11 0	11 0	12 4	20	11 19	9 25	0 17	2 16	2
	Sholapur . . . . .	14 10	15 6	13 9	...	...	...	10 6	11 6	10 5	12 4	12 4	11 5	27	10 23	14 36	4 22	15 23	6
	Kaladgi (Bagalkot) . . . . .	19 8	19 8	22 0	16 8	16 0	14 8	6 8	6 8	6 8	11 8	11 0	9 0	31	0 23	8 39	0 23	0 26	8
	Natura . . . . .	13 6	13 6	12 1	...	...	...	8 14	8 14	9 11	11 7	11 7	11 7	20	0 19	5 26	10 18	2 13	12
	Belgaum . . . . .	16 8	16 8	19 0	14 8	14 8	13 0	11 8	11 3	9 13	12 0	11 11	10 5	17	8 17	0 27	12 19	0 19	0
	Dharwar (Hubli) . . . . .	23 0	23 0	23 0	...	...	...	13 0	13 0	12 0	16 0	16 0	13 0	25	0 24	0 29	0 24	0 24	0
	Ratnagiri . . . . .	9 4	9 4	10 9	...	...	...	8 9	8 9	7 13	13 7	13 7	12 11	...	...	18 3	13 8	13 8	8
	Kanara (Harwar) . . . . .	9 0	9 0	10 8	...	...	...	8 0	8 0	8 0	12 0	12 4	11 0	16	0 16	0 14	0	...	...
	Panch Mulshi (Godhna) . . . . .	10 8	11 6	11 6	...	...	...	11 6	11 6	11 6	13 5	13 0	15 0	21	0 22	13 32	0 12	13 16	0
	Aden . . . . .	7 0	7 0	8 0	...	...	...	6 3	6 3	6 3	7 0	7 0	7 0	12	7 12	7 9	5 11	3 11	3
	Asurgarh . . . . .	13 12	13 12	14 0	...	...	...	11 14	12 0	10 15	14 0	14 0	12 4	17	9 18	0 21	5 17	12 17	12
	Baroda . . . . .	9 5	9 5	10 9	14 0	13 7	14 2	8 12	8 3	8 13	11 1	11 1	11 11	14	9 15	3 17	10 12	13 12	13
	Diss . . . . .	12 2	13 14	14 8	...	...	...	6 14	6 14	6 6	9 0	9 0	8 11	14	8 14	8 8	11 11	2 15	14
	Nimach . . . . .	16 12	16 6	16 0	22 0	20 0	17 0	8 12	8 12	9 0	10 0	10 0	10 0	22	0 19	8 21	0 12	0 12	12
	Nasirabad . . . . .	14 11	16 8	16 5	20 7	24 2	23 3	6 0	6 0	6 0	7 0	7 0	7 0	18	5 20	0 22	15 15	4 17	5
	Rajkot . . . . .	13 0	14 8	13 8	...	...	...	6 8	6 8	6 8	9 0	9 0	11 0	16	0 18	0 15	8 13	8 14	12
	Upper Sindhi Frontier . . . . .	13 12	14 0	13 0	23 8	24 8	24 4	11 4	11 4	11 4	13 4	13 4	20 0	27	12 30	0 32	0 23	8 32	0
	Karachi . . . . .	12 8	13 1	12 5	23 0	22 0	20 0	9 0	9 8	9 8	14 0	15 0	18 0	30	4 21	8 22	0 16	0 13	0
	Haidarabad (Nakur) . . . . .	13 4	18 0	14 0	24 8	24 0	26 0	11 8	12 0	13 0	24 0	17 0	16 0	25	0 26	0 30	0 21	0 24	0
	Shikarpur . . . . .	13 0	13 0	12 6	25 0	23 8	24 0	11 10	12 0	12 6	17 0	18 0	19 0	25	14 28	8 27	0 25	14 30	8
	Sukkur . . . . .	13 8	14 0	14 0	25 8	27 8	30 8	10 0	11 8	11 12	11 8	13 0	17 8	25	8 25	8 26	12 23	0 26	0
	Thar & Larhar (Umarmkot) . . . . .	12 13	13 0	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...	12 13	13 0	13 4	...	...	...	16 1	19 0	0
BENGAL.	Western Districts.	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Bygdwal . . . . .	15 0	15 0	13 0	22 8	21 0	32 8	17 8	17 4	21 12	22 11	22 12	24 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Bancoorah . . . . .	13 0	14 8	13 8	16 0	16 0	15 0	20 0	19 0	18 8	25 0	24 8	23 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Beerbhoom . . . . .	15 8	15 0	13 0	...	...	...	16 8	16 8	17 0	21 0	21 0	19 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Midnapore . . . . .	13 0	14 0	13 0	17 0	17 0	...	17 0	18 0	21 0	24 0	22 0	25 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Hooghly . . . . .	13 0	13 0	15 0	...	...	...	9 0	9 0	10 0	17 0	16 0	19 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Howrah . . . . .	13 4	13 4	13 4	...	...	...	13 8	13 8	16 0	17 8	17 8	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...

... 18-24 seers, Cutwa 17-5 seers, and Ranogunge 13-4 seers.

OF INDIA.

ANCE AND COMMERCE.

INDIA FOR THE 2nd HALF OF AUGUST 1883.

SEKERS OF 80 TOLAHS.

Lesser Millets, Ragi, &c. (Kavara, Veragu, Sawee, Cheena, Coraloo, Murrh- wa, Nuzlee), Panicum Miliaceum, &c.									Gram.			Firewood			Salt.						DISTRICTS.						PROVINCES.
Present fortnight.			Past fortnight.			Corresponding fort- night of 1882.			Present fortnight.			Past fortnight.			Corresponding fort- night of 1882.			Wholesale.			Retail.
Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.
5	3	32	3	35	3	33	5	33	5	26	10	215	13	215	13	215	13	14	10	14	10	15	3	14	0	14	0	Ganjam
3	3	22	3	25	5	32	13	33	14	23	6	83	10	83	10	93	5	14	10	14	10	15	3	14	0	14	0	Vizapatnam
0	14	29	2	29	2	32	8	31	8	26	3	194	6	194	6	194	6	14	10	14	10	14	10	14	10	14	10	Godavery
5	0	25	0	32	5	29	10	29	10	21	11	145	13	145	13	145	13	15	11	15	11	16	5	15	3	15	3	Kistna
5	8	25	8	32	13	24	2	22	10	22	2	93	5	93	5	186	10	14	13	14	13	15	6	14	13	14	13	Nellore
0	0	30	0	31	8	33	8	34	6	27	2	194	6	194	6	194	6	17	2	17	2	17	8	16	10	16	10	Cuddanah
1	0	31	0	31	0	38	2	38	2	31	5	...	...	...	...	...	...	14	5	14	5	14	5	14	5	14	5	Amantapur
4	14	33	0	29	2	35	13	33	10	29	2	94	13	94	13	97	3	15	13	15	13	15	11	15	8	15	8	Bellary
...	...	...	...	29	10	30	11	30	0	26	3	175	0	182	11	178	13	14	13	14	13	14	13	14	6	14	6	Kurnool
4	11	24	11	28	0	25	5	25	5	24	10	85	0	85	0	81	6	16	14	16	14	16	11	16	8	16	8	Madras
5	0	26	0	27	6	25	0	25	0	24	10	92	5	92	5	92	5	17	5	17	5	17	5	17	0	17	0	Chingleput
2	8	32	8	33	5	28	10	28	10	24	10	140	0	140	0	140	0	14	13	15	6	14	13	14	13	14	13	North Arcot
9	6	29	6	30	3	25	0	25	0	29	5	201	11	201	11	201	11	19	5	19	5	19	5	18	6	18	6	South Arcot
0	5	36	3	31	11	28	0	28	0	27	2	194	6	194	6	194	6	15	10	15	10	15	10	15	3	15	3	Tanjore
5	11	34	2	28	13	30	13	30	13	30	0	97	3	97	3	97	3	17	13	17	13	17	13	17	0	17	0	Trichinopoly
3	11	38	11	33	5	35	10	35	10	32	14	170	2	170	2	145	13	17	5	17	5	14	0	16	13	16	13	Madura
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	70	0	70	0	81	10	18	11	18	11	18	11	18	5	18	5	Timnevelly
9	8	29	8	27	14	33	3	34	3	32	5	131	3	131	3	131	3	15	2	15	2	14	11	14	10	14	10	Coimbatore
1	10	21	10	20	3	23	3	24	2	19	14	161	13	161	13	161	13	13	0	13	0	11	0	12	0	11	0	Nilgiris
0	13	29	2	27	5	35	10	35	10	31	8	151	10	151	10	151	10	17	8	17	8	18	0	16	14	16	14	Salem
0	6	18	8	19	6	22	3	21	3	20	3	109	5	109	5	116	6	18	6	18	6	15	3	17	3	17	3	South Canara
1	14	21	14	21	14	26	14	26	14	25	3	121	8	121	8	121	8	14	6	14	6	13	8	13	8	13	8	Malabar
7	0	16	9	10	15	14	7	15	7	16	0	62	6	62	6	61	7	14	6	14	6	14	6	12	9	12	9	Bombay
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	80	0	80	0	80	0	16	0	16	8	16	8	16	0	16	0	Ahmedabad
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	80	0	80	0	80	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Kaira
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	80	0	80	0	80	0	13	9	13	9	13	9	13	9	13	9	Surat
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	106	0	106	0	106	0	14	8	15	9	15	4	14	8	14	8	Broach
5	11	25	11	25	11	13	4	13	4	14	15	71	0	71	1	71	0	14	5	14	5	13	4	13	4	13	4	Tanna (Salsette)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	120	0	120	0	120	0	13	0	13	8	12	0	12	8	13	0	Colaba (Alibag)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	140	0	140	0	140	0	14	0	14	0	14	2	13	14	13	14	14	Khundesh (Dhulia)
0	11	20	11	27	9	17	0	17	0	17	0	128	0	128	0	128	0	15	8	15	8	14	8	15	5	15	5	Nasik
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	79	12	79	12	91	5	13	3	12	14	14	9	13	1	12	12	14	Ahmednagar
5	6	15	6	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	68	0	68	0	68	0	13	10	13	10	12	8	13	6	13	6	Poona
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	89	0	75	0	80	0	13	8	13	8	13	8	13	4	12	12	Sholapur
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	100	0	100	0	130	0	10	11	10	6	11	0	10	0	9	8	Kaladgi (Bugalkot)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	116	8	116	8	110	15	13	2	13	2	12	6	12	6	12	6	Satara
0	0	19	0	35	0	16	8	16	0	12	7	65	0	65	0	75	0	13	0	13	0	12	13	12	0	12	0	Belgaum
0	28	0	28	0	16	0	17	0	10	0	0	80	0	80	0	80	0	8	6	8	6	9	2	8	0	8	0	Dharwar (Hubli)
13	18	13	21	2	11	11	14	11	12	10	0	120	0	120	0	120	0	12	8	13	2	11	10	12	0	12	15	11	Ratnagiri
0	18	0	20	0	12	12	13	0	12	0	0	213	5	213	5	213	5	12	0	13	0	11	8	11	0	12	0	0	Kanara (Karwar)
0	26	10	23	0	20	0	22	13	32	0	0	200	0	200	0	200	0	16	0	16	0	15	4	15	4	15	4	Panch Mahals (Godhra)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	65	5	65	5	65	5	...	...	...	...	...	...	32	0	32	0	Aden
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	160	0	160	0	160	0	11	0	11	0	11	14	11	0	11	0	Asirgarh
...	5	16	5	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	80	0	80	0	84	4	14	1	14	1	14	11	14	0	14	0	Baroda
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	137	8	137	8	137	8	12	8	12	8	13	8	12	0	12	0	Disa
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	160	0	160	0	160	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	13	0	13	0	11	0	Nimach
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	80	0	80	0	80	0	16	2*	16	2*	16	63*	15	8*	15	8*	Nasirabad
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	70	0	70	0	71	0	50	0	55	0	55	0	40	0	43	8	Rajkot
0	50	0	40	0	20	12	22	8	17	8	0	160	0	160	0	160	0	12	12	12	12	8	10	12	8	12	8	8	Upper Sindh Frontier
0	11	0	11	0	16	0	17	0	17	0	0	90	0	100	0	105	0	18	0	16	0	17	13	16	0	16	0	Karachi
0	20	0	24	0	20	0	22	0	12	0	0	240	0	320	0	480	0	14	0	14	0	14	0	14	0	14	0	0	Hyderabad (Sukkur)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	220	0	200	0	280	0	13	12	14	0	10	4	13	8	13	14	10	2	Shikarpur
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	110	0	110	0	85	0	12	12	13	0	13	0	12	4	12	8	12	8	Sukkur
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	120	0	120	0	160	0	14	12	14	13	11	5	14	12	14	13	11	5	Tharand Parkar (Umarkot)
Prices per md. of 40 seers.
R a.			p.			R a.			p.			R a.			p.
...	...	...	20	0

PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS THROUGH

PROVINCE.	DISTRICTS.	QUANTITIES PER R
		Wheat.			Barley.			Rice (best sort).			Rice (common).			Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar), Holcus Sorghum.			Balrush M. (Cumbao, Br Pennisiliana &
		Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.
BENGAL—continued.	Central Districts.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.
	Calcutta . . . . .	15 5	14 9	14 0	20 10	19 6	26 8	10 12	10 12	10 0	16 0	16 0	20 0	23 0	21 5	...	21 5	20 0	...
	24-Pergunnahs . . . . .	13 5	13 5	12 5	17 12	16 0	20 0	8 0	8 0	10 0	14 0	16 0	16 0	16 0	...	...	13 5	...	...
	Nuddea . . . . .	14 8	14 8	13 14	22 15	...	...	15 4	15 4	15 4	17 4	17 4	18 13	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Khoolna . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	16 0	16 0	16 0	22 0	22 0	22 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Jessore . . . . .	12 4	13 4	13 4	...	...	...	16 0	16 0	18 0	21 4	21 4	24 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Moorshedabad . . . . .	15 0	15 0	14 8	...	...	...	15 0	14 0	14 8	22 0	20 0	21 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Dinnagore . . . . .	16 0	16 0	13 0	17 8	17 8	14 8	18 0	18 0	19 4	20 0	20 0	23 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Rajahmhye . . . . .	15 4	15 4	13 8	29 0	33 0	33 12	14 0 to 15 4	14 0 to 16 0	13 8	20 0 to 22 0	18 0	20 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Rungpore . . . . .	13 5	13 5	16 0	...	...	...	13 5	12 5	15 0	19 0	18 0	23 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Bogra . . . . .	15 0	15 0	18 0	...	...	...	12 0	12 0	15 12	22 8	21 0	28 2	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Pubna . . . . .	18 12	18 12	13 0	...	...	...	8 8	8 8	10 0	18 12	18 12	24 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Darjeeling . . . . .	8 0	8 0	10 0	8 0	8 0	10 0	5 8	4 0	5 0	13 0	12 0	13 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Jalpaiguri . . . . .	10 0	10 0	10 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	12 8	13 0	14 0	16 0	16 0	20 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Eastern Districts.	13 5	12 8	13 14	22 12	23 0	32 0	17 12	16 8	21 4	20 0	23 0	26 10	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Dacca . . . . .	21 0	21 0	22 0	30 0	30 0	30 8	18 0	18 0	20 0	21 0	20 0	26 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Furzedpore . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	18 0	18 0	19 0	21 0	21 0	23 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Backergunge . . . . .	11 8	11 8	10 0	...	...	...	14 5	15 0	22 8	20 0	19 0	28 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Mymensingh . . . . .	11 4	8 0	9 0	...	...	...	16 0	13 0	16 0	18 0	18 0	26 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Chittagong . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	19 0	20 0	24 0	21 0	22 0	27 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Nonkholly . . . . .	11 12	12 4	11 8	...	...	...	18 12	17 4	20 12	22 12	21 12	29 12	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Tipperah . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	12 5	12 4	13 5	13 4	13 4	17 12	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Chittagong Hill Tracts . . . . .	10 0	10 0	11 0	...	...	...	15 0	16 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	28 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Hill Tipperah . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Behar.	21 0	19 0	18 8	25 0	25 0	34 0	15 0	14 0	12 0	15 8	16 0	22 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Patna . . . . .	17 8	18 8	16 8	23 0	24 0	24 0	12 0	12 0	12 8	14 0	15 0	18 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Gya . . . . .	15 0	15 0	15 0	26 0	26 0	25 0	11 0 to 12 0	16 0 to 18 0	14 0 to 15 0	15 0 to 16 0	18 0 to 19 0	...	...	...	...	26 0	27 0	...
	Shahabad . . . . .	16 0	16 0	16 0	...	28 0	30 0	12 8	13 0	14 0	16 0	16 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Durbhunga . . . . .	15 0	15 8	15 0	...	30 0	30 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	15 0	16 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Mozufferpore . . . . .	17 0	18 0	16 0	30 0	30 0	30 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	15 0	16 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Sarun . . . . .	16 0	17 0	15 8	25 0	26 0	27 0	10 0	10 0	9 8	18 0	18 0	20 0	26 0	29 0	30 0	...	...	...
	Chumpran . . . . .	19 0	19 0	18 0	32 0	32 0	31 0	13 0	13 0	12 0	17 0	17 0	18 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Monghyr . . . . .	18 13	19 10	16 12	23 1	26 4	29 5	12 9	13 10	15 12	15 12	15 3	18 14	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Bhagalpur . . . . .	15 12	16 6	14 8	24 0	30 4	37 14	15 2	15 2	17 11	17 10	17 10	18 15	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Purneah . . . . .	17 0	17 0	14 0	...	...	...	16 0	16 0	20 0	18 0	18 0	24 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Maldah . . . . .	17 0	17 8	16 0	...	...	...	15 0	15 0	16 0	20 0	18 0	20 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Southal Pergunnahs . . . . .	12 0	12 0	12 8	...	...	...	17 0	16 0	16 0	24 0	23 0	22 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Orissa.	13 2	13 2	17 1	...	...	...	13 2	13 2	15 12	22 5*	22 5	24 15	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Cuttack . . . . .	11 13	11 13	11 0	...	...	...	19 11	21 0	20 0	23 10	23 10	25 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Pooree . . . . .	14 0	14 0	13 0	...	...	...	16 0	16 0	22 0	28 0	28 0	32 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Balasore . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
	CHOTA NAGPORE.	14 0	15 0	12 8	21 0	20 0	...	9 0	9 0	10 0	15 0	15 8	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	South-Western Frontier Agency.	16 0	15 0	15 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	18 0	18 0	20 0	22 0	22 0	22 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Hazribagh . . . . .	18 0	18 0	24 0	24 0	24 0	28 0	32 0	32 0	36 0	36 0	36 0	40 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Lohardugga . . . . .	13 0	13 0	12 0	...	...	...	16 0	16 0	16 0	26 0	25 0	30 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Singbhoom . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
	Maubhoom . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...

- * In the interior retail prices of common rice range from 26-4 to 39-8 seers per rupee.
 † In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Baraset and Bussirhat 13 seers, Diamond Harbour 10-8 seers, Barrackpore 12-13 seers, and Dum-Dum 12 seers.
 ‡ In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Koushtea 12-12 seers, Meherpore 11-8 seers, Chooadanga 13 seers and Ranaghat 13 seers.
 § In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Jhenidah, Magura and Narail 12 seers, and Bongong 18 seers.
 ¶ In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Lalbagh 11 seers, Jungipore 11-6 seers, and Kandi 11-8 seers.
 †† Retail prices of salt at Raigunge 10-8 seers and Neetpore 12 seers.
 ††† In Nattore and Nowgong retail price of salt 12 seers.
 †††† In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Kurigram and Nilphamari 12 seers, and Gaibanda 10-8 seers.
 ††††† In Serajgunge retail price of salt 13-8 seers.
 †††††† Retail price of salt at Kurseong 8 seers, and Silligoree 10 seers.
 ††††††† In Alipore sub-division at Fallacotta retail price of salt 10 seers.
 †††††††† In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Manickgunge 13 seers, Moonsheegunge 10 seers 10½ chittacks, and Narsingunge 13 seers.
 ††††††††† In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Goalundo 10-8 seers, Madaripore 12 seers, and Gopalgunge 12-13 seers.
 †††††††††† In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Patuakhali 9-2 seers, Peronepore 11 seers, and Bhul 8 seers.
 ††††††††††† In the sub-divisions retail prices of salt are as follow :—Kishoregunge 10-10 seers, Aitaa 12 seers, Jamalpore 11-4 seers, and Netrokona 12-5 seers.

PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS THROUGHOUT

DISTRICTS.	QUANTITIES PER RU
	Wheat.			Barley.			Rice (best sort).			Rice (common).			Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar), Hiscus Boryhum.			Bairash Mills (Cumboo, Bajr Pennisetia Sp...
	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fort- night of 1882.
N. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S.
Sylhet . . . . .	12 0	11 0	10 8	...	...	...	10 0	11 0	14 0	17 0	16 0	28 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Cachar . . . . .	9 2	9 2	8 14	12 13	12 13	...	12 13	16 13	16 13	16 0	17 12	21 5	...	...	...	...	...	...
Goalpara . . . . .	20 0	20 0	22 0	...	...	...	13 4	13 0	13 0	22 0	21 0	20 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Garo Hills . . . . .	4 0	4 0	4 0	...	...	...	5 0	5 0	5 0	17 0	16 0	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Kamrup . . . . .	16 0	18 0	20 0	...	...	...	13 4	11 12	13 0	17 0	15 8	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Darrang . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	8 0	8 0	10 0	13 0	13 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Nowgong . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	8 0	9 8	13 8	16 0	13 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Sibsagar . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	6 8	6 8	6 8	14 0	16 0	14 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Lakhimpur . . . . .	8 0	8 0	8 0	7 0	7 0	10 0	8 0	6 0	8 0	11 0	11 0	16 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Khasi & Jaintia Hills . . . . .	...	6 10	8 0	...	...	...	8 0	6 10	9 0	9 0	9 0	10 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Naga Hills . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	4 0	4 0	5 0	5 0	5 0	8 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Dehra Dón . . . . .	17 8	17 0	18 0	24 0	26 0	27 0	6 8	6 8	6 0	10 0	11 0	11 0	22 0	24 0	24 0	20 0	22 0	22 0
Saharanpur . . . . .	17 3	18 4	20 7	23 10	27 15	32 4	7 8	7 8	9 11	11 13	11 13	12 14	29 0	29 0	32 4	21 8	21 8	21 8
Muzaffarnagar . . . . .	17 10	17 10	18 15	28 11	30 12	28 11	6 9	6 9	6 9	12 2	12 2	14 5	26 6	30 12	28 0	22 0	26 6	26 6
Meerut . . . . .	17 0	17 0	18 8	25 0	27 0	26 0	6 8	6 8	6 0	14 0	14 0	15 0	26 0	27 0	27 0	19 0	20 0	20 0
Bulandshahr . . . . .	18 0	17 8	19 12	26 0	26 0	25 12	6 0	6 0	6 0	10 0	10 0	10 5	26 0	26 8	24 0	16 0	16 0	16 0
Aligarh . . . . .	17 0	17 0	18 0	23 8	23 8	24 8	7 0	7 0	6 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	23 8	24 8	25 0	16 8	16 8	16 8
Farrukhabad . . . . .	15 0	15 0	17 0	18 0	18 0	18 0	10 0	10 0	10 0	12 0	12 0	13 0	...	...	...	30 0	30 0	30 0
Garhwal . . . . .	20 0	20 0	24 0	22 0	22 0	24 0	9 0	9 0	9 0	15 0	15 0	17 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
Bijnor . . . . .	18 4	16 14	17 7	28 2	26 7	27 0	9 4	9 9	11 4	9 8	10 11	12 15	...	20 4	21 6	...	20 4	21 6
Moradabad . . . . .	19 1	18 7	18 7	27 8	29 6	23 2	9 0	8 12	9 6	12 12	12 12	13 12	26 14	26 14	25 0	15 4	15 4	15 4
Budaun . . . . .	18 14	17 11	17 6	27 9	25 3	22 8	6 0	6 0	9 9	12 0	13 0	13 12	...	...	...	...	...	...
Bareilly . . . . .	18 12	17 8	16 14	25 0	24 6	21 14	7 8	7 8	8 2	13 2	12 13	13 12	25 0	23 12	22 8	18 12	18 12	18 12
Shahjahanpur . . . . .	19 4	19 0	18 8	31 0	32 0	24 12	9 12	9 12	9 4	15 4	15 8	14 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
Tarai Pergunnahs . . . . .	23 0	21 0	21 0	35 0	35 0	30 0	8 12	8 12	7 8	13 8	13 12	16 0	25 0	20 0	25 0	20 0	10 0	10 0
Muttra . . . . .	15 8	15 8	17 8	20 8	22 0	23 0	7 0	7 0	...	11 8	11 8	13 8	22 0	22 0	25 0	19 0	19 0	19 0
Agra . . . . .	15 8	15 4	17 8	21 0	21 8	23 0	5 8	5 8	6 8	11 8	11 8	14 0	20 0	21 0	23 0	20 0	20 0	20 0
Farrukhabad . . . . .	17 5	17 10	19 9	22 14	23 15	25 0	7 4	7 4	6 13	12 10	12 10	13 4	23 7	23 10	22 4	21 8	21 8	21 8
Mainpuri . . . . .	16 8	16 4	19 0	22 0	22 0	25 0	4 0	4 0	5 0	10 0	10 0	11 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Katwa . . . . .	16 0	15 0	18 0	22 0	20 0	22 0	6 0	6 0	6 0	12 0	12 0	14 8	23 0	20 0	25 0	19 0	18 0	18 0
Etah . . . . .	18 0	17 1	18 12	24 8	23 0	24 8	8 0	8 0	8 0	12 0	12 5	12 0	18 0	16 0	18 0	16 0	17 0	17 0
Jalaun . . . . .	18 8	18 8	19 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	9 0	10 0	10 0	10 0	11 0	12 0	25 0	25 0	28 0	20 0	20 0	20 0
Jhansi . . . . .	18 0	20 3	20 10	26 5	29 14	32 10	8 0	8 8	8 0	12 8	14 8	15 0	25 15	29 8	27 4	...	...	...
Lalitpur . . . . .	20 8	19 0	21 0	32 0	33 0	37 0	9 0	9 0	10 0	10 0	11 0	13 0	25 0	29 0	32 0	22 0	24 0	24 0
Cannanore . . . . .	18 0	18 0	18 0	25 8	26 8	26 0	10 0	10 0	11 0	13 8	13 8	14 0	25 0	26 8	26 0	23 0	23 0	23 0
Fatehpur . . . . .	16 10	16 10	16 14	24 8	24 8	25 12	10 12	11 4	11 4	13 10	14 8	15 4	...	...	...	...	...	...
Banda . . . . .	22 0	22 0	18 0	31 0	31 0	21 0	8 0	8 0	9 0	12 8	13 8	14 0	36 0	37 0	33 0	30 0	31 0	31 0
Allahabad . . . . .	16 12	16 14	17 8	27 8	27 10	25 8	10 8	11 0	11 8	15 0	15 0	17 0	30 8	30 8	30 8	30 0	29 12	29 12
Hamirpur . . . . .	17 0	16 0	15 4	...	...	20 4	8 0	8 0	10 0	...	...	...	21 0	22 0	25 0	...	20 0	24 0
Jaunpur . . . . .	19 13	19 13	19 0	31 1	31 12	30 5	7 12	7 12	7 1	14 2	14 2	14 2	...	...	...	...	...	...
Gorakhpur . . . . .	18 14	18 14	18 0	27 14	28 13	27 0	13 1	12 9	14 6	16 3	16 3	18 0	39 0	41 0	41 0	...	...	...
Basti . . . . .	20 0	20 6	16 8	34 0	34 0	30 0	13 0	13 0	12 0	16 0	16 0	15 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Azamgarh . . . . .	17 11	17 11	17 11	25 1	25 13	27 5	10 5	10 5	11 9	14 12	14 12	17 10	29 8	29 8	...	20 10	20 10	20 10
Mirzapur . . . . .	16 0	16 0	15 0	25 0	25 0	20 0	10 0	10 0	10 0	12 0	12 0	16 0	26 0	26 0	26 0	24 0	24 0	24 0
Benares . . . . .	16 13	17 1	16 13	25 8	26 0	24 15	10 13	10 13	11 6	16 13	16 0	16 4	26 0	26 0	26 8	27 2	27 10	27 10
Ghazipur . . . . .	19 5	19 5	18 0	27 11	27 11	27 0	9 0	9 0	10 15	15 7	15 7	16 1	25 12	25 12	25 12	25 12	25 12	25 12
Balia . . . . .	18 12	18 12	16 4	27 8	27 8	27 8	10 10	10 10	10 10	17 8	18 12	15 0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Pilibhit . . . . .	19 13	19 4	19 0	34 8	34 8	27 4	12 2	13 8	15 0	14 12	15 0	16 4	...	16 0	...	...	...	...
Sultanpur . . . . .	20 0	20 0	19 0	32 0	32 0	29 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	16 0	16 0	17 8	...	...	...	...	...	...
Partabgarh . . . . .	20 2	20 11	19 5	33 5	31 1	26 5	15 0	15 4	16 2	16 2	16 13	17 10	...	...	...	...	...	...
Fyzabad . . . . .	17 8	18 0	16 12	26 8	28 0	27 0	10 4	10 8	10 8	13 8	15 0	17 4	33 0	...	31 0	18 8	19 0	...
Kheri . . . . .	22 8	23 4	19 4	36 0	36 0	27 0	7 0	7 0	7 0	14 0	15 0	16 0	45 0	45 0	29 0	29 0	...	...
Lucknow . . . . .	17 5	17 10	16 9	27 0	27 14	23 4	6 0	6 0	6 0	12 9	12 15	14 2	27 12	29 0	22 10	23 0	28 1	22 1
Bara Banki . . . . .	18 0	18 0	17 8	29 0	30 0	25 0	9 0	10 0	11 0	14 0	14 0	16 0	29 0	30 0	31 0	21 0	22 0	22 0
Bharanich . . . . .	17 0	17 0	16 0	36 0	36 0	32 0	10 0	10 0	9 0	16 0	16 0	17 0	38 0	38 0	34 0	22 0	22 0	22 0
Rai Bareilly . . . . .	18 0	19 4	19 0	25 8	26 8	25 0	...	...	...	15 6	15 12	16 8	...	...	24 0	22 0	22 0	22 0
Sit

INDIA FOR THE 2nd HALF OF AUGUST 1883—continued.

IN SEERS OF 80 TOLAHS.

Lesser Millets, Ragi, &c. (Kavaru, Vernagu, Sawar, Cheena, Coraloo, Murhwa, Niglee), Pennisetum Miliarenum , &c.			Gram.			Firewood.			Salt.						DISTRICTS.
Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Wholesale.			Retail.
									Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.
S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	R. a.	R. a.	R. a.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.
...	...	...	16 4	14 0	17 12	108 0	108 0	108 0	3 4	3 4	3 4	12 0	11 0	12 8	Sylhet
...	...	...	12 13	12 13	15 4	80 0	80 0	80 0	3 8	3 8	3 7	10 10	10 10	11 2	Cachar
...	...	...	13 4	13 0	14 0	65 0	120 0	120 0	3 4	3 4	3 4	12 0	12 0	12 8	Gaolpara
...	...	...	8 0	8 0	8 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	5 6	5 6	5 6	6 6	6 6	6 6	Garo Hills
...	...	...	13 4	11 12	13 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	3 8	3 8	3 5	11 8	11 8	12 0	Kamrup
...	...	...	7 0	10 0	9 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	4 8	4 8	4 8	8 0	8 0	8 0	Darrang
...	...	...	8 0	8 0	8 0	120 0	120 0	80 0	4 0	4 0	3 12	8 0	8 0	9 0	Nowgong
...	...	...	10 0	10 0	10 0	80 0	80 0	80 0	4 8	4 8	4 8	8 0	8 0	8 8	Sibsagar
...	...	...	10 0	10 0	10 0	160 0	160 0	200 0	4 8	4 8	5 0	8 0	8 0	8 0	Lakhimpur
...	...	...	...	8 0	10 0	...	...	...	5 0	5 0	5 0	8 0	8 0	8 0	Khási & Jaintia Hills
...	...	...	2 0	2 0	2 0	120 0	120 0	120 0	16 0	16 0	13 0	2 8	2 8	3 0	Naga Hills
...	...	...	19 8	21 0	19 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	10 8	10 8	10 8	Dehra Dun
...	...	...	21 8	24 11	21 11	129 0	129 0	129 0	12 11	12 11	12 1	12 5	12 5	11 13	Saharanpur
...	...	...	19 12	23 2	23 2	110 0	110 0	132 0	12 6	12 6	11 13	11 8	11 8	11 4	Muzaffarnagar
...	...	...	20 0	23 0	23 0	110 0	110 0	110 0	12 8	12 8	12 0	12 0	12 0	11 8	Meerut
...	...	...	22 0	23 0	23 0	140 0	140 0	140 0	11 8	12 0	11 8	...	...	...	Bulandshahr
...	...	...	21 0	22 8	22 0	120 0	120 0	130 0	12 4	12 8	12 8	12 0	12 0	12 0	Aligarh
...	...	...	12 0	12 0	12 0	200 0	200 0	200 0	8 0	8 0	7 0	7 0	7 0	7 0	Kanun
...	...	...	10 0	10 0	9 0	280 0	280 0	320 0	8 8	8 8	7 8	7 13	7 13	6 14	Garhwal
...	...	...	19 2	19 11	20 4	135 0	135 0	135 0	...	...	...	11 0	11 4	...	Bijnor
...	...	...	21 11	21 14	21 4	125 0	125 0	137 8	12 10	12 10	12 0	12 8	12 8	11 14	Moradabad
...	...	...	22 12	21 9	18 14	192 0	192 0	192 0	11 6	11 6	10 12	11 1	10 12	10 3	Budaun
...	...	...	21 14	21 14	19 6	125 0	125 0	125 0	12 3	12 3	11 14	11 14	11 14	11 4	Bareilly
...	...	...	22 12	23 8	20 12	160 0	160 0	160 0	13 0	13 0	12 0	11 0	11 0	10 8	Shahjahanpur
...	...	...	19 8	20 0	18 0	120 0	120 0	120 0	11 4	11 4	11 4	11 0	10 8	11 0	Tarai Pergunnahs
...	...	...	19 8	22 0	23 8	120 0	120 0	100 0	13 0	13 0	13 0	12 8	12 8	12 0	Muttra
...	...	...	20 8	21 0	23 0	100 0	100 0	100 0	13 8	13 8	12 8	13 0	13 0	12 0	Agra
...	...	...	22 8	22 13	21 9	135 0	145 0	156 8	12 4	12 4	12 2	11 9	11 9	10 14	Farukhabad
...	...	...	20 4	20 8	24 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	11 8	11 8	12 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	Mainpuri
...	...	...	22 0	21 0	25 8	100 0	100 0	100 0	12 0	12 0	10 8	11 0	11 0	10 0	Etawah
...	...	...	20 15	21 0	21 0	180 0	167 0	160 0	12 0	12 0	12 8	11 0	11 8	11 0	Etah
...	...	...	28 0	28 0	29 0	140 0	140 0	140 0	11 0	11 0	12 0	10 0	10 0	11 0	Jalaun
...	...	...	25 11	27 3	26 13	200 0	200 0	200 0	11 0	11 0	11 12	10 0	10 0	10 12	Jhansi
...	...	...	27 8	28 0	33 0	180 0	180 0	140 0	12 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	10 0	10 10	Lalitpur
...	...	...	25 8	26 0	24 8	145 0	145 0	140 0	13 4	13 4	12 8	13 0	13 0	12 0	Cawnnpore
...	...	...	27 0	27 12	25 0	200 0	200 0	200 0	11 0	11 0	10 4	10 12	10 12	10 0	Fatehpur
...	...	...	36 0	36 0	33 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	12 0	11 0	12 4	11 0	10 8	12 0	Banda
...	...	...	28 4	29 4	21 4	120 0	120 0	130 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	Allahabad
...	...	...	26 0	25 0	27 0	140 0	140 0	140 0	11 4	11 4	11 0	10 0	10 0	10 0	Hamirpur
...	...	...	31 1	31 1	22 9	148 12	148 12	120 0	10 12	10 12	9 11	10 10	10 10	9 9	Jaunpur
...	...	...	30 9	29 11	26 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	10 9	10 9	11 13	10 6	10 6	10 6	Gorakhpur
...	...	...	30 0	30 0	25 0	150 0	150 0	140 0	9 0	9 0	10 0	8 0	8 0	9 8	Basti
...	...	...	25 15	25 15	22 2	147 8	147 8	181 0	10 8	10 8	11 13	9 5	9 5	9 5	Azamgarh
...	...	...	24 0	24 0	21 0	70 0	60 0	103 0	10 0	11 0	9 0	9 0	9 0	8 0	Mirzapur
...	...	...	23 5	25 14	22 4	90 0	90 0	140 0	10 6	10 6	11 4	10 2	10 2	1 2	Benares
...	...	...	27 11	26 11	25 1	128 12	128 12	130 0	10 15	10 15	10 15	10 5	10 5	9 10	Ghazipur
...	...	...	26 4	26 4	25 0	90 0	90 0	100 0	11 4	11 4	11 4	11 4	11 4	11 4	Balia
...	...	...	23 8	24 3	17 11	150 0	150 0	150 0	13 0	13 0	11 12	12 8	12 12	12 12	Pilibhit
...	...	...	31 0	31 0	26 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	12 4	12 0	12 0	12 0	11 12	13 12	Sultanpur
...	...	...	26 2	27 8	21 10	200 0	200 0	200 0	11 0	11 0	11 0	10 10	10 14	10 8	Partabgarh
...	...	...	26 0	28 0	22 12	120 0	120 0	140 0	11 2	11 0	11 0	10 4	10 0	10 0	Fyzabad
...	...	...	29 0	29 0	18 0	120 0	120 0	160 0	10 10	10 8	11 0	10 10	10 0	10 0	Kheri
...	...	...	23 1	23 7	21 0	115 0	115 0	115 0	11 0	11 0	10 0	10 8	10 8	9 8	Lucknow
...	...	...	29 0	25 0	22 0	130 0	130 0	130 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	11 0	11 0	10 0	Bara Banki
...	...	...	32 0	32 0	26 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	...	...	...	9 8	9 8	9 0	Bharachu
...	...	...	24 0	24 8	20 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	...	...	...	11 0	10 0	9 0	Rai Bareilly
...	...	...	27 14	28 0	21 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	12 8	12 8	12 8	11 8	11 8	10 8	Sitapur
...	...	...	33 6	33 14	26 13	200 0	200 0	240 0	11 4	11 4	11 8	11 0	11 0	11 4	Gonda
...	...	...	24 8	24 8	23 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	...	...	...	12 0	11 8	11 0	Unao
...	...	...	20 10	20 14	22 8	200 0	200 0	240 0	9 6	9 6	8 8	7 8	7 8	8 7	Hardui
...	...	...	26 4	32 0	26 4	95 0	95 0	95 0	15 4	15 4	15 0	15 0	15 0	15 0	Gujranwala
...	...	...	25 0	31 0	28 8	80 0	80 0	80 0	15 0	14 0	15 0	14 0	13 0	14 0	Lahore
...	...	...	25 0	33 0	32 0	100 0	100 0	80 0	12 12	12 12	13 8	12 8	12 8	13 0	Perozepore (a)
...	...	...	29 0	31 0	37 0	120 0	120 0	120 0	12 0	12 0	11 8	11 8	11 8	11 0	Sirsa (b)
...	...	...	25 0	22 0	26 0	120 0	120 0	80 0	12 0	12 0	10 8	11 8	11 8	10 0	Hissar
...	...	...	20 8	21 12	25 0	100 0	100 0	100 0	11 8	11 8	11 1	10 0	10 8	10 5	Rohtak (c)
...	...	...	20 0	19 0	23 2	140 0	130 0	130 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	Gurgaon
...	...	...	19 12	19 8	21 8	80 0	80 0	80 0	12 8	12 8	12 8	11 8	11 8	11 8	Delhi
...	...	...	21 8	22 0	25 0	140 0	140 0	160 0	12 4	12 0	11 8	12 0	11 12	11 4	Karnal (a)
...	...	...	21 8	25 0	26 8	140 0	140 0	140 0	14 0	13 12	13 10	13 4	13 4	13 8	Umballa (a)
...	...	...	23 0	33 4	30 8	100 0	100 0	100 0	14 11	14 1	14 10	14 0	14 0	14 8	Ludhiana (d)
...	...	...	14 0	...	16 12	80 0	80 0	80 0	10 5	10 8	10 12	9 11	9 11	10 1	Simla (e)

(a) Wheat, barley, jowar, bajra and gram rising.

(d) Wheat, barley, rice, bajra, jowar and gram rising; salt falling.

(e) Prices steady.

PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS THROUGHOUT

DISTRICTS.	QUANTITIES PER RUPEE
	Wheat.			Barley.			Rice (best sort).			Rice (common).			Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar), Hoicus Sorghum.			Bairush Millet (Onmoo, Baira), Pennisetum Spica
	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.
	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.
Kangra (a)	18	0	22	0	24	0	28	0	34	0	40	0	...	...	...	13	0	14	0	15	0	22	...	36	...	32	...	24	...	0	26	...	0	20	...
Jullundur (b)	17	0	20	0	23	0	26	0	32	0	37	0	...	...	...	6	0	8	0	8	0	22	...	36	...	32	...	24	...	0	26	...	0	20	...
Hoshiarpur (c)	17	8	20	8	24	8	28	0	31	0	35	0	...	...	...	11	8	13	0	11	0	...	...	31	...	29	...	0	16	...	0	20	...	0	22	...
Gurdaspur	20	0	25	0	30	0	26	0	32	0	40	0	...	...	...	14	0	16	0	16	0	28	...	32	...	0	24	...	0	14	...	0	14	...	0	14	...
Amritsar (d)	19	8	22	0	24	8	29	4	35	0	39	0	...	...	...	10	8	12	0	11	8	24	...	36	...	0	29	...	4	25	...	8	26	...	8	22	...
Siālkot	21	0	24	4	24	0	32	0	36	15	39	0	...	...	...	12	0	16	0	15	0	32	...	39	...	11	27	...	0	32	...	0	32	...	12	21	...
Gujrat (e)	22	4	25	0	24	12	42	0	45	0	41	9	...	...	...	13	8	14	0	12	0	39	...	42	...	0	25	...	0	34	...	0	40	...	0	28	...
Jhelum	20	0	22	0	24	0	27	0	37	0	31	0	...	...	...	11	0	13	0	10	0	36	...	38	...	0	25	...	0	31	...	0	35	...	0	24	...
Rawalpindi (f)	20	8	21	8	20	0	32	0	39	0	30	0	...	...	...	8	8	13	0	8	12	33	...	40	...	0	30	...	12	30	...	8	35	...	0	24	...
Shahpur (g)	22	0	28	0	20	12	36	0	52	0	32	0	...	...	...	15	0	16	0	13	0	34	...	42	...	0	20	...	0	34	...	0	44	...	0	20	...
Jhang (g)	17	8	20	0	19	0	28	8	32	0	32	0	...	...	...	8	0	10	0	11	0	27	...	32	...	0	24	...	0	30	...	0	28	...	0	18	...
Montgomery (h)	16	0	18	8	19	0	23	0	32	0	24	0	...	...	...	6	0	6	0	5	8	...	...	32	...	0	20	...	0	...	...	...	...	16	...
Mooltan (h)	14	8	16	8	17	0	25	0	28	0	28	0	...	...	...	10	0	10	0	10	0	26	...	29	...	0	28	...	0	26	...	0	28	...	0	24	...
Muzaffargarh (i)	17	12	20	0	18	8	27	0	28	0	26	0	...	...	...	5	0	6	0	7	0	21	...	21	...	0	18	...	0	23	...	0	23	...	0	18	...
Dera Ghazi Khan (j)	16	14	18	12	17	8	30	0	33	12	30	0	...	...	...	10	0	10	0	7	8	32	...	37	...	8	21	...	4	32	...	8	36	...	4	20	...
Dera Ismail Khan	20	10	23	7	19	4	32	3	39	1	27	14	...	...	...	8	7	8	7	8	12	40	...	41	...	4	30	...	0	32	...	8	37	...	8	22	...
Rannu*	29	6	35	10	30	0	42	8	51	14	41	14	...	...	...	8	12	8	12	8	12	50	...	42	...	8	37	...	8	37	...	8	40	...	0	25	...
Kohat (k)	19	12	23	4	17	8	31	14	43	6	31	14	...	...	...	11	8	12	12	12	2	36	...	15	...	43	...	6	22	...	14	35	...	11	42	...	0	21	...
Peshawar (k)	18	10	23	10	19	8	30	3	40	10	35	12	...	...	...	12	0	12	0	9	8	25	...	43	...	6	29	...	0	22	...	0	30	...	3	14	...
Házara†	...	...	27	8	23	4	...	...	45	0	40	0	...	...	...	...	...	15	0	12	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	32	0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Nagpur	17	12	18	12	17	0	...	...	...	...	9	4	9	12	8	10	16	0	16	0	16	4	28	...	12	...	31	...	0	25	...	4	...	...	...	...	...
Bhandāra	20	0	20	0	19	0	...	...	...	...	10	0	10	0	10	0	18	8	20	0	20	8	35	...	35	...	0	24	...	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Chānda	19	0	19	0	18	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	15	0	15	0	12	0	27	...	8	...	27	...	8	...	23	0	...	...	...	...	...	...
Wardha	20	0	20	0	18	8	...	...	...	...	10	0	10	0	8	12	14	0	14	0	14	12	27	...	0	27	...	0	23	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Bālgāhat	18	0	19	0	17	0	...	...	...	...	15	0	15	0	15	0	23	0	26	0	27	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Jubbulpore	18	8	18	0	16	12	19	0	20	0	22	0	9	0	9	0	14	8	14	0	14	0	21	...	0	22	...	0	17	0	17	0	18	0	15	0	...
Saugor	22	0	20	0	18	0	...	...	...	...	8	0	8	0	8	0	9	0	9	0	9	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Damoh	25	4	24	0	22	0	...	...	...	...	10	8	11	4	13	12	11	8	12	8	14	8	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Seoni	20	8	18	8	19	0	...	...	...	...	11	8	11	8	13	0	15	0	14	0	18	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Mandla	25	0	25	0	19	0	...	...	...	...	15	0	15	0	14	8	19	0	19	0	19	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Betūl	18	0	18	0	16	0	...	...	...	...	10	8	10	8	9	0	11	0	11	0	10	0	19	...	8	...	20	...	0	20	0	...	...	...	...	...
Chhindwāra	25	0	25	0	17	0	...	...	...	...	9	8	8	8	8	0	14	8	13	8	12	0	32	...	12	...	31	...	12	...	22	0	...	...	...	...
Hoshangabad	15	7	16	2	15	7	...	...	...	...	4	0	4	0	4	8	9	9	9	9	10	13	21	...	0	21	...	0	21	...	6	19	...	4	19	...	4	18	...
Narsinghpur	18	4	18	0	15	8	...	...	...	...	9	4	9	8	10	0	12	8	12	8	12	8	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Nimār	16	8	15	7	14	10	...	...	...	...	12	9	13	10	...	14	14	14	14	12	0	20	...	10	...	18	...	12	...	7	20	...	0	20	...	0	22	...
Raipur	20	0	20	0	26	0	...	...	...	...	17	8	17	8	20	0	31	8	33	0	40	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Sambalpur	17	0	17	0	22	12	...	...	...	...	31	8	31	8	35	0	35	0	35	0	44	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Bilaspur	25	0	27	0	45	0	...	...	...	...	23	0	27	0	45	0	39	0	50	0	27	0	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Arakan Division.
Akyab	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Northern Arakan	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Syounkpyoo	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Sandowny	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Pegu Division.
Tangoon Town	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Laithawaddy	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Barrawaddy	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Rome	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Irrawaddy Division.
Bassein	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Benzada	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Honogwa	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Mayetmyo	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Tenasserim Division.
Boulmeim Town & Amherst	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Avoy	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Ergui	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Mungoo	...

Prices rising except that of salt. (b) Prices rising. (c) Prices rising except that of salt (retail.) (d) Wheat, barley, rice, bajra, jowar and gram rising; salt falling.
 A) Wheat, barley, bajra, jowar, gram and salt rising. (i) Wheat, barley, rice, gram, salt and firewood rising. (j) Wheat, barley, bajra, jowar, gram rising; salt falling.

FOR THE 2nd HALF OF AUGUST 1883—continued.

ERS OF 80 TOLANS.

[illegible]

(e) Prices falling. (f) Prices rising except that of wholesale salt. (g) When

PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS THRO

PROVINCES.	DISTRICTS.	QUANTITIES P
		Wheat.			Barley.			Rice (best sort).			Rice (common).			Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar), Holcus Sorghum.			Bulr (Cum, Pennic)
		Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.	Present fortnight.	Past fortnight.	Corresponding fortnight of 1882.
MYSORE	Bangalore	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.
	Kolar
	Tumkur
	Mysore	No return received
	Hassan
	Shimoga
	Kadur
COORG	Chitaldroog
	Coorg	8 7	8 10	8 14	9 10	9 11	8 6	13 11	13 11	10 18	18 9	18 5	13 3
	Jeypore	15 8	16 0	16 0	21 0	20 0	22 0	6 0	6 0	8 8	8 8	9 0	20 0	20 0	20 0	19 4
	Kishengurh	15 4	17 8	17 0	20 0	23 8	24 8	9 0	8 0	10 0	9 0	10 0	19 8	25 4	24 0	14 8
	Kerrowlee	*	15 10	16 0	*	19 11	18 8	*	11 14	10 8	12 8	13 8	*	19 11	19 0	*
	Ulwur	16 4	18 2	19 1	20 9	24 10	26 3	8 10	8 10	10 8	11 0	11 14	21 12	23 8	23 8	19 4
	Bhurspore (City)	16 0	16 5	17 8	22 9	23 11	23 8	7 12	7 12	8 0	9 6	9 12	11 0	20 0	20 0	22 0	20 8
RAJPOOTANA.	Ajmere	14 8	13 8	15 8	20 8	19 8	23 0	5 0	5 0	8 0	8 0	8 0	16 0	16 0	18 0	13 0
	Deoli Cantonment	16 1	18 11	16 1	22 15	25 9	20 5			13 0	13 0	10 8	22 0	24 13	20 0	13 0
	Erinpura	13 12	16 9	16 12	20 12	25 4	28 9			7 13	8 0	8 0	19 0	20 0	20 9	17 10
	Sirohee	11 4	13 4	17 0	22 0	25 0	28 0	6 8	7 0	7 8	8 0	8 0	14 0	18 0	17 0	15 0
	Abu	11 0	11 5	15 10	17 10	20 0	23 0	6 6	7 0	7 6	7 4	8 0				13 2
	Anadra	12 2	12 8	17 12	20 14	23 0	26 0	6 14		13 0	15 0	18 0				14 8
	Hilly Tracts of Meywar	15 0	19 0	20 0	24 0	27 0	24 0
CENTRAL INDIA.	Meywar (Oodeypore)	13 7	14 1	15 8	17 15	19 2	19 14	9 6	10 2
	Banswara (Meywar Agency)	20 0	21 14	21 14				10 0	10 0	17 8	17 8	17 8
	Partabgarh ( " )	17 15	15 12	17 10				9 4	6 4	7 8	7 8	7 8	18 12	18 12	22 8	15 10
	Marwar (Jodhpore)	12 13	14 11	16 4	17 8	20 0	21 4	6	8	5 12	5 12	7 12				15 8
	Bikaner	9 5	10 12	12 0				3 0	10 0	9 0	10 0	10 8	27 0	25 0	26 8
	Boondee	19 4	19 8	16 8	30 0	27 8	27 0	8 0	8 12	11 0	13 0	11 12	22 0	23 0	22 0	12 8
	Kotah	20 0	22 0	16 12	25 0	25 0	18 8	6 0	7 0	8 0	8 0	9 4	24 0	23 12	23 6
CENTRAL INDIA.	Tonk	17 0	17 3	13 7	22 8	23 0	21 5			7 14	8 14	10 2	21 14	23 6	19 1	17 1
	Jhallawar	16 3	18 1	15 4	20 14	23 10	15 14	11 12	11 2	15 4	16 4	14 8	19 2	18 0	16 12	15 0
	Shahpoora	15 8	18 4	16 0	19 0	23 3	20 6	10 2	7 14	11 4	11 4	11 12	21 3	21 12	20 3	9 5
	Dholpur	15 6	16 12	16 10	21 11	24 4	20 4
	Indore	14 8	14 8	15 8				9 3	8 9	10 14	10 14	10 0	20 0	20 18	20 18	7
	Gwalior	15 0	15 11	15 11	21 8	22 3	18 1	7 9	7 11	9 2	9 2	9 13	21 15	23 1	19 12	18 12
	Goona	21 4	20 4	20 4	20 0	20 0	19 0	10 0	9 8	9 8	10 8	10 0	32 0	30 0	23 0	20 0
CENTRAL INDIA.	Baghelkhand (Sutna)	22 4	24 0	21 0	35 12	38 7	32	7 0	8 0	17 8	18 0	18 0	35 0	38 13	32 0	30 0

elved.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE,
(Statistical Branch.)

DIA FOR THE 2nd HALF OF AUGUST 1883—concluded.

SEERS OF 80 TOLAHS.

Casser Millets, Ragl. tc. (Kavaru, Veragu, Jawar, Cheena, Corallo, Murhwa, Nugglee), Passi- rum Millicorum, &c.									Gram.						Firewood.						Salt.									DISTRICTS.
Present fortnight.			Past fortnight.			Corresponding fort- night of 1882.			Present fortnight.			Past fortnight.			Corresponding fort- night of 1882.			Present fortnight.			Past fortnight.			Corresponding fort- night of 1882.			Wholesale.				Retail.
Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.	Ch.	S.		Ch.	S.
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Bangalore
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Kolar
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Tumkur
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Mysore
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Hassan
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Shimoga
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Kadur
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	Chitaldroog
30 9	27 1	20 13	28 6	27 13	21 5	110 0	110 0	110 0	9 14	9 13	8 10	9 11	9 9	8 3	Coorg
...	...	...	20 8	19 0	18 0	...	...	...	15 0	14 8	14 4	14 12	14 4	14 0	Jeypore
...	...	...	21 8	25 0	21 8	...	...	...	...	...	...	16 0	16 4	16 0	Kishengurh
...	...	...	...	20 0	18 8	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	13 8	13 0	Kerrowlee
...	...	...	20 6	23 14	24 3	...	...	...	15 7	15 12	15 13	14 12	15 0	15 6	Ulwur
...	...	...	21 8	23 0	22 8	...	...	...	12 4	13 5	12 1	12 0	13 0	11 8	Bhartpore (City)
...	...	...	22 0	21 8	21 8	70 0	70 0	70 0	17 0	17 0	...	15 0	15 0	15 0	Ajmere
...	...	...	23 3	25 9	20 4	...	...	...	13 4	13 8	...	12 12	12 12	12 12	Deoli Cantonment
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	R a. p.	R a. p.	R a. p.	...	...	...
...	...	...	18 7	21 1	22 8	160 0	160 0	160 0	3 1 3	2 15 0	3 1 2	12 0	12 9	12 0	Erinpura
...	...	...	17 0	18 0	22 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	3 0 0	3 0 0	3 0 0	12 5	12 5	12 5	Sirohee
...	...	...	14 4	16 0	21 8	160 0	160 0	160 0	3 8 0	3 8 0	3 8 0	11 8	11 8	11 8	Abu
...	...	...	15 12	18 0	24 12	...	...	...	3 4 0	3 4 0	3 4 0	12 4	12 4	12 4	Anadra
...	...	...	18 0	23 0	23 0	...	...	...	4 0 0	3 10 0	...	10 0	11 0	10 0	Hilly Tracts of Meywar
...	...	...	17 3	17 15	16 0	200 0	200 0	200 0	S. Ch. 6	S. Ch. 9 9	S. Ch. 9 14	8 15	9 6	9 12	Moywar (Oodeypore)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	R a. p.	R a. p.	R a. p.	...	...	...
...	...	...	30 0	37 8	35 0	...	...	...	3 13 0	...	...	10 10	10 10	11 4	Banswara (Meywar Agent)
...	...	...	21 3	21 4	21 9	...	...	...	2 7 0	...	...	16 7	16 7	9 11	Partabgarh ( "
...	...	...	16 9	18 2	20 0	...	...	...	2 10 0	2 10 0	2 9 0	15 0	15 0	15 0	Marwar (Jodhpore)
...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	S. Ch.	...	...	...
...	...	...	16 4	19 8	18 0	...	...	...	...	...	...	11 8	11 8	11 8	Bikapeer
...	...	...	27 0	25 8	27 0	155 0	160 0	120 0	11 8	11 4	11 8	11 4	11 0	71 0	Boondee
...	...	...	27 0	29 0	24 12	240 0	240 0	240 0	12 8	12 8	12 12	12 0	12 0	12 4	Kotah
...	...	...	23 8	23 8	20 14	160 0	160 0	160 0	12 8	12 0	12 0	12 4	11 12	11 12	Tonk
...	...	...	21 4	23 6	21 4	...	...	...	9 12	9 12	9 15	9 8	9 8	9 11	Jhallawar
...	...	...	25 0	24 0	19 4	160 0	160 0	160 0	13 1	13 1	13 7	12 13	12 13	13 3	Shahpoora
...	...	...	21 0	23 10	18 15	...	...	...	13 8	13 8	10 11	12 10	12 10	10 0	Dholpur
...	...	...	17 7	18 0	18 0	100 0	100 0	100 0	12 0	12 0	12 0	11 6	10 14	...	Indore
...	...	...	20 1	21 2	20 14	127 12	127 12	100 6	...	...	...	11 7	11 7	11 14	Gwalior
...	...	...	30 0	29 0	25 0	200 0	200 0	200 0	12 0	12 0	11 8	11 8	11 4	11 0	Goona
...	...	...	30 13	36 6	30 0	160 0	160 0	160 0	11 5	12 1	12 5	11 4	11 5	11 12	Baghelkhand (Sutna)

† Eight pice per bundle.

D. BARBOUR,
Secretary to the Government of.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Comparative Statement of the Net Indian Sea and Land Customs Revenue (excluding Salt Revenue) for the first five months of the official year 1883-84, and of the twelve preceding years.
(IN THOUSANDS OF RUPEES.)

FOR THE FIVE MONTHS, APRIL TO AUGUST.
YEAR.	BOMBAY.				SINDH.				MADRAS.				BRITISH BEMA.				TOTAL BRITISH INDIA.				YEAR.
	On Imports of Liquors.		On Exports.		Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.		On Exports.		Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.		On Exports.		Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.		On Exports.		Total Revenue.
	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	Total Revenue.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	On Imports of Liquors.	On Exports.	Total Revenue.
1-72 .	4,48	28,91	8,81	42,20	3,47	14,29	1,58	19,34	49	37	54	1,40	1,45	5,22	6,30	12,97	69	1,70	8,54	10,93	10,58	50,49	61,07	25,77	86,84	1871-72.
2-73 .	5,66	28,14	9,03	42,83	2,23	15,63	1,35	19,21	47	38	89	1,74	1,66	5,03	4,98	11,67	1,36	1,91	16,41	19,68	11,38	51,09	62,47	32,66	95,13	1872-73.
3-74 .	4,20	28,20	6,75	39,15	2,54	13,97	1,38	17,89	51	25	48	1,24	1,58	5,50	6,25	13,33	1,37	1,88	13,09	16,34	10,20	49,80	60,00	27,95	87,95	1873-74.
4-75 .	4,96	31,23	5,16	41,35	2,69	16,55	1,49	20,73	53	25	56	1,34	1,45	5,95	5,64	13,04	1,75	2,70	9,16	13,61	11,38	56,68	68,06	22,01	90,07	1874-75.
5-76 .	5,28	32,25	6,67	44,20	2,78	16,79	3,37	22,94	52	35	85	1,72	1,79	6,11	6,24	14,14	1,45	1,81	16,41	19,67	11,82	57,31	69,13	33,54	1,02,67	1875-76.
6-77 .	5,56	25,98	4,83	36,37	3,49	13,64	48	17,61	57	25	9	91	2,46	5,56	3,81	11,83	1,99	2,15	11,82	15,96	14,07	47,58	61,65	21,03	82,68	1876-77.
7-78 .	6,21	32,73	4,94	43,88	3,74	16,84	49	21,07	92	30	15	1,37	2,27	3,25	7,3	6,25	2,10	2,24	9,24	13,58	15,24	55,36	70,60	15,55	86,15	1877-78.
8-79 .	5,62	27,50	5,65	38,77	3,49	15,08	85	19,42	81	20	10	1,11	2,43	4,14	1,80	8,37	3,21	2,77	11,94	17,92	15,56	49,69	65,25	20,34	85,59	1878-79.
9-80 .	4,88	24,46	3,39	32,73	3,70	12,70	80	17,20	1,21	33	8	1,62	2,20	3,59	2,12	7,91	2,96	2,36	15,59	20,91	14,95	43,44	58,39	21,98	80,37	1879-80.
0-81 .	5,52	28,25	3,93	32,70	3,53	17,23	69	21,45	1,77	42	9	2,28	2,03	4,35	4,16	10,54	2,07	3,02	16,66	21,75	14,92	48,27	63,19	25,53	88,72	1880-81.
1-82 .	5,69	23,43	5,93	35,05	4,25	16,54	65	21,44	1,60	54	13	2,27	2,15	4,29	2,85	9,29	2,90	3,01	20,08	25,99	16,59	47,81	64,40	29,64	94,04	1881-82.
2-83 .	5,99	1	6,25	12,25	4,36	—98*	55	3,94	1,39	3	21	1,63	2,23	1	1,78	4,02	3,48	3	25,34	28,85	17,45	—90*	16,55	34,13	50,68	1882-83.
3-84 .	5,97	4	7,32	13,33	4,47	17	45	5,09	1,50	1	19	1,70	2,19	3	2,40	4,02	3,35	8	18,33	21,76	17,48	33	17,81	28,69	46,50	1883-84.

* The amount refunded is greater than the duty collected.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

STATEMENTS OF IRRIGATION OPERATIONS OF FASL KHARIF OF 1882-83 IN THE PUNJAB.

STATEMENT No. I.

Revised Comparative Abstract of Irrigation and Rainfall in Canal Districts of the Punjab.

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	16	17	18	19	20	21
DISTRICTS.	Area in acres.	Cultivated area in acres.	AREA IRRIGATED.		COMPARISON WITH LAST CROP.		RAINFALL IN KHARIF MONTHS.
			1882-83.	1881-82.	Increase.	Decrease.	April.		May.		June.		July.		August.		September.		TOTAL.
			1882-83.	1881-82.	1882-83.	1881-82.	1882.	1881.	1882.	1881.	1882.	1881.	1882.	1881.	1882.	1881.	1882.	1881.	1882-83.	1881-82.
Umballa . . . . .	1,644,849	951,890	2,798	2,287	511	...	0.15	0.40	0.30	1.52	6.00	3.35	17.08	8.17	13.03	11.30	2.70	3.05	40.14	27.79
Karnal . . . . .	1,533,090	680,319	39,095	36,367	2,728	...	1.57	0.21	0.64	0.78	2.57	3.74	0.91	8.26	2.78	7.57	4.95	...	19.40	20.58
Rohatak . . . . .	1,169,360	906,022	35,530	32,626	2,904	...	...	6.15	0.20	...	2.20	3.10	5.50	10.70	2.80	5.70	2.20	...	12.90	19.65
Delhi . . . . .	804,033	525,076	34,300	24,061	6,338	...	...	0.20	0.10	0.10	2.30	2.20	12.20	11.50	3.50	8.80	5.50	0.60	23.90	23.40
Hissar . . . . .	2,265,428	1,161,781	33,919	38,903	...	5,044	0.10	1.20	...	...	0.30	0.40	12.20	7.50	0.50	5.80	2.10	...	15.20	14.90
Jind . . . . .	...	...	20,847	28,273	...	1,386	...	1.00	...	1.00	1.20	3.00	15.80	9.20	0.00	8.40	1.50	...	19.10	22.60
Dikhaner . . . . .	...	...	224	241	...	17	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
TOTAL W. J. CANAL	7,408,560	4,225,068	172,753	167,721	11,479	6,447	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Gurdaspur . . . . .	1,168,314	854,230	18,619	17,009	1,550	...	0.40	0.18	...	0.95	0.81	7.63	8.20	10.28	6.05	15.33	5.80	1.60	21.08	45.25
Amritsar . . . . .	1,006,708	766,773	52,525	41,709	10,756	...	0.80	0.20	0.40	1.00	0.80	13.20	13.00	23.60	10.80	25.30	11.30	4.00	37.20	69.10
Lahore . . . . .	2,334,552	1,164,921	75,326	68,035	7,291	...	1.20	1.10	0.20	0.95	0.60	0.60	17.20	12.20	8.60	6.35	10.50	...	38.30	21.30
TOTAL B. D. CANAL	4,500,684	2,787,924	140,470	126,873	19,597	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
Lahore . . . . .	Given above.	Given above.	9,922	(1) 10,215	...	6,293	...	...	...	...	...	...	Given above.	...	...	...	...	...	...	(4) ...
Montgomery . . . . .	3,587,750	357,623	31,666	55,705	...	24,039	...	...	...	...	0.50	0.80	5.10	10.20	1.40	2.90	5.00	...	12.00	13.70
Ferozpur . . . . .	3,783,200	799,380	207,480	199,773	7,707	...	...	...	...	...	0.20	...	6.80	1.00	0.80	1.50	...	...	7.80	2.50
Muzaffargarh . . . . .	2,007,819	307,520	135,148	131,350	798	...	0.05	0.20	...	...	...	...	5.35	0.8	0.50	2.0	1.50	...	7.40	3.00
Dera Ghazi Khan . . . . .	2,801,280	1,008,000	141,644	128,783	12,861	...	0.70	0.50	...	0.60	0.90	...	9.40	2.15	0.10	3.20	0.60	...	11.70	6.45
Shahpur . . . . .	3,002,432	624,988	7,826	7,138	688	...	0.9	1.00	0.5	0.20	...	4.40	10.5	3.70	1.6	2.40	9.0	1.10	22.5	12.80
TOTAL INUNDATION CANALS	15,142,481	3,087,499	533,680	511,064	22,054	30,322	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
GRAND TOTAL	(6) 27,000,695	(6) 10,101,091	852,009	830,558	52,130	36,779	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...

Area irrigated in kharif, 1882-83 . . . . . 852,009
Ditto ditto 1881-82 . . . . . 830,558

Net decrease . . . . . 16,351

- (1) and (2) These figures differ from those shown in the return for kharif, 1881-82, in consequence of the exclusion from the present statement of the remissions granted before the preparation of Demand Statement.
(3) The difference between the area shown in the present return and that given in the statement for kharif, 1881-82, is due to the deduction of the land submerged by flood or water.
(4) and (5) These figures represent the correct rain-fall during kharif, 1881-82, and differ from those in the returns for that crop submitted last year.
(6) These figures differ from those shown in the returns for kharif, 1881-82, in consequence of the omission of Gurgaon from this return, in which District no irrigation is shown.

STATEMENT No. II.

Statement in Acres of Crops irrigated in Canal Districts.

DESCRIPTION OF CROPS.	Umballa.	Karnal.	Rohatak.	Delhi.	Gurgaon.	Hissar.	Jind.	Dikhaner.	Gurdaspur.	Amritsar.	Lahore.	Montgomery.	Mooltan.	Dera Ghazi Khan.	Shahpur.	Muzaffargarh.	TOTAL.
Sugar cane . . . . .	409	8,958	16,528	18,088	...	428	2,773	...	4,612	4,796	2,840	78	3,218	86	98	6,411	69,82
Rice . . . . .	2,150	18,071	3,448	7,539	...	6,183	7,569	...	10,364	20,029	10,387	6,043	14,525	15,728	...	28,167	149,74
Cotton . . . . .	4	8,331	11,108	3,640	...	20,439	9,606	42	883	9,350	24,107	5,138	31,611	20,295	4,361	17,753	172,70
Indigo . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	1	...	...	...	80,735	24,770	...	49,739	155,24
Others . . . . .	235	3,735	4,446	5,024	...	6,869	6,939	182	2,919	17,750	47,914	21,399	77,361	74,767	3,370	33,078	306,88
TOTAL KHARIF, 1882-83	2,798	39,095	35,530	34,300	...	33,919	26,897	224	18,619	52,525	85,249	31,660	207,180	141,644	7,826	135,148	852,00
TOTAL KHARIF, 1881-82	2,287	36,367	32,626	24,064	...	38,903	28,273	241	17,069	41,760	84,250*	55,705*	199,773	128,783*	7,138	131,350	830,55

* These figures differ from those shown in the return for kharif of 1881-82, the cause of which is explained in note appended to Statement No. I.

STATEMENT No. III.

Statement in Acres of Crops irrigated in Canal Divisions.

DESCRIPTION OF CROPS.	WESTERN JUMNA CANAL.				BARI DOAB CANAL.			Upper Sutlej Division Inundation Canals.	Lower Sutlej and Chenab Division Inundation Canals.	Dera Ghazi Khan Division Indus Canals.	Shahpur Canals.	Muzaffargarh Canals.	TOTAL.
	Karnal Division.	Hansi Division.	Delhi Division.	TOTAL.	1st Division.	2nd Division.	TOTAL.
Sugar-cane . . . . .	1,331	7,064	37,880	47,184	5,319	6,893	12,241	94	3,218	86	86	6,411	69,82
Rice . . . . .	9,916	17,256	17,788	44,960	11,382	28,540	39,931	6,431	14,525	16,728	9	28,167	149,74
Cotton . . . . .	1,446	38,549	13,184	53,179	5,901	37,391	33,762	6,126	31,611	20,295	4,361	17,753	172,70
Indigo . . . . .	...	...	...	...	1	...	1	...	80,735	24,770	...	49,739	155,24
Others . . . . .	2,181	16,579	8,670	27,430	11,249	40,606	60,945	28,937	77,361	74,767	3,370	33,078	306,88
TOTAL KHARIF, 1882-83	14,874	80,348	77,531	172,753	33,911	112,529	148,470	41,588	207,450	141,644	7,826	135,148	852,00
TOTAL KHARIF, 1881-82	13,641	85,927	68,163	167,721	31,700	93,083	126,873	71,920*	199,773	128,783*	7,138	131,350	830,55

* These figures differ from those shown in the return for kharif of 1881-82, the cause of which is explained in note appended to Statement No. I.

R. HOME, Colonel, R.E.,
Joint-Secretary to Govt., Punjab, P. W. D. Irrigation Branch.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.
RAILWAY TRAFFIC:

No. XXXIV OF 1883.

APPROXIMATE STATEMENT OF GROSS RECEIPTS AND EXPENSES OF INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Latest return received.	Railways.	Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 2ND SEPTEMBER 1882.		Total length open.	RECEIPTS FOR WEEK ENDING 1ST SEPTEMBER 1883.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 2ND SEPTEMBER 1882.		TOTAL RECEIPTS FROM 1ST APRIL TO 1ST SEPTEMBER 1883.		Total Increase in 1883-84.	Total Decrease in 1883-84.
			Total.	Per mile open.		Total.	Per mile open.	Total.	Per mile open per week.	Total.	Per mile open per week.
	Guaranteed.		₹	₹		₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹	₹
8th Sept. 1883	Eastern Bengal . . .	172	1,71,270	996	172	(a) 81,028	471	19,49,165	512	(a) 18,29,826	484	...	1,19,339
1st ditto .	Oudh and Rohilkhund . . .	547	78,936	135	547	96,643	177	21,54,645	178	24,99,429	208	3,44,784	...
8th ditto .	Sind, Punjab & Delhi . . .	676	1,51,542	224	749	1,79,670	240	39,77,100	266	51,13,493	312	11,36,393	...
1st ditto .	Madras . . . . .	861	1,29,878	151	861	1,06,739	124	30,53,119	160	28,36,059	150	...	2,17,060
1st ditto .	South Indian . . . . .	655	76,024	116	655	72,999	111	16,65,230	115	17,05,705	118	40,475	...
25th Aug. 1883	Great Indian Peninsula . . .	1,450	3,51,832	243	...	(b)	...	1,38,99,042	453	1,47,61,601	484	8,62,569	...
1st Sept. 1883	Bombay, Baroda and Central India . . .	461	1,19,215	259	461	1,31,115	284	44,30,337	434	49,90,205	492	5,59,868	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	4,822	10,73,697	223	43,445	6,68,194	194	3,11,28,638	291	3,37,36,318	314	26,07,680	...
	State.
8th Sept. 1883	East Indian . . . . .	1,507	6,76,990	449	1,509	7,92,224	525	1,86,28,154	558	2,18,97,308	660	32,69,154	...
1st ditto .	Calcutta and South-Eastern . . . . .	33	2,639	80	56	4,430	79	82,192	120	1,26,343	108	44,151	...
8th ditto .	Nalhati . . . . .	27	1,352	50	27	1,674	61	28,938	48	35,118	59	6,180	...
1st ditto .	Northern Bengal . . . . .	230	37,289	162	239	30,750	129	7,82,327	153	8,53,385	166	71,058	...
1st ditto .	Tirhoot . . . . .	75	11,896	159	166	14,516	87	2,76,216	152	3,55,447	99	79,231	...
4th Aug. 1883	Patna-Gya . . . . .	57	6,726	118	...	(b)	...	(c) 1,62,512	157	(f) 1,47,281	143	...	15,2
8th Sept. 1883	Muttra-Hathras . . . . .	29	2,665	92	29	3,440	119	48,580	76	54,673	86	6,093	...
8th ditto .	Cawnpore-Furrakhabad . . .	87	6,313	73	87	6,658	77	1,41,487	73	1,40,528	73	...	9
8th ditto .	Dildarnagar-Ghaziपुर . . . .	12	662	55	12	687	57	19,937	75	21,194	80	1,257	...
8th ditto .	Rajputana-Malwa . . . . .	1,117	1,16,157	104	1,117	1,64,240	147	43,75,468	177	51,61,193	210	7,85,725	...
8th ditto .	Wardha Coal . . . . .	45	6,692	149	45	5,592	124	2,24,603	225	3,06,649	310	82,046	...
8th ditto .	Nagpur & Chhattisgarh . . . .	98	3,892	40	149	5,494	37	2,49,741	115	6,07,648	185	3,57,907	...
8th ditto .	Rangoon and Irrawaddy Valley . .	161	17,325	108	161	18,716	116	5,94,174	167	5,90,355	167	...	3,
8th ditto .	Sindia . . . . .	75	4,504	60	75	5,045	67	1,33,190	80	1,31,965	80	...	1,
1st ditto .	Punjab Northern . . . . .	409	44,609	109	421	55,676	132	12,48,407	140	13,32,422	144	84,015	...
1st ditto .	Indus Valley and Kandahar . . . . .	660	80,051	121	660	97,710	148	17,53,747	120	32,81,533	226	15,27,786	...
8th ditto .	Muttra-Achnutra . . . . .	23	1,757	76	23	1,380	60	27,217	53	31,733	63	4,516	...
1st ditto .	Kaunia-Dhurla . . . . .	32	1,382	43	32	1,770	55	31,823	45	40,698	58	8,875	...
8th ditto .	Rewari-Ferozepore . . . . .	...	...	...	89	8,590	97	...	...	1,44,769	74	1,44,769	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	3,170	3,45,911	109	3,388	4,26,368	126	1,01,80,559	145	1,33,62,834	177	31,82,275	...
	Assisted Company.
8th Sept. 1883	Bengal Central . . . . .	...	...	...	35	1,918	55	...	...	46,712	61	46,712	...
	Native States.
1st ditto .	Bhavnagar-Gondal . . . . .	194	9,830	51	193	11,476	59	4,08,915	95	4,53,531	107	44,616	...
1st ditto .	Nizam's . . . . .	121	17,626	146	121	11,934	99	3,67,475	137	3,31,464	125	...	3
1st ditto .	Mysore . . . . .	86	4,307	50	86	4,840	56	1,19,471	63	1,11,636	59	...	...
8th ditto .	Jodhpore . . . . .	19	449	24	19	1,010	53	(g) 2,000	10	15,763	37	13,763	...
	TOTAL . . . . .	420	32,212	77	419	29,260	70	8,97,861	99	9,12,394	90	14,533	...
	GRAND TOTAL . . . . .	9,919	21,28,810	215	48,796	19,17,964	218	6,08,35,212	277	6,99,55,566	309	91,20,354	...
	GROSS ESTIMATED EXPENSES . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	3,09,12,755	141	3,49,35,193	154	...	...
	NET RECEIPTS . . . . .	...	...	...	...	...	...	2,99,22,457	136	3,50,20,373	155	50,97,916	...

(a) Exclusive of the Company's share of the earnings of the Bengal Central Railway.
(b) Return not received.
(c) Total receipts from 1st April to 26th August 1883.
(d) Total receipts from 1st April to 25th August 1883.
(e) Total receipts from 1st April to 6th August 1882.

(f) Total receipts from 1st April to 4th August 1883.
(g) Total receipts from 24th June to 2nd September 1882.
(h) Excludes mileage of G. I. P. Railway (1,451).
(i) Excludes mileage of Patna-Gya Railway (67).
(j) Excludes mileage of G. I. P. and Patna-Gya Railways (1,451+57).

R. A. SARGEAUNT, Major, R.E.,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.
IRRIGATION OPERATIONS, 1882-83.

Comparative Statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for the years 1881-82 and 1882-83 in the Canal Districts of the Punjab.

Comparative Statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for the years 1881-82 and 1882-83.
DISTRICTS.	AREA IRRIGATED.								RAIN-FALL.
	Population.	Area in acres.	Cultivated area in acres.	KHARIF 1882-83.			RABI 1882-83.			WHOLE YEAR 1882-83.			1881-82.	1882-83.	Percentage of increase or decrease in 1882-83.
				In comparison with 1881-82.		Total acres.	In comparison with 1881-82.		Total acres.	In comparison with 1881-82.		Total acres.
				Increase.	Decrease.		Increase.	Decrease.		Increase.	Decrease.
WESTERN JUMRA CANAL.
Umballa	1,087,263	1,644,849	851,880	2,798	...	794	25	...	...	...	...	32'6	45'4	+38'3
Karnal	623,621	1,533,000	680,319	39,095	...	47,940	14,824	...	...	...	...	25'0	27'0	-8'0
Delhi	643,515	1,844,833	525,676	5,336	...	30,773	...	...	...	...	...	23'7	27'3	+9'7
Kotak	653,609	1,159,360	906,022	2,904	...	40,229	...	...	...	...	...	14'4	14'4	-36'6
Hissar	504,183	2,266,428	1,161,761	33,019	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	17'8	19'5	+9'6
Jind	251,231	...	...	20,887	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	25'8	24'7	-4'3
Bikaner	...	...	...	224	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...
TOTAL WESTERN JUMRA CANAL	3,642,422*	7,408,530	4,235,665	101,803	...	201,400	69,044	378	74,063	386	...	...	...	...
BARI DOAB CANAL.
Guridaspur	2,631,067	4,560,664	2,787,924	146,470	...	207,145	...	...	...	...	...	46'85	25'90	-46'35
Amritsar	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	73'63	40'80	-44'58
Lahore	6,283,469	11,918,214	7,013,692	319,223	...	408,635	69,044	...	...	...	...	34'20	41'80	+71'80
IRRAWADDY CANALS.
Montgomery	426,529	3,567,750	357,622	9,622†	...	24,268†	...	2,027	...	8,920	...	16'60	Given above.	-17'47
Mooltan	651,964	3,793,200	799,360	207,490	...	64,067	...	17,417	...	41,456	...	3'10	9'00	+190'32
Dera Ghazi Khan	393,346	2,401,250	1,408,000	141,641	...	156,546	9,041	...	...	...	...	7'10	12'26	+73'54
Shahpur	431,508	3,002,432	624,983	7,826	...	38,976	...	13,044	...	183	...	14'20	25'20	+77'46
Muzaffargarh	338,605	2,407,619	397,539	135,146	...	4,805	420	...	...	...	...	15'20	7'70	+123'19
TOTAL IRRAWADDY CANALS	2,101,952	15,142,491	3,087,499	533,636	...	431,773	19,450	32,438	...	49,969	...	...	...	...
GRAND TOTAL	6,369,441	27,060,695	10,101,001	842,909	...	830,413	89,494	66,851	1,683,322	65,418	...	...	...	...
NET INCREASE	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	...	37,994	...	...	...	...

* These figures differ from those given in the statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for 1881-82, in consequence of the omission of Gurgion from the present return.
† In these cases the comparison has been made with the figures shown in half-yearly statements of Irrigation operations for Kharif and Rabi 1882-83, and not with those entered in the Annual Statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for 1881-82, as the form gives the correct acreage for 1881-82, side foot notes attached thereto.
‡ In this case also the comparison has been made with the figures shown in the Revised Statements of Irrigation operations for Kharif 1882-83, and not with those given in Annual Statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for 1881-82.
§ This is the correct rain-fall and differs from that shown in the comparative statement of Irrigation and Rain-fall for the years 1880-81 and 1881-82.

R. HOME, Colonel, R.E.,
Joint-Secy. to Govt., Punjab, P. W. D., Irriga. Branch

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE STATEMENT OF PRICES CURRENT OF FOOD-GRAINS FOR THE 1st HALF OF JUNE 1883
OF THE SUPPLEMENT TO THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA," DATED 14th JULY 1883.

QUANTITIES PER RUPEE IN SEERS OF 80 TOLAHS.
DIRECTIONS.	Wheat.						Barley.						Rice.						Common.						Great Millet (Cholum, Jowar). Holcus Soryham.						Bulrush Millet (Cumbo Bajra), Panicularia Spiicata.						Lesser Millets, Bari, Ac. (Karam, Veta, Soo, Saree, Cheena, Corlooy, Murbha, Nuglee, &c.), Pan- cum, Milacum, Eleusine Coracana, &c.						Gram.						Firewood.						Salt.
	Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.			Night of last year.</

